liable for any injury sustained by reason of his failure to perform, negligence in performing, or illegal performance of any duty which is legally cast upon him,¹ to any person specially

Polk, 8 Lea (Tenn.) 121; Bagnall v. Ableman, 4 Wis. 163; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 222. Compare Henke v. McCord, 55 Iowa 378; Sessums v. Botts, 34 Tex. 335; State v. Shakespeare, 41 La. Ann. 156. See Board v. McComb, 92 U. S. 531.

A justice of the peace who issues a warrant under an unconstitutional statute is liable in damages to the person arrested thereon. Kelly v. Bemis, 4 Gray (Mass.) 83; 64 Am. Dec. 50.

An officer who refuses to act under a statute which he considers unconstitutional, does so at his peril, and if the statute is declared valid, he is liable for such refusal. Clark v. Miller, 54 N. Y. 528; People v. Salomon, 54 Ill. 39.

1. Grider v. Tally, 77 Ala. 422; 54 Am. Rep. 65; Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 139; 3 Am. St. Rep. 699; Temple v. People, 6 Ill. App. 378; Snyder v. Brosse, 51 Ill. 357; 99 Am. Dec. 551; Governor v. Dodd, 81 Ill. 162; McCord v. High, 24 Iowa 336; McCarty v. Bauer, 3 Kan. 237; Forsythe v. Ellis, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 298; 20 Am. Dec. 218; Maxwell v. Pike, 2 Me. 8; Sawyer v. Wilson, 61 Me. 529; Melville v. Brown, 15 Mass. 82; Nowell v. Wright, 3 Allen (Mass.) 166; 80 Am. Dec. 62; Wallis v. Truesdell, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 455; Holden v. Eaton, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 436; Smith v. Gates, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 55; Keith v. Howard, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 292; Russell v. Phelps, 42 Mich. 377; Raynsford v. Phelps, 43 Mich. 342; 38 Am. Rep. 189; Handy v. Clippert, 50 Mich. 355; McNutt v. Livingston, 7 S. & M. (Miss.) 641; St. Joseph F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Leland, 90 Mo. 177; 59 Am. Rep. 9; Taylor v. Jones, 42 N. H. 25; Connors v. Adams, 13 Hun (N. Y.) 427; Bassett v. Fish, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 209; Piercy v. Averill, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 360; Hutson v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 9 N. Y. 163; Hicks v. Dorn, 42 N. Y. 47; 9 Abb. N. S. (N. Y.) 47; McCarthy v. Syracuse, 46 N. Y. 194; Robinson v. Chamberlain, 34 N. Y. 389; 90 Am. Dec. 713; Clark v. Miller, 54 N. Y. 528; Kennedy v. Ryall, 67 N. Y. 379; Bennett v. Whitney, 94 N. Y. 302; Hover v. Barkhoof, 44 N. Y. 113; Jenner v. Joliffe, 9 Johns.

(N. Y.) 381; Adsit v. Brady, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 630; 40 Am. Dec. 305; Bailey v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531; 38 Am. Dec. 669; Wilson v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 1 Den. (N. Y.) 595; 43 Am. Dec. 719; People v. Tweed, 13 Abb. N. S. (N. Y.) 25; Van Schaick v. Sigel, 60 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 122; Mott v. Hudson River R. Co. 8 Bosw. (N. Y.) 345; Wooley v. Baldwin, 101 N. Y. 688; Work v. Hoofnagle, 1 Yeates (Pa.) 506; State v. Cole, 6 Lea (Tenn.) 492; Sawyer v. Corse, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 230; 94 Am. Dec. 415; Amy v. Barkholder, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 136.

A mistake as to his duty, but with honest intentions, will not excuse the offender. Amy v. Barkholder, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 136.

A contractor invested with the powers of a non-judicial officer, is liable to one who sustains special damage by such contractor's neglect of duty. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 34 N. Y. 389; 90 Am. Dec. 713.

Officers De Facto.—An officer de facto cannot be compelled to act, and, therefore, incurs no liability by his mere nonfeasance. Olmsted v. Dennis, 77 N. Y. 379; Bentley v. Phelps, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 524; Shepherd v. Lincoln, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 250.

A taxpayer had funds in the bank sufficient to pay his taxes and the collector received his check for the amount, but failed to present the check at the bank in due time and the institution afterwards failed. Held, that the collector must bear the loss. Held, also, that if after the receipt of the check, the collector returned the taxes delinquent, and the taxpayer was compelled to pay them with another appropriation of money, the collector became liable to him for the amount of the check. Choteau v. Rowse, 56 Mo. 65.

The defendant was in command of a steamship at quarantine, which the deputy health officer of the port of New York, ordered to be fumigated. By his order, the chief steward cleared the passengers from the steerage, and utensils containing some poisonous substance were placed therein for the purpose of fumigation. The health officer gave instructions as to the length of time the steerage should injured thereby,¹ provided such conduct is the proximate cause of the injury.² But if the duty is of such a nature as to require money to enable the officer to perform it, he cannot be held remain closed and as to the removal of the utensils. One of these, an ordinary drinking cup, was not removed with the others and plaintiff's intestate, a child about five years old, who, with its mother, had been ordered by the steward to return to the steerage cabin, drank some of the poison in the cup and died from the effects. In an action by the father to recover damages, it was held that the defendant was liable. Kennedy v. Ryall, 67 N. Y. 379.

A superintendent of repairs on the canals of the State, although an agent of the State, is personally liable in an action on the case for damages sustained by an individual, through the negligence of workmen employed in making repairs. It seems that in an action against the superintendent for nonfeasance, it would be necessary to show his office, and all of the facts necessary to fix upon him the duty of making repairs, as that he had funds, etc.; but for misfeasance, it is enough to prove negligence or mismanagement. Shepherd v. Lincoln, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 250.

A collector of taxes is liable in trespass, if he sell upon his warrant a greater number of the chattels than sufficient to pay the tax, with the fees and charges. Williamson v. Dow, 32 Me. 559.

The refusal of an officer, charged with the disbursement of public funds, to apply the fund to the purposes to which it is devoted by law, constitutes no misappropriation of the fund. Ryerson v. Utley, 16 Mich. 269. But when the commissioner of immigration, upon being required to render immediately to the comptroller a detailed statement of receipts, and to pay the same into the State treasury, replies that he had received no moneys belonging to the State, such reply is evidence of a conversion of all the moneys of the State, which had theretofore come to his hands, as fast as received, and such conversion was a breach of his official bond, which was in force at the time of the receipt of the moneys. People v. Van Ness, 79 Cal. 84.

As to what constitutes nonfeasance, misfeasance and malfeasance, see MAL-

FEASANCE, vol 14, p. 5; MISFEASANCE, vol. 15, p. 621.

An officer who attaches property on mesne process, and sells it thereon, without the consent of the creditor and owner, or otherwise than by the mode prescribed by statute, becomes a trespasser ab initio. Ross v. Philbrick, 39 Me. 29.

If an officer, having lawfully seized goods by virtue of a warrant of distress, wantonly removes them to a great distance before the sale, whereby the owner is injured, an action on the case may be maintained against him, but he is not for that cause, a trespasser ab initio. Purrrington v. Loring, 7 Mass. 388.

An officer who, at the request of the judgment creditor, commits a debtor on execution to the jail farthest from his residence, although requested by the debtor to commit to a nearer jail in the same county, is not liable to an action by the debtor. Woodward v. Hopkins, 2 Gray (Mass.) 210.

1. Piercy v. Averill, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 360; Bassett v. Fish, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 209; Bennett v. Whitney, 94 N. Y. 302. See supra, this title, Liabilities of Public Officers.

2. Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 179; 3 Am. St. Rep. 699; Mayor, etc., of Albany v. Cunliff, 2 N. Y. 165; Lick v. Madden, 36 Cal. 208; 95 Am. Dec. 175; State v. Harris, 89 Ind. 363; 46 Am. Rep. 169; District Tp. v. Bowman, 55 Iowa 129.

No action for damages will lie against a circuit clerk who wrongfully issues a writ of venditioni exponas commanding the sheriff to sell certain lands in possession of the plaintiff on which an execution against another person has been levied, the wrongful levy and sale not affecting his right, title, or possession; and the costs, expenses, and attorney's fees incurred in defending a suit brought against him by the purchaser, alleged as special damages, not being the natural and proximate consequences of the issuing of the writ. Eslava v. Jones, 83 Ala. 179; 3 Am. St. Rep. 699.

When the fault or neglect of the injured party materially contributed to injury, the officer is not liable. See liable unless it can be shown that he possessed sufficient funds or was in fault for not possessing them.¹ The fact that a failure of performance of his duty is made a penal offense, does not alter his personal liability. He remains liable.² And he will be held liable when his improper conduct was the result of a mistake in good faith as to his duty.³

a. FOR DEFAULT OF OFFICIAL SUBORDINATES.—A public officer is not responsible for the acts or defaults of his subordinates when the subordinates are public officers, even though they are selected by him and subject to his orders.⁴ The Boardman v. Hayne, 29 Iowa 339; Lick v. Madden, 36 Cal. 208; 95 Am. Dec. 175.

1. Studley v. Geyer, 72 Me. 286; Nowell v. Wright, 3 Allen (Mass.) 166; 80 Am. Dec. 62; Hines v. Lockport, 50 N. Y. 236; Warren v. Clement, 24 Hun (N. Y.) 472; Bartlett v. Crozier, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 439; 8 Am. Dec. 428; Smith v. Wright, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 170; 12 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 555; Garlinghouse v. Jacobs, 29 N. Y. 297; Smith v. Wright, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 621; Hutson v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 289; Hover v. Barkhoof, 44 N. Y. 113. See also People v. Ulster Co., 93 N. Y. 397; People v. Comrs. of Highways, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 474; Barker v. Loomis, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 463; Hickok v. Plattsburgh, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 427; Shepherd v. Lincoln, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 250; Porter v. Thomson, 22 Iowa 391; Oswald v. Thedinga, 17 Iowa 13.

An indictment against commissioners of highways for not repairing a bridge is defective unless it aver that the defendants had funds or other means to defray the expense of the repairs. People v. Adsit, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 619.

Misfeasance.—While in some cases in order to charge an officer, upon whom is imposed the duty of keeping a street in repair, with damages resulting from a defect in the street, it is necessary to show that he had adequate means in his hands to make the repairs, such proof is not necessary in a case of misfeasance; that is, when the officer has acted, but negligently, to the special injury of the plaintiff. Bennett v. Whitney, 94 N. Y. 302; Rector v. Pierce, 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 416.

Burden of Proof.—The burden of showing want of means is upon the defendant. Weed v. Ballston Spa, 76 N. Y. 329; Hyatt v. Roundout, 44

Barb. (N. Y.) 385; Griffith v. Follett, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 620; Eveleigh v. Hounsfield, 34 Hun (N. Y.) 140; Smith v. Wright, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 621; People v. Adsit, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 619. In these cases it was held that the complaint should aver the possession, or means of obtaining possession, of the requisite funds by the defendants.

2. Raynsford v. Phelps, 43 Mich. 342; 38 Am. Rep. 189; Hayes v. Porter, 22 Me. 371.

3. Amy v. Barkholder, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 136.

In Beckham v. Nacke, 56 Mo. 546, it was held that an honest mistake by a magistrate performing a marriage ceremony would not protect him against the penalty provided by law to the performance of such ceremony when the persons married are minors, without the consent of their parents or guardians. See Wood v. Ruland, 10 Mo. 143.

4. 1 Minor's Inst. (3d ed.) 253; Story on Agency, § 319; Throop on Pub. Off., § 592; Hall v. Smith, 2 Bing. 156; 9 E. C. L. 357; Robertson v. Sichel, 127 U. S. 507; Brissac v. Lawrence, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 121; Scott Co. v. Fluke, 34 Iowa 317; Foster v. Metts, 55 Miss. 77; 30 Am. Rep. 504; Whyte v. Mills, 64 Miss. 158; Hutchins v. Brackett, 22 N. H. 252; 53 Am. Dec. 248; Murphy v. Comrs. of Emigration, 28 N. Y. 134; Martin v. Mayor, etc., of Brooklyn, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 545; Bailey v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531; 38 Am. Dec. 669; Wiggins v. Hathaway, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 632; Conwell v. Voorhees, 13 Ohio 523; 42 Am. Dec. 206; Bolan v. Williamson, 1 Brev. (S. Car.) 181; Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461; Tracy v. Cloyd, 10 W. Va. 19. See also Dunlop v. Munroe, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 242; Bishop v. Williamson, 11 Me. 495; People v. Campbell, 82 N. Y. 247; Cunningham v. Moore, 55 Tex. 373; 40 responsibility of sheriffs for the acts of their deputies constitutes an exception to this rule. It is supposed that the reason for this exception is that at common law the deputy was the private servant of the sheriff.¹ But where the public officer is charged with the appointment of his official subordinate he is liable for negligence in making the appointment if he appoint some person notoriously unfit for the place,² and he is also liable when he is negligent in superintending his subordinates in the discharge of their duties,³ or when he co-operates in or authorizes the wrong.⁴

b. FOR DEFAULT OF PRIVATE SERVANTS.—A public officer is liable for the default or negligence of one in his employment as a private servant, though he may be engaged in assisting his master in his public duties.⁵ But in order to make

Am. Rep. 812. See AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 395.

Where the injured party procured the appointment of a deputy by assuring the officer that he should run no risk and incur no liability by appointing such deputy, it was held that the officer was not liable for the defaults of his deputy nor for his own which were the result of such assurance. Skinner v. Wilson, 61 Miss. 90.

Where a sheriff's officer had seized goods of a trader under a fi. fa., more than sufficient to satisfy the levy, and the trader having become bankrupt, and assignees chosen before the goods were sold, the assignees authorized the officer to deliver the whole of the goods to A B, and to receive from him a certain sum as the full value of the goods, which he did accordingly, and out of that money satisfied the execution creditor, but never paid over the residue to the assignees. Held, that they could not sue the sheriff for this money the officer not having derived his authority to sell the whole of the goods from the sheriff but from the plaintiffs, the assignees. Cook v. Palmer, 6 B. & C. 739; 13 E. C. L. 305.

The misconduct of a deputy sheriff is not ground for removing the sheriff from office, he not having sanctioned the misconduct. State v. Budd, 39 La. Ann. 232.

An officer is entitled to relief under the disbursing officers' act of 1866, in a case where his chief clerk opened his safe and stole government funds in the officer's hands without fault on the part of the officer. Howell v. U. S., 7 Ct. of Cl. 512.

Where, however, a paymaster seeking relief under the disbursing officer's act avers that he drew checks which his clerk fraudulently raised, it will be presumed that the checks were drawn on some bank or bankers, against whom the paymaster would have recourse for the wrongful payment. Hall v. U. S., 9 Ct. of Cl. 270.

1. Bl. Com., vol. 1, pp. 344, 346; 1 Minor's Insts. (3d ed.) 254; Bacon's Abr. Sheriffs (H).

As to liability of sheriff for acts of his deputy see DEPUTY, vol. 5, p. 634.

Under sheriffs, bailiffs, etc., are looked upon as the high sheriff's officers, for whom he shall answer as their superior, and their acts are to many purposes considered as his own. Bac. Abr. Sheriffs (H).

2. Wiggins v. Hathaway, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 632; Story on Agency, § 321. See 2 Kent's Com. 610.

A postmaster is not responsible for the secret delinquencies of a sworn assistant, appointed and retained by him in good faith. Schroyer v. Lynch, 8 Watts (Pa.) 453.

3. Throop on Pub. Off., § 592; Dunlop v. Munroe, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 242; Bishop v. Williamson, 11 Me. 495. See Ford v. Parker, 4 Ohio St. 576.

4. Tracy v. Cloyd, 10 W. Va. 19.

5. 1 Minor's Inst. (3d ed.) 253; State v. Newton, 33 Ark. 276; Ely v. Parsons, 55 Conn. 83; Anne Arundel Co. v. Duvall, 54 Md. 350; 39 Am. Rep. 393; Prosser v. Coots, 50 Mich. 262; McNutt v. Livingston, 7 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 641; State v. Moore, 19 Mo. 369; 61 Am. Dec. 563; Hutchins v. Brackett, 22 N. H. 252; 53 Am. Dec. 248; Van Schaick v. Sigel, 60 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 122; Shepherd v. Lincoln, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 250; Bolan v. Williamson, 1 Brev. (S. Car.) 181; Flana-

the officer so liable the subordinate must act under color of his office.¹

c. LIABILITY ON THEIR OFFICIAL CONTRACTS.—Contracts made by a public officer on behalf of the government do not generally bind him, although the contract be expressed in language gan v. Hoyt, 36 Vt. 565; 86 Am. Dec. 675; Sawyer v. Corse, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 230; 94 Am. Dec. 445.

A person in making his requisition for a certificate upon the register of the city of New York, designated a clerk employed by the register whom he desired should make the search. Held, that the register was liable for all errors, inaccuracies or mistakes made in the return. Van Schaick v. Sigel, 60 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 122.

County commissioners are not liable for an injury sustained by a traveler on one of the county highways by the negligence of a laborer engaged in the repairing of the road upon the employment of the road supervisor, an independent officer appointed in pursuance of law. Anne Arundel Co. v. Duvall, 54 Md. 350; 39 Am. Rep. 393.

Who Is Private Servant.—If the sub-agent hold an office not known to the law and his appointment is private and discretionary with his principal, he is a private servant. Ely v. Parsons, 55 Conn. 83; also Dunlop v. Monroe, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 242; Bishop v. Williamson, 11 Me. 495.

"This distinction is not only logical, seeing that the subordinate, when a public officer, is the agent, not of his chief, but of the government, but it is also rendered needful by sound policy as well as by justice." 1 Min. Inst. (2d ed.) 254. See also Hall v. Smith, 2 Bing. 156; 9 E. C. L. 357.

Applied to Postmasters.—A postmaster is not liable for the loss of a letter occasioned by the negligence of his clerk appointed according to law. Keenan v. Southworth, 110 Mass. 474; 14 Am. Rep. 613; Wiggins v. Hathaway, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 632.

A postmaster is liable for the acts of one whom he permitted to have the care and custody of the mail, in his office, not having been sworn according to law. Bishop v. Williamson, 11 Me. 495.

By law the clerk of a circuit court may appoint deputies, but the deputy is responsible to the clerk alone, and the clerk is liable to parties who may be injured by the acts of the deputy, as the acts of the deputy are the acts of the principal. McNutt v. Livingston, 7 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 641.

A constable or deputy sheriff, who gives his receipt for the collection of notes placed in his hands, thereby assumes an agency, for negligence or misconduct in the fulfillment of which he is personally responsible to the party injured. Rose v. Lane, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 218.

Exemplary Damages.—Exemplary damages may properly be awarded against a sheriff for the misconduct of his deputy. Hazard v. Israel, 1 Binn. (Pa.) 240; 2 Am. Dec. 438.

Burden of Proof.—Proof that the defendant was collector and that the person who made the sale was his deputy, and that the defendant had received from another person who acted as principal assessor a list of taxes in his district, will not throw on the defendant the burden of proving that the tax was not legally assessed. Holden v. Eaton, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 436.

The commissioners of emigration are not liable for the loss of passengers' baggage by persons whom they have licensed to run steamboats. Murphy v. Comrs. of Emigration, 28 N. Y. 134.

In the absence of personal negligence, one acting gratuitously as a public officer, is not liable personally for the negligence of a person necessarily employed in the execution of an order properly given by him. The doctrine of respondet superior does not apply to such cases. Donovan v. McAlpine, 85 N. Y. 185; 39 Am. Rep. 649; Dailey v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531; 38 Am. Dec. 669.

Although a sheriff is liable for a trespass committed by his deputy alone, he cannot be sued therefor jointly with the deputy, nor will an action lie against him after a judgment against the deputy, upon which execution has been issued. Campbell v. Phelps, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 62; 11 Am. Dec. 139.

1. Harrington v. Fuller, 18 Me. 277; 36 Am. Dec. 719; Weldes v. Edsell, 2 McLean (U. S.) 366; Knowl- that would render an agent of a private person liable;¹ in the absence of evidence of an unqualified intention of the parties to ton v. Bartlett, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 270; Acker v. Ledyard, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 514.

When Subordinate Acts Under Instructions.—A sheriff is not liable for the acts of his deputy, where the deputy acts out of the ordinary line of his duty, by the directions of the plaintiff in the execution. Acker v. Ledyard, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 514; Armstrong v. Garrow, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 465; Gorham v. Gale, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 469, n. a.

But where the plaintiff in an execution has given instructions to a deputy sheriff to depart from the line of duty imposed by law, but the deputy has done nothing in conformity with such instructions, the sheriff is not discharged from liability for his deputy's acts. Sheldon v. Payne, 7 N. Y. 453.

1. 1 Minor's Inst. (3d ed.) 237; 2 Kent's Com., p. 632; Story on Agency, § 302; Mechem on Pub. Off., § 805; Bac. Abr., Master and Servant (L); Macbeath v. Haldimand, 1 T. R. 172, 181; Hodgson v. Dexter, 1 Cranch (U. S.) 845; Parks v. Ross, 11 How. (U. S.) 362; Jones v. La Tombe, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 384; New York, etc., S. S. Co. v. Harbison, 16 Fed. Rep. 688; Comer v. Bankhead, 70 Ala. 493; Dwinelle v. Henriquez, 1 Cal. 387; Adams v. Whittlesey, 3 Conn. 560; Perry v. Hyde, 10 Conn. 329; Broadwell v. Chapin, 2 Ill. App. 511; McClure v. Secrist, 5 Ind. 31; Perrin v. Lyman, 32 Ind. 16; Sheffield School Tp. v. Andress, 56 Ind. 157; Monticello v. Kendall, 72 Ind. 91; 37 Am. Rep. 139; Mackensie v. Board, etc., 72 Ind. 189; Wallis v. Johnson School Tp., 75 Ind. 368; Pine Civil Tp. v. Huber Mfg. Co., 83 Ind. 121; Murray v. Carothers, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 71; Stinchfield v. Little, 1 Me. 231; 10 Am. Dec. 65; Brown v. Austin, 1 Mass. 208; 2 Am. Dec. 11; Bainbridge v. Downie, 6 Mass. 253; Dawes v. Jackson, 9 Mass. 490; Cutler v. Ashland, 121 Mass. 588; Sanborn v. Neal, 4 Minn. 126; 77 Am. Dec. 502; Copes v. Matthews, 10 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 398; Tutt v. Hobbs, 17 Mo. 486; Reed v. Conway, 26 Mo. 13; Hodges v. Runyan, 30 Mo. 491; Knight v. Clark, 48 N. J. L. 22; 57 Am. Rep. 534; Andover v. Grafton, 7 N. H. 298; Crowell v. Crispin, 4 Daly (N. Y.) 100; Nichols v. Moody, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 611; Walker v. Swartwout, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 444; 7 Am. Dec. 334; Rathbon v. Budlong, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; Olney v.

Wickes, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 122; Fox v. Drake, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 191; Belknap v. Reinhart, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 375; 20 Am. Dec. 621; Osborne v. Kerr, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 179; Hall v. Lauderdale, 46 N. Y. 70; Fleming v. Suspension Bridge, 92 N. Y. 368; Cook v. Irvine, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 492; 9 Am. Dec. 397; Heidelberg School Dist. v. Horst, 62 Pa. St. 301; Miller v. Ford, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 376; 55 Am. Dec. 687; Hammaraskold v. Bull, 11 Rich. (S. Car.) 473; Enloe v. Hall, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 303; Stone v. Huggins, 28 Vt. 617. See AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 404. See also Tip-pets v. Walker, 4 Mass. 595.

Generally the officer will be exempt from liability, although he sign the contract in his own name, provided it contains a description of himself as a public officer. Heidelberg School Dist. v. Horst, 62 Pa. St. 301; Miller v. Ford, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 376; 55 Am. Dec. 687; Tutt v. Hobbs, 17 Mo. 486. Compare Cahokia v. Rantenberg, 88 Ill. 219; Mellen v. Moore, 68 Me. 390.

Where a contract was made by public officers in their own names, to which they subscribed themselves with the further description of commissioners for building the courthouse at Owego village, it was held that they were not personally liable. Fox v. Drake, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 191.

This applies as well to sealed as to unsealed instruments. Hodgson v. Dexter, 1 Cranch (U. S.) 346; Knight v. Clark, 48 N. J. L. 22. See Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; 23 Am. Rep. 453.

A lease for a year by county commissioners under their own seals and not the county seal, is binding on the county as an express contract; and if the possession be not delivered up at the end of the term, but the occupancy continued, an implied contract arises against the county. A suit for use and occupation, however, might not lie against the county, as the occupation was not by the county, nor for its benefit. County v. Bridenhart, 16 Pa. St. 458.

When an agent is intrusted with the performance of a public duty, he cannot be held personally liable on any contract made by him in pursuance of such duty. Brown v. Austin, 1 Mass. 208; 2 Am. Dec. 11.

A person was pardoned on condition bind the officer,¹ it is not to be presumed, either that a public that he secured the payment of $1,000 to the county, and the county commissioners took a mortgage to themselves instead of the county. Held, that the mortgage was good, the commissioners being trustees for the county by implication of law from the nature of the transaction. Rood v. Winslow, 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 68. See State Bank v. Chapelle, 40 Mich. 447.

The vessel of the plaintiff was employed by the defendant, a captain in the service of the United States, in transporting ordnance and military stores of the United States from Oswego to Sackett's Harbor during the late war, and by the direction of the defendant was sunk in the harbor of Oswego in order to prevent the ordnance, etc., from falling into the hands of the enemy who captured Oswego and raided and carried off the vessel. It was held that the defendant was not answerable to the plaintiff for the value of the vessel so sunk and lost. Bronson v. Woolsey, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 46.

Where Officer Receives Funds.—As a general rule a public agent is not personally liable on a contract made by him in behalf of the government, but if, by his interference he prevents the remedy as against the government, he makes himself answerable; or if he receives the money from the government to enable him to fulfill his contract and refuses to pay it over, he is liable to the parties in an action for goods had and received to his use. Freeman v. Otis, 9 Mass. 272; 6 Am. Dec. 66; Hammaraskold v. Bull, 11 Rich. (S. Car.) 493; Chapman v. Williams, 7 Har. & J. (Md.) 124. See Twycross v. Dreyfus, L. R., 5 Ch. Div. 605.

An agreement for the purchase and sale of realty was made between E J and M, of the first part, and D, "in behalf of the city of Providence," of the second part. It was signed by all of the parties in their own names and sealed with their own seals. On demurrer to a bill of specific performance filed by the city of Providence, it was held that the contract was that of D personally, and not that of the city. Held, further, that the words "in behalf of the city of Providence," though indicating a beneficial interest on the part of the city, neither made it a party to the contract, nor entitled it to sue as such. Held, further, that the fact admitted at the hearing, though not charged in the bill, that D was mayor of the city of Providence when the contract was made and signed was unimportant. Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; 23 Am. Rep. 453.

The public administrator of the county of San Francisco is not a public officer within the meaning of the rule, and is personally liable upon a contract made in relation to estates upon which he administers, unless the idea of such personal liability be excluded by the contract. Dwinelle v. Henriquez, 1 Cal. 387.

A due-bill "for work done on the Hazle Valley schoolhouse and hall," and signed by two individuals with the addition "committee," is the personal liability of the signers. Anderson v. Pearce, 36 Ark. 293; 33 Am. Rep. 39.

Where a committee was chosen by a town to rebuild a bridge which the town was bound to maintain, it was held that the members of such committee were not to be deemed public agents, but were subject to the same rules in regard to personal liability on their contracts made for that purpose as other agents. Simonds v. Heard, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 120; 34 Am. Dec. 41.

In 1854, the county court of Lewis county by an order entered of record, having determined to build a new courthouse and clerk's office, the cost of which was to be paid in four equal annual installments, contracted for the erection thereof on the terms aforesaid. In December, 1854, said court appointed J B its agent, to borrow the money necessary to meet the engagements of the county with its contractors, and pledged the county for the payment thereof. J B forwarded from the Exchange Bank of Virginia $4,075.04 for that purpose, for which he made four negotiable notes to the bank, whereby he promised to pay the same to the bank 120 days after their respective dates, and signed the same J B, agent for Lewis county. In an action brought by the bank against Lewis county to recover the amount of this loan, it was held that the said notes were the notes of J B, and not the notes of Lewis county. Exchange Bank v. Lewis Co., 28 W. Va. 273.

1. Parks v. Ross, 11 How. (U. S.) 362; New York, etc., S. S. Co. v.

agent intends to bind himself personally, or that a party contracting with him in his public character means to rely upon his individual responsibility,¹ because governments can only contract through their officers and agents,² and, besides, to hold the agent liable would render it difficult for the government to obtain the services of responsible men; so that considerations of public policy require the agent to be held exempt.³ But in order to escape liability the officer must designate the department of the government for which he acts,⁴ and his contracts must be those which are authorized by law.⁵ But if the person with whom the contract is made has equal means of knowledge as to the officer's Harbison, 16 Fed. Rep. 688; Perry v. Hyde, 10 Conn. 329; Mann v. Richardson, 66 Ill. 481; Broadwell v. Chapin, 2 Ill. App. 511; Bayliss v. Pearson, 15 Iowa 279; Simonds v. Heard, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 120; 34 Am. Dec. 41; Copes v. Matthews, 10 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 398; Osborne v. Kerr, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 179; Gill v. Brown, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 385; Nichols v. Moody, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 611; Crowell v. Crispin, 4 Daly (N. Y.) 100; Miller v. Ford, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 376; 55 Am. Dec. 687; Providence v. Miller, 11 R. I. 272; 23 Am. Rep. 453. Compare Bingham v. Stewart, 13 Minn. 106.

When the agent fails to disclose the fact that he was the agent of the government, it will be presumed that credit was given to the agent personally. Nichols v. Moody, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 611.

Where one of the selectmen of a town signed a note with his own name "for the selectmen," it was not the promissory note of the town. Andover v. Grafton, 7 N. H. 298.

Where a government agent, though known to be such, wrote to the plaintiff a letter on the subject in suit in these words:

"Sir: I pray you to make a draft of the ship, as soon as possible, for which you shall have the usual allowance. From your humble servant,
"J. W."

It was held that the writing evidenced an unqualified intention on the part of J W to be personally bound by the contract. Sheffield v. Watson, 3 Cai. (N. Y.) 69.

Extrinsic evidence may be resorted to if it be doubtful from the contract itself whether the public agents intend to assume an individual responsibility, and the debt which is evidenced by the contract, the object sought to be obtained by the arrangement, the declarations made at the time in the presence of the parties, and the disposition made of the money raised by the contract, may be given in evidence. Sanborn v. Neal, 4 Minn. 126; 77 Am. Dec. 502; New York, etc., S. S. Co. v. Harbison, 16 Fed. Rep. 688. Compare Fowler v. Atkinson, 6 Minn. 578.

1. Nichols v. Moody, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 611; Crowell v. Crispin, 4 Daly (N. Y.) 100; Murray v. Carothers, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 71; Adams v. Whittlesey, 3 Conn. 560; 2 Kent's Com. 632.

There is a strong presumption of law against any credit having been given to a public agent acting within the scope of his authority. And if, in a case where he acted beyond his authority, the defect of authority was known to the other party, it seems that the same presumption lies against the liability. McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; 91 Am. Dec. 468. See also Ogden v. Raymond, 22 Conn. 379; 58 Am. Dec. 429.

2. Mechem on Pub. Off. § 803.

3. 1 Minor's Inst. (3d ed.) 237; Story on Agency, § 302; Macbeath v. Haldimand, 1 T. R. 172; Hodgson v. Dexter, 1 Cranch (U. S.) 345; Sanborn v. Neal, 4 Minn. 126; 77 Am. Dec. 502.

4. Wing v. Glick, 56 Iowa 473; 41 Am. Rep. 118; Calikia v. Rautenberg, 88 Ill. 219; Bayliss v. Pearson, 15 Iowa 279; American Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 59 Iowa 696.

The officer must disclose a responsible principal. Blakely v. Bennecke, 59 Mo. 193.

5. Lee v. Munroe, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 366; Bloomington School Tp. v. National School, etc., Co., 107 Ind. 43; State v. Hawes, 112 Ind. 323; Jefferson School Tp. v. Litton, 116 Ind. 467; Ross v. Brown, 74 Me. 352; Parsons v. Monmouth, 70 Me. 262; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 535; McClellicks v. Bryant, authority, as the officer himself, and the officer acts in good faith, he will not be liable for having exceeded his authority;¹ and where the officer's authority depends upon a public statute, all who contract with him are presumed to know the extent and limitations of his authority.² Conversely, no suit lies by a public agent upon any contract entered into by him on behalf of the government. It must be brought in the name of the government.³

A public officer is liable in tort for any false or fraudulent representations made by him in the course of his official transactions.⁴

1 Mo. 598; 14 Am. Dec. 310; McDonald v. Franklin Co., 2 Mo. 217; Ruggles v. Washington Co., 3 Mo. 496; Osborne v. Tunis, 25 N. J. L. 633; Delafield v. Illinois, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 159; Delafield v. Illinois, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 192; Yulee v. Canova, 11 Fla. 9; Moulton v. Parks, 64 Cal. 166; Comrs. v. Lycoming Co., 46 Pa. St. 496; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; 91 Am. Dec. 468.

Though a private agent acting in violation of specific instructions, yet within the scope of a general authority, may bind his principal, the rule as to the effect of a like act of a public agent as the officer of a municipal corporation is otherwise. Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Eschbach, 18 Md. 276; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 535.

1. Murray v. Carothers, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 71; Newman v. Sylvester, 42 Ind. 106.

If township trustees, acting officially, exceed their authority unintentionally under a mistake of law, in which the other contracting party equally participates with equal means of knowledge, yet the parties contract, neither at the time looking to personal liability, the trustees will not become personally liable, nor will the township be liable. Houston v. Clay Co., 18 Ind. 396; Mann v. Richardson, 66 Ill. 481; Sanborne v. Neal, 4 Minn. 126; 77 Am. Dec. 502.

It has been held that it is not essential for the agent to give a right of action against some other party in order to escape liability himself. Ogden v. Raymond, 22 Conn. 379; 58 Am. Dec. 429; Hall v. Crandall, 29 Cal. 567; 89 Am. Dec. 64; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; 91 Am. Dec. 468. See also Newman v. Sylvester, 42 Ind. 106; Perry v. Hyde, 10 Conn. 329.

2. New York, etc., S. S. Co. v. Harbison, 16 Fed. Rep. 688; Newman v.

Sylvester, 42 Ind. 106; Hull v. Marshall Co., 12 Iowa 142; Clark v. Des Moines, 19 Iowa 199; 87 Am. Dec. 423; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Eschbach, 18 Md. 276; State v. Hays, 52 Mo. 578; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; 91 Am. Dec. 468; The Floyd Acceptances, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 666. See infra, this title, Liability of the Public for the Acts of Its Officers and Agents.

In the case of a public agent where his authority or that of his principal to contract is derived from a public statute, the party contracted with is presumed to know the limitations of such authority, and the doctrine that an agent by contracting for his principal affirms his authority, does not apply. McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; 91 Am. Dec. 468.

Individuals, as well as courts, must take notice of the extent of authority of public agents. Whiteside v. U. S., 93 U. S. 247.

3. Story on Agency, § 302; Irish v. Webster, 5 Me. 171; Bainbridge v. Downie, 6 Mass. 253.

4. Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380; 22 Am. Dec. 586; McHenry v. Duffield, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 41; Newman v. Sylvester, 42 Ind. 106; New York, etc., S. S. Co. v. Harbison, 16 Fed. Rep. 688; McCurdy v. Rogers, 21 Wis. 197; 91 Am. Dec. 468; Duncan v. Niles, 32 Ill. 532; 83 Am. Dec. 293; Noyes v. Loring, 55 Me. 408.

A public officer making false or fraudulent representations in respect to property sold by him, is liable in an action on the case. Culver v. Avery, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 380; 22 Am. Dec. 586.

When a public officer knowingly or carelessly assumes to act without being authorized, or conceals the true state of his authority, and falsely leads the party with whom he contracts to

(1) Negotiable Instruments.—The same rules apply to negotiable instruments executed by a public officer as to other contracts made by him.¹

d. CRIMINAL LIABILITY.—Any act or omission, in disobedience of official duty by one who has accepted public office is, when of public concern, in general, punishable as a crime.² A person serving in an official capacity in which he is called upon to exercise his own judgment and discretion, however, becomes crimirepose in his authority, he is liable. Newman v. Sylvester, 42 Ind. 106.

To authorize the setting aside of a contract made by an officer of a municipal corporation, on its behalf, on the ground of fraud, the fraud must be clearly proved. While it may be established by circumstantial evidence, it can only be so established by proof of such circumstances as are irreconcilable with any other theory than that of the guilt of the persons accused of the fraud. Baird v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 96 N. Y. 567.

1. Randolph on Com. Paper, § 132; Jones v. Le Tombe, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 384; Wallis v. Johnson School Tp., 75 Ind. 368; Monticello v. Kendall, 72 Ind. 91; 37 Am. Rep. 139; Lyon v. Adamson, 7 Iowa 509; Harvey v. Irvine, 11 Iowa 82; Armstrong v. Borland, 35 Iowa 537; Independent Dist. v. Reichard, 50 Iowa 98; Baker v. Chables, 4 Greene (Iowa) 428; Sandborn v. Neal, 4 Minn. 126; 77 Am. Dec. 502.

Mr. Randolph, in his work on commercial paper, § 132, says: "An exception is made to the rule of an agent's individual liability, in favor of public officers acting in their public capacity with the knowledge of the other contracting party. In such a case the officer is not individually liable in whatever manner he may make the contract or sign the bill of exchange, draft, or note in question."

Contra, see Exchange Bank v. Lewis Co., 28 W. Va. 273; Forcey v. Caldwell (Pa. 1887), 9 Atl. Rep. 466; Ross v. Brown, 74 Me. 352; Bayliss v. Pearson, 15 Iowa 279; American Ins. Co. v. Stratton, 59 Iowa 696.

The makers of a promissory note which showed upon its face that they executed it "as committeemen for the erection of a schoolhouse in district No. 3, of Camp Township, Polk Co.," held individually liable thereon. Bayliss v. Pearson, 15 Iowa 279.

2. Bish. Cr. Law (7th ed.), § 459; citing State v. McEntyre, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 171; Reg. v. Neale, 9 C. & P. 431; 38 E. C. L. 176; Republica v. Montgomery, 1 Yeates (Pa.) 419; Reg. v. James, 1 Eng. L. & Eq. 552; Rex v. Howard, 7 Mod. 307; Rex v. Angell, Cas. temp. Hardw. 124; Anonymous, 6 Mod. 96; Crouther's Case, Cro. Eliz. 654; Smith v. Langham, Skin. 60; W's Case, Loftt. 44; Adams v. Tertenants, Holt 179; State v. Leigh, 3 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 127; Rex v. Commings, 5 Mod. 179; Rex v. Hemmings, 3 Salk. 187; Smith's Case, Syme 185; Wilkes v. Dinsman, 7 How. (U. S.) 89; Rex v. Harrison, 1 East P. C. 382; Reg. v. Buck, 6 Mod. 306; Mann v. Owen, 9 B. & C. 595; 17 E. C. L. 456; Rex v. Bootle, 2 Bur. 864; Rex v. Fell, 1 Salk. 272; Reg. v. Tracy, 6 Mod. 30; State v. Buxton, 2 Swan (Tenn.) 57.

In State v. Glasgow, Cam. & N. (N. Car.) 38; 2 Am. Dec. 629, it is said: "If a public officer, intrusted with definite powers, to be exercised for the benefit of the community, wickedly abuses or fraudulently exceeds them, he is punishable by indictment, although no injurious effect results to an individual from his misconduct. The crime consists in the public example, in perverting those powers to the purposes of fraud and wrong, which were committed to him as instruments of benefit to the citizens and of safety to their rights."

Ministerial Duties.—This is particularly the case where the duties of the officer are ministerial in their nature and mandatory, permitting the exercise of no discretion on the part of the officer. Bish. Cr. Law (7th ed.), § 459; citing Rex v. Osborn, 1 Comyns 240; Com. v. Genther, 17 S. & R. (Pa.) 135; People v. Norton, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 477; Anonymous, Loftt. 185; Rex v. Seymour, 7 Mod. 382; State v. Maberry, 3 Strobh. (S. Car.) 144; Taylor v. Doremus, 16 N. J. L. 473; Stone v. Graves, 8 Mo. 148; 40 Am. Dec. 131; State v. Stalcup, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 30; 35 Am. Dec. 732. And see State v. Kern, 51

nally liable for his acts, only, where they are willful, malicious or corrupt;¹ but where a public law imposes a public duty, the omission to perform it or its improper performance is a criminal act,² unless it can be made to appear that its proper performance was impossible or inconsistent with other official duties.³

Unless such remedy is given by constitutional or statutory provision, public officers acting judicially and those intrusted with responsible discretionary duties, are not liable to ordinary criminal prosecution for their official defaults,⁴ legislators being

N. J. L. 249; Hill v. State, 4 Sneed (Tenn.) 443; State v. Raleigh, 3 Jones (N. Car.) 399.

1. State v. Williams, 12 Ired. (N. Car.) 172; State v. Powers, 75 N. Car. 281; State v. Wedge, 24 Minn. 150; People v. Stocking, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 573; 32 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 48; 6 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 263; In re East Syracuse, 20 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 131; State v. Porter, 2 Tread. (S. Car.) 694; People v. Coon, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 277; State v. Odell, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 396; Rex v. Badger, 6 Jur. 994; Com. v. Rodes, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 171; Lining v. Bentham, 2 Bay (S. Car.) 1; State v. Johnson, 2 Bay (S. Car.) 385; State v. Gardner, 2 Mo. 23; State v. Glasgow, Cam. & N. (N. Car.) 38; 2 Am. Dec. 629; Cooper v. Adams, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 294; People v. Norton, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 477; Rex v. Phelps, 2 Keny. 570; Rex v. Okey, 8 Mod. 45; Rex v. Allington, 2 Stra. 678; Garrett v. Ferrand, 6 B. & C. 611; 13 E. C. L. 277; Rex v. Webb, 1 W. Bl. 19; Rex v. Halford, 7 Mod. 193; Rex v. Seaford, 1 W. Bl. 432; Rex v. Lediard, Say. 242; Cope v. Ramsey, 2 Heisk. (Tenn.) 197; Downing v. Herrick, 47 Me. 462.

Gross incompetency in a magistrate is not of itself evidence of official corruption or personal depravity, and an erroneous judicial decision, unaccompanied by any fact or circumstance indicating a corrupt or dishonest motive is wholly insufficient upon which to predicate a charge of criminality or corrupt misconduct in office. Quinn v. Scott, 22 Minn. 456.

A county court cannot be indicted for unlawfully approving an account against the county. State v. Kingsbury, 37 Tex. 159.

The fact that the bond required from an officer does not cover a default in duty, does not show that he is not liable, in an action for damages or a criminal prosecution. Holt v. McLean, 75 N. Car. 347.

2. State v. Williams, 12 Ired. (N. Car.) 172.

An omission on the part of a public officer to comply with the provisions of the statute regulating the discharge of his duties, may amount to a misdemeanor, for which he is liable to punishment, notwithstanding such provisions are, as respects the public, merely directory. Case v. Dean, 16 Mich. 12.

In Mississippi a probate clerk who issues a license for marriage, without the consent of the parent or guardian under which a female under eighteen years of age is married, renders himself liable to the penalty prescribed by art. 6332, of Mississippi Rev. Code, notwithstanding he may have been honestly mistaken as to her age. Detterly v. Yeamans, 39 Miss. 475. But not so if the girl and her guardian were non-residents of the State. Bates v. Stokes, 40 Miss. 56.

Privilege of Witness.—Where a charge of misconduct is made against an officer, whether amounting to an indictable offense, or only to his discredit as such officer, which might furnish grounds for his removal or impeachment, he is not bound to be a witness against himself. U. S. v. Collins, 1 Wood (U. S.) 499.

3. Underwood v. Russell, 4 Tex. 175.

4. As to members of legislative bodies, see Story Const., § 795; 1 Kent Com. 235, note; Fergusson v. Kinnoull, 9 C. & F. 251; Howard v. Gosset, May Parl. Law. (2d ed.) 151.

As to courts and juries, and other officers intrusted with responsible discretionary duties, see 1 Hawk. P. C. (Curw. ed.) p. 447, § 6; Yates v. Lansing, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 282; 6 Am. Dec. 290; Cunningham v. Bucklin, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 178; Hammond v. Howell, 2 Mod. 218; Floyd v. Barker, 12 Coke 23; 4 Bl. Com. 121; 2 Woodb. Lect. 355. But see Rex v. Bynon, 2 Show. 302; Wylde v. Cookman, Cro. Eliz. 492.

Justices of the peace have been held held responsible to the bodies of which they are members,¹ while judges and other officers intrusted with discretionary, or governmental or political duties are liable to impeachment,² it being contrary to the spirit of our institutions to place in the hands of one department of government any control or power of restriction whatever over another.³

(1) Particular Offenses.—The neglect or failure of a public officer to perform any duty, which, by law, he is required to perform, is an indictable offense,⁴ even though no damage was to come within the same rule. State v. Campbell, 2 Tyler (Vt.) 177; Yates v. Lansing, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 282; Floyd v. Barker, 12 Coke 23; but the prevailing doctrine seems to be that while they are exempt from civil prosecution for their official acts, they are liable to the ordinary criminal processes. See Wallace v. Com., 2 Va. Cas. 130; Com. v. Alexander, 4 Hen. & M. (Va.) 522; Rex v. Borron, 3 B. & Ald. 432; Rex v. Harrison, 1 East P. C. 382; Rex v. Seaford, 1 W. Bl. 432; Rex v. Smith, 7 T. R. 80; Rex v. Fielding, 2 Bur. 719; Rex v. Allington, 1 Stra. 678; Ferguson v. Kinnoull, 9 C. & F. 251; Rex v. Okey, 8 Mod. 45; Rex v. Phelps, 2 Keny. 570; Rex v. Davis, Lofft. 62; In re Fentiman, 4 N. & M. 126; Rex v. Brooke, 2 T. R. 190; Rex v. Jones, 1 Wils. 7; Rex v. Cozens, 2 Doug. 426; Jacobs v. Com., 2 Leigh (Va.) 709; State v. Gardner, 2 Mo. 23; Lining v. Bentham, 2 Bay (S. Car.) 1; People v. Coon, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 277; State v. Porter, 2 Tread. (S. Car.) 694; Rex v. Justices, Say. 25; Rex v. Baylis, 3 Bur. 1318; Rex v. Jackson, Lofft. 147; Rex v. Wykes, Andr. 238; Rex v. Harries, 13 East 270; Rex v. Bishop, 5 B. & Ald. 612; 7 E. C. L. 208; Reg. v. Jones, 9 C. & P. 401; 38 E. C. L. 171; State v. Porter, 3 Brev. (S. Car.) 175.

1. Anderson v. Dun, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 204; 1 Kent Com. 235, 236; and see Story Const., § 795; Howard v. Lassett, May Parl. Law. (2d ed.), 151; Ferguson v. Kennoull, 9 C. & F. 251.

The house of representatives of Massachusetts has the power to expel a member, and the reasons for expulsion and the question of whether a member was duly heard before being expelled cannot be inquired into by the court in determining whether he was privileged as a member from arrest on mesne process. Hiss v. Bartlett, 3 Gray (Mass.) 468; 63 Am. Dec. 768.

"If any Lord of Parliament, spiritual or temporal, have committed any oppression, bribery, extortion, or the like, he may be impeached." 4 Co. Inst. 24.

Legislators, however, are not "civil officers" subject to impeachment under the Constitution of the United States. Story Const., § 793, 794; and it has been maintained by able jurists that on general principles they are not impeachable. Story Const., § 795; 1 Kent Com. 235, note.

2. Bish. Cr. Law (7th ed.), 462; and see also IMPEACHMENT, vol. 9, p. 951.

3. "One of the most noticeable features in American constitutional law is the care which has been taken to separate legislative, executive, and judicial functions; it has evidently been the intention of the people in every State that the exercise of each should rest with a separate department. The different classes of powers have been apportioned to the different departments, and as all derive their authority from the same instrument, there is an implied exclusion of each department from exercising the functions conferred upon the others." Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 104.

4. Shaw v. Mayor, etc., of Macon, 21 Ga. 280; Robinson v. State, 2 Coldw. (Tenn.) 181; Robinson v. State, 60 Ind. 26; People v. Bedel, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 196; and see People v. Colborne, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 378; 1 Russ. Cr. 135; State v. Kern, 51 N. J. L. 259; Ex parte Harrold, 47 Cal. 129.

The neglect of officers charged with levying taxes, to raise money which they are required to raise for the benefit of public creditors, may amount, under peculiar circumstances, to a refusal to do so. People v. Supervisors of New York, 3 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 566.

An indictment lies against a constable for acting without giving bond. U. S. v. Evans, 1 Cranch (C. C.) 149.

Under the Mississippi Code 1871, § 262, providing that the county treasurer, at the expiration of his office, caused by the default,¹ and a mistake as to his powers, or with relation to the facts of the case is no protection.²

Any sale, whether direct or indirect, of an office, or of an appointment to office, or any agreement to sell, appoint to or resign from an office, is an indictable offense,³ as also is any fraud or breach of trust committed with a corrupt motive affecting the public.⁴ Corruption may consist of passion and party prejudice.⁵

In averring an offense against a public officer it is usually sufficient to use the language of the statute designating the offense.⁶

"shall deliver to his successor all money, securities, property, books, and papers belonging to the county, or appertaining to his said office," and under § 2890, making it a misdemeanor for one to fail in performing such duty, it is a complete offense, if, at the expiration of his term, he fails to turn over the books. Howze v. State, 59 Miss. 230.

But on the trial of a criminal prosecution against a clerk of the circuit court of Alabama, for collecting, under judgment in favor of the State, and refusing to pay over to the county treasurer, money to which he is entitled, within three days after demand, proof that the collection was made in county claims will not support the indictment. Tucker v. State, 16 Ala. 670.

An indictment will not lie against commissioners for refusing to pay money allowed for a bridge by the sessions and grand jury, under a statute, if the bridge was built before that statute was passed. Respublica v. Meylin, 3 Yeates (Pa.) 1.

1. See McBride v. Com., 4 Bush (Ky.) 531; Respublica v. Montgomery, 1 Yeates (Pa.) 419.

In Com. v. Mitchell, 3 Bush (Ky.) 39; 96 Am. Dec. 192, however, the court held that a jailer was not indictable for failure to keep the jail clean and comfortable.

An officer who permits himself to be voluntarily intoxicated while in the performance of his duties, is guilty of an indictable offense. Pennsylvania v. Keffner, Add. (Pa.) 290.

2. Rex v. Pinney, 3 B. & A. 745; Respublica v. Montgomery, 1 Yeates (Pa.) 419; Reg. v. Neale, 9 C. & P. 431. See Hill's Case, 6 Leigh (Va.) 636.

An indictment under Tennessee act of 1875, for a county court clerk's failure to make return of revenue, need not charge that the omission was corruptly made. State v. Jones, 2 Lea (Tenn.) 716.

3. Carleton v. Whetcher, 5 N. H. 196; Com. v. Callahan, 2 Va. Cas. 460; Reg. v. Woodie, 20 Up. Can., Q. B. 389; Reg. v. Mercer, 17 Up. Can., Q. B. 389; Rex v. Vaughn, 4 Burr. 2494; Reg. v. Pollman, 2 Camp. 229; 2 Bish. Cr. Law (6th ed.) 471; 4 Black. Com. 139.

Offering a sum of money for the purpose of procuring an appointment, although unsuccessful, is a misdemeanor. Rex v. Vaughn, 4 Burr. 2494.

Improper or corrupt motives, or malice are necessary ingredients of the crime. People v. Powell, 63 N. Y. 88; State v. Small, 10 Me. 109; State v. Gardner, 2 Mo. 22; People v. Coon, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 277; State v. Johnson, 2 Bay (S. Car.) 385; Jacobs v. Com., 2 Leigh (Va.) 709; Rex v. Halford, 7 Mod. 193.

4. See Com. v. Rodes, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 171; People v. Coon, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 277; State v. Wedge, 24 Minn. 150; State v. Walton, 62 Me. 106; Zodrocco v. People, 62 Ill. 127; Comstock v. Gage, 91 Ill. 330; San Francisco v. Randall, 54 Cal. 408; Edwards v. State, 2 Tex. App. 525; Rex v. Brooke, 2 T. R. 190; Rex v. Cozens, 2 Doug. 426; 2 Whart. Cr. Law, § 1572 a.

In California, the making and publication of a false statement by the officers of a corporation, is made an indictable offense by statute. People v. Cooper, 53 Cal. 647.

In New Jersey, the overdrawing of an account by a bank director is an indictable offense. State v. Stimson, 24 N. J. L. 478.

5. Rex v. Brooke, 2 T. R. 190.

As to other official acts criminal in their nature, see BRIBERY, vol. 2, p. 530; EMBEZZLEMENT, vol. 6, p. 450; EXTORTION, vol. 7, p. 585.

6. See Moore v. State, 49 Ark. 499; Johnson v. People, 123 Ill. 624;

His due election or appointment and qualification and entry upon the duties of his office, however, must be stated,¹ as well as that the act complained of was done in his official capacity,² and a mere statement of the illegality of the act is insufficient, the particular facts constituting the illegality being required to be stated.³ An officer who has assumed the duties of an office cannot dispute the validity of his own appointment or election as a justification or defense in a criminal prosecution against him.⁴ Removal from office is a common penalty for neglect or omission in the performance of its duties.⁵

XIII. LIABILITY OF THE PUBLIC FOR THE ACTS OF ITS OFFICERS AND AGENTS.—The government, or other public authority, is not and see generally State v. Clarkson, 59 Mo. 149; State v. Conlee, 25 Iowa 237; State v. Johnson, 115 Ind. 467; Casper v. State, 47 Wis. 535.

The Illinois statutes make it a criminal offense for a town officer to withhold the town records from the county clerk's office on the discontinuance of the township system in the county. Held, that the indictment need not state the manner in which the town office was abolished, and that it is not necessary to a conviction that a demand should have been made on the officer for the records withheld. Bay-singer v. People, 115 Ill. 419.

An indictment against a county assessor for not calling on a person, resident in the county, for a list of his taxable property, need not allege that such person had such property. State v. Hunter, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 212.

1. Edge v. Com., 7 Pa. St. 275; Com. v. Rupp, 9 Watts (Pa.) 114; Shanks v. State, 51 Miss. 464; State v. Hail, 21 Tex. 587; and see State v. Shield, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 151.

Where, pending a prosecution for drunkenness in office, under Mississippi acts 1873, p. 84, the term of the officer expires, no judgment can be pronounced, even for costs, and the case will be dismissed. Stubbs v. State, 53 Miss. 437.

2. People v. Kallcock, 60 Cal. 113; State v. Lubin (La. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 68; and see Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289; State v. Johnson, 115 Ind. 467.

An indictment, charging the selectmen of a town with willful neglect "to raise and apply" money for the relief of the family of a soldier, under New Hampshire Pamph. Laws, ch. 3584, is insufficient, if it neither shows that a sufficient amount of money for the purpose was not raised by the town, nor avers that there was no committee to apply it, legally constituted, in the town. State v. Fitts, 44 N. H. 621.

An indictment against the overseer of a road district must distinctly charge that the fork at which he neglected to place a finger-board is within his road district; and the roads forming the fork must not terminate at the same point. State v. Tuley, 20 Mo. 422.

3. People v. Castleton, 44 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 238; Oliveira v. State, 45 Ga. 555, and see Com. v. Rodes, 1 Dana (Ky.) 595; State v. Hein, 50 Mo. 362; State v. Kern, 51 N. J. L. 259; People v. Otto, 70 Cal. 523; State v. Record, 56 Ind. 107; State v. Wedge, 24 Minn. 150.

An indictment which charges the defendant with buying up an order on the county, he being county treasurer, for less than its par value, either by himself or his agents, directly or indirectly, sufficiently charges the offense. Wilder v. State, 47 Ga. 522.

4. State v. Sellers, 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 368.

A clerk, prosecuted for breach of good behavior, will be required to produce any books and papers belonging to his office, which may be necessary as evidence. Com. v. Rodes, 1 Dana (Ky.) 595.

A de facto officer is punishable for his criminal acts committed under color of office the same as an officer de jure. State v. Goss, 69 Me. 22.

5. See Shattuck v. State, 51 Miss. 575.

On the trial of a clerk for misbehavior, he must be acquitted unless a majority of the judges concur, as well as to the cause for which he is to be removed, as in the propriety of a sentence of removal. Com. v. Rodes, 1 Dana (Ky.) 595.

bound by the acts, declarations, or admissions of its officers or agents, unless it manifestly appears that such officers or agents are acting within the scope of their authority.¹ The authority of a public officer being fixed by law, is presumed to be known to all persons having dealings with him in his official capacity,

1. Story on Agency, § 307 a; Davies v. Dickinson, 117 U. S. 657; Orleans v. Platt, 99 U. S. 676; Whiteside v. U. S., 93 U. S. 247; Bank of U. S. v. Dunn, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 51; Barclay v. Howell, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 498; Lee v. Munroe, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 366; Curtis v. U. S., 2 Ct. of Cl. 144; U. S. v. City Bank, 6 McLean (U. S.) 130; Woodruff v. Berry, 40 Ark. 251; Woodward v. Campbell, 39 Ark. 580; Parsell v. Barnes, 25 Ark. 261; Pulaski Co. v. State, 42 Ark. 118; Butler v. Bates, 7 Cal. 136; Rowe v. Yuba Co., 17 Cal. 61; Wallace v. Mayor, etc., of San José, 29 Cal. 180; Sutro v. Pettit, 74 Cal. 332; 5 Am. St. Rep. 442; La Salle Co. v. Simmons, 10 Ill. 513; Ristine v. State, 20 Ind. 328; Holten v. Lake Co., 55 Ind. 194; Axt v. Jackson School Tp., 90 Ind. 101; Platter v. Elkhart Co., 103 Ind. 360; Reichard v. Warren Co., 31 Iowa 381; Clark v. Des Moines, 19 Iowa 199; 87 Am. Dec. 423; Lisso v. Red River Parish, 29 La. Ann. 590; Morrell v. Dixfield, 30 Me. 157; Mitchell v. Rockland, 41 Me. 363; 66 Am. Dec. 252; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Eschbach, 18 Md. 276; Lowell Five Cents Sav. Bank v. Winchester, 8 Allen (Mass.) 109; Mitchell v. St. Louis Co., 24 Minn. 459; Bemis v. Rice Co., 23 Minn. 73; State v. Bank of Missouri, 45 Mo. 528; State v. Bevers, 86 N. Car. 588; Sooy v. State, 38 N. J. L. 324; Cuyler v. Rochester, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 165; Delafield v. Illinois, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 192; Hodges v. Buffalo, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 110; Cornell v. Guilford, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 510; Lorillard v. Monroe, 11 N. Y. 392; 62 Am. Dec. 120; McDonald v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 23; 23 Am. Rep. 144; Green v. North Buffalo Tp., 56 Pa. St. 110; Erickson v. Smith, 38 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 454; State v. Hastings, 12 Wis. 596. See Iowa Railroad Land Co. v. Sac Co., 39 Iowa 124.

Laches.—A right which the government has acquired will not be destroyed by the laches of its agents. Haehnlen v. Com., 13 Pa. St. 617; U. S. v. Kirkpatrick, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 720; U. S. v. Vanzandt, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 184; Hart v. U. S., 95 U. S. 376.

Municipal officers are in no such sense municipal agents that their negligence is the neglect of the municipality, nor will their misconduct be chargeable against it, unless the act complained of be either authorized or ratified. Detroit v. Blackeby, 21 Mich. 84; 4 Am. Rep. 450. See also Amperse v. Kalamazoo, 75 Mich. 228; Coots v. Detroit, 75 Mich. 628; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Eschbach, 18 Md. 276; Mitchell v. Rockland, 41 Me. 363; 66 Am. Dec. 252. See Prince v. Lynn, 149 Mass. 193; Curran v. Boston, 151 Mass. 505; Western College v. Cleveland, 12 Ohio St. 375.

The council of Portland authorized a contractor to lay a sewer in one of its streets, in pursuance of a power contained in its act of incorporation. In so laying the pipe the contractor infringed upon the patent of another for making sewer pipe. It was held that the city was liable for such infringement, the act of infringement having been a corporate one for the benefit of the city. Asbestine Tiling, etc., Co. v. Hepp, 39 Fed. Rep. 324.

Counties are instrumentalities of government, and are not liable for injuries caused by the negligence of the commissioners in the selection of an unskillful or incompetent physician for the care of the poor. Summers v. Davies Co., 103 Ind. 262.

The State is concluded by the act of one of its officers acting within the authority of his office. Such act can only be judicially reviewed by a court of competent jurisdiction, and not by the legislature. Boyers v. Crane, 1 W. Va. 176.

If municipal bonds are issued without authority they cannot be held bona fide, neither can the municipality nor its officers be precluded by any estoppel or ratification from denying their validity. Sutro v. Pettit, 74 Cal. 332; 5 Am. St. Rep. 442.

There is an essential difference between public and private corporations, for the officers of the former, exercising statutory powers, cannot bind the corporation by estoppel where the acts relied upon as creating the estoppel and they deal with him at their peril so far as the liability of the government is concerned.¹

are beyond the scope of the authority vested in such officers. Union School Tp. v. First Nat. Bank, 102 Ind. 464.

When one assists the officers of a municipality in the performance of acts which he knows to be illegal, he cannot recover damages of the municipality for such illegal acts. Owens v. Milwaukee, 47 Wis. 461.

The declarations of an alderman are not evidence against a city or against its board of health, when he is not acting on behalf of either. Mitchell v. Rockland, 41 Me. 363; 66 Am. Dec. 252.

The declarations of a surveyor of highways, in relation to work done on the highways of the town under a contract made by him within the scope of his authority, uttered some months after the completion of the work, though before the expiration of his official year, are not admissible in evidence against the town. Burgess v. Wareham, 7 Gray (Mass.) 345.

Selectmen of the town have full power by virtue of their office to settle an account presented by another town against the town which they represent, for supplies furnished to a pauper belonging to their town; and the payment of such an account is of the nature of an implied admission that the pauper is a settled inhabitant of the town, and the fact is, therefore, evidence against the town in a suit afterwards brought for other supplies furnished the pauper. Sharon v. Salisbury, 29 Conn. 113.

A book kept in the clerk's office of the county commissioners under their direction respecting the affairs of the county, though not a public record, is yet prima facie evidence against the county of the facts stated therein. La Salle Co. v. Simmons, 10 Ill. 513.

The acts of town officers within the scope of their authority may furnish ground for presumptions and inferences as against the town, in the same manner as such presumptions and inferences may arise against natural persons from their acts. Glidden v. Unity, 33 N. H. 571; O'Leary v. Board of Education, 93 N. Y. 1; 45 Am. Rep. 156.

Where a county physician refuses to treat a person in urgent need of medical attendance, a township trustee has authority to employ another, and his declarations concerning payment are competent. Washburn v. Shelby Co., 104 Ind. 321; 54 Am. Rep. 332.

The trustees of a municipal corporation created under and controlled by the statute relating to towns and their incorporation, are not authorized to contract a debt for engraving scrip to be issued by said trustees, nor can they render the town liable for the payment of a warrant issued in satisfaction of the debt. And although the warrant, if signed by the proper officer, prima facie imports validity, its issuance may be shown to be ultra vires. Cheaney v. Brookfield, 60 Mo. 53.

In an action upon notes issued by the county treasurer to P, plaintiff's intestate, for moneys loaned, ostensibly to pay maturing obligations of the county, in pursuance of said resolutions of the board of supervisors and in renewal of notes so given, it appeared that there was a fraudulent over-issue of notes by the county treasurer to a large amount; that notes were outstanding at the time of the annual meeting of the board of supervisors in 1874 to the amount of $138,631, while if the money raised by taxation had been honestly applied and he had borrowed only sufficient to extend the portion of the debt he was directed to have extended, the whole debt would have been but $20,801. It did not appear that the treasurer misapplied any of the moneys for which the notes in suit were given, and at no time did the indebtedness the treasurer was authorized to extend fall short of the loans made by P, and the good faith of the lender was not questioned. Held, that the evidence failed to establish a defense to the notes; that as the authority given to the treasurer authorized transactions and dealings in form of the same precise character as those which took place between the treasurer and the payee of the notes, the presumption was that they were authorized; and if, in fact, they were not within the actual limits of the power, the burden was upon defendant to show it. Parker v. Saratoga Co., 106 N. Y. 392. See also Clark v. Saratoga Co., 107 N. Y. 553.

1. Whiteside v. U. S., 93 U. S. 247; Merchants' Exch., etc., Bank v. Bergen Co., 115 U. S. 384; Curtis v. U. S., 2 Ct. of Cl. 144; The Floyd Acco-

If, however, his act is ratified, the public will become liable.¹

sey Co. v. Whitehead, 47 Ark. 205; Sutro v. Pettit, 74 Cal. 332; 5 Am. St. Rep. 442; Wallace v. Mayor, etc., of San José, 29 Cal. 180; Tamm v. Lavalle, 92 Ill. 263; Dement v. Rokker, 126 Ill. 174; Hull v. Marshall Co., 12 Iowa 142; Clark v. Des Moines, 19 Iowa 199; 87 Am. Dec. 423; Boardman v. Hayne, 29 Iowa 339; Reichard v. Warren Co., 31 Iowa 381; McPherson v. Foster, 43 Iowa 48; 22 Am. Rep. 215; Johnson v. Indianapolis, 16 Ind. 227; Pine Civil Tp. v. Huber Mfg. Co., 83 Ind. 121; Reeve School Tp. v. Dodson, 98 Ind. 497; Union School Tp. v. First Nat. Bank, 102 Ind. 464; Platter v. Elkhart Co., 103 Ind. 360; Bloomington School Tp. v. National School, etc., Co., 107 Ind. 43; Lisso v. Red River Parish, 29 La. Ann. 590; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 535; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Eschbach, 18 Md. 276; Lowell Five Cents Sav. Bank v. Winchester, 8 Allen (Mass.) 109; State v. Bank of Missouri, 45 Mo. 528; State v. Hays, 52 Mo. 578; Mitchell v. St. Louis Co., 24 Minn. 459; Spitzer v. Blanchard, 82 Mich. 234; Delafield v. Illinois, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 192; McDonald v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 23; 23 Am. Rep. 144. See Knox Co. v. Aspinwall, 21 How. (U. S.) 539.

Municipal corporations are not principals but themselves agents, answerable to their constituents; and are not to be presumed to recognize and incidentally ratify and confirm acts of their officers done beyond the scope of their authority. Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 535.

The law imputes to every one dealing with public officers acting under a special statutory authority, full knowledge of the extent of such authority. Mitchell v. St. Louis Co., 24 Minn. 459.

Those who deal with the officers of a municipal corporation must ascertain, at their peril, that these agents are acting within the scope of their lawful powers. Cheeney v. Brookfield, 60 Mo. 53.

Purchasers of municipal securities must take the risk of the genuineness of official signatures. Merchants' Exch., etc., Bank v. Bergen Co., 115 U. S. 384.

Purchasers of municipal bonds are charged with notice of the laws of the State, granting power to make the bonds they find in the market. If the power exists in the municipality, the bona fide holder is protected against mere irregularities in the manner of its execution, and the municipality may be estopped by recitals; but if there is a want of power, no legal liability can be created. Northern Nat. Bank v. Porter Tp., 110 U. S. 608.

Where the recitals in bonds set forth the judgment of the county judge, that it was duly rendered, that the bonds were issued pursuant to statute, for the proper object and by persons properly appointed and charged by law with the duty of subscribing for the stock and issuing the bonds, and the sufficiency of the statutory authority under which the proceedings were had is not denied, the recital is an estoppel. A bona fide holder of the bonds was not bound to look further, and the obligor cannot go behind it. Lyons v. Munson, 99 U. S. 684.

Recitals in municipal bonds given in aid of railroads, of a compliance with conditions precedent to their issue, where the bonds are executed by the officers whose duty it is to decide whether or not such conditions have been complied with, are conclusive of such facts and binding on the corporation; and a bona fide holder for value is not bound to look behind such a recital, except to the legislative authority given for the issue of such municipal bonds. Douglas Co. v. Bolles, 94 U. S. 104; Marion Co. v. Clark, 94 U. S. 278; Coloma v. Eaves, 92 U. S. 484.

1. Grenada Co. v. Brogden, 112 U. S. 261; Stevenson v. Summit Tp., 35 Iowa 462; Hawk v. Marion Co., 48 Iowa 472; Andrews v. School Dist. No. 4, 37 Minn. 96.

Where the school trustee borrows money and executes notes therefor in the name of the school corporation, the corporation will be liable if the money is actually used for the payment of legitimate claims against the corporation and the circumstances are such as to make it equitable that the lender should be subrogated to the rights of the persons whose claims the borrowed money paid. Union School Tp. v. First Nat. Bank, 102 Ind. 464; Bicknell v. Widner School Tp., 73 Ind. 501; Wallis v. Johnson School Tp., 75 Ind. 368.

Notice to a public officer is notice to the public only when given to him in his official capacity and with regard to the subject over which he has authority.¹

1. Contracts Made by Officers.—These general principles apply to contracts made by public officers. In order for the contract to be binding upon the public, the officer must keep within the limits of his authority.² And, of course, a public corporation cannot

Money loaned to commissioners for the benefit of a county may be recovered from the county, with legal interest thereon, if it is shown that it was appropriated to the execution of an act which is made the duty of the commissioners to perform, and the county has received the benefit of it; but nothing can be recovered which is not shown to have been expended for the use and benefit of the county, and for some purpose authorized by law. Waitz v. Ormsby Co., 1 Nev. 370. Compare Filor v. U. S., 9 Wall. (U. S.) 45. See also Lyons v. Chamberlin, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 49; Salomon v. U. S., 19 Wall. (U. S.) 17.

A municipal corporation cannot be made liable for an act of its agent by a ratification thereof, where the act complained of was of such a nature that the corporation did not possess the power to authorize the doing of it by the agent. Boom v. Utica, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 104. See also Platter v. Elkhart Co., 103 Ind. 360; Agawam Nat. Bank v. South Hadley, 128 Mass. 503.

Acts or acquiescence do not ratify unauthorized contracts, but rather, authorize judges and juries to presume consent or ratification. Municipal corporations cannot be presumed to ratify and confirm acts of their officers and agents, but acts of ratification by such bodies should be direct, explicit, unequivocal, and with full knowledge of the facts. Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 535. See supra, this title, Authority by Ratification.

1. Field v. New York, 6 N. Y. 179; 57 Am. Dec. 435; Cook v. Anamosa, 66 Iowa 427; Trapnell v. Red Oak Junction, 76 Iowa 744.

The police force of a city constitutes a department of the city government, and a policeman of the city is an officer and agent thereof, and his knowledge of an obstruction or defect in the sidewalk is notice to the city and knowledge thereof on the part of the latter. Carrington v. St. Louis, 89 Mo. 208; 58 Am. Rep. 108; Rehberg v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 91 N. Y. 137; 43 Am. Rep. 657.

A notice of a nuisance on land belonging to a city and a request to remove it given to the city clerk only, will not affect the city; but it is sufficient notice and request if given to the mayor. Nichols v. Boston, 98 Mass. 39; 93 Am. Dec. 152.

Notice to a city councilman of a defect in a street of the city is notice to the city, although the councilman be not at the time sitting in the city council. Logansport v. Justice, 74 Ind. 378; 39 Am. Rep. 79.

A protest is ineffective unless made to the body having power to act upon the subject-matter. If a salaried officer protests that the amount of salary allowed him is less than he is entitled to, it is of no effect to make the protest to the functionary intrusted with the mere duty of paying him if the latter has no part in fixing the salary and is under no obligation to report the protest to the body which fixes it. Thomas v. St. Clair Co., 45 Mich. 479.

2. Tippecanoe Co. v. Cox, 6 Ind. 403; Dorsey Co. v. Whitehead, 47 Ark. 205; Boom v. Utica, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 104; Brady v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 20 N. Y. 312; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Reynolds, 20 Md. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 535; Martin v. U. S., 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 487; Clark v. Des Moines, 19 Iowa 199; 87 Am. Dec. 423; Austin v. District Tp., 51 Iowa 102; Agawam Nat. Bank v. South Hadley, 128 Mass. 503; Newbery v. Fox, 37 Minn. 141; 5 Am. St. Rep. 830; Copp v. St. Louis Co., 34 Mo. 383; State v. Bevers, 86 N. Car. 588; Hague v. Philadelphia, 48 Pa. St. 527; The Floyd Acceptances, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 666; Whiteside v. U. S., 93 U. S. 247; Mayor, etc., of Nashville v. Ray, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 468; Levy v. Yuba Co., 13 Cal. 636; Wallace v. Mayor, etc., of San José, 29 Cal. 180; Sutro v. Pettit, 74 Cal. 332; 5 Am. St. Rep. 442; State v. Hastings, 12 Wis. 506.

An officer of the State has no power or authority over any real estate owned by the State, except such as

be bound by a contract of its agent, which contract it is beyond the power of the corporation to make.¹ If the statute under which the agent contracts, prescribes any special formalities for

has been or may be conferred upon such officer by positive statute; and where the State sued for the recovery of such real estate, and the defendant relies upon an illegal agreement with the auditor of State in defense of such suit, unless it appears that the auditor of State was expressly authorized by statute to make the agreement, such agreement is absolutely void as against the State. McCaslin v. State, 99 Ind. 428.

The want of legislative authority in a municipal corporation to issue bonds, is a fatal objection to their validity, no matter under what circumstances the holder may have obtained them. South Ottawa v. Perkins, 94 U. S. 260; Marsh v. Fulton Co., 10 Wall. (U. S.) 676; East Oakland v. Skinner, 94 U. S. 255; McClure v. Oxford, 94 U. S. 429; Harshman v. Bates Co., 92 U. S. 569; Lewis v. Shreveport, 108 U. S. 282.

Corporate ratification, without authority from the legislature, cannot make a municipal bond valid which was void when issued for want of legislative power to make it. Lewis v. Shreveport, 108 U. S. 282; Marsh v. Fulton Co., 10 Wall. (U. S.) 676.

Every dealer in municipal bonds, which upon their face refer to the statute under which they were issued, is bound to take notice of the statute and of all its requirements. McClure v. Oxford, 94 U. S. 429; South Ottawa v. Perkins, 94 U. S. 260.

Where a contract was made in pursuance of a vote of a town, but before the contract was performed the vote was rescinded, it was held that the person with whom the contract was made was not affected by the rescission, not having had notice thereof. The question of the effect of notice, however, was not decided. Allen v. Taunton, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 485.

County commissioners were authorized to allow accounts chargeable against the county not otherwise provided for, and to have the care of county property and management of county funds and business. Held, that they could make a contract to pay five per cent. for making a tax list of all delinquent taxes in a county. Martin v. Whitman Co., 1 Wash. 533.

Implied Contracts.—As the county cannot be made liable on an express contract by its agent in excess of his authority, neither can it be made liable on an implied one. Reichard v. Warren Co., 31 Iowa 381.

1. Congressional Tp. No. 11 v. Weir, 9 Ind. 224; Clark v. DeMoines, 19 Iowa 199; 87 Am. Dec. 423; McPherson v. Foster, 43 Iowa 48; 22 Am. Rep. 215; Parsons v. Goshen, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 396; Hood v. Mayor, etc., of Lynn, 1 Allen (Mass.) 103; Stetson v. Kempton, 13 Mass. 272; 7 Am. Dec. 145; Vincent v. Nantucket, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 103; Attorney-General v. Marr, 55 Mich. 445; Halstead v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 N. Y. 430; Appleby v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 15 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 428; Boom v. Utica, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 104; Cornell v. Guilford, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 510; Boylard v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 27.

Where a town built a market house two stories high and appropriated the lower story for a market, which was bona fide their principal and leading object in erecting the building, it was held that the appropriation of the upper story to other subordinate purposes was not such an excess of authority as to render the erection of the building and the raising of money therefor illegal. Spalding v. Lowell, 23 Pick. (Mass.) 71.

The common council of the city of Buffalo have no authority to furnish an entertainment for the citizens and guests of the city at the public expense. It was, therefore, held that an action would not lie against the corporation at the suit of one who had provided such entertainment on Independence Day upon the employment of a committee authorized by the common council to contract for it. Hodges v. Buffalo, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 110.

Where the electors of a town in their town meeting directed the commissioners of highways to prosecute a turnpike company for entering upon and taking possession of a public highway and bridge in that town, and the commissioners accordingly brought a suit for that cause of action and had judgment against them, held that they could not sustain an action against the town to be reimbursed their costs and expenses, or the costs recovered against them in that suit. Cornell v. Guilford, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 510.

the making of the contract they must be complied with in order to bind the government.¹

But when all the formalities have been complied with which lie within the power of the person contracting with the public to obtain compliance with, the contract will be considered binding upon the public, and the omission of a mere clerical duty by the officer making the contract will not invalidate it.² If any conditions precedent exist, they must be fully complied with by the officer before his contract will bind the public.³ The government is not estopped as an individual or private corporation

Where city bonds recited on their face that the conditions had been complied with which authorized their issue, in an action upon them by an innocent holder, a demurrer to pleas which simply tendered an issue as to the authority of the city to issue the bonds, was sustained. Nauvoo v. Ritter, 97 U. S. 389.

It is impossible to ratify an ultra vires contract. McPherson v. Foster, 43 Iowa 48; 22 Am. Rep. 215.

1. Camp v. U. S., 113 U. S. 648; Clark v. U. S., 95 U. S. 539; McDonald v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 23; 23 Am. Rep. 144.

The act of 1862, requiring contracts for military supplies to be in writing, is not infringed by the proper officer having charge of such matter accepting delivery of such supplies after the day stipulated, nor is a verbal agreement to extend the time of performance invalid. Salomon v. U. S., 19 Wall. (U. S.) 17.

The act of June 2, 1862, is mandatory, and requires all contracts made with the departments therein named to be in writing. But where a parol contract has been wholly or partially executed and performed on one side, the party performing will be entitled to recover the fair value of his property or services, as upon an implied contract for a quantum meruit. Clark v. U. S., 95 U. S. 539.

Where county taxes have been levied to pay interest on county bonds, and interest has been paid on them for a number of years, this cures mere irregularities in the issuing of the bonds when they are sued on by a bona fide holder for value. Clay Co. v. Society for Savings, 104 U. S. 579.

Where the statute under which bonds of a county in Missouri were issued, required that they should be made payable to a railroad company, its successors and assigns, and they were made payable to the company or bearer, held that the statutory requirement in this particular is only directory, the defect is one of form, and the county is estopped to take advantage of it by the recital in the bonds of conformity to the statutes. Calhoun Co. v. Galbraith, 99 U. S. 214.

If a municipal body has lawful power to issue bonds, dependent only upon the adoption of certain preliminary proceedings, the holder in good faith has a right to assume that such preliminary proceedings have taken place, if the fact be certified on the face of the bonds themselves, by the authorities whose primary duty it is to ascertain it. Warren Co. v. Marcy, 97 U. S. 96.

2. State v. Ramsey Co., 32 Minn. 181; Clark v. U. S., 96 U. S. 539.

3. Merchants' Exch., etc., Bank v. Bergen Co., 115 U. S. 384; Carroll Co. v. Smith, 111 U. S. 556; Dixon Co. v. Field, 111 U. S. 83; McClure v. Oxford, 94 U. S. 429; Fluty v. School Dist., 49 Ark. 94.

The plaintiff in an action against a county may recover on a quantum meruit such sum as the benefit of the work he has done in compliance with the terms of the contract is reasonably worth to the defendant, even though the contract stipulated that the work must be done "to the acceptance of the county commissioners," which stipulation was not complied with. Atkins v. Barnstable Co., 97 Mass. 428.

When the law prescribes conditions upon the exercise of the power granted to a municipality, and commits to the officers of such municipality the determination of the question whether those conditions have been performed, the corporation will be estopped by recitals which import such performance. Northern Nat. Bank v. Porter Tp., 110 U. S. 608.

A bona fide holder is not bound to look beyond the legislative act and the

would be to deny the authority of its officers, though they may be acting under an apparent authority;¹ but it may by its conduct ratify the acts of its agents and thus be estopped to deny their authority,² and when a corporation is acting in its private as contradistinguished from its governmental capacity, it may also be estopped by the action of its proper officers.³ When a contract is made by duly authorized agents, the public is as firmly bound as a private person would be;⁴ and when a State breaks a contract so made, it is liable for prospective profits.⁵ Public officers are agents within the policy of the rule against allowing an agent to act both for himself and his principal in the same transaction;⁶ but where recitals in the bonds to see whether the conditions precedent to issuing the bonds have been complied with. Walnut v. Wade, 103 U. S. 683.

1. Bishop on Contracts, § 993; Johnson v. U. S., 5 Mason (U. S.) 425; U. S. v. Kirkpatrick, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 720; State v. Brewer, 64 Ala. 287; Pulaski Co. v. State, 42 Ark. 118; Buena Vista Co. v. Iowa, etc., R. Co., 46 Iowa 226; Howard Co. v. Bullis, 49 Iowa 519; Bixby v. Adams Co., 49 Iowa 507; see Curnen v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 7 Daly (N. Y.) 544. Compare Gifford v. White Plains, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 606. But in this case one reason for the rule of non-liability of the public for the acts of its servants, viz., that every one is presumed to know the extent of their authority, did not exist.

2. Waitz v. Ormsby Co., 1 Nev. 370; Cook Co. v. Harms, 108 Ill. 151; Sexton v. Chicago, 107 Ill. 323; Beers v. Dalles City, 16 Oregon 334; Fister v. La Rue, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 323; Davies v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 93 N. Y. 250; Rock Creek v. Strong, 96 U. S. 271; Henry Co. v. Nicolay, 95 U. S. 619.

3. Chicago v. Sexton, 115 Ill. 230; Chicago v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 105 Ill. 85; Lyons v. Chamberlain, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 49; Cincinnati v. Cameron, 33 Ohio St. 336. See Chicago v. McGraw, 75 Ill. 566; Chicago v. Turner, 80 Ill. 419; Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345.

If a person contracts with a town to erect a meeting-house on a place to be designated by a committee, and the place is so designated, and the town afterwards disagrees as to the designation and gives notice to the contractor, but not until he has made some of the window-frames and has carried materials on the ground pointed out, although this is a beginning to execute the contract it is not a beginning to erect a meeting-house, and the town may disagree to the first designation at any time before the ground shall be prepared for erecting the frame of the house, they indemnifying the contractor for any extra labor and expense occasioned by their fluctuating proceedings. Damon v. Granby, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 345.

4. Richmond Co. v. Miller, 16 S. Car. 244; Dayton v. Rutland, 84 Ill. 279.

5. Danolds v. State, 89 N. Y. 36; 42 Am. Rep. 277. See Martin v. Whitman Co., 1 Wash. 533.

6. People v. Overysse, 11 Mich. 222; Pickett v. School Dist. No. 1, 25 Wis. 551; 3 Am. Rep. 105; Clute v. Barron, 2 Mich. 192; Smith v. Albany, 61 N. Y. 444; Pierce v. Benjamin, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 356. See also Hannah v. Fife, 27 Mich. 172; Currie v. School Dist. No. 26, 35 Minn. 163; AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 331.

A majority of a committee appointed by a school district to superintend the erection of a schoolhouse may employ one of their own number for such service, and, unless there is a fraudulent or corrupt dealing, such person may in his own name recover of the district the amount of his claims. Junkins v. Union School Dist., 39 Me. 220.

A director or trustee is not permitted to be a party to a contract entered into between himself and other trustees of school district stipulating for his services or employment upon terms, or for a compensation fixed by such contract. Such contract is voidable at the election of the district. This rule is founded in public policy and is a salutary one to prevent the risk of abuse, and, therefore, does not permit an inquiry as to the alleged fairness or unfairness of such contract. Currie v. School Dist. No. 26, 35 Minn. 163.

a public officer does so act, the transaction is voidable only and not void.¹

2. Torts of Officers.—Neither the Federal nor the State governments are liable for the unauthorized torts of their officers,² and municipal corporations are entitled to the same exemption when

The Penal Code of Texas, art. 250, imposes a penalty on any county officer who shall become interested "in the purchase or sale of anything made for or on account of such county." Held, that such provision renders such officer liable for selling a mule to the county. Rigby v. State, 27 Tex. App. 55.

The employment by a city board of health of one of its members to vaccinate pupils in a public school, is void as against the city where the members of the board are by statute only authorized to receive an annual salary to be fixed by the common council. Fort Wayne v. Rosenthal, 75 Ind. 156; 39 Am. Rep. 127.

Sheriff.—Mr. Murfree, in his work on Sheriffs, § 1000, says: "A sheriff cannot purchase property sold under execution at his own sale either directly or through an agent. . . . It is not necessarily fraudulent; on the contrary, it may be beneficial to the cestui que trust. It is a rule of policy, however, applicable to sheriffs in common with other persons holding a trust relation, that one cannot occupy at the same time the inconsistent relation of seller and purchaser, and such sales are set aside upon a seasonable application to a court of equity, and a resale ordered." See also Harrison v. McHenry, 9 Ga. 164; 52 Am. Dec. 435; Carr v. Houser, 46 Ga. 479; Flury v. Grimes, 52 Ga. 343; Mayor, etc., of Macon v. Huff, 60 Ga. 221; Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236; 52 Am. Dec. 399. This rule applies to deputy sheriffs. Perkins v. Thompson, 3 N. H. 144. A purchase by a deputy sheriff at a sale by his co-deputy barely escapes being illegal, and will be held void if there are any indications of unfairness. Worland v. Kimberlin, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 608; 44 Am. Dec. 785.

A sheriff cannot sell where he has an interest in the judgment. Collais v. McLeod, 8 Ired. (N. Car.) 221; 49 Am. Dec. 376.

Executors.—This rule applies to executors. Rosser v. De Priest, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 6; 50 Am. Dec. 94; Munro v. Allaire, 2 Cai. Cas. (N. Y.) 183; 2 Am.

Dec. 330; Ryden v. Jones, 1 Hawks (N. Car.) 497; 9 Am. Dec. 660; Bruch v. Lantz, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 392; 21 Am. Dec. 458.

A partnership of which an executor is a member cannot purchase at a sale made by him in his official capacity. Harrod v. Norris, 11 Martin (La.) 297; 13 Am. Dec. 350.

Administrators.—And to administrators. Brannan v. Oliver, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 47; 19 Am. Dec. 37; Pearson v. Moreland, 7 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 609; 45 Am. Dec. 319; Dwight v. Blackmar, 2 Mich. 330; 57 Am. Dec. 130. See also SHERIFF'S SALES—To Whom; EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS, vol. 7, p. 294.

1. Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236; 52 Am. Dec. 399; Grubbs v. McGlawn, 39 Ga. 674; Alexander v. Alexander, 46 Ga. 283; Bruch v. Lantz, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 392; 21 Am. Dec. 458; McClure v. Miller, 1 Bailey Eq. (S. Car.) 107; 21 Am. Dec. 522; Scott v. Freeland, 7 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 409; 45 Am. Dec. 310; Pierce v. Benjamin, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 356; Ward v. Smith, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 592. Compare Harrison v. McHenry, 9 Ga. 164; 52 Am. Dec. 435.

2. Story on Agency, § 319; Mechem on Pub. Off., § 849; Clodfelter v. State, 86 N. Car. 51; 41 Am. Rep. 440; Lewis v. State, 96 N. Y. 71; 48 Am. Rep. 607; Gibbons v. U. S., 8 Wall. (U. S.) 269.

Where a note was received by an officer of the government as collateral security for the payment of a debt due the State, the debtor cannot avail himself of the neglect or omission of the officer to perform the duties which the law in ordinary cases imposes upon a party thus receiving a note; and even should the officer expressly assume responsibility in relation to such note as to prosecute it to judgment, it seems that the State would not be responsible for any laches that might occur. Seymour v. Van Slyck, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 403.

The claim of the United States upon an official bond and upon all parties thereto, is not released by the laches they act in a governmental or political capacity.¹ But when the tort is committed in the performance of some municipal or corporate duty which is private in its nature, the corporation is liable.²

XIV. LIABILITY OF THE PARTY AT WHOSE INSTANCE THE OFFICER ACTS—1. The General Rule.—As a rule, a person who sets a public officer in motion is not liable for injuries thus caused; for it is the lawful right of every man who believes that he has a just demand against another, to institute a suit to obtain proper redress; and so, also, it is not only the right, but the duty, of every individual of the officer to whom the assertion of this claim is intrusted by law. Such laches have no effect whatsoever on the rights of the United States as well against the sureties as the principal in the bond. Dox v. Postmaster-General, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 318. See also Greer v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 1 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 206.

A duly authorized agent of the State entered into a contract with an individual for the performance of labor for a public duty. The contractor was hindered and delayed and suffered loss in consequence of the failure on the part of other contractors to furnish necessary materials, and the acts and negligence of the agents and officers of the State. Held, that the State was liable to the contractor for the damage actually sustained by him. State v. Farrish, 23 Miss. 483.

1. Maxmillian v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 62 N. Y. 160; 20 Am. Rep. 468; Lorillard v. Monroe, 11 N. Y. 392; 62 Am. Dec. 120; Bailey v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531; 38 Am. Dec. 669; Hafford v. New Bedford, 16 Gray (Mass.) 297; Walcott v. Swampscott, 1 Allen (Mass.) 101; Butterick v. Lowell, 1 Allen (Mass.) 172; Barney v. Lowell, 98 Mass. 570; Fisher v. Boston, 104 Mass. 87; 6 Am. Rep. 196; Jewett v. New Haven, 38 Conn. 368; 9 Am. Rep. 382; Summers v. Daviess Co., 103 Ind. 262; Vigo Tp. v. Knox Co., 111 Ind. 170; Calwell v. Boone, 51 Iowa 687; 33 Am. Rep. 154; Stewart v. New Orleans, 9 La. Ann. 461; Murtaugh v. St. Louis, 44 Mo. 479; Rowland v. Gallatin, 75 Mo. 134; 42 Am. Rep. 395; Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461; Wallace v. Menasha, 48 Wis. 79; 33 Am. Rep. 805; Hayes v. Oshkosh, 33 Wis. 314; 14 Am. Rep. 760; Schultz v. Milwaukee, 49 Wis. 254; 35 Am. Rep. 779; Little v. Madison, 49 Wis. 605; 35 Am. Rep. 793. See Attorney-Gen'l v. St.

Clair Co., 30 Mich. 388; Oceana Co. v. Tp. of Hart, 48 Mich. 319.

In the absence of any express statutory liability, the county authorities are not answerable in damages for any negligence or want of skill in the construction of bridges and highways. Askew v. Hale Co., 54 Ala. 639; 25 Am. Rep. 730. See Bennett v. New Orleans, 14 La. Ann. 120.

2. Cooley on Torts 122; Aldrich v. Tripp, 11 R. I. 141; 23 Am. Rep. 434; Sprague v. Tripp, 13 R. I. 38; 43 Am. Rep. 11; Durkee v. Kenosha, 59 Wis. 123; 48 Am. Rep. 480; Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461; Rochester White Lead Co. v. Rochester, 3 N. Y. 463; 53 Am. Dec. 316; Asbestine Tiling, etc., Co. v. Hipp, 39 Fed. Rep. 324; Murtaugh v. St. Louis, 44 Mo. 479. See Montgomery v. Des Moines, 55 Iowa 101.

A municipal corporation in its private character as the owner, etc., of lands and houses, is to be regarded in the same light as an individual, and dealt with accordingly. Bailey v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531.

In Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461, the court by Rives, J., said: "Wherever it can be said that distinct duties are imposed upon a corporation, purely ministerial and involving no exercise of discretion, the same liability attaches as in the case of private persons owing the same service under the law. To this second class belong numerous cases of recovery against corporations for the torts or negligences of their servants. . . . These decisions proceed on the ground that where a municipal corporation acts in the exercise of powers or discharge of duties, in nowise discretionary or governmental but purely ministerial in their character, it incurs, like a private person, the common-law liability for the acts of its servants."

who in good faith and with probable cause believes that a public offense has been committed by another, to institute the proper proceedings for the punishment of the supposed offender.¹ But the above rule is subject to numerous qualifications in individual instances.

2. Various Classes of Proceedings—a. MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.²

b. FALSE IMPRISONMENT.—It is well settled that every person, whether natural or artificial,³ whether acting in person or by agent,⁴ and whether personally present or not,⁵ who directs, procures, authorizes, or participates in, the arrest and imprisonment of another, without any legal warrant or authority, and without reasonable or justifiable cause, is liable in damages to the party injured.⁶ So, also, a person who causes void or illegal process to be issued in an action, thereby causing loss or injury to the party

1. Cooley on Torts 180; Mechem's Public Officers, § 898; Drake on Attachment, § 114.

If a judicial officer, whether possessed of general or special jurisdiction, act erroneously, or even oppressively, in the exercise of his authority, an individual at whose instance he acts is not answerable as a trespasser for the error or misconduct of the officer; but if a judicial officer whose jurisdiction is special and limited transcend his authority and act in a case of which he has no cognizance, his proceedings are coram non jndice, and no person can justify under them. Taylor v. Moffatt, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 305.

Where a party procures an inferior magistrate to exceed his jurisdiction, and to extend his powers to a case to which they cannot lawfully be extended, he becomes a trespasser, and is amenable to the party injured. Barkeloo v. Randall, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 476; 32 Am. Dec. 46; Curry v. Pringle, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 444.

2. See MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, vol. 14, p. 16; Cooley on Torts 180.

One who makes before a committing magistrate an affidavit of facts conceded to be true, which the magistrate erroneously believes to constitute a crime and upon which a warrant of arrest is accordingly issued, is not liable in damages to the person arrested. Leigh v. Webb, 3 Esp. 164; Cohen v. Morgan, 6 D. & R. 8; 16 E. C. L. 250; Carratt v. Morley, 1 G. & D. 275; McNeely v. Driskill, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 259; Hahn v. Schmidt, 64 Cal. 284; Jones v. Jones, 71 Cal. 89; Diemer v. Herber, 75 Cal. 287; Von Latham v. Libby, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 339.

3. Owsley v. Montgomery, etc., R. Co., 37 Ala. 560; Wheeler, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Boyce, 36 Kan. 350; 59 Am. Rep. 571; Lynch v. Metropolitan El. R. Co., 90 N. Y. 77; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 119; 43 Am. Rep. 141.

4. Parsons v. Lloyd, 3 Wils. 341; Barker v. Braham, 3 Wils. 396; Jones v. Nicholls, 3 M. & P. 12; Harris v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 116; Wheeler, etc., Mfg. Co. v. Boyce, 36 Kan. 350; 59 Am. Rep. 571.

5. Clifton v. Grayson, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 412; Stoddard v. Bird, Kirby (Conn.) 65.

6. FALSE IMPRISONMENT, vol. 7, p. 661; Mechem on Public Officers, § 906; Cooley on Torts 169; Barker v. Braham, 2 W. Bl. 866; Collett v. Foster, 2 H. & N. 356; Goslin v. Wilcock, 2 Wils. 302; Smith v. Cattel, 2 Wils. 376; Austin v. Debnam, 3 B. & C. 139; 10 E. C. L. 37; Wentworth v. Bullen, 9 B. & C. 840; 17 E. C. L. 503; Codrington v. Lloyd, 8 A. & E. 449; 35 E. C. L. 433; Walley v. McConnell, 13 Q. B. 903; 66 E. C. L. 901; Smith v. Sydney, L. R., 5 Q. B. 203; 39 L. J. Q. B. 144; 22 L. T. N. S. 16; Johnson v. Tompkins, 1 Baldw. (U. S.) 601; Harris v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 116; Clarke v. American Dock, etc., Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 478; Fotheringham v. Adams Express Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 252; Clifton v. Grayson, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 412; Crumpton v. Newman, 12 Ala. 199; 46 Am. Dec. 251; Floyd v. State, 12 Ark. 43; 54 Am. Dec. 250; Burlingham v. Wylee, 2 Root (Conn.) 152; Stoyel v. Lawrence, 3 Day (Conn.) 1; Develing v. Sheldon, 83 Ill. 390; Barkeloo v. Randall, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 476; 32 Am.

against whom it is enforced, is answerable for the damages so occasioned. In such a case the process is considered the act of the party, and not that of the court, and he is therefore made liable for the consequences of his act.¹ So, if the jurisdiction of the court is made to depend upon the existence of some fact of which there is an entire absence of proof, it has no authority to act in the premises, and if it nevertheless proceeds and entertains jurisdiction of the proceedings, all of its acts are void, and afford no justification to the parties instituting them as against parties injuriously affected thereby.² But if the facts presented

Dec. 46; Letzler v. Huntington, 24 La. Ann. 330; Plummer v. Dennett, 6 Me. 421; 20 Am. Dec. 316; Winslow v. Hathaway, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 211; Emery v. Hapgood, 7 Gray (Mass.) 55; 66 Am. Dec. 459; Cody v. Adams, 7 Gray (Mass.) 59; Painter v. Ives, 4 Neb. 122; Curry v. Pringle, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 444; Gold v. Bissell, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 210; 19 Am. Dec. 480; Comfort v. Fulton, 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 276; Deyo v. Van Valkenburgh, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 242; Vredenburg v. Hendricks, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 179; Hallock v. Dominy, 7 Hun (N. Y.) 52; Miller v. Adams, 52 N. Y. 409; affirming 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 131; In re Bradner, 87 N. Y. 171; Allison v. Rheam, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 139; 8 Am. Dec. 644; McGarrahan v. Lavers, 15 R. I. 302; Pierson v. Gale, 8 Vt. 509; 30 Am. Dec. 487; Ogg v. Murdock, 25 W. Va. 139.

The case of McGarrahan v. Lavers, 15 R. I. 302, was as follows: The plaintiff having ordered a rare steak at a restaurant, the waiter brought him one which was well done. This he refused, and repeated his order. The waiter then brought him another steak which was rare, and which he accepted and offered to pay for, refusing, however, to pay for the previous one. The defendant, a clerk in charge of the restaurant, directed an officer to take the plaintiff into custody. The officer obeyed, and took the plaintiff to the police station, from which he was removed to the jail. The defendant, when sued, claimed that he simply gave the direction for the arrest, and did not otherwise participate in it; but it was held that he was responsible for the wrongful imprisonment directed by him.

For acts done by an officer beyond the authority of his process, the party at whose instance the process was issued, is not responsible, unless those acts were done by his direction.

Adams v. Freeman, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 117. But where the process, which is itself regular, is abused by the advice of a party, he is liable for such abuse. Snydacker v. Brosse, 51 Ill. 357; 99 Am. Dec. 551.

1. Fischer v. Langbein, 103 N. Y. 84; Gelzenleuchter v. Niemeyer, 64 Wis. 316; Mudrock v. Killips, 65 Wis. 622.

In the case of void process the liability attaches when the wrong is committed, and no preliminary proceeding is necessary to vacate or set it aside, as a condition to the maintenance of an action. Process, however, that a court has general jurisdiction to award, but which is irregular by reason of the non-performance by the party procuring it, of some preliminary requisite, or the existence of some fact not disclosed in his application therefor, must be regularly vacated or annulled by an order of the court, before an action can be maintained for damages occasioned by its enforcement. Fischer v. Langbein, 103 N. Y. 84, citing Day v. Bach, 87 N. Y. 56.

But one who, in making a criminal complaint, merely states the facts and circumstances to the prosecuting attorney, and swears to the complaint drawn by the latter embodying such facts, is not liable in an action for false imprisonment, though the facts sworn to fail to make out a criminal offense. Barker v. Stetson, 7 Gray (Mass.) 53; 66 Am. Dec. 457; Langford v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 144 Mass. 431; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 653; Murphy v. Walters, 34 Mich. 180; Von Latham v. Rowan, 17 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 237. Compare Carratt v. Morley, 1 Q. B. 18; 41 E. C. L. 417; Fenelon v. Butts, 49 Wis. 342.

2. Crumpton v. Newman, 12 Ala. 199; 46 Am. Dec. 251; Dusy v. Helm, 59 Cal. 188; Hall v. Rogers, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 429; Bauer v. Clay, 8 Kan. 580; to the court call upon it for the exercise of judgment and reason, upon evidence which might in its consideration affect different minds differently, a judicial question is presented, which, however decided, does not render either party, or the court making it, liable for the consequences of its action.¹ And in all cases where a court has acquired jurisdiction in an action or proceeding, its order made or judgment rendered therein is valid and enforceable, and affords protection to all persons acting under it, although it may be afterwards set aside or reversed as erroneous.²

c. INJUNCTIONS.—The plaintiff in an injunction suit is liable upon his injunction bond for all damages and costs incurred by the defendant on account of the improper issue of the injunction.³ If no injunction bond be taken, or if the court of chancery granting the injunction fails to make an order that the party seeking the injunction shall pay the party enjoined such damages as may be sustained in consequence of the injunction, the injunction plaintiff will not be liable,⁴ save that, where the proceedings were maliciously and groundlessly instituted, an action for malicious prosecution will lie.⁵

d. ATTACHMENTS.—A void or irregular attachment affords no protection to a party at whose instance it was issued, for acts done under it; and when the attachment is set aside, he becomes liable for such acts, as a trespasser ab initio.⁶

Gillett v. Thiebold, 9 Kan. 427; Hauss v. Kohlar, 25 Kan. 640; Cody v. Adams, 7 Gray (Mass.) 59; Swart v. Kimball, 43 Mich. 443; Fischer v. Langbein, 103 N. Y. 84; Spice v. Steinruck, 14 Ohio St. 213. Compare Gorton v. Frizzell, 20 Ill. 292.

1. Landt v. Hiltz, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 283; Fischer v. Langbein, 103 N. Y. 94. In this latter case the court by Ruger, C. J., said; "The rule to be deduced from these authorities seems to be that when a court is called upon to adjudicate upon doubtful questions of law, or determine as to inferences to be drawn from circumstances reasonably susceptible of different interpretations or meanings, and calling for the exercise of the judicial function in their determination, its decision thereon does not render an order or process based upon it, although afterward vacated or set aside as erroneous, void, or subject the party procuring it to an action for damages thereby inflicted."

2. Von Kettler v. Johnson, 57 Ill. 109; Johnson v. Von Kettler, 66 Ill. 63; Fischer v. Langbein, 103 N. Y. 90; Simpson v. Hornbeck, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 53.

3. INJUNCTIONS, vol. 10, p. 987; High on Injunctions (2d ed.), vol. 2, § 1619; Newell v. Partee, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 325; Hubbard v. Fravell, 12 Lea (Tenn.) 304.

4. Lexington, etc., R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.) 289; Sturgis v. Knapp, 33 Vt. 486. Compare Cayuga Bridge Co. v. Magee, 2 Paige (N. Y.) 122.

5. Robinson v. Kellum, 6 Cal. 399; Lexington, etc., R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.) 289; Cox v. Taylor, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 17.

In Gorton v. Brown, 27 Ill. 489, 81 Am. Dec. 245, it was held that the action for malicious prosecution was not maintainable where an injunction bond had been given, the only remedy being on the bond.

6. Kirksey v. Jones, 7 Ala. 622; Connelly v. Woods, 31 Kan. 359; Offutt v. Edwards, 9 Rob. (La.) 90; Merritt v. St. Paul, 11 Minn. 223; Dominick v. Eacker, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 17; Lyon v. Yates, 52 Barb. (N. Y.) 244; Patrick v. Solinger, 9 Daly (N. Y.) 149; Sprague v. Parsons, 14 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 320; Kerr v. Mount, 28 N. Y. 659; Miller v. Adams, 52 N. Y. 409; 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 133; Webb v. Bailey, 54 N. Y. 165; Wehle v. Butler, 61 N. Y. 245; affirming 34 N. Y. Super. Ct.

And a return of the property only mitigates the damages.¹

c. PROCEEDINGS UNDER AN UNCONSTITUTIONAL STATUTE.—

An unconstitutional law can afford to no one authority, justification, or protection.² Hence, where proceedings are instituted under an unconstitutional statute, the person at whose instance the process is issued,³ the magistrate who grants it,⁴ and the officer who executes it,⁵ are all liable in damages to the person injured. But when a person does no more than prefer a complaint to the magistrate, he is not liable for acts done under the warrant which the magistrate thereupon issues, even though the magistrate has no jurisdiction.⁶

f. EXECUTIONS.—A party is never a trespasser or wrongdoer for selling property by virtue of an execution in due form issued upon a judgment regularly obtained, though the same be after-

215; 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. 1; 12 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 139; 43 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 5; Wehle v. Haviland, 69 N. Y. 448; 42 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 399; 4 Daly (N. Y.) 550; and see Campbell v. Chamberlain, 10 Iowa 337; Hayden v. Shed, 11 Mass. 500.

The reason is, that where the process is irregular, unauthorized, and void, the officer serving the attachment is the agent of the party suing out the process; although, where the process is authorized and regular, the officer is in no sense the agent of the party. Hall v. Waterbury, 5 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 374; 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 131; Raney v. Weed, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 577.

1. Gibbs v. Chase, 10 Mass. 9; Vosburgh v. Welch, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 175; Hanmer v. Wilsey, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 91; Kerr v. Mount, 28 N. Y. 659.

2. Astrom v. Hammond, 3 McLean (U. S.) 107; Woolsey v. Dodge, 6 McLean (U. S.) 142; Osborn v. Bank of U. S., 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 868; Meagher v. Storey Co., 5 Nev. 244, 250; Campbell v. Sherman, 35 Wis. 103.

In Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 222, the author says: "When a statute is adjudged to be unconstitutional, it is as if it had never been. Rights cannot be built up under it; contracts which depend upon it for their consideration are void; it constitutes a protection to no one who has acted under it, and no one can be punished for having refused obedience to it before the decision was made. And what is true of an act void in toto is true also as to any part of an act which is found to be unconstitutional, and which, consequently, is to be regarded as having never, at any time, been possessed of any legal force."

3. Merritt v. St. Paul, 11 Minn. 223.

Particularly is this the case, if the complaint is malicious and without probable cause. Barker v. Stetson, 7 Gray (Mass.) 53; 66 Am. Dec. 457.

4. Kelly v. Bemis, 4 Gray (Mass.) 83; 64 Am. Dec. 50; Barker v. Stetson, 7 Gray (Mass.) 53; 66 Am. Dec. 457. Contra, Henke v. McCord, 55 Iowa 378.

5. Sumner v. Beeler, 50 Ind. 341; 19 Am. Dec. 718; Ely v. Thompson, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 70; Fisher v. McGirr, 1 Gray (Mass.) 1; 61 Am. Dec. 381; Barker v. Stetson, 7 Gray (Mass.) 53; 66 Am. Dec. 457.

In Sumner v. Beeler, 50 Ind. 341, 19 Am. Rep. 718, the court by Pettit, C. J., said: "No question in law is better settled . . . than that ministerial officers and other persons are liable for acts done under an act of the legislature which is unconstitutional and void. All persons are presumed to know the law, and if they act under an unconstitutional enactment of the legislature, they do so at their peril, and must take the consequences." But in Texas it has been held that an unconstitutional statute has, until adjudged unconstitutional, the force and effect of law, so far as to protect officers who obey its mandates. Sessums v. Botts, 34 Tex. 335. Compare Henke v. McCord, 55 Iowa 378. And see State v. McNally, 34 Me. 210; 56 Am. Dec. 650.

6. Barker v. Stetson, 7 Gray (Mass.) 53; 66 Am. Dec. 457. Compare Chivers v. Savage, 5 E. & B. 697, 701, per Lord Campbell, C. J.; 85 E. C. L. 699.

wards reversed for error.¹ If an execution is lawfully issued, persons who employ an officer of the law to execute the process are not liable where the officer, without their knowledge or assent, abuses his functions; as, for instance, in levying on property belonging to a stranger, or on property not subject to levy.² But if they command, direct, encourage, or advise such irregularity, or even give their sanction or assent to it, they will be answerable.³ So, if the plaintiff in an execution directs that it be exe-

1. Kissock v. Grant, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 150.

But if a party issuing execution on a judgment for a debt which had been paid before its entry, knew that it had been paid, he is liable in an action for malicious abuse of legal process, whether he caused the judgment to be entered or not. Barnett v. Reed, 51 Pa. St. 190; 88 Am. Dec. 574.

2. Snively v. Fahnestock, 18 Md. 391; Sutherland v. Ingalls, 63 Mich. 620; 6 Am. St. Rep. 332; Princeton Bank ads. Gibson, 20 N. J. L. 138; Chapman v. Douglas, 15 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 421; Averill v. Williams, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 501; Barnard v. Stevens, 2 Aik. (Vt.) 429; 16 Am. Dec. 733.

Thus, in Sutherland v. Ingalls, 63 Mich. 620. 6 Am. St. Rep. 332, the court, by Campbell, C. J., said: "No one can be held liable as a trespasser at all for employing an officer to execute lawful process. It is the right of every one to have his regular and valid writ served and enforced. The officers of the law are bound to perform that duty, and cannot be blamed for doing it in a legal manner. Every one has a right to suppose the ministers of the law will not abuse their functions, and no one who lawfully employs them is liable if they do. . . . It is only where the party himself orders or encourages lawlessness that he can be treated as a joint wrongdoer, and then he is liable because he is actually a trespasser, and liable to the extent of his own misconduct." But see Jarmain v. Hooper, 6 M. & G. 827; 46 E. C. L. 826; 1 D. & L. 769; 7 Scott's N. R. 663; 8 Jur. 127; Duperron v. Van Wickle, 4 Rob. (La.) 39; 39 Am. Dec. 509; Davis v. Newkirk, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 92. Thus in Duperron v. Van Wickle, 4 Rob. (La.) 39, 39 Am. Dec. 509, it was held that execution creditors are liable for illegal seizure, though they did not authorize the sheriff to seize property in question. And in Davis v. Newkirk, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 92, it was decided that the giving of a bond of indemnity by a surety to induce an officer to seize particular property on an execution, makes the party executing such bond a trespasser, if the seizure be illegal.

In the absence of any showing of fraud, a creditor who has caused a levy to be made under a valid judgment entered on default, and on the setting aside of the judgment has returned the property to the defendant, is not liable for the seizure and detention. White v. Adams, 52 Cal. 435.

3. Snydacker v. Brosse, 51 Ill. 357; 99 Am. Dec. 551; Haskins v. Haskins, 67 Ill. 446; Shaw v. Rowland, 32 Kan. 154; Hale v. Ames, 2 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 143; 15 Am. Dec. 150; Allen v. Crary, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 349; 25 Am. Dec. 566; Weber v. Ferris, 37 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 102; 2 Daly (N. Y.) 405; Herring v. Hoppock, 15 N. Y. 409; 3 Duer (N. Y.) 20; Lentz v. Chambers, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 587; 44 Am. Dec. 63. Compare Churchill v. Siggers, 3 E. & B. 929; 77 E. C. L. 929.

Where a person directs a sheriff to levy an execution in his favor upon the chattels of another, it has been held that, although he may never have had the property in his possession, replevin will lie against him in favor of the owner. Allen v. Crary, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 349; 25 Am. Dec. 566; Stewart v. Wells, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 79; Knapp v. Smith, 27 N. Y. 277; Fonda v. Van Horne, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 631; 30 Am. Dec. 77. Compare Hadley v. Hadley, 82 Ind. 75. But see, for the better doctrine, REPLEVIN, vol. 20, p. 1084.

And so he will be liable in trespass where, although he had no agency in the first taking, he directed the officer to detain the property, and indemnified him for such taking. Root v. Chandler, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 110; 25 Am. Dec. 546.

Participation by an execution plaintiff in an unlawful sale of the property

cuted in a different manner from that commanded in the writ, he makes the officer so executing it his agent, and is bound by whatever is, under his direction, done or omitted by the officer.¹ If, on the other hand, the execution is illegal, as, for example, from being issued upon a judgment void for want of jurisdiction,² or upon a judgment rendered against a defendant who was not served with process,³ the person who causes the execution to be issued is liable for damages arising from the acts of the officer in obedience to the writ, though not for irregularities in executing it, unless committed by his order or advice.⁴ A writ of execution which is only voidable, and not void, is a justification to parties sued in trespass for causing it to be executed.⁵

g. LEVY IN BANKRUPTCY PROCEEDINGS.—In an action of trespass for a wrongful seizure of the plaintiff's goods, made by an officer under a warrant issued against the goods of another at the suit of the defendant, it has been held that the defendant is not liable for the wrongful acts of the officer, without proof that he authorized such acts; and that the fact that the defendant's attorney had directed such wrongful acts, will not render the defendant liable in the absence of proof of special authority in the attorney.⁶

h. OTHER CASES.⁷

levied upon, by being present at the sale and purchasing part of the property, will render him liable with the officer. Deal v. Bogue, 20 Pa. St. 228; 57 Am. Dec. 702.

If a sheriff levies an execution upon, and raises money out of a sale of, property not belonging to the judgment debtor, he is guilty of a conversion; and if the plaintiff in execution receives the money so raised with a knowledge of the facts, he also is guilty. Lentz v. Chambers, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 587; 44 Am. Dec. 63.

1. Shaw v. Rowland, 32 Kan. 154.

2. Gunz v. Heffner, 33 Minn. 215.

3. Bender v. Askew, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 149; 22 Am. Dec. 714.

4. Snydacker v. Brosse, 51 Ill. 357; 99 Am. Dec. 551; Haskins v. Haskins, 67 Ill. 446; Foster v. Wiley, 27 Mich. 244; 15 Am. Rep. 185; Gunz v. Heffner, 33 Minn. 215; Newberry v. Lee, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 523; Woodcock v. Bennett, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 735; 13 Am. Dec. 568; Kissock v. Grant, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 144; Poucher v. Blanchard, 86 N. Y. 256.

5. Blanchenay v. Burt, 4 Q. B. 707; 45 E. C. L. 707.

6. Welsh v. Cochran, 63 N. Y. 181; 20 Am. Rep. 519; reversing 2 Hun (N. Y.) 675; 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 699.

7. Receivers.—Where a receiver, duly appointed in an action, in pursuance of the directions of a judgment regularly obtained therein, sells property in his possession, the protection of the judgment extends not only to the receiver, but to the plaintiff in the action wherein the receiver was appointed, and he does not become a trespasser or wrongdoer by advising the receiver to discharge his duty as such, or by aiding him to make the sale. Walling v. Miller, 108 N. Y. 179.

No Execut.—A writ of ne exeat which is void on account of having been issued without an affidavit, or upon one which shows clearly no grounds for granting it, although if regular on its face it may protect the officer executing it, will not protect the party who procures it to be issued and executed. Bonesteel v. Bonesteel, 28 Wis. 245.

Officer Refusing Bail at Plaintiff's Instance.—A plaintiff causing the defendant to be arrested on a writ and knowing the sufficiency of the bail offered by the defendant to the officer making the arrest, is liable for the damage done by his ordering and causing the officer to refuse the bail and hold the defendant in custody. Gibbs v. Randlett, 58 N. H. 407.

Replevin.—See Ex parte Thompson, 1 Flip. (U. S.) 507; REPLEVIN, vol. 20, p. 1154.

3. Ratification.—A party may become liable for the consequences of an unlawful act done by an officer in his behalf, or for the consequences of a lawful act performed in an unlawful manner, even where he did not originally direct it, if he subsequently ratifies such act.¹ Thus, ratification will be inferred from the party's seeking to avail himself of the benefits of the act,² or from his indemnifying the officer against its consequences,³ but not from a mere acceptance of what the party would have been entitled to receive irrespective of the wrongful act, nor from a failure to interpose to prevent it.⁴

XV. RIGHTS OF THE PUBLIC AGAINST THIRD PERSONS.—The rules governing the rights of the public against third persons, growing out of acts and transactions between such third persons and public officers and agents, are the same as those applied to the rights of private individuals against third persons with whom they have dealt through agents.⁵ An exception to this rule, however, exists in case of the prerogative right of the State,

1. Cooley on Torts 129; Peterson v. Foli, 67 Iowa 404; Tucker v. Jerris, 75 Me. 184; Cook v. Hopper, 23 Mich. 511; Abbott v. Kimball, 19 Vt. 551; 47 Am. Dec. 708. Compare Adams v. Freeman, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 117.

To hold one responsible for a tort not committed by himself nor by his orders, his adoption of, and assent to, the same must be clear and explicit, and made with a full knowledge of all the facts. Tucker v. Jerris, 75 Me. 184; Adams v. Freeman, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 118.

2. Hyde v. Cooper, 26 Vt. 552.

3. Lovejoy v. Murray, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 1; Knight v. Nelson, 117 Mass. 458; Root v. Chandler, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 110; 25 Am. Dec. 546; Herring v. Hoppock, 15 N. Y. 409; Ball v. Loomis, 29 N. Y. 412. Compare Crossman v. Owen, 62 Me. 528.

A bond given to indemnify against an illegal act to be done, is void, but not so, if given to indemnify against an act already done, and not known at the time to be illegal. Griffiths v. Hardenbergh, 41 N. Y. 464; citing Stone v. Hooker, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 154.

4. Hyde v. Cooper, 26 Vt. 552.

See further as to what amounts to a ratification and the effect thereof, supra this title, Authority by Ratification.

5. Dugan v. U. S., 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 172; Cook v. Tullis, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 332; Lee v. Lee, 67 Ala. 406; Milhous v. Dunham, 78 Ala. 48; Wolffe v. State, 79 Ala. 201; 58 Am. Rep. 590; Skinner v. Merchants' Bank, 4 Allen (Mass.) 290; Com. v. Haupt, 10 Allen

(Mass.) 38; Bainbridge v. Downie, 6 Mass. 253; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382; 1 Am. Rep. 115; People v. Auditor General, 38 Mich. 746; State v. Torinus, 28 Minn. 175; Demarest v. New Barbadoes, 40 N. J. L. 604; Michigan v. Phoenix Bank, 33 N. Y. 9; Younce v. McBride, 68 N. Car. 532; Bean v. Froneberger, 75 N. Car. 540; State v. Bevers, 86 N. Car. 588; Coble v. Nonemaker, 78 Pa. St. 501; Day Land, etc., Co. v. State, 68 Tex. 526. See also AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 331.

The State or other public authority may maintain an action for the recovery of public money or property which has been paid out or disposed of without authority of law. Com. v. Field, 84 Va. 26; Day Land, etc., Co. v. State, 68 Tex. 526.

So when money has been paid out under mistake of fact. Belden v. State, 103 N. Y. 1; aff'g 31 Hun (N. Y.) 409. Or where it has been fraudulently obtained under color of a contract with the State. People v. Denison, 80 N. Y. 656.

Where public property has been sold by an agent, the State may sue for the price thereof in its own name. State v. Torinus, 28 Minn. 175; 26 Minn. 1; 37 Am. Rep. 393; 24 Minn. 332.

Where money was deposited in the bank by a tax-collector to the credit of I. H. Vincent, Treasurer, and checked out by him in the purchase of exchange on New York, the draft being made payable to himself as where no liens have intervened, to priority of payment of its claims out of the estates of debtors and others.¹ And in those jurisdictions in which officers intrusted with the custody of the public moneys are considered as the debtors and not the bailees of the government, such moneys cannot be followed into the hands of third persons as in cases of ordinary agency; the public resort is against the officer only and against his sureties.²

XVI. RIGHTS OF THE OFFICER AS AGAINST THIRD PERSONS.—Public officers have implied authority to maintain all actions which the proper and faithful discharge of the duties of their offices require, their rights being commensurate with their public duties and trusts.³ Thus a public officer who, as such, has the property of another in his possession, may by virtue of that possession recover against a stranger for an injury to, or a conversion of, the goods.⁴ And where he has acquired a special property in the goods by virtue of his office, he may recover, to the extent of his interest, against any one who injures or converts them, though treasurer and indorsed in the same way, the indorsee knowing that Vincent was State treasurer, it was held that the indorsee was chargeable with notice of the official character in which the treasurer held the funds; and in applying the money in payment of an individual indebtedness of the treasurer to him, he became liable to the State in an action for money had and received. Wolffe v. State, 79 Ala. 201; 58 Am. Rep. 590.

1. See DEBTS OF DECEDENTS, vol. 5, p. 236, et seq.; Com. v. Logan, 1 Bibb (Ky.) 529; State v. Rogers, 2 Har. & M. (Md.) 198; Murray v. Ridley, 3 Har. & M. (Md.) 171; Contee v. Chew, 1 Har. & J. (Md.) 417; State v. Bank of Maryland, 6 Gill & J. (Md.) 205; 26 Am. Dec. 561; Smith v. State, 5 Gill (Md.) 45; Jones v. Jones, 1 Bland (Md.) 443; 18 Am. Dec. 327; Green's Estate, 4 Md. Ch. 349; State v. Mayor of Baltimore, 10 Md. 515; Orem v. Wrightson, 51 Md. 34; 34 Am. Rep. 286; Com. v. Lewis, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 266.

In New Jersey this right to preference does not exist. Middlesex Co. v. State Bank, 29 N. J. Eq. 268; 30 N. J. Eq. 311.

2. See Perley v. Muskegon Co., 32 Mich. 132; 20 Am. Rep. 637; State v. Rubey, 77 Mo. 610.

In Iowa a county may maintain an action for its money alleged to have been wrongfully obtained and converted by defendant, by collusion with the county treasurer, and is not confined in its remedy to an action on the treasurer's bond. Taylor Co. v. Standley, 79 Iowa 666.

3. See Haynes v. Butler, 30 Ark. 69; Berrien Co. v. Bunbury, 45 Mich. 79; Comrs. of Sinking Fund v. Walker, 6 How. (Miss.) 143; 38 Am. Dec. 433; Rouse v. Moore, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 407; Todd v. Birdsall, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 260; 13 Am. Dec. 522; Jansen v. Ostrander, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 679; Galway v. Stimson, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 136; Gould v. Glass, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 184; Victory v. Blood, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 515; Looney v. Hughes, 26 N. Y. 515; aff'g 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 605; People v. New York, 32 N. Y. 473; Hamilton Co. v. Noyes, 35 Ohio St. 201; Philadelphia v. Germantown Pass. R. Co., 10 Phila. (Pa.) 165; School Dist. No. 8 v. Arnold, 21 Wis. 657. Compare Clarissy v. Metropolitan Fire Dept., 7 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 352.

The commissioners of a county may sue for and recover money due to the county. State v. Piatt, 15 Ohio 15.

4. Cooley on Torts 442; and see Cargill v. Webb, 10 N. H. 199; Sibley v. Story, 8 Vt. 15; Baker v. Fuller, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 318; Barker v. Miller, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 195.

If the plaintiff shows that property in his possession has been taken and converted, he shows a prima facie right to maintain the suit. Foster v. Chamberlain, 41 Ala. 158.

Where the law makes it the duty of an officer to preserve all books and papers belonging to his office, he may it be the general owner himself.¹ An action by a public officer, however, must be brought in the name of his office in all actions which are peculiar to the office or to the official character of the officer, and where the very statement of the cause of action shows that it is an action that can be brought only by some officer.² Where a public officer, acting solely in behalf of his government within the scope of his authority, enters into a contract or performs an official act, a suit thereon must be brought in the name of the government, when the redress is sought in its behalf.³ And official bonds given, for the faithful performance of duty or contract, to a designated officer, can, in the absence of statutory provision, be recovered upon only by the government maintain replevin for them against any one who assumes to take them. Phenix v. Clark, 2 Mich. 327.

1. Clark v. Withers, 6 Mod. 292; Sawle v. Paynter, 1 D. & R. 307; 16 E. C. L. 37; Gibbs v. Chase, 10 Mass. 125; Brownell v. Manchester, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 232; Badlam v. Tucker, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 389; 11 Am. Dec. 202; Baker v. Fuller, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 318; Brewster v. Vail, 20 N. J. L. 56; 38 Am. Dec. 547; Dezell v. Odell, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 215; 38 Am. Dec. 628; Lockwood v. Bull, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 322; 13 Am. Dec. 539; Marsh v. White, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 518; Weatherby v. Covington, 3 Strobb. (S. Car.) 27; 49 Am. Dec. 623; Lowry v. Walker, 5 Vt. 181; Fisher v. Cobb, 6 Vt. 622; Whitney v. Ladd, 10 Vt. 165; Sewell v. Harrington, 11 Vt. 141; 33 Am. Dec. 675; Fletcher v. Cole, 26 Vt. 170. Compare Mills v. Camp, 14 Conn. 219; 36 Am. Dec. 488; Huntley v. Bacon, 15 Conn. 257.

An officer may bring replevin for the recovery of goods upon which he has actually levied, against any person interfering with his possession, including even the owner himself, or another officer who afterwards attempts to levy upon them. Dayton v. Fry, 29 Ill. 525; Mulheisen v. Lane, 82 Ill. 117; Fitch v. Dunn, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 142; Walpole v. Smith, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 304; Dunkin v. McKee, 23 Ind. 447; Ladd v. North, 2 Mass. 516; Pomeroy v. Trimmer, 8 Allen (Mass.) 399; 85 Am. Dec. 714; Clark v. Norton, 6 Minn. 412; Rhoads v. Woods, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 471; Lockwood v. Bull, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 333; 13 Am. Dec. 539; Dezell v. Odell, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 215; 38 Am. Dec. 628; Morris v. Van Voast, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 283; Pugh v. Calloway, 10 Ohio St. 488; Whitney v. Brunette, 3 Wis. 625; Martin v. Wat- son, 8 Wis. 315. And see REPLEVIN, vol. 20, p. 1074.

But a mere paper levy is not sufficient. Johnson v. Prussing, 4 Ill. App. 575.

It has been held that where a deputy sheriff has attached property or seized it in execution, his possession is merely that of his superior, whose servant he is, and does not authorize him to maintain trespass for the taking of such property. Terwilliger v. Wheeler, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 620. Contra, Stanton v. Hodges, 6 Vt. 64, in which case it was decided that the deputy, by reason of his ultimate liability to the sheriff, might maintain trespass for such taking.

In Merritt v. Miller, 13 Vt. 416, it was held that the true owner, when sued by the officer, might set up his title in defense to the action. But in Weidensaul v. Reynolds, 49 Pa. St. 73, the contrary was held.

2. Brewster v. Vail, 20 N. J. L. 56; 38 Am. Dec. 547; Board of Trustees v. Acker, 26 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 263; Comyns Dig., tit. Abatement, e, 21.

But where a plaintiff has a special or general property in himself as an individual, he may bring trover in his own name, whether he acquired that property as a purchaser, as a common carrier, as a special bailee, or in the special discharge of his duty as sheriff or other public officer. Brewster v. Vail, 20 N. J. L. 56; 38 Am. Dec. 547.

3. Balcombe v. Northrup, 9 Minn. 172. And see Irish v. Webster, 5 Me. 171; State v. Boies, 11 Me. 474; Gilmore v. Pope, 5 Mass. 491.

A payee cannot recover in his own name upon a note running to him as United States Indian agent, his successors in office, or order. Balcombe v. Northrup, 9 Minn. 172.

or body having the legal interest in them.¹ When an officer is authorized to sue in his own name, he should do so with the addition of his official title,² and no action can be maintained in his own name after his term of office has expired.³ An officer may sue in his own name when he and not the sovereign power is the party legally interested.⁴ Actions commenced by a public officer do not abate by his death, removal, or resignation, or by the expiration of his term, but continue in favor of his successor in office in the names of the original parties, until a substitution of such successor is made.⁵

XVII. COMPENSATION—1. From the Public.—The salary attached to a public office belongs to the incumbent as an incident of his office; he is entitled to it, not by force of any contract, but because the law attaches it to the office;⁶ and where the law makes no provision for the payment of an officer, a promise on the part

1. Bagby v. Baker, 18 Ala. 653; Northampton v. Elwell, 4 Gray (Mass.) 81. Compare Bissell v. Spencer, 9 Conn. 267; 23 Am. Dec. 336; State v. New London, 22 Conn. 170.

In Northampton v. Elwell, 4 Gray (Mass.) 81, it was held, in accordance with the general principle that the right of action on a sealed instrument belongs to the party having the legal interest, that on a bond made to the Commonwealth, for the use of the town of Northampton, no action lies by the town, although the forfeitures belong to the town by statute.

A bond running to the people must be sued upon by the proper officer in the name of the people. Lawton v. Erwin, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 233.

2. Bagby v. Baker, 18 Ala. 653; Comrs. of Highways v. Peck, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 215; Overseers of Hebron v. Ely, Hill & D. (N. Y.) 379; State Prison v. Rikeman, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 279; Board of Trustees v. Archer, 26 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 263.

Actions brought by a public officer either in his own name alone or in the name of the office alone are amendable by the insertion of a proper designation of the plaintiff; and a failure to take advantage of such error by pleading it is a waiver. Berrien Co. v. Bunbury, 45 Mich. 79; Johr v. St. Clair Co., 38 Mich. 532; State Prison v. Rikeman, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 279.

3. Jansen v. Ostrander, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 670. And see Bagby v. Baker, 18 Ala. 653; Armine v. Spencer, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 406.

4. Hunnicut v. Kirkpatrick, 39 Ark. 172; Haynes v. Butler, 30 Ark.

69; Brewster v. Vail, 20 N. J. L. 56; 38 Am. Dec. 547.

Where the State is not only the nominal plaintiff, but the real party in interest, it is immaterial whether the officer upon whose information the suit is brought is legally entitled to the office or not. McAlister v. Com., 6 Bush (Ky.) 581.

5. See Board of Excise v. Garlinghouse, 45 N. Y. 249; Manchester v. Herrington, 10 N. Y. 164; Colegrove v. Breed, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 125.

6. Fitzsimmons v. Brooklyn, 102 N. Y. 536; 55 Am. Rep. 835; Love v. Mayor, etc., of Jersey City, 40 N. J. L. 456; Kelm v. State, 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 488; Steubenville v. Culp, 38 Ohio St. 18; 43 Am. Rep. 417; State v. Smedes, 26 Miss. 47; Knappen v. Barry Co., 46 Mich. 22. And see Mayor, etc., of Hoboken v. Gear, 27 N. J. L. 265; Marden v. Portsmouth, 59 N. H. 18; Locke v. Central City, 4 Colo. 65; 34 Am. Rep. 66; Iowa City v. Foster, 10 Iowa 189; Smith v. Philadelphia Co., 2 Pars. Eq. Cas. (Pa.) 293; Tenney v. State, 27 Wis. 387; Farrell v. Bridgeport, 45 Conn. 191; People v. White, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 622; People v. Burrows, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 89; People v. Tremain, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 96; Koontz v. Franklin Co., 76 Pa. St. 154. But see to the contrary in North Carolina, Hoke v. Henderson, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 1; 25 Am. Rep. 677.

The only contract which arises from a statute establishing a salary is to pay the incumbent that salary while that law remains in force. Fisher v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 323.

Where the statute, in case of a of the public to pay for his services is not implied from the fact of his election or appointment and the rendition of service.¹

The right to the possession of an office carries with it the right to emoluments pertaining to the place, and an officer seeking to recover these emoluments must show his right to the possession of the office;² an officer de jure being as a general rule entitled to the full amount of his salary from the date of his election or appointment.³ The emoluments of an office are prescribed and allowed by law, and may be altered, increased, reduced, and regulated by law at all times except where the constitution has vacancy in a public office, confers upon the deputy all the powers and imposes on him all the duties attached by law to the office of superintendent, on the happening thereof he becomes at once acting superintendent, and is entitled to the salary of that office while he so continues to act. Church v. Hopkins, 55 N. Y. 74.

1. Talbot v. East Machias, 76 Me. 416; Bicknell v. Amador Co., 30 Cal. 237; Barnes v. Bakersfield, 57 Vt. 375; Perry v. Cheboygan, 55 Mich. 250; White v. Levant, 78 Me. 568; Carlyle v. Sharp, 51 Ill. 71; State v. Roach, 123 Ind. 167; Tippecanoe Co. v. Barens, 123 Ind. 403; Walker v. Cook, 129 Mass. 578; Sikes v. Hatfield, 13 Gray (Mass.) 347; Posey v. Mobile Co., 50 Ala. 6; Crittenden Co. v. Crump, 25 Ark. 235; Standford v. Wheeler, 28 Ark. 144; Wortham v. Grayson Co. Ct., 13 Bush (Ky.) 53; and see Kinsey v. Kellogg, 65 Cal. 111; Reddy v. Tinkum, 60 Cal. 458; Beaman v. U. S., 19 Ct. of Cl. 5; Wallace v. U. S., 20 Ct. of Cl. 273.

Rendition of the services of a public officer is gratuitous, unless, by express statutory provision, compensation is fixed, and an express liability for its payment imposed on the State. State v. Brewer, 59 Ala. 130; and see Sampson v. Rochester, 60 N. H. 477.

To charge a county with a claim for services rendered or expenses incurred, there must be some statutory authority authorizing the same to be rendered or incurred, or directing the payment thereof. Without this the board of supervisors cannot be compelled by mandamus to audit such claim. People v. Albany Co., 28 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 22.

But where a statute requires a board of commissioners to have a secretary, but makes no provision for his compensation, he is entitled to reasonable compensation. Territory v. Norris, 1 Oregon 107. See also Bradley v. Jefferson Co., 4 Greene (Iowa) 300.

Where services are rendered for a municipal corporation by a person acting as its private agent and not as a public officer, he is entitled to recover the reasonable value of such services. Detroit v. Redfield, 19 Mich. 376; In re Public Parks' Department, 27 Hun (N. Y.) 305; Webster Co. v. Taylor, 19 Iowa 117. But see Sidway v. South Park Comrs., 120 Ill. 496.

2. McCue v. Wapello Co., 56 Iowa 608; 41 Am. Rep. 134; Baxter v. Brooks, 29 Ark. 173; Coburn v. Dodd, 14 Ind. 347; Matthews v. Copiah, 53 Miss. 715; 24 Am. Rep. 715; Wiley v. Worth, Phil. (N. Car.) 171; State v. Storey Co., 16 Nev. 92; Meeham v. Hudson Co., 46 N. J. L. 276; 50 Am. Rep. 421; Darby v. Wilmington, 76 N. Car. 133.

An officer de jure is entitled to his salary, notwithstanding the refusal of other officers in his department to have the communication with him necessary to a full discharge of his duties. Williams v. Clayton (Utah 1889), 21 Pac. Rep. 398.

Where the district court appoints a person public prosecutor in the absence of the district attorney, the county is liable to him for his services as such officer. White v. Polk Co., 17 Iowa 413.

A county officer claiming compensation under the salary act on the ground that the population of the county equals a certain number, must show the population to have equaled that number when he entered on the performance of his duties. Monroe v. Luzerne Co., 103 Pa. St. 278.

3. Fitzsimmons v. Brooklyn, 102 N. Y. 536; 55 Am. Rep. 835; Ball v. Kenfield, 55 Cal. 320; Swann v. Turner, 23 Miss. 565; Shelly v. U. S., 19 Ct. of Cl. 653.

He is entitled to interest on the same expressly forbidden it.¹ Constitutional provisions prohibiting an increase or decrease of the emoluments during the term of an office, however, are remedial in their nature and will be liberally construed and strictly enforced;² such a provision meaning durfrom the time a demand is made upon the auditor of public accounts for a proper warrant on the treasurer, for the amount of his salary. Swann v. Turner, 23 Miss. 565.

Although the law requires that a government official—an internal revenue collector, for instance—shall take an oath and give a bond before entering on the duties of his office, he may, nevertheless, claim compensation for a period during which he was permitted to discharge, and did discharge, the duties of the office before taking the oath and giving the bond. U. S. v. Flanders, 112 U. S. 88.

The legislative branch of the government can, by antedating the appointment or commission of a public officer, create a liability on the part of the government; but the appointing power cannot. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 22.

1. Conner v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 285; Prince v. Skillen, 71 Me. 361; 36 Am. Rep. 325; Castle v. Uinta Co., 2 Wyoming Ter. 126; Perkins v. Corbin, 45 Ala. 103; 6 Am. Rep. 698; Benford v. Gibson, 15 Ala. 521; Robinson v. White, 26 Ark. 139; Augusta v. Sweeney, 44 Ga. 463; 9 Am. Rep. 172; Coffin v. State, 7 Ind. 157; People v. Lippincott, 67 Ill. 333; Gilbert v. Board of Comrs., 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 81; Iowa City v. Foster, 10 Iowa 189; Williams v. Newport, 12 Bush (Ky.) 438; Evans v. Populus, 22 La. Ann. 121; Farwell v. Rockland, 62 Me. 296; Vose v. Essex Co., 145 Mass. 500; Knappen v. Barry Co., 46 Mich. 22; People v. Manistee Co., 40 Mich. 585; Wyandott v. Drennan, 46 Mich. 478; Hennepin Co. v. Jones, 18 Minn. 199; Hamilton v. St. Louis Co. Ct., 15 Mo. 3; Kendall v. Canton, 53 Miss. 526; Marden v. Portsmouth, 59 N. H. 18; State v. Gales, 77 N. Car. 283; Conner v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 355; 5 N. Y. 285; People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295; People v. Tremain, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 96; Warner v. People, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 273; 43 Am. Dec. 740; People v. Burrows, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 89; Riley v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 96 N. Y. 331; Phillips v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 1 Hill (N. Y.) 483; Com. v.

Mann, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 403; Crawford Co. v. Nash, 99 Pa. St. 253; Koontz v. Franklin Co., 76 Pa. St. 154; French v. Com., 78 Pa. St. 339; Alexander v. McKenzie, 2 S. Car. 81; Field v. Marye, 83 Va. 882; Rucker v. Supervisor, 7 W. Va. 661; State v. Douglas, 26 Wis. 428; 7 Am. Rep. 87; Hall v. State, 39 Wis. 79; State v. Kalb, 50 Wis. 178; State v. Van Baumark, 12 Wis. 310; Butler v. Pennsylvania, 10 How. (U. S.) 402; U. S. v. Mitchell, 109 U. S. 146; U. S. v. Hartwell, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 385. And see People v. Kings Co., 105 N. Y. 180; State v. Mayor, etc., of Nashville, 15 Lea (Tenn.) 697; 54 Am. Rep. 427; Francis v. U. S., 22 Ct. of Cl. 403.

Where a public office is abolished, the former incumbent has no right to demand compensation for the unexpired term. Jones v. Shaw, 15 Tex. 577. But if all the duties of an office had been performed before it was abolished, all of the salary would be paid. Ex parte Lawrence, 1 Ohio St. 431; People v. McCall, 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 442.

After passage of a law allowing an officer the same fees as those allowed another officer for like services, an increase of the latter does not also increase the former. Johnston v. Lovett, 65 Ga. 716. Kinsey v. Sherman, 46 Iowa 463.

The legislature, having imposed certain duties upon a public officer, and allowed him a salary for his services, may take those duties and the salary away from him before the expiration of his term of office, and confer them upon another. Denver v. Hobart, 10 Nev. 28.

2. See Garvie v. Hartford, 54 Conn. 440; Cox v. Burlington, 43 Iowa 612; Goldsborough v. U. S., Taney's Dec. (U. S.) 80; U. S. v. White, Taney's Dec. (U. S.) 152; Weeks v. Texarkana, 50 Ark. 81; Hall v. Beveridge, 81 Ill. 128; Auditor v. Cochrane, 9 Bush (Ky.) 7; Perot v. Mann, 12 Phila. (Pa.) 353; Doe v. Washington Co., 30 Minn. 392; Meriwether v. U. S., 22 Ct. of Cl. 332; Cherokee Co. v. Chew, 44 Kan. 162; Gross v. Kenfield, 57 Cal. 626; Wheelock v. People, 84 Ill. 551;

ing the continuance in office by the officer by virtue of his first election or appointment,¹ and during which he holds over after the expiration of his term;² and in any event the compensation established by law for official services, when their discharge is undertaken, should control the final allowance, and subsequent legislation should not affect it unless directly and plainly made applicable.³ Where a public officer is employed for a fixed term at a given salary, a continued employment carries with it the rate of compensation already established and existing,⁴ and an officer

Chancellor's Case, 1 Bland (Md.) 595; Territory v. King, 1 Oregon 106; Larew v. Newman, 81 Cal. 588; Twenty Per Cent. Cases, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 79; Apple v. Crawford Co., 105 Pa. St. 300; 51, Am. Rep. 205.

Statutes authorizing particular counties to increase the compensation of county officers, contrary to the provisions of a general law on the subject, are inconsistent with that uniformity of county government prescribed by the constitution of Wisconsin. Rooney v. Milwaukee Co., 40 Wis. 23.

Under these provisions an officer cannot, by contract, alter the compensation fixed by law for his services, but is entitled, notwithstanding the contract, to the compensation prescribed. Purdy v. Independence, 75 Iowa 356.

Under a statute prohibiting the increase of an officer's salary during his term of office, if, after the passage of an ordinance fixing a salary for the next term, an officer is elected, his salary is fixed by it, although, because of the necessity of publication, the ordinance did not take effect until after the beginning of the term. Stuhr v. Hoboken, 47 N. J. L. 147.

1. Smith v. Waterbury, 54 Conn. 174.

A statute providing that the salary of an appointee shall not be increased during the term of his appointment or during his employment, cannot be evaded by a resignation followed by a reappointment. State v. Hudson Co., 44 N. J. L. 388; nor can an increase be had by an appointee to fill a vacancy. Larew v. Newman, 81 Cal. 588.

Under a constitutional provision that no officer's salary shall be increased or diminished during his term, if the authorities charged with fixing the salary have not done so before his election, they may do so afterwards. Purcell v. Parks, 82 Ill. 346; State v. McDowell, 19 Neb. 442; Rucker v.

Supervisors, 7 W. Va. 661; Wheelock v. McDowell, 20 Neb. 160.

2. State v. Smith, 87 Mo. 158.

The word "compensation," as used in Wisconsin Const., art. 4, § 26, applies only to those officers who receive a fixed salary from the State. Milwaukee Co. v. Hackett, 21 Wis. 613; and see Thompson v. Phillips, 12 Ohio St. 617. The Pennsylvania constitutional provision applies to a law enacted by the legislature, not to an ordinance enacted by a city. Baldwin v. Philadelphia, 99 Pa. St. 164.

3. People v. McCall, 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 442. And see In re Bank of Niagara, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 213; Woodruff v. Imperial F. Ins. Co., 90 N. Y. 521; People v. Manistee Co., 40 Mich. 585; State v. Steele, 57 Tex. 200; State v. Cook, 57 Tex. 205; Meriweather v. U. S., 22 Ct. of Cl. 332.

An act providing a new rule of compensation of officers subsequently coming into office need not also apply to the future services of existing officers in order to be valid. Cricket v. State, 18 Ohio St. 9. See also People v. Detroit, 38 Mich. 636.

Where the statute fixes the compensation of Federal officials, the appointing power cannot diminish it; and an officer who accepts and receipts for less than the amount fixed may recover the rest. Adams v. U. S., 20 Ct. of Cl. 115; Dyer v. U. S., 20 Ct. of Cl. 166; Kehn v. State, 93 N. Y. 291. And see Hewitt v. White, 78 Mich. 117.

4. Capps v. Adams Co., 27 Neb. 360; Kehn v. State, 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 488.

But a resolution fixing the salary of A as interpreter to the courts, is not operative to entitle B, his successor, to the same salary. Rosenthal v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 6 Daly (N. Y.) 167.

Change to Legal-tender Notes.—In the payment of a debt, legal-tender notes are, in contemplation of law, lawfully holding over is entitled to payment of the salary attached to the office during the term of his incumbency for the time during which he holds over.¹ A person accepting a public office with a fixed salary is bound to perform the duties of the office for the salary, and cannot legally claim additional compensation for additional incidental services, though subsequently imposed upon him, and though the salary be inadequate;² and additional duties may be attached to an office, and, unless provided for, no compensation other than that previously attached to the office can be recovered for their performance.³ An officer cannot recover equal to coin; and the act of the legislature making the salary of a State officer payable in legal-tender notes, after it had previously made it payable in coin, is not rendered unconstitutional by that section of the constitution of Nevada which declares that the salaries of certain officers shall not be increased or diminished during the term of office. State v. Rhoades, 3 Nev. 240.

1. Hubbard v. Crawford, 19 Kan. 570; Sobb v. Carter, 65 Md. 321. And see Burns v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 6 Daly (N. Y.) 156.

No agreement, made by the head of a department with an agent appointed under the act of March 3, 1809, will entitle him to more than the compensation allowed thereby. U. S. v. McCall, Gilp. (U. S.) 563.

2. Decatur v. Vermillion, 77 Ill. 315; Gerken v. Sibley Co., 39 Minn. 433; Sidway v. South Park Comrs., 120 Ill. 406; Poughkeepsie v. Willsie, 36 Hun (N. Y.) 270; Hand v. Tippecanoe Co., 26 Ind. 179; Wabash Co. v. Sheets, 17 Ind. 22; Rowe v. Kern Co., 72 Cal. 353; Becknell v. Amador Co., 30 Cal. 237; Cowan v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 Hun (N. Y.) 632; Stockwell v. Genesee Co., 56 Mich. 221; Kernion v. Hills, 1 La. Ann. 419; and see Bartch v. Cutler (Utah, 1890), 24 Pac. Rep. 526; Gilbert v. Marshall Co., 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 427; Riggs v. Brewer, 64 Ala. 282; State v. Draper, 43 Mo. 220; Gordon Co. v. Harris, 81 Ga. 719; Jones v. Grant Co., 14 Wis. 518; Kewanee Co. v. Knipper, 37 Wis. 406; Nowles v. Jasper Co., 86 Ind. 179; Stropes v. Greene Co., 84 Ind. 560; re Parsons, 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 451; Bubb v. Lycoming Co., 134 Pa. St. 112; Massing v. State, 14 Wis. 502; Banks v. State, 60 Md. 305; Shepard v. Lawrence, 141 Mass. 479; Upton v. U. S., 19 Ct. of Cl. 46; Folger v. U. S., 103 U. S. 30; Wilson v. U. S., 1 Ct. of

Cl. 206; Yates v. National Home, 103 U. S. 674; Stansberry v. U. S., 1 Ct. of Cl. 123; 8 Wall. (U. S.) 33; Raymond v. Madison Co., 5 Mont. 103.

An express promise to pay extra compensation, or an express allowance of it is void. Adams Co. v. Hunter, 78 Iowa 328; Griffin v. Clay Co., 63 Iowa 413.

U. S. Rev. St., § 847, gives to circuit-court commissioners for services "the same compensation as is allowed to clerks for like services." Held, that this embraces the keeping of a docket, although the docket is not quite like that of the clerk. U. S. v. Wallace, 116 U. S. 398.

An officer who collects and keeps fees other than such as are provided by law, is liable in an action by the public for the recovery thereof. San Luis Obispo Co. v. King, 69 Cal. 531.

The acceptance of a smaller amount than that to which an officer is legally entitled, does not preclude a recovery of the balance. Harrison Co. v. Benson, 83 Ind. 469.

3. Miami Co. v. Blake, 21 Ind. 32; Jay Co. v. Templar, 34 Ind. 322; Turpen v. Tipton Co., 7 Ind. 172; Territory v. Carson, 7 Mont. 417; Bayha v. Webster Co., 18 Neb. 131; Evans v. Trenton, 24 N. J. L. 764; People v. Devlin, 33 N. Y. 269; 88 Am. Dec. 377; Palmer v. New York, 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 318; People v. Edmonds, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 468; Lancaster Co. v. Fulton (Pa. 1889), 18 Atl. Rep. 384; Haynes v. State, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 480; 39 Am. Dec. 187; U. S. v. Smith, 1 Bond (U. S.) 68; Andrews v. U. S., 2 Story (U. S.) 202; Jackson v. U. S., 8 Ct. of Cl. 354; and see Cole v. White Co., 32 Ark. 45; People v. New York, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 362; Bussier v. Pray, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 447; Robinson v. Dunn, 77 Cal. 473; State v. Holladay, 67 Mo. 64; Wright v. Hancock Co., 98 Ind. 88; Woodruff v. State, 3 Ark. 285; State a reward offered for the performance of an act which it was his official duty to perform, a promise to reward a man for doing his duty being void for want of consideration.¹ Where an officer holds two incompatible offices he forfeits the compensation attached to the first from the time of his acceptance of the second, and that without judgment of ouster.² Where an officer holds two offices or places, however, the functions of which are separate and distinct, and which may both be held by one person at the same time, he is entitled to recover the compensation attached to each,³ and an officer may be employed to discharge duties which are clearly extra-official and outside of the scope of his official duty, and which might be performed by one person as well as another, and he will be entitled to additional compensation therefor.⁴ While sickness may furnish sufficient reason

v. Bloxham (Fla. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 873; Billings v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 413; People v. Calhoun Co., 36 Mich. 10; In re New York, etc., R. Co., 7 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 408; Erie Co. v. Jones, 119 N. Y. 337; State v. Kelsey, 44 N. J. L. 1; La Grange Co. v. Cutler, 6 Ind. 354; Rowe v. Kern Co., 72 Cal. 353.

The court has no power to grant an extra allowance to a commissioner for extra services beyond the amount fixed by the fee bill, though such services were imposed by order of court. Bona v. Davant, Riley Eq. (S. Car.) 44.

One entering upon an employment as an attendant upon a court cannot claim an additional compensation provided by a statute, he not having been employed under the authority conferred by such statute. Mason v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 28 Hun (N. Y.) 115.

If a county auditor can recover at all for doing his predecessor's work, he must clearly show that the work should have been done by his predecessor, and that, before doing it, the county was notified. Severin v. Dearborn Co., 105 Ind. 264.

1. Pool v. Boston, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 519; Davies v. Burns, 5 Allen (Mass.) 349; Rea v. Smith, 2 Handy (Ohio) 193; Robinson v. Dunn, 77 Cal. 473; In re Russell, 51 Conn. 577; 50 Am. Rep. 55.

This rule does not apply to a promised reward claimed by a police officer of another State for arresting a fugitive to that State, it not appearing that it was part of his duty to arrest fugitives from abroad. Morrell v. Quarles, 35 Ala. 544.

2. State v. Comptroller-Gen'l, 9 S.

Car. 259; and see Hedrick v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 88.

3. U. S. v. Saunders, 120 U. S. 126; Saunders v. U. S., 21 Ct. of Cl. 408; Collins v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 22; In re Conrad, 15 Fed. Rep. 641; Landram v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 74; Hartson v. U. S., 21 Ct. of Cl. 451; State v. Harrison, 116 Ind. 300; State v. Walker, 97 Mo. 162; Philadelphia v. Martin, 125 Pa. St. 583; Crosman v. Nightingill, 1 Nev. 323; Preston v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 417; Erwin v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 470. And see Pennie v. Reis, 80 Cal. 266.

A statutory recognition, whether direct or indirect, of the right to hold separate offices implies that the officer may have the salary attached to each. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 22.

But while under the statute a township trustee is entitled to two dollars per day for ordinary services from the township fund, and to the same from the county as overseer of the poor, he cannot claim pay from both sources for the same day's services. Montgomery Co. v. Bromley, 108 Ind. 158.

4. Evans v. Trenton, 24 N. J. L. 764; Burroughs v. Norton Co., 29 Kan. 196; U. S. v. Duval, Gilp. (U. S.) 356. And see Love v. Baehr, 47 Cal. 364; Curtis v. Sacramento, 13 Cal. 290; McBride v. Grand Rapids, 47 Mich. 236; Mayor, etc., of Niles v. Muzzy, 33 Mich. 61; 20 Am. Rep. 670; U. S. v. Brindle, 110 U. S. 688; U. S. v. Ripley, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 18; U. S. v. Fillebrown, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 28; U. S. v. Austin, 2 Cliff. (U. S.) 325; Collier v. U. S., 22 Ct. of Cl. 125; Long v. U. S., 8 Ct. of Cl. 398; Brough v. U. S., 8 Ct. of Cl. 206.

Whenever services have been renfor the removal of a public officer, when his absence on that account has been permitted, he is entitled to compensation until some action is taken on the subject,¹ but no claim can be brought for the salary or perquisites of an office for any period during which the claimant was not actually in office, even though wrongfully hindered from occupying the position, the salary being the reward for express or implied services.² No salary will be paid an officer who, during his term of office, forfeits his position, after the time of such forfeiture.³

The legal right to an office carries with it the right to the emoluments of the office; an attempted suspension or removal which is illegal and void as affecting the title to the office, therefore, does not deprive the officer of his right to the salary,⁴ and the officer having a legal title to the office may recover the salary, dered which are beneficial to a county, and no specific compensation is provided by law, they may be deemed contingent charges, of the allowance of which the supervisors are the sole judges, unless the legislature itself provides for it. People v. Haws, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 69; 21 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 178.

A re-enactment of an early statute fixing an officer's salary should not be deemed an implied repeal of an intermediate statute giving him a commission for certain services additional to his salary. Chatfield v. Washington Co., 3 Oregon 318.

1. O'Leary v. Board of Education, 93 N. Y. 1; 45 Am. Rep. 156; Devlin v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 41 Hun (N. Y.) 281; People v. French, 91 N. Y. 265; Sleight v. U. S., 9 Ct. of Cl. 369; Ware v. U. S., 7 Ct. of Cl. 565.

Under an act providing that a collector of customs may appoint a deputy to act in the absence or in case of the death or disability of the collector, the collector is entitled to the perquisites and emoluments of the office if the deputy acts during his necessary absence or sickness. But if the collector is disabled or dies, and thus ceases to act through his deputy, the perquisites and emoluments of the office do not belong to the collector or his estate. Merriam v. Clinch, 6 Blatchf. (U. S.) 5.

Where a city ordinance provides that a policeman, for absence without leave, shall forfeit his pay, except in cases of sickness properly certified by a physician, he must have produced such certificate to recover his pay. Wilkes-Barre v. Meyers, 113 Pa. St. 395.

2. Smith v. New York, 37 N. Y. 518; Queen v. Atlanta, 59 Ga. 318; Webster v. Kansas City, 64 Mo. 493; Wayne

Co. v. Benoit, 20 Mich. 176; 4 Am. Rep. 382; State v. Davis, 44 Mo. 131; Steubenville v. Culp, 38 Ohio St. 13; 43 Am. Rep. 417; U. S. v. Smith, 1 Bond (U. S.) 68.

The plaintiff never having filled the office or performed any of its duties, cannot recover the salary, even if the question of his right to office is settled. McVeaney v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 1 Hun (N. Y.) 35.

Nor can a per diem allowance be recovered for a period during which no services were rendered. Moren v. Blue, 47 Ala. 709.

If the prosecution was malicious, the officer can recover in tort from the wrongdoer. Brunswick v. Fahm, 60 Ga. 109.

A person is not "in office" until the oath has been taken by him, and therefore is not entitled to salary until that time, although he held the office in question at the time of the election, and was only prevented by the acts of his opponent from performing the duties of the office. Jump v. Spence, 28 Md. 1.

3. Chisholm v. Coleman, 43 Ala. 204; 94 Am. Dec. 678; Fassey v. New Orleans, 17 La. Ann. 299; State v. Comptroller-Gen'l, 9 S. Car. 259.

One cannot recover any salary of an office that was abolished before he was commissioned thereto. Bryon v. Jumel, 32 La. Ann. 442.

4. Andrews v. Portland, 79 Me. 484; Bailey v. State, 56 Miss. 637; Fitzsimmons v. Brooklyn, 102 N. Y. 536; 55 Am. Rep. 835; State v. Carr, 3 Mo. App 6; Mayor, etc., of Memphis v. Woodward, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 499. And see People v. Brennan, 30 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 417; People v. Brennan, 11 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 184; Dorsey notwithstanding it has been paid to the officer de facto filling the assumed vacancy.¹ A payment of the salary to the officer de facto, however, while the title to the office is in controversy, but before it is determined, is a good defense to a claim by the legal officer,² but the legal officer may recover all of the salary not in fact paid before the right to the office is determined, although it accrued before the determination of the title,³ and the officer de jure who was prevented from performing the duties of

v. Smyth, 28 Cal. 21; Carroll v. Siebenthaler, 37 Cal. 193. But see Gorman v. Boise Co., 1 Idaho N. S. 655; Smith v. New York, 37 N. Y. 518; 1 Daly (N. Y.) 219; People v. Police Comrs., 27 Hun (N. Y.) 261; Bastrop Co. v. Hearn, 70 Tex. 563.

Whatever may be the power of the legislature, the board of supervisors cannot contract for services for a year, and then rescind the contract and refuse to pay, by abolishing the office or refusing to have the services performed. McDaniel v. Yuba Co., 14 Cal. 444.

A city having a treasurer duly appointed and qualified under the general act of incorporation, cannot defeat his right to commissions for disbursement of the municipal funds by placing them in the hands of the mayor for disbursement. Beard v. Decatur, 64 Tex. 7; 53 Am. Rep. 735.

The occupation of an office by an intruder does not have the effect of deferring the time of payment of the salary, until the intruder is ousted. Carroll v. Siebenthaler, 37 Cal. 193.

1. Andrews v. Portland, 79 Me. 484; Mayor, etc., of Memphis v. Woodward, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 499; Savage v. Pickard, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 46. And see Williams v. Clayton (Utah, 1889), 21 Pac. Rep. 398; Dorsey v. Smith, 28 Cal. 21; Carroll v. Siebenthaler, 37 Cal. 193.

A disbursing officer has no right to assume that money appropriated by the legislature in payment of the salary attached to a named office is payable to any other than the officer de jure, and his disregard of this rule is at his own risk. Williams v. Clayton (Utah, 1889), 21 Pac. Rep. 398.

Where the substantial and responsible duties of the collection of back taxes were performed by one collector, while the actual payment was made to his successor, the former is entitled to the statutory fees. Watson v. Schnecko, 13 Mo. App. 208.

2. Andrews v. Portland, 79 Me. 484; McVeany v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 80 N. Y. 185; 36 Am. Rep. 600; Saline Co. v. Anderson, 20 Kan. 298; 27 Am. Rep. 171; Schloss v. Hewlett, 81 Ala. 266; Shaw v. Pima Co. (Arizona, 1888), 18 Pac. Rep. 273; In re Havird (Idaho, 1890), 24 Pac. Rep. 542; Wheatley v. Covington, 11 Bush (Ky.) 18; Wayne Co. v. Benoit, 20 Mich. 176; 4 Am. Rep. 382; Parker v. Dakota Co., 4 Minn. 59; McAffee v. Russell, 29 Miss. 84; Dickerson v. Butler, 27 Mo. App. 9; Terhune v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 88 N. Y. 247; Dolan v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 274; 23 Am. Rep. 168; Hannon v. Grizzard, 96 N. Car. 293; Selby v. Portland, 14 Oregon 243; 58 Am. Rep. 307; Luzerne Co. v. Trimmer, 95 Pa. St. 97; and see People v. Brennan, 1 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 184; People v. Brennan, 30 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 417.

The public is not liable for the damage sustained by an officer by his loss of the fees and emoluments of the office, although it is judicially determined that he was entitled to the office, and although the ad interim incumbent is insolvent, so that such fees and emoluments cannot be recovered from him. Hannon v. Grizzard, 96 N. Car. 293; and see Saline Co. v. Anderson, 20 Kan. 298; 27 Am. Rep. 291.

The rule is the same, whether the compensation is by fixed fees payable from the treasury for the specific service rendered, or by an actual salary payable at recurring periods, and it is immaterial whether the office is held by appointment or election. McVeany v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 80 N. Y. 185.

3. Andrews v. Portland, 79 Me. 484; McVeany v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 80 N. Y. 185; 36 Am. Rep. 600.

An officer de facto cannot recover for the salary of the office to which he would have been entitled if he had been an officer de jure, even though he faithfully discharged its duties. McCue v. Wapello Co., 56 Iowa 691; 41

the office may recover of the de facto officer who performed the duties, the salary which he had drawn while performing them.¹ Where an officer has been prevented, through no fault of his own, from performing the duties of his office, and has in the meantime earned wages in another and different employment, he cannot be compelled, in an action to recover his unpaid salary, to deduct the amount so earned.²

No officer is empowered to pay himself his salary, or to offset a demand made against him for moneys collected by him in his official capacity against an amount due him on account of salary; his duty is to discharge the obligations of his office according to the terms of his acceptance, and get his pay as other officers get theirs.³ But payment may be made to an officer whose salary is

Am. Rep. 134; Matthews v. Copiah Co., 53 Miss. 715; 27 Am. Rep. 715; Dolan v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 274; 36 Am. Rep. 168.

1. Andrews v. Portland, 79 Me. 484; Nichols v. McLean, 101 N. Y. 526; 54 Am. Rep. 730; Saline Co. v. Anderson, 20 Kan. 298; 27 Am. Rep. 171; Mayfield v. Moore, 53 Ill. 428; 5 Am. Rep. 52; Glasscock v. Lyons, 20 Ind. 1; 83 Am. Dec. 299; People v. Miller, 24 Mich. 458; Wayne Co. v. Benoit, 20 Mich. 176; 4 Am. Rep. 382; Dolan v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 274; 23 Am. Rep. 168; Rule v. Tait, 38 Kan. 765; Bier v. Gorrell, 30 W. Va. 95; Hunter v. Chandler, 45 Mo. 452. See also Douglas v. State, 31 Ind. 429; U. S. v. Addison, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 291. But see Stuhr v. Curren, 44 N. J. L. 181; and see DE FACTO OFFICERS, vol. 5, p. 93.

In an action by a de jure officer against a person wrongfully in possession of the office for fees received by the incumbent, plaintiff is entitled to recover the entire amount received by defendant, though the value of defendant's services equals the fees received. Wenner v. Smith, 4 Utah 238.

But where the legislature made an appropriation for certain services to be performed by the Secretary of State, and a part of the services were performed by the secretary then in office, and a part by his successor, the latter cannot maintain an action for money had and received against the former, for the excess which he had received over his share of the appropriation; his claim is against the State, and the State can compel the prior incumbent to restore any excess. Trumbull v. Campbell, 8 Ill. 502.

2. Fitzsimmons v. Brooklyn, 102 N.

Y. 536; 55 Am. Rep. 835; Andrews v. Portland, 79 Me. 484; and see Adams v. Justices, 21 Ga. 206.

There is no contract between an officer and the State or municipality, by force of which salary is payable. It belongs to him as an incident of his office, and he is entitled to its full amount, not by force of any contract but because the law attaches it to the office, and there is no question of breach of contract or resultant damages. Fitzsimmons v. Brooklyn, 102 N. Y. 536; 55 Am. Rep. 835.

But an officer who knowingly accepts an appointment to office tendered at a specified salary, and performed the duties and drew the promised salary, cannot proceed to compel payment of an additional sum on the ground that the salary attached by law to the position was higher than that actually allowed. People v. Board of Police, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 653.

3. New Orleans v. Finnerty, 27 La. Ann. 681; 21 Am. Rep. 569; In re Clerks' Fees, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 593; Delaware Co. v. Griffin, 17 Iowa 166. And see U. S. v. Wendell, 2 Cliff. (U. S.) 340; State v. Boyd, 19 Nev. 356; Cullom v. Dolloff, 94 Ill. 330.

Fees, though collected without legal authority by the commissioner of immigration in pursuance of the provisions of California Pol. Code, § 2965, as construed by him for administering oaths to masters of vessels, belong to the State, and not to him, as they were collected under color of office. People v. Van Ness, 79 Cal. 84.

Payable in What—Under the Arkansas statutes making treasurers' certificates receivable in payment of State taxes, the salaries and fees of all State, county, town, or other officers provided for by constitutional provision without a legislative appropriation therefor,¹ and however provided for, the compensation of public officers depends upon general and continuing laws, irrespective of the annual appropriation acts.² A payment made or a credit given to the officer on account of salary cannot be revoked or recovered by the government unless it was originally given or made through fraud, imposition, or mistake.³

within the State, may be paid in treasurers' certificates. Ramsey v. Cox, 28 Ark. 366.

A foreign minister of the United States is entitled to receive his salary in the money of the United States or its actual market equivalent. Clay v. U. S., 8 Ct. of Cl. 210.

When Payable.—Where the terms of a law or resolution prescribing the salary of a public or corporate officer, fix it at a certain rate per month, the salary becomes due and payable monthly, in the absence of some other provision prescribing a time for payment. Carroll v. Seibenthaler, 37 Cal. 193. But where an officer is elected for a year, with a salary fixed at a certain sum per month, the Statute of Limitations does not run against his claim for services until the end of the year. Rosborough v. Shasta River Canal Co., 22 Cal. 556.

1. State v. Weston, 6 Neb. 16; Nichols v. Comptroller, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 154; Myers v. English, 9 Cal. 341; Mitchell v. U. S., 18 Ct. of Cl. 281; and see State v. Hickman (Mont. 1890), 23 Pac. Rep. 740. But see Ex parte Carroll, 10 Ark. 38; Chisholme v. McGehee, 41 Ala. 192.

If the salary of a public officer is fixed and the time of payment prescribed by law, no special annual appropriation is necessary to authorize the auditor to issue his warrant for its payment. Reynolds v. Taylor, 43 Ala. 420. But see State v. Weston, 6 Neb. 16.

In Louisiana, warrants for the salaries of constitutional officers, the amounts of which salaries are fixed by the Louisiana Const., are entitled to payment from the general fund of the State, by preference and priority over all other warrants against such funds. State v. Burke, 34 La. Ann. 404.

But when the appropriations for the expenses of the National Board of Health are exhausted, the liability of the United States for salaries ceases. Dunwoody v. U. S., 22 Ct. of Cl. 269.

2. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 22; Humbert v. Dunn, 84 Cal. 57; Foun- tain v. Mayor, etc., of Jackson, 50 Mich. 260; Swann v. Buck, 40 Miss. 268; State v. Kenney (Mont. 1890), 23 Pac. Rep. 733; Kip v. Buffalo, 123 N. Y. 152; French v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 419. See State v. Burke, 34 La. Ann. 548; Baggett v. Dunn, 69 Cal. 75; Bell v. U. S., 35 Fed. Rep. 889; State v. Bloxham (Fla. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 873. But see Hartman v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 23 Hun (N. Y.) 586; Gamble v. Philadelphia, 14 Phila. (Pa.) 223; Mathewson v. Tripp, 14 R. I. 587.

The provision of U. S. Const., art. 1, § 9, cl. 7, that "no money shall be drawn from the treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law," is exclusively a direction to the officers of the treasury; it neither controls courts nor prohibits the creation of legal liabilities. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 22.

Where a congressional appropriation act contains no intimation that the amount appropriated for the compensation of a public officer whose salary is fixed by law is to be in full satisfaction, the salary is not reduced, and he may recover the balance from the United States. Langston v. U. S., 21 Ct. of Cl. 10; U. S. v. Langston, 118 U. S. 389.

3. U. S. v. Kuhn, 3 Cranch (C. C.) 410; McGinnis v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 6 Daly (N. Y.) 416; Richland Co. v. Miller, 16 S. Car. 236; Hendrick v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 88. And see State v. Hinkson, 7 Mo. 353; Philadelphia v. Gilbert, 14 Phila. (Pa.) 212.

A county superintendent's acceptance of the supervisors' allowance of part of the itemized claims presented by him for his services does not create a presumption of acceptance by him in full of all claims, he not being shown to know that the residue had been rejected by the board. Fulton v. Monona Co., 47 Iowa 622. But see State v. Thompson, 37 Mo. 87.

An officer who makes out his bills for his services, Sundays excepted, cannot afterwards recover for the Sundays. Pray v. U. S., 106 U. S. 594.

The assignment of his salary by a public officer before it becomes due is contrary to public policy and void;¹ and money due by the government to its officers or agents for services rendered by them as such, while it remains in the hands of the government or in the keeping of its disbursing agents, is not liable to be attached or seized by the creditors of those having such claims upon the government,² and whenever an officer holds money or property merely as the agent of the law, he cannot be subjected to attachment³ or garnish-

1. Bangs v. Dunn, 66 Cal. 72; Schloss v. Hewlett, 81 Ala. 266; King v. Hawkins (Arizona, 1888), 16 Pac. Rep. 434; Field v. Chipley, 79 Ky. 260; 42 Am. Rep. 215; Beal v. McVicker, 8 Mo. App. 202; Bliss v. Lawrence, 58 N. Y. 442; 17 Am. Rep. 273; Billings v. O'Brien, 45 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 392; Shannon v. Bruner, 36 Fed. Rep. 147. But see Brackett v. Blake, 7 Met. (Mass.) 335; 41 Am. Dec. 442; Conway v. Cutting, 51 N. H. 407; State v. Hastings, 15 Wis. 78; Mulhall v. Quinn, 1 Gray (Mass.) 105; 61 Am. Dec. 414; Macomber v. Doane, 2 Allen (Mass.) 541; and see ASSIGNMENTS, vol. 1, p. 826.

In People v. Dayton, 50 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 143, it was held that the fees of a public officer earned or unearned, are capable of assignment, the court distinguishing the case from an assignment of a salary of a public officer not earned at the time of the assignment, upon the ground that unearned fees depend for their allowances upon the performance of the service.

The public service is protected by protecting those engaged in performing public duties, and this not upon the ground of their private interest, but upon that of the necessity of securing the sufficiency of the public service by seeing to it that the funds provided for its maintenance would be received by those who are to perform the work at such periods as the law has appointed for their payment. Bliss v. Lawrence, 58 N. Y. 442; 17 Am. Rep. 273.

2. Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Root, 8 Md. 95; 63 Am. Dec. 692; Mayor, etc., of Mobile v. Rowland, 26 Ala. 498; Clark v. Mobile School Comrs., 36 Ala. 621; McMeekin v. State, 9 Ark. 553; Ward v. Hartford Co., 12 Conn. 404; Merwin v. Chicago, 45 Ill. 133; 92 Am. Dec. 204; Triebel v. Colburn, 64 Ill. 376; Hightower v. Slaton, 54 Ga. 108; 21 Am. Rep. 273; Caiaaker v. Mathews, 25 Ga. 571; Divine v. Harvie,

7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 439; 18 Am. Dec. 194; Dewey v. Garvey, 130 Mass. 86; Troy, etc., R. Co. v. Com., 127 Mass. 43; Chealy v. Brewer, 7 Mass. 259; Hawthorn v. St. Louis, 11 Mo. 59; 47 Am. Dec. 141; School Dist. No. 4 v. Gage, 39 Mich. 484; 33 Am. Dec. 421; Ladd v. Sale, 57 N. H. 210; Bulkley v. Eckert, 3 Pa. St. 368; 45 Am. Dec. 650; Memphis v. Laski, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 511; 24 Am. Rep. 327; Bank of Tenn. v. Dibrell, 3 Sneed (Tenn.) 379; Tracy v. Hornbuckle, 8 Bush (Ky.) 336; Merrill v. Campbell, 49 Wis. 535; 35 Am. Rep. 785; Buchanan v. Alexander, 4 How. (U. S.) 20; Hodgson v. Dexter, 1 Cranch (U. S.) 345; and see GARNISHMENT, vol. 8, p. 1096.

The wages, fees, or salary of a county auditor due to him from his county, cannot be subjected to the payment of his debts by proceedings supplementary to execution. Wallace v. Lawyer, 54 Ind. 501; 23 Am. Rep. 661.

In Newark v. Funk, 15 Ohio St. 462, it was held that salaries of the officers of incorporate cities due and unpaid, may be subjected by judgment creditors of such officers to the payment of their judgments. But this case seems to have been decided upon the peculiar wording of the statute. See Wallace v. Lawyer, 54 Ind. 501; 23 Am. Rep. 661.

3. Stillman v. Isham, 11 Conn. 124; Spalding v. Imlay, 1 Root (Conn.) 551; Reddick v. Smith, 4 Ill. 451; Chicago v. Hasley, 25 Ill. 485; Morris v. Penniman, 14 Gray (Mass.) 220; 74 Am. Dec. 675; Robinson v. Howard, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 257; Wilder v. Bailey, 3 Mass. 289; Zurcher v. Magee, 2 Ala. 255; Marvin v. Hawley, 9 Mo. 382; Ladd v. Gale, 57 N. H. 210; Ross v. Clark, 1 Dall. (Pa.) 254; Erie v. Knapp, 29 Pa. St. 173; Dawson v. Holcomb, 1 Ohio 275; 13 Am. Dec. 618; Alston v. Clay, 2 Hayw. (N. Car.) 171.

Surplus proceeds of land of an at-ment¹ on account thereof, but if anything arises to change this relation from an official obligation to a personal liability, he would then become amenable to such process.²

tachment debtor, sold for non-payment of taxes, are not liable to attachment in the hands of the county treasurer. Wilson v. Ridgely, 46 Md. 235.

A body politic and incorporate cannot be made a defendant in proceedings supplementary to execution, to answer to its indebtedness to an execution debtor. Wallace v. Lawyer, 54 Ind. 501; 23 Am. Rep. 661.

In Bray v. Wallingford, 20 Conn. 416, it was held that a debt due to a territorial corporation, capable of contracting debts, and liable to be sued for them, may be secured by process of foreign attachment.

1. Lightner v. Steinagel, 33 Ill. 511; 85 Am. Dec. 292; Merwin v. Chicago, 45 Ill. 133; 92 Am. Dec. 204; Millison v. Fisk, 43 Ill. 117; Field v. Jones, 11 Ga. 413; Columbian Book Co. v. DeGolyer, 115 Mass. 67; Chealy v. Brewer, 7 Mass. 259; People v. Brooks, 40 Mich. 333; 29 Am. Rep. 534; McDougal v. Hennepin Co., 4 Minn. 184; Hunt v. Stevens, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 365; Corbyn v. Bollman, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 342; Drane v. McGavock, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 132; Taylor v. Gillean, 23 Tex. 508; Aumann v. Black, 15 W. Va. 773; Hill v. La Crosse, etc., R. Co., 14 Wis. 291; 80 Am. Dec. 873. But see Clark v. Boggs, 6 Ala. 809; 41 Am. Dec. 85. And see GARNISHMENT, vol. 8, p. 1096.

The same rule applies to government and to public corporations. Merwin v. Chicago, 45 Ill. 133; 92 Am. Dec. 204; Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Root, 8 Md. 102; 63 Am. Dec. 692; Bulkley v. Eckert, 3 Pa. St. 368; 45 Am. Dec. 650; Jenks v. Osceola Tp., 45 Iowa 554; Ward v. Hartford Co., 12 Conn. 404; Las Animas Co. v. Bond, 3 Colo. 411; McDougal v. Hennepin Co., 4 Minn. 184; Fortune v. St. Louis, 23 Mo. 239; State v. Eberly, 12 Neb. 619; People v. Mayor, etc., of Omaha, 2 Neb. 166; Burnham v. Fond du Lac, 15 Wis. 193; Erie v. Knapp, 29 Pa. St. 173; Bradley v. Richmond, 6 Vt. 121; Buffham v. Racine, 26 Wis. 449; Memphis v. Laski, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 511; 24 Am. Rep. 327; Merrell v. Campbell, 49 Wis. 535; 35 Am. Rep. 785. And see GARNISHMENT, vol. 8, p. 1096.

The exemption of State officers from garnishment is based in part at least, upon the immunity of the State from being sued. See Lodor v. Baker, 39 N. J. L. 49; Bank of Tenn. v. Dibrell, 3 Sneed (Tenn.) 379. And the same doctrine applies with equal if not greater force to the officers of the United States. Divine v. Harvie, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 439; 18 Am. Dec. 194.

The exemption of municipal corporations from such process is given for reasons of public policy. The corporation existing for the public good, its officers should not be harassed and drawn from their post of duty to appear in suits against the many employes which it must owe from time to time. Merrell v. Campbell, 49 Wis. 535; 35 Am. Rep. 785; People v. Mayor of Omaha, 2 Neb. 166; Merwin v. Chicago, 45 Ill. 133; 92 Am. Dec. 204.

In Jenks v. Osceola Tp., 45 Iowa 554, it was held that the rule that municipal corporations shall not be garnished, is not limited to cases where it would interfere with the discharge of corporate duties, but is universal in its application.

In School Dist. v. Gage, 39 Mich. 484; 33 Am. Dec. 421, it was held that a school district is a municipal corporation, and cannot be garnished, even by its own consent, unless the debtor also consents. But in Las Animas v. Bond, 3 Colo. 411, it was held that the exemption from garnishment of a municipal corporation may be waived by appearance and submission to liability.

2. Lightner v. Steinagel, 33 Ill. 511; Peirce v. Carleton, 12 Ill. 358; 54 Am. Dec. 405; Weaver v. Davis, 47 Ill. 237; Triebel v. Colburn, 64 Ill. 377; King v. Moore, 6 Ala. 160; 41 Am. Dec. 44; Clymer v. Willis, 3 Cal. 363; 58 Am. Dec. 414; Langdon v. Lockett, 6 Ala. 727; 41 Am. Dec. 78; Jaquett v. Palmer, 2 Harr. (Del.) 144; First v. Miller, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 311; Watson v. Todd, 5 Mass. 271; Woodbridge v. Morse, 5 N. H. 519; Crane v. Freese, 16 N. J. L. 305; Dubois v. Dubois, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 494; Tucker v. Atkinson, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 300; 34 Am. Dec. 650; Voorhees v. Sessions, 34 Mich. 99; Gaither v. Ballew, 4 Jones (N. Car.) 488; 69 Am. Dec. 763; Adams v. Lane, 38 Vt. 640.

There is a large class of officers both under the United States government and under those of the several States, whose compensation consists of fees allowed them by the government for particular acts or services, the character of the service and the amount of the fee being designated by statute.¹ Such claims for compensation are usually required to be presented to a designated officer or board for allowance,² and do not become a liability of government until thus audited.³

2. From the Individual for Whom the Officer Acts.—A public officer for whose compensation provision is made by law cannot recover anything for official services except as so provided, even though they were performed upon special request,⁴ and even though services beyond what could be legally required are ren-

There is a distinction between a public officer and a mere agent appointed by a town to distribute money among its inhabitants, and while the former is not chargeable under trustee process, the latter is so when the corporation itself is liable. Wendell v. Pierce, 13 N. H. 502.

In Farmers' Bank v. Beatson, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 421; 28 Am. Dec. 226, it was held that an attachment lies against an individual although a receiver has been appointed, and has given bonds with respect to the debtor's estate, where such receiver has not taken possession before the levy of the attachment.

1. Owing to the fact that the compensation of this class of officers is governed entirely by statutes differing largely in different States and as to different officers, and the decisions with reference to it being in the main a mere construction of such statutes, it is found to be impracticable to attempt to deduce any general rules upon the subject; the most that can be done is to refer the reader to the statute either Federal or State by which the office was created and its duties prescribed.

2. See State v. Kenney (Mont. 1890), 23 Pac. Rep. 733; Morgan v. Buffington, 21 Mo. 549; White v. Polk Co., 17 Iowa 413; Pistorius v. Saginaw Co., 51 Mich. 125; Com. v. Pattison, 12 Phila. (Pa.) 242.

A certificate, from the speaker of the House of Representatives, fixing the pay of the general assembly and their officers, to the effect that a certain sum is due a member of the general assembly, for his services as such, is not conclusive upon the auditor. He has a right to examine whether it is correct. Morgan v. Buffington, 21 Mo. 549.

The allowance of compensation to an officer of the court, in addition to the sum allowed by law, and not to exceed a certain sum, as the judge may deem just and proper, is a judicial not a clerical act, which must be evidenced by some order entered under the authority of the judge, and purporting to be so. Mayor, etc., of Baltimore v. Baltimore Co., 19 Md. 554.

In fixing the fees allowed, to a surrogate for auditing and stating the accounts of executors, etc., where the matter is left to the discretion of the court, a fair and just compensation for the work done will be allowed. Pomerooy v. Mills, 35 N. J. Eq. 442.

Officers compensated by a commission, are, in the absence of agreement, entitled to share equally, although the labor be not equally shared. White v. Bullock, 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 578.

3. See Titus v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 276; White v. Polk Co., 17 Iowa 413; Com. v. Pattison, 12 Phila. (Pa.) 242.

The district attorney-general is entitled to a fee of $2.50 in each case, for which the county is liable, after execution against the clerk returned nulla bona. Wright v. Shelby Co., 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 145.

A resolution of the senate requiring its president and its secretary to certify the accounts of its duly elected and appointed officers for their per diem compensation during the recess, is not a law within the meaning of a constitutional provision declaring that no money shall be drawn from the treasury but in pursuance of an appropriation made by law. Reynolds v. Blue, 47 Ala. 711.

4. Brophy v. Marble, 118 Mass. 549; Pool v. Boston, 5 Cush. (Mass.)

dered.¹ If the fees which an officer shall receive are prescribed by statute which omits to provide when, how, or by whom they shall be paid, the person at whose request the service is rendered, is liable,² and the officer is entitled to payment as the services are performed.³ The law will not tolerate the employment of a public officer to discharge his plain official duty at a compensation other or different from, or in addition to the compensation given him by law for his official services,⁴ though extra 219; Baldwin v. Kouns, 81 Ala. 272; Evans v. Trenton, 24 N. J. L. 764; Smith v. Smith, 1 Bailey (S. Car.) 70; Andrews v. U. S., 2 Story (U. S.) 202; Conover v. U. S., 21 How. (U. S.) 463.

That an express promise to pay had been made by the individual for whom the services were rendered is immaterial, such a promise being void. Hatch v. Mann, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 44.

1. Hatch v. Mann, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 44.

2. Baldwin v. Kouns, 81 Ala. 272; Moore v. Porter, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 100; Goodrich v. U. S., 42 Fed. Rep. 392; Caldwell v. Jackson, 7 Cranch (U. S.) 276; and see Kitchell v. Madison Co., 5 Ill. 163; Craig v. Lobb, 12 Leigh (Va.) 627; Erwin v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 470; Stuart v. Walker, 10 Minn. 296.

"Fees" are to be distinguished from "costs." Costs are an allowance to a party, incidental to a judgment; fees are a compensation to public officers for services rendered to individuals. Tillman v. Wood, 58 Ala. 578.

Although the clerk may recover his fees of the successful party in an action of law when unable to collect them of the adverse party, he cannot recover them of the sureties upon the prosecution bond when the plaintiff is successful. Carren v. Breed, 2 Coldw. (Tenn.) 465. See also Ewing v. Lusk, 4 Yerg. (Tenn.) 459.

In Indiana the fees of a coroner for holding an inquest, or making a post-mortem examination, must be collected of the estate of the deceased person, and not merely of the property found with the dead body, unless such estate be insufficient to pay them, and in such case they may be collected of the county. Bartholomew v. Bryan, 22 Ind. 397.

3. Baldwin v. Kouns, 81 Ala. 272; Dickerson v. Shelby, 2 Greene (Iowa) 460; McDonald v. Crusen, 2 Oregon 258; Cavender v. Cavender, 3 McCrary

(U. S.) 383. And see Baldwin v. Cash, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 427; People v. Baldwin, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 308.

An officer may, if he so desires, require the prepayment of fees for the service demanded. Ripley v. Gifford, 11 Iowa 367; McKay v. Maloy, 53 Iowa 33; Dickerson v. Shelby, 2 Greene (Iowa) 460; McDonald v. Crusen, 2 Oregon 258.

The officer rendering the services may be required to collect his fees. State v. Judges, 21 Ohio St. 1.

A prothonotary cannot bring an action to recover his fees in a suit while it is pending. Lyon v. McManus, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 167.

The payment of the clerk's costs in South Carolina must be postponed until the termination of the suit, such being the proper construction of the "fee bill" of 1839. Hyams v. Boyce, 1 McMull. (S. Car.) 95.

The prothonotary, in an action against an attorney to recover his fees, is entitled to recover interest upon the taxes and fees for issuing writs from the time of the issue, unless there is an agreement for credit, and then, from the time of the credit. Cone v. Donaldson, 47 Pa. St. 363.

4. Vandercook v. Williams, 106 Ind. 345; Fort Wayne v. Lehr, 88 Ind. 62; Preston v. Bacon, 4 Conn. 471; Carroll v. Tyler, 2 Har. & G. (Md.) 54; Palo Alto Co. v. Burlingame, 71 Iowa 201; Wilcoxson v. Andrews, 66 Mich. 553; Peck v. Bank, 51 Mich. 353; Willemin v. Bateson, 63 Mich. 309; Burk v. Webb, 32 Mich. 174; Libby v. Anoka Co., 38 Minn. 448; State v. Auditor, 32 Mo. 222; Hubbard v. Texas Co., 101 Mo. 210; State v. Silver, 9 Neb. 85; Mallory v. Cortland Co., 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 531; Thomas v. Philadelphia Co., 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 64; Hallman v. Campbell, 57 Tex. 54; Van Duzee v. U. S., 41 Fed. Rep. 571. And see Miarna Co. v. Jay, 18 Ind. 423; Church v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 33 Minn. 410; Patty v. Sparkman, 58 Miss. 76; Cohen v. Com.

allowances may be made them for services not rendered by them as officers, but in their private characters.¹ If the law fixes no compensation for the services of an officer it is competent for the parties to agree on a price,² and if not fixed and settled at the time the services were required it would be what they were reasonably worth.³ For services rendered, a public officer may retain any papers or documents in his possession, in and about which he has bestowed labor until the legal fee therefor or the reasonable value thereof shall be paid.⁴ A public officer cannot legally claim a reward offered by an individual for the performance of an act which it was his official duty to perform,⁵ but an officer may perform services which it is not his official duty to 6 Pa. St. 111; State v. Hardreader, 12 Lea (Tenn.) 456.

The penalty provided by the Pennsylvania act of March 28, 1814, § 26, upon any officer taking greater or other fees than those laid down by said act, cannot be imposed upon officers who have no right to charge fees of any kind. Garber v. Conner, 98 Pa. St. 551.

Where, under instructions from the district attorney, the commissioner draws complaints and issues warrants in more than one proceeding against the same party for violation of the same provision of law, he is entitled to fees for each proceeding, and separate fees for separate acknowledgments of the same bond in criminal cases. Barber v. U. S., 35 Fed. Rep. 886.

1. See Hatch v. Mann, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 44; Carroll v. Tyler, 2 Har. & G. (Md.) 54; Irwin v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 470.

2. Leavenworth Co. v. Keller, 6 Kan. 510; and see Ripley v. Gifford, 11 Iowa 367; State v. Allen, 23 Neb. 451; Davis v. Munson, 43 Vt. 676; 5 Am. Rep. 315.

The Illinois Constitution abrogated all prior special statutes relating to the fees and compensation of township and county officers; but the officers in counties where such special acts were in force were not thereby deprived of all claim for fees, but remitted to the general law on the subject, which had never been repealed. Jefferson Co. v. Jones, 63 Ill. 531.

3. Ripley v. Gifford, 11 Iowa 367; Leavenworth Co. v. Keller, 6 Kan. 510; State v. Allen, 23 Neb. 451; Henry v. Tilson, 17 Vt. 479; In re Moy Chee Kee, 33 Fed. Rep. 377; U. S. v. Hill, 120 U. S. 169; and see Com. v. Rodes, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 171; In re Woodbury, 17 Blatchf. (U. S.) 517; Erwin v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 470; In re Clerks' Fees, Taney's Dec. (U. S.) 453; In re Vermeule, 10 Ben. (U. S.) 1.

For services, done by a surveyor under an order of court, for which the law has not fixed the fees, the court has power to fix them, and, on motion, to correct an overcharge. Jones v. Kenny, Hard. (Ky.) 103.

An officer is to be allowed a fair and just compensation for the custody of property attached by him, to be determined by the court in the exercise of a sound discretion. Hesse v. Kimm, 14 Mo. 395.

The clerk of the supreme court is not bound to render his services gratuitously to a party whom the judge of the court below has allowed to appeal without giving the bond required by law. Martin v. Chasteen, 75 N. Car. 96.

4. Ripley v. Gifford, 11 Iowa 367; Dickerson v. Shelby, 2 Greene (Iowa) 460; McKay v. Maloy, 53 Iowa 33.

Where a clerk received a paper for filing, and indorsed on it "not filed for want of funds for fees," and the date, such act was held to be a good filing of the paper upon the date indorsed upon it. McDonald v. Crusen, 2 Oregon 258.

5. Hayden v. Souger, 56 Ind. 42; 26 Am. Rep. 1; Marking v. Needy, 8 Bush (Ky.) 22; Day v. Putnam Ins. Co., 16 Minn. 408; Warner v. Grace, 14 Minn. 487; Kick v. Merry, 23 Mo. 72; 66 Am. Dec. 658; City Bank v. Bangs, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 95; Hatch v. Mann, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 45; Gilmore v. Lewis, 12 Ohio 281; Rea v. Smith, 2 Handy (Ohio) 193; Smith v. Whildin, 10 Pa. St. 39; 49 Am. Dec. 572; Stamper v. Temple, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 113; 4 Am. Dec. 296; Brown perform, and for such services he may receive a reward.¹ A public officer who demands and takes, as fees for his services, what is not authorized, or more than is allowed by law, though paid without protest, may be compelled to make restitution,² and no compensation can be recovered for services rendered under an agreement void as against public policy, even at the legal rate; the whole transaction is covered by the same taint, and must be treated as beyond the protection of the courts.³

3. Reimbursement and Indemnity.—Public officers acting faithfully and without fault and pursuant to authority are entitled to be reimbursed for anything reasonably and necessarily dis-

v. Godfrey, 33 Vt. 120; Davis v. Munson, 43 Vt. 676; 5 Am. Rep. 315.

An officer cannot always be considered an informer merely because as an officer he acquires information useful to the government if this knowledge is acquired in the ordinary discharge of his duty touching the very subject-matter, or under a special retainer to investigate that matter. U. S. v. Barrels of Distilled Spirits, 1 Low. (U. S.) 244. And see In re Cigars, 1 Low. (U. S.) 22.

1. Warner v. Grace, 14 Minn. 487; Day v. Putnam Ins. Co., 16 Minn. 408; Morrell v. Quarles, 35 Ala. 544; Hayden v. Souger, 56 Ind. 22; 26 Am. Rep. 1; Gregg v. Pierce, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 387; State Bank v. Bangs, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 95; Pille v. New Orleans, 19 La. Ann. 274; Murphy v. New Orleans, 11 La. Ann. 323; Russell v. Stewart, 44 Vt. 170; Davis v. Munson, 43 Vt. 676; 5 Am. Rep. 315. And see U. S. v. Barrels of Distilled Spirits, 1 Low. (U. S.) 244.

It is not necessary, in order to entitle officers of the revenue cutter to a portion of the proceeds of a forfeiture, that they should, at the time of giving information, make claim to part of the forfeiture, or that they should afterwards take part in the prosecution; neither is it necessary that their commissions be given in evidence; it is sufficient for them to show that they acted on board as officers. Sawyer v. Steele, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 465.

2. American Steamship Co. v. Young, 89 Pa. St. 186; 33 Am. Rep. 748; Palo Alto Co. v. Burlingame, 71 Iowa 201. And see Walker v. Ham, 2 N. H. 238; Prior v. Craig, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 44; Reed v. Cist, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 183; American, etc., F. Ins. Co. v. Britton, 8 Bosw. (N. Y.) 148; State v.

Kelly, 32 Ohio St. 421; Ogden v. Maxwell, 3 Blatchf. (U. S.) 319.

A clerk of court is not entitled to the per centum allowed by law for receiving, keeping, and disbursing money, when no money has been actually received by him, and if, under threat of legal proceedings to recover a per centum, a due bill is given him for the amount, he cannot maintain an action upon the due-bill. Jackson v. Siglin, 10 Oregon 93.

Where the question at issue is whether plaintiff, as county treasurer, received compensation in excess of the statutory limit of $2,000 per annum, it is proper to allow him to testify that he received about "$600 per annum," without producing the minutes of the commissioners' court. Llano Co. v. Moore, 77 Tex. 515.

Under New York Laws 1873, ch. 335, § 96, providing that no officer except the city marshal shall receive fees, etc., it is no defense to an action to compel a city officer to account for the fees received by him, that no salary has ever been attached to his office. Mayor, etc., of N. Y. v. Kent, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 483.

Under a law entitling the Secretary of State to a fee "for filing every bond or other instrument in writing of a public nature," he cannot charge for filing the returns of marriages, births and deaths. State v. Kelsey, 44 N. J. L. 1.

3. Willemín v. Bateson, 63 Mich. 309; Wilcoxson v. Andrews, 66 Mich. 553; Hawkeye Ins. Co. v. Brainard, 72 Iowa 122.

An act providing that any officer charging excessive fees shall forfeit ten times the amount of the excess "to the party injured," renders the clerk liable to the county accordingly. Richland Co. v. Miller, 16 S. Car. 244.

bursed by them in executing the duties of their offices,¹ and the public or a public corporation has power to indemnify their officers and agents against any charge or liability they may incur in the bona fide discharge of their duty, even though their acts were illegal,² or they had mistaken their legal rights and authority.³ But where the corporation has no duty to perform, no rights to defend, no interests to protect and no pecuniary or corporate concern in the subject-matter connected with the discharge of the duties of the officer, it has no power to indemnify him.⁴

1. Powell v. Newburgh, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 284; Bright v. Chenango Co., 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 242; Harris v. Chickasaw Co., 77 Iowa 345; Lancaster Co. v. Brinthal, 29 Pa. St. 38; U. S. v. Flanders, 112 U. S. 88; People v. Monroe Co., 15 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 225; Andrews v. U. S., 2 Story (U. S.) 202; U. S. v. Stowe, 19 Fed. Rep. 807; McCalmont v. Allegheny Co., 29 Pa. St. 417; Burr v. U. S., 2 Ct. of Cl. 217; Barnett v. Patterson, 48 N. J. L. 395; and see Morris v. State, 96 Ind. 597; U. S. v. Smith, 35 Fed. Rep. 490; Eyster v. Rineman, 11 Pa. St. 147; Powell v. U. S., 1 Ct. of Cl. 400; Brattleboro v. Stratton, 24 Vt. 306; People v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 32 N. Y. 473; Wentworth v. U. S., 2 Story (U. S.) 452; Stilwell v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 19 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 376; Daggett v. Ford Co., 99 Ill. 334.

No reimbursement can be had for expenses caused by the officer's own default or negligence, or violation of duty. Godman v. Meixsel, 65 Ind. 32; Martland v. Martin, 86 Pa. St. 120.

The term "salary," of itself, imports a compensation for personal services, and not the repayment of moneys expended in the discharge of the duties of an office. Sniffen v. New York, 4 Sandf. (N. Y.) 163.

Where a paymaster had government funds stolen from his possession without any fault on his part, judicious expenditures made by him in the recovery of such stolen funds should not fall on him, but should be borne by the government. Glenn's Case, 4 Ct. of Cl. 501.

The language of a statute, that the salaries fixed "shall be in full for all services," excludes the idea that the legislature intended to allow a former provision for the reimbursement of expenses to stand. State v. Trousdale, 16 Nev. 357.

De Facto Officer.—A person acting as jailer under apparent title to the office, will be allowed the amount found due her by the circuit court for feeding prisoners. Atchison Co. v. Lucas, 83 Ky. 451.

2. Cushing v. Stoughton, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 389; Bancroft v. Lynnfield, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 566; Nelson v. Milford, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 18; Fuller v. Groton, 11 Gray (Mass.) 340; Hadsell v. Hancock, 3 Gray (Mass.) 526; Lawrence v. McAlvin, 109 Mass. 311; Friend v. Gilbert, 108 Mass. 408; Babbitt v. Savoy, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 530; People v. Bay Co., 38 Mich. 307; Pike v. Middleton, 12 N. H. 278; State v. Hammon-ton, 38 N. J. L. 430; 20 Am. Rep. 404; State v. Hudson Co., 37 N. J. L. 269; Gove v. Epping, 41 N. H. 545; Merrill v. Plainfield, 45 N. H. 134; Gregory v. Bridgeport, 41 Conn. 76; 19 Am. Rep. 458; Minot v. West Roxbury, 112 Mass. 1; 17 Am. Rep. 52; Sherman v. Carr, 8 R. I. 431; Briggs v. Whipple, 6 Vt. 95.

Moneys are "necessarily expended" within the meaning of the statute for the protection of county officers, when the expenditures are not only needful and proper, as contradistinguished from those that are needless and improvident, but also reasonable, appropriate and customary in the execution of the particular official duty. People v. New York, 32 N. Y. 473.

While a sheriff is within the constitutional provision that the salary or emoluments of a public officer shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office, a statute fixing his compensation for boarding prisoners, where, before its enactment, there was no fixed compensation therefor, is not unconstitutional. Peeling v. York Co., 113 Pa. St. 108.

3. Bancroft v. Lynnfield, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 566; Cushing v. Stoughton, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 389; State v. Hammon-ton, 38 N. J. L. 430; 20 Am. Rep. 404; Briggs v. Whipple, 6 Vt. 95.

4. Gregory v. Bridgeport, 41 Conn.

An agreement to indemnify an officer against the consequences of his acts, made by an individual for whom he is acting is valid if the parties are in good faith seeking to enforce a legal right and are actuated by no improper motive.¹ But a promise to indemnify an officer for known acts of trespass or for acts known to be illegal cannot be enforced,² and promises to indemnify made as an inducement to a known and voluntary violation of duty are in 76; 19 Am. Rep. 458; Pearson v. Bailey, 2 Ill. 507; Vincent v. Nantucket, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 105; Stetson v. Kempton, 13 Mass. 272; 7 Am. Dec. 145; Parsons v. Goshen, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 396; Merrill v. Plainfield, 45 N. H. 126; Grove v. Epping; 41 N. H. 545; Halstead v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 3 N. Y. 430; People v. Lawrence, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 244; Muirhead v. U. S., 13 Ct. of Cl. 251; U. S. v. Jarvis, Davies (U. S.), 274. And see State v. Brewer, 59 Ala. 130; Nourse v. Warren Co., 17 Ind. 135; Crawford Co. v. Spenny, 21 Ill. 288; Morgan Co. v. Johnson, 31 Ind. 463; Davis Co. v. Riley Co., 9 Kan. 635; Gordon Co. v. Harris, 81 Ga. 719; Minot v. West Roxbury, 112 Mass. 1; 17 Am. Rep. 52.

Where a statute appropriates a certain sum for the traveling expenses of certain public officers, the comptroller cannot draw his warrant for a further sum within the period covered by the appropriation. Marshall v. Dunn, 69 Cal. 223.

A collector is reimbursed by the sale of lands for the printer's fees; he has no legal claim for any of these fees except for the portion charged on lands forfeited to the State. People v. Long, 13 Ill. 629.

In Illinois the governor may offer a reward on the part of the State for the apprehension of criminals; but sheriffs cannot do so and make the counties liable excepting for the apprehension of horse thieves. Crawford Co. v. Spenny, 21 Ill. 288.

1. Stark v. Raney, 18 Cal. 622; Wolfe v. McClure, 79 Ill. 564; Stanton v. McMullen, 7 Ill. App. 326; Anderson v. Farns, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 343; Davis v. Tibbats, 7 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 264; Jones v. Henry, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 427; Shotwell v. Hamblin, 23 Miss. 156; 55 Am. Dec. 83; Forniquet v. Tegarden, 24 Miss. 96; Moore v. Allen, 25 Miss. 363; Acheson v. Miller, 2 Ohio St. 203; 59 Am. Dec. 663; Miller v. Rhoades, 20 Ohio St. 494; Marsh v. Gold, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 284; Train v. Gold, 5 Pick.

(Mass.) 380; Foster v. Clark, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 229; Waterman v. Frank, 21 Mo. 108; Stewart v. Thomas, 45 Mo. 42; Flint v. Young, 70 Mo. 222; Van Cleef v. Fleet, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 147; Heinmuller v. Gray, 44 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 260; Loew v. Stocker, 68 Pa. St. 226; Jobe v. Sellars, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 178; Hunter v. Agee, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 57; Stevens v. Bransford, 6 Leigh (Va.) 246; Dabney v. Catlett, 12 Leigh (Va.) 383; Davis v. Davis, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 363.

Where process is directed to be served in a particular manner, a promise to indemnify the officer for serving in that manner is implied from the direction. Ranlett v. Blodgett, 17 N. H. 298; 43 Am. Dec. 603; Gower v. Emery, 18 Me. 79.

2. Stanton v. McMullen, 7 Ill. App. 326; Buffendeau v. Brooks, 28 Cal. 641; Prewitt v. Garrett, 6 Ala. 128; 41 Am. Dec. 40; Stark v. Raney, 18 Cal. 622; Renfro v. Heard, 14 Ala. 23; 48 Am. Dec. 82; Collier v. Windham, 27 Ala. 291; Anderson v. Farns, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 343; Kenworthy v. Stringer, 27 Ind. 498; Pike v. Middleton, 12 N. H. 278; Chapman v. Douglas, 5 Daly (N. Y.) 244; Cumpston v. Lambert, 18 Ohio 81; 51 Am. Dec. 442; Hunter v. Agee, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 57; Morgan v. Hale, 12 W. Va. 713.

A bond given to an officer to indemnify him against the consequences of a sale after an illegal seizure is valid, the seizure and not the sale being the unlawful act. Hunter v. Agee, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 57.

Commissioners charged with the construction of a public building or works, and empowered by statute to discharge, at their discretion, the building superintendent whom they should employ, hold that power for the public benefit; and they cannot divest themselves of it by any contract entered into by them with the person so employed, where such contract has not been ratified by the legislature. Shipman v. State, 42 Wis. 377.

their nature vicious and void,¹ such contracts being contrary to public policy.² Proper apartments in which to transact official business, and fuel, light and supplies should be furnished, or if supplied by the officers, they are entitled to reimbursement for the expenses thus incurred,³ and such office appurtenances belong to the officer for the time being, and he is absolutely entitled to their possession and use for the purposes of his office.⁴

XVIII. PARTICULAR OFFICERS AND CLASSES OF OFFICERS—1. Federal Officers—a. PRESIDENT AND HEADS OF THE DEPARTMENTS—See PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES;⁵ UNITED STATES; supra, this title, Liabilities of Public Officers.

b. CONGRESS.—See UNITED STATES; supra, this title, Liability of Legislative Officers.

1. Pike v. Middleton, 12 N. H. 278; Kenworthy v. Struger, 27 Ind. 498; Shotwell v. Hamblin, 23 Miss. 156; 55 Am. Dec. 83; Hodsdon v. Wilkins, 7 Me. 113; 20 Am. Dec. 347; Denny v. Lincoln, 5 Mass. 385; Churchill v. Perkins, 5 Mass. 541; Ayer v. Hutchins, 4 Mass. 370; 3 Am. Dec. 232; Webbers v. Blunt, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 188; Love v. Palmer, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 159; Greenwood v. Colcock, 2 Bay (S. Car.) 67.

A contract to indemnify or to pay money in consideration of a failure to return a writ is void. Knipe v. Hobart, 1 Lutw. 596.

2. Stanton v. McMullen, 7 Ill. App. 326; Ayer v. Hutchins, 4 Mass. 370; 3 Am. Dec. 232.

3. See Boone Co. v. Todd, 3 Mo. 140; McClaughry v. Hancock Co., 46 Ill. 356; Wright v. Philadelphia, 14 Phila. (Pa.) 170; Witt v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 6 Robt. (N. Y.) 441; Comrs. Court v. Goldthwaite, 35 Ala. 704; St. Louis Co. Ct. v. Ruland, 5 Mo. 268; Odineal v. Barry, 24 Miss. 9; Knox Co. v. Arms, 22 Ill. 175; DeKalb Co. v. Beveridge, 16 Ill. 312; Jefferson Co. v. Bisby, 5 Wis. 134; McCalmont v. Allegheny Co., 29 Pa. St. 417; People v. Stout, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 349; 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 22; 13 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 314. But see Watson v. St. Louis Co., 16 Mo. 91; State v. McConnell, 28 Ohio St. 589; Lyon v. Adams, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 443; Lesly v. White, 1 Spears (S. Car.) 31.

A board of county supervisors which has provided suitable accommodations for the surrogate, cannot be compelled to pay for other accommodations.

People v. Montgomery Co., 34 Hun (N. Y.) 599.

In the absence of any express understanding to the contrary, the county assessor is primarily liable for printing ordered by him for the office. White v. Williams, 49 Ala. 130.

Where no other provision is made for the necessary expenses of the judiciary, in its official duties, the county where the court is held is, in general, liable. Venango Co. v. Durban, 3 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 66.

In a county without a court-house the county clerk must attend the sessions of the board of county commissioners in any suitable room at the county seat they may designate. Stafford Co. v. State, 40 Kan. 21.

A department of the city government which has permitted another department to use buildings, cannot resume possession of them against the will of the department occupying them. New York Health Department v. Van Cott, 51 N. Y. Super. Ct. 413.

4. Conover v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 5 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 393.

An organization of a board of county freeholders, effected by the election of a director or clerk by a sufficient number of members, duly elected, will authorize the clerk so elected to take possession of the books and seal of the corporation; and will be a good defense for him to an application for a mandamus to compel him to deliver them to another party claiming also to be clerk. State v. Roe, 35 N. J. L. 123.

5. Vol. 19, p. 32.

c. JUDGES OF FEDERAL COURTS.—See UNITED STATES COURTS.

d. UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS.—See UNITED STATES COURTS.

e. UNITED STATES MARSHALS.—See SHERIFFS.

2. State Officers.—See also STATES; GOVERNOR.¹

3. County Officers.—(See also COUNTY COMMISSIONERS;² COUNTIES;³ SHERIFFS; RECORDS;⁴ RECORDING ACTS)⁵—a. COUNTY TREASURERS.—The county treasurer is the proper custodian of the moneys of the county, and it is his duty to receive, keep and disburse all money belonging to his county in respect to which no specific provision is otherwise made.⁶ Disbursement of public money can be made only upon warrants duly issued by proper authority,⁷ and the treasurer is liable on his bond for the proper performance of all the duties required of him by law, for a breach of any of which an action may be maintained.⁸ Upon relinquishing the

1. Vol. 8, p. 1400.

2. Vol. 4, p. 373.

3. Vol. 4, p. 343.

4. Vol. 20, p. 495.

5. Vol. 20, p. 551.

6. Libby v. Sibley Co., 39 Minn. 433; Barnes v. Hudman, 57 Ala. 504; Iredell Co. v. Wasson, 82 N. Car. 308.

A county treasurer must pay over to a city treasurer taxes paid under protest as well as taxes paid in the usual way. Ratterman v. State, 44 Ohio St. 641.

A county treasurer is not bound to accept county paper in discharge of a judgment debt. Cannon v. Gartman, 43 Miss. 581.

7. See State v. Thorne, 9 Neb. 458; Askew v. Columbia Co., 32 Ark. 270; Howell v. Hogins, 37 Ark. 110; Priet v. Hubert, 62 Cal. 9; Marks v. Trustees, 56 Ind. 288.

But a mere custodian of moneys collected from taxpayers for a specific purpose, under color of law, has no right to withhold payment, whether the law is invalid or not. People v. Gallup, 12 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 64; 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 108.

In an action against the sureties of a county treasurer for moneys collected wherever the law directs the money to be paid only on the warrants or receipts of other public officers, such warrants or receipts must be produced or their loss accounted for. State v. Teague, 9 S. Car. 149.

A county treasurer's warrant for the collection of moneys due the treasury from a township treasurer must show the facts which would presumptively confer jurisdiction to issue it. Bringard v. Stellwagen, 41 Mich. 54.

Want of funds is a good excuse for refusal to pay. Missouri v. Winterbottom, 123 U. S. 215; Cook v. Putnam Co., 70 Mo. 668. But see State v. Craig, 69 Mo. 565.

The fact that no money is in the parish treasury when a proper claim for registry is presented to the treasurer is no reason why the claim should not be registered. State v. Fisher, 30 La. Ann. 514.

8. Livingston Co. v. White, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 72; Townsend v. Everett, 4 Ala. 607. And see Wood v. Greene Co., 60 Ga. 556; Shepherd v. Helmers, 23 Kan. 504; State Bank v. Chappelle, 40 Mich. 447; Shanklin v. Madison Co., 21 Ohio St. 575.

The board of county commissioners may sue the county treasurer, either on the bond or independent of it, for the conversion of funds belonging in the county treasury, and in such suit may recover for all the funds converted, State, county, town school, or other wise. Mower Co. v. Smith, 22 Minn. 97.

The sureties of a county treasurer are liable for public money received by him as treasurer after the expira-duties of his office it is the duty of the county treasurer to turn over to his successor in office all the public moneys in his hands,¹ and he is usually required to keep a correct account of the moneys received and disbursed by him and render periodical statements to an officer or board designated by law.² But the periodical settlement is not a judicial act, and is no more conclusive than a settlement between private persons.³ A settlement, however, is prima facie evidence that he has paid over all the tion of his term, so long as he remains in possession of the office, and until he delivers it over to his successor. Placer Co. v. Dickerson, 45 Cal. 12.

It is the duty of a county treasurer who has received from the State treasurer a bank-check for money due from the State to the county, to present it for payment within a reasonable time. If he neglects to do this, and the bank fails before the check is paid, the loss will fall upon himself. State v. Gates, 67 Mo. 139.

Neither the negligence of the county commissioners, in respect to their supervisory duties over the treasurer, nor their actual malfeasance, facilitating or encouraging a conversion of the public funds by the treasurer, is a defense in an action against the treasurer and his sureties for the conversion. Waseca Co. v. Sheehan, 42 Minn. 57.

Special Duties.—A county treasurer is not answerable on his general bond for special duties imposed upon him by the school law. State v. Johnson, 55 Mo. 80.

1. Taggart v. State, 49 Ind. 42; Stutsman Co. v. Mansfield, 5 Dakota 78; State v. Rechten, 7 Mo. App. 339; McKee v. Monterey Co., 51 Cal. 275; and see Thorn v. Adams Co., 22 Neb. 825.

When a county treasurer has received, in his official capacity, moneys which he has failed to pay over or account for on going out of office, he is indebted to the county, and it can maintain an action against him at once to enforce its claim. Sac Co. v. Hobbs, 72 Iowa 69. Thorne v. Adams Co., 22 Neb. 825.

A county treasurer who has failed to account for moneys in his hands, may be removed from office, even though the moneys were stolen; a resolution, passed by the board of commissioners, that the office is vacant, does not constitute a removal; there must be a judgment of ouster. State v. Shelden, 10 Neb. 452; and see State v. Hay, Wright (Ohio) 96.

Before the inferior court of Georgia can issue execution against a county treasurer for a balance in his hands, ten days' written notice is required, by act of 1825, to be given him, and the order of the court under which the fiery facias is issued, must show that such notice has been given. Foster v. Justices etc., 9 Ga., 185.

A county treasurer is not bound to transfer to his successor securities lately held under a trust that has terminated during his term of office, although he has not paid them over to the persons entitled to receive them. Otherwise, it seems, as to funds held under unexpired trusts. Tompkins Co. v. Bristol, 15 Hun (N. Y.) 116.

2. See State v. Miles, 52 Wis. 488. A county treasurer's report made and filed according to law is admissible in an action on his official bond to show the amount of moneys or securities then in his hands belonging to infants or others. But statements made by him, after the end of his term, to his successor, are not thus admissible. Tompkins Co. v. Bristol, 15 Hun (N. Y.) 116. And see Coxe v. Deringer, 78 Pa. St. 271.

A county treasurer who receives from his predecessor United States bonds purchased by order of the county and belonging to it is bound to account therefor, and for the premiums accruing thereon, and cannot claim as against the county that they were purchased without authority. Nixon v. State, 96 Ind. 111. But he is entitled to a credit against the county for the amount of orders redeemed by him, although the act of the auditor in issuing them was unlawful. Graham v. State, 66 Ind. 386.

3. Hunt v. State, 93 Ind. 311; Posey Co. v. Saunders, 17 Ind. 437; Richmond Co. v. Wandel, 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 33; Howe v. State, 53 Miss. 57; Heagy v. State, 85 Ind. 260. And see El Do- funds in his hands,¹ though it does not bar an action upon his bond,² and it may become conclusive as an estoppel after the lapse of a long period of time.³ The rights, duties, liabilities and compensation of county treasurers have been made the subject of statutory enactment differing in different States to an extent rendering it impracticable if not impossible to deduce any rules of general application.⁴

rado Co. v. Reed, 11 Cal. 130; Graham v. State, 66 Ind. 386.

Under the provisions of Iowa Code, §§ 303, 917, giving to county boards of supervisors power to examine and settle the accounts of the county, and to settle with the treasurer, said supervisors are clothed with discretion as to the best means of protecting the interest of the county in case of a defalcation by the treasurer, and are authorized, in such case to take a promissory note in place of the official bond. Sac Co. v. Hobbs, 72 Iowa 69.

1. State v. Smith, 65 Mo. 465; Doolittle v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 20 Kan. 329.

In an action on the relation of a county auditor upon the bond of the county treasurer for money not accounted for, a settlement-sheet between them, jointly signed and certified by both as "a true and correct statement of delinquent taxes collected by the treasurer" for a certain period, as "reported by the treasurer to the auditor of said county, and the amount payable into the State treasury was held to be admissible; also parol evidence to show the circumstances under which the sheet was made. Hostetler v. State, 62 Ind. 183.

2. State v. Smith, 65 Mo. 465; Helvey v. Huntington Co., 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 317.

The fact that the board of supervisors of a county have approved the reports of the county treasurer, which distinctly show on their face a claim to excessive and illegal commissions, and thereby allowed to him the amount of the commissions, is not a conclusive adjudication which will protect him and his sureties, in a suit upon his official bond, against a recovery for the amount of excessive and illegal commissions so retained by him. Howe v. State, 53 Miss. 57.

As to the method of the final settlement of the accounts of a county treasurer, which is generally statutory see Brown v. Com., 2 Rawle (Pa.) 40; Com. v. Reigart, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 216;

Hostetler v. State, 62 Ind. 183; McKee v. Monterey Co., 51 Cal. 275; Howe v. State, 53 Miss. 57.

In Pennsylvania under the statute of 1834, the accounts of county treasurers, must be settled by the county auditors, and not by the auditor general. Com. v. Laub, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 435.

3. See People v. Lattimore, 19 Cal. 365.

The settlement of the account of a county treasurer, in Pennsylvania, by the auditors, after the time limited for an appeal, is conclusive upon the county as well as the officer. And it cannot be opened for the correction of errors by auditors settling the account of a subsequent year. Northumberland Co. v. Bloom, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 542.

4. The following is a list of authorities bearing upon special and particular powers, duties and liabilities conferred or imposed upon county treasurers by statute: Caldwell v. Quinn, 54 Ala. 64; Coleman v. Pike Co., 83 Ala. 326; Territory v. Bashford (Arizona, 1887), 12 Pac. Rep. 671; Mills v. Bellmen, 48 Cal. 124; Butte Co. v. Morgan, 76 Cal. 1; Perry v. Woodberry (Fla. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 483; Wilder v. State, 47 Ga. 522; Wood v. Greene Co., 60 Ga. 558; Randolph v. Pope Co., 19 Ill. App. 100; People v. Brislin, 80 Ill. 423; Taggart v. State, 49 Ind. 42; Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289; Grove v. Bowman, 55 Iowa 129; Sac Co. v. Hobbs, 72 Iowa 69; Cedar Rapids etc. R. Co. v. Cowan, 77 Iowa 535; Richards v. Osceola Bank, 79 Iowa 707; Blake v. Johnson Co., 18 Kan. 266; Nasho Co. v. Leahy, 24 Kan. 54; Hynes v. Police Jury, 22 La. Ann. 71; State v. Fisher, 30 La. Ann. 514; Wilson v. Ridgely, 46 Md. 235; First Nat. Bank v. Shepard, 22 Minn. 196; State v. Sappington, 67 Mo. 529; 58 Mo. 454; Cole Co. v. Schmidt (Mo. 1889), 10 S. W. Rep. 888; Herman v. Crete, 9 Neb. 350; Schoharie Co. v. Pindar, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 8; Baldwin v. Crary, 30 Hun

b. COUNTY CLERKS—(See also infra, this title, Clerks of Courts; County Recorders).—The county clerk is often (N. Y.) 422; Clark v. Sheldon, 57 Hun (N. Y.) 586; People v. Robinson, 76 N. Y. 422; Tompkins Co. v. Bristol, 99 N. Y. 316; Warrin v. Baldwin, 105 N. Y. 534; Parker v. Saratoga Co., 106 N. Y. 392; Clarke v. Saratoga Co., 107 N. Y. 553; Board of Education v. Bateman (N. Car. 1889), 8 S. E. Rep. 882; Feigert v. State, 31 Ohio St. 432; Ratterman v. State, 44 Ohio 641; Marco v. Co. Treasurer, 4 S. Car. 96; Kempner v. Galveston Co., 73 Tex. 216; Burk v. Galveston Co., 76 Tex. 267; Wimbish v. Com., 75 Va. 839; Iowa Co. v. Vivian, 31 Wis. 217; Milwaukee v. Pabst, 70 Wis. 352.

Where a county treasurer was ordered by the supervisors "to procure an extension of the time of payment" of certain indebtedness, it was held that his power was not limited to an extension merely, but authorized him to borrow money to pay the obligations as they matured, and to issue new obligations in place of those thus maturing. Parker v. Saratoga Co., 106 N. Y. 392.

A county treasurer cannot maintain an action to compel the county judge to pay over money not received, but which might have been received had the county commissioner's court made, as it might have done, a different contract. McConnell v. Wall, 67 Tex. 323.

A county treasurer may be sued personally for money paid to him in his official capacity for illegal taxes, where it is paid under protest, with notice that suit will be brought to recover it. Rushton v. Burke (Dakota 1889), 43 N. W. Rep. 815.

As to compensation of county treasurers, see Barbour Co. v. Clark, 50 Ala. 416; Lawrence Co. v. Hudson, 41 Ark. 494; Luis Bispo Co. v. King, 69 Cal. 531; Territory v. Cavanaugh, 3 Dak. 325; People v. Long, 13 Ill. 629; Fell v. McLean Co., 43 Ill. 216; Keily v. Sangamon Co., 58 Ill. 494; Blanchard v. La Salle, 99 Ill. 278; Woolen v. Jefferson Co., 4 Ind. 331; Grant Co. v. Miles, 21 Ind. 438; Stuckey v. Bartholomew Co., 27 Ind. 251; Lagrange Co. v. Newman, 35 Ind. 10; Wells v. Shoemaker, 39 Ind. 115; Hunsaker v. Alexander Co., 42 Ill. 389; Scott v. Henry Co., 51 Ind. 502; Fountain Co. v. La Tourette, 60 Ind. 460; Foresman v.

Johnson, 65 Ind. 132; Morgan Co. v. Gregory, 74 Ind. 218; Harrison Co. v. Benson, 83 Ind. 469; Jefferson Co. v. Wollard, 1 Greene (Iowa) 430; Dela-ware Co. v. Griffin, 17 Iowa 166; People v. Bay Co., 38 Mich. 307; Stuart v. Walker, 10 Minn. 296; Yost v. Scott Co., 25 Minn. 366; Beatty v. Sibley Co., 32 Minn. 470; Libby v. Anoka Co., 38 Minn. 448; Gerken v. Sibley Co., 39 Minn. 433; Harrison v. Wilkinson Co., 35 Miss. 74; State v. Allen, 23 Neb. 451; In re New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 7 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 408; Otsego Co. v. Hendryx, 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 279; People v. Baldwin, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 308; Warrin v. Baldwin, 35 Hun (N. Y.) 334; Erie Co. v. Jones (Supreme Ct.), 1 N. Y. Supp. 557; People v. Supervisors, 73 N. Y. 173; Seneca Co. v. Allen, 99 N. Y. 532; Erie Co. v. Jones, 119 N. Y. 339; State v. Kelly, 32 Ohio St. 421; Stephens v. Com., 4 Watts (Pa.) 173; Biehn's Appeal, 132 Pa. St. 561; Bastrop Co. v. Hearn, 70 Tex. 563; Llano Co. v. Moore, 77 Tex. 515; Allen v. Com., 83 Va. 94; Jones v. Grant Co., 14 Wis. 518; Kewanee Co. v. Knipfer, 37 Wis. 496; Oconto Co. v. Hall, 47 Wis. 208; Pease v. Wyoming Ter., 1 Wy. Ter. 392; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Donnellan, 2 Wyoming Ter. 459.

A county treasurer, in the absence of a statute, has no claim for compensation which can be asserted by way of defense or set-off to an action against him for taxes not turned over, no action concerning his compensation having been had by the legislature or the county commissioners. State v. Baldwin, 14 S. Car. 135.

A county treasurer cannot claim commissions on the proceeds of county bonds brought into the treasury without his instrumentality. Territory v. Cavanaugh, 3 Dak. 325.

County commissioners who have authorized a loan, and caused the county treasurer to serve in receiving and disbursing the money, cannot afterwards set up that the loan was invalid, to defeat the claim of the treasurer to commissions. Lagrange Co. v. Newman, 35 Ind. 10.

In an action by a county treasurer for his commission on money received by the county from the sale of bonds, the legality of the bonds is not a question made also clerk of the court and county recorder, either ex officio or otherwise.¹ They are distinct and separate offices, however, though they may be held by the same person.²

c. COUNTY RECORDERS.—See RECORDING ACTS.

d. COLLECTORS OF TAXES.—See TAXATION.

e. COUNTY AUDITORS.—See COUNTIES.³

4. Town Officers.—See TOWNSHIPS

5. Municipal Officers.—A municipal officer is an officer of a local public corporation, as of a borough, city, incorporated town or village, or the like.⁴ The right to elect or appoint such officers as their constitutions in their nature require is a common law incident of every corporation, and need not be conferred by charter.⁵ It is customary for the charter or constitution of the in issue. Llano Co. v. Moore, 77 Tex. 515.

1. People v. Colborne, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 378; People v. Darrack, 9 Cal. 324; State v. McDiarmiel, 27 Ark. 176; People v. McCallum, 1 Neb. 182; and see Huddleston v. Pearson, 6 Ind. 337; Temple v. People, 6 Ill. App. 378; State v. Whittemore, 12 Neb. 252; State v. Sovereign, 17 Neb. 173.

The provision of the Nebraska act of 1869—making county clerks ex officio clerks of the district courts—does not require of them that they shall give other and additional bonds for the discharge of their duties as clerks of such courts. People v. McCallum, 1 Neb. 182.

2. See People v. Durick, 20 Cal. 94. But see People v. Stewart, 6 Ill. App. 62.

A county clerk is only liable for negligence in making a search, to the person for whom it is made. Day v. Reynolds, 23 Hun (N. Y.) 131.

Election, Powers and Duties.—As to the powers, duties, liabilities and compensation of county clerks when acting as clerk of the court or county recorder, see RECORDING ACTS; infra, this title, Clerk of Court. As to his election or appointment, compensation and liabilities and for a construction of the varied powers and duties imposed upon him in the different States when acting as county clerk, see generally Thompson v. Stickney, 6 Ala. 579; Seymour v. Jefferson Co., 28 Ark. 254; Mitchell v. Stoner, 9 Cal. 203; People v. Placer Co., 17 Cal. 411; People v. Warfield, 20 Ill. 159; Temple v. People, 6 Ill. App. 378; Kane Co. v. Pierce, 60 Ill. 481; Jones v. Cavins, 4 Ind. 305; Gulick v. New, 14 Ind. 93; 77 Am. Dec. 49; State v. Bonebrake, 4 Kan. 211; Amrine v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 7 Kan. 178; Mis- souri River etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 7 Kan. 210; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Stafford Co., 36 Kan. 121; Stafford Co. v. State, 40 Kan. 21; Simpson v. Loving, 3 Bush (Ky.) 458; Wortham v. Grayson Co. Ct., 13 Bush (Ky.) 53; State v. Recorder, 33 La. Ann. 223; People v. Treadway, 17 Mich. 480; People v. Calhoun Co., 36 Mich. 10; Raymond v. Madison Co., 5 Mont. 103; State v. Sherwood, 42 Mo. 179; State v. Holliday, 61 Mo. 524; Lamb v. Stanton, 8 Neb. 279; State v. Steuffer, 10 Neb. 506; State v. Whittemore, 12 Neb. 252; State v. Sovereign, 17 Neb. 173; Radford v. Dixon Co. (Neb. 1890), 45 N. W. Rep. 275; Jaquith v. Putney, 48 N. H. 138; Woodruff v. Woodruff, 4 N. J. L. 375; State v. Deacon, 44 N. J. L. 559; Miller v. Lewis, 4 N. Y. 553; People v. Snedeker, 14 N. Y. 52; Curtis v. McNair, 68 N. Y. 198; Jenkins v. McGill, 4 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 205; Mitchell v. Westervelt, 6 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 265; 6 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 311; In re Fourth Ave., 11 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 189; Central Park Case, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 107; People v. Duchess Co., 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 181; Wilson Collegiate Inst. v. Van Horne, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 171; Day v. Reynolds, 23 Hun (N. Y.) 131; State v. Smith, 1 Oregon 250; Brown v. Com., 2 Rawle (Pa.) 40; Heriot v. McCauley, Riley Eq. (S. Car.) 19; State v. County Com'rs, 31 S. Car. 81; Rose v. Newman, 26 Tex. 131; 80 Am. Dec. 646; Perrin v. Reed, 33 Vt. 62; State v. Richter, 37 Wis. 275; State v. Manitowoc Co., 48 Wis. 112.

3. Vol. 4, p. 343.

4. See Abb. Law. Dict., tit., Municipal Corporations.

5. Dillon's Mun. Corp., § 206; and see Lafayette v. State, 69 Ind. 218; People v. Stevens, 51 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 103.

corporation, however, to provide as to all the principal officers, and prescribe the various functions and duties of their offices.¹ The corporation has full control, unless specially restricted, over all offices and officers existing under its by-laws.²

a. ELECTION AND APPOINTMENT.—Residence for a certain period within the municipality is usually required in express terms as a condition of eligibility to hold municipal office.³ In the absence of such a provision, however, non-residents have been held competent to hold such an office.⁴ The provisions of the municipal charter as to the mode of election or appointment and duration of term must be strictly observed, an ordinance making eligible those who by charter are not so,⁵ or abridging the term

But see Mayor etc. of Hoboken v. Harrison, 30 N. J. L. 73.

The legislature may prescribe the qualifications of city, town, or village officers. State v. Von Baumbach, 12 Wis. 310.

1. See Mayor etc. of Hoboken v. Harrison, 30 N. J. L. 73; People v. Bedell, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 196; Field v. Girard College, 54 Pa. St. 233; People v. Canty, 55 Ill. 33; Hoffman v. Jersey City, 34 N. J. L. 172; People v. Pinckney, 32 N. Y. 377.

Where a corporation under its charter has power to create by ordinance an office, and fill the same, it also has power to abolish it. Waldraven v. Memphis, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 431.

A corporation created by the legislature for the purposes of local municipal government cannot, without a provision to that effect, be dissolved by the mere failure to elect officers. The inhabitants of the designated locality are the corporators, and the officers are their mere servants or agents. Welch v. Ste Genevieve, 1 Dill. (U. S.) 130.

2. People v. Hill, 7 Cal. 97; Samis v. King, 40 Conn. 298; Madison v. Korbly, 32 Ind. 74; Ashley's Case, 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 35; People v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 43; People v. Conover, 17 N. Y. 64; Caulfield v. State, 1 S. Car. 461; Waldraven v. Memphis, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 431.

The legislature has power to appoint officers within a city for a specific purpose, as for laying out a street, etc., and the acts of these officers are the acts of the city precisely as if they had been done by the municipal authorities. Daley v. St. Paul, 7 Minn. 390.

As to what officers are municipal officers see Enkle v. Edgar, 63 Cal. 188; State v. Castell, 22 La. Ann. 15; Britton v. Steber, 62 Mo. 370; State v.

Walsh, 69 Mo. 408; Seiple v. Elizabeth, 27 N. J. L. 407; Fisher v. Cortland, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 173; Sellers v. Corvallis, 5 Oregon 273.

A State officer may be connected with some of the municipal functions, yet he must derive his powers from and exercise them in obedience to a State statute. An officer elected under a municipal charter does not come within these requirements. Britton v. Steber, 62 Mo. 370.

3. See State v. Williams, 99 Mo. 291; Scovill v. Cleveland, 1 Ohio St. 126; Dillon on Mun. Corp., § 195.

4. State v. Blanchard, 6 La. Ann. 515; State v. Swearingen, 12 Ga. 23. And see Com. v. Jones, 12 Pa. St. 265.

Where a charter provides that the board of aldermen shall consist of two members from each ward, and that no person shall be eligible as mayor or alderman unless he has resided in the town one year, a person resident in one ward may be elected alderman from another. Jones v. Mills, 11 Ill. 350.

5. See People v. Weber, 89 Ill. 347; Mayor etc. of Monroe v. Hoffman, 29 La. Ann. 651; 29 Am. Rep. 345; Kearney v. Andrews, 10 N. J. Eq. 70; State v. Mayor etc. of Jersey City, 26 N. J. L. 444; State v. Mayor etc. of Paterson, 35 N. J. L. 190; Douglass v. Essex Co., 38 N. J. L. 214; Kennedy v. New York, 79 N. Y. 361; Rex v. Mayor of Weymouth, 7 Mod. 373; Rex v. Brumstead, 2 B. & Ad. 699; Rex v. Spencer, 3 Burr. 1827; Rex v. Chitty, 5 A. & E. 607; 31 E. C. L. 399; Huddleson v. Ruffin, 6 Ohio St. 604; Bellows v. Cincinnati, 11 Ohio St. 544.

Where a city charter, like that of Newark, New Jersey, vests in the common council the power to appoint and remove subordinate officers, an ordinance which assumes to divest the coun-of office fixed by charter,¹ or the choice of an officer in a manner different from that prescribed by law or ordinance,² being unauthorized and void.

At common law, the appointing power was to be exercised by the corporation at large unless otherwise provided by charter,³ and the corporators of a municipal organization of the present time may compel its officers by mandamus to make appointments or hold elections in accordance with the charter and ordinances of the corporation.⁴ Where no mode of election is prescribed, a city cil of the power and to bestow it on the mayor and council, is invalid. State v. Newark, 47 N. J. L. 117.

1. Vason v. Augusta, 38 Ga. 542; Stadler v. Detroit, 13 Mich. 346; East St Louis v. Kase, 9 Ill. App. 409; Jacksonville v. Allen, 25 Ill. App. 54.

The failure of a municipal corporation to elect its officers on the day fixed in the charter does not take away from the corporation the right to hold the election afterwards, when the annual day of election has passed by without fraud or design; and its officers hold over until the election or appointment and qualification of their successors. Lynch v. Lafland, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 96.

2. See Saunders v. Lawrence, 141 Mass. 380; Baker v. Port Huron Police Com'rs, 62 Mich. 327; Clarendon v. Philadelphia, 13 Phila. (Pa.) 54; State v. Bryson, 44 Ohio St. 457; State v. Hudson, 29 N. J. L. 104; Stone v. Small, 54 Vt. 498; State v. Michellon, 42 N. J. L. 405; Mayor etc. of Monroe v. Hoffman, 29 La. Ann. 651; 29 Am. Rep. 345.

Before one can be recognized as a public officer under an appointment from the president of the council acting as mayor, the facts on which the president's right to appoint rests must be made to appear. State v. Trenton Board of Health, 49 N. J. L. 349.

The proper authorities of a municipal corporation however may hold an election for corporate officers at a time different from that fixed by ordinance. Tharin v. Seabrook, 6 Rich. (S. Car.) 113.

A notice required by statute when municipal officers are to be elected must be deemed dispensed with where a subsequent statute, providing for an election to fill a certain office, says nothing of notice, and there is not time to give it before the election. Powell v. Jackson Common Council, 51 Mich. 129.

As to the appointment and election of particular officers, and under particular charter, or statutory provisions, see generally Holden v. People, 90 Ill. 434; Launtz v. People, 113 Ill. 137; 55 Am. Rep. 405; State v. Jonas, 27 La. Ann. 179; Smith v. Thursby, 28 Md. 244; French v. Cowan, 79 Me. 426; People v. Wayne Co., 13 Mich. 233; State v. Smith, 22 Minn. 218; State v. McKee, 69 Mo. 504; Beck v. Hanscom, 29 N. H. 213; State v. Mayor of Paterson, 35 N. J. L. 190; State v. Michellon, 42 N. J. L. 405; State v. McDermott, 45 N. J. L. 251; State v. Farr, 47 N. J. L. 208; Palmer v. Foley, 44 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 308; 45 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 110; Menges v. Albany, 47 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 245; Lynch v. St. John, 56 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 144; People v. Kneissel, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 404; Wade v. Strack, 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 165; 1 Hun (N. Y.) 96; People v. Tremain, 9 Hun (N. Y.) 573; O'Connor v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 176; People v. Schroeder, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 413; People v. Conover, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 516; Devoy v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 264; 22 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 226; Devoy v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 169; People v. Blake, 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Pitkin v. McNair, 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 75; People v. Pinckney, 32 N. Y. 377; People v. Raymond, 37 N. Y. 428; Muller v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 63 N. Y. 353; Costello v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 63 N. Y. 48; People v. Kilbourn, 68 N. Y. 479; People v. Fire Com'rs, 73 N. Y. 437; Van Bokkelen v. Canaday, 73 N. Car. 198; Darby v. Wilmington, 76 N. Car. 133; State v. Squire, 39 Ohio St. 197; Com. v. Omensetter, 9 Phila. (Pa.) 489; Com. v. Henszey, 9 Phila. (Pa.) 490; Com. v. Callen, 101 Pa. St. 375; Com. v. Evans, 102 Pa. St. 394; Taggart v. Com., 102 Pa. St. 354; Dean v. Gleason, 16 Wis. 1.

3. Dillon on Mun. Corp., § 206.

4. See McConihe v. State, 17 Fla.

council, authorized to elect certain officers, may appoint them by resolution, an election by ballot not being necessary.¹

Charter provisions making some municipal officer or board the judge of the qualifications and election of its officers are constitutional and valid,² and afford a cumulative remedy only, the jurisdiction of the court remaining unless it appears with unequivocal certainty that the legislature intended to take it away;³ and 238; People v. Faerbury, 51 Ill. 149; Stow v. Common Council, 79 Mich. 595; People v. Bird, 55 Hun (N. Y.) 610; Newark v. Stout, 52 N. J. L. 35. But see People v. Kneissel, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 404.

The city corporation may scrutinize the election of its members, but cannot require electors to declare, on oath, for whom they voted. Johnston v. Charleston, 1 Bay (S. Car.) 441.

1. Low v. Comrs., R. M. Charl. (Ga.) 302; and see Russell v. Chicago, 22 Ill. 283; Wilder v. Chicago, 26 Ill. 182; State v. Newark, 46 N. J. L. 140; Com. v. Pittsburgh, 14 Pa. St. 177; People v. Bedell, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 196; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Ryan, 2 Wyoming Ter. 391; Selleck v. Common Council, 40 Conn. 359.

Where a village is incorporated under a special law, there being no provision to the contrary, the general law fixes the time for the election of village officers. State v. Cornwall, 35 Minn. 176.

Under a regulation adopted by a city council, providing that "a majority of the members elected and voting shall be necessary to choose any officer elected by the board," a candidate who receives six votes of the twelve members present, three not voting, is legally elected. Morton v. Jungerman (Ky. 1890), 12 S. W. Rep. 944. And see Kimball v. Marshall, 44 N. H. 465.

The record of the choice of an individual as hog-reeve and field-driver, and proof of his service in said office for one year, is evidence from which a jury may legally infer that the meeting at which the individual was chosen was legally warned. Northwood v. Barrington, 9 N. H. 369.

After an assessor has been elected by a board of aldermen, and the ballot declared and recorded, the board can not, at an adjourned session, held the next day, reconsider the election and elect another instead. State v. Phillips, 79 Me. 506.

2. Mayor v. Morgan, 7 Mart. (La.), N. S. 1; Seay v. Hunt, 55 Tex. 545;

Wanunack v. Holloway, 2 Ala. 31; and see Govan v. Jackson, 32 Ark. 553; People v. Mahaney, 13 Mich. 481; People v. Cicott, 16 Mich. 283; 97 Am. Dec. 141; Steele v. Martin, 6 Kan. 430; State v. Fitzgerald, 44 Mo. 425; Smith v. New York, 37 N. Y. 518; Com. v. Leech, 44 Pa. St. 332; Ewing v. Filley, 43 Pa. St. 384; Brush v. Lemma, 77 Ill. 496.

It is not a valid reason for refusing to obey the law, on the part of a majority of the select council, that members of the common council may have been fraudulently retained and others fraudulently excluded, since each branch is the sole judge of the election and qualification of its own members; nor that they are about to propose a change of the law, for while the law remains they are bound by it, and must obey its requirements. Lamb v. Lynd, 44 Pa. St. 336.

When a city charter makes the common council the final judges of the election of aldermen, mandamus will not lie to compel them to reinstate one whom they had excluded without a proper hearing on the merits. People v. Fitzgerald, 41 Mich. 2.

Where a city council is the sole judge of the election and qualifications of its members, it cannot, after having seated a member on investigation, at a subsequent meeting order a second investigation. Certiorari may issue in such case without waiting for the report and final order. State v. Camden, 47 N. J. L. 64; 54 Am. Rep. 117.

3. See Ex parte Heath, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 42; McVeany v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 106; People v. Metzker, 47 Cal. 524; Grier v. Shackelford, Treadw. Const. (S. Car.) 642; Wammacks v. Holloway, 2 Ala. 31; Gass v. State, 34 Ind. 424; Macklot v. Davenport, 17 Iowa 379; Hummer v. Hummer, 3 Greene (Iowa) 42; State v. Funck, 17 Iowa 365; Batman v. Megowan, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 533; Kane v. People, 4 Neb. 509; Com. v. McCloskey, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 369; State v. Marlow, 15 Ohio St. 114; State v.

even where the legislative intent is clear that the municipal action shall be final, the courts will inquire whether, in point of law, there was an office or vacancy to be filled.¹

b. POWERS AND DUTIES.—The powers and duties of municipal officers are such only as are conferred upon them by statute or charter,² and as are implied from necessity in order to carry out the purposes of their organization.³ The municipal author-

Fitzgerald, 44 Mo. 425; People v. Bird, 20 Ill. App. 568; Ex parte Strahl, 16 Iowa 369; Com. v. Baxter, 35 Pa. St. 263; Com. v. Messer, 44 Pa. St. 341; People v. Witherell, 14 Mich. 48; O'Docherty v. Archer, 9 Tex. 295; Sellick v. Common Council, 40 Conn. 359.

The court will not reverse the action of the comptroller of New York city in removing the auditor of accounts for carelessness and inattention in performing the duties of his office, although it is not improbable that the punishment is out of proportion to the offense. People v. Grant, 12 Daly (N. Y.) 294.

1. Com. v. Leech, 44 Pa. St. 332; Com. v. Messer, 44 Pa. St. 341. See Simon v. Portland Common Council, 9 Oregon 437; State v. De Gress, 72 Tex. 242.

Where there is a tie in the election for mayor between the incumbent and another candidate, and the city council fails to choose one of them for mayor by lot, as required by the city charter, equity will not interfere to restrain the incumbent from exercising the functions of the office. Huels v. Hahn, 75 Wis. 468.

2. See Naylor v. Glasier, 5 Duer (N. Y.) 161; Briggs v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 2 Daly (N. Y.) 304; Wilson v. Shreveport, 29 La. Ann. 673; People v. Ransom, 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 514; Treadway v. Schnauber, 1 Dak. Ter. 236; Smith v. Deweese, 41 Tex. 594; Robertson v. Groves, 4 Oregon 210; Indianapolis School Com'rs v. Watson, 74 Ind. 133; Greathouse v. Dunn, 60 Cal. 311; Jane v. Alley, 64 Miss. 446; Gage v. Chicago, 2 Ill. App. 332; Gale v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 8 Hun (N. Y.) 370; Gage v. Hornelsville, 41 Hun (N. Y.) 87; Graves v. Otis, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 466; Nelson v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 Hun (N. Y.) 190.

A mayor has no authority, unless expressly conferred by the city charter or ordinances, to employ counsel in behalf of the city. Fletcher v. Lowell, 15 Gray (Mass.) 103.

A "counsel to the corporation" has no larger powers, as such, to bind his clients, than those connected with the ordinary relations of attorney and client. People v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 11 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 66.

In an action against a town on a verbal lease, evidence of a conversation between the plaintiff and the mayor of the town is inadmissible to establish the lease, unless accompanied by proof that the mayor had authority to contract for the lease. Halbut v. Forrest City, 34 Ark. 246.

3. Wilson v. Shreveport, 29 La. Ann. 673; and see Labrie v. Manchester, 59 N. H. 120; 47 Am. Rep. 179; Sherlock v. Winnelka, 68 Ill. 530; Fagan v. Mayor, etc. of N. Y., 84 N. Y. 348; Sharp v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 256; Larned v. Briscoe, 62 Mich. 393; Geary v. Kansas City, 61 Mo. 378; Lyon v. Grand Rapids, 30 Mich. 253; Perry v. Cheboygan, 55 Mich. 250; Mayor etc. of N. Y. v. Sands, 105 N. Y. 210; Williamsport v. Richter, 81 Pa. St. 508.

Where a city needs a right of way, and is unable to obtain it advantageously, it is within its power to employ some third person to secure it, and an agreement to pay him for his services was binding. Stewart v. Council Bluffs, 58 Iowa, 642.

No express authority is given to municipal officers to enter into the contract of suretyship; nor is there any general authority from which the power can be fairly deduced, under a plea of usage, necessity, or convenience, or public interest. Louisiana State Bank v. Orleans Nav. Co., 3 La. Ann. 294.

Where the special duties of a comptroller of a municipal corporation are not defined by law, proof of his usage to receive and file notices affecting the indebtedness of the city is sufficient, in an action against the corporation, to cast on them the burden of proof that his duties did not include the subject in question. Hall v. Buffalo, 2 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 301.

ities, acting under authority derived from their charter or other statutory enactment, must strictly follow its provisions,¹ and provisions conferring power on municipal officers must be strictly construed, and cannot be extended beyond the intent of the act and the want to be provided for.² In many jurisdictions, municipal officers are prohibited from contracting with, or becoming either directly or indirectly interested in any contract with the

1. Mayor etc. of Little Rock v. State Bank, 8 Ark. 227; Glass v. Ashbury, 49 Cal. 571; Gurnee v. Chicago, 40 Ill. 165; Jeffersonville v. Patterson, 32 Ind. 140; Logansport v. Legg, 20 Ind. 315; Larned v. Briscoe, 62 Mich. 393; Keeler v. Milledge, 24 N. J. L. 142; and see Gage v. Hornelsville, 41 Hun (N.Y.) 87; Webster v. Chicago, 62 Ill. 302; Francis v. Blair, 89 Mo. 291; Lytle v. Buffalo, 48 Hun (N.Y.) 175; Louisville v. Higdon, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 526; Mayor, etc. of Monroe v. Monroe, 29 La. Ann. 651; Moser v. White, 29 Mich. 59; Central Bridge Corp. v. Lowell, 15 Gray (Mass.) 106; Andrews v. King, 77 Me. 224.

Charter provisions, that no improvement shall be ordered "except by ordinance, which shall set apart a specific appropriation for the work ordered, based upon an estimate of the cost," is a fact of which a contractor is bound to take notice; and he cannot recover for work done under order of the city engineer, which he might have known was in excess of the appropriation. Perkinson v. St. Louis, 4 Mo. App. 322.

The acts of a street commissioner of a city, within the scope of the trust committed to him, are prima facie the acts of the city; whether they are within the general authority conferred upon him is a question for the jury. Gilpatrick v. Biddeford, 51 Me. 182.

The engineer of a city which has power, by its charter, to provide by ordinance for the construction and repair of sidewalks, has no authority to order a sidewalk to be built without an ordinance. Louisiana v. Miller, 66 Mo. 467.

2. See Mudge v. Williamsport, 78 Pa. St. 158; Christ v. Polk Co., 48 Iowa 302; Davies v. New York, 48 N. Y. Super. Ct. 194; American etc. Soc. v. Wistar, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 212; Advertiser etc. Co. v. Detroit, 43 Mich. 116; Schroder v. City Council, 2 Treadw. Const. (S. Car.) 726.

Town and city officers attempting to interfere with the rights of individuals, must show, to acquire jurisdiction, that the very case has arisen in which they were authorized to proceed. Carron v. Martin, 26 N. J. L. 594; 69 Am. Dec. 584.

A municipal charter giving a mayor all the powers and jurisdiction of a justice of the peace "within the corporate limits," confers no jurisdiction of misdemeanors committed in the county under the Alabama act of Feb. 8, 1877, giving such jurisdiction to justices of the peace. Murphy v. State, 68 Ala. 31.

As to the powers and duties and jurisdiction of particular officers, and of officers under special charter and statutory provisions, see generally, Knight v. Haight, 51 Cal. 169; Spring Valley Water Works v. Ashbury, 52 Cal. 126; Ballard Pavement Co. v. Mandel, 2 MacArthur (D. C.) 351; Springfield Water Com'rs v. Hall, 98 Ill. 371; People v. Hazlewood, 116 Ill. 319; East St. Louis v. Launtz, 20 Ill. App. 644; Miller v. State, 106 Ind. 415; White v. New Orleans, 15 La. Ann. 667; State v. Heath, 20 La. Ann. 518; Chapman v. Lowell, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 378; Pedrick v. Bailey, 12 Gray (Mass.) 161; Tyng v. Boston, 133 Mass. 372; People v. East Saginaw, 33 Mich. 164; Barber v. Saginaw City, 34 Mich. 52; Attorney Genl. v. Preston, 56 Mich. 177; St. Peter v. Bauer, 19 Minn. 327; Planters' Compress Assoc. v. Hanes, 52 Miss. 469; St. Charles v. Stewart, 49 Mo. 132; Campbell v. St. Louis, 71 Mo. 106; Weeks v. Forman, 16 N. J. L. 237; State v. Trenton, 42 N. J. L. 72; In re Eleventh Ave., 49 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 208; McGarry v. New York Co., 7 Robt. (N. Y.) 464; Miller v. Mayor of N. Y., 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 219; 3 Hun (N. Y.) 35; Drake v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 340; Board of Com'rs v. Glennon, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 244; In re Wright, 29 Hun (N. Y.) 357; 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 119; Lyth v. Buffalo, 48 Hun (N. Y.) 175; Slater v. Wood, 9 Bosw. (N. Y.) 15; People v.

municipality, or in any matter or transaction to be paid for by the municipality.¹

(1) The Mayor.—Every municipal corporation is provided with an executive head, usually styled the mayor, whose duty usually is to see that municipal ordinances are executed, and to preside at corporate meetings.² Judicial duties are often annexed to those which properly appertain to the office, however, and he is authorized to judicially administer not only the ordinances of the corporation, but also the laws of the State.³ But no jurisdiction

Connolly, 4 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 375; People v. Civil Service etc. Board, 17 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 64; People v. Flagg, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 503; Mayor etc. of N. Y. v. Tucker, 1 Daly (N. Y.) 107; Board of Com'rs v. Gurrin, 6 Daly (N. Y.) 349; Bleeker v. New York, 7 Daly (N. Y.) 439; Twogood v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 11 Daly (N. Y.) 167; Muller v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 63 N. Y. 355; Harris v. People, 64 N. Y. 143; People v. Dunlap, 66 N. Y. 162; Hogan v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 17; People v. New York Fire Com'rs, 49 N. Y. Super. Ct. 369; New York Health Department v. Van Cott, 51 N. Y. Super. Ct. 413; Intendant etc. v. Sorrell, 1 Jones (N. Car.) 49; Bowers v. Supplee, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 223; Kerr v. Trego, 47 Pa. St. 292; Terry v. Milwaukee, 15 Wis. 490; Brickwell v. Hamele, 57 Wis. 490. And see also the other cases cited in this section.

1. See Anna v. O'Callahan, 3 Ill. App. 176; McGregor v. Logansport, 79 Ind. 166; Case v. Johnson, 91 Ind. 477; Fitch v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 40 Hun (N. Y.) 512; Roosevelt v. Draper, 23 N. Y. 318; Doll v. State, 45 Ohio St. 445; Stevenson v. Bay City, 26 Mich. 44; Dwight v. Palmer, 74 Ill. 295.

If an act of the legislature, authorizing the board exercising the corporate authority of a city to convey its lands to a corporation, vests the board with any discretion in the matter, a member of such board, who is a stockholder or director in the corporation, cannot act officially in the board in relation to the matter, or in making the conveyance, and if he does, and his vote or signature to the deed was requisite to complete the conveyance, the deed will be set aside. San Diego v. San Diego etc. R. Co., 44 Cal. 106.

The fact that the mayor became, prior to his election, the assignee of a contract for street improvement as collateral security, does not affect the validity of the contract nor incapacitate him from countersigning a warrant issued for the collection of the assessment. Beaudry v. Valdez, 32 Cal. 269.

To a note given to the trustees of Clarksville for borrowed proceeds of sales of lots, it is no defense that the borrower was himself, at the time, one of the trustees. Ewing v. Clarksville, 61 Ind. 139.

2. Dillon on Mun. Corp., § 208.

The mayor, in cities organized under the general incorporation act (Iowa Rev., ch. 51) is not ex officio a member of the city council, nor has he any right to preside over that body, or to vote therein. Cochran v. McCleary, 22 Iowa 75.

Notice to the mayor of the existence of a nuisance, and a request to remove it, is sufficient to bind the city. Nichols v. Boston, 98 Mass. 39; 97 Am. Dec. 132.

As to special powers and duties of mayors under particular charters, see generally North Lawrence v. Hoysradt, 6 Kan. 170; Test v. Com., 4 Dana (Ky.) 522; Morley v. Weakley, 86 Mo. 451; Barnes v. Gottschalk, 3 Mo. App. 111; State v. Jersey City, 30 N. J. L. 93; North v. Cary, 4 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 357; Hatch v. Cincinnati, 17 Ohio St. 48; State v. Hudson, 44 Ohio St. 137; Daniel v. Mayor etc. of Memphis, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 582; Lynch v. Lafland, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 96.

3. See Bain v. Mitchell, 82 Ala. 304; Robinson v. Benton Co., 49 Ark. 49; State v. Monroe, 16 La. Ann. 395; Gulick v. New, 14 Ind. 93; 77 Am. Dec. 49; Cluggish v. Rogers, 13 Ind. 538; Com. v. Leight, 1 B. Mon. (Ky.) 107; Maguire v. Hughes, 13 La. Ann. 281; Warwick v. Mayo, 15 Gratt. (Va.) 528; Ex parte Smith, Hempst. (U. S.) 200; Louisiana v. Hardin, 11 Mo. 551; Waldo v. Wallace, 12 Ind. 569; Howard v. Shoemaker, 35 Ind. 111; Muscatine v. Steck, 7 Iowa 505; Ex parte Strahl, 16 Iowa 369; Luehr-

to try civil causes exists in the mayor unless conferred upon him by charter or statute.¹

(2) Municipal Councils.²—See also MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.³

c. COMPENSATION.—The general rule that an office cannot be regarded as a contract between the officer and the sovereign power, is applicable to municipal offices,⁴ a municipal corporation having the power, unless restrained by its charter, to abolish an office created by ordinance, or reduce or otherwise regulate its man v. Shelby Co. Taxing District, 2 Lea (Tenn.) 425; State v. Wood, 9 Bosw. (N. Y.) 15; Morrison v. McDonald, 21 Me. 550; People v. Maynard, 14 Ill. 419; Starr v. Wilmington City Council, 3 Har. (Del.) 294; Prell v. McDonald, 7 Kan. 426; 12 Am. Rep. 423; Martindale v. Palmer, 52 Ind. 411; Com. v. Dallas, 3 Yeates (Pa.) 300; Sellers v. Corvallis, 5 Oregon 273.

A mayor, who in no sense belongs to the judiciary, may be authorized to arrest and fine lewd and disorderly women; in so doing he but exercises the police power which in this respect has always been well distinguished from the judicial power, both here and in England. Shafer v. Mumma, 17 Md. 331; 79 Am. Dec. 656.

Where special power is given to a mayor or other magistrate to convict offenders against city ordinances in a summary manner, without trial by jury, it must appear that he has strictly pursued such power. The record should show upon its face everything necessary to constitute a legal conviction. It should also appear with precision of what offense the defendant was convicted. Keeler v. Milledge, 24 N. J. L. 142.

The mayor of a city, who performs the duties of a justice of the peace in criminal actions prosecuted in the name of the State, is not entitled to recover of the county the fees allowed to justices by Iowa Code, § 3806. Upton v. Clinton Co., 52 Iowa 311.

Such power conferred upon a mayor is held to be unconstitutional in Louisiana. Hayes v. Hayes, 10 La. Ann. 642; State v. Judge, 9 La. Ann. 62; Lafon v. Dufroco, 9 La. Ann. 350.

1. Smith v. Deweese, 41 Tex. 594.

2. It is not in the power of a common council to bind its legislative capacities by any private arrangement or stipulations, so as to disable itself from enacting any law that might be deemed essential for the public good. Mayor etc. of N. Y. v. Britton, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 367, note; Britton v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 21 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 251.

A common council can only act by resolution or by-laws adopted at a meeting; and the proceedings of such meeting cannot be left in parol. Moser v. White, 29 Mich. 59.

The clerk of a municipal corporation may amend its records according to his own knowledge of the truth, so long as he has the custody of them. Mott v. Reynolds, 27 Vt. 206. But the journal of a public body, as the city council, cannot be amended by a vote passed by a subsequent board, so as to recite an order as passed which before appeared only as reported. Covington v. Ludlow, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 265.

As to the powers, rights, and duties of municipal councils and their members under particular charters or statutes, see generally Wilson v. Mayor etc. of San Jose, 7 Cal. 275; Red v. Augusta, 25 Ga. 386; Russell v. Chicago, 22 Ill. 283; Wilder v. Chicago, 26 Ill. 182; De Wolf v. Chicago, 26 Ill. 443; Sylvester v. Macauley, 1 Wilson (Ind.) 19; State v. La Porte, 28 Ind. 248; State v. Mainey, 65 Ind. 404; Mayor etc. of Nachitoches v. Redmond, 28 La. Ann. 274; Ball v. Fagg, 67 Mo. 481; State v. Jersey City, 27 N. J. L. 493; Douglass v. Essex Co., 38 N. J. L. 214; Hyde v. Brooklyn, 21 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 339; State v. Buffalo, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 434; Peterson v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 413; Wetmore v. Story, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 414; Demarest v. Wickham, 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 312; Davies v. New York, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. 373; Com. v. Kepner, 10 Phila. (Pa.) 510; Coogan v. State, 1 S. Car. 468; Wilson v. Ormo Trustees, 52 Wis. 131.

3. Vol. 15, p. 1028.

4. See supra, this title, Compensation.

compensation, or add to or otherwise change its duties.¹ But when the services to be performed are professional or private, rather than public or official, an employment under an ordinance for a fixed time at a fixed sum for the period, has been held to be a contract and not subject to be impaired by any action of the corporation.² As in case of all other powers and rights conferred upon officers of municipal corporations, the power to fix the salaries of officers must be exercised by the officer or body provided for that purpose and in strict conformity to the terms of the charter or statute conferring the authority.³

1. In re Senate Resolution, 12 Colo. 340; Com. v. Bacon, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 322; Augusta v. Sweeney, 44 Ga. 463; 9 Am. Rep. 172; Madison v. Kelso, 32 Ind. 79; University of Ala. v. Walden, 15 Ala. 655; Carr v. St. Louis, 9 Mo. 191; Iowa City v. Foster, 10 Iowa 189; Cox v. Burlington, 43 Iowa 612; Love v. Mayor etc. of Jersey City, 40 N. J. L. 456; Warner v. People, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 272; 43 Am. Dec. 740; Gillespie v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 6 Daly (N. Y.) 286; Conner v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 285; Barker v. Pittsburgh, 4 Pa. St. 49; Smith v. Philadelphia Co., 2 Par. Eq. Cas. (Pa.) 293; Haswell v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 81 N. Y. 255; Long v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 81 N. Y. 425; Waldraour v. Memphis, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 431; Brazil v. McBride, 69 Ind. 244; Stevens v. Minneapolis, 29 Minn. 219; and see Crane v. Des Moines, 47 Iowa 105; Mayor etc. of Hoboken v. Gear, 27 N. J. L. 265; Butcher v. Camden, 29 N. J. Eq. 478; Green v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 503; 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 203; Devoy v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 169; Barrett v. New Orleans, 32 La. Ann. 101; Doolan v. Manitowoc, 48 Wis. 312.

An increase by a city council of the duties of a city officer does not imply any obligation to increase his salary. Covington v. Mayberry, 9 Bush (Ky.) 304.

An ordinance passed by a city, under the authority of its charter, providing that its officers shall receive salaries, and that the fees collected by them shall be paid into the city treasury, is valid, and repeals by implication a prior ordinance under which the officers retained certain fees as compensation for their services, but received no salaries. Des Moines v. Hillis, 55 Iowa 643.

Statutes, authorizing cities to provide by ordinance for the payment of salaries to their officers, in lieu of the fees theretofore retained by such officers under prior statutes, are not void as delegating powers of legislation to cities. Des Moines v. Hillis, 55 Iowa 643.

2. Dillon on Mun. Corp. § 232; citing Chase v. Lowell, 7 Gray (Mass.) 33; Caverly v. Lowell, 1 Allen (Mass.) 289; Chicago v. Edwards, 58 Ill. 252; and see McInery v. Galveston, 58 Tex. 334.

One who accepts a municipal office, under an agreement with the city to accept a certain sum as compensation, cannot after settling with the city on the basis agreed upon, demand more. Hobbs v. Yonkers, 32 Hun (N. Y.) 454.

But this rule does not apply when the employment was unauthorized, Emmert v. De Long, 12 Kan. 67; or when the services were voluntarily performed without contract, Jacksonville v. Aetna, etc., Engine Co. 20 Fla. 110.

3. See McCormick v. Syracuse, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 300; Davidson v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 13 Daly (N. Y.) 252; Fountain v. Mayor etc. of Jackson, 50 Mich. 15; Coleman v. Cadillac, 49 Mich. 322; Edgecomb v. Lewiston, 71 Me. 343; Calais v. Whidden, 64 Me. 249; People v. Detroit, 38 Mich. 636; O'Gorman v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 486; McInery v. Galveston, 58 Tex. 334; Whetmore v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 21; Taylor v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 87; People v. Police Com'rs, 46 Hun (N. Y.) 476.

A person accepting and entering into an office of a municipal corporation must be deemed to have notice of all the provisions of its charter, and can recover compensation for his services only in the manner therein provided. Baker v. Utica, 19 N. Y. 326.

Where a city marshal paid fees collected by him into the city treasury, under protest and with a claim that he was entitled to the same, he cannot recover them from the city, if they were in excess of those authorized by law to be so collected. Christ v. Des Moines, 53 Iowa 144.

d. LIABILITY OF THE MUNICIPALITY FOR THE ACTS OF ITS OFFICERS.—The usual rule of the non-liability of the public for the acts of its officers applies to municipal corporations with reference to the exercise of the powers intrusted to it as one of the political divisions of the State, to be exercised for the general welfare of the public as a part of the sovereign power of the State.¹

As a general principle, an ordinance by city councils to pay a municipal officer his salary should be founded upon another ordinance fixing the salary of the office; for public officers ought to have a fixed compensation, so as not to be dependent upon councils, who are but trustees of public functions, and ought not to vote money as matter of grace or favor. Smith v. Com., 41 Pa. St. 335.

As to the salaries of particular municipal officers under special charter and statutory provisions and the manner of their payment and collection, see generally Sacramento v. Bird, 15 Cal. 294; Redwood v. Grimmerstein, 68 Cal. 515; Dwight v. Palmer, 74 Ill. 295; Purdy v. Independence, 75 Iowa 356; Paducah v. Calhoun, 78 Ky. 323; Caverly v. Lowell, 1 Allen (Mass.) 289; Shepard v. Lawrence, 141 Mass. 479; Preble v. Bangor, 64 Me. 115; Rae v. Mayor etc. of Flint, 51 Mich. 526; Neiswanger v. Kansas City, 71 Mo. 36; Roberts v. Lincoln, 6 Neb. 352; Bingham v. Camden, 29 N. J. Eq. 464; State v. Woodruff, 39 N. J. L. 72; State v. Jersey City, 34 N. J. L. 429; Leveridge v. New York, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 263; People v. Stout, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 338; Phillips v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 483; People v. Green, 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 108; Pittman v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 6 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 89; 3 Hun (N. Y.) 370; Cregier v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 11 Daly (N. Y.) 171; People v. Seabury, 23 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 121; Eickhoff v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 49 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 47; Wines v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 9 Hun (N. Y.) 659; People v. Orange Co., 18 Hun (N. Y.) 19; Norris v. Brooklyn, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 296; Bird v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 33 Hun (N. Y.) 396; Dennat v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 66 N. Y. 585; Billings v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 68 N. Y. 413; Riley v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 96 N. Y. 331; People v. Starkweather, 42 N. Y. Super. Ct. 325;

Rothrock v. School District, 133 Pa. St. 487; Austin v. Johns, 62 Tex. 179; Cramer v. Stone, 33 Wis. 212; Powers v. Oshkosh, 56 Wis. 660.

1. Dargan v. Mobile, 31 Ala. 469; 70 Am. Dec. 505; School District v. Williams, 38 Ark. 454; Sherbourne v. Yuba Co., 21 Cal. 113; 81 Am. Dec. 151; Jewett v. New Haven, 38 Conn. 368; 9 Am. Rep. 382; Torbush v. Norwich, 38 Conn. 225; 9 Am. Rep. 395; Judge v. Meriden, 38 Conn. 90; Mead v. New Haven, 40 Conn. 72; 16 Am. Rep. 14; McElroy v. Albany, 65 Ga. 387; 38 Am. Rep. 791; Wilcox v. Chicago, 107 Ill. 334; 47 Am. Rep. 434; Robinson v. Evansville, 87 Ind. 334; 44 Am. Rep. 770; Summers v. Daviess Co., 103 Ind. 262; 53 Am. Rep. 512; Ogg v. Lansing, 35 Iowa 495; 14 Am. Rep. 499; Calwell v. Boone, 51 Iowa 687; 33 Am. Rep. 154; Greenwood v. Louisville, 13 Bush (Ky.) 226; 26 Am. Rep. 263; Prather v. Lexington, 13 B. Mon. (Ky.) 559; 56 Am. Dec. 585; Pollock v. Louisville, 13 Bush (Ky.) 221; 26 Am. Rep. 260; Stewart v. New Orleans, 9 La. Ann. 461; 16 Am. Dec. 218; Bennett v. New Orleans, 14 La. Ann. 120; Brown v. Vinalhaven, 65 Me. 402; 20 Am. Rep. 709; New Bedford v. Taunton, 9 Allen (Mass.) 207; Tindley v. Salem, 137 Mass. 171; 50 Am. Rep. 289; Fisher v. Boston, 104 Mass. 87; 6 Am. Rep. 196; Bryant v. St. Paul, 33 Minn. 289; 53 Am. Rep. 31; Rowland v. Gallatin, 75 Mo. 134; 42 Am. Rep. 395; Wheeler v. Cincinnati, 19 Ohio St. 19; 2 Am. Rep. 368; Maximilian v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 62 N. Y. 160; 20 Am. Rep. 468; Ham v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 70 N. Y. 459; Freeman v. Philadelphia, 13 Phila. (Pa.) 154; Elliott v. Philadelphia, 75 Pa. St. 347; 15 Am. Rep. 591; Ashby v. Erie, 85 Pa. St. 286; Welsh v. Rutland, 56 Vt. 228; 48 Am. Rep. 762; Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461; Wallace v. Menasha, 48 Wis. 79; 33 Am. Rep. 804; Grumbine v. Mayor etc. of Washington, 2 McArthur (D. C.) 578; 29 Am. Rep. 626; New York etc. Lumber Co. v. Brooklyn, 71 N. Y. 580; Diehm v. Cincinnati, 15 Ohio St. 305; Gibbes

v. Beaufort, 20 S. Car. 213; Detroit v. Laughna, 34 Mich. 402; Bamber v. Rochester, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 587; 63 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 103; Barney v. Lowell, 98 Mass. 570; and see Walcott v. Swampscott, 1 Allen (Mass.) 101; Smith v. Rochester, 76 N. Y. 506; Hafford v. New Bedford, 16 Gray (Mass.) 297; Haskell v. New Bedford, 108 Mass. 208; Schultz v. Milwaukee, 49 Wis. 254; 35 Am. Rep. 779; Doster v. Atlantic, 72 Ga. 233; Bladen v. Philadelphia, 60 Pa. St. 464; Elliott v. Philadelphia, 73 Phila. (Pa.) 128; Wild v. Patterson, 47 N. J. L. 406; Zollikoffer v. Havemeyer, 4 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 478; Waller v. Dubuque, 60 Iowa 541; Terhune v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 88 N. Y. 247; Theall v. Yonkers, 21 Hun (N. Y.) 265; Thompson v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 52 N. Y. Super. Ct. 427; Torney v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 12 Hun (N. Y.) 542; Quinn v. Patterson, 27 N. J. L. 35; O'Meara v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Daly (N. Y.) 425; Van Valkenburgh v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 109; Rogers v. Buffalo, 51 Hun (N. Y.) 637; Terry v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 8 Bosw. (N. Y.) 504.

Municipal corporations are not liable for the negligence, misconduct or wrongful acts of their police officers. Campbell v. Montgomery, 53 Ala. 527; 25 Am. Rep. 656; McElroy v. Albany, 65 Ga. 387; 33 Am. Rep. 791; Cook v. Macon, 54 Ga. 468; Harris v. Atlanta, 62 Ga. 200; Attaway v. Mayor etc. of Cartersville, 68 Ga. 740; Odell v. Schroeder, 58 Ill. 353; Calwell v. Boone, 51 Iowa 687; 33 Am. Rep. 154; Pollock v. Louisville, 13 Bush (Ky.) 221; 25 Am. Rep. 260; Buttrick v. Lowell, 1 Allen (Mass.) 172; 79 Am. Dec. 721; Corsicana v. White, 57 Tex. 382; Grumbine v. Mayor etc. of Washington, 2 McArthur (D. C.) 578; 29 Am. Rep. 626; Little v. Madison, 49 Wis. 605; 35 Am. Rep. 793; Hart v. Bridgeport, 13 Blatchf. (U. S.) 289. Or of their fire departments, Jewett v. New Haven, 38 Conn. 368; 9 Am. Rep. 382; Torbush v. Norwich, 38 Conn. 225; 9 Am. Rep. 395; Wilcox v. Chicago, 107 Ill. 334; 47 Am. Rep. 434; Robinson v. Evansville, 87 Ind. 334; 44 Am. Rep. 770; Greenwood v. Louisville, 13 Bush (Ky.) 226; 26 Am. Rep. 263; Burrill v. Augusta, 78 Me. 118; 57 Am. Rep. 788; Hafford v. New Bedford, 16 Gray (Mass.) 297; Fisher v. Boston, 104 Mass. 87; 6 Am. Rep. 196; Grube v. St. Paul, 34 Minn. 402; Welch v. Rutland, 56 Vt. 228; 48 Am. Rep. 762; Hayes v. Oshkosh, 33 Wis. 314; 14 Am. Rep. 760; Heller v. Mayor etc. of Sedalia, 53 Mo. 159; 14 Am. Rep. 444; McKenna v. St. Louis, 6 Mo. App. 320. But see Clarissy v. Metropolitan Fire Department, 7 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 352; or firemen, Jewett v. New Haven, 38 Conn. 368; 9 Am. Rep. 382; Torbush v. Norwich, 38 Conn. 225; 9 Am. Rep. 395. Or of its collectors, assessors and health officers, Ogg v. Lansing, 35 Iowa 495; 14 Am. Rep. 499; Liberty v. Hurd, 74 Me. 101; Mitchell v. Rockland, 52 Me. 118; 45 Me. 406; 41 Me. 363; 66 Am. Dec. 252; Spring v. Hyde Park, 137 Mass. 554; 50 Am. Rep. 334; Bryant v. St. Paul, 33 Minn. 289; 53 Am. Rep. 31; Alger v. Easton, 119 Mass. 77; Dunbar v. Boston, 112 Mass. 75; Rossire v. Boston, 4 Allen (Mass.) 57. And see Ham v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 70 N. Y. 459. Or of its magistrates, Grumbine v. Mayor etc. of Washington, 2 McArthur (D. C.) 578; 29 Am. Rep. 629. And it has been held that they are not liable for the negligence or misconduct of its selectmen, Cushing v. Bedford, 125 Mass. 526; or aldermen, Child v. Boston, 4 Allen (Mass.) 41; 81 Am. Dec. 680.

A city is not liable to an individual on whose land the superintendent of streets, with his men, has entered for the purpose of removing obstructions, in the mistaken belief that the land is a public way. Manners v. Haverhill, 135 Mass. 165.

The police commissioners of New Haven, being agents of the State and not of the city, the city is not under obligation to pay the rent of voting places for State and Federal elections, which the law imposes on these commissioners the duty of procuring. Perkins v. New Haven, 53 Conn. 214.

A county is not liable for the negligence of a physician for the poor, unless it is shown to have been negligent in his selection. Summers v. Daviess Co., 103 Ind. 262; 53 Am. Rep. 512.

The official counsel to a municipal corporation is not the counsel to the two boards of the common council merely, so as to be absolutely subject to their orders in respect to suits in which the city may be a party; but he is an agent or trustee for the whole body of citizens, and is ultimately responsible for his conduct to them; and in so far as he acts as an attorney or counselor of the court, he is subject to all the rules and the officers who exercise such power being the agents and servants of the public at large and not of the municipality, though appointed or elected by it;¹ neither can a municipal corporation be held liable for the acts of its officers and agents, which are wholly ultra vires and beyond the power of the corporation to perform,² nor for the illegal or unauthorized acts of its officers, though done colore officii, unless they were previously authorized or subsequently ratified.³ But for the acts of its officers, agents and servants committed in the execution of its general powers, regulations of the court, and is responsible to the court in like manner as any other attorney or counselor in like cases. Lowber v. Mayor etc. of N.Y., 5 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 325.

1. Prather v. Lexington, 13 B. Mon. (Ky.) 559; 56 Am. Dec. 585; and see cases cited in the preceding note.

2. Smith v. Rochester, 76 N. Y. 506; Herzo v. San Francisco, 33 Cal. 134; Browning v. Owen Co., 44 Ind. 11; Haag v. Vanderburgh Co., 60 Ind. 511; 28 Am. Rep. 654; Shelby Co. v. Deprez, 87 Ind. 509; Seele v. Deering, 79 Me. 343; 1 Am. St. Rep. 314; Morrison v. Lawrence, 98 Mass. 219; Cavanagh v. Boston, 139 Mass. 426; 52 Am. Rep. 716; Hilsdorf v. St. Louis, 45 Mo. 94; 100 Am. Dec. 352; Hunt v. Boonville, 65 Mo. 620; 27 Am. Rep. 290; Rowland v. Gallatin, 75 Mo. 134; 42 Am. Rep. 195; Mayor etc. of Albany v. Cunliff, 2 N. Y. 165; Cuyler v. Rochester, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 165; Hart v. Bridgeport, 13 Blatchf. (U. S.) 289; Cheaney v. Brookfield, 60 Mo. 53; Worley v. Columbia, 88 Mo. 100; O'Dell v. Schroeder, 58 Ill. 353.

A town is not liable for damages caused by flooding, caused by the erection of a dam by order of the selectmen, they having no legal authority to order its erection. Anthony v. Adams, 1 Met. (Mass.) 284; Walling v. Schreveport, 5 La. Ann. 660; 52 Am. Dec. 608.

A town is not liable for an injury caused by fireworks discharged by citizens, in violation of an ordinance, even though the council and officers took an active part in the celebration. See Ball v. Woodbine, 61 Iowa, 83; 47 Am. Rep. 805; Cumberland v. Willison, 50 Md. 128.

In determining the liability of a municipal corporation for the acts of its officers, an irregular exercise of granted power must be distinguished from a total want of power. Every person dealing therewith is charged with knowledge of the extent of the powers conferred by the charter. Treadway v. Schnauber, 1 Dak. Ter. 236.

Acts of city officers, under a void ordinance, are made good by a recognition of the void ordinance, in an ordinance, passed before the performance of those acts appropriating the proceeds of a sale authorized by the first ordinance. Holland v. San Francisco, 7 Cal. 361.

3. Trammell v. Russelville, 34 Ark. 105; 36 Am. Rep. 1; Mauley v. Atchison, 9 Kan. 358; Brown v. Vinalhaven, 65 Me. 402; 20 Am. Rep. 709; Woodcock v. Calais, 66 Me. 234; Thayer v. Boston, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 511; 31 Am. Dec. 157; McCarthy v. Boston, 135 Mass. 197; Smith v. Rochester, 76 N. Y. 510; Cheaney v. Brookfield, 60 Mo. 53; Donnelly v. Tripp, 12 R. I. 97; Everson v. Syracuse, 100 N. Y. 577; Barnes v. Philadelphia, 3 Phila. (Pa.) 409; and see Small v. Danville, 51 Me. 359; Emmert v. Delong, 12 Kan. 67; Barton v. New Orleans, 16 La. Ann. 317; Elliott v. Philadelphia, 75 Pa. St. 347; 45 Am. Rep. 591; Wakefield v. Newport, 60 N. H. 374; Ross v. Philadelphia, 115 Pa. St. 222; Ready v. Tuskaloosa, 6 Ala. 327; Chicago v. Shober etc. Lith. Co., 6 Ill. App. 560.

To render a municipal corporation liable for torts committed by persons claiming to act for it, or by its authority, it must appear they were expressly authorized to do the act by the municipal government, or that they were done bona fide in pursuance of a general authority to act for the municipality on the subject to which they relate, or that in either case the act was adopted and ratified by the corporation. Chicago v. McGraw, 75 Ill. 566.

A direction to an officer to remove obstructions in a certain alley does not make the city liable for the removal of property outside the limits of the alley, though the officer believed it to be inand for its own corporate or private benefit it is liable to the same extent as an individual or a private corporation;¹ and where a duty is imposed upon a municipal corporation by law, which is absolute and perfect, as distinguished from a judicial or discretionary one, the corporation is liable for the default or failure of its side of those limits. Hanvey v. Rochester, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 177.

A city or town is not liable for the wrongful acts of one acting as a pound-keeper, but who has never qualified by giving bonds as required by law. Rounds v. Bangor, 46 Me. 541.

1. Bailey v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531, 38 Am. Dec. 669; Byrnes v. Cohoes, 67 N. Y. 204; Rochester White Lead Works v. Rochester, 3 N. Y. 467; 53 Am. Dec. 316; Witt v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 Robt. (N. Y.) 248; Harrisburg v. Saylor, 87 Pa. St. 216; Thayer v. Boston, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 511; 31 Am. Dec. 157; Sprague v. Tripp, 13 R. I. 38; 43 Am. Rep. 11; Aldrich v. Tripp, 11 R. I. 141; 23 Am. Rep. 434; Durkee v. Kenosha, 59 Wis. 123, 48 Am. Rep. 480; Hildreth v. Lowell, 11 Gray (Mass.) 345; Johnson v. Municipality No. One, 5 La. Ann. 100; Lewis v. Elizabeth, 25 N. J. Eq. 298; Master-ton v. Mt. Vernon, 58 N. Y. 391; Wilde v. New Orleans, 12 La. Ann. 15; Hooe v. U. S., 1 Cranch (U. S.) 98; Perry v. Worcester, 6 Gray (Mass.) 544; Wal-dron v. Haverhill, 143 Mass. 582; and see Hunt v. Boonville, 65 Mo. 620; 27 Am. Rep. 299; Hecker v. Mayor etc., 18 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 369; 28 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 211; Dayton v. Pease, 4 Ohio St. 80; Clayburgh v. Chicago, 25 Ill. 535; 79 Am. Dec. 346; Chicago v. Dermody, 61 Ill. 431; Burns v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 371; 3 Hun (N. Y.) 212; Cumberland etc. Canal Co. v. Portland, 62 Me. 504; Boston v. Simmons, 150 Mass. 461; Williams v. Dunkirk, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 44; Ironton v. Kelly, 38 Ohio St. 50; Walsh v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 41 Hun (N. Y.) 299; Vincent v. Brooklyn, 31 Hun (N. Y.) 122; Wallace v. Muscatine, 4 Greene (Iowa) 373; Ross v. Madison, 1 Ind. 281; Cotes v. Davenport, 9 Iowa 527; Templin v. Iowa City, 14 Iowa 59; Mayor etc. of N. Y. v. Bailey, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 433; Lloyd v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 369; 55 Am. Dec. 347; Mayor etc. of Mem-phiss v. Lasser, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 757; Uhl v. Shelby Co. Taxing District, 6 Lea (Tenn.) 610; Torney v. Mayor etc.

of N. Y., 12 Hun (N. Y.) 542; Semple v. Mayor etc. of Vicksburg, 62 Miss. 63; 52 Am. Rep. 181; Sheldon v. Kala-mazoo, 24 Mich. 383; Sharp v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 256; Prather v. New Orleans, 24 La. Ann. 41; Pontchartrain R. Co. v. New Orleans, 27 La. Ann. 162; Peters v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 8 Hun (N. Y.) 405; People v. Green, 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 376; Howell v. Buffalo, 15 N. Y. 512. But see Condict v. Jersey City, 46 N. J. L. 157.

Water commissioners of a city are the agents of a city in such a sense as to render it liable for their negligence, although they were selected by the governor and senate. Bailey v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Hill (N. Y.) 531, 38 Am. Dec. 669; Clark v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 290; Aldrich v. Tripp, 11 R. I. 141, 23 Am. Rep. 434.

A city is liable for an injury caused by the negligence of its servants in laying its own gas pipes. Scott v. Mayor, 1 H. & N. 59.

A city is presumably responsible for acts of highway commissioners who are declared by statute to be always subject to the orders of the city council, as it is for acts of city officers. Inman v. Tripp, 11 R. I. 520; 23 Am. Rep. 520.

All persons aggrieved by the unauthorized acts and omissions of the public administrator have the same remedy against the city that they would have against an executor. They may sue the city directly, and need not seek an accounting in the surrogate's court. Glover v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 7 Hun (N. Y.) 232; and see Matthews v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 132.

If a city lets rooms in a public building with the services of a janitor, it is responsible for a personal injury caused by his negligence in the care of the building to one lawfully there by invitation of the hirer. Worden v. New Bedford, 131 Mass. 23; 41 Am. Rep. 185.

The legislature has power to relieve a municipal corporation from liability for any nonfeasance or misfeasance of the city officers. Gray v. Brooklyn, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 365.

officers or agents in its performance.¹ A municipal corporation, however, like an individual, is not liable for the negligence or wrongful acts of independent contractors, though engaged in the prosecution of its corporate or private affairs,² unless the necessary or probable effect of the work contracted for would be to injure others.³ In order to hold a municipal corporation liable for the acts of an officer, it must appear that he was its officer either generally or in respect to the particular wrong complained of and not an independent public officer,⁴ and that the act was

1. New York etc. Lumber Co. v. Brooklyn, 78 N. Y. 580; Mayor etc. of Helena v. Thompson, 29 Ark. 569; McLaughlin v. Municipality No. Two., 5 La. Ann. 504; Clayburgh v. Chicago, 25 Ill. 535; 79 Am. Dec. 346; Sexton v. St. Joseph, 60 Mo. 153; Mayor etc. of Albany v. Cunliff, 2 N. Y. 165; Lloyd v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 369; 55 Am. Dec. 347; McCullough v. Mayor etc. of Brooklyn, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 458; Lacour v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Duer (N. Y.) 406; Hickok v. Plattsburgh, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 427; Conrad v. Ithaca, 16 N. Y. 158; Fitz Patrick v. Slocum, 89 N. Y. 358; Barton v. Syracuse, 36 N. Y. 54; Sterrett v. Houston, 14 Tex. 153; Richmond v. Long, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461; Sawyer v. Corse, 17 Gratt. (Va.) 230; 99 Am. Dec. 49; Walling v. Mayor etc., 5 La. Ann. 660.

A city is liable for the negligence of its common council, acting in a special capacity by virtue of an act of the legislature, as commissioners for the improvement of a canal. New York etc. Lumber Co. v. Brooklyn, 71 N. Y. 580.

Where officers of a village refuse to interfere for the protection of a taxpayer who is to sustain injury from an obstruction threatened by a trespasser, he may bring suit and make the officers co-defendants with the trespasser. Overton v. Olean, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 47.

Where the duty is imposed upon the officer instead of the corporation, however, the contrary rule obtains. Maxmilian v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 62 N. Y. 160; 20 Am. Rep. 196; Gray v. Brooklyn, 2 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 267; Ham v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 37 N. Y. Super. Ct. 458; Martin v. Mayor etc. of Brooklyn, 1 Hill (N. Y.) 545; Sutton v. Board of Police, 41 Miss. 236.

2. Herrington v. Lansingburgh, 36 Hun (N. Y.) 598; Barry v. St. Louis, 17 Mo. 121; East St. Louis v. Giblin, 3 Ill. App. 219; Pritchard v. Keeper, 53

Ill. 117; Reed v. Allegheny, 79 Pa. St. 300; Kelley v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 291; Pack v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 8 N. Y. 222; Painter v. Pittsburgh, 46 Pa. St. 213. And see Treadwell v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Daly (N. Y.) 123; Kelly v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 11 N. Y. 432; McCarty v. Bauer, 3 Kan. 237.

But a city contracting with parties to perform certain work, and retaining a supervisory control over it with power to dismiss persons employed by the contractors, is liable for damages caused by negligence of the contractors. Chicago v. Joney, 60 Ill. 383; Chicago v. Dermody, 61 Ill. 431.

A stipulation in a city's contract, that her engineer shall have power to direct changes in the time and manner of conducting the work, is not such a reservation of power as will make her liable for the injury occasioned by the negligence of the contractor. Nor is additional liability incurred by the city's taking a bond to indemnify her against any loss or damage resulting from a failure of the contractor to perform his duty. Erie v. Caulkins, 85 Pa. St. 247; 27 Am. Rep. 642.

3. See Logansport v. Dick, 70 Ind. 65; 36 Am. Rep. 166; Sullivan v. Holyoke, 135 Mass. 273; Sewall v. St. Paul, 20 Minn. 511; Pearson v. Zahle, 78 Ky. 170; Broadwell v. Kansas City, 75 Mo. 213; 42 Am. Rep. 406.

The fact that a municipal corporation employs an independent contractor to remove a nuisance does not prevent a party injured from recovering from the corporation damages occasioned by the continuance of the injury after the employment of such contractor, and until abated. Vanderslice v. Philadelphia, 103 Pa. St. 102.

4. Dillon on Mun. Corp., § 974; and see New York etc. Lumber Co. v. Brooklyn, 71 N. Y. 580; Tindley v. Salem, 137 Mass. 171; 50 Am. Rep. 289; McCaughey v. Tripp, 12 R. I.

performed by such officer while in the legitimate exercise, either of some duty of a corporate nature devolving upon him by the authority of the corporation,¹ or of some absolute and mandatory corporate duty imposed upon the corporation by law,² and that it was not an act as to which discretionary powers of a public or legislative character, with authority to judge as to the emergency requiring their exercise, had been conferred upon him.³

449; Nash v. New York, 4 Sandf. (N. Y.) 1; Cincinnati v. Cameron, 33 Ohio St. 336; O'Leary v. Board of Com'rs, 79 Mich. 281; Worley v. Columbia, 88 Mo. 106.

Where a city is granted power by its charter to appoint an inspector of steam boilers within its limits, and to impose a penalty upon the maintaining of steam boilers not inspected, it is a public and not a private duty in the city to appoint an inspector, and it therefore cannot be held liable for damage resulting from the negligence of such inspector in performing his duties. Mead v. New Haven, 40 Conn. 72; 16 Am. Rep. 14.

A city, like a private corporation, is responsible for the act of its agents in borrowing money—that act involves no exercise of sovereign power. De Voss v. Richmond, 18 Gratt. (Va.) 338; 98 Am. Dec. 647.

Under the charter of Lowell, the board of aldermen is merely the agent of the city in constructing the sewers, and the city is liable for an injury occasioned by any negligence in the course of their construction, as here, on the part of workmen in blasting a ledge. Murphy v. Lowell, 124 Mass. 564.

Fellow Servants.—In Turner v. Indianapolis, 96 Ind. 51, it was held that the principle of the non-liability for injuries caused by the negligence of a fellow servant does not apply in favor of a municipal corporation. See also Coots v. Detroit, 75 Mich. 628; but see McDermott v. Boston, 133 Mass. 349; Flynn v. Salem, 134 Mass. 351; Toledo v. Com., 41 Ohio St. 149.

1. See Murphy v. Lowell, 124 Mass. 564; Hand v. Brookline, 126 Mass. 324; Thayer v. Boston, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 511; 31 Am. Dec. 157; Skinkle v. Covington, 1 Bush (Ky.) 617; Pittsburg v. Grier, 22 Pa. St. 54; Moulton v. Scarborough, 71 Me. 267; 36 Am. Rep. 308; Fennimore v. New Orleans, 20 La. Ann. 124; Henly v. Mayor, 2 Cl. & F. 331; Lee v. Sandy Hill, 40 N. Y. 442; Small v. Danville, 51 Me. 359.

But see Alcorn v. Philadelphia, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 130; Alcorn v. Philadelphia, 44 Pa. St. 348.

A certain town had never voted to accept the provisions of the statutes relating to road commissioners. Held, notwithstanding, that persons elected to the office were road commissioners de facto, so that the town was not liable for a trespass committed by them in the performance of their official duties. Clark v. Easton, 146 Mass. 43.

It is no defense to a suit against the city, by a laborer for his wages, that the city officer by whom the laborer was hired disobeyed the lawful orders of the city government by which he was directed to suspend the work. Chicago v. Roth, 26 Ill. 456.

2. See Sewall v. St. Paul, 20 Minn. 511; Kobs v. Minneapolis, 22 Minn. 159; Hewison v. New Haven, 37 Conn. 475; 9 Am. Rep. 342; Ready v. Tuscaloosa, 6 Ala. 327; Hilliard v. Richardson, 3 Gray (Mass.) 349; 63 Am. Dec. 743; Baker v. Boston, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 184; 22 Am. Dec. 421; Sheldon v. Kalamazoo, 25 Mich. 383; Eastman v. Meredith, 36 N. H. 295; 72 Am. Dec. 302; Chicago v. Joney, 60 Ill. 383; Chicago v. Robbins, 2 Black (U. S.) 418; Cowley v. Sunderland, 6 H. & N. 565; Rochester White Lead Co. v. Rochester, 3 N. Y. 463; 53 Am. Dec. 316; Altenuis v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 6 Duer (N. Y.) 446; Ellis v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Daly (N. Y.) 102.

A city is liable for the negligence of its agents in the performance of a public duty, if they are specially employed by the city for the particular work, and are not acting as public officers. Mulcairns v. Janesville, 67 Wis. 24.

The assumption by the corporation of the defense of one of its officers will not render it liable for his default. Rounds v. Bangor, 46 Me. 541; Buttrick v. Lowell, 1 Allen (Mass.) 172; 79 Am. Dec. 721.

3. Carroll v. St. Louis, 4 Mo. App. 191; Wilson v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Den. (N. Y.) 595; 43 Am. Dec. 71; Lacour v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Duer

e. LIABILITY OF THE OFFICER TO THE CORPORATION.—The usual rule of the non-liability to actions for damages in favor of the public, of a public officer, applies to public officers elected pursuant to statute by a municipal corporation;¹ but this principle, it is believed, does not apply where the corporation is injured by the negligence of its own corporate officers,² though even in such case, in the absence of statutory regulation, a recovery can be had for want of fidelity and integrity only, and not for honest mistakes.³

f. REMOVALS FROM OFFICE.—The power to remove an officer of a municipal corporation is incident to the corporation at large, and unless delegated to a select body or part, it must be exercised by the whole corporation at a duly convened corporate assembly;⁴ but the power to try all impeachments of city officers may be and usually is conferred upon some particular municipal officer or board, and if the judgment extends only to removal and disqualification to hold corporate office, such a delegation of power is not unconstitutional, as authorizing the exercise of judicial (N. Y.) 406; Cole v. Medina, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 218; Dewey v. Detroit, 15 Mich. 307; White v. Yazoo City, 27 Miss. 357; Griffin v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 9 N. Y. 456; 61 Am. Dec. 700; Hill v. Charlotte, 72 N. Car. 55; 21 Am. Rep. 451; Western College v. Cleveland, 12 Ohio St. 375; Campbell v. City Council, 53 Ala. 527; 25 Am. Rep. 656; Davis v. City Council, 51 Ala. 139; Carr v. Northern Liberties, 35 Pa. St. 324; 78 Am. Dec. 342; Grant v. Erie, 69 Pa. St. 420; 8 Am. Rep. 272; Kelly v. Milwaukee, 18 Wis. 83; Alton v. Hope, 68 Ill. 167; Joliet v. Verley, 35 Ill. 58; 85 Am. Dec. 342; Goodrich v. Chicago, 20 Ill. 445; Bennett v. New Orleans, 14 La. Ann. 120; Lawrence v. Freeland, 55 Hun (N. Y.) 610; Richmond v. Long, 72 Gratt. (Va.) 375; 94 Am. Dec. 461.

The city ordinance that authorizes firemasters, or the intendant, to pull down such houses, blow up such buildings, etc., as may be judged necessary in time of fire, gives these officers the right to judge whether it is necessary so to do. White v. City Council, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 572.

An action cannot be maintained against a city because of the fall of a dangerous wall left standing after a fire at a point remote from the public street, although the city may have possessed the power to compel the removal of the wall. Cain v. Syracuse, 95 N. Y. 83.

1. See Sherburne Parish v. Fiske, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 264; Hancock v. Haz- ard, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 112; 59 Am. Dec. 171; White v. Phillipson, 10 Met. (Mass.) 108; Lincoln v. Chapin, 132 Mass. 470; Trafton v. Alfred, 15 Me. 258; Kendall v. Stokes, 3 How. (U. S.) 87; Wilson v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 1 Den (N. Y.) 595; 43 Am. Dec. 719; Com. v. Genther, 17 S. & R. (Pa.) 135; Minor v. Mechanics' Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 46. And see, supra, this title, Duties of Public Officers; Liabilities of Public Officers.

2. Dillon on Mun. Corp., § 236.

3. See Palmer v. Carroll, 24 N. H. 314; Hedges v. Dam, 72 Cal. 520; People v. Lewis, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 73; Seaman v. Patten, 2 Cal. (N. Y.) 312; Rollins v. Board of Com'rs, 15 Colo. 103. And see cases above cited.

But in Blair v. Lantry, 21 Neb. 247, where a mayor and council drew an order on a fund in the absence of an appropriation, such action, under the law being illegal, it was held that, notwithstanding their good faith, they were liable to the city for the amount thus drawn.

4. State v. Jersey City, 1 Dutch. (N. J.) 536; State v. Chamber of Commerce, 20 Wis. 63; Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 539; Lord Bruce's Case, 2 Stra. 819; Rex v. Taylor, 3 Salk. 231; Rex v. Feversham, 8 T. R. 356; Fane's Case, Doug. 153.

The rule now is, with relation to municipal corporations as organized in this country, that the governing body has the right as such, as a common law powers by a legislative or municipal body.¹ The expulsion of a municipal officer does not disqualify him for re-election to the same office unless so provided by the charter,² and it has been held that an officer whose office was created under the implied power conferred by necessity can be removed only for cause, after due notice and opportunity to defend himself.³ Where the power to remove an officer is conferred by charter or statute, it must be strictly construed and its provisions accurately followed.⁴

incident of the powers of the municipality, to try its officers upon charges of official misconduct, and upon conviction to remove them. Richards v. Clarksburg, 30 W. Va. 491; Willard's Appeal, 4 R. I. 595; and see Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. Car. 125.

1. State v. Ramos, 10 La. Ann. 420; and see People v. Bearfield, 35 Barb. (N.Y.) 254; Langdon v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 27 Hun (N.Y.) 288; 63 How. Pr. (N.Y.) 134.

Under a charter allowing the mayor and council to appoint policemen to serve during their pleasure, their judicial action in discharging one for alleged malfeasance is conclusive on him; otherwise, if they merely act therein ministerially. Oliver v. Americus City Council, 69 Ga. 165.

The power of appointment of an officer, conferred by the legislature upon a city council, does not carry with it the power of removal, or to abridge the term of office. Caulfield v. State, 1 S. Car. 461.

See generally as to removals under particular charter and statutory provisions, Mayor etc. of Mobile v. Squires, 49 Ala. 339; Shaw v. Mayor etc. of Macon, 19 Ga. 468; Vason v. Augusta, 38 Ga. 542; Demarest v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 186; People v. French, 12 Hun (N.Y.) 254; People v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 16 Hun (N.Y.) 309; People v. Fire Comr's, 28 Hun (N.Y.) 495; People v. Starks, 33 Hun (N.Y.) 384; People v. Board of Fire Comr's, 43 Hun (N.Y.) 554; In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57 How. Pr. (N.Y.) 395; People v. Public Park Comr's, 60 How. Pr. (N.Y.) 130; In re Emmet, 65 How. Pr. (N.Y.) 266; People v. Board of Fire Comr's, 72 N. Y. 445; People v. Campbell, 82 N. Y. 247; People v. Mayor of N. Y., 82 N. Y. 491; People v. Brooklyn Fire Department Comr's, 103 N. Y. 370; People v. Campbell, 50

N. Y. Super. Ct. 82; State v. Newark, 46 N. J. L. 140.

2. State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536.

3. Willard's Appeal, 4 R. I. 595.

The common council of a West Virginia town or village possesses the common law power of removing its mayor from office for cause. Richards v. Clarksburg, 30 W. Va. 491.

In exercising his power of removing heads of departments for cause, the mayor acts judicially, and a writ of prohibition will lie against him, if he exceeds his jurisdiction. People v. Cooper, 57 How. Pr. (N.Y.) 416.

The mayor of Cincinnati has no power to remove from office the superintendent of police of that city, although the board which appointed him have been removed from office. State v. Hudson, 44 Ohio St. 137.

4. State v. Vincennes University, 5 Ind. 77; State v. Lingo, 26 Mo. 496; State v. Bryce, 7 Ohio, pt. 2, 82; State v. Chamber of Commerce, 20 Wis. 63; Reg. v. Sutton, 10 Mod. 76; Reg. v. Ricketts, 7 Ad. & El. 966; 34 E. C. L. 263. And see Madison v. Korbly, 32 Ind. 74; State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536; Com. v. Sutherland, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 145; Com. v. Shaver, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 338; State v. McGarry, 21 Wis. 496.

The charter of a city having provided for a board of police commissioners, and vested in them the power of removing the chief of police, only giving to the mayor the power of suspending the said officer for a short time, if the mayor removes the officer from his office he exceeds his power, and is responsible to the officer in a civil action for damages. Burch v. Hardwicke, 30 Gratt. (Va.) 24; 32 Am. Rep. 640.

The fact that a city of one class becomes a city of another class does not vacate the office of police judge, the statute not so providing. State v. White, 20 Neb. 37.

6. Court Officers.—See also COURTS.¹

a. CLERKS OF COURTS.²—The clerk is the amanuensis of the court, and must act by its authority in order to give validity to his proceedings.³ Except as specially provided for by law, a clerk

1. Vol. 4, p. 447.

2. Under the statutes of Pennsylvania, the clerks of the county and district courts, registers of wills and recorders of deeds, are not municipal but State officers, placed by the constitution of the State directly and exclusively under the control of the legislature. Smith v. Philadelphia, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 1.

3. Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore Co., 19 Md. 554; and see Kearney's Case, 13 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 459; 22 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 309.

Clerks, except in cases specially provided for by law, are authorized to administer oaths only in open court. State v. Isaac, 3 La. Ann. 359; Green-vault v. Farmers' etc. Bank, 2 Doug. (Mich.) 498.

The authority of a clerk of the court, in Virginia, to administer an oath out of court, only extends to cases in which, without regard to circumstances, the making of the affidavit is a necessary prerequisite to the performance of the official act which the clerk is called upon to perform. Com. v. Williamson, 4 Gratt. (Va.) 554.

Appointment or Election.—While in the absence of statutory provision the court would probably have power to appoint a clerk as a part of the machinery necessary to the exercise of its functions, their appointment or election has been generally provided for by statute, the provisions differing in different jurisdictions. See Bonner v. State, 7 Ga. 473; Leeman v. Hinton, 1 Duv. (Ky.) 37; Ex parte Lehman, 60 Miss. 967; Ex parte Camden Co., T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 191; State v. White, T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 123; Driscoll v. Jones (S. Dak. 1890), 44 N. W. Rep. 726; State v. Matthews, 94 Mo. 117; State v. Long, 17 Neb. 502; Harbeck v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 10 Bosw. (N. Y.) 366; Carolan v. McDonald, 15 Tex. 327; People v. Mobley, 2 Ill. 215; State v. Turk, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 287; Stevens v. Wyatt, 16 B. Mon. (Ky.) 546; State v. Cadle, 2 Greene (Iowa) 400; State v. Trull, 2 Treadw. (S. Car.) 766; Stonestreet v. Harrison, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 161; State v. Sims, 18 S. Car. 460; People v. Staton, 73 N. Car. 546; 21 Am.

Rep. 479; Reister v. Hemphill, 2 S. Car. 325; Com. v. Mather, 121 Mass. 65.

A clerk of the court of common pleas in Ohio must be appointed by the act of the court in open court; and the appointment must be entered on the minutes. But an order appointing a clerk may be rescinded before his bond is accepted, the oath administered etc. State v. Hamilton, 7 Ohio 143.

The appointment of a clerk in vacation must be confirmed by an order of the court at its next succeeding term, or the appointment will then cease to be of effect. State v. Chrisman, 2 Ind. 126.

Compensation.—Clerks of the court are usually compensated for their services by fees allowed by law for each designated act or service, though in some instances they are paid by a fixed salary. As to the amount of compensation allowed them for the various duties they are required to perform and the manner of its payment and how its collection can be enforced, see generally Branch Bank v. Thompson, 9 Ala. 295; McCord v. Boyd, 12 Ala. 760; Parker v. McGaha, 13 Ala. 344; Foster v. Blount, 18 Ala. 687; Com'rs Court v. Goldthwaite, 35 Ala. 704; South & North Ala. R. Co. v. Bradley, 84 Ala. 468; Desha Co. v. Jones, 51 Ark. 524; Dobbins v. Yuba Co., 5 Cal. 414; Bolander v. Gentry, 36 Cal. 127; 95 Am. Dec. 162; Burke v. Edgar, 67 Cal 182; Ball v. Duncan, 30 Ga. 938; Rutherford v. Jones, 12 Ga. 618; Neilsen v. Loudon, 83 Ga. 196; Carpenter v. People, 8 Ill. 147; Edgar Co. v. Mayo, 8 Ill. 82; Longwith v. Butler, 8 Ill. 74; Hoard v. Bulkley, 8 Ill. 154; Kerp v. Fuchs, 43 Ill. 492; Mason v. Holcomb, 73 Ill. 611; Cullom v. Dolloff, 94 Ill. 330; Daggett v. Ford Co., 99 Ill. 334; People v. Gross, 101 Ill. 343; People v. Toomey, 122 Ill. 308; Cook Co. v. Sennot, 125 Ill. 423; Wabash Co. v. Sivey, 16 Ind. 425; Ex parte McKee, 28 Ind. 100; Hancock Co. v. Mitchell, 93 Ind. 307; Taylor v. Washington Co., 110 Ind. 462; Ex parte Harrison, 112 Ind. 329; Culbertson v. Jefferson Co., 1 Greene (Iowa) 416; Dickerson v. Shelby, 2 Greene (Iowa) 460; Sprout v. Kelly, 37 Iowa 44; Peet v. White, 43 of the court cannot exercise judicial powers,¹ though judicial

- Iowa 400; Washington Co. v. Jones, 45 Iowa 260; Moore v. Mahaska Co., 61 Iowa 177; Packer v. Corlett, 71 Iowa 249; Palo Alto Co. v. Burlingame, 71 Iowa 201; Leavenworth Co. v. Keller, 6 Kan. 510; Bedilion v. Cowley Co., 27 Kan. 592; Com. v. Rodes, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 171; Morrison v. Rodes, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 20; Com. v. Rodes, 1 Dana (Ky.) 595; Bates v. Foree, 4 Bush (Ky.) 430; Fitzpatrick v. New Orleans, 27 La. Ann. 457; Bradford v. Jones, 1 Md. 351; Bowie v. Maryland etc. College, 27 Md. 268; State v. Carman, 27 Md. 706; Gardner v. Gardner, 2 Gray (Mass.) 434; Lord v. Essex Co., 98 Mass. 484; Mapes v. Olmsted Co., 11 Minn. 367; Armstrong v. Ramsey Co., 25 Minn. 344; Church v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 33 Minn. 410; Wilcox v. Sibley Co., 34 Minn. 214; Davenport v. Hennepin Co., 40 Minn. 335; Buckingham v. Smith, 23 Miss. 521; Burt v. Harwood, 39 Miss. 756; Myers v. Marshall Co., 55 Miss. 344; Patty v. Sparkman, 58 Miss. 76; Ex parte Thomas, 59 Miss. 522; Harris v. Buffington, 28 Mo. 53; Kretschmar v. St. Louis, 29 Mo. 124; State v. Auditor, 32 Mo. 222; In re Lewis, 52 Mo. 550; Thornton v. Thomas, 65 Mo. 272; Allen v. Cowan, 96 Mo. 193; Hubbard v. Texas Co., 101 Mo. 210; Ford v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 29 Mo. App. 616; State v. Silver, 9 Neb. 85; Washoe Co. v. Humboldt Co., 14 Nev. 123; Wilson Collegiate Inst. v. Van Horne, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 171; In re Post, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 365; Mallory v. Cortland Co., 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 531; Doubleday v. Broome Co., 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 533; Bright v. Chennango, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 242; Chambers v. Appleton, 47 N. Y. Super. Ct. 524; State v. Gwyn, Phill. (N. Car.) 445; Martin v. Chasteen, 75 N. Car. 96; State v. McConnell, 28 Ohio St. 589; McDonald v. Crusen, 2 Oregon 258; Jackson v. Siglin, 10 Oregon 93; Cohen v. Com., 6 Pa. St. 111; Hutchinson v. Com., 6 Pa. St. 124; Com. v. Hutchinson, 10 Pa. St. 466; Com. v. Steel, 8 Pa. St. 128; Steel v. Com., 18 Pa. St. 451; Cone v. Donaldson, 47 Pa. St. 363; Lyon v. McManus, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 167; Lyon v. Adams, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 443; Ramsey v. Alexander, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 338; Thomas v. Philadelphia Co., 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 64; Moore v. Porter, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 100; Baldwin v. Cash, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 425; Cash v. Baldwin, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 426; Pairo v. American Ins. Co., 8 W. & S. (Pa.) 374; Payran v. M'Williams, 9 W. & S. (Pa.) 154; Hyams v. Boyce, 1 McMull. (S. Car.) 95; Richland Co. v. Miller, 16 S. Car. 244; Carren v. Breed, 2 Coldw. (Tenn.) 465; Sible v. State, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 137; State v. Self, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 211; Avery v. State, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 328; Perkins v. State, 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 1; Head v. Barry, 1 Lea (Tenn.) 753; Lee v. Dameron, 1 Lea (Tenn.) 131; State v. Gaines, 4 Lea (Tenn.) 352; State v. Harkreader, 12 Lea (Tenn.) 456; Baxter v. Comptroller, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 122; State v. Henderson, 15 Lea (Tenn.) 274; Rice v. Turner, 1 Yerg. (Tenn.) 447; Dibrell v. Eastland, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 533; Ewing v. Lusk, 4 Yerg. (Tenn.) 459; Lucky v. Watkins, 8 Yerg. (Tenn.) 191; Stewart v. Crosby, 15 Tex. 513; State v. Norrell, 53 Tex. 427; Hallman v. Campbell, 57 Tex. 54; Hanrick v. Ake, 75 Tex. 142; Henry v. Tilson, 17 Vt. 479; Craigen v. Lobb, 12 Leigh (Va.) 627; Allen v. Com., 6 Gratt. (Va.) 529; Johnson v. MacCoy, 32 W. Va. 552; Hitchcock v. Merrick, 15 Wis. 522; Amy v. Shelby Co., 1 Flip. (U. S.) 104; Leach v. Kay, 2 Flip. (U. S.) 590; Cavender v. Cavender, 3 McCrary (U. S.) 383; In re Vermeule, 10 Ben. (U. S.) 1; U. S. v. Bassett, 2 Story (U. S.) 389; In re Goodrich, 4 Dill. (U. S.) 230; Ex parte Lee, 4 Cranch (C. C.) 197; Ex parte Prescott, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 146; Blair v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 11 Biss. (U. S.) 320; In re Woodbury, 17 Blatchf. (U. S.) 517; Clerk's Fees, Taney (U. S.) 453; Ex parte Plitt, 2 Wall Jr. (C. C.) 453; U. S. v. Hill, 120 U. S. 169; U. S. v. Averill, 130 U. S. 335; Blake v. Hawkins, 19 Fed. Rep. 204; U. S. v. Hill, 25 Fed. Rep. 375; Fagan v. Cullen, 28 Fed. Rep. 843; Blain v. Home Ins. Co., 30 Fed. Rep. 667; In re Moy Chee Kee, 33 Fed. Rep. 377; Strong v. U. S., 34 Fed. Rep. 17; McKinistry v. U. S., 34 Fed. Rep. 211; Goodrich v. U. S., 42 Fed. Rep. 392; Morrison v. Bernards, 35 Fed. Rep. 400; Pleasants v. U. S., 35 Fed. Rep. 270; Thomas v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 548; Erwin v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 470; Jones v. U. S., 39 Fed. Rep. 410; McDermott v. U. S., 40 Fed. Rep. 217; Hill v. U. S., 40 Fed. Rep. 441; Van Duzee v. U. S., 41 Fed. Rep. 571.
1. Frerson v. Harris, 5 Coldw.

functions, as, for instance, the power to tax costs in actions pending in the court of which he is an officer,¹ or the assessment of damages in case of default in such actions,² or to issue warrants for the arrest of persons who have been indicted,³ are in many instances and in many States conferred upon him by statutory enactment.⁴ The clerk is the legal custodian of the records and files of the court⁵ as well as of money or property coming into the hands of the court through the exercise of its judicial func-

(Tenn.) 146; 94 Am. Dec. 220; Succession of Tanner, 22 La. Ann. 91; Staley v. Sellers, 65 N. Car. 467; Bates v. Fayetteville Bank, 65 N. Car. 81; Johnson v. Com., 80 Ky. 377; Mason v. Fuller, 12 La. Ann. 68; Casby v. Thompson, 42 Mo. 133; Neda v. Fontenot, 2 La. Ann. 782; and see Brittain v. Mull, 94 N. Car. 595; Jones v. Desern, 94 N. Car. 32; People v. Loewy, 29 Cal. 264; Mason v. Hall, 12 La. Ann. 94; People v. Colleton, 59 Mich. 573; State v. Green, 34 La. Ann. 1027; Lyne v. Bank of Ky., 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 558.

The clerk has full power to grant letters of administration. The action of the judge is only required where opposition is made to the appointment of the applicant. Davie v. Stevens, 10 La. Ann. 496.

A court cannot delegate its judicial functions to its clerk, so that he may set aside a judgment on performance of a condition. Strickland v. Cox, 102 N. Car. 411.

The clerk has not, and the court cannot confer upon him authority to hear evidence, ex parte or otherwise, and try the question whether a demurrer or answer has been served upon the opposite attorney. The court alone can try such a question. Oliphant v. Whitney, 34 Cal. 25.

1. See Officers of Court v. Fisk, 7 How. (Miss.) 403; Williams v. Jones, 2 Hill (S. Car.) 555; Ellison v. Stevenson, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 271. But see Hair v. Logan, 10 Ala. 431.

He may revise and amend the taxation of costs, without an order of court, at any time before the proceedings are recorded; after that his power ceases, and the taxation can be amended only under an order of court. Williams v. Jones, 2 Hill (S. Car.) 555.

A clerk has no authority to insert, in a bill of fees, a charge for sheriffs' commissions, when the sheriff himself makes no such charge in his return. Bryans v. Buckmaster, 1 Ill. 408.

2. See Prentiss v. Spalding, 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 84.

But he has no authority to enter judgment for a sum other than that called for by the verdict and the statute. Robostelli v. New York etc. R. Co., 34 Fed. Rep. 507.

The functions exercised by a clerk in entering judgment upon default for the amount claimed, under a statute authorizing him so to enter it, in certain cases, are ministerial, not judicial functions. Graydon v. Thomas, 3 Oregon 250.

3. In re Durant, 60 Vt. 176; see Yonge v. Broxson, 23 Ala. 684; Jacobs v. Measures, 13 Gray (Mass.) 74; Smith v. Morse, 2 Cal. 524.

The clerk of the city court of Charleston has authority to issue commissions for the examination of witnesses. Haviland v. Simons, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 338; and see Goody v. Corlies, 1 Strobb. (S. Car.) 199.

4. See Gerald v. Gerald, 5 La. Ann. 245; Spencer v. Credle, 102 N. Car. 68; Durham etc. R. Co. v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 106 N. Car. 16; State v. Smith, 1 Oregon 250; Gerald v. Gerald, 5 La. Ann. 245.

A deputy prothonotary cannot appoint referees under the Delaware act of assembly to bind lands. Carlisle v. Carlisle, 2 Harr. (Del.) 318.

5. Cameron v. Savage, 40 Ill. 76; Anonymous, 40 Ill. 77. And see Lucky v. Watkins, 8 Yerg. (Tenn.) 191; King v. Penn, 43 Ohio St. 57; Wooster v. McGee, 1 Tex. 17.

The office of clerk is not necessary to the existence of a court. The court may keep its own minutes and make its own adjournments without a clerk. Mealing v. Pace, 14 Ga. 596.

No paper is "filed" unless it has the proper indorsement of a clerk. Merely placing it in the court-papers is no "filing." Amy v. Shelby Co., 1 Flip. (U. S.) 104; and see Baker v. Snyder, 58 Cal. 617.

tions;¹ and he is required to keep the minutes of the court,² make its adjournments,³ and it may be generally stated that it is his duty to relieve the court of all its clerical or mechanical labor not calling for the exercise of its judicial discretion, and judgment,⁴ and besides the powers and duties originally inherent in the office, other and additional functions have been conferred by

1. See Mazygk v. M'Ewen, 2 Bailey (S. Car.) 28; Murray v. Charles, 5 Ala. 678; Elliott v. Jones, 47 Iowa 124; State v. Watson, 38 Ark. 96; Davis v. Bell, 57 Miss. 320; Waters v. Carroll, 9 Verg. (Tenn.) 102; Annsworth v. Scotten, 29 Ind. 495; State v. Connelly, 104 N. Car. 794.

A clerk of a court has no right to employ money deposited in his office for his own purposes. Mott v. Pettit, 1 N. J. L. 298; Prewett v. Marsh, 1 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 17; 21 Am. Dec. 645.

A fund in custodia legis, controlled by, and subject to the orders and decrees of the chancery court, cannot be paid out by the clerk and master to any one, except in obedience to the order of the court; and a party cannot resort to a different forum and recover of the clerk and master of the chancery court and sureties, the money, and thus oust the chancery court of its jurisdiction of the same. Craig v. Governor, 3 Coldw. (Tenn.) 244; In re Kellinger, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 62; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Walworth, 1 N. Y. 433; Rountree v. Barnett, 69 N. Car. 73.

Clerks of circuit courts are not authorized by law to receive money upon judgments, executions, or replevin bonds of which the law makes them custodians; and a practice of that kind, though general, would confer no right upon such officials to assume such agency. A payment to a clerk of such demands, unless authorized by the party, or especially directed by a court having control of the fund, furnishes no protection to the party making the payment. Durant v. Gabby, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 91; Chinn v. Mitchell, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 92.

2. See Boardman v. Paige, 11 N. H. 431; Smith v. Cumins, 52 Iowa 143; Day v. Graham, 6 Ill. 436; Ellis v. Bristol Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 370; Mealing v. Pace, 14 Ga. 596; Crowell v. Deen, 21 Ill. App. 363; Dibrell v. Eastland, 3 Verg. (Tenn.) 533.

A clerk commits a breach of his bond, if he fails to insert in a transcript of a record anything properly belonging to it. Com. v. Chambers, 1 Dana (Ky.) 12.

But a clerk of the circuit court has no authority to enter, on his own motion, any decree not warranted by the entries upon the judge's calendar. Smith v. Cumins, 52 Iowa 143.

The record which the clerk is required to make of all the proceedings in a suit, is the final record of the cause, answering to the judgment roll of the common law, and is the only legal evidence of the judgment, to be established by the production of the record itself, an examined copy, or a copy attested by the clerk. Ansley v. Carlos, 9 Ala. 973.

The clerk is not bound to enter any rule ordered by the court in a case, however, unless the attorney requests him to do so, and furnishes him with a draft of the rule, or a sufficient memorandum to enable him to enter it. Thompson v. Pippitt, 18 N. J. L. 176; and see State v. Wood, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 23; Levin v. Hanley, Wright (Ohio) 588.

3. See Mealing v. Pace, 14 Ga. 596. In Massachusetts the clerk in vacation may strike out an entry that judgment was entered by consent, and may continue the case under the general rule, to be dealt with at subsequent terms like other continued cases. Cowley v. McLaughlin, 137 Mass. 221.

Under Georgia Code, § 3242, it is only where an unavoidable accident causes the absence of the judge that the clerk of the superior court or his deputy can adjourn an adjourned term from day to day for two days. Norrie v. McCullough, 74 Ga. 602.

4. See Hodges v. Holeman, 5 Dana (Ky.) 136; Spencer v. Credle, 102 N. Car. 68; Roberts v. People, 9 Colo. 458; Morrison v. Silverburgh, 13 Ill. 551; The Salomoni, 29 Fed. Rep. 534; and see also cases cited supra, this title, Compensation.

The office of the clerk of a county court is essentially ministerial in its character. So far as the entry of the orders of the court is concerned, he is without discretion, and is not guilty of statute differing largely in their nature in almost if not every jurisdiction in which they were enacted.¹

It is a duty of the clerk of the court, the performance of which may be enforced by mandamus,² and for a breach of which he is liable in an action for damages to the party injured,³ to permit all persons having an interest in particular public records in his office to inspect and copy them at reasonable times and subject to reasonable regulations.⁴ Mere idle curiosity, however, is a misdemeanor in making such entries, although the orders of the persons assuming to be the justices of said court were not authorized by law. State v. Bowen, 41 Mo. 217.

The entry of a default by the clerk in a case authorized by the statute, is a ministerial act, and the disqualification of the judge of his court to try or render judgment in the case does not disqualify the clerk from performing it; but under California Stat. 1864, 399, in a tax collection case, the entry is a work of supererogation. People v. De Carrillo, 35 Cal. 37.

A clerk may issue a warrant of attachment in an action wherein he is plaintiff, on making the necessary affidavit. His act is a ministerial one only. Evans v. Etheridge, 96 N. Car. 42.

1. As to such powers and duties see generally Stevenson v. O'Hara, 27 Ala. 362; Clark Co. v. Scott, 21 Ark. 467; Smith v. Morse, 2 Cal. 524; People v. Thurber, 13 Ill. 554; Hughes v. Streeter, 24 Ill. 647; 76 Am. Dec. 777; Seymour v. Haines, 104 Ill. 557; Carpenter v. Montgomery, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 415; Anderson v. Sutton, 2 Duv. (Ky.) 480; Com. v. Craig, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 45; Hockaday v. Com., 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 13; Laha v. Daly, 1 Bush (Ky.) 221; Vance v. Vanarsdale, 1 Bush (Ky.) 504; Lyne v. Bank of Ky., 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 558; Neda v. Fontenot, 2 La. Ann. 782; State v. Walton, 24 La. Ann. 115; Rodemer v. Detmold, 9 Gill (Md.) 249; Hammond v. Norris, 2 Har. & J. (Md.) 132; Washington Co. v. Nesbitt, 6 Md. 468; State v. Jones, 8 Md. 88; Atwell v. Grant, 11 Md. 101; Magruder v. Tuck, 25 Md. 217; State v. Barrett, 40 Minn. 65; Officers of Court v. Fisk, 7 How. (Miss.) 403; Ayres v. Taylor, 25 Miss. 200; Coonce v. Munday, 3 Mo. 373; State v. Maccauig, 8 Neb. 215; In re Clerk's Fees, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 593; Rhodes v. Buie, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 524; Fite v. Lander, 7 Jones (N. Car.) 247; Maxwell v. Blair, 95 N. Car. 317;

Topping v. Windley, 99 N. Car. 4; Spencer v. Credle, 102 N. Car. 68; Sharpe v. Connelly, 105 N. Car. 87; State v. Merry, 34 Ohio St. 137; Stephens v. Downey, 53 Pa. St. 424; Haviland v. Simons, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 338; Gooday v. Corlies, 1 Strobh. (S. Car.) 199; State v. Jones, 5 Strobh. (S. Car.) 155; Barcroft v. Snodgrass, 1 Coldw. (Tenn.) 430; State v. Hamilton, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 47; State v. Jones, 2 Lea (Tenn.) 716; State v. Cole, 6 Lea (Tenn.) 492; State v. Brady, 1 Swan (Tenn.) 36; Carlee v. Smith, 8 Tex. 134; Smith v. Wilson, 15 Tex. 132; Com. v. Williamson, 4 Gratt. (Va.) 554; Jones v. U. S., 39 Fed. Rep. 410.

2. Boylan v. Warren, 39 Kan. 301; 7 Am. St. Rep. 551.

3. Lum v. McCarty, 39 N. J. L. 287; Lyman v. Windsor, 23 Vt. 575; Lyman v. Edgerton, 29 Vt. 305; 70 Am. Dec. 415.

4. See Bun v. People, 7 Colo. 202; Buck v. Collins, 51 Ga. 395; 21 Am. Rep. 236; Boylan v. Warren, 39 Kan. 301; 7 Am. St. Rep. 551; In re McLean, 8 Rep. 813; State v. Rachac, 37 Minn. 372; State v. Hoblitzelle, 85 Mo. 624; State v. Williams, 96 Mo. 13; People v. Richards, 99 N. Y. 620; Lum v. McCarty, 39 N. J. L. 287; Fleming v. Hudson Co., 30 N. J. L. 280; Hanson v. Eichstaedt, 69 Wis. 538.

The injury for which damages can be recovered must have been the proximate result of the refusal to permit the records to be inspected. Lyman v. Edgerton, 29 Vt. 305; 70 Am. Dec. 415.

Those who are in the business of making and furnishing abstracts of titles to others for compensation, are entitled to the right of inspection of public records for that purpose, subject however to such reasonable rules as may be prescribed by the officer having custody of the records, to secure their safety and convenient access to them by others. State v. Rachac, 37 Minn. 372.

not such an interest as will support the right of inspection.¹ So he may be compelled by mandamus or order of the court to issue all process required by law to be issued by him,² or he may be held liable upon his official bond for damages for his refusal,³ and if he misplaces papers presented to him which it is his duty to file, he is chargeable with official negligence.⁴ Where a clerk is required to furnish copies of records upon the payment of a prescribed fee, his refusal may be made the subject of an action for damages,⁵ or a mandamus may issue to compel the performance of such duty,⁶ and he will be held liable for a failure to use reasonable diligence in the preparation of such copies.⁷ So if he receives money or property in his official capacity and unlawfully converts or withholds it, he is liable on his official bond,⁸ without regard to whether he had a right to distribute or dispose of it or

1. Randolph v. State, 82 Ala. 527; 60 Am. Rep. 761; and see Burton v. Tuite, 78 Mich. 363.

2. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. Car. 143; and see Patterson v. Wilkins, Wright (Ohio) 501.

Motion is the most prompt and economical remedy to compel a clerk of court to issue a writ or process which he refuses to a party entitled to have it; though an action for damages or a mandamus is also maintainable. Moore v. Muse, 47 Tex. 210.

A general order of the circuit court, granting to the clerk twenty days, in addition to the time allowed by the statute, for issuing executions, excuses the clerk for failing to issue executions within the time prescribed by the statute. Davidson v. Wiley, 31 Ala. 452.

3. Gooch v. Gregory, 65 N. Car. 142; State v. Merritt, 65 N. Car. 558; McFarland v. Burton (Ky. 1890), 12 S. W. Rep. 336; Williamson v. Kerr, 88 N. Car. 10.

In California, a bill in equity will not lie to compel the clerk of the court to issue an execution on a money judgment, as there is a perfect remedy by action on his bond. Goodwin v. Glazer, 10 Cal. 333.

In some jurisdictions a clerk of court cannot, without authority, issue execution or process to execute a decree. Wall v. Woolbright, 71 Ga. 256; Wickliff v. Robinson, 18 Ill. 145; Campbell v. Townsend, 26 Tex. 511.

4. Rosenthal v. Davenport, 38 Minn. 543; Strain v. Babb, 30 S. Car. 342.

Negligence on the part of the person presenting papers for filing is not implied from the fact that papers relating to different matters are presented in one package without explanation, they being properly indorsed so as to show their character. Rosenthal v. Davenport, 38 Minn. 543.

5. Boyd v. Burke, 14 How. (U. S.) 575; and see Flemming v. Hudson Co., 30 N. J. L. 280; Rowland v. McGee, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 439.

6. Strong's Case, Kirby (Conn.) 345; Silver v. People, 45 Ill. 225; Ex parte Goodell, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 325.

7. Chase v. Heaney, 70 Ill. 268; Smith v. Holmes, 54 Mich. 104; Clark v. Marshall, 34 Mo. 429; Savings Bank v. Ward, 100 U. S. 195.

Where the clerk of the court neglected to copy the return of a sheriff upon a summons, by reason of which judgment was reversed by the appellate court, and the plaintiff lost his debt, the clerk is liable in an action for damages for such neglect. Clark v. Wilcox, 31 Tex. 322.

But no action will lie against a clerk of the district court, in charge of the records of mechanics and other liens, for a false certificate furnished a purchaser that there were no liens against the property purchased, where the only lien is one for materials furnished the grantor, which was filed against the land after it had been conveyed to the purchaser with warranty, for he cannot be injured by such certificate. United States Wind Engine etc. Co. v. Linville, 43 Kan. 455.

8. Henry v. State, 98 Ind. 381; State v. Norwood, 12 Md. 177; Thomas v. Connelly, 104 N. Car. 342; Schnur v. Schnur, 47 Wis. 632; Scott Co. v. McFadden, 88 Ind. 333; Smith v. Johnson, 5 N. J. L. 511; State v. Robinson, 2 Ind. 40; Steptoe v. Auditor, 3 Rand. (Va.) 221; Little v. Richard- not;¹ and clerks of the court are liable in damages to the person injured for any negligence or omission in the performance of any duty imposed upon them which is ministerial in its nature.² But due care is all he is required to exercise, and he is not liable for a mere mistake in judgment,³ nor is he liable officially for de-son, 6 Jones (N. Car.) 305; State v. Record, 56 Ind. 107; Wilmington v. Nutt, 78 N. Car. 177; Havens v. Lathene, 75 N. Car. 505; State v. Blair, 76 N. Car. 78; Billings v. Teeling, 40 Iowa 607. And see Taunton v. Sproat, 2 Gray (Mass.) 428; State v. Cole, 13 Lea (Tenn.) 367; Vogel v. St. Louis, 84 Mo. 432; Sullivan v. State, 121 Ind. 342; Yohe v. Com. (Pa.), 13 Atl. Rep. 546; Watson v. Smith, 26 Pa. St. 395; Ide Co. v. Woods, 79 Iowa 148; Summey v. Johnston, 1 Winst. (N. Car.) 98.

One who, as clerk of a court, has officially received a fine imposed by the court, cannot question the validity of the fine or his official duty in regard to it. Casper v. State, 47 Wis. 535.

A clerk is not responsible, however, for money paid to his deputy, without the intervention of the court, by a defendant. Otherwise if the money be paid, in like manner, to himself. Stuart v. Madison, 1 Call (Va.) 481.

Where judgment is had upon a note, the surety will not be entitled to a motion against the clerk of the court for failing to pay over to him, for his reimbursement, moneys received on the judgment from the principal, after the surety has satisfied the same by the payment of the proper amount to the judgment creditor. Allen v. Wood, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 401.

1. Henry v. State, 98 Ind. 381. See Bowers v. Fleming, 67 Ind. 541.

2. See Williams v. Hart, 17 Ala. 102; Collins v. McDaniels, 66 Ga. 203; Spain v. Clements, 63 Ga. 786; Billings v. Lafferty, 31 Ill. 318; Governor v. Dodd, 81 Ill. 163; Hubbard v. Switzer, 47 Iowa 681; Haverly v. McClellan, 57 Iowa 182; Parkes v. Davis, 16 Iowa 20; Anderson v. Johett, 14 La. Ann. 624; Maxwell v. Pike, 2 Me. 8; Rosenthal v. Davenport, 38 Minn. 543; McNutt v. Livingston, 7 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 641; Brown v. Lester, 13 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 392; Brock v. Hopkins, 5 Neb. 231; Ryan v. State Bank, 10 Neb. 524; Wright v. Wheeler, 8 Ired. (N. Car.) 184; Topping v. Windley, 99 N. Car. 4; Work v. Hoofnagle, 1 Yeates (Pa.) 506; Pass v. Dib- rell, 8 Verg. (Tenn.) 470; Wright v. Shelby Co., 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 145; Ellis v. Rogers, 2 Swan (Tenn.) 64; Auditor v. Nicholas, 2 Munf. (Va.) 31; Russell v. Clayton, 3 Call (Va.) 41; Munroe v. Webb, 4 Munf. (Va.) 73. But see Com. v. Thompson, 2 Bush (Ky.) 559.

Where the clerk of a court of law has, by misconduct, enabled one of two judgment creditors to gain an improper preference, he will be liable, on his official bond, to the other creditor, for the loss so sustained by such creditor. Bank of Newbern v. Jones, 2 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 284.

If a clerk omits to set aside an office judgment, when directed to do so by the defendant's attorney, equity will relieve against the omission. Mayo v. Bentley, 4 Call (Va.) 528.

The clerk of the probate court was ordered to sell property of an estate, in order to effect a partition among the heirs; he made the sale accordingly, and took a note, payable to himself and his successors for the purchase money. The heirs sued the purchasers and the clerk, praying they might have judgment against the purchaser for the amount due; and against the clerk for any amount he might have collected; and if the note had become worthless, by the neglect of the clerk, against him for the amount so permitted to be lost. It was held that the suit was well brought. Watts v. Robison, 6 Tex. 206.

In a suit against a clerk of court for refusing to record a document, it was held on a general demurrer, that it was essential either to aver that the appellee was at the time the clerk of the district court, or else that he was required by law to record such instrument. George v. Vaughn, 55 Tex. 129.

3. Brock v. Hopkins, 5 Neb. 231; Danforth v. Rupert, 11 Iowa 547; Clevenger v. Clevenger, 1 Heisk. (Tenn.) 105. And see McFarland v. Burton, (Ky. 1890), 12 S. W. Rep. 336. But see Greenlee v. Sudderth, 65 N. Car. 470.

When the clerk of an inferior court has performed his duty in preparing and sending to the supreme court the transcript of a case, and such transcript fault in the performance of acts to perform which no positive and mandatory duty has been imposed upon him;¹ and as a general rule he is not liable for the omission to take any step required in the progress of an action pending in his court, in the absence of a request on the part of the interested party to do so.² It is the duty of the court to see that the clerk performs his duties.³ The clerk is often prohibited from acting as attorney, counsel or agent for a litigant in his court.⁴

b. COURT ATTENDANTS.—(See SHERIFFS.)

7. Police Officers.—Police officers are officers of the State rather than of the municipality in which they exercise the duties of their office,⁵ and the office is a statutory creation, the officer having only such powers as are expressly conferred or necessarily inferred from the functions and duties of his office.⁶ Where all the powers of constables as conservators of the peace are conferred upon police officers, they are authorized, in a proper case, to arrest upon view without a warrant and detain the person arrested has been lost, the clerk will not be compelled to prepare another without his fee. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Ordway, 8 Lea (Tenn.) 558.

1. See M'Alister v. Scrice, 7 Yerg. (Tenn.) 277; 27 Am. Dec. 504; State v. Norwood, 12 Md. 177; Carey v. State, 34 Ind. 105; People v. Leaton, 25 Ill. App. 45; Waters v. Carroll, 9 Yerg. (Tenn.) 102; Bringolf v. Burt, 44 Iowa 184.

Where a clerk of a court refused to issue more than one execution on a judgment, and the statute was silent as to the number of executions which might be issued, it was held that he was not liable for a breach of his official duty. State v. Ruland, 12 Mo. 264.

It is not a breach of the condition of the official bond of the clerk of the State circuit court that he transmitted to the appellate an appeal bond which omitted the name of one of the appellees. The clerk's duty, under the Illinois statute, is to approve the sufficiency of the security, but otherwise he has nothing to do with the sufficiency of the bond. People v. Leaton, 121 Ill. 666.

2. Badham v. Jones, 69 N. Car. 665; Ford v. Brooks, 35 La. Ann. 151.

3. Alexander v. Marshall, 3 Head (Tenn.) 475.

The county court may, on omission of the circuit court to do so, compel the clerk of the circuit court to render and adjust his official accounts; also may compel the county recorder to render and adjust his. Lee Co. v. Abrahams, 31 Ark. 571.

It is not a misdemeanor in office for the clerk of a court to obey the directions of the justices thereof, sitting as a court, although their term of office has expired, and they are sitting on a day to which the court has not adjourned, and the clerk has knowledge that their successors have been commissioned. State v. Hixon, 41 Mo. 210.

4. Kirkland v. Texas Express Co., 57 Miss. 316; Carlisle v. Dodge, 5 N. H. 386. See Chase v. Ostrom, 50 Wis. 640.

A statute which prohibited county recorders and other officers from practicing law, is constitutional. McCracken v. State, 27 Ind. 491.

5. Farrell v. Bridgeport, 45 Conn. 191; Burch v. Hardwicke, 30 Gratt. (Va.) 24; 32 Am. Rep. 640; and see Sanner v. State, 2 Tex. App. 458.

In People v. Henry, 62 Cal. 557, it was held that a police judge, though a judicial officer, is also a municipal officer.

6. Com. v. Dugan, 12 Met. (Mass.) 233; Com. v. Hastings, 9 Met. (Mass.) 259.

The power to appoint policemen is implied under authority to make rules necessary to good order and public peace. State v. Sims, 16 S. Car. 486.

A defendant, indicted for assaulting a police officer, and obstructing him in the discharge of the duties of his office, cannot defend by showing that he had never been sworn; the law not requiring police officers to be sworn. Com. v. Dugan, 12 Met. (Mass.) 233. And see Buttrick v. Lowell, 1 Allen (Mass.) 172; 79 Am. Dec. 721; Mitchell v.

until he can be brought before a magistrate;¹ but statutes conferring such power, being in derogation of personal liberty, are to be strictly construed, and their provisions accurately followed,² and such power can be exercised only when the offense was committed in the officer's view.³ A municipal council may authorize arrests on view without a warrant for violations of its by-laws, when not inconsistent with the general statutes or policy of the State.⁴

XIX. DURATION OF THE OFFICER'S AUTHORITY.—The word "term," when used with reference to the tenure of office, ordinarily refers to a fixed and definite time and does not apply to appointive offices held at the pleasure of the appointing power.⁵ If no definite time is fixed the term will be deemed to begin at the date of election or appointment⁶ and remain in force until revoca-

Rockland, 52 Me. 118; People v. Board of Police, 19 N. Y. 188.

1. Mitchell v. Lemon, 34 Md. 176; Griffin v. Flock, 11 Daly (N. Y.) 274; Prell v. McDonald, 7 Kan. 426; 12 Am. Rep. 423; Com. v. Hastings, 9 Met. (Mass.) 259; Taylor v. Strong, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 384; and see Dilcher v. Raah, 73 Ill. 266. See also ARREST (CRIMINAL CASES), vol. 1, p. 730.

Under Arkansas Acts 1873, § 52, giving the chief of police of Little Rock like power with sheriffs, he may pursue a person charged with a crime in that city, and arrest him in another county within a few days. Chrisman v. Carney, 33 Ark. 316.

When it is shown that a policeman has been duly appointed by the proper authority of a city, whose charter confers on the common council the power to establish, organize, and maintain a city watch, and prescribe the duties thereof and to regulate the general police of the city, it will be presumed, in the absence of evidence as to the power given to such policeman by the city ordinances, that he possesses the ordinary powers of peace officers at common law. Doering v. State, 49 Ind. 56.

2. Low v. Evans, 16 Ind. 486; Pow v. Becker, 3 Ind. 475; Vandever v. Mattocks, 3 Ind. 479; Ramsey v. Foy, 10 Ind. 493; State v. Dale, 3 Wis. 795; 1 Bishop Crim. Proc. (3rd ed.) § 184.

In the absence of a statutory authority, a policeman is not authorized to arrest for a violation of a city ordinance not involving breach of the peace, merely because it occurs in his view. Hennessey v. Connolly, 13 Hun (N. Y.) 173.

3. Main v. McCarty, 15 Ill. 441; Pow v. Beckner, 3 Ind. 475; Roddy v. Finnegan, 43 Md. 490; Com. v. Carey, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 246; Com. v. McLaughlin, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 615; Quinn v. Heisel, 40 Mich. 576; Roberts v. State, 14 Mo. 138; Stage Horse Cases, 15 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 51; White v. Kent, 11 Ohio St. 550; Fox v. Gaunt, 3 B. & Ad. 798; 23 E. C. L. 187.

In an action for assault and battery and false imprisonment against a superintendent of police, who directed the imprisonment, the defendant cannot escape upon the ground that the officer who had charge of the plaintiff violated his duty in obeying the direction. In contemplation of law, the defendant did the act which the officer did who followed his direction. Green v. Kennedy, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 16.

4. Thomas v. Ashland, 12 Ohio St. 127; White v. Kent, 11 Ohio St. 550; Pesterfield v. Vickers, 3 Coldw. (Tenn.) 205.

An act of assembly allowing a magistrate of police of an incorporated town to fine offenders for disorderly conduct not cognizable by the general law is not unconstitutional. Com'rs v. Harris, 7 Jones (N. Car.) 281.

5. Speed v. Crawford, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 207; Gibbs v. Morgan, 39 N. J. Eq. 126. See People v. Leask, 67 N. Y. 521.

The word "term," used in the provision of the New York city charter of 1873, fixing the terms of heads of departments, etc., means the consecutive period of six years succeeding the preceding term, and one appointed during a term goes out of office at the end of it. People v. McClave, 99 N. Y. 83.

6. McGee v. Gill, 79 Ky. 106; Mar-

tion or removal.¹ Where a constitutional or statutory provision is uncertain or doubtful in its construction as to the duration of the term of a public office, that interpretation will be adopted which limits the term to the shortest time.² An interpretation of the provisions fixing a term of office placed upon them by the incumbent is binding upon him, and he must vacate the office when the term expires as he has himself fixed it;³ and appointment made without designating the length of the term, under a statute providing for a periodical appointment, will be deemed to have been made for the statutory period.⁴ Where two persons shall v. Harwood, 5 Md. 423; Rice v. Ruddiman, 10 Mich. 125; Hughes v. Buckingham, 5 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 632; Attorney-Gen'l v. Love, 39 N. J. L. 476; 23 Am. Rep. 234; Haight v. Love, 39 N. J. L. 14. And see generally State v. Frizzell, 31 Minn. 460; People v. La Salle Co., 100 Ill. 495; People v. Kingsbury, 100 Ill. 509; French v. Cowan, 79 Me. 426; Gilroy v. Smith (Supreme Ct.), 5 N. Y. Supp. 784; State v. Cook, 20 Ohio St. 252; People v. Barrett, 55 Hun (N. Y.) 609.

Where no date of commencement is fixed and a commission is required to be issued to the officer, if the commission is issued within a reasonable time the term of office will date from the time it is issued. Brodie v. Campbell, 17 Cal. 11.

In State v. Chapin, 110 Ind. 272, it was held that the commission is simply evidence of the right to an office but does not fix the term.

When a law is passed providing for the creation of a new county out of parts of counties already in existence, which act provides for the election of county officers, and fixes the time when they shall enter upon their duties, the territory described does not become a county until its organization is perfected by the election of officers. People v. McGuire, 32 Cal. 140.

Where the term of office runs "from" a certain date, the day of that date is excluded from the computation. Best v. Polk, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 112; Batesville Institute v. Kauffman, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 151.

1. Corbett v. Sullivan, 54 Vt. 619. And see People v. Hammond, 66 Cal. 654; State v. Alt, 26 Mo. App. 673; Dibble v. Morris, 26 Conn. 416; Ex parte Camden Co., T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 191; State v. White, T. U. P. Charlt. (Ga.) 123.

Where the duration of the term is fixed illegally, the part of the statute fixing the duration must be regarded as though stricken out, leaving the term of office at the pleasure of the appointing power. People v. Perry, 79 Cal. 105.

2. Wright v. Adams, 45 Tex. 134. And see Com. v. Kilgore, 82 Pa. St. 396; Gilroy v. Smith (Supreme Ct.), 5 N. Y. Supp. 784.

But where the term of a city clerk was two years, his election in 1883, for "the coming term," entitles him to serve till 1885, notwithstanding there was a custom in the council to elect for each year, and in 1884 he had himself solicited re-election. State v. Brady, 42 Ohio St. 504. And see State v. Squire, 39 Ohio St. 197.

The Indiana Rev. Stat., § 5152, fixed the term of office of the State inspector of oils at two years. Acts 1889 (Elliott's Supp.), § 1868, abolishes this office, and creates that of inspector of mineral oils, and refers to the former act for his duties and emoluments. It makes no provision as to his term of office. Held, that the earlier provision still governs as to his term of office. State v. Hyde, 121 Ind. 20.

3. Pursel v. State, 11 Ind. 519; Griebel v. State, 111 Ind. 369.

A public officer, by consenting to be a candidate for re-election, surrenders all claim to hold the office "during good behavior." Ex parte Gray, 1 Bailey, Eq. (S. Car.) 77; Hunt v. Elliot, 1 Bailey, Eq. (S. Car.) 90.

4. Buffalo v. Mackay, 15 Hun (N. Y.) 204; State v. Police Com'rs, 14 Mo. App. 297. And see Parcel v. State, 110 Ind. 122; Isbell v. Farris, 5 Coldw. (Tenn.) 426; State v. Coenzler, 9 Iowa 433.

Where a statute declared that justices should hold office for six years, and their clerks for the same period as the justices, and a clerk was appointed by a justice when the latter had been two years in office, and so had only four are appointed to fill two vacancies in the same body it will be presumed that the first named was intended to fill the place of the first class and the second named that of the second class.¹ Under a statute providing for an office and designating the duration of the term of its incumbent, subsequent terms are presumed to have been intended to be of the same length.² The legislature can neither extend nor abridge the term of office fixed by the constitution,³ but if the office is created by the legislature, or if no constitutional limitation intervenes, its term is within the entire control of the legislature,⁴ and it may change the length of the term of office even after the election or appointment of the in-more to hold, it was held that the clerk's term was six years, not four. People v. Leask, 6 Daly (N. Y.) 517. And see State v. Neibling, 6 Ohio St. 40; Shansbury v. Middleton, 11 Md. 296.

1. People v. Richmond Co., 20 N. Y. 252.

2. State v. Percy, 44 Mo. 159. And see People v. Colton, 6 Cal. 84; State v. Stonestreet, 99 Mo. 361.

The county officers first elected, hold till the first general election for county officers throughout the State, after the expiration of the term of two years fixed by the special act; and an election held before that time is void. People v. Church, 6 Cal. 76.

Where the superior court clerk becomes ex officio clerk of the inferior court, by reason of the justices of the county declining to elect a clerk of the latter court, and gives the bond required by law, he is entitled to the office for two years, notwithstanding the expiration of his term as superior-court clerk within that period. Davis v. Moss, 80 N. Car. 141.

3. People v. Perry, 79 Cal. 105; Douglass v. State, 31 Ind. 429; Grieble v. State, 111 Ind. 369; Pursel v. State, 111 Ind. 519; Howard v. State, 10 Ind. 99; State v. Thoman, 10 Kan. 191; Lowe v. Com., 3 Metc. (Ky.) 237; Faut v. Gibbs, 54 Miss. 396; State v. Brewster, 44 Ohio St. 589; David v. Portland Water Committee, 14 Oregon 98; Bauton v. Wilson, 4 Tex. 400. And see People v. Clifton (Cal. 1889), 21 Pac. Rep. 426; People v. Rosentstine (Cal. 1889), 21 Pac. Rep. 426; People v. McCarthy (Cal. 1889), 21 Pac. Rep. 426; Christy v. Sacramento Co., 39 Cal. 3.

Where a State constitution directs that certain officers shall be elected by the people, and empowers the legislature to fix the term of office and time and manner of election, after the legislature has acted as prescribed, and the office has been filled, an act extending the term of the incumbent is unconstitutional. People v. Bull, 46 N. Y. 57; 70 Am. Rep. 392.

A statute relating to the term of office, which is unconstitutional, must be regarded as leaving the term of office at the pleasure of the governor, the appointing power. The court cannot hold it unconstitutional only as to the excess. People v. Perry, 79 Cal. 105.

The time and manner of election, however, may be changed. People v. Bull, 46 N. Y. 57; 7 Am. Rep. 302; State v. McGovney, 92 Mo. 428. And see State v. Rauston, 73 Mo. 89.

4. State v. Bailey (Minn. 1887), 33 N. W. Rep. 778; In re Senate Resolution, 12 Colo. 340; State v. Howe, 25 Ohio St. 588; 18 Am. Rep. 321; Taft v. Adams, 3 Gray (Mass.) 126; Kilgore v. Magee, 85 Pa. St. 401; Long v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 81 N. Y. 425; State v. Neibling, 6 Ohio St. 40. But see Hoke v. Henderson, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 1; 25 Am. Dec. 677.

The power delegated to a board by the legislature, of creating an office necessarily implies the power to abolish it when, in the judgment of the board, it is no longer necessary, though the term for which the incumbent was appointed had not expired. Ford v. Board of State Harbor Com'rs, 81 Cal. 19.

The incumbent of an office at the time of an organic change of government, continuing to hold over after such change (in the absence of a provision of the new constitution, or of an act of the legislature of the new government giving them such authority), hold by sufferance only, and upon a principle of public necessity or convenience, not in virtue of any individ-cumbent.¹ The governor cannot, by issuing a commission, enlarge a term of office fixed by law or confer extended powers upon its incumbent.² A person elected or appointed to fill a vacancy holds the office only for the remainder of the term,³ and in some of the States the rule is that he can hold only until the next election at which officers generally can be elected.⁴ The office of a subordinate or deputy ceases and is vacated by the abolishment of the superior office.⁵

ual or private right. They cannot set up any claim against the legislature, which has ample power to put an end to their official authority at any time, and appoint others to their places, subject only to any constitutional restrictions which may plainly appear to exist. Richmond Maybralty Cases, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 673.

1. In re Bulger, 45 Cal. 553; In re Jordan, 37 Minn. 174; Wilcox v. Rodman, 46 Mo. 322.

Where a statute creating an office, was limited to two years, and such officer, according to the State constitution, was to hold his office during good behavior, and the statute was afterwards continued in force by a repeal of the limiting clause, the officer is entitled to hold office so long as the statute continued in force. Bruce v. Fox, 1 Dana (Ky.) 447.

2. Hench v. State, 72 Ind. 297.

3. Opinion of Justices, 64 Me. 596; Opinion of Justices, 50 Me. 607; Ruddock v. Mallory, 14 La. Ann. 314; State v. Dubuc, 9 La. Ann. 237; Parmaater v. State, 102 Ind. 90; State v. Harmon, 1 Cheves (S. Car.) 265; State v. Peelle, 121 Ind. 495; Advisory Opinion, 25 Fla. 426; People v. Wilson, 72 N. Car. 155; State v. McKee, 65 N. Car. 257; Rose v. Knox Co., 50 Me. 243; People v. Mathews, 47 Cal. 442; and see People v. Dempsey, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 322; State v. Stonestreet, 99 Mo. 361; Powers v. Hurst, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 24; State v. Bias, 65 Miss. 510; State v. Lyon, 45 Wis. 246. But see State v. Sohn, 97 Ind. 101; People v. Townsend, 102 N. Y. 430; People v. Comstock, 78 N. Y. 356; State v. Foster, 36 Kan. 504; Edison v. Almy, 66 Mich. 329.

By the failure to elect a new board of supervisors prior to the expiration of a member's term, a vacancy is caused, which, under the statute, is to be filled by the qualifying anew of the member whose term expires; such member, however, is only entitled to hold the office until it can be legally filled by election, which may be at the next succeeding general election. Dyer v. Bagwell, 54 Iowa 487.

When a new county is created by the division of a larger one, the county commissioners elected at an election ordered by the governor in such new county for the election of officers merely continue in office until the next general election for such officers, and until their successors are elected and qualified. State v. Fields, 26 Neb. 393.

Where the evidence shows the alleged election of the new officer to be illegal and void, the term of the old one does not expire. People v. Harvey, 58 Cal. 337.

4. See State v. Foster, 36 Kan. 504; State v. Mechen, 31 Kan. 435; Dyer v. Bagwell, 54 Iowa 487; Advisory Opinion, 25 Fla. 426; State v. Johns, 3 Oregon 533; Stevens v. Wyatt, 16 B. Mon. (Ky.) 542; State v. Neibling, 6 Ohio St. 40; State v. Gamble, 13 Fla. 9; Jacobs v. Murray, 15 Cal. 221.

In Mississippi all officers are elected for a term which expires at the general election for the respective offices. Thus where a judicial district was created after the general election, and a special election of judge had, it was held that his term of office expired at the general election next succeeding his election. Smith v. Halfacre, 6 How. (Miss.) 582.

5. Banner v. McMurray, 1 Dev. (N. Car.) 218; U. S. v. Wood, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 361; State v. Board of Public Lands, 7 Neb. 42; Dillon on Mun. Corp., § 64; People v. Fisher, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 215; Richmond Mayoralty Case, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 673. But see Currier v. Boston etc. R. Co., 31 N. H. 209.

Where during the pendency of charges against him, the clerk of a court resigns his office, the appointment made of a clerk pro tempore terminates with the resignation. Raddock v. Mallory, 14 La. Ann. 314.

Where a board of officers has the

XX. TERMINATION OF THE OFFICER'S AUTHORITY—1. By the Expiration of His Term.—Although there is authority for the proposition that an officer's functions cease immediately upon the expiration of his term of office,¹ the doctrine supported by the preponderance of opinion is, that in the absence of any express or implied prohibition² an officer holds over after the expiration of his term until a successor is duly chosen and qualified.³ To this general power of appointing certain officers to hold office during the pleasure of the board, the tenure of an appointee is unaffected by changes in the personnel of the board, the result of expiration, death, etc.; but if the board as a body is abolished, the tenure of office of the appointee is thereby determined. State v. Board of Public Lands, 7 Neb. 42.

Where a legislative act creates a public office, appoints the officer and appropriates money to pay his salary, a subsequent repeal of the act terminates both the office and the right of the appointee to any salary not already earned at the time of such repeal. Hall v. State, 39 Wis. 79.

1. Rex v. Thornton, 4 East 308; Mayor of Durham's Case, 1 Sid. 33; Foot v. Prowse, 1 Str. 625; 3 Bro. P. C. 169; Rex v. Hearle, 1 Str. 627; Dighton's Case, 1 Vent. 82; Rex v. Atkins, 3 Mod. 12; Reg. v. Durham, 10 Mod. 146; Corporation of Banbury, 10 Mod. 346; Badger v. U. S., 93 U. S. 599; Christian v. Gibbs, 53 Miss. 314; Beck v. Hanscom, 29 N. H. 213; People v. Tieman, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 193; 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 359. See also Rex v. Pasmore, 3 T. R. 199; Saunders v. Grand Rapids, 46 Mich. 467; Philips v. Wickham, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 595; People v. Bull, 46 N. Y. 65; 7 Am. Rep. 308.

An appointment to fill a vacancy in the office of county treasurer, made by the vote of a county commissioner whose term of office expired at midnight the night before, is invalid. People v. Reid, 11 Colq. 141.

The presumption of law that an officer is cognizant of proceedings affecting him officially, without special notice, does not apply to a delinquent clerk of a county court after expiration of his term of office. Ray Co. v. Barr, 57 Mo. 290.

2. Compare Tuley v. State, 1 Ind. 500; Louisville v. Higdon, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 527; State v. Hopkins, 10 Ohio St. 509.

3. Foot v. Prowse, 1 Stra. 625; 3 Bro. P. C. 169; Anonymous, 12 Mod.

256; Rex v. Doncaster, 2 Ld. Raym. 1564; Stratton v. Oulton, 28 Cal. 44; People v. Stratton, 28 Cal. 382; Central v. Sears, 2 Colo. 588; Walker v. Ferrill, 58 Ga. 512; State v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 440; 3 Am. St. Rep. 667; Thomas v. Owens, 4 Md. 188; Robb v. Carter, 65 Md. 329; Overseers of Poor v. Sears, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 130; People v. Ferris, 16 Hun (N.Y.) 219; Cordell v. Frizell, 1 Nev. 130; State v. Wells, 8 Nev. 105; York Co. v. Small, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 315; Lynch v. Lafand, 4 Coldw. (Tenn.) 96; Chandler v. Bradish, 23 Vt. 416. Compare Ritchie v. South Topeka, 38 Kan. 368; Moser v. Shamleffer, 39 Kan. 635; Kreidler v. State, 24 Ohio St. 22; Walsh v. Coin., 89 Pa. St. 419; 33 Am. Rep. 771.

And compare also the rule in the case of private corporations. McCall v. Byram Mfg. Co., 6 Conn. 428; Spencer v. Champion, 9 Conn. 536; Bethany v. Sperry, 10 Conn. 200; Wier v. Bush, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 429; Smith v. Natchez Steamboat Co., 1 How. (Miss.) 479; Savings Bank v. Hunt, 72 Mo. 597 (statutory provision); 37 Am. Rep. 449; Slee v. Bloom, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 336; Nashville Bank v. Petway, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 522; Wheeling v. Black, 25 W. Va. 266. See also OFFICERS (Private Corporations), vol. 17, p. 49.

An officer holding over and continuing to discharge his official duties until his successor was qualified, was held to be entitled to compensation for the time without an express provision to that effect. Robb v. Carter, 65 Md. 321.

Appointments to Fill Vacancy.—Where a judge of probate, before one term expired, was elected for another term, but died before the new term, and the governor appointed a successor to fill the vacancy, and afterward, at the beginning of the period of the new term, on the supposition that this appointment had run out, appointed another to fill the supposed vacancy, it was held that the second appointment was void, for the direction of the rule some of the authorities make an exception in the case of judicial officers,¹ and possibly also of members of the legislature and the executive.² In most of the States all doubt is removed by constitutional or statutory provisions, that, when an officer is elected or appointed for a fixed term, the office shall not, on the expiration of the term, become vacant, but the incumbent shall continue to hold until his successor is elected and qualified.³ In these jurisdictions, consequently, the governor cannot, on the expiration of a term of office, appoint a new officer, but the former incumbent is entitled to hold over until a duly qualified constitution was unambiguous, that the probate judge elected to fill a vacancy should continue in office until a successor was elected and qualified; and that his term did not expire at the end of the regular term, unless some such elected and qualified person was ready to succeed him. People v. Lord, 9 Mich. 227.

New appointments are to be made constitutionally; otherwise the incumbents would continue in office. State v. Dubuc, 9 La. 237; and see State v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 434; 3 Am. St. Rep. 663; Tillson v. Ford, 53 Cal. 701.

Provision that officers shall hold over until their successors are qualified, are not designed to extend their terms for their own advantage. State v. Duffield (N. J., 1888), 13 Atl. Rep. 30.

1. See Throop's Pub. Off., §§ 323 et seq.; Christian v. Gibbs, 53 Miss. 314. Compare Stratton v. Oulton, 28 Cal. 56.

2. Compare Stratton v. Oulton, 28 Cal. 56; People v. Bull, 46 N. Y. 57; 7 Am. Rep. 302.

3. People v. Whitman, 10 Cal. 38, overruling People v. Reid, 6 Cal. 288; People v. Tilton, 37 Cal. 614; Treadwell v. Yolo Co., 62 Cal. 565; State v. Fagan, 42 Conn. 32; People v. Reid, 11 Colo. 138; Bonner v. State, 7 Ga. 473; People v. Fairbury, 51 Ill. 149; Forristal v. People, 3 Ill. App. 470; Tuley v. State, 1 Ind. 500; State v. Spears, 1 Ind. 515; Miller v. Burger, 2 Ind. 337; Stewart v. State, 4 Ind. 396; Swails v. State, 4 Ind. 516; Akers v. State, 8 Ind. 484; Butler v. State, 20 Ind. 169; Baker v. Kirk, 33 Ind. 517; Steinback v. State, 38 Ind. 487; State v. Berg, 50 Ind. 496; Elam v. State, 75 Ind. 518; Gosman v. State, 106 Ind. 203; State v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 440; 3 Am. St. Rep. 667; Wapello Co. v. Bigham, 10 Iowa 39; 74 Am. Dec. 370; Hubbard v. Crawford, 19 Kan. 570; Killion v. Herman, 43 Kan. 37; Marshall v. Harwood,

5 Md. 423; Third School Dist. v. Atherton, 12 Met. (Mass.) 105; Dow v. Bullock, 13 Gray (Mass.) 136; People v. Lord, 9 Mich. 227; State v. Lusk, 18 Mo. 333, overruled by State v. Thomas, 102 Mo. 85; State v. Thompson, 38 Mo. 192; State v. Seay, 64 Mo. 89; 27 Am. Rep. 206; State v. Ranson, 73 Mo. 78; State v. Smith, 87 Mo. 158; Tappan v. Gray, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 507; State v. Howe, 25 Ohio St. 588; 18 Am. Rep. 321; State v. Bryson, 44 Ohio St. 467; State v. Brewster, 44 Ohio St. 589; Com. v. Hanley, 9 Pa. St. 513; Macoy v. Curtis, 14 S. Car. 367; Jones v. Jefferson, 66 Tex. 578; Ex parte Lawhorne, 18 Gratt. (Va.) 85; Johnson v. Mann, 77 Va. 265; Vaughan v. Johnson, 77 Va. 300; Kilpatrick v. Smith, 77 Va. 347; State v. Washburn, 17 Wis. 658. Compare In re Corporation of Tregony, 8 Mod. 127; Rex v. Phillips, 1 Str. 394; Montgomery v. Hughes, 65 Ala. 201; Heys v. Walters, 46 Ga. 387.

The same rule applies where an officer has tendered his resignation to the proper authority and it has been accepted; he is not released from the duties and responsibilities of the office, but continues to hold until his successor is chosen and qualified. Badger v. U. S., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 308; 93 U. S. 599; People v. Barnett Tp., 100 Ill. 332; Jones v. Jefferson, 66 Tex. 576. But see to the contrary Olmstead v. Dennis, 77 N. Y. 378.

It has been held that, although the officer of a city, upon whom process is to be served, may have resigned from an improper motive, and although the plaintiff may have been prejudiced by his action, yet the injury is one for which no damages can be recovered. Amy v. Watertown, 130 U. S. 301. Under a provision that certain officers shall continue to hold office beyond their term, until their successors be "elected and qualified," the term successor presents himself.¹ However, upon the due election and qualification of a successor, the right to hold over ceases, and is not revived by the subsequent death of such successor, even though it be before the commencement of the term.² The right to hold over, when conferred upon any officer, applies as well to those elected by the legislature as to those elected by the people or appointed by the executive.³ But the rule in respect to holding over applies only to such officers as have held during the full term, and not to such as have been adjudged by competent authority to have forfeited their offices.⁴ Nor does the rule apply where a municipal corporation is legislated out of existence, for the rule enables officers only to hold until their successors are elected and qualified, and in this case no successors can be elected.⁵

By analogy with the expiration of an officer's term, it has been held that an office is vacated by the repeal of the law or ordinance by which it was created,⁶ and that where an office is created

"elected," entitles the incumbent to hold until his successor is selected or designated in the manner provided for by the constitution or law creating the office, and it applies equally to officers who are to be appointed by the general assembly as to those elected by the people. State v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 434.

The provision of the constitution that civil officers shall hold and exercise their duties during their terms or until they shall be superseded by lawful appointments, applies to future officers as well as those in office at the time of the adoption of the constitution. Aycock v. Aven, 25 Ga. 694.

Sureties on a bond conditioned for faithful performance "during incumbency," are liable when the officer holds over, though he only holds office de facto. State v. Wells, 8 Nev. 105; State v. Kurtzeborn, 78 Mo. 98.

1. People v. Tilton, 37 Cal. 614; People v. Bissell, 49 Cal. 407; People v. Hammond, 66 Cal. 654, 657; Gosman v. State, 106 Ind. 203; State v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 434; 3 Am. St. Rep. 663. Compare People v. Parker, 37 Cal. 639. Contra State v. Thomas, 102 Mo. 85, overruling State v. Lusk, 18 Mo. 333.

2. State v. Seay, 64 Mo. 89; 27 Am. Rep. 206; State v. Hopkins, 10 Ohio St. 509. Compare Com. v. Hanley, 9 Pa. St. 513; in which it was held that the death of the successor before full qualification leaves the right of the incumbent to hold over unimpaired.

Under provisions permitting every officer to hold his office until his successor is qualified, the direction to have officers of the court appointed by the judges at the first term, is not imperative, and a subsequent appointment thereto is not invalid. In re Baldwin, 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 414.

3. State v. Harrison, 113 Ind. 434; 3 Am. St. Rep. 663.

4. Hyde v. State; 52 Miss. 655.

Cannot Extend Constitutional Limitation.—Where a constitutional provision declares that no person shall be eligible to an office for more than the designated number of years, a legislative provision that an officer holding office for a given term, shall hold until the election and qualification of a successor, does not apply to enable an officer to hold an office for a longer time than that limited by the constitution. Gosman v. State, 106 Ind. 203.

5. Beckwith v. Racine, 7 Biss. (U. S.) 142. And see State v. Bailey, 37 Ohio St. 98.

Where a district was abrogated and two districts from the same territory were created, and the terms of office of the commissioners of the abrogated district had expired and no new ones had been elected to fill their places, it was held that the doctrine of corporate officers holding over, where an election of successors is postponed, cannot be applied where there is no provision of law authorizing a further election, and the corporate functions have been terminated. Barkley v. Levee Comrs., 93 U. S. 258.

6. Chandler v. Lawrence, 128 Mass.

and an officer appointed for the performance of a single act, the office terminates and the officer's authority ceases upon the completion of that act.¹ So, the authority of an officer appointed under a law which does not prescribe the duration of the office, is terminable at the will of the appointing power, the right of removal being incident to the right of appointment.²

2. By Resignation.—Resignation is the act of an officer by which he declines his office and renounces the further right to use it.³ To constitute a complete and operative resignation, there 213; State v. Harris (N. Dak., 1890), 45 N. W. Rep. 1101; Cambridge v. Fifield, 126 Mass. 428; State v. Covington, 29 Ohio St. 102. And see People v. Brown, 83 Ill. 95; People v. Breen, 53 N. Y. Super. Ct. 167; Kreider v. New Orleans, 26 La. Ann. 342; In re Senate Resolution, 12 Colo. 340.

A regular clerk in a department of the city of New York, whose services are no longer needed, may be discharged without trial, hearing, or notice. The statute requiring hearings before discharge does not apply to such cases. Langdon v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 92 N. Y. 427.

But where, after the organization of a Kansas city of the third class into a city of the second class, no election for mayor is had, the mayor of the city as it formerly existed will continue to act. Moser v. Shamleffer, 39 Kan. 635.

1. Bergen v. Powell, 94 N. Y. 592. And see People v. Manistee Co., 40 Mich. 585.

Where commissioners are appointed to cause a work to be completed within a certain time, with authority to appoint a superintendent, to be allowed a fixed salary, the power of the commissioners and the office and salary of the superintendent cease with the expiration of the prescribed time. Nichols v. Comptroller, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 154.

2. Patton v. Vaughan, 39 Ark. 211; People v. Hill, 7 Cal. 97; Smith v. Brown, 59 Cal. 672; People v. Shear (Cal., 1887), 15 Pac. Rep. 92; State v. Doherty, 25 La. Ann. 119; 13 Am. Rep. 131; Com v. Reading Sav. Bank, 129 Mass. 73; State v. Alt, 26 Mo. App. 673; Keenan v. Perry, 24 Tex. 253; State v. Manlove, 33 Tex. 798; Collins v. Tracy, 36 Tex. 546; Honey v. Graham, 39 Tex. 1, 12. Compare Ex parte Hennen, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 230; Com. v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 29; 64 Am. Dec. 680. But see People v. Freese, 76 Cal. 633; 83 Cal. 453.

An officer appointed for a term of defined length is entitled to hold his office until the expiration of that period, and another cannot be appointed in his place. People v. Waite, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 58; Collins v. Tracy, 36 Tex. 546; Upshaw v. Booth, 37 Tex. 125; Honey v. Graham, 39 Tex. 1. Compare Lowe v. Com., 3 Metc. (Ky.) 237; Johnston v. Wilson, 2 N. H. 202; 9 Am. Dec. 50; Cummings v. Clark, 15 Vt. 653.

The tenure of an office, which, held by executive appointment and having no term for its duration fixed, can be filled at the executive pleasure, is not enlarged by Louisiana Const. 1845, art. 96, which provides that "the duration of all offices, not fixed by this constitution, shall never exceed four years." That article was a restriction upon the legislature, and applied to offices held either during good behavior or for a longer term than four years. State v. Crozat, 8 La. Ann. 295.

Where statutes require a board of police commissioners, on appointing a chief of police, to fix his term of office, and provide that he can be removed only for cause, the board cannot evade the latter provision by neglecting or purposely omitting to determine the period for which he shall hold the office. State v. Board of Police Commrs., 88 Mo. 144.

3. Bouv. L. Dict. (15th ed.), vol. 2, p. 583; And. L. Dict. 893.

A judge has no power to allow a motion for a new trial after a resignation of his office has taken effect, in a case tried before him while in office. Griffing v. Danbury, 41 Conn. 96.

Statutes with reference to the discharge of an officer from service, apply to a voluntary discharge and not to a case where an officer seeks to be relieved from his assumed obligations to the government, and anticipates his final discharge by offering his resignation. Price's Case, 4 Ct. of Cl. 164.

must be an intention to relinquish a portion of the term of the office, accompanied by the act of relinquishment.¹

At common law, an office being regarded as a burden which it was the duty of the appointee to bear for the public benefit,² it followed that a public officer could not resign his office without the consent of the appointing power, manifested either by an express acceptance of his resignation, or by the appointment of another in his place.³ In America, the above English rule, which, on principle, seems the better doctrine, has been followed in, perhaps, the majority of cases;⁴ but there is also authority for the opposite view, that a public officer may resign at pleasure without the assent of the appointing power, and that, in the absence of any statute to the contrary, an absolute and unconditional resignation vacates an office from the time the resignation reaches the proper authority, without any acceptance, express or implied, on the

1. Biddle v. Willard, 10 Ind. 62.

2. Throop's Public Officers, §§ 165, 409; Vanacker's Case, Carth. 480; 1 Ld. Raym. 496; Rex v. Larwood, 4 Mod. 270; Reg. v. Hungerford, 11 Mod. 142; Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 471; State v. Ferguson, 31 N. J. L. 120.

3. Throop's Public Officers, § 409; Mechem's Public Officers, §§ 409, 414; 1 Dillon's Mun. Corp. (4th ed.), § 224; Rex v. Ripon, 1 Ld. Raym. 563; Reg. v. Lane, 2 Ld. Raym. 1304; Hazard's Case, 2 Rol. 11; Jenning's Case, 12 Mod. 402; Rex v. Patteson, 1 N. & M. 612; 4 B. & Ad. 9; 24 E. C. L. 10; Rex v. Bower, 1 B. & C. 585; 8 E. C. L. 247; Rex v. Burder, 4 T. R. 778; Rex v. Lone, 2 Str. 920; Rex v. Jones, 2 Str. 1146; Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 471; State v. Clayton, 27 Kan. 442; 41 Am. Rep. 418; State v. Ferguson, 31 N. J. L. 120.

4. Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 471; Thompson v. U. S., 103 U. S. 480; Waycross v. Youmans, 85 Ga. 708; State v. Clayton, 27 Kan. 442; Hetherington v. Sterry, 28 Kan. 429; 42 Am. Rep. 169; Rogers v. Slonaker, 32 Kan. 193; State v. Ferguson, 31 N. J. L. 120; State v. Van Buskirk, 40 N. J. L. 463; State v. Good, 41 N. J. L. 296; Greene v. Hudson Co., 44 N. J. L. 388; Hoke v. Henderson, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 1; 25 Am. Dec. 677. Compare Oregon v. Jennings, 119 U. S. 74; State v. Newark, 27 N. J. L. 198; London v. Headen, 76 N. Car. 72; Jones v. Jefferson, 66 Tex. 576.

In Hoke v. Henderson, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 1, 25 Am. Dec. 677, the court by Ruffin, C. J., said: "An officer may certainly resign; but without acceptance his resignation is nothing, and he remains in office. It is not true that an office is held at the will of either party. It is held at the will of both. Generally, resignations are accepted; and that has been so much a matter of course, with respect to lucrative offices, as to have grown into a common notion that to resign is a matter of right. But it is otherwise. The public has a right to the services of all the citizens, and may demand them in all civil departments as well as in the military. . . . Every man is obliged, upon a general principle, after entering upon office to discharge the duties of it while he continues in office, and he cannot lay it down until the public, or those to whom the authority is confided, are satisfied that the office is in a proper state to be left, and the officer discharged. The obligation is, therefore, strictly mutual, and neither party can forcibly violate it. . . . I cannot doubt that the legislature has the perfect power, if it choose arbitrarily to exercise it, of compelling, not indeed a particular man designated in a statute by name, but any citizen elected or appointed, as by law prescribed, to serve in office even against his will."

In Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 47, a mandamus was issued to compel the performance of official duty, although the officer had tendered his resignation, it not having been accepted. See also Thompson v. U. S., 103 U. S. 480; but see Olmstead v. Dennis, 77 N. Y. 378.

A city treasurer cannot, by resigning his office take from the city any remedy for wrongs committed by him during part of the latter.¹ One elected to an office cannot resign it until after he has qualified and entered into possession of it;² nor can one resign an office to which he is not entitled, and which he has no right to occupy.³ And so, where a person is legally ineligible, but receives a majority of the votes for Presidential Elector, he cannot, by declining the appointment, create a vacancy which the governor can fill under a general statute relating to filling vacancies; for he has not been lawfully chosen.⁴

In the absence of statutory or constitutional provisions, a resignation should be made to that officer or body which is by law authorized to act upon it by appointing or electing an officer to fill the vacancy.⁵ As regards the form of the resignation, if no especial mode be prescribed, neither the resignation nor the acceptance thereof need be in writing or in any particular form of words.⁶ The acceptance may be manifested by a formal declarahis term of office. Philadelphia v. Marcer, 1 Leg. Gaz. (Pa.) 355.

1. Throop's Public Officers, § 410; U. S. v. Wright, 1 McLean (U. S.) 509; State v. Fitts, 49 Ala. 402; People v. Porter, 6 Cal. 26; Gates v. Delaware Co., 12 Iowa 405; State v. Mayor, 4 Neb. 260; State v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 566; Gilbert v. Luce, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 91; Olmsted v. Dennis, 77 N. Y. 378; Bunting v. Willis, 27 Gratt. (Va.) 144; 21 Am. Rep. 338. Compare U. S. v. Justices, 10 Fed. Rep. 460; State v. Hauss, 43 Ind. 105; 13 Am. Rep. 384.

Thus in U. S. v. Wright, 1 McLean (U. S.) 512, the court said: "There can be no doubt that a civil officer has a right to resign his office at pleasure, and it is not within the power of the executive to compel him to remain in office. It is only necessary that the resignation should be received, to take effect, and this does not depend upon the acceptance or rejection of the resignation by the President."

A letter to the court from their clerk declaring his intention to resign his office at the next term, and giving them notice to prepare to choose another at that time, as he shall not continue in office after that day, is such a resignation as authorizes the court to appoint a clerk, at that term, to execute his duties immediately after the term ends. Smith v. Dyer, 1 Call (Va.) 562.

Under provisions of a charter, which direct that an alderman or other officer may resign by giving written notice to the city clerk, and publishing a copy of such notice in the corporation papers, a simple communication to the mayor and common council, tendering a resignation, is ineffectual. Lewis v. Oliver, 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 121.

2. Miller v. Sacramento Co., 25 Cal. 93; In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638; 23 Am. Rep. 538.

3. Reg. v. Blizard, L. R. 2 Q. B. 55; 36 L. J. Q. B. 18; In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638.

4. In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638.

5. Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 471; Van Orsdall v. Hazard, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 247; Succession of Boyd, 12 La. Ann. 611.

Under section 9 of the Office Act, a county commissioner must resign to the board, not to the governor, and the board may fill the vacancy. People v. Gillespie, 1 Idaho N. S. 52.

6. Rex v. Ripon, 1 Ld. Raym. 563; 2 Salk. 433; Reg. v. Lane, 2 Ld. Raym. 1304; Fortescue 275; 11 Mod. 270; Barbour v. U. S., 17 Ct. of Cl. 149; Van Orsdall v. Hazard, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 248; State v. Ancker, 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 245. See also Jennings' Case, 12 Mod. 402; Reg. v. Gloucester, Holt 450; Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 471; State v. Allen, 21 Ind. 516; People v. Albany Common Pleas, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 29; People v. Board of Police, 26 N. Y. 316, reversing 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 644; 14 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 151; People v. Brooklyn, 77 N. Y. 503; 33 Am. Rep. 659. Thus, in Van Orsdall v. Hazard, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 248, the court by Cowen, J., said: "Where no particular mode of resignation is prescribed by law, and where the appointment is not by deed, it may be by parol; as, by the incumbent declaring to the appointing power

tion, by the appointment or election of a successor, or by any unequivocal circumstance showing an intention to act upon the resignation.¹

A resignation which has been accepted, cannot be withdrawn,² nor can a resignation which is intended to take effect immediately, and which has been delivered for that purpose to the officers authorized to receive it.³ But a prospective resignation, as it amounts to a mere notice of intention to resign at a future date, may be recalled at any time before it is accepted.⁴

3. By Acceptance of an Incompatible Office—a. DOCTRINE AT COMMON LAW.—At common law the rule is well settled, that, where the occupant of one office accepts another incompatible with the first, he thereby vacates absolutely the first office, even though it be a superior one, and his title thereto is ipso facto terminated, without any further act on his part, and without any judicial or other proceedings.⁵ But to the above rule an exception, that he resigns his office, or will continue to serve no longer, and requesting an acceptance of his resignation. Nor need the acceptance be in writing. It is enough that the office be treated as vacant; for instance, by appointing a successor."

A resignation in writing is good without a seal, although the statute require the appointment to be under seal. Gilbert v. Luce, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 91.

1. See Edwards v. U. S., 103 U. S. 471; Pace v. People, 50 Ill. 432; McGee v. State, 103 Ind. 444; Gates v. Delaware Co., 12 Iowa 405.

Acceptance of a resignation is presumed where the written resignation of the officer is received and filed in the proper office without objection. Pace v. People, 50 Ill. 432; Gates v. Delaware Co., 12 Iowa 405.

Where an officer is ineligible to one office because of his holding another office, he continues so until his resignation of the first office is accepted. Rogers v. Slonacker, 32 Kan. 191. And see Bunting v. Willis, 27 Gratt. (Va.) 144; 21 Am. Rep. 338.

2. State v. Fitts, 49 Ala. 402; Pace v. People, 50 Ill. 432; State v. Hauss, 43 Ind. 105; 13 Am. Rep. 384; Gates v. Delaware Co., 12 Iowa 405; Bunting v. Willis, 27 Gratt. (Va.) 144; 21 Am. Rep. 338. Compare Reg. v. Wigan, 14 Q. B. D. 908; 54 L. J. Q. B. 338; 38 Eng. Rep. 68; Yonkey v. State, 27 Ind. 236.

Where a statute definitely fixes the time when, and the means by which, an officer shall cease to belong to the army by resignation, if he thus ceases to belong to it, he can only be restored by a new appointment. The President's revocation of the order accepting his resignation will not work his restoration. Mimmack v. U. S., 10 Ct. of Cl. 584.

Resignation While Insane.—If a public officer resigns while insane, and the resignation is accepted by the proper authority in ignorance of the insanity, and a successor is duly appointed, the loss of the office will fall upon the officer who resigned it. Blake v. U. S., 103 U. S. 227.

3. Mechem's Public Officers, § 417; Reg. v. Wigan, 14 Q. B. D. 908; 54 L. J. Q. B. 338; 38 Eng. Rep. 68; State v. Hauss, 43 Ind. 105; 13 Am. Rep. 384.

When an unconditional resignation is transmitted to the proper officer with the intention that it shall operate as such, it amounts to a complete resignation, taking effect from the date of the transmission. State v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 566; State v. Fitts, 49 Ala. 402.

4. Biddle v. Willard, 10 Ind. 66; State v. Clayton, 27 Kan. 442; 41 Am. Rep. 418; Bunting v. Willis, 27 Gratt. (Va.) 144; 21 Am. Rep. 338. See also Leech v. State, 78 Ind. 570; Rogers v. Slonaker, 32 Kan. 191; State v. Boecker, 56 Mo. 17; State v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 566.

5. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, K, 5; Mechem's Public Officers, § 420; Throop's Public Officers, § 30; In re Dyer, Dy. 158, b; Rex v. Trelawney, 3 Burr. 1616; Milward v. Thacher, 2 T. R. 81; Rex v. Pateman, 2 T. R. 777; Rex v. Hughes, 5 B. & C. 886; 12 E. C. L. 399; Rex v. Tizzard, 9 B. & C. 418;

tion exists in cases where a party cannot divest himself of his office by his own act without the concurrence of another authority to his resignation or motion; in such instances the acceptance of an incompatible office does not operate as an absolute avoidance of a former office, unless the authority whose concurrence is necessary, be privy and consenting to the second appointment.¹ Where, however, the office is one that can be vacated without the consent of any other authority, the officer has the right, upon his appointment or election to the second office, to choose which he will retain; but his choice is deemed to be made when he qualifies for the second office.² And if an officer is appointed to a second office by the power authorized to accept his resignation of the 17 E. C. L. 411; State v. Hutt, 2 Ark. 282; Magie v. Stoddard, 25 Conn. 565; 68 Am. Dec. 375; People v. Hanifan, 96 Ill. 420; Dailey v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 329; Lucas v. Shepherd, 16 Ind. 368; Mehringer v. State, 20 Ind. 103; Howard v. Shoemaker, 35 Ind. 111; Wilson v. King, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 457; 14 Am. Dec. 84; State v. Newhouse, 29 La. Ann. 824; State v. Arata, 32 La. Ann. 193; State v. Dellwood, 33 La. Ann. 1229; State v. West, 33 La. Ann. 1261; Stubbs v. Lee, 64 Me. 195; 18 Am. Rep. 251; Pooler v. Reed, 73 Me. 129; State v. Draper, 45 Mo. 355; State v. Lusk, 48 Mo. 242; Cotton v. Phillips, 56 N. H. 220; People v. Carrique, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 93; Van Orsdall v. Hazard, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 248; People v. Nostrand, 46 N. Y. 375; Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456; State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1; State v. Goff, 15 R. I. 505; 2 Am. St. Rep. 921; State v. Buttz, 9 S. Car. 156; Biencourt v. Parker, 27 Tex. 558; State v. Brinkerhoff, 66 Tex. 45; Ex parte Call, 2 Tex. App. 497; Shell v. Cousins, 77 Va. 328. Compare Rex v. Jones, 1 B. & Ad. 677; 20 E. C. L. 467; Rex v. Patteson, 4 B. & Ad. 9; 24 E. C. L. 11; Kenney v. Goergen, 36 Minn. 190.

Hence, the first office being thus vacated eo instanti on the acceptance of the second, the acts thenceforth done by the person in his capacity as occupant of the first office are void. State v. Newhouse, 29 La. Ann. 824; Biencourt v. Parker, 27 Tex. 558. And he is entitled to no compensation therefor. Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456. And so a salaried officer against whom judgment of ouster has been pronounced for having accepted an inconsistent office, is not entitled to his salary from the time he accepted the inconsistent office until the judgment was pronounced. State v. Comptroller-Gen'l, 9 S. Car. 259.

But acts done as holder of the second office are valid. State v. Arata, 32 La. Ann. 193; State v. Dellwood, 33 La. Ann. 1229; State v. West, 33 La. Ann. 1261.

Though an election to a second office is void, the first office is nevertheless forfeited, and the officer cannot then regain possession of the former office, if another person has been appointed or elected to it. Rex v. Hughes, 5 B. & C. 886.

1. Rex v. Patteson, 4 B. & Ad. 9; 24 E. C. L. 11; Worth v. Newton, 10 Exch. 247; 23 L. J. Exch. 338.

There is in England another exception, viz., where the holding of both offices has been legalized by custom. Thus, in one case, the court refused to oust a party from the first office, because it appeared that both had been held together for one hundred years. Rex v. Trelawney, 3 Burr. 1616.

This exception is not recognized by the courts in the United States, since with us no custom can have the force of a local law. Throop's Public Officers, §§ 30, 31; 1 Minor's Insts. (3d ed.) *34.

2. Mechem's Public Officers, § 426, citing State v. Brinkerhoff, 66 Tex. 45; Stubbs v. Lee, 64 Me. 195; 18 Am. Rep. 251.

In the latter case the defendant, being a trial justice, was subsequently appointed and sworn as a deputy sheriff. Said the court by Appleton, C. J.: "Where one has two incompatible offices, both cannot be retained. The public has a right to know which is held and which is surrendered. It should not be left to chance, or to the uncertain and fluctuating whim of the officeholder to determine. The general rule, first, such appointment will be deemed an acceptance of the resignation of the old office.¹

The incompatibility which will operate to vacate the first office, must be something more than the mere physical impossibility of the performance of the duties of the two offices by one person, and may be said to arise where the nature and duties of the two offices are such as to render it improper, from considerations of public policy, for one person to retain both.² Examples under this rule are given in the note below.³

therefore, that the acceptance of, and qualification for, an office, incompatible with one then held, is a resignation of the former, is one certain and reliable, as well as one indispensable, for the protection of the public. The defendant, having been appointed and sworn as a deputy sheriff, must be regarded as having accepted that office. By that acceptance he surrendered the office of trial justice, a judicial office incompatible with that of deputy sheriff."

1. State v. Brinkerhoff, 66 Tex. 45.

2. See Dillon's Mun. Corp. (4th ed.), vol. 1, § 227; Preston v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 417; State v. Feibleman, 28 Ark. 424; Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 538; Stubbs v. Lee, 64 Me. 195; 18 Am. Rep. 251; People v. Green, 5 Daly (N. Y.) 254; People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295; State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1; State v. Goff, 15 R. I. 505; 2 Am. St. Rep. 921; State v. Buttz, 9 S. Car. 156.

But in Rex v. Tizzard, 9 B. & C. 418, 17 E. C. L. 411, it was held that two offices are incompatible where the holder cannot in every instance discharge the duties of each.

In People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295, it was held that where one office is not subordinate to the other, and the relation of the one to the other is not such as is inconsistent and repugnant, and where contrariety and antagonism would not result in the attempt by one person faithfully and impartially to discharge the duties of each, there is not that incompatibility from which the law declares that the acceptance of the one is a vacation of the other.

"Offices are said to be incompatible and inconsistent, so as to be executed by the same person, when, from the multiplicity of business in them, they cannot be executed with care and ability, or when their being subordinate and interfering with each other, it induces a presumption they cannot be executed with impartiality and honesty." Bacon's Abr., tit. Offices and Officers,

(K) 2. And see Dillon's Mun. Corp. (4th ed.), vol. 1, § 227; Throop's Public Officers, § 33; Mechem's Public Officers, § 422.

3. In the following note are collected instances of offices which have been held compatible or incompatible. Where the decision depends upon statutory or constitutional provisions this fact is indicated.

Alderman.—The office of alderman is incompatible with that of Capital Burgess; Rex v. Hughes, 5 B. & C. 886; 12 E. C. L. 399; with that of Chamberlain of a Municipal Corporation; Throop's Public Officers, § 35, citing In re Blissell, note to Dougl. 398; and with that of Town Clerk; Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6; Rex v. Tizzard, 9 B. & C. 418; 17 E. C. L. 411. A person who is an Alderman and Justice of the Peace cannot be appointed County Treasurer. Rex v. Patteson, 4 B. & Ad. 9; 24 E. C. L. 11. The office of Alderman is compatible with that of Editor appointed to print the United States laws in his newspaper. Com. v. Binns, 17 S. & R. (Pa.) 219.

Aqueduct Commissioner.—The office of aqueduct Commissioner is compatible with that of a Retired Army Officer. People v. Duane, 121 N. Y. 367.

Army Officer.—An Army Officer of the United States on the retired list cannot, under the Texas Constitution, hold at the same time the office of Mayor of a city. State v. De Gress, 53 Tex. 387. But in New York he may be an Aqueduct Commissioner. People v. Duane, 121 N. Y. 367.

Auditor.—The office of Auditor of a County is, under the Indiana Constitution, incompatible with that of Major of Volunteers in the military service of the United States. Mehring v. State, 20 Ind. 103. The office of Auditor of a School District is incompatible with that of Prudential Committee. Cotton v. Phillips, 56 N. H.

220. The Auditor of a State cannot be also Treasurer of the State. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550.

Bailiff.—The office of Bailiff is compatible with that of Town Marshal. Lewis v. Wall, 70 Ga. 646.

Capital Burgess.—The office of Capital Burgess is incompatible with that of Alderman. Rex v. Hughes, 5 B. & C. 886; 12 E. C. L. 399.

Captain of Volunteers.—The office of Captain of Volunteers is compatible with that of District Attorney. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550.

Chamberlain of a Municipal Corporation.—The offices of Chamberlain of a Municipal Corporation and of Alderman are incompatible. Throop's Public Officers, § 35; citing In re Blissell, note to Dougl. 398.

Chief Baron of Exchequer.—The office of Chief Baron of the Exchequer is compatible with that of Justice of the Common Bench. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6.

Chief Justice of the Common Bench.—The office of Chief Justice of the Common Bench is compatible with that of Keeper of the Great Seal, but incompatible with that of Prothonotary. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6.

Chief Supervisor of Elections.—The offices of Chief Supervisor of Elections and of Counsel to the Health Department of the City of New York are incompatible. Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456; aff'd 2 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 536.

City Clerk.—The office of City Clerk is compatible under the Indiana Constitution with that of Justice of the Peace. Mohan v. Jackson, 52 Ind. 599.

City Councilman.—The office of City Councilman is incompatible with that of City Marshal; State v. Hoyt, 2 Oregon 246; and, under the constitution of Indiana, with that of Director of the State Prison; State v. Kirk, 44 Ind. 401; 15 Am. Rep. 239.

City Marshal.—The offices of City Marshal and City Councilman are incompatible. State v. Hoyt, 2 Oregon 246.

Clerk of Circuit Court.—The office of Clerk of Circuit Court is compatible with that of Clerk of County Court. State v. Lusk, 48 Mo. 242.

Clerk of County Court.—The office of Clerk of County Court is incompatible with that of Paymaster in the army. Taylor v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 401. But it is compatible with that of Clerk of the Circuit Court. State v. Lusk, 48 Mo. 242.

Clerk of District Court.—The offices of Clerk of District Court and Court Commissioner are compatible. Kennedy v. Goergen, 36 Minn. 190.

Clerk of School District.—The office of Clerk of School District is compatible with that of Collector of School District. Howland v. Luce, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 135.

Collector of School District.—The offices of Collector of School District and Clerk of same are compatible. Howland v. Luce, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 135.

Colonel.—The offices of Colonel and Major General are incompatible. State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1. The office of Colonel of Volunteers in the Military Service of the United States is, by the Indiana Constitution, incompatible with the office of Reporter of the Supreme Court. Kerr v. Jones, 19 Ind. 351.

Commissioner.—The office of Commissioner of the United States Centennial Commission is, under the Constitution of the United States, incompatible with the office of Elector of President and Vice-President of the United States. In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638; 23 Am. Rep. 538. The office of Commissioner to Lay Out and Construct a Public Road is incompatible with the office of Sheriff. People v. Nostrand, 46 N. Y. 375.

Common Councilman.—The offices of Common Councilman and Town Clerk are compatible. Rex v. Jones, 1 B. & Ad. 677; 20 E. C. L. 467.

Constable.—The office of Constable is incompatible with that of Justice of the Peace. Magie v. Stoddard, 25 Conn. 565; 68 Am. Dec. 375; Pooler v. Reed, 73 Me. 129. Contra, under the Massachusetts Constitution, Com. v. Kirby, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 577.

Comptroller.—The office of Comptroller of a State and the Federal office of Surveyor-General are, under the California Constitution, incompatible. People v. Whitman, 10 Cal. 38.

Coroner.—The office of Coroner is incompatible with that of Justice of the Peace. Answer of Justices, 3 Me. 486.

Counsel.—The offices of Counsel to the Health Department of the City of New York and Chief Supervisor of Elections, are incompatible. Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456; aff'd 2 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 536.

County Clerk.—The offices of County Clerk and Notary Public are, under the Constitution of Texas, incompatible. Biencourt v. Parker, 27 Tex. 558.

County Commissioner.—The offices of County Commissioner and County Recorder, are incompatible under the Constitution of Indiana. Dailey v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 329. Under the Texas Constitution, the office of County Commissioner is compatible with any other civil office. Gaal v. Townsend, 77 Tex. 464.

County Recorder.—The offices of County Recorder and County Commissioner are incompatible within the meaning of the Indiana Constitution. Dailey v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 329.

County Treasurer.—The office of County Treasurer is incompatible with that of a person who is an Alderman and Justice of the Peace. Rex v. Patteson, 4 B. & Ad. 9; 24 E. C. L. 11.

Court Commissioner.—The offices of Court Commissioner and Clerk of District Court are compatible. Kennedy v. Goergen, 36 Minn. 190.

Crier.—The office of Crier of the United States Circuit or District Court is compatible with that of Messenger of same. Preston v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 417.

Deputy Clerk of Circuit Court.—The offices of Deputy Clerk of Circuit Court and Supervisor are, under the Arkansas Constitution, compatible. State v. Feibleman, 28 Ark. 424.

Deputy Clerk.—The office of Deputy Clerk of a Municipal Court is compatible with the office of Legislator. People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295; reversing 5 Daly (N. Y.) 254; 46 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 169; People v. Murray, 73 N. Y. 535; reversing 8 Daly (N. Y.) 347. The offices of Deputy Clerk of County Court and of Justice of the Peace, are incompatible. Amory v. Justices, 2 Va. Cas. 523.

Deputy Sheriff.—The office of Deputy Sheriff is incompatible with that of Justice of District Court. State v. Goff, 15 R. I. 505; 2 Am. St. Rep. 901. The offices of Deputy Sheriff and Justice of the Peace are incompatible. Wilson v. King, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 457; 14 Am. Dec. 84; Answer of Justices, 3 Me. 486. So under the Constitution of Arkansas. State Bank v. Curran, 10 Ark. 142. The office of Deputy Sheriff is also incompatible with that of Trial Justice. Stubbs v. Lee, 64 Me. 195; 18 Am. Rep. 251.

Director of State Prison.—Under the Indiana Constitution the office of Director of the State Prison is incompatible with that of Mayor of a City; Howard v. Shoemaker, 35 Ind. 111; and with that of City Councilman. State v. Kirk, 44 Ind. 401; 15 Am. Rep. 239.

District Attorney.—The office of District Attorney is compatible with that of Captain of Volunteers. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550.

Editor.—An Editor appointed to print the United States laws in his newspaper may be an Alderman. Com. v. Binns, 17 S. & R. (Pa.) 219.

Elector.—The office of Elector of President and Vice-President of the United States is, under the United States Constitution, incompatible with the office of Commissioner of the United States Centennial Commission. In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638; 23 Am. Rep. 538.

Inspector of Elections.—An Inspector of Elections may be an Interpreter of a Municipal Court. Goettman v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 6 Hun (N. Y.) 132.

Interpreter.—The office of Interpreter of a Municipal Court is compatible with that of Inspector of Elections. Goettman v. Mayor, 6 Hun (N. Y.) 132.

Judge.—The office of Judge is incompatible with that of Legislator. Woodside v. Wagg, 71 Me. 207. A Judge of a County Court cannot be a Postmaster. Hoglan v. Carpenter, 4 Bush (Ky.) 89. The office of Judge of a District Court is incompatible with that of Judge of the Supreme Court. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550.

Judge of Elections.—The office of Judge of Elections is compatible with that of School Director. In re District Attorney, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 645.

Jury Commissioner.—A Jury Commissioner cannot, under the Louisiana Constitution, be a Police Commissioner. State v. Newhouse, 29 La. Ann. 824.

Justice of the Common Bench.—The office of Justice of the Common Bench is compatible with that of Chief Baron of the Exchequer, but is incompatible with the office of Justice of the King's Bench. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6.

Justice of King's Bench.—The office of Justice of the King's Bench is incompatible with that of Justice of the Common Bench. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6.

Justice of District Court.—The offices of Justice of District Court and of Deputy Sheriff are incompatible. State v. Goff, 15 R. I. 505; 2 Am. St. Rep. 901.

Justice of the Peace.—The office of Justice of the Peace is incompatible with that of Constable. Magie v. Stoddard, 25 Conn. 565; 68 Am. Dec. 375; Pooler v. Reed, 73 Me. 129. Contra, under the Massachusetts Constitution. Com. v. Kirby, 2 Cush. (Mass.) 577. It is incompatible with that of Coroner; Answer of Justices, 3 Me. 486; with that of Deputy Clerk of County Court; Amory v. Justices, 2 Va. Cas. 523; with that of Deputy Sheriff; Wilson v. King, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 457; 14 Am. Dec. 84; Answer of Justices, 3 Me. 486; so under the Arkansas Constitution; State Bank v. Curran, 10 Ark. 142; with that of Sheriff; Answer of Justices, 3 Me. 486; so under the Arkansas Constitution; State Bank v. Curran, 10 Ark. 142; with that of Treasurer of the State (by the Constitution of Arkansas); State v. Hutt, 2 Ark. 282. The office of Justice of the Peace is compatible with that of City Clerk (under the Constitution of Indiana); Mohan v. Jackson, 52 Ind. 599; with that of Register of Deeds; Opinions of Justices, 68 Me. 594. Under the Texas Constitution the office of Justice of the Peace is compatible with any other civil office. Gaal v. Townsend, 77 Tex. 464. The office of a person who is a Justice of the Peace and an Alderman, is incompatible with that of County Treasurer. Rex v. Patteson, 4 B. & Ad. 9; 24 E. C. L. 11.

Keeper of the Great Seal.—The Keeper of the Great Seal may be Chief Justice of the Common Bench. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6.

Legislator.—The office of Legislator is incompatible with that of Judge. Woodside v. Wagg, 71 Me. 207. But it is compatible with that of Deputy Clerk of a Municipal Court. People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295, reversing 5 Daly (N. Y.) 254; 46 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 169; People v. Murray, 73 N. Y. 535, reversing 8 Daly (N. Y.) 347.

Major General.—The office of Major General is incompatible with that of Colonel. State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1.

Major of Volunteers.—The office of Major of Volunteers in the military service of the United States is incompatible, under the Indiana Constitution, with the office of Auditor of a County. Mehringer v. State, 20 Ind. 103.

Marshal of a City.—The office of Marshal of a City is incompatible with that of City Councilman. State v. Hoyt, 2 Oregon 246.

Mayor.—The office of Mayor is incompatible with that of Town Clerk. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B, 6. And, so under the Indiana Constitution, with that of Director of the State Prison. Howard v. Shoemaker, 35 Ind. 111. The office of Mayor of a City cannot, under the Texas Constitution, be legally held by one who at the same time continues a United States Army Officer on the retired list. State v. De Gress, 53 Tex. 387.

Member of Assembly.—The office of Member of Assembly is compatible with that of Deputy Clerk of a Municipal Court. People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295, reversing 5 Daly (N. Y.) 254; 46 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 169; People v. Murray, 73 N. Y. 535, reversing 8 Daly (N. Y.) 347.

Member of Congress.—A Member of Congress cannot be a State Solicitor. State v. Buttz, 9 S. Car. 156.

Member of Legislature.—A Member of the Legislature cannot be a Judge. Woodside v. Wagg, 71 Me. 207. But he may be a Deputy Clerk of a Municipal Court. People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 295, reversing 5 Daly (N. Y.) 254; 46 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 169; People v. Murray, 73 N. Y. 535, reversing 8 Daly (N. Y.) 347.

Messenger of Court.—The Messenger of a United States Circuit or District Court may be the Crier of the same. Preston v. U. S., 37 Fed. Rep. 417.

Notary Public.—The offices of Notary Public and County Clerk were formerly under the Texas Constitution incompatible. Biencourt v. Parker, 27 Tex. 558. But by the present Constitution the office of Notary Public is compatible with any other civil office. Gaal v. Townsend, 77 Tex. 464.

Office Holder.—An office in an Executive Department may be held by a Retired Army Officer. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 22. Compare People v. Duane, 121 N. Y. 367.

Paymaster in the Army.—The offices of Paymaster in the Army and Clerk of the County Court are incompatible. Taylor v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 401.

Police Commissioner.—The office of Police Commissioner is incompatible, under the Louisiana constitution, with that of Jury Commissioner. State v. Newhouse, 29 La. Ann. 824.

Postmaster.—The office of Postmaster is incompatible with that of Judge of the County Court; Hoglan v. Carpenter, 4 Bush (Ky.) 89; and so, under the Indiana constitution, the office of Postmaster is incompatible with that of Township Trustee. Foltz v. Kerlin, 105 Ind. 221. In Texas, by constitution, the office of Postmaster is compatible with any other civil office. Gaal v. Townsend, 77 Tex. 464.

Presidential Elector.—Under the United States Constitution the office of Presidential Elector is incompatible with the office of Commissioner of the United States Centennial Commission. In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638; 23 Am. Rep. 538.

Prothonotary.—The office of Prothonotary is incompatible with that of Chief Justice of the Common Bench. Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B. 6.

Prudential Committee.—The office of Prudential Committee is incompatible with that of Auditor of a School District. Cotton v. Phillips, 56 N. H. 220.

Register of Deeds.—The office of Register of Deeds is compatible with that of Trial Justice or Justice of the Peace and Quorum. Opinions of Justices, 68 Me. 594.

Reporter of Supreme Court.—The office of Reporter of the Supreme Court and the office of Colonel of Volunteers in the military service of the United States, are incompatible under the Indiana constitution. Kerr v. Jones, 19 Ind. 351.

Retired Army Officer.—A Retired Army Officer may be an official in an Executive Department. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 22. See also People v. Duane, 121 N. Y. 367, in which it was held that a Retired Army Officer could be an Aqueduct Commissioner.

Sampler of Tobacco.—Under the Virginia constitution the office of Sampler of Tobacco and the office of Sheriff are incompatible. Shell v. Cousins, 77 Va. 328.

School Director.—A School Director may be a Judge of Elections. In re District Attorney, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 645.

Secretary of State.—Under the constitution of Arkansas a Secretary of State may also be a State Senator. State v. Clendenin, 24 Ark. 78.

Sheriff.—The office of Sheriff is incompatible with that of Commissioner to lay out and construct a public road; People v. Nostrand, 46 N. Y. 375; with that of Justice of the Peace; Answer of Justices, 3 Me. 486; so, under the Arkansas constitution; State Bank v. Curran, 10 Ark. 142; with that of Sampler of Tobacco (under the Virginia constitution). Shell v. Cousins, 77 Va. 328.

State Auditor.—The office of State Auditor is incompatible with that of State Treasurer. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550.

State Senator.—Under the constitution of Arkansas the office of State Senator is compatible with that of Secretary of State. State v. Clendenin, 24 Ark. 78.

State Solicitor.—The offices of State Solicitor and of Member of Congress are incompatible. State v. Buttz, 9 S. Car. 156.

State Treasurer.—The office of State Treasurer is incompatible with that of State Auditor; Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550; and, under the constitution of Arkansas, with that of Justice of the Peace. State v. Hutt, 2 Ark. 282.

Supervisor.—By the constitution of Arkansas the offices of Supervisor and of Deputy Clerk of Circuit Court are compatible. State v. Feibleman, 28 Ark. 424. Under the Indiana constitution the offices of Supervisor and Township Trustee are incompatible. Creighton v. Piper, 14 Ind. 182.

Supervisor of Elections.—The offices of Chief Supervisor of Elections and of Counsel to the Health Department of the City of New York are incompatible. Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456; affirming 2 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 536.

Surveyor General.—The office of Surveyor General (a Federal office) is, under the California constitution, incompatible with the office of Comptroller of the State. People v. Whitman, 10 Cal. 38.

Town Clerk.—The office of Town Clerk is incompatible with that of Alderman; Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B. 6; Rex v. Tizzard, 9 B. & C. 418; 17 E. C. L. 411; and with that of Mayor; Com. Dig., tit. Officer, B. 6. The office of Town Clerk is compatible with that of Common Councilman; Rex v. Jones, 1 B. & Ad. 677; 20 E. C. L. 467; and with that of Bailiff. Lewis v. Wall, 70 Ga. 646.

Township Trustee.—Under the Indiana constitution the office of Township Trustee is incompatible with the Federal office of Postmaster; Foltz v. Kerlin, 105 Ind. 221; 55 Am. Rep. 197; and with that of Supervisor. Creighton v. Piper, 14 Ind. 182.

Treasurer of State.—The office of Treasurer of a State is incompatible with that of Auditor of the State; Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 550; and with that of Justice of the Peace (under the

b. DOCTRINE UNDER STATUTES.—In many of the United States there are statutory or constitutional provisions forbidding the holding of more than one office by the same person,¹ whether that office be State or Federal,² or forbidding the holding of offices in different departments of the government, such as the judicial and executive departments.³ Where in this manner two offices of a designated character are forbidden to be held by the same person at the same time, the acceptance of a second office of the kind prohibited absolutely vacates the first,⁴ no shadow of title being left and no judicial determination being necessary to declare the vacancy.⁵ This rule, however, applies only to two offices held under the same sovereignty. The national law neither creates nor governs a State office, and the State law exerts no dominion over a Federal office; the acceptance of an office existing under a State law, therefore, does not vacate an office existing under a national law.⁶ But if the incumbent elects to hold the latter, he must surrender the former,⁷ and the State courts will declare a State office vacated on the acceptance by the incumbent of a Federal office of the prohibited class.⁸ If the prohibition refers to eligibility as distinguished from the Arkansas constitution). State v. Hutt, 2 Ark. 282.

Trial Justice.—The offices of Trial Justice and Deputy Sheriff are incompatible; Stubbs v. Lee, 64 Me. 195; 18 Am. Rep. 251. But the office of Trial Justice is compatible with that of Register of Deeds. Opinions of Justices, 68 Me. 594.

1. See Dailey v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 329; Creighton v. Piper, 14 Ind. 182; Kerr v. Jones, 19 Ind. 351; Mehringer v. State, 20 Ind. 103; State v. Kirk, 44 Ind. 401; 15 Am. Rep. 239; Biencourt v. Parker, 27 Tex. 558; State v. De Gress, 53 Tex. 387; State v. Brinkerhoff, 66 Tex. 45.

2. See People v. Whitman, 10 Cal. 38; Foltz v. Kerlin, 105 Ind. 221; 55 Am. Rep. 197; Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456.

3. See State v. Hutt, 2 Ark. 282; State Bank v. Curran, 10 Ark. 142.

4. State v. Hutt, 2 Ark. 282; Dickson v. People, 17 Ill. 191; People v. Hanifan, 96 Ill. 420; Dailey v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 329; Creighton v. Piper, 14 Ind. 182; Lucas v. Shepherd, 16 Ind. 368; Howard v. Shoemaker, 35 Ind. 111; State v. Kirk, 44 Ind. 401; 15 Am. Rep. 239; Foltz v. Kerlin, 105 Ind. 221; 55 Am. Rep. 197; State v. Arata, 32 La. Ann. 193; State v. Dellwood, 33 La. Ann. 1239; State v. West, 33 La. Ann. 1261; State v. Newhouse, 29 La. Ann. 824; Stubbs v. Lee, 64 Me. 195;

18 Am. Rep. 251; State v. Draper, 45 Mo. 355; Cotton v. Philips, 56 N. H. 220; People v. Brooklyn, 77 N. Y. 503; 33 Am. Rep. 659; Davenport v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 67 N. Y. 456; Shell v. Cousins, 77 Va. 328.

New York Laws 1882, ch. 410, declare that no clerk in the employ of New York City shall become interested in the performance of any contract work, or business the price of which is payable by the city. Held, that a clerk could not become a lecturer in an evening school under an appointment from the board of education. McAdam v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 36 Hun (N. Y.) 340.

5. People v. Brooklyn, 77 N. Y. 503; 33 Am. Rep. 659; People v. Green, 58 N. Y. 304; People v. Nostrand, 46 N. Y. 381; People v. Carrique, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 93.

6. Foltz v. Kerlin, 105 Ind. 222; 55 Am. Rep. 197.

One holding a Federal office does not create a vacancy therein by accepting a State office which, under the Constitution, is incompatible therewith, as the State cannot declare vacant a Federal office. De Turk v. Com., 129 Pa. St. 151.

7. Foltz v. Kerlin, 105 Ind. 222; 55 Am. Rep. 197. And see People v. Leonard, 73 Cal. 230.

8. See Dickson v. People, 17 Ill. 191; People v. Brooklyn, 77 N. Y. 103; 33

right to hold the office, an election to the second office is void, and the vacation of that and not of the first will be enforced by the courts.¹

4. By Abandonment.—A public office may be vacated and the authority of its incumbent terminated by abandonment.² Thus if the incumbent of an office is required to reside in, or be a resident of, the district which he represents, his permanent removal from it is an abandonment which will vacate the office;³ but not so of a mere temporary removal without intent to abandon the office or to discontinue the performance of its duties.⁴ An officer whose abandonment has taken effect so as to create a vacancy cannot legally resume the occupancy of the office, either by accidental, voluntary, or forcible means;⁵ and a public officer who refuses or neglects to perform the duties of his office for such a period as to warrant the presumption that he did not intend to perform them, whether the neglect was willful or due to a mistaken supposition that he had no right to the office, will be held to have abandoned it.⁶ A mere temporary accidental Am. Rep. 659; State v. Buttz, 9 S. Car. 156; State v. De Gress, 53 Tex. 387.

1. Crawford v. Dunbar, 52 Cal. 36; Vogel v. State, 107 Ind. 374; In re Corliss, 11 R. I. 638; 23 Am. Rep. 538.

In People v. Leonard, 73 Cal. 230, under a constitutional provision that no person holding any lucrative office under the United States or any other power, shall be eligible to any civil office of profit in that State, it was held to refer to eligibility to hold office as well as to be elected to it, and that it disqualified a person from continuing to hold an office under the State after he had received and entered upon a lucrative office under the United States.

2. State v. Allen, 21 Ind. 516; 83 Am. Dec. 367; Wildes v. Russell, L. R. 1 C. P. 722; Willc. Mun. Cor. 238; Dillon Mun. Corp., § 228. And see People v. Hamipin, 96 Ill. 420.

3. Yonkey v. State, 27 Ind. 236; State v. Allen, 21 Ind. 516; 83 Am. Dec. 367; Jones v. Collier, 65 Ga. 553; Curry v. Stewart, 8 Bush (Ky.) 560; Prather v. Hart, 17 Neb. 598. But see Smith v. State, 24 Ind. 101.

To constitute an abandonment, it must have been such an absence from the official district as will effect injuriously the public interest. State v. Graham, 26 La. Ann. 568; 21 Am. Rep. 551.

The absence of the governor from the State is to be ascertained on some proof accessible to the public, from which they may with certainty derive the knowledge as to who is authorized to act in his place. There being no provision of law for the mode in which the governor is to manifest to the public his absence from the State, it is necessarily left to his discretion, subject to his responsibility to the people. State v. Hunt, 54 N. H. 431.

4. Yonkey v. State, 27 Ind. 236; Curry v. Stewart, 8 Bush (Ky.) 562; McGregor v. Allen, 33 La. Ann. 870; State v. Graham, 26 La. Ann. 568; 21 Am. Rep. 551; People v. Parker, 3 Neb. 409; 19 Am. Rep. 634.

When a public officer of the State absent from his duties, has not legally vacated his office, he is entitled to his salary during such absence, the statutes of Iowa making no deduction therefor. Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 538.

By the apportionment law of 1866, the boundaries of an assembly district were so changed that a person previously elected in the district as a resident of the board of county supervisors, ceased to be a resident thereof. It was held that he did not in consequence lose his office. State v. Milwaukee Co., 21 Wis. 433.

5. State v. Allen, 21 Ind. 516; 83 Am. Dec. 367; Yonkey v. State, 27 Ind. 236; and see State v. Jones, 19 Ind. 356; Hedley v. Franklin Co., 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 116; Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 648; Rex v. Harris, 1 B. & Ad. 936; 20 E. C. L. 509.

6. People v. Hartwell, 67 Cal. 11; State v. Allen, 21 Ind. 516; 83 Am.

or excusable failure to exercise the functions of the office for a short period or in a single instance, however, is not a sufficient ground upon which to declare an abandonment,¹ nor will a discontinuance of the exercise of official functions in obedience to a statute which is afterward declared unconstitutional during the continuance of the term, effect an abandonment or an estoppel to claim the office.² In any event, a judicial determination is necessary, refusal to serve not being in itself a forfeiture but merely a cause of forfeiture.³

While an absolute refusal to qualify or to enter upon the discharge of the duties of the office would undoubtedly effect a forfeiture of the office, mere delay in qualifying cannot be deemed an abandonment;⁴ though in several of the States quali-

Dec. 367; People v. Kingston, etc., R. Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 193; 35 Am. Dec. 511; Williams v. Somers, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 61; Dickens v. Justices, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 406; Barbour v. U. S., 17 Ct. of Cl. 149; Rex v. Wells, 4 Burr. 2004; Reg. v. Bailiffs, 2 Ld. Raym. 1237; King v. Rook, Cro. Car. 291; and see Hunter v. Rutledge, 6 Jones (N. Car.) 216.

Where one who had been elected alderman failed for five months to attend the meetings of the city council, or perform the duties of his office, he will be considered as having impliedly resigned his position, so as to authorize an election to fill his place. People v. Hanifan, 6 Ill. App. 158.

1. See State v. Allen, 21 Ind. 516; 83 Am. Dec. 367; State v. Baird, 47 Mo. 301.

The mere fact that a county officer has been prevented, by sickness, for a period of fifty days, from attending to his official duties, does not create a vacancy in his office nor authorize the county court to appoint his successor. State v. Baird, 47 Mo. 301.

2. Turnipseed v. Hudson, 50 Miss. 429; 19 Am. Rep. 15.

But where an officer, after being informed that the president intends to vacate the office is suspended under U. S. Rev. Stat., and does not, until the adjournment of the Senate seek to recover the office, or tender service, nor demand salary, his conduct evinces an intention to abandon the office and is equivalent to a resignation. Barbour v. U. S., 17 Ct. of Cl. 149.

3. Van Orsdall v. Hazard, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 243; Cronin v. Grundy, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 520; Cronin v. Stoddard, 97 N. Y. 371.

"Every proceeding to remove an officer for official misconduct or neglect, is essentially and thoroughly a judicial proceeding and has, consequently, and with the utmost propriety, been confided to that branch of the State government." State v. Pritchard, 36 N. J. L. 117; and see Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 648; Curry v. Steward, 8 Bush (Ky.) 560; Hyde v. State, 52 Miss. 665; State v. Pritchard, 36 N. J. L. 101; Honey v. Graham, 39 Tex. 1.

Under California Pol. Code, § 996, a local office becomes vacant when the incumbent ceases to be an inhabitant of the district for which he was elected, or within which the duties of the office are discharged; and a successor may be appointed without an adjudication that the office is vacant. People v. Brite, 55 Cal. 79.

4. State v. Peck, 30 La. Ann. 280; Chicago v. Gage, 95 Ill. 593; 35 Am. Rep. 182; State v. Porter, 7 Ind. 204; Ross v. Williamson, 44 Ga. 501; People v. Benfield, 80 Mich. 265; State v. Churchill, 41 Nev. 41; Cronin v. Stoddard, 97 N. Y. 271; People v. Hooley, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 481; Cronin v. Grundy, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 520; State v. Colvig, 15 Oregon 57; State v. Toomer, 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 216; Buckman v. Beaufort Co., 80 N. Car. 121. See also Payne v. San Francisco, 3 Cal. 122; Jones v. Jones, 80 N. Car. 127.

The general rule is that statutes requiring officers to qualify within a certain time after their election or appointment, or that they should be deemed to have refused the office, and that the same should be filled by appointment, are merely directory as to the same, and that the failure of an officer-elect to file his bond and take the oath of office does not ipso facto work a forfeitfication within the required time is regarded as a condition precedent to the incumbency of the office, a failure to thus qualify effecting a forfeiture and creating a vacancy without the interposition of a judicial determination.¹ Engaging in a rebellion against a government in itself effects a forfeiture of an office held under it, without the necessity of a judicial declaration;² and while the death of the incumbent vacates an office required to be filled by one person only,³ where power is conferred upon two or more officers, the death of one of them does not vacate ure of his office. Ross v. Williamson, 44 Ga. 501; Chicago v. Gage, 95 Ill. 593; 35 Am. Rep. 182; State v. Porter, 7 Ind. 204; State v. Churchill, 41 Mo. 41; State v. Texas Co. Ct., 44 Mo. 230; Kearney v. Andrews, 10 N. J. Eq. 70; People v. Holly, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 481; Cronin v. Grundy, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 520; State v. Toomer, 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 216.

If the failure of a person appointed to an office to file his official bond within the time prescribed was due to no neglect or default on his part (as where the officer required to approve such bond withheld his approval on the ground that the appointment was invalid) such appointee may, after judgment in his favor in an action to oust a usurper from the office, file his bond, and do any other act necessary to entitle him to discharge the duties of the office. State v. Ackerman, 65 Wis. 510. The statute only applies to the person declared elected by the board of canvassers, and not to one to whom the board had refused a certificate. People v. Mayworth, 5 Mich. 146; State v. Kraft, 18 Oregon 550.

The county judge only, and not the supervisors, has authority to approve official bonds, and consequently to declare an office vacant for want of a bond. People v. Marion Co., 10 Cal. 344; and see Wren v. Fargo, 2 Oregon 19; Ruckles v. State, 1 Oregon 347.

1. Thompson v. Holt, 52 Ala. 491; State v. Tucker, 54 Ala. 205; People v. Taylor, 57 Cal. 620; In re Attorney Genl., 14 Fla. 277; State v. Matheny, 7 Kan. 327; State v. Laughton, 19 Nev. 202; Branham v. Long, 78 Va. 352; Johnson v. Mann, 77 Va. 265; Howell v. Com., 97 Pa. St. 332. And see State v. Beard, 34 La. Ann. 273; State v. McCarty, 5 Wis. 163.

Where two candidates for an office receive the same number of votes, it is not necessary that either should qualify before the result of the election has been determined. State v. Kraft, 18 Oregon 550.

In Kansas, the statute has been changed so as to provide that if the officer-elect "shall refuse or neglect, without sufficient cause," to qualify within a certain time, the office should become vacant. And it was decided under the statute so amended, that he had a right to show that he had sufficient cause for failing to qualify within the time prescribed by law. Carpenter v. Titus, 33 Kan. 7.

In Georgia, it is held that it must appear that the failure of the officer to qualify within the prescribed time was due to his own default, in order to work a forfeiture of his office. Ross v. Williamson, 44 Ga. 501.

2. Chisholm v. Coleman, 43 Ala. 204; 94 Am. Dec. 678.

3. See People v. Cowles, 13 N. Y. 350.

The right to the office of chancellor is perfected by the election; and the fact that he dies without being commissioned does not render him the less a chancellor while he lived. His death creates a vacancy in the office, which may be filled pro tempore by the governor. Gold v. Fite, 11 Heisk. (Tenn.) 237.

When a person dies after he has been chosen a county officer, though before the votes are counted, the supreme court has authority to declare the office vacant and to fill the vacancy. State v. Hunt, 54 N. H. 431.

The statute of Indiana authorizing the board of commissioners of any county, in which the office of recorder shall become vacant by death, etc., to appoint some person to supply the vacancy until the next general election, does not conflict with the provision of the constitution that the recorder shall be elected. Hedley v. Franklin Co., 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 116.

the whole office unless the joint action of all is expressly required.¹

5. Removal of Subordinate Officers.—In the absence of constitutional provisions or statutory regulations, where the tenure is not fixed by law and where the office is held at the pleasure of the appointing power, the power of removal is incident to the power of appointment,² and it is well settled in such case that an

1. See Downing v. Rugar, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 178; 34 Am. Dec. 223; People v. Palmer, 52 N. Y. 84; People v. Mayor, etc., of Syracuse, 63 N. Y. 291; In re Merriam, 84 N. Y. 596; Colman v. Shattuck, 62 N. Y. 348; Gildersleeve v. Board of Education, 17 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 206.

By death or disqualification of a portion of a board of officers, the number of its members is reduced, and all do meet when all who are living and qualified to act come together. People v. Palmer, 52 N. Y. 83.

There is no doubt of the authority of two to act where a third neglects to do so. In New York it is provided by statute that in case of the neglect of any assessor from any cause to perform his duties, the other assessors are authorized to do so, and they are required to certify with the assessment roll the name of the delinquent. Colman v. Shaddock, 62 N. Y. 348.

2. Patton v. Vaughan, 39 Ark. 211; People v. Hill, 7 Cal. 97; Ford v. Board of State Harbor Comrs., 81 Cal. 19; Smith v. Brown, 59 Cal. 672; People v. Shear (Cal. 1887), 15 Pac. Rep. 92; People v. Higgins, 15 Ill. 110; State v. Barrow, 29 La. Ann. 243; Avery v. Tyringham, 3 Mass. 177; 3 Am. Dec. 105; Newsome v. Cocke, 44 Miss. 352; 7 Am. Rep. 686; People v. Durston (Supreme Ct.), 3 N. Y. Supp. 522; People v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 16 Hun (N. Y.) 309; People v. Fire Comrs., 73 N. Y. 437; People v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 82 N. Y. 491; People v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 43; Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Sloan, 31 Ohio St. 1; Houseman v. Com., 100 Pa. St. 222; Com. v. Sutherland, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 145; Williams v. Boughner, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 486; In re Eaves, 30 Fed. Rep. 21; Ex parte Hennen, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 230. Ford v. Board of State Harbor Comrs., 81 Cal. 19; Williams v. Gloucester, 148 Mass. 256; Madison v. Korbly, 32 Ind. 74; Madison v. Kelso, 32 Ind. 79; Evans v. Justices, etc., 3 Hayw. (Tenn.) 26; Hardin Co. Ct. v. Hardin, Peck (Tenn.)

291; Sevier v. Washington Co., Peck (Tenn.) 334; State v. Dougherty, 25 La. Ann. 119; State v. Alt, 26 Mo. App. 673; State v. Police Comrs., 88 Mo. 144; People v. Comptroller, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 595; People v. Whitlock, 92 N. Y. 191; People v. Robb, 126 N. Y. 180; Bergen v. Powell, 94 N. Y. 591; People v. Purroy, 10 N. Y. Supp. 181; Gaimbeer v. Mayor, etc., of New York, 4 Sandf. (N. Y.) 109; People v. Thompson, 94 N. Y. 451; People v. Hayden, 10 N. Y. Supp. 794; Avery v. Tyringham, 3 Mass. 177; Blake v. U. S., 103 U. S. 227.

Whenever the people directly or through the legislature clothe any department of the government, or of its boards or officers, with power at discretion to create an office, they clothe it with a like power to abolish the same office. Ford v. Harbor Commissioners, 81 Cal. 19.

Such a power of removal may be exercised at pleasure. The officer upon whom it is conferred is the sole and exclusive judge as to the propriety of its exercise. The discretion is not to be construed as a judicial discretion to be regulated according to known rules of law. People v. Mayor, etc., of New York, 82 N. Y. 491.

In State v. Board of Public Lands, 7 Neb. 42, it was held that the tenure of an office filled by appointment is not affected by changes in membership of the appointing board, but that if the board is abolished by law, tenure of the office is thereby terminated. See also Nichols v. Comptroller, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 154. But in People v. Hammond, 66 Cal. 454, in which police commissioners were appointed by the district judges, no term of office being fixed, and afterwards the district courts were abolished, and a new judicial system established, making no specific provision for the exercise of the functions of the judges, it was held that police commissioners appointed by the governor, were not entitled to the office. See also Currier v. Boston, etc., Railroad, 31 N. H. 209.

officer may be removed without notice or hearing.¹ This doctrine applies, however, where the office is held at the pleasure of the appointing power only; where the tenure of the office is fixed by law;² or where the concurrence or consent of a different body or officer is required to the removal;³ or where the right to removal can be exercised only for specified cause or for cause generally;⁴ the appointing power cannot arbitrarily remove the officer; and where the removal is to be had for cause, the power cannot be exercised until the officer has been duly notified and opportunity given him to be heard in his own defense.⁵ It is within the

Where the officer is appointed to hold his office during the pleasure of some other officer or board than that appointing him, however, the appointing power cannot arbitrarily remove him. Carr v. State, 111 Ind. 101.

A law which provides that such an officer may be removed in a certain way or for a certain cause does not restrain or limit the power of removal to the cause or manner indicated. The only way in which the power of removal can be limited is by first fixing the duration or term of office and then providing the mode by which a removal may be made during the term. Smith v. Brown, 59 Cal. 672; People v. Hill, 7 Cal. 97. But see Clark v. Cape May, 50 N. J. L. 558. An officer holding office at the pleasure of the appointing power cannot be removed by any other officer. Carr v. State, 111 Ind. 101.

1. State v. St. Louis, 90 Mo. 19; State v. Stevens, 46 N. J. L. 344; Field v. Com., 32 Pa. St. 478; State v. McGarry, 21 Wis. 496; Ex parte Hennen, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 230.

A police officer of the city of Sacramento, appointed by the board of police commissioners, may be removed by them without written charges, trial, or conviction. Smith v. Brown, 59 Cal. 672.

2. People v. Hill, 7 Cal. 79; People v. Jewett, 6 Cal. 291; State v. Chatburn, 63 Iowa 659; 56 Am. Rep. 760; People v. Flynn, 62 N. Y. 375; Keenan v. Perry, 24 Tex. 253; Collins v. Tracy, 36 Tex. 546.

The power of the executive of Mississippi to remove from office is limited to cases in which he has the power to fill the vacancy created by such removal. Payton v. Cabaniss, 44 Miss. 808.

3. See People v. Freese, 76 Cal. 633; People v. Bulger (Cal. 1890), 23 Pac. Rep. 379; People v. Weber, 86 Ill. 283; Carr v. State, 111 Ind. 101; Murphy v.

Webster, 131 Mass. 482; State v. Draper, 48 Mo. 213; Charles v. Mayor etc. of Hoboken, 27 N. J. L. 203; State v. Heinmiller, 38 Ohio St. 101.

Where the authority of removal is vested in the appointing power and the appointing power is vested in the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, the consent of the latter body is necessary to the removal. People v. Freese, 76 Cal. 733.

In Louisiana, a public officer, such as secretary of state, who has been suspended from his functions by the governor, is entitled to resume his office immediately after the adjournment of the next general assembly, provided no action has been taken on the suspension during the session, and his exclusion thereafter is an arbitrary violation of his legal and constitutional rights as such. State v. Herron, 24 La. Ann. 594.

4. Lowe v. Com., 3 Metc. (Ky.) 237; Dubuc v. Voss, 19 La. Ann. 210; 92 Am. Dec. 526; Com. v. Shaver, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 338.

Where the cause for which an officer may be removed is prescribed by constitution, defining it in terms having a well understood legal meaning, the legislature cannot add other offenses which do not fall within the meaning of the constitutional provision. Com. v. Williams, 79 Ky. 42; 42 Am. Rep. 204.

5. Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 672; Dullam v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392; 51 Am. Rep. 128; State v. St. Louis, 90 Mo. 19; State v. Bryce, 7 Ohio, pt. 1, 282; Field v. Com., 32 Pa. St. 478; Willard's Appeal, 4 R. I. 601; Foster v. Kansas, 112 U. S. 201; Kennard v. Louisiana, 92 U. S. 480; Baggs' Case, 11 Coke 99; King v. Gaskin, 8 T. R. 209; Ramshay's Case, 18 A. & E., N. S. 100; Williams v. Bagot, 3 B. & C. 772; Reg. v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 1 E. & E. 545; 102 E. C. L. 544.

Where the superintendent of repairs power of the legislature, however, when conferring the power of removal upon an officer or body, to make him or it the sole judge of the sufficiency of the cause.¹ A removal may be either express, that is, by a notification that the officer is removed,² or implied by the appointment of another person to the same office;³ but in and supplies in the department of public works of New York city was served with a communication from the commissioner, charging him with conduct affording a sufficient cause for removal, and notifying him of a time and place where he would be heard in explanation, it was held that it was immaterial that the charges were not drawn with the formal exactness of pleadings. People v. Thompson, 94 N. Y. 451.

Under that clause of the Nevada constitution which relates to the removal of judicial officers, etc., from their offices for certain reasons, an office already filled cannot become vacant without a removal, voluntary or involuntary. When voluntary, no judicial determination resulting in vacation is necessary; when involuntary, such determination is essential. State v. McClinton, 5 Nev. 329.

The dismissal of an application for the removal of a public officer is not a bar to its renewal where the ground of dismissal is shown to have been unfounded in fact. People v. Eddy, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 80.

1. See People v. Whitlock, 92 N. Y. 191; State v. Register, 59 Md. 283; State v. Stevens, 46 N. J. L. 344; People v. Board of Fire Com'rs, 73 N. Y. 437; State v. Board of Fire Com'rs, 26 Ohio St. 24; State v. McGarry, 21 Wis. 496.

Where an officer is removable at the pleasure of the governor for certain specified causes and deficiencies, the governor need not specify the causes of his removal, and his decision is final. Keenan v. Perry, 24 Tex. 253.

In Louisiana, the grant of power to the executive to remove an officer for a certain cause, implies authority to judge of the existence of that cause. The power, vested exclusively in executive discretion, cannot be controlled in its exercise by any other branch of the government. State v. Doherty, 25 La. Ann. 119; 13 Am. Rep. 131. See also Patton v. Vaughan, 39 Ark. 211; Wilcox v. People, 90 Ill. 186.

Where no particular cause is specified in the provision authorizing the removal, it must rest in the sound discretion of the officer to whom the power of removal is given to determine what cause shall be sufficient. See Patton v. Vaughn, 39 Ark. 211; State v. Doherty, 25 La. Ann. 119; 13 Am. Rep. 131.

2. Com. v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 23; 64 Am. Dec. 680; with other cases.

An order of dismissal issued by the Secretary of the Navy, although not expressed as the act of the President, is his dismissal; and so of an appointment of a successor. McElrath v. U. S., 12 Ct. of Cl. 201.

3. Com. v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 23; 64 Am. Dec. 680; State v. Abbott, 41 La. Ann. 1096; Stadler v. Detroit, 13 Mich. 346; Keenan v. Perry, 24 Tex. 253; People v. Carrigue, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 93; Bowerbank v. Morris, Wall. (C. C.) 119; Ex parte Hennen, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 260; and see Atkins v. Clare, 1 Vent. 400; Boucher v. Wiseman, Cro. Eliz. 440; Newland v. Shephard, 2 P. Wms. 194; Smyth v. Latham, 9 Bing. 692; 23 E. C. L. 424.

Where there were two persons, each holding a commission as sheriff, but the date of the commissions is different, in the entire absence of anything showing that there had been a removal from office of the party first appointed, or that the office had, from any cause, become vacant before the date of the last commission, the presumption is that the last commission was issued in error. State v. Bankston, 23 La. Ann. 375.

Appointing an officer the second time upon the erroneous supposition that his first term had expired, cannot be deemed to be an implied removal as to the first term, even though the council had the power of removal at pleasure, there being no intent to remove. Stadler v. Detroit, 13 Mich. 436; and see People v. Lord, 9 Mich. 227.

Where A was appointed an assistant engineer of the New York fire department, and, after serving for a time, he was ordered to duty as a machinist at a lower rate of pay, by performing the duties of machinist without protest, he precluded himself from claiming pay as any event the officer has authority to act until notice of revocation.¹ An officer not arbitrarily removable by the appointing power, cannot be indirectly removed by the rescission or revocation of his appointment after its completion and acceptance;² though a commission issued to an officer under the mistaken supposition that he was duly elected, may be revoked upon discovery of the mistake, and reissued to the officer legally entitled to it.³

The power to remove for cause, when conferred upon an officer or board, must be strictly construed and confined within the limits prescribed for it,⁴ the power to remove not necessarily an assistant-engineer. Reilly v. New York, 48 N. Y. Super. Ct. 274.

1. Com. v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 23; 64 Am. Dec. 680.

Where a member of the New York city police force, for the purpose of evading trial and punishment on charges about to be preferred, filed his application to be retired on a pension for twenty years' service, it was held that the board of police still had power to try him and dismiss him from the force. People v. French, 108 N. Y. 105.

2. People v. Reid, 11 Colo. 138; Attorney-Gen'l v. Love, 39 N. J. L. 476; 23 Am. Rep. 234; Ewing v. Thompson, 43 Pa. St. 372; Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch (U. S.) 137; and see Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 648.

Revocation of an order of dismissal, and acceptance of resignation, after appointment of a successor, does not operate to displace the successor. McElrath v. U. S., 12 Ct. of Cl. 201.

An officer who was appointed without fixing the duration of his term, under a provision authorizing his appointment for such time as the board shall determine, holds for the statutory period fixed for the office, and the board having authority to remove for cause only, cannot remove him at pleasure. State v. Police Com'rs, 88 Mo. 144; 14 Mo. App. 297.

3. Gulick v. New, 14 Ind. 93; 77 Am. Dec. 49; State v. Capers, 37 La. Ann. 747.

But where a town officer has been declared elected by the election board, and has qualified by taking the necessary oath of office, the board of appointment has no power to fill the office by appointment, as in case of a vacancy; nor has it authority to hear evidence and decide that the election was irregularly conducted, or that the election was fraudulent, and thus declare a vacancy. People v. Callaghan, 83 Ill. 128.

4. See Mead v. Treasurer, 36 Mich. 416; Leeman v. Hinton, 1 Duv. (Ky.) 37; Com. v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 23; 64 Am. Dec. 680; Crawford v. Township Board, 24 Mich. 248; McGregor v. Gladwine Co., 37 Mich. 388; State v. Lingo, 26 Mo. 496; People v. Albany Medical College, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 220; Prowell v. Fowlkes, 5 Baxt. (Tenn.) 649; People v. Burnside, 3 Lans. (N. Y.) 74; State v. Bryce, 7 Ohio, pt. 2, 82; Hawkins v. Kercheval, 10 Lea (Tenn.) 535; State v. Chamber of Commerce, 20 Wis. 63; Reg. v. Sutton, 10 Mod. 76.

Removals can only be made for the causes prescribed by law. Dubuc v. Voss, 19 La. Ann. 210; 92 Am. Dec. 526.

Power to remove an officer for causes named, or for other causes means other like causes. State v. McGarry, 21 Wis. 496.

Under a constitutional provision that persons appointed to fill vacancies in office shall hold until the next general election and the qualification of their successors, a board of supervisors may not remove at pleasure one whom they had appointed to fill a vacancy in the office of sheriff. State v. Chatburn, 63 Iowa 659; 50 Am. Rep. 760.

A power conferred on police commissioners to remove subordinates for the purpose of reducing the force, cannot be exercised to create a vacancy for the appointment of another person. State v. Schumaker, 27 La. Ann. 332.

A naked power given by law to an officer or other person must be strictly followed, especially if it involves forfeiture; and it devolves on him claiming a right under the exercise of such power to show that it was pursued in all reincluding the power to suspend.¹ But when no other or different results would be effected by a suspension, so that it can be properly designated as the lesser power, it is clearly included in the power to remove.² Proceedings for the removal of an officer for cause are judicial in their nature and must be had before tribunals clothed with judicial powers,³ and while such powers may be and often are conferred upon superior officers and heads of departments, they must be exercised within the same limitations and subjected to the same precautions as other judicial proceedings,⁴ the regularity of proceedings for removal being at spects accurately. Nalle v. Fenwick, 4 Rand. (Va.) 585; Yancey v. Hopkins, 1 Munf. (Va.) 419.

A power of removal conferred by a city charter is not repealed by a general act conferring power to remove for another cause. Manker v. Faulbarber, 94 Mo. 430.

1. State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536; Gregory v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 113 N. Y. 416; and see State v. Heron, 24 La. Ann. 594.

The power vested in the city council to expel its members does not warrant their suspension because that would leave a portion of the people unrepresented in the body and without a remedy. State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536.

Where, as in Nebraska, the statute clearly makes a distinction between the mode of filling the places of officers removed and those suspended the terms "removed" and "suspended" cannot be deemed synonymous. State v. Meeker, 19 Neb. 444.

2. Shannon v. Portsmouth, 54 N. H. 183; Gregory v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 113 N. Y. 416; State v. Lingo, 26 Mo. 496; Weatberg v. Kansas City, 64 Mo. 493; State v. Police Com'rs, 16 Mo. App. 48.

A board of police commissioners is not guilty of an arbitrary and unwarrantable exercise of authority in suspending an officer pending a trial before the board on charges, which if true would involve his dismissal. State v. Police Com'rs, 16 Mo. App. 48.

3. Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 672; Andrews v. King, 77 Me. 224; Dullam v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392; 51 Am. Rep. 128; Charles v. Mayor etc. of Hoboken, 27 N. J. L. 203; State v. Pritchard, 36 N. J. L. 101; In re Cleveland, 51 N. J. L. 311; In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 395; State v. Prince, 45 Wis. 610.

No special mode of procedure having been prescribed by statute, an application to have a commissioner removed may be heard upon a rule to show cause, founded upon affidavits of citizens making charges of misconduct, and granted upon the motion of the United States district attorney, giving the commissioner notice and an opportunity to present affidavits and other documentary evidence. In re Caves, 30 Fed. Rep. 21.

The charges against a clerk, prosecuted for breach of good behavior, must be supported by affidavit before they can be filed; and the summons against him should recite the charges at length. Com. v. Rodes, 1 Dana (Ky.) 595.

A statute giving the governor power to remove a State officer is void if the constitution lodges all judicial power elsewhere. Dullam v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392; 51 Am. Rep. 128.

4. See Stockwell v. Township Board, 22 Mich. 341; Dullam v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392; 51 Am. Rep. 128.

The legislature may authorize the governor to remove incumbents of offices created by the legislature; and the exercise of this power of removal will be presumed to have been for good cause. Evans v. Populus, 22 La. Ann. 121; State v. Graham, 25 La. Ann. 73; Com. v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 23; 64 Am. Dec. 640.

The power of removal should not be exercised capriciously or arbitrarily, but the court should proceed with great caution, and every presumption of innocence allowed in a criminal case should be indulged in favor of the officer. In re Eaves, 30 Fed. Rep. 21.

A petition addressed to the governor by virtue of the power of removal vested in him by the constitution in the investigation of charges against the sheriff and for his removal is absolutely privileged. Randall v. State, all times subject to review in the courts.¹ The power to remove public officers, however, has been held by a number of cases to be administrative, and not judicial.² In ascertaining what is a sufficient cause for a removal, it is necessary to separate the character of the man from the character of the officer, the misconduct which will warrant a removal being ordinarily such as affects the performance of his duties as an officer,³ and not such as affect his private character as an individual only, unless it is in itself of so infamous a nature as to render the offender unfit to execute any public franchise,⁴ and even such as are only against 16 Wis. 340; Larkin v. Noonan, 19 Wis. 82.

1. Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 672; Dullan v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392; 51 Am. Rep. 128; State v. St. Louis, 90 Mo. 19; In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 395; People v. Board of Police, 3 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 488; Mooers v. Smedley, 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 28; State v. Bryce, 7 Ohio, pt. 1, 282; Field v. Com., 32 Pa. St. 478; Willard's Appeal, 4 R. I. 601; Foster v. Kansas, 112 U. S. 201; Kennard v. Louisiana, 92 U. S. 480; Bagg's Case, 11 Coke 99; King v. Gaskin, 8 T. R. 209; Ramsay's Case, 18 A. & E., N. S. 190; Williams v. Bagot, 3 B. & C. 722; Reg. v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 1 E. & E. 545; 102 E. C. L. 544.

In People v. Stout, 11 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 17; 19 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 171, however, it was held that the power to remove an officer for cause is of a discretionary or judicial nature, and unless otherwise specially provided by law, is not the subject of examination or review by any other tribunal than the one in which the power is vested, either in respect to the cause, or in respect to its sufficiency, or existence, or in any respect whatever. See also People v. French, 110 N. Y. 494.

2. State v. Frazier, 48 Ga. 137; Patton v. Vaughan, 39 Ark. 211; State v. Doherty, 25 La. Ann. 119; 13 Am. Rep. 131; State v. Ramos, 10 La. Ann. 420; Keenan v. Perry, 24 Tex. 253; State v. McGarry, 21 Wis. 496; Attorney Gen'l v. Brown, 1 Wis. 513; and see State v. Hawkins, 44 Ohio St. 98; Ex parte Hennen, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 230; Conner v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 285.

In Donahue v. Will Co., 100 Ill. 94, it was held that a statute which authorizes a county board to remove a county treasurer for nonfeasance or malfeasance, does not contravene a constitutional provision vesting all judicial powers in the courts, and is valid.

3. Com. v. Barry, Hard. (Ky.) 229; Com. v. Williams, 79 Ky. 42; 42 Am. Rep. 204; Com. v. Chambers, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 160.

Where a public officer is charged with conspiracy or fraud in the discharge of his duties, the presumption of law in favor of his innocence will prevail against circumstances of suspicion, but it may be overcome by proof of delinquencies of a similar nature. Bottomly v. U. S., 1 Story (U. S.) 135.

Under the Indiana constitution providing for the removal of public officers for crime, negligence or incapacity, a statute providing for their removal for voluntary intoxication in business hours, is valid. McComas v. Krug, 81 Ind. 327; 42 Am. Rep. 135. The rule is the same under the laws of Alabama. State v. Savage, 89 Ala. 1; but intoxication is not misfeasance within the constitution of Kentucky. Com. v. Williams, 79 Ky. 42; 42 Am. Rep. 204.

4. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517; Rex v. Liverpool, 2 Burr. 723; and see Com. v. St. Patrick's Soc., 2 Binn. (Pa.) 441; 4 Am. Dec. 453; Com. v. Guardians of the Poor, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 469; Society v. Com., 52 Pa. St. 125; Evans v. Philadelphia Club, 50 Pa. St. 107; People v. Board of Fire Com'rs, 72 N. Y. 445.

Bribing a voter previous to election is not misconduct in office, Com. v. Shaver, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 338; but receiving bribes while in office is an official misconduct. State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536.

Under provisions that all convictions of any county officer for any misdemeanor involving official misconduct shall work an immediate removal from office, etc., and that no officer shall be removed for any act committed prior to his election to office, an officer who the duties of his office must amount to a breach of the tacit conditions annexed to it,¹ though the official commission of a wrongful act, or the official omission to perform a duty, is a sufficient misconduct, even in the absence of corrupt or malicious motives.² In case of misconduct which consists of a breach of official duty only the offense is triable by the officer in whom the power of removal is vested.³ When it is not only a breach of duty, but also a criminal matter for which the offender may be indicted, the weight of authority upholds the same mode of trial;⁴ but if the act be criminal only and not a breach of official duty, is his own successor, and committed the unlawful act after re-election, and while performing the functions of office, but before he had qualified, should be removed. Brackenridge v. State, 27 Tex. App. 513.

Upon a suit by a public officer for his salary after removal, the city are not confined in their defense to the misbehavior specified in the order of removal. Macon v. Hays, 25 Ga. 590.

If the incumbent of an office uses the office as a means of wrong-doing, this is a good cause of removal, though the acts in question are not of an official nature. People v. Cooper, 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 416.

1. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517; and see Com. v. Barry, Hard. (Ky.) 229; Com. v. Chambers, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 160; Minkler v. State, 14 Neb. 181.

Demanding and receiving illegal fees is an official misconduct justifying the removal of the officer perpetrating the act. Brackenridge v. State, 27 Tex. App. 513.

Superintendents of the poor who draw orders on the county treasurer in favor of persons without whose knowledge they draw the money, and then compel the payees to take goods instead of the money at exorbitant prices are guilty of misconduct in office, authorizing their removal. Gager v. Chippewa Co., 47 Mich. 167.

A false certificate over his official signature by a registrar of deeds that he had examined a title and found it unincumbered, is such a misconduct in office as will justify his removal. State v. Leach, 60 Me. 58; 11 Am. Rep. 172.

2. Minkler v. State, 14 Neb. 181; Com. v. Barry, Hard. (Ky.) 229; Com. v. Chambers, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 160; State v. Leach, 60 Me. 58; 11 Am. Rep. 172.

The willful and persistent refusal upon the part of a county attorney to prosecute violations of the liquor law is a misconduct in office, though the refusal was made in the belief that the sentiment of the community was opposed to the prosecution. State v. Foster, 32 Kan. 14. See also State v. Allen, 5 Kan. 213.

The misconduct of a deputy is not a ground for the removal of his superior unless he has directly ratified or participated in it. State v. Budd, 39 La. Ann. 232.

3. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517; Com. v. St. Patrick's etc. Soc., 2 Binn. (Pa.) 441; 4 Am. Dec. 453.

4. Haddock's Case, Ld. Raym. 439; Rex v. Chalke, 6 Comb. 397; Willc. on Mun. Corp. 249; and see Donahue v. Will Co., 100 Ill. 94; People v. French, 32 Hun (N. Y.) 112; 60 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 377.

A report of a grand jury, which states that an officer should be removed "for and on account of his habitual drunkenness while in such office prior to and down to the making of this report," sufficiently complies with the Alabama Code, § 4839, requiring a grand jury, if it finds that an officer should be removed, to report to the court, "setting forth the facts." State v. Savage, 89 Ala. 1.

Under the Texas constitution providing that every officer, before assuming the duties of his office, shall take an oath that he has not given or offered any inducement to procure votes at his election, and that every person shall be disqualified from holding office upon conviction for such offense, merely holding out a promise, in case of his election, to serve for less compensation than the lawful fees, does not disqualify one from holding office, unless he had been actually convicted for such offense. State v. Humphreys, 74 Tex. 466.

while there is a conflict of authority, the better theory would seem to be that the presumption of innocence would apply in favor of the officer, and that therefore he could not be deprived of his right to hold the office until after conviction in a regular trial for the offense in a court of competent jurisdiction.¹ Statutes authorizing the removal of public officers for cause usually declare what cause shall be deemed sufficient.² Misconduct or malfeasance as a ground for removal has reference to the conduct of the officer as such and signifies an abuse of the duties of his office,³

1. Rex v. Richardson, 1 Burr. 517; Com. v. Jones, 10 Bush (Ky.) 725; State v. Humphries, 74 Tex. 466; and see Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 277; In re Dorsey, 7 Port. (Ala.) 293; Coit v. State, 28 Ark. 417; Barker v. People, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 686; Mayor etc. of Macon v. Shaw, 16 Ga. 172; Com. v. Barry, Hard. (Ky.) 238; Com. v. Chambers, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 160; Ex parte Lehman, 60 Miss. 967; People v. Board of Police, 9 Hun (N. Y.) 222; People v. Police Com'rs, 20 Hun (N. Y.) 333. But see to the contrary, Oliver v. City Council, 69 Ga. 165; People v. Board of Police, 11 Hun (N. Y.) 403; People v. French, 32 Hun (N. Y.) 112; 60 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 377.

At common law the king could not take into his own hands by virtue of his own judgment an office on the ground that the incumbent of it has been convicted of a crime. Reynolds' Case, 9 Rep. 95; and see State v. Pritchard, 36 N. J. L. 101.

Under power to remove for illegal, corrupt or otherwise improper conduct a charge of using obscene and abusive language which does not show that such language was used while in the discharge of official duty, is not good. People v. Doolittle, 44 Hun (N. Y.) 293.

If an officer is indicted for a personal offense and pending trial is imprisoned and an appointment is made to the office, the accused cannot on being subsequently acquitted recover from the public the salary provided for the office for the portion of the term subsequent to his removal. Brunswick v. Fahm, 60 Ga. 109.

In Kansas.—In the absence of any judgment against a county treasurer on his official bond, the board of county commissioners cannot remove such county treasurer from office and fill his place by the appointment of some other person. Graham v. Cowgill, 13 Kan. 114.

Intoxication of the clerk of the court when discharging the functions of his office, is a gross neglect of duty; but evidence of intoxication at other times, or of habit, cannot be admitted in proof of a specific charge. Ledbetter v. State, 10 Ala. 241.

Providing for the suspension from office, by a designated court however, of any county or township officer, against whom a presentment or an indictment is lodged, until the charge is tried, does not violate the constitutional right of an officer to hold and exercise his office. Allen v. State, 32 Ark. 241.

2. Mechem's Pub. Off. § 457.

It is frequently provided that the power of removal shall not be exercised for political reason only. See State v. Board of Public Works, 51 N. J. L. 240.

The constitutional right of the appointing power to remove at pleasure, is not abridged by an act providing for removal in a certain way, or for a certain cause. People v. Hill, 7 Cal. 97; and see Smith v. Brown, 59 Cal. 672; Lutz' Case, 8 Pa. Co. Ct. Rep. 153.

3. See Mayor etc. of Macon v. Shaw, 16 Ga. 172; Randolph v. Pope Co., 19 Ill. App. 100; State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. 536; Minkler v. State, 14 Neb. 181; State v. Teasdale, 21 Fla. 652; People v. New York Fire Com'rs, 49 N. Y. Super. Ct. 369; Bracy v. Smith, 64 Miss. 17; State v. Hawkins, 44 Ohio St. 98; State v. Bowen, 41 Mo. 217; State v. Hixon, 41 Mo. 210; People v. Jourdan, 90 N. Y. 53; People v. Mays, 117 Ill. 257; Runnels v. State, Walk. (Miss.) 146; Woods v. Varnum, 83 Cal. 46; People v. Police Com'rs, 41 Hun (N. Y.) 389; McPherson v. State, 3 W. Va. 564; Phares v. State, 3 W. Va. 567; 100 Am. Dec. 777. But see Queen v. Atlanta, 59 Ga. 318; Com. v. Barry, Hard. (Ky.) 229.

An officer who with corrupt motives does an act beyond his lawful authority, assuming to act officially and under his official designation in such manner as and voluntary misconduct is contemplated and not circumstances or conditions resulting from accident or misfortune.¹ So incapacity does not mean a lack of general capacity, but a defect of capacity for the office held.²

The trial body, in case of removal for cause, must consist of all the officers in whom the power of removal is vested,³ and the is likely to deceive and mislead others, is guilty of misbehavior or malfeasance in office. State v. Wedge, 24 Minn. 150.

It is malfeasance for a policeman to commit a battery upon a citizen with his billet while off duty as a redress for his private wrongs. Oliver v. City Council, 69 Ga. 165; People v. Carroll, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 438.

The demand of illegal fees by the county judge is an "official misconduct," and subjects him to removal from office. Brackenridge v. State, 27 Tex. App. 513.

But a removal cannot be made for the violation of a void ordinance. Milliken v. City Council, 54 Tex. 388; 38 Am. Rep. 629. And an officer cannot be removed because he was ineligible at the time of his appointment. People v. Board of Police, 72 N. Y. 415; Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. Car. 125.

In Coit v. Lynes, 33 Conn. 109, the court by Butler, J., held that a misfeasance is a default in not doing a lawful act in a proper manner, or omitting to do it as it should be done; while a malfeasance is the doing of an act wholly wrong and unlawful; and nonfeasance is omission to perform the required duty at all, or a total neglect of duty.

1. People v. French, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 90; and see State v. Alcorn, 78 Tex. 387; State v. Hixon, 41 Mo. 210.

Failure to execute a bond required by law is not a misconduct in office. Hyde v. State, 52 Miss. 665; Com. v. Silfer, 25 Pa. St. 23; 64 Am. Dec. 680.

That some other person is more congenial to the appointing power is not a cause which the incumbent can explain in the sense in which that term is used, and hence, is not a ground of removal. People v. Board of Fire Com'rs, 72 N. Y. 445; People v. Grant, 12 Daly (N. Y.) 294.

A mayor cannot be removed for disorderly behavior or malconduct in office for appointing as a temporary policeman one who had several times been arrested for breaches of the peace though the mayor knew of such arrest, though such appointee was under arrest for a criminal offense at the time of his appointment, it not appearing that this fact was known to the mayor. State v. Teasdale, 21 Fla. 652.

It is not a failure to properly discharge the duties of his office for a policeman to bring, in good faith, a suit against the city of which he is an officer, for the assertion of a supposed right. Hawkins v. Kerscheal, 10 Lea (Tenn.) 535.

The mere want of qualification to be appointed, or to hold the office of clerk, is not a ground of prosecution "for a breach of good behavior." Com. v. Lancaster, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 161.

2. People v. Board of Police, 69 N. Y. 408; People v. Board of Fire Com'rs, 43 Hun (N. Y.) 554. And see Andrews v. King, 77 Me. 224; State v. Board of Police Com'rs, 49 N. J. L. 170.

The opinion of the board that the duties of the persons removed can be more efficiently performed by other persons is not "cause" such as the law requires. People v. Fire Com'rs, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 500.

If a person who has been regularly appointed to an office, assumes the duties of another office with the consent of the proper authorities, he may be held responsible for the rightful performance of the latter office, and may be removed from the office to which he was regularly appointed for incapacity or inefficiency in the assumed office. People v. Campbell, 82 N. Y. 247.

3. Andrews v. King, 77 Me. 224; Charles v. Mayor etc. of Hoboken, 27 N. J. L. 203; Jacksonville v. Allen, 25 Ill. App. 54. But see People v. Mays, 117 Ill. 257; People v. Board of Police Com'rs, 93 N. Y. 97; People v. Police Com'rs, 31 Hun (N. Y.) 209.

Though the mayor is one of the body charged with the duty of investigating an offense alleged to have been committed by an officer, he may, nevertheless, formally bring charges against him, but he must not prejudice proceeding must be based upon specific charges sufficient in their nature, if established, to justify a removal.¹ The officer may be represented by counsel, call witnesses and cross-examine the witnesses against him,² the substance of the rules governing judicial procedure being required to be observed;³ and before a the cause, nor act as prosecutor at the hearing. Andrews v. King, 77 Me. 224.

It is not a ground of objection to the trial body that the officers who composed it, directed that the charges which alleged physical incapacity, and were based upon the report of their examining physician, be put into proper form for investigation. State v. Board of Police Com'rs, 49 N. J. L. 170.

A change in the constitution of the board of police commissioners pending the trial of an officer, does not invalidate a removal made by the new board. People v. New York Police Com'rs, 23 Hun (N. Y.) 351.

1. People v. French, 102 N. Y. 583; People v. Nichols, 79 N. Y. 582; People v. Starks, 33 Hun (N. Y.) 384; People v. Carroll, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 438; Sevier v. Justices etc., Peck (Tenn.) 334; People v. Therrien, 80 Mich. 187; In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 395; and see Woods v. Varnum, 85 Cal. 639; People v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 19 Hun (N. Y.) 441; Coit v. State, 28 Ark. 417; Callahan v. State, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 379; Street v. Gallatin Co., 1 Ill. 50; Ex parte Thatcher, 7 Ill. 167.

Due opportunity for explanation is not given to an officer by proceeding in his absence, caused by sickness, of which the trial body had notice. People v. Starks, 33 Hun (N. Y.) 334.

The charges and notice must be such as shall enable the accused to prepare for trial. People v. N. Y. Fire Com'rs, 77 N. Y. 153.

Where the charge exhibited to the governor, and the copy served on the officer, is not specific, the error cannot be cured by subsequently serving the officer with a bill of particulars setting forth the particular acts. People v. Therrien, 80 Mich. 187.

Notice of the cause of the proposed removal need not be given in writing. People v. Campbell, 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 82.

2. People v. Nichols, 79 N. Y. 582; Leadbetter v. State, 10 Ala. 241; In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57

How. Pr. (N. Y.) 395; In re Emmet, 65 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 266.

A right to have counsel upon the hearing before the New York City board of police commissioners rests in the discretion of that body. The constitutional provision giving such right does not apply. People v. Police Com'rs, 31 Hun (N. Y.) 209; People v. Campbell, 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 82.

Under an authority to remove after notice of the cause, and an opportunity for explanation, if an explanation is not satisfactorily given, a removal may be ordered, without calling witnesses to prove the charges or allowing accused to give testimony. People v. Thompson, 94 N. Y. 451; People v. Campbell, 50 N. Y. Super. Ct. 82.

It is only where an officer has been lawfully appointed that he is entitled to the protection prescribed by law as to his removal. Where, for example, the city charter authorizes ordinances for the appointment and no ordinance is passed, an appointment does not protect. State v. Gloucester City, 49 N. J. L. 177.

3. See People v. Starks, 33 Hun (N. Y.) 384; People v. Doolittle, 44 Hun (N. Y.) 293; People v. Therrien, 80 Mich. 187; In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 395; but see People v. Police Com'rs, 98 N. Y. 332.

But proceedings are not required to be conducted with the strictness of common law pleading or practice. People v. Carroll, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 438; and see People v. Thompson, 26 Hun (N. Y.) 28.

If notice is given of the charges, and of the time of hearing, and the officer appears with counsel, making no objections to the notice, and the charges and specifications are read to him, and the witnesses are examined and cross-examined by both parties, the proceedings will be deemed to be regular. State v. Board of Police Com'rs, 49 N. J. L. 170; State v. Mayor of Camden, 48 N. J. L. 433.

It is sufficient if the directions of the statute are substantially observed. State v. Mayor of Camden, 48 N. J. L. 433.

removal can be made the truth of the charges must be passed upon.¹ Courts of general jurisdiction have power, as a general rule, to examine into removals and determine whether they have been made in compliance with the statute.²

6. Removal by Legislative Action.—Where the term of an office is fixed by the constitution, the legislature has no authority to remove the officer, either directly or by abolishing the office, unless the power is expressly given by the constitution.³ Where an officer has been elected by the legislature, however, it may lawfully reduce his territorial jurisdiction to the

Under the California Penal Code, § 772, providing that when an accusation "in writing, verified by the oath of any person," is presented against any officer, the court shall cite him to appear, and then "hear, in a summary manner, the accusation," the proceedings may be on a written charge by a private person, and need not be by indictment or information in the name of the people. Woods v. Varnum, 85 Cal. 639.

In view of the evident intent of the statute that actions to try title to offices shall be speedily tried, it is not an abuse of discretion to advance such a cause on the docket where there is no application to postpone it, and an application for continuance, based on the absence of witnesses, is not such as the law requires. Hunnicut v. State, 75 Tex. 233.

1. Andrews v. King, 77 Me. 224; and see People v. Nichols, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 200; People v. Cooper, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 358; Callahan v. State, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 379; Com. v. Arnold, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 309; Ledbetter v. State, 10 Ala. 241.

If the person accused, denies that his authority extended to the matter upon which the allegations of his neglect is based, his answer will be regarded as a demurrer, and an admission of the facts charged. People v. Thompson, 94 N. Y. 451.

Police commissioners have no authority to remove a member of the force, where the evidence has been wholly taken by one commissioner who has since left the board. People v. New York Police Com'rs, 27 Hun (N. Y.) 462.

Under the California Penal Code no right to trial by jury exists. Woods v. Varnum, 85 Cal. 639; contra in Tennessee. Sevier v. Washington Co., Peck (Tenn.) 334.

2. People v. Therrien 80 Mich. 187;

In re Nichols, 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 474; 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 395; and see generally as to appeals from determinations in proceedings for removal, Woods v. Varnum, 83 Cal. 46; Mayor etc. of Savannah v. Brown, 64 Ga. 229; People v. French, 60 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 377; Sevier v. Washington Co., Peck (Tenn.) 334.

The finding of the board should not be interfered with if supported by evidence to such an extent as would justify the court in refusing to set aside a verdict of a jury as against the weight of evidence. People v. Board of Com'rs, 93 N. Y. 97.

If there is evidence of incapacity on the part of a subordinate, in proceedings under the charter of New York city, by the head of a department, to remove him, the court of appeals will not reverse the decision; where, however, there is no evidence, the removal is not "for cause," and may be reversed. People v. Campbell, 82 N. Y. 247.

3. People v. Dubois, 23 Ill. 547; Howard v. State, 10 Ind. 99; Lowe v. Com., 3 Metc. (Ky.) 237; King v. Hunter, 65 N. Car. 603; 6 Am. Rep. 754; State v. Choate, 11 Ohio 511; Com. v. Gamble, 62 Pa. St. 343; 1 Am. Rep. 422; Com. v. Mann, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 403; State v. Messmore, 14 Wis. 170; State v. Douglas, 26 Wis. 428; 7 Am. Rep. 87; Foster v. Jones, 79 Va. 642; 52 Am. Rep. 637; and see Fraser v. Alexander, 75 Cal. 147; Hastings v. Young (Cal. 1888), 17 Pac. Rep. 530; Riggs v. Poston (Cal. 1888), 17 Pac. Rep. 530.

Wherever the constitution has created an office and fixed its term, and declared upon what grounds and in what mode an incumbent may be removed, it is beyond the power of the legislature to remove or suspend him from office for any other reason or in any other mode than the constitution minimum extent as fixed by the constitution;¹ or may diminish the aggregate amount of the duties of the officer by division of his district or otherwise, but must leave the authority and jurisdiction pertaining to the office intact;² but as a public office cannot be regarded as the property of the incumbent,³ and as an office is not a contract, either expressed or implied between the public officer and the government whose agent he is, but a mere creation of law,⁴ an office created by statute is wholly within the control of the legislature, and it may be declared vacant;⁵

itself has furnished. Brown v. Grover, 6 Bush (Ky.) 1; Low v. Com., 3 Metc. (Ky.) 237; Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 648; State v. Draper, 50 Mo. 353; State v. Thoman, 10 Kan. 191; State v. McNeely, 24 La. Ann. 19, and see State v. Wiltz, 11 La. Ann. 439.

The legislature cannot prescribe to the council of appointment of the State the manner in which they shall execute their powers, nor prevent their removing an incumbent from office, and appointing a successor, whenever they please so to do. People v. Foot, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 58.

1. Foster v. Jones, 79 Va. 642; 52 Am. Rep. 637.

A constitutional office may be abolished at any time by a new constitution or by the amendment of the existing one. French v. Com., 78 Pa. St. 339.

The fact that an office is mentioned incidentally in the constitution does not make it a constitutional office so as to place it beyond legislative control. State v. Hermann, 11 Mo. App. 43. And see Ex parte Wiley, 54 Ala. 226; State v. Wright, 7 Ohio St. 334.

A constitutional provision that all officers shall hold office during their official terms and until their successors shall be duly elected or appointed and qualified, does not bar the legislature of the power to vacate a statutory office, the purpose of the provision being that an officer shall hold his office and act until his successor is qualified. State v. Hermann, 11 Mo. App. 43; State v. Harris (N. Dak. 1890), 45 N. W. Rep. 1101.

2. Com. v. Gamble, 62 Pa. St. 334; 1 Am. Rep. 422.

The State legislature cannot establish arbitrary exclusions from office, or any general regulations requiring qualifications which the constitution has not required; but it can inflict disqualification to hold office as a punishment for crime. Barker v. People, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 686.

3. See Prince v. Skillin, 71 Me. 361; 36 Am. Rep. 328; Hyde v. State, 52 Miss. 665; State v. Davis, 44 Mo. 129; Conner v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 285; State v. Douglas, 26 Wis. 428; 7 Am. Rep. 87.

But see the contrary in North Carolina, Vann v. Pipkin, 77 N. Car. 408; Brown v. Turner, 70 N. Car. 93; King v. Hunter, 65 N. Car. 603; 6 Am. Rep. 754. And see supra, this title, Definition.

4. See Hyde v. State, 52 Miss. 665; Conner v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 355; 5 N. Y. 285; People v. Cortland Co., 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 139; 40 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 53; Com. v. Bacon, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 322; Com. v. Mann, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 418; Koontz v. Franklin Co., 76 Pa. St. 154; Butler v. Pennsylvania, 10 How. (U. S.) 402.

To the contrary in North Carolina, Hoke v. Henderson, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 1; 25 Am. Dec. 677; King v. Hunter, 65 N. Car. 603; 6 Am. Rep. 754; and see supra, this title, Compensation.

5. People v. Van Gaskin, 5 Mont. 352; State v. Davis, 44 Mo. 129; Denver v. Hobart, 10 Nev. 28; and see Barker v. Pittsburgh, 4 Pa. St. 49; Ex parte Wiley, 54 Ala. 226; People v. Rochester, 11 Hun (N. Y.) 241.

But where the public by its legislature or other accredited agent has contracted with an officer and agreed to pay him a stipulated salary for his services during a limited period, the contract is as fully protected as a like contract would be between two citizens. Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518. And see Hall v. Wisconsin, 103 U. S. 5.

An ordinance "providing for the vacating of certain civil offices in the State," passed at a convention called by the legislature for the purpose of amending the State constitution, was within the powers of that convention, its duties may be transferred to another officer;¹ it may be entirely abolished;² its term may be increased or diminished;³ its duties may be increased or diminished;⁴ the manner of filling it may be changed,⁵ or its compensation may be altered,⁶ at the will of the power by which it was created. So municipal offices may be abolished, extended, altered or vacated by the municipal authority by which they were created,⁷ or by the legislature by which the corporation itself was created,⁸ and where the legislature has conferred upon a municipal body the authority to create offices, it may abolish offices so created by it even though the term of the incumbent has not expired.⁹

7. Removal by Judicial Action.—Acts or omissions upon the part of an incumbent which forfeit the right to an office, do not render it forthwith vacant, and it becomes so only by the judgment and is constitutional. State v. Bernoudy, 40 Mo. 192.

1. People v. Squires, 14 Cal. 13.

2. State v. Douglas, 26 Wis. 428; 7 Am. Rep. 87; In re Bulger, 45 Cal. 553; Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa, 538; Prince v. Skillen, 71 Me. 361; 36 Am. Rep. 328; Wilcox v. Rodman, 46 Mo. 322.

Congress, by discontinuing an office, abolishes it. Beaman v. U. S., 19 Ct. of Cl. 5.

Provisions that no officer be removed until he has been informed of the cause, etc., does not apply where one is discharged because the office is abolished, or no funds are provided for his payment. Phillips v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 88 N. Y. 245.

3. People v. Haskell, 5 Cal. 357; People v. Banvard, 27 Cal. 470; People v. Auditor, 2 Ill. 537; Walker v. Peele, 18 Ind. 264; Taft v. Adams, 3 Gray (Mass.) 126; Prince v. Skillin, 71 Me. 361; 36 Am. Rep. 328; Territory v. Pyle, 1 Oregon 149; Bulter v. Pennsylvania, 10 How. (U. S.) 402.

4. People v. Squires, 14 Cal. 13; Bryan v. Cattell, 15 Iowa 538; Wilcox v. Rodman, 46 Mo. 322; Rhodes v. Hampton, 101 N. Car. 629; State v. Gales, 77 N. Car. 283; Hoke v. Henderson, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 1; 25 Am. Dec. 677.

In North Carolina, however, the legislature, whilst it continues an office, cannot oust an incumbent during the term for which he is chosen. Cotten v. Ellis, 7 Jones, (N. Car.) 545.

5. Prince v. Skillin, 71 Me. 362; 36 Am. Rep. 325; State v. Davis, 44 Mo. 129.

6. Farwell v. Rockland, 62 Me. 298; Prince v. Skillin, 71 Me. 361; 36 Am.

Rep. 325; Taft v. Adams, 3 Gray (Mass.) 126; Hyde v. State, 52 Miss. 665; Conner v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 5 N. Y. 291; People v. Devlin, 33 N. Y. 269; 88 Am. Dec. 377; Warner v. People, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 272; 43 Am. Dec. 740; Com. v. Bacon, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 322; Com. v. Mann, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 418; Barker v. Pittsburgh, 4 Pa. St. 51; Butler v. Pennsylvania, 10 How. (U. S.) 402.

Where a State legislature abolished the office of State printer, but added a proviso that the then incumbent should do the State printing for a certain time at a price twenty per cent. less than was previously allowed, it was held that, for work done after this enactment, he could only claim compensation subject to the deduction. Wilcox v. Rodman, 46 Mo. 322.

7. Augusta v. Sweeney, 44 Ga. 463; 9 Am. Rep. 172. And see Dillon Mun. Corp., § 231.

But if a charter requires a two-thirds' vote to remove an officer, an abolition of the office, without such vote, in effect removing the incumbent, is invalid. People v. Albany Medical College, 10 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 122; 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 220.

8. See People v. Hurlbut, 24 Mich. 44; 9 Am. Rep. 108; People v. Detroit, 28 Mich. 228; 15 Am. Rep. 202.

Where a statute provides for an office with a salary attached to be fixed by the board of supervisors, however, the latter cannot virtually abolish the office by reducing the salary to a nominal sum. De Sota Co. v. Westbrook, 64 Miss. 312.

9. Ford v. Board of State Harbor Com'rs, 81 Cal. 19.

of a court of competent jurisdiction in a proceeding instituted for the purpose of the removal of the officer;¹ nor can the authority of one holding a public office under color of legal title, be disputed in any collateral proceeding,² and proceedings against a public officer for his removal must be brought within the county or district of which he is an officer and within which the cause of action arose.³

a. IMPEACHMENT.—(See IMPEACHMENT.)⁴

b. QUO WARRANTO.—(See QUO WARRANTO.)

XXI. REMEDIES AS AGAINST PUBLIC OFFICERS—1. Injunctions.—(See INJUNCTIONS.)⁵

2. Mandamus.—(See MANDAMUS.)⁶

3. Certiorari.—(See CERTIORARI.)⁷

4. Writ of Prohibition.—(See PROHIBITION, WRIT OF.)

XXII. PROCEDURE IN ORDINARY ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST PUBLIC OFFICERS.—Actions against public officers in their individual capacities cannot be maintained if it appears that the acts complained of were done in an official capacity;⁸ and, on the other

1. Graham v. Cowgill, 13 Kan. 114; People v. Head, 25 Ill. 325; Leach v. Cassidy, 23 Ind. 449; Groome v. Gwinn, 43 Md. 572; Palmer v. Toley, 36 N. Y. Super. Ct. 14. And see State v. Peck, 30 La. Ann. 280.

But where a party has been so removed and another put in his place, under the power to fill vacancies, the latter is the de facto officer, and the former can only be reinstated by quo warranto. Ellison v. Raleigh, 89 N. Car. 125.

Equity will not restrain the incumbent of an office from exercising its duties pending an action involving his title thereto. Breslin v. Quinn (Supreme Ct.), 2 N. Y. Supp. 577.

Upon the rendition of a regular judgment of ouster against the officer and in favor of the claimant, the officer becomes ousted, and the party declared to be entitled, upon taking the official oath and filing bonds when required, becomes eo instanti invested with the office. Welch v. Cook, 7 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 282; People v. Conover, 6 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 220.

Where, on quo warranto, there is judgment that the relator is entitled to the office, a supersedeas bond filed on appeal will not delay the relator's right to take possession of the office. Iowa Code, § 3353, providing that if judgment be rendered in his favor, he shall proceed to exercise the functions of the office. Jayne v. Drorbaugh, 63

Iowa 711. And see Allen v. Robinson, 17 Minn. 113.

Nor will an action lie on the supersedeas bond to recover the emoluments of the office pending the appeal. Jayne v. Drorbaugh, 63 Iowa 711.

2. Mayor etc. of N. Y. v. Tucker, 1 Daly (N. Y.) 107; Hamlin v. Kassaf, 15 Oregon 456; 3 Am. St. Rep. 176; State v. Camden Co., 47 N. J. L. 454; People v. Board of Trustees etc. (Supreme Ct.) 7 N. Y. Supp. 806; Kissimmee City v. Cannon (Fla. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 523; Prince v. Boston, 148 Mass. 285; Schwartz v. Flatboats, 14 La. Ann. 243; McVeaney v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 131; 1 Hun (N. Y.) 35; Burt v. Wisona etc. R. Co., 31 Minn. 472. But see Wenner v. Smith, 4 Utah 238.

3. Hays v. Thompson, 21 La. Ann. 655; State v. Delassiz, 21 La. Ann. 655; Hallgrene v. Campbell, 81 Mich. 255; People v. Fowler, 8 Hun (N. Y.) 233.

This is an absolute right of the officer, as such, and not a matter of judicial discretion; and he cannot be deprived of it by joining other parties as defendants. People v. Fowler, 8 Hun (N. Y.) 233.

4. Vol. 9, p. 951.

5. Vol. 10, p. 777

6. Vol. 14, p. 88.

7. Vol. 3, p. 60.

8. Smith v. Stephan, 66 Md. 381.

The allegation in a complaint, that hand, in actions against officers as such, the declaration must show an official act creating their liability duly performed in their official capacity,¹ the same procedure being applicable when the liability was incurred by the act of a predecessor as by the act of the officer proceeded against, it being unnecessary to aver an engagement or a liability on the part of the officer himself.² The the defendant, being a canal commissioner, was bound to repair the banks of the Erie canal, at a certain place, in a division placed under his particular supervision, is sufficient to show that the action is brought against him in his private character; and it was not necessary to allege that he had in his hands funds sufficient to make the repairs, for not making which the action was brought against him. Griffith v. Follett, 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 620.

An assumption will not be applied to charge county commissioners in their private capacities for debts contracted by the county before they were in office, and when they are not in office at the trial of the case. Lyon v. Adams, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 443.

1. Archer v. Allen Co., 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 501. And see Peters v. Land, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 12; Butler v. State, 17 Ind. 450; Buyce v. Buyce, 48 Hun (N. Y.) 433; State v. Clarke, 73 N. Car. 255; Wake Co. v. Maginn, 78 N. Car. 181; Posey Co. v. Saunders, 17 Ind. 437; Parker v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 292; State v. Brown, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 494.

In an action on an order of a board of commissioners, payable out of the three-per cent. fund "as fast as the same accrues to the county," it must be alleged and proved that the county had received money from such fund with which it might have paid the order, or some part of it, or that the order was fraudulently drawn on a fund in which the county had no assets, and an averment that the county had not received any such fund, is fatal on demurrer. Union Co. v. Mason, 9 Ind. 97.

In an action against an assessor and collector by his deputy, to recover compensation received for a census taken by the plaintiff but reported by the defendant, the petition is fatally defective unless it sets forth the contract between them as to compensation, and avers a complete performance of the duty as prescribed by law, as to the report to the treasurer within the time, etc. Reeves v. Miller, 28 Tex. 578.

A complaint which alleges that the plaintiff, as a justice of the peace, performed services at the request of the district attorney of the county, in cases wherein the people of the State were plaintiffs, to the amount of $3,200, and that the defendant thereby became, and is, liable to pay said sum, does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against said county. Miner v. Solano Co., 26 Cal. 115.

Where the statute in giving the right to sue or to be sued, expressly requires that the allegation of official capacity shall be in a prescribed form, that form must be strictly followed. Plumtree v. Dratt, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 333.

In actions by a public officer in his own name simply naming himself in the title of the complaint with the title of his office annexed, it is insufficient to show that the action is brought by him in his official capacity; the complaint must contain an averment that the plaintiff is a public officer and that he sues as such. Fowler v. Westervelt, 17 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 59; 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 374; Gould v. Glass, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 179; but no particular form of alleging these facts need be followed provided it can be clearly gathered from the instrument that the plaintiff is an officer and sues as such. Smith v. Levinus, 8 N. Y. 472; and see Burnham v. Milwaukee, 69 Wis. 379.

It is not necessary that he should set forth in his complaint the time, manner and circumstances of his election or appointment, or the detail or the regularity of the proceedings by which he was inducted into office. Kelly v. Breusing, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 123; and see Hulbert v. Young, 13 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 413.

In actions by a board all members then living, and the personal representatives of those deceased, must be made parties. Cornell v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 9 Hun (N. Y.) 285.

2. Morse v. Earl, 13 Vt. 273; Silver v. Cummings, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 181; Potter v. Davis, Hill & D. Supp. (N. Y.) 394; Gillis v. Space, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 177.

Where a public officer admits the action is usually brought against the officer individually, specifying in the pleadings and proceedings his name of office.¹

One not an officer de jure, although invested with the forms of office, and although his acts would be deemed binding and valid as to third persons, cannot, when put upon his own defense, justify under his office,² and where one justifies under his office, his right to it and the legality of his election or appointment may be contested.³ A debt due to an officer in his private capacity is not a proper set-off to a claim against him for money received by him in his official capacity,⁴ and when the public alleges a set-off loss of public moneys intrusted to him, but insists that he has a good defense, the State need not wait till the expiration of his term of office before suing on his bond. State v. Nevin, 19 Nev. 162; 3 Am. St. Rep. 873.

A proceeding by the county against the executrix of a deceased treasurer to enforce a claim due the county must be instituted in the name of the deceased county treasurer's successor in office, who alone has authority to receive, keep, and disburse the moneys of the county. Cole Co. v. Schmidt (Mo. 1889), 10 S. W. Rep. 888.

1. Hathaway v. Homer, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 267; Galway v. Stimson, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 136; Com'rs of Highways v. Peck, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 215; Duanesburgh v. Jenkins, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 294; Wild v. Columbia Co., 9 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 315; and see Agent etc. v. Rikeman, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 279; Lyon v. Adams, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 443.

In a suit against a public officer, to recover balances found due on three separate accounts, the whole must be treated with reference to its effect on an execution in the suit, as having accrued at the date of the last account stated. Gorham v. Wing, 10 Mich. 486.

In an action by a private person for a breach of the conditions of the official bond of a county officer, the county is not a necessary party, even where a reformation of the bond is part of the relief sought. Stewart v. Carter, 4 Neb. 524; and in an action in the name of the State, on the official bond of a justice of the peace, it is not necessary that it should appear from the declaration that the relator is beneficially interested in the suit. State v. Herding, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 504; and see Hagadorn v. Raux, 72 N. Y. 583.

Foreign Officers.—Where property is vested in an officer for the time being of a foreign government, and he is authorized to maintain an action therefor in his own name by the country he represents, he may maintain such action in this State. Peel v. Elliot, 28 Barb. 200; 7 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 433; 16 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 481.

Assumpsit does not lie by a contractor against the public superintendent for work done for the State. West v. Jones, 9 Watts (Pa.) 27.

2. Pearce v. Hawkins, 2 Swan (Tenn.) 87; Schlencker v. Risley, 4 Ill. 483; 38 Am. Dec. 100; Blake v. Sturtevant, 12 N. H. 567; Short v. Symmes, 150 Mass. 298.

A record that he was duly sworn is insufficient. Blake v. Sturtevant, 12 N. H. 567; Schlencker v. Risley, 4 Ill. 483; 38 Am. Dec. 100.

A public officer will not be allowed to set up as a defense his right to hold the office until his successor is appointed and qualified, if he unlawfully detains the certificate and commission of his successor, and in this way prevents him from qualifying. State v. Steers, 44 Mo. 223.

In a qui tam action against one as auctioneer, however, to recover the penalty prescribed by Massachusetts Stat. 1795, ch. 8, for selling his own goods after sunset, he may show that he was not a regularly licensed auctioneer, and thus avoid the forfeiture. Clark v. Cushman, 5 Mass. 505.

3. Shepherd v. Staten, 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 79. See McVeane v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 131; 1 Hun (N. Y.) 85; Demarest v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 19.

One claiming a salary as due him under an appointment for a time when he in fact rendered no service, must allege and prove his right to recover, irrespective of the fact that he rendered no service during the time. Brant v. New York, 48 N. Y. Super. Ct. 293.

4. Prewett v. Marsh, 1 Stew. & P.

against an officer, the burden rests with the public to establish it.¹ Irregular or improper conduct on the part of a public officer cannot be made out by inference, but must be directly alleged and proved,² the facts constituting the misconduct being required to be set forth.³ The official character of a public officer may be established by general reputation as to his acts as such, even though there is record evidence of his appointment or election.⁴ Judgments recovered against officers in their name of office are (Ala.) 17; 21 Am. Dec. 645; Harper v. Howard, 3 Ala. 284; Com. v. Rodes, T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 318; and see Com'rs of Yancey v. Piercy, 72 N. Car. 181; U. S. v. Prentice, 6 McLean (U. S.) 65.

But where the official bond given to a town by a collector of taxes and his sureties is several as well as joint, and the collector brings an action against the town on a demand which is itself the subject of set-off, the defendants may set off their claim on such bond for money which the plaintiff has received on tax bills committed to him for collection, and which he has not accounted for nor paid over. Donelson v. Colerain, 4 Met. (Mass.) 430.

In a suit between the United States and individuals, the latter cannot claim to be allowed a credit, unless such claim has been presented to the accounting officers of the treasury department, and been disallowed, and proof of such presentation must be made by the individual. U. S. v. Martin, 2 Paine (U. S.) 68.

1. Jones v. U. S., 39 Fed. Rep. 410.

Where it was alleged that the clerk retiring from office had forfeited his fees by failing to file an explicit fee bill within the term prescribed by statute, it was held that the allegation, although of a negative character, must be proved. Barrow v. Robicheaux, 14 La. Ann. 203.

2. Windham v. Litchfield, 22 Conn. 226; and see Mayor etc. v. Davis, 18 N. J. L. 21; Perkins v. Adams, 5 Met. (Mass.) 44; U. S. v. Girault, 11 How. (U. S.) 22.

In order to charge an officer for breach of duty, a valid writ is necessary. Putnam v. Traeger, 66 Ill. 89.

A petition in a suit against a judge of an election for wrongfully refusing the plaintiff's vote, is bad on demurrer when it does not aver the particular facts on which the plaintiff's right to vote depends. Curry v. Cabliss, 37 Mo. 330.

In a complaint against a county treasurer for neglecting and refusing to pay over moneys to his successor, an averment that, being elected for three years, and until a successor should be elected, he continued in office until a certain period beyond three years, it was held equivalent to an averment that no successor was elected until after that period. State v. Spears, 1 Ind. 515.

3. See Kilgore v. Ferguson, 77 Ill. 213; Holden v. Eaton, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 15; Ryan v. State Bank, 10 Neb. 524. See also Beard v. Holland, 59 Miss. 164.

In an action against a justice of the peace for a false return to a certiorari, the declaration after stating the falsity of the return, averred that "by pretext whereof, the plaintiff was not only prevented from obtaining any redress or reversal of the judgment and proceedings aforesaid, but was also compelled to suffer imprisonment, and endure great pain both of body and mind, and to pay and expend divers large sums of money," etc. Held, that this was a sufficient averment, after verdict, of the affirmance of the judgment, and the loss or damage consequent thereon. Pangburn v. Ramsay, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 141.

4. Dean v. Gridley, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 254; Potter v. Luther, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 431; State v. Row (Iowa) 46 N. W. Rep. 872; Lawrence v. Sherman, 2 McLean (U. S.) 488; Gourley v. Hankins, 2 Iowa 75.

If a person give bond for the faithful discharge of the duties of an office, it is an admission of his appointment to that office so far as to make him liable for official misconduct or neglect of duty. Barada v. Carondelet, 8 Mo. 644.

In Action for Salary.—In an action by the clerk of the board of assessors to recover salary during absence, plaintiff is entitled to show that letters which he had written asking for leave of absence without pay were under compulusually made a public charge, and when levied and collected must be paid to the person to whom it has been adjudged,¹ though in some instances judgments have been permitted to be collected from the officers personally and the amount paid allowed to them in their official accounts.²

PUBLIC PEACE—(See also BREACH OF THE PEACE, vol. 2, p. 515.)—Public peace is public tranquillity, that quiet order, and freedom from agitation or disturbance which is guaranteed by the law.³

PUBLIC PLACE.—The term “public place” is a relative one. What is a “public place” for one purpose is not for another. A “public place” within the meaning of a statute, prescribing the time and place for posting notices of tax sales, may not be a “public place” within the common law definition of an affray; and so a place which is public in one community is not necessarily sion; that if he had not so written he would have been removed. Alker v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 27 Hun (N. Y.) 413.

1. See People v. Delaware, 12 How Pr. (N. Y.) 50.

In order to recover against public officers having the control and distribution of public money, for non-payment of a debt liquidated by a judgment against the corporation, to force which a mandamus was granted, and which was placed on the budget of expenditures, it is necessary to prove that the fund required to pay was raised, that it was diverted, and that the creditor has sustained loss and injury. Jones v. Currie, 34 La. Ann. 1093.

In Virginia, one inspector of tobacco is entitled, in equity, to contribution from his co-inspector for the amount of a judgment recovered against the former, and discharged by him, for failing to deliver tobacco, when legally demanded, if such failure were not ex maleficio or from actual fraud, or voluntary wrong. Thweatt v. Jones, 1 Rand. (Va.) 328; 10 Am. Dec. 538.

2. See Van Alstyne v. Friday, 41 N. Y. 174; Allen v. Clark, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 563; Silver v. Cummings, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 181; Paddock v. Symonds, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 117; People v. Supervisors, 12 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 50.

Where a judgment is recovered against a board of supervisors or a county superintendent of the poor, or any town or the supervisor or the overseers of the poor thereof, rendered for the costs of a suit commenced by any of such officers in their individual names, such costs may be collected of the plaintiffs individually, and the amount thereof allowed to them in their accounts of official expenditures, if such suits appear to have been necessarily commenced in good faith. Avery v. Slack, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 50; Boyce v. Cayuga Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 294; People v. Delaware, 9 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 458; 12 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 50.

Summary proceedings may in some cases and under some circumstances be maintained against public officers, the circumstances under which they may be maintained and the rules of procedure being governed by statute. See generally O'Leary v. Harrison, 6 Jones (N. Car.) 338; Bellaufont v. Coleman, 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 559; Kinzer v. Helm, 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 672; Com. v. Jackson, 10 Bush (Ky.) 424; Ex parte Randolph, 2 Brock (U. S.) 447.

3. Neuendorff v. Duryea, 6 Daly (N. Y.) 280. In that case it was held that an act prohibiting theatrical and other exhibitions and entertainments on Sunday in the city of New York, which was entitled “An Act to Preserve the Public Peace,” fulfilled the requirement of the New York constitution, § 16, art. 3, which provides that the subject of any private or local bill shall be expressed in the title.

In State v. Benedict, 11 Vt. 236, the court by Redfield, J., said: “What is the public peace? Almost every one has some more or less certain notion of the public peace, and still it may not be very easy to define it in words. It is, so to speak, that invisible sense of security which every man feels so necessary to his comfort, and for which all governments are instituted."

so in another.¹ In the notes will be found interpretations of the term as used in various connections.²

1. Cummins v. Little, 16 N. J. Eq. 48; Russell v. Dyer, 40 N. H. 173; 43 N. H. 397; Territory v. Lannon, 9 Mont. 1; Hilgers v. Quinney, 51 Wis. 71; Ramsay v. Hommel, 68 Wis. 14. "The term public place, as used in the statute, is relative. What might be a public place in a crowded and populous city, and what would be a public place in a small town sparsely inhabited, are entirely different questions. Cahoon v. Coe, 57 N. H. 572.

A "public place" does not mean a place devoted solely to the uses of the public, but it means a place, which is in point of fact, public, as distinguished from private, a place that is visited by many persons, and usually accessible to the neighboring public. Parker v. State, 26 Tex. 207.

2. Public Place as Used in Gaming Laws.—See GAMING, vol. 8, p. 1045.

Within the Meaning of the Law of Indecent Exposure.—See EXPOSURE OF PERSON, vol. 7, p. 534.

Within the Meaning of the Law of Affray.—See AFFRAY, vol. 1, pp. 315, 318.

Within the Meaning of Statutes Requiring Notices to be Posted in Public Places.—See ELECTIONS, vol. 6, p. 301; NOTICE, vol. 16, p. 820.

In Tidd v. Smith, 3 N. H. 178, the court, after enumerating the various statutes requiring in certain contingencies notice to be posted in a public place, said: "In all these instances the words 'public place' were intended, we imagine, to express the same thing; and they must have been very generally understood by everybody in the same sense. The general understanding of the community on a question of this nature is entitled to much respect; and it is believed this understanding has viewed as public places, houses of public worship, inns, and, perhaps, in some places, shops where goods are retailed. We are not aware that a mechanic's shop has ever been considered as a public place anywhere." And it was held accordingly that a shoemaker's shop was not a "public place."

In Scammon v. Scammon, 28 N. H. 428, it was held that houses of public worship are ordinarily and prima facie to be regarded as public places within the meaning of such statutes.

In Russell v. Dyer, 40 N. H. 187, the court by Bell, C. J., said: "The words 'public place' must be construed to mean such places, as, in comparison with other places in the same town, are the places where the inhabitants and others most frequently meet, or resort, or have occasion to be." And so in a sparsely settled town, where there is no post-office, tavern, or house of public worship, a school house, mill or mechanic's shop may be the most public place. See also Wilson v. Bucknam, 71 Me. 547, where a school house was held to be a "public place." In Cahoon v. Coe, 57 N. H. 572, it was held, that in the absence of any place more public, a dwelling house must be regarded as a "public place" for the purpose of posting the notice of a sale of land for taxes.

Montana Comp. St., § 1089 provides that notice of the presentation of a petition for laying out a county road shall be posted in four "public places" in the vicinity of the proposed road. It was held that posting at a railroad depot about six or seven hundred feet from the proposed road was a sufficient compliance with the statute. Territory v. Lannon, 9 Mont. 1.

A Wisconsin delinquent tax law requires notice of a sale under the law to be posted "in at least four public places" in the county. Held, that the affidavit of a county treasurer, affirming that a notice had been posted at four "public places" in the village of C was insufficient, as the places might be public so far as the village was concerned, and yet, as regards the county, might not be "public places." Hilgers v. Quinney, 51 Wis. 71; Ramsay v. Hommel, 68 Wis. 14.

A Vermont statute (G. S., p. 310, § 4; G. S., p. 362, § 4) provides that notice of a sale of property, held under attachment or execution, shall be posted in a "public place," and that the property shall be sold where the advertisement is posted. In Austin v. Soule, 36 Vt. 645, the court by Kellogg, J., said: "The object to be attained by putting up an advertisement is to attract attention to it, so that it may be seen and read; and, if the advertisement is set up in a

PUBLIC POLICY.—That principle of the law, which holds that no one can lawfully do that which has a tendency to be injurious to the public, or against the public good, may be termed the policy of the law, or public policy in relation to the administration of the law.¹ If a contract binds the maker to do something place where it would be likely to attract general attention, so that its contents might reasonably be expected to become a matter of notoriety in the vicinity, such a place should be considered a 'public place' within the meaning of the statute. A private dwelling, a barn, a shed, or other out-building, or even a rock, tree, or fountain, if answering this condition, might be a 'public place.' And in Goss v. Cardell, 53 Vt. 447, it was held that the posting on a fence near a driveway leading to the premises which were farm premises, long occupied as such, on a public road leading through the town, was a sufficient compliance with the law. See also Alger v. Curry, 40 Vt. 448; Fairbanks v. Benjamin, 50 Vt. 99.

"A public place is a relative term. What is a public place for one purpose is not for another. That is a public and proper place for setting up notices, which is likely to give information to those interested and who may probably become bidders at the sale." Cummins v. Little, 16 N. J. Eq. 48.

"Most Public Place."—See Most, vol. 15, p. 886.

Within the Meaning of Statutes Prohibiting Intoxication in a Public Place.—Indiana Acts 1875, Spec. Sess., p. 57, provide that "any person of sound mind found in any public place in a state of intoxication shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor."

In State v. Sowers, 52 Ind. 311, the court by Pettit, J., said: "A public place is one where all persons have a right to go, while a social party given by a gentleman is a place where only those invited have the right to go or be present." And, accordingly, it was held that a person found in a state of intoxication at a social party was not liable to prosecution under the statute.

In State v. Waggoner, 52 Ind. 481, an indictment charged that the defendant was found "in a public street, highway, and sidewalk," in a state of intoxication. The indictment was quashed in the court below on the ground that it did not sufficiently describe a "public place." It was held that the description of a public place in defining an affray applies equally to a public place as used in this statute, and that the words "public street and highway" sufficiently allege that the offense was committed in a "public place."

In State v. Moriarty, 74 Ind. 103, it was held that a public highway is a "public place." Overruling Williams v. State, 64 Ind. 553. See also State v. Welch, 88 Ind. 308.

A corresponding New Hampshire statute is as follows: "If any person shall be found drunk in any street, alley, or other public place, he shall be punished etc." In State v. Stevens, 36 N. H. 59, it was held that the use of the words "street" and "alley," excluding the more general term "highway," indicates that public roads throughout the country were not intended to be embraced within the term "public place." See also State v. Hall, 22 N. H. 384.

A grand jury room, while the grand jury is in session, has been held to be a public place within the meaning of the Texas statute. Murchison v. State, 24 Tex. App. 8.

As Used in a City Ordinance, Providing for the Impounding of Cattle Running at Large Upon Public Places.—The ordinance in question provided that it should be the duty of the police to take up any cattle running at large upon any "public street, alley, park or places." Cattle were taken on a parcel of land, known as the "Methodist Camp Ground," which was within the city limits, and open to the public, and unoccupied. It was held, though the camp ground was private property, that as it was open to the common, it was in a certain sense a "public place," and it was therefore competent for the officer finding the cattle loose and at large upon the common, immediately after having been at large in public streets, to seize them. O'Mally v. McGinn, 53 Wis. 353.

1. Egerton v. Brownlow, 8 H. L. Cas. 1.

In Davies v. Davies, L. R., 36 Ch. D. 364, where the question was whether a opposed to the public policy of the state or nation, it is void, however solemnly made. For instances of such contracts, and for references to other doctrines, arising from the principle of public policy, see note.¹

PUBLIC PROSECUTOR.—See DISTRICT ATTORNEY, vol. 5, p. 713; PUBLIC OFFICERS, vol. 19, p. 378.

PUBLIC RECORDS.—See RECORDS.

covenant was "in restraint of trade," Kekewich, J., said: "All authorities, from first to last, concur in one thing—viz., that the doctrine on this subject is founded on 'public policy'; and I cannot but regard the jarring opinions as exemplifying the well-known dictum of Mr. Justice Burrough in Richardson v. Mellish, 2 Bing. 229, 9 E. C. L. 391, 252, that public policy 'is a very unruly horse, and when once you get astride it you never know where it will carry you.' Public policy does not admit of definition and is not easily explained. If that statement requires authority, turn to Egerton v. Earl Brownlow, 4 H. L. Cas. 1, and consult the arguments of counsel and opinions of judges covering the whole subject including, in some passages to which I will presently call attention, that part of it which concerns restraint of trade. One thing I take to be clear, and it is this—that public policy is a variable quantity; that it must vary and does vary with the habits, capacities, and opportunities of the public; that it cannot have been the same when Chief Justice Tindal decided Horner v. Graves, 7 Bing. 735, 20 E. C. L. 310, in 1831, as it was when Chief Justice Parker decided Mitchel v. Reynolds, 1 P. Wms. 181, in 1711; that it must have changed, and did change, between 1831 and 1869 when Vice-Chancellor James decided Leather Cloth Co. v. Lorsche, L. R., 9 Eq. 345; and if there had not been further change before Lord Justice Fry decided Rousillon v. Rousillon, 14 Ch. D. 351, in 1880, it must have occurred ere now."

1. In General.—See CONTRACTS, vol. 3, p. 875, et seq.; ILLEGAL CONTRACTS vol. 9, p. 879; ILLEGAL SALES, vol. 9, pp. 923, 926, et seq. These titles treat concisely the whole subject of contracts which are illegal as being against public policy, and should be consulted in every instance, although another and more specific reference may be found.

Contracts in Restraint of Marriage.—

See MARRIAGE, vol. 14, p. 473, et seq.; BROKER, vol. 2, p. 598.

Waiver of the Equity of Redemption.—See MORTGAGES, vol. 15, p. 827.

Agreements to Waive the Statute of Limitations.—See LIMITATIONS OF ACTIONS, vol. 13, p. 717.

Contracts Limiting the Liability of Common Carriers.—See CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 811, et seq.; CARRIERS OF LIVE STOCK, vol. 3, p. 10 et seq.

Sunday Contracts.—See SUNDAY.

Contracts Affecting Rights Acquired Under the Pre-emption, Homestead, etc. Laws.—See PUBLIC LANDS, vol. 19, p. 305.

Gambling Contracts.—See GAMBLING CONTRACTS, vol. 8, p. 992.

Insurable Interest.—Insurance by an Alien Enemy.—See INSURANCE, vol. 11, p. 312; MARINE INSURANCE, vol. 14, p. 323.

As Affecting Aliens.—See ALIENS, vol. 1, p. 456.

Champerly and Maintenance.—See CHAMPERTY AND MAINTENANCE, vol. 3, p. 68.

Assignment of Choses in Action.—Salaries of Officers.—See ASSIGNMENT, vol. 1, pp. 826, 829.

Contract Made in Consideration of Compounding Offenses.—See COMPOUNDING OFFENSES, vol. 3, p. 402.

Contracts not to Resort to a Judicial Forum.—See JURISDICTION, vol. 12, p. 305.

Contracts for Services Rendered in Obstruction of Justice.—See MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 783.

Illegal Contracts for Services.—See MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 783, 785, et seq.

Restraints on Alienation.—See RESTRAINTS ON ALIENATION.

Discriminating Contracts.—See FREIGHTS, vol. 8, p. 941; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 788; TICKETS AND FARES.

Combinations and Pools.—See RAILROAD POOLS; TRUST (CORPORATE).

Bills, Notes and Bonds Given for a Consideration Against Public Policy.—

PUBLICATION—PUBLISH—(See also ARBITRATION, vol. 1, p. 704; COPYRIGHT, vol. 4, p. 147; LIBEL AND SLANDER, vol. 13, pp. 370-472; LITERARY PROPERTY, vol. 13, pp. 916-920; NEWS-PAPERS, vol. 16, p. 490; NOTICE, vol. 16, p. 808, et seq.; PATENTS, vol. 18, p. 57; SERVICE OF PROCESS).—To publish is to proclaim, to make known generally.¹ Publication is the act by which a thing is made public.² A publication is a something—as a book or print—which has been published—made public or known to the world.³

See BILLS AND NOTES, vol. 2, p. 365; BONDS, vol. 2, pp. 454, 455.

1. Watts v. Greenlee, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 87.

Sec. 18 of the schedule to the Illinois constitution of 1870 provides: "All laws of the State of Illinois, and all official writings and executive, legislative and judicial proceedings shall be conducted, preserved and published in no other than the English language." In Chicago v. McCoy (Ill. 1891), 26 N. E. Rep. 365 the court by Baker, J., said: "It is insisted that the word 'published,' as used in said section of the constitution, is restricted in its application to publications in book or pamphlet form. The word 'published' is broad enough to include and, in its ordinary and usual acceptation, does include publications in newspapers. . . . The constitutional provision in question contemplates publications in newspapers as well as in books and pamphlets."

In an action upon an agreement to pay the plaintiff "fifty dollars for inserting a business card on two hundred copies of his advertising chart, to be paid when the chart is published," the court by Wells, J., said: "When applied to such an article as this, the word 'published' can have no fixed signification which the court can apply to the contract. What was a sufficient publication within the sense and intent of the contract must be ascertained and determined by the jury, in the light of all the facts of the case." Stoops v. Smith, 100 Mass. 63; 97 Am. Dec. 76. See also Palmer v. Clock, 106 Mass. 387.

Published and Printed Not Equivalent.

—See NOTICE, vol. 16, p. 822.

2. Grigsby v. Brekenridge, 2 Bush (Ky.) 480; 92 Am. Dec. 509.

3. U. S. v. Loftis, 12 Fed. Rep. 671.

A United States statute required that before one should be entitled to a copyright upon any work, he must deposit, before "publication," a printed copy of the title of the book in the clerk's office of the United States district court of his district. A State reporter delivered to the State several hundred copies of a volume of reports before filing the above required certificate. Held, that this was not a "publication" within the meaning of the statute. The court, by Drummond, C. J., said: "The mere printing of a book is not necessarily publication, and I am inclined to think it was incumbent upon the defendants to show something more than a mere delivery of the copies to the State." Myers v. Callaghan, 5 Fed. Rep. 729. See generally COPYRIGHT, vol. 4, p. 147.

United States Rev. Stat., § 3893, declares "every obscene, lewd, or lascivious book, pamphlet, picture, paper, writing, print, or other publication of an indecent character" to be non-mailable matter. Upon the construction of this statute, in U. S. v. Williams, 3 Fed. Rep. 486, the court by Allen, Comm., defined publication and "publish" thus: "A 'publication' is defined in the dictionaries as a book or writing published, especially one offered for sale or to public notice; and to publish is defined to issue, to make known what was before private, to put into circulation. Writings are either printed matter or manuscript. The idea of publicity, of circulation, of intended distribution, seems to be inseparable from the term 'publication.'" See generally OBSCENITY, vol. 17, p. 7.

A sealed letter is a "writing," but it is not a "publication," within the statute aforesaid. U. S. v. Loftis, 12 Fed. Rep. 671.

Publication of a Statute—Published and Circulated Used Synonymously.

Within the meaning of an Indiana constitutional provision, declaring that no law should take effect till it had

PUBLISHER.—One who by himself or his agent makes a thing publicly known; one engaged in the circulation of books, pamphlets, and other papers.¹

PUEBLO.—(See also SPANISH LAND GRANTS; TOWN).—"Pueblo," in its original signification, means people or population, but is used in the sense of the English word "town." It has the indefiniteness of that term, and, like it, is sometimes applied to a mere collection of individuals residing at a particular place, a settlement or village, as well as to a regularly organized municipality.²

Ownership of the lands in the pueblos could not in strictness be affirmed. It amounted to little more than a restrictive and qualified right to alienate portions to its inhabitants, for building or cultivation, and to use the remainder for commons, for pasture lands, or as a source of revenue, or for other public purposes. This right of disposition and use was, in all particulars, subject to the control of the government of the country.³

PUFFER.—AUCTIONS AND AUCTIONEERS, vol. 1, p. 988; FRAUDULENT SALES, vol. 8, p. 813.

PUNCTUATION.—See INTERPRETATION, vol. 11, p. 521; STATUTES; WILLS.

PUNISHABLE.—Liable to punishment.⁴ If an offense may be punished by a certain penalty, it is "punishable" by such penalty, although at the discretion of the court, or under different circumstances, other penalties may be imposed. Its meaning is not restricted to such an offense as must be so punished.⁵

been "published" and "circulated" in the several counties of the State, it was held that the words "published" and "circulated" were used as meaning the same thing. Jones v. Cavins, 4 Ind. 305. For provisions regulating the publication of statutes see generally, STATUTES.

Publication of an Ordinance.—See ORDINANCES, vol. 17, pp. 261, 268.

Publication of a Will.—Publication is the act of declaring or making known to the witnesses, that the testator understands and intends the instrument subscribed by him to be his last will and testament. Lewis v. Lewis, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 23. See also WILLS.

What Is the Publication of a Label.—See LABEL, vol. 12, p. 531.

1. Bouv. Law Dict., followed in Leroy v. Jamison, 3 Sawy. (U. S.) 377.

As to Whether a Publisher Is a Manufacturer.—See MANUFACTURER, vol. 14, p. 265.

2. Trenouth v. San Francisco, 100 U. S. 251.

3. Townsend v. Greely, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 326.

4. Com. v. Pemberton, 118 Mass. 36.

5. Com. v. Pemberton, 118 Mass. 36; McLaughlin's Case, 107 Mass. 225. See also Dull v. People, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 91.

A Connecticut statute provides that a person arraigned for any offense "punishable by imprisonment for life," may peremptorily challenge ten jurors. In State v. Neuner, 49 Conn. 232, it was held that a crime which might in the discretion of the court be punished by imprisonment for life or for a term less than life, was to be regarded as "punishable by imprisonment for life," and that a person arraigned for such a crime was entitled to challenge ten jurors. The court by Loomis, J., said: "The meaning of the word 'punishable' is not 'must be punished,' but 'liable to be punished.' As was held in Miller v. State, 58 Ga. 200, 'punishable' includes an offense which may under some circumstances be punished in the manner designated, although under others it may not be."

In U. S. v. Watkins, 7 Sawy. (U. S.) 85; 6 Fed. Rep. 152, the defendant

PUNISHMENT—(See also CRIMINAL LAW, vol. 4, p. 721; IMPRISONMENT, vol. 10, p. 197; LIABILITY, vol. 13, p. 289; PENALTIES, vol. 18, p. 269; SENTENCE).—Punishments are evils or inconveniences consequent upon crimes and misdemeanors, and inflicted by human laws, in consequence of disobedience or misbehavior in those to regulate whose conduct such laws were made.¹ It is obvious that a treatment of punishments under this head would involve needless repetition, as the punishment for each offense is treated specifically under the various criminal law titles in this work, such as FORGERY, HOMICIDE, etc.

was indicted for voting illegally. He had previously been indicted for an assault with a dangerous weapon, which is punishable under the Oregon Criminal Code by a fine or imprisonment in jail or in the penitentiary, in the discretion of the court, to which indictment he had pleaded guilty, and had been sentenced to pay a fine. The Oregon constitution, art. 2, § 3, declares that the "privilege of an elector shall be forfeited by conviction of any crime which is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary." It was held, that a crime "is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary," when by law it may be so punished, and that the fact that it also may be or is otherwise punished, does not change its grade or character in this respect. The court, by Deady, D. J., said: "A crime is punished by the punishment actually imposed, but it is punishable by any punishment that the law authorizes the court to impose. The phrase 'is punishable' cannot be construed to mean, more or less, than 'may be punished,' or 'liable to be punished.'"

The act of Congress, establishing a United States district court in the Indian Territory, provides "that the court hereby established shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over all offenses, not punishable by death or imprisonment at hard labor." In re Mills, 135 U. S. 266, it was held that the words "punishable . . . by imprisonment at hard labor," as used in the act, embrace offenses which, although not imperatively required by statute to be so punished, may, in the discretion of the court, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary.

1. 4 Bl. Com. 7. "The penalty for transgressing the law," Wharton's Law Dict. followed in State v. Smith, 7 Conn. 428.

Punishment in the legal sense is some pain or penalty warranted by law inflicted on a person for the commission of a crime or misdemeanor, whether declared by the court or superinduced as a legal result on conviction. State v. Lawrence, 45 Mo. 494.

Disqualification from office or from the pursuits of a lawful avocation, is a "punishment" as the word is used in the definition of a bill of attainder; viz., "a bill of attainder is a legislative act which inflicts punishment without a judicial trial." Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 277. See also EX POST FACTO LAWS, vol. 7, p. 527; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, vol. 3, p. 736.

Synonymous with "penalty," "forfeiture," etc.—In Beggs v. State, 122 Ind. 54, it was held that a verdict that, "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty, and assess her punishment at the sum of five dollars," was not bad, though using the word 'punishment' instead of 'fine.' The court said: "There is a sense in which 'punishment' and 'fine' are synonymous."

In U. S. v. Reisenger, 128 U. S. 398, it was said that the words "penalty," "liability," and "forfeiture," are synonymous with "punishment," in connection with crimes of the highest grade.

Twice Punished.—See JEOPARDY, vol. 11, p. 926.

Infamous Punishments.—See INFAMOUS CRIMES, vol. 10, p. 603.

Corporal Punishment seems to mean any kind of corporal privation or suffering which is inflicted by sentence, directly by way of penalty for an offense, and, in this sense, of course, includes imprisonment as well as the pillory. People v. Winchell, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 525. CORPORAL, vol. 4, p. 182.

As to the right of a teacher to inflict corporal punishment, see ASSAULT, vol. 1, p. 794; PARENT AND CHILD, vol. 17, p. 33; SCHOOLS.

The Constitution of the United States provides that excessive bail shall not be required nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. And the same provision is to be found in the constitutions of many of the States. The phrase "cruel and unusual punishment" is incapable of precise definition. It has been treated under CRIMINAL LAW, vol. 4, p. 721, et seq., and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, vol. 3, p. 736. In addition several recent cases are cited in note 1.

PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—See DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 21; EXEMPLARY DAMAGES, vol. 7, p. 448.

PUPIL.—See EDUCATION, vol. 6, p. 158; PARENT AND CHILD, vol. 18, p. 331; SCHOOLS.

1. Cruel and Unusual Punishment.—In Wilkerson v. Utah, 99 U. S. 130, the court by Clifford, J., said: "Difficulty would attend the effort to define with exactness the extent of the constitutional provision which provides that cruel and unusual punishment shall not be inflicted; but it is safe to affirm that punishments of torture, such as those mentioned by the commentator" (4 Bl. Com. 377) "referred to, and all others in the same line of unnecessary cruelty are forbidden by that amendment of the constitution." In that case the prisoner had been sentenced to be shot under a provision of the Utah Code, which enacted that every person guilty of murder should suffer death, but did not provide the mode of executing the sentence. It was held that the sentence was not in conflict with the above mentioned provision.

Mr. Cooley says of these words: "It is certainly difficult to determine precisely what is meant by cruel and unusual punishments. Probably any punishment declared by statute for an offense which was punishable in the same way at common law could not be regarded as cruel or unusual in the constitutional sense. And probably any new statutory offense may be punished to the extent and in the mode permitted by the common law for offenses of similar nature. But those degrading punishments which in any State had become obsolete before its existing constitution was adopted, we think may well be held forbidden by it as cruel and unusual. We may well doubt the right to establish the whipping post and the pillory in States where they were never recognized as instruments of punishment, or in States whose constitutions, revised since public opinion had banished them, have forbidden cruel and unusual punishments." Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th. ed.)*329.

In re Bayard, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 546, a statute providing that a person convicted of petit larceny in a certain locality should be subject to a different and greater punishment than persons convicted of the same offense in the State at large, was held to be constitutional. The court by Rumsey, J., said: "The courts have rarely had occasion to construe the meaning of the phrase 'cruel and unusual punishment.' And since no punishment can be inflicted until authorized by the legislature which is often elected, and represents the general moral ideas of the people, it is not likely that they will often be called on to construe it. The text writers, however, have discussed it to some extent, and they seem to understand it as prohibiting any cruel or degrading punishment not known to the common law, and probably also those degrading punishments which in any State had become obsolete when its constitution was adopted, and punishments so disproportioned to the offense as to shock the sense of the community."

Criminal Code of New York, § 505, reads as follows: "The punishment of death must in every case be inflicted by causing to pass through the body of the convict, a current of electricity of sufficient intensity to cause death, and the application of such current must be continued until the convict is dead." In re Kemmler (sub nom. People v. Durston), 119 N. Y. 580, it was held that this provision prescribed no new punishment for the offense of murder. The only change made was in the mode of carrying out the sentence, and though the new mode of execution was certainly unusual, it was not cruel within the meaning of the constitution. See also People v. Durston, 55 Hun (N. Y.) 64; In re Kemmler, 136 U. S. 436.

PURCHASE—(See also BUY, vol. 1, p. 702; PAYMENT, vol. 18, p. 150; PURCHASE MONEY; SALES).—A purchase, in the ordinary and popular acceptation, is the transmission of property from one person to another by their voluntary act and agreement, founded on a valuable consideration.¹ In its strictly technical sense, it is the acquisition of land

1. 4 Kent's Com. 509, followed in Maydwell v. Maydwell, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 577; Martin v. Strachan, 1 Wils. 266.

Purchase "means to buy, to obtain property by paying an equivalent in money; it differs from barter only in the circumstance, that in purchasing, the price or equivalent given or secured, is money." Webster's Dict. followed in Hoyt v. Van Alstyne, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 572.

Iowa Rev. Sts., § 2488, provides that aliens, having certain qualifications, shall have the right to acquire "real estate by descent or by purchase." The next section confers upon every alien the right to acquire real estate by devise or descent, but not by purchase. "In view of the fact that the next section provides for aliens acquiring real estate by 'devise,' and the section following provides for more limited rights for aliens acquiring real estate by purchase," and in order to give every section of the statute some practical effect, it was held, in Purcell v. Smidt, 21 Iowa 546, that "purchase," as used in section 2488, must be given its more limited or common signification, to wit, that of acquisition by bargain and sale for a consideration.

"Purchase indeed, in its vulgar and confined acceptation, is applied only to such acquisitions of land as are obtained by bargain and sale, for money or other valuable consideration; but this falls far short of the legal idea of purchase." 2 Bl. Com. 241, quoted in Grant v. Bennett, 96 Ill. 535.

A Wisconsin statute exempts from taxation "the property of all Indians who are not citizens, except lands held by them by purchase." In Farrington v. Wilson, 29 Wis. 383, the plaintiff claimed through a half breed who had received a patent of the lands from the United States. Defendant set up a tax deed. It was held, that the word "purchase," as used in the exemption, is to be taken to mean an acquisition of land for a valuable consideration; and that land patented by the United States to an Indian was not held by "purchase," within the meaning of the provision.

An act incorporating a corporation authorized it to take by "purchase." It was held that the term "purchase" should be taken in its popular sense, and not in its broadest legal sense so as to include a devise. McCartee v. Orphan Asylum Soc., 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 504, 18 Am. Dec. 516. See the dissenting opinions in this case, for an exhaustive citation of authorities in support of the technical meaning of the word "purchase." McCartee v. Orphan Asylum Soc., 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 510.

Retirement of Stock.—Where a building association authorized the purchase, so called, but, in fact, the cancellation and retirement of such shares of stock as could be had at a premium of 20% on the amount paid in, it was held that the transaction was not a "purchase" in the correct sense of that term. The court by Bradbury, J., said: "A purchase implies an acquisition of property; a change or transfer of the ownership. 2 Bouv. Law. Dict. 488. This was not within the contemplation of the parties to the transaction. It was not intended that the shares should be kept alive, so to speak, and remain the property of the association; and, on the contrary, the object sought was their extinguishment by retirement and cancellation." Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 Ohio St. 250.

Dower.—A New York statute of March 26, 1802, enacts "that all purchases made or to be made by any alien or aliens who have come to this State and become inhabitants thereof, shall be deemed valid to vest the estates to them granted, etc., etc." And a later statute (April 8, 1808), enacts that all persons authorized by it or by the statute first cited, to acquire real estate by by any lawful act of the party in contradistinction to operation of law, and it includes title by deed, title by matter of record, and title by devise.¹ There is yet another sense in which the word purchase, may also take and acquire by devise or descent. In Priest v. Cummings, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 356, Verplank, Senator, said: "It seems to me evident that the manner in which the word 'purchase' is used in the act of 1802, shows that it is not used in its peculiar real estate sense, but in its ordinary and habitual one. 'All purchases of lands made' can only mean all lands bought. This use of the word is not colloquial or 'vulgar' (as it has been called by Jacobs and other compilers), but may be found in the written opinions of Hardwicke and Kent, and might well be used in legislative enactments. The phrase used is not the technical language of the old law. I cannot find that the words 'purchases of lands made' are ever used to signify 'lands acquired by purchase.' Cruise, Blackstone and the oldest writers whom they cite always speak 'of estates taken by purchase,' 'lands acquired by purchase,' 'estates unto which one comes by purchase.' 1 Bl. Com. 218; 2 Bl. Com. 243; 3 Crui. 490; Litt. 1, 12. But on the contrary 'purchases of lands made' is an ordinary phrase of lawyers and judges to signify lands bought.

The subsequent statute of 1808, in pari materia, has given a legislative construction to the act of 1802 by providing that 'all persons authorized to acquire real estate under these acts may also take by devise,' thus 'evidently showing that in the former act the broader sense of 'purchase,' which would include 'devise' was not meant, but the more limited, natural and common one of buying." And accordingly it was held that title by dower does not come within the meaning of "purchases of land," as used in the statute, and that an alien could not hold lands thus acquired. And see the same opinion for authorities in support of the view that title by dower does not come within the technical meaning of the word "purchase."

"Purchase" in Statutes Has Generally Its Popular Import.—"Technically, purchase includes all modes of acquisition other than that of descent. But generally in statutes as in common use, the word is employed, in a sense not technical, only as meaning acquisition by contract between the parties without governmental interference." Kohl v. U. S., 91 U. S. 374.

A United States statute provides that "no land shall be purchased on account of the United States, except under a law authorizing such purchase." A conveyance of land to trustees to sell as much thereof as might be necessary to raise sufficient money to pay a debt due the United States, was held not to be a "purchase" by the United States within the meaning of the statute. Neilson v. Lagow, 12 How. (U. S.) 98.

Words of Purchase.—See CHILD, vol. 3, p. 232; ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 878; ISSUE, vol. 11, p. 876; SHELLY'S CASE (RULE IN); WILLS; REMAINDERS.

As to the authority of an agent under a power "to purchase," see AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 331; AUTHORITY, vol. 1, p. 1025.

1. 4 Kent's Com. 509. Followed in Maydwell v. Maydwell, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 577; Purcell v. Smidt, 21 Iowa 546; Martin v. Strachan, 1 Wils. 266.

Methods of Acquiring Title by Purchase.—There are six ways of acquiring a title by purchase, namely: by deed; by devise; by execution; by prescription; by possession or occupancy; by escheat. Bouvier's L. Dict. To these may be added, title acquired by exercise of the right of eminent domain. Kohl v. U. S., 91 U. S. 374; Burt v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 106 Mass. 364; 8 Am. Rep. 339.

"Purchase includes every lawful method of coming to an estate by the act of a party, as opposed to the act of law. Thus it includes titles obtained by sale of property on execution by a sheriff, or by levy, in which case there is no consent of the debtor, nor any conveyance from him. And it includes titles obtained by exercise of the right of eminent domain. If a statute authorizes the appraisement by a jury, and vests the title upon payment or tender of the amount of the verdict, with costs, the property is held under a statute conveyance, and the title is, in legal phrase, by purchase." Burt v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 106 Mass. 364; 8 Am. Rep. 339.

In Clay v. Wyatt, 6 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 583, plaintiffs brought ejectment against is used; viz., procuring, suing out, as a purchase of a writ of error.¹

PURCHASE MONEY—(See also HOMESTEAD, vol. 9, p. 423; PURCHASE; PURCHASE MONEY MORTGAGES; VENDOR AND PURCHASER).—The money agreed to be paid by the purchaser for property.²

The consideration money paid or agreed to be paid to the vendor by the vendee of realty.³ It does not include money the purchaser may have borrowed to complete his purchase.⁴

the defendant for various tracts of land in his possession, which had been deeded to plaintiffs by their father in consideration of $100 and natural love and affection. The only question presented to the court was whether the deed from the plaintiff's father was void under the Kentucky Act of 1824 "relative to champerty and maintenance and more effectually to secure the bona fide occupants of land." It was contended on the part of the plaintiffs that the legislature used the word "purchase" in its popular and not in its technical sense. The court by Underwood, J., said: "The principal object of the legislature in passing the act in question was to protect the occupants of land. A father might have claims which he would be unwilling to litigate in his own name because of his liability for costs, and which he would willingly transfer to a son, nephew, or a cousin in consideration of natural love, and afford him an opportunity to profit by the litigation. Such a transaction would tend to defeat the main object of the legislature. . . . The legislature did not intend to prevent the recovery of a man's right, but it was not intended that he or others should speculate upon doubtful claims to the disturbance of the occupant. The construction contended for would tolerate that evil to some extent, which was the great mischief the legislature intended to guard against. We are, therefore, of opinion that the policy of the act requires that we should give to the word 'purchase,' as used in the act, its technical meaning. Besides, the exception in favor of devisees shows that the legislature so intended. That exception excludes all other exceptions, and, hence, a voluntary conveyance to a son cannot be admitted as an exception."

1. Anderson's L. Dict.

2. Hoyt v. Van Alstyne, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 568.

A New York statute exempted the working tools and teams, etc., not exceeding $150 in value, owned by a householder, "provided that such exemption shall not extend to any execution issued on a demand for the purchase money of such furniture and tools or teams, etc." It was held in Davis v. Peabody, 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 94, that this exception from the exemption did not apply to a demand on a surety for the purchase money of such articles as those enumerated. The court by Gridley, P. J., said: "'Purchase money,' in the statute should be held to mean the original demand for the property sold, as distinguished from demand on the security given for the payment of the purchase price." See also Smith v. Slade, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 637.

It has been held that the articles enumerated in this statute are liable to seizure and sale, on an execution issued to collect the purchase money of any one of the articles therein specified. Snyder v. Davis, 1 Hun (N. Y.) 350. See also Craft v. Curtiss, 25 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 163. And this view is adopted by the present section of the Code of Civil Procedure (§1391). But the contrary doctrine was held in Hickox v. Fay, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 9, and implied in Smith v. Slade, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 637.

A debt contracted for lumber, used in the erection of the dwelling house upon a homestead, is not a part of the purchase money of such homestead, so as to bring it within the exception to the Minnesota homestead exemption. Smith v. Lackor, 23 Minn. 454; Cogel v. Mickow, 11 Minn. 475.

3. Anderson's L. Dict., obtained from Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 438; 87 Am. Dec. 254; Hoyt v. Van Alstyne, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 568; Henisler v. Nickum, 38 Md. 270.

4. The Illinois statute declaring that the homestead right shall not be claimed against a debt due for the PURCHASE-MONEY MORTGAGES.—(See also CHATTEL MORTGAGES, vol. 3, p. 175; INCUMBRANCES, vol. 10, p. 389; MORTGAGES, vol. 15, p. 725; VENDOR AND PURCHASER.)

- I. Definition, 575.
- II. Priority of Purchase-Money Mortgages, 575.
 1. Generally, 575.
 2. Over Judgments, 578.
 3. Over Other Mortgages, 579.
 4. Over Mechanics' Liens, 579.
 5. Over Homestead Exemptions, 580.
 6. Over Dower, 580.
 7. Mortgagees Whose Mortgages Are Entitled to Preference, 581.
 8. How Lost, 582.
- III. Purchase Money, What Constitutes, 583.
- IV. Defense to Foreclosure, 584.
- V. Chattel Mortgages to Secure Purchase Money, 587.
- VI. Statutes Governing Purchase-Money Mortgages, 589.
 1. Judgments, 589.
 2. Mechanics' Liens, 589.
 3. Homestead Exemptions, 590.
 4. Dower, 590.

purchase money of the premises, has reference to a debt created by the purchase of the land, and does not embrace a debt created by borrowing money from a third person which may have been applied by the borrower in the purchase of the land. This provision only applies to parties occupying the relation of vendor and vendee, or those representing them. Eyster v. Hatheway, 50 Ill. 521; 99 Am. Dec. 537.

Purchase money means money stipulated to be paid by a purchaser to his vendor, and does not include money that the purchaser may have borrowed to complete his purchase. Purchase money exists only as between vendor and vendee; as between purchaser and lender, the money is "borrowed money." Henisler v. Nickum, 38 Md. 270.

In Illinois the courts, departing somewhat from the definition of purchase money as given in the text, have held that where a purchaser of land procures the consideration for such land to be paid directly to the vendor by a third person, the debt due by the purchaser to such third party is for "purchase money," and falls within the exception to the homestead exemption law, and within the law of purchase money mortgages. They distinguish between such a case and where money is loaned to pay a pre-existing debt created for the purchase of the land. The definition given by the courts is, "money paid for the land or the debt created by the purchase." In Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 438, a party owning and residing upon a homestead, purchased and obtained a conveyance of land adjoining thereto, to be used as part of the same, and procured the purchase money to be paid by a third person directly to the vendor. It was held that the money thus paid by the third person should be regarded as the purchase money of the land as against the homestead claim of the purchaser for whom it was paid. The court distinguished that case from Eyster v. Hatheway, 50 Ill. 521; 99 Am. Dec. 537, cited above, thus: "We said in the case of Eyster v. Hatheway, that money borrowed of a third person, and paid out by a purchaser of land, cannot be regarded as purchase money. It is the common understanding of the term 'purchase money' that it means money paid for the land or the debt created by the purchase. In that case the money was borrowed to pay a pre-existing debt; in this the land was purchased with money of appellant, and actually paid over by him for the land, not one dollar of it passing through the hands of the appellee, and the entire consideration of indebtedness was a deed to the appellant. This case is, therefore, clearly distinguishable from that."

A purchaser of land went into possession and occupied it as a homestead. While so in possession he procured a third person to pay the purchase price to the vendor, promising to execute a mortgage to secure the re-payment of the money as soon as he obtained a deed. He obtained the deed, but refused to execute the mortgage. Upon bill filed by the party paying the money, against the purchaser, to enforce his lien upon the land, it was held that the money paid by the complainant, having been paid by him

I. DEFINITION.—A purchase-money mortgage is a mortgage upon real estate given upon a conveyance thereof to secure the balance of purchase money remaining due.¹ The term has been applied also to a similar transaction where a chattel mortgage is given for personal property.²

II. PRIORITY OF PURCHASE-MONEY MORTGAGES.—1. Generally.—The system of recording acts in force in the several States has established as a general principle, the doctrine that priority of lien is acquired by priority in the entry of the public record of such lien. Purchase-money mortgages might appear to be an exception to this rule, and the question whether or not a mortgage was given to secure the payment of purchase-money is of most importance in this connection. It is a well-settled principle that a purchase-money mortgage given by the purchaser to the vendor of land to secure a balance of unpaid purchase-money has priority over every claim or lien of any kind arising through the mortgagor to the extent of the land purchased.³ But in spite of doubts which directly to the vendor for the purpose of having the land conveyed to the purchaser, must be regarded as the purchase money of the premises, against which the defendant could not assert a homestead exemption. Magee v. Magee, 51 Ill. 500; 99 Am. Dec. 571. See also Kimble v. Esworth, 6 Ill. App. 517. And on this question PURCHASE MONEY MORTGAGES and VENDOR AND PURCHASER should be consulted.

1. Adapted from Anderson's Law Dict., p. 690.

2. Barker v. Kilderhouse, 8 Minn. 207; Blatchford v. Boyden, 122 Ill. 657; Pitts Son's Mfg. Co. v. Poor, 7 Ill. App. 24. See infra, this title, Chattel Mortgages to Secure Purchase Money.

3. 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 464; et seq., Boone on Mortgages, § 74.

Massachusetts.—Clark v. Brown, 3 Allen (Mass.) 509; Clark v. Munroe, 14 Mass. 351; Holbrook v. Finney, 4 Mass. 566; 3 Am. Dec. 243; Smith v. McCarty, 119 Mass. 519; Hazleton v. Lesure, 9 Allen (Mass.) 24; New England Jewelry Co. v. Merriam, 2 Allen (Mass.) 390; Burns v. Thayer, 101 Mass. 426; 11 Allen (Mass.) 407; Pendleton v. Pomeroy, 4 Allen (Mass.) 510; King v. Stetson, 11 Allen (Mass.) 407.

New York.—Ellis v. Horrman, 90 N. Y. 466; Spring v. Short, 90 N. Y. 538; Stow v. Tift, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 457; 8 Am. Dec. 266; Kittle v. Van Dyck, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 76; Dusen- bury v. Hulbert, 59 N. Y. 541; Jackson v. Dewitt, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 316; Cunningham v. Knight, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 399; Mills v. Van Voorhis, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 125; Jackson v. Austin, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 477; McGowan v. Smith, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 232; Wilson v. Smith, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 171.

Illinois.—Curtis v. Root, 20 Ill. 518; Christie v. Hale, 46 Ill. 117; Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 438; 87 Am. Dec. 254; Elder v. Derby, 98 Ill. 228.

Minnesota.—Bolles v. Carli, 12 Minn. 113; Banning v. Edes, 6 Minn. 402; Jones v. Tainter, 15 Minn. 512; Jacoby v. Crowe, 36 Minn. 93; Stewart v. Smith, 36 Minn. 82.

Pennsylvania.—Cake's Appeal, 23 Pa. St. 186; 62 Am. Dec. 328; Britton's Appeal, 45 Pa. St. 172; City Nat. Bank's Appeal, 91 Pa. St. 163.

North Carolina.—Bunting v. Jones, 78 N. Car. 242; Moring v. Dickens, 85 N. Car. 466.

Maine.—Gammon v. Freeman, 31 Me. 243.

New Jersey.—Lamb v. Cannon, 38 N. J. L. 362; Strong v. Van Deursen, 23 N. J. Eq. 369; Macintosh v. Thurston, 25 N. J. Eq. 248.

California.—Lassen v. Vance, 8 Cal. 271; 68 Am. Dec. 322; Guy v. Carriere, 5 Cal. 511; Carr v. Caldwell, 10 Cal. 380; 70 Am. Dec. 740.

Missouri.—Morris v. Pate, 31 Mo. 315; Turk v. Funk, 68 Mo. 18.

Nevada.—Virgin v. Brubaker, 4 Nev. 31; Hopper v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 233.

Kansas.—Pratt v. Topeka Bank, 12

might arise as to the application of the recording acts to these mortgages, the better opinion seems to be that they do apply as in other cases. They take precedence of judgments against a mortgagor in all cases when such judgments are obtained before the execution of the purchase-money mortgage, and also of other mortgages, mechanics' liens, homestead exemptions, and the dower rights of the wife of the mortgagor.¹ The authorities do not clearly indicate how far this doctrine has a common-law origin.² It is established by statute in several of the States,³ and seems to be upheld in others irrespective of statutes, and appears to be repudiated in only one State, and is there limited to acknowledging the precedence of the wife's right of dower.⁴

This doctrine is based upon the ground that the deed and mortgage constitute but one act, and in contemplation of law there is no time in which any claim or lien can obtain preference.⁵ The incumbrance is simultaneously operative with the conveyance of the title.⁶ But if an interval is left, during which the interest of the vendee is liable to an execution, the mortgage is not entitled to priority.⁷ However, the two acts need not be literally simultaneous. It is sufficient if they constitute parts of one continuous transaction, and were so intended.⁸ It makes no difference that

Kan. 570; Andrews v. Alcorn, 13 Kan. 351; Nichols v. Overacker, 16 Kan. 54.

Iowa.—Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa 438; 81 Am. Dec. 493; Burnap v. Cook, 16 Iowa 149.

Texas.—Flanagan v. Cushman, 48 Tex. 241.

Arkansas.—Birnie v. Main, 29 Ark. 591.

1. See cases cited under the several sections of this title.

2. Stow v. Tift, 15 Johns. (N.Y.) 457; 8 Am. Dec. 266.

3. See infra, this title, Statutes Governing Purchase-Money Mortgages.

4. Kentucky.—Tevis v. Steele, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 339; McClure v. Harris, 12 B. Mon. (Ky.) 261.

5. Banning v. Edes, 6 Minn. 402; Holbrook v. Finney, 4 Mass. 566; 3 Am. Dec. 243; Clark v. Munroe, 14 Mass. 351; Smith v. McCarty, 119 Mass. 519; Lassen v. Vance, 8 Cal. 271; 68 Am. Dec. 322; Guy v. Carriere, 5 Cal. 511; Stow v. Tift, 15 Johns. (N.Y.) 458; 8 Am. Dec. 266; McGowan v. Smith, 44 Barb. (N.Y.) 232.

6. Bolles v. Carli, 12 Minn. 113.

7. Foster's Appeal, 3 Pa. St. 79; Cake's Appeal, 23 Pa. St. 186; 62 Am. Dec. 328; Grant v. Dodge, 43 Me. 489; Houston v. Houston, 67 Ind. 276; Cohn v. Hoffman, 45 Ark. 376.

8. Wilson v. Smith, 52 Hun (N.Y.)

171; South Baptist Soc. v. Clapp, 18 Barb. (N.Y.) 35; Stewart v. Smith, 36 Minn. 82; Parke v. Neely, 90 Pa. St. 52.

Parol Evidence.—It is admissible to show by parol evidence that they constitute parts of one transaction. Pascault v. Cochran, 34 Fed. Rep. 358.

A mortgage was agreed to be made for the purchase-money of a tract of land, and the grantee's note for the amount was given at the time the agreement was made, which note was afterwards transferred before maturity, and for value, whereupon, the deed not having yet been given, the grantee executed and delivered to the transferee of the note, a mortgage on such land with full covenants of title, to secure such note, as and for the mortgage originally agreed to be made, and for no other consideration whatever; thereafter, and for like purpose, the grantor executed and delivered to the wife of the grantee, as and for the deed agreed upon, a deed of conveyance of such land wherein, however, she was named as the grantee instead of her husband. It appeared from the findings that this deed was taken by the wife with notice of its purpose and full knowledge of all the facts, and that the several instruments were executed as parts of one transaction, though at different times; and it also appeared that no new or intervening equities had accrued in respect to either of the parties or third persons. It was held, that they must be treated as made at the same time and given legal effect accordingly, and the grantee named in the deed given in pursuance of the settlement, will not be permitted to use the legal title she thereby acquired to the prejudice of the mortgaged security in the hands of an innocent holder for value. Hurlbert v. Weaver, 24 Minn. 30.

the instruments are executed at different times, if they are delivered at the same time, for they take effect only from their delivery.¹

1. Pascault v. Cochran, 34 Fed. Rep. 358; LaFayette Building etc. Assoc. v. Erb (Pa. 1887), 8 Atl. Rep. 62; Gammmon v. Freeman, 31 Me. 243.

The date of a deed or mortgage is only presumptive evidence of the time of delivery which may be rebutted by parol proof. Banning v. Edes, 6 Minn. 402; Parke v. Neely, 90 Pa. St. 52.

Notice.—A judgment creditor who advances his money on the faith of the unincumbered title of the vendee will not be postponed to the lien of an unrecorded purchase-money mortgage of which he had no notice when he advanced the money; but if the money was not advanced on the faith of the land, the purchase-money mortgage will have preference. A distinction is to be made between the two cases. Hulett v. Whipple, 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 224; Spring v. Short, 90 N. Y. 538. See also Roane v. Baker, 120 Ill. 308.

A recital in a duly recorded mortgage that the premises are "the same this day conveyed by the said" mortgagee to the mortgagor, "and now re-conveyed to secure the payment of the purchase money," is sufficient to charge all persons who claim through the mortgage with notice of the existence of his deed to the mortgagor. Center v. Planter's, etc. Bank, 22 Ala. 743.

Pennsylvania.—In Pennsylvania if a judgment creditor has notice before his debt is contracted, of an unrecorded mortgage for the purchase money of land, the mortgage takes priority over the judgment. Britton's Appeal, 45 Pa. St. 172; Nice's Appeal, 54 Pa. St. 200. See also Lahr's Appeal, 90 Pa. St. 507.

Indiana.—If a vendor of real estate neglects to take a mortgage for unpaid purchase money until after the execution of a mortgage thereon to a third person for value and without notice, his mortgage for purchase money is subject to the prior mortgage. Houston v. Houston, 67 Ind. 276.

Where a grantee executes at the same time and place two mortgages on the same lands, one a purchase-money mortgage to his grantor, and the other to a third party for a collateral consideration, the third party cannot, by having his mortgage recorded first, acquire a priority over the purchase-money mortgage, because under the circumstances of the case the third party has notice that the mortgage to the grantor was given for the purchase money. Brasted v. Sutton, 29 N. J. Eq. 513; Clark v. Brown, 3 Allen (Mass.) 509.

A deed from the vendor to the vendee contained a receipt for $1,500, part of the purchase money which was paid in cash, and the vendee's "mortgage on the within described lot conveyed for the sum of $2,500, the consideration within named." The mortgage was executed three days later than the deed, but both were delivered at the same time. Held, that the receipt in the deed was sufficient notice to a subsequent mortgagee that the mortgage was a purchase-money mortgage. LaFayette Building etc. Assoc. v. Erb (Pa. 1887), 8 Atl. Rep. 62.

A vendor who takes a mortgage for the purchase money of land, and has it recorded at the same time that the deed from him is recorded, is not obliged to examine the record for a mortgage to a third party from the vendee prior to the recording of his deed. If there be delay in recording such deed and mortgage, and the vendee execute another mortgage of the same property to a stranger, and this is recorded before the deed to the vendee and his mortgage for the purchase money is recorded, the recording of such a mortgage is not notice to the vendor because at that time the deed to the vendee had not been recorded. 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 568; Boyd v. Mumdorf, 30 N. J. Eq. 545; Losey v. Simpson, 11 N. J. Eq. 246. Compare Semon v. Terhune, 40 N. J. Eq. 364.

The record of a conveyance of land in mortgage, which on the records appeared to be the land of the mortgagee,

2. Over Judgments.—Purchase-money mortgages have priority over all judgments against the mortgagor,¹ even though the mortgage may not be recorded for several months after the execution on the judgment;² and such priority is not restricted to a mortgage given to the grantor of the land.³

is not notice of a prior conveyance thereof by the mortgagee to the mortgagor. Veazie v. Parker, 23 Me. 170; Peirce v. Taylor, 23 Me. 246; Losey v. Simpson, 11 N. J. Eq. 246.

Where a grantee gave back a purchase-money mortgage before delivery of the deed, and afterwards, at the time the deed was actually delivered, this grantee mortgaged the premises to a third party, in whose presence the delivery was made, and who had no notice of the former mortgage, it was held that the delivery of the deed in the latter's presence was notice to him that until then the mortgagor had no title to encumber to his prejudice, and therefore the second mortgage was given precedence of the first. Heffron v. Flanigan, 37 Mich. 274.

Any circumstance which tends to give notice or inform a party that there is an incumbrance upon the land, is sufficient to charge him with notice of its existence. Where such information comes to the knowledge of a purchaser or subsequent incumbrancer, the law requires him to pursue it until it leads to notice. Ætna L. Ins. Co. v. Ford, 89 Ill. 252.

Knowledge of the existence of a debt for unpaid purchase money of land does not affect a purchaser of cotton grown thereon with notice of an unrecorded mortgage to secure said purchase money. Bell v. Tyson, 74 Ala. 353.

Where a deed operates to convey a life estate to one and the fee to another and a mortgage for the purchase money is executed by the grantee of the life estate, the record of the deed is notice to the assignee of the mortgage that the mortgagor had a life estate only, to which alone the mortgage could attach; and he has no equity entitling him to relief against the grantee of the fee, although the latter is not a purchaser for value. Lehndorf v. Cope, 122 Ill. 317.

1. Stewart v. Smith, 36 Minn. 83; Banning v. Edes, 6 Minn. 402; Fitts v. Davis, 42 Ill. 391; Curtis v. Root, 20 Ill. 518; Hazleton v. Lesure, 9 Allen (Mass.) 24; Cake's Appeal, 23 Pa. St. 186; 62 Am. Dec. 328; Wilson v. Smith, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 171.

A contract was made for the conveyance of a factory with the machinery and improvements contained therein. Before a conveyance was made, the intended vendee executed a mortgage of the premises to the vendor to secure the purchase money. A third person then advanced money to the mortgagors, for which they confessed judgment. At the end of a year, the mortgagee executed a conveyance to the mortgagors. Held, that the mortgage for the purchase money had priority over the judgments which had been confessed. Wilson v. Smith, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 171.

Statute of Frauds.—Where land is sold under an oral agreement that the vendee will execute a mortgage for the unpaid purchase money, the delivery of possession to the vendee being the consideration for such oral agreement, takes the case out of the Statute of Frauds; and the lien acquired by the vendor by virtue of such oral agreement is superior to that of a subsequent judgment creditor of the vendee, where credit was not extended on the faith of the land. Devin v. Eagleson, 79 Iowa 269.

2. Roane v. Baker, 120 Ill. 308.

3. Jackson v. Austin, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 477.

A mortgage made to secure $500 of purchase money and $500 for a prior debt, and the deeds were recorded on the same day prior to the deed of conveyance, and judgment had been recovered against the vendee, held, that as to the purchase money, the lien of the mortgage was prior to the judgment, and that as to the prior debt, the judgment was entitled to priority. Ray v. Adams, 4 Hun (N. Y.) 332.

A mortgage given for purchase money on a sale of land, by one defendant in execution to his co-defendant, is not, on the principle of lien for the purchase money, entitled to priority over the antecedent judgment against both, nor can it affect the title of a purchaser under the judgment, although the property was levied on and sold as the

3. Over Other Mortgages.—A purchase-money mortgage has priority over all other mortgages executed by the vendee upon the same land, if the mortgage for the purchase money was given as part of the transaction of sale;¹ nor is it essential for a mortgage to show on its face that it was given for the purchase money, in order for it to be preferred, if the fact that it was so given was known to the mortgagors and mortgagees.²

4. Over Mechanics' Liens.—A mechanic's lien is postponed to a mortgage given for the purchase money of the land on which the lien is sought to be obtained;³ although if legal permission property of the mortgagor. Simmons v. Vandegrift, 1 N. J. Eq. 55.

1. Jacoby v. Crowe, 36 Minn. 93; Bolles v. Carli, 12 Minn. 113; Clark v. Brown, 3 Allen (Mass.) 509; Dusenbury v. Hulbert, 59 N. Y. 541; Moring v. Dickerson, 85 N. Car. 466; Morris v. Pate, 31 Mo. 315; Turk v. Funk, 68 Mo. 18.

H, by articles of agreement, sold certain land to N. Before the latter had fully paid therefor, he sold the land to P and W. To avoid the expense of an intermediate conveyance, it was agreed that H should convey directly to P and W, and they should execute a mortgage to him to secure the residue of the purchase money due to him, and also to execute to N another mortgage to secure the payment of the remaining sum agreed to be paid to him for the title. The deed and mortgages were of one date, and were executed, delivered, and recorded the same day. Held, that the mortgage to H was entitled to a preference over the mortgage to N. City Nat. Bank's Appeal, 91 Pa. St. 163.

Where land was conveyed in fee, subject to the payment of annual rents by the grantee to the grantor, and the deed of conveyance reserved to the grantor the right to re-enter and avoid the conveyance, upon default of payment, it was held that the right of re-entry for non-payment of the rent was equivalent to a mortgage for the purchase money of the land, and therefore, preferred to a mortgage upon the same land created by the grantee. Stephenson v. Haines, 16 Ohio St. 478.

Where an undivided interest in land has been purchased, for the price of which the entire tract has been mortgaged, the mortgage will not attach to the entire interest upon its subsequent acquisition by the mortgagor, as against the mortgagee of the entire tract for the purchase money of the subsequently acquired interest. A purchase-money mortgage cannot attach to property which the mortgagor did not own at the time of giving it. Covenants are not implied in a purchase-money mortgage. Brown v. Phillips, 40 Mich. 264; Beall v. White, 94 U. S. 382; Jackson v. Littell, 56 N. Y. 108; U. S. v. New Orleans R. Co., 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362.

2. City Nat. Bank's Appeal, 91 Pa. St. 163.

Parol Evidence.—The consideration of a mortgage can be shown by parol evidence. Walters v. Walters, 73 Ind. 425. Compare, Albright v. Lafayette, etc. Assoc. 102 Pa. St. 411.

3. Virgin v. Brubaker, 4 Nev. 31; Guy v. Carriere, 5 Cal. 511; Clark v. Butler, 32 N. J. Eq. 664; Gibbs v. Grant, 29 N. J. Eq. 419; Paul v. Hoeft, 28 N. J. Eq. 11; MacIntosh v. Thurston, 25 N. J. Eq. 242; Strong v. Van Deursen, 23 N. J. Eq. 369; Wallace v. Silsby, 42 N. J. L. 1; Lamb v. Cannon, 38 N. J. L. 362. See also Parke v. Neely, 90 Pa. St. 52; Moroney's Appeal, 24 Pa. St. 372; Huber v. Diebold, 25 N. J. Eq. 170.

In Clark v. Butler, 32 N. J. Eq. 664, the court by Van Fleet, V. C., said: "It is well settled that where lands are purchased under an agreement that the purchase-money shall be secured by mortgage on the lands agreed to be conveyed, and the vendee without the written consent of the owner commences the erection of a building before obtaining title, if a mortgage for the purchase money be given when the title is made to the vendee, it will be entitled to preference over a mechanic's lien, though the mortgage be given at a date subsequent to the commencement of the building."

A house was destroyed by fire before completion. The holder of a purchase-money mortgage executed on had been given by the mortgagee to the party endeavoring to enforce the mechanic's lien, to erect the buildings or furnish the materials in respect of which the lien is claimed, the lien would be entitled to preference.¹

5. Over Homestead Exemptions.—A purchase-money mortgage, given as part of the same transaction with the conveyance, precludes the mortgagor or his wife from setting up a claim to a homestead, as against the mortgagee;² but they are entitled as against all other persons.³ It is contrary to the policy of the statutes creating homesteads to hold that a purchase-money mortgage is a debt contracted after the purchase of the homestead so as to render the mortgaged property exempt under those statutes.⁴

6. Over Dower.—(See also DOWER, vol. 5, p. 899, n. 6).—A mortgage for the purchase money of land has priority over the wife's right of dower in the mortgaged land, as between the wife and the mortgagee and his assigns, although the wife does not join in the execution of the mortgage.⁵ But the wife is entitled to dower the same day as his conveyance, had procured insurance payable to himself, but in the name and upon the interest of the mortgagor. Held, that the lien of the mortgage on the insurance money was superior to that of a mechanic for lumber and materials used in the house. Elgin Lumber Co. v. Langman, 23 Ill. App. 250.

1. Gibbs v. Grant, 29 N. J. Eq. 419; Paul v. Hoeft, 28 N. J. Eq. 11; Clark v. Butler 32 N. J. Eq. 664.

See also Virgin v. Brubaker, 4 Nev. 31.

2. Jones v. Tainter, 15 Minn. 512; Pratt v. Topeka Bank, 12 Kan. 570; Andrews v. Alcorn, 13 Kan. 351; Nichols v. Overacker, 16 Kan. 54; Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 439; 87 Am. Dec. 254; Magee v. Magee, 51 Ill. 500; 99 Am. Dec. 571; Kimble v. Esworthy, 6 Ill. App. 517; Allen v. Hawley, 66 Ill. 164; New England Jewelry Co. v. Merriam, 2 Allen (Mass.) 390; Burns v. Thayer, 101 Mass. 426; Hopper v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 233; Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa, 438; 81 Am. Dec. 493; Burnap v. Cook, 16 Iowa 149; Flanagan v. Cushman, 48 Tex. 241; Lassen v. Vance, 8 Cal. 271; 68 Am. Dec. 322; Carr v. Caldwell, 10 Cal. 380; 70 Am. Dec. 740. See also Peterson v. Hornblower, 33 Cal. 266.

A purchaser in possession of land procured a third person to pay the purchase price of the land to the vendor, by promising to execute a mortgage to secure the repayment of the money as soon as he obtained a deed. He obtained a deed but refused to execute the mortgage. It was held, upon a bill filed to enforce the lien on the land, by the party who had advanced the money, that the money paid by the complainant having been paid by him directly to the vendor for the purpose of having the land conveyed to the vendee, was to be regarded as the purchase money of the premises, against which the defendant could not assert a homestead exemption. Magee v. Magee, 51 Ill. 500; 99 Am. Dec. 571.

The owner of a homestead mortgage for the purchase money cannot, by redeeming from a foreclosure sale for part of the judgment only, hold the land free from the lien of the unsatisfied part. Campbell v. Maginnis, 70 Iowa 589.

3. Allen v. Hawley, 66 Ill. 164; Hopper v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 233.

4. Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa 438; 81 Am. Dec. 493. See also Peterson v. Hornblower, 33 Cal. 266.

5. 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 464; 2 Minor's Insts. (3rd ed.) 144; 1 Washburn on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 229; Holbrook v. Finney, 4 Mass. 566; 3 Am. Dec. 243; Clark v. Munroe, 14 Mass. 351; King v. Stetson, 11 Allen (Mass.) 407; Pendleton v. Pomeroy, 4 Allen (Mass.) 510; Kittle v. Van Dyck, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 76; Stow v. Tift, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 458; 8 Am. Dec. 266; Cunningham v. Knight, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 399; Maybury v. Brien, 15 Pet. (U. S.) 21; Thompson v. Lyman, 28 Wis. 266; Jones v. Parker, 51 Wis. 218; Gammon v. Freeman, 31 Me. 243; Young v. Tarbell, 37 Me. 509; Bullard v. Bowers, 10 N. H. 500; Hinds v. Ballou, 44 N.

as against all parties except the mortgagee or his assigns;¹ and she has a right to dower in the equity of redemption in the mortgaged property.² Whether the wife shall be endowed depends more upon the character of the husband's seisin than upon its duration;³ and if the husband is beneficially seised, for however short a time, the wife will take dower.⁴ In order to defeat the wife's right of dower, the burden of proof is on the mortgagee to show that the execution of the mortgage was part of one continuous transaction with the conveyance to the mortgagor.⁵ Though the general rule is that a grantee is estopped from denying his grantor's seisin, yet he is not estopped from showing that his grantor's seisin was not of such a character as would entitle his wife to dower.⁶

7. Mortgagees Whose Mortgages Are Entitled to Preference.—A mortgage made to a third person who advances the money paid the vendor is entitled to the same preference as if it were made to the vendor.⁷ But a mortgage to a third person who advances money to make the first payment upon a contract for land, will be postponed to the mortgage of the vendor for the remainder of the purchase money, notwithstanding the mortgage to the third

H. 619; Adams v. Hill, 29 N. H. 202; Thomas v. Hanson, 44 Iowa 651; Frazier v. Hunter, 1 McCord. (S. Car.) 512; Birnie v. Main, 29 Ark. 591.

By the Indiana Code of 1852, dower was abolished, but this same law invested the wife with an inchoate right to a fee simple to be made consummate by the death of her husband leaving her surviving. This right, however, could not be made to exist as against a mortgage for purchase money executed before the adoption of the Code. May v. Fletcher, 40 Ind. 575, overruling Fletcher v. Holmes, 32 Ind. 497; Bowen v. Preston, 48 Ind. 367; Baker v. McCune, 82 Ind. 339; Walters v. Walters, 73 Ind. 425. See also Brenner v. Quick, 88 Ind. 546; Barr v. Vanalstine, 120 Ind. 590.

Kentucky.—The wife is entitled to dower in Kentucky, although the mortgage for the purchase money constitutes one continuous transaction with the conveyance of the land. Tervis v. Steel, 4 Mon. (Ky.) 339; McClure v. Harris, 12 B. Mon. (Ky.) 261. Compare Gully v. Ray, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 107. See Henagan v. Harlee, 10 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 285.

1. 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 464; Bullard v. Bowers, 10 N. H. 500; Young v. Tarbell, 37 Me. 509; Moore v. Rollins, 45 Me. 493.

2. Mills v. Van Voorhies, 20 N. Y. 412; Thomas v. Hanson, 44 Iowa 657;

Young v. Tarbell, 37 Me. 509; Gage v. Ward, 25 Me. 101.

3. McCauly v. Grimes, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 318; Smith v. McCarty, 119 Mass. 519.

4. Stanwood v. Dunning, 14 Me. 290; Douglass v. Dickson, 11 Rich. (S. Car.) 417; Moore v. Rollins, 45 Me. 493.

5. Grant v. Dodge, 43 Me. 489; Smith v. McCarty, 119 Mass. 519.

6. Gully v. Ray, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 107; Gammon v. Freeman, 31 Me. 243.

7. 4 Kent's Com. (13th ed.) 39; 1 Washb. on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 229; 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 464; Jackson v. Austin, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 477; McGowan v. Smith, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 232; Kittle v. Van Dyck, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 76; Clark v. Munroe, 14 Mass. 351; King v. Stetson, 11 Allen (Mass.) 407; Hazleton v. Lesure, 9 Allen (Mass.) 24; Curtis v. Root, 20 Ill. 518; Magee v. Magee, 51 Ill. 500; 99 Am. Dec. 571; Kaiser v. Lembeck, 55 Iowa 244; Jones v. Parker, 51 Wis. 218; Gammon v. Freeman, 31 Me. 243; Smith v. Stanley, 37 Me. 11; 58 Am. Dec. 771; Jones v. Tainter, 15 Minn. 512; Nichols v. Overacker, 16 Kan. 54; Adams v. Hill, 29 N. H. 202; Lassen v. Vance, 8 Cal. 271; 68 Am. Dec. 322; Carr v. Caldwell, 10 Cal. 380; 70 Am. Dec. 740; Flanagan v. Cushman, 48 Tex. 241.

person was recorded first,¹ but it will be preferred to all other claims.²

8. How Lost.—The priority of a purchase-money mortgage is lost by an agreement of the vendor with another mortgagee of the vendee of the property, that the vendor's mortgage shall be postponed, allowing the other mortgage to be first recorded and knowingly acquiescing in that state of affairs for several years.³ But it is not lost, in the absence of other circumstances by recording the junior mortgage first.⁴ Neither does it lose priority because other lands were included in it besides those for the purchase

Consequently a purchaser at a foreclosure sale under a power contained in a purchase-money mortgage, takes title free from all claims or liens. Jacoby v. Crowe, 36 Minn. 93.

1. Turk v. Funk, 68 Mo. 18; Brower v. Witmeyer, 121 Ind. 83; Brasted v. Sutton, 29 N. J. Eq. 513; Boyd v. Mundorf, 30 N. J. Eq. 845; Boies v. Gardner, 53 Hun (N. Y.) 236.

2. Boies v. Gardner, 53 Hun (N. Y.) 236.

A bought of B an undivided one-third of three lots, for which he paid cash in part, and for the balance gave his note and a mortgage on the property. B purchased the property from one H, who by his direction conveyed to A. A borrowed the money with which to make his cash payment from C, under an agreement that it should be secured by a new mortgage, A giving his note for the amount and executing a mortgage accordingly at the time on the same property. This note and mortgage were executed on the same day as the note and mortgage to B, but neither mortgage was delivered until some time afterwards, when A, on the same day, took both mortgages to the recorder's office and delivered them to be recorded, intending that the mortgage to C should have priority, and testifying also that he delivered it first. It was first recorded but the certificate of the recorder showed that they were filed for record at the same time. Held, that neither mortgage was entitled to priority over the other, and that both should be satisfied pro rata out of the sale of the property. Koevenig v. Schmitz, 71 Iowa 175.

3. Mutual Loan etc. Assoc. v. Elwell, 38 N. J. Eq. 18.

4. Elder v. Derby, 98 Ill. 228; Brower v. Witmeyer, 121 Ind. 83; Heffron v. Flanagan, 37 Mich. 274; Brasted v. Sutton, 29 N. J. Eq. 513; U. S. v. New Orleans R. Co., 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362; Dusenbury v. Hulbert, 59 N. Y. 541.

In Elder v. Derby, 98 Ill. 228, the court by Walker, J., said: "The recording act of Illinois which provides that deeds, mortgages, etc., shall take effect only from the time of filing them for record, as to all creditors and subsequent purchasers without notice," does not apply to purchase-money mortgages. See also Stafford v. Van Rensselaer, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 315.

Compare Jackson v. Reid, 30 Kan. 10; Stansell v. Roberts, 13 Ohio 149; 42 Am. Dec. 193; Harding v. Allen, 70 Md. 395. These cases seem to have been decided under more stringent registry laws. See also Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 466, which agrees with the last three cases cited supra.

Where land was purchased by deed executed Nov. 13th, 1874, and recorded April 28th, 1875, and a mortgage was given back to the vendor for the purchase money; which mortgage was executed Dec. 23rd, 1874, but not recorded until July 11th, 1875; and on Jan. 7th, 1875, another mortgage was executed to a third party who had no notice of the one to the vendor, and the third party recorded his mortgage Jan. 18th, 1875, it was held that as the vendor's mortgage was not recorded within the six months required by the registration laws of Maryland, it was postponed to the lien of the mortgage to the third party. Harding v. Allen, 70 Md. 395.

The general rule fails and the general mortgage takes priority when the property purchased is annexed to a subject already covered by the general mortgage and becomes a part thereof; as when iron rails are laid down and become a part of the railroad. U. S. v. New Orleans R. Co., 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362.

money of which it was given.¹ Where the intention of the parties, evidenced by a parol agreement, was that several purchase-money mortgages should be equal liens, an assignee for value and without notice will have priority over another lien of the same dignity in the hands of the original mortgagee,² even where the mortgage postponed would have been entitled to priority if no assignment had been made.³

III. PURCHASE MONEY—WHAT CONSTITUTES.—The term "purchase money," as used in purchase-money mortgages, means money paid for the land, or the debt created by the purchase,⁴ and does not include other money than that which the purchaser stipulates to pay the vendor.⁵ It cannot be extended to include money which is borrowed for the purpose of paying a pre-existing debt for which the land was the consideration.⁶ In order for the third person to be substituted for the vendor in such cases, he must deal directly with the vendor.⁷ When purchase money is the consideration of an instrument, it will continue to be the consideration of any other instrument executed in substitution of the old one.⁸

A vendee received a release of his first mortgage for the purchase money of land, and executed a second for the balance of the purchase money remaining unpaid, and was intrusted by the vendor with both for record. He promptly recorded the release but not the mortgage, and soon after executed another mortgage for his notes to A, given without consideration, which was recorded, and subsequently, together with the notes, assigned before maturity to B, a bona fide purchaser for value without notice. After this last mortgage was recorded the first was also. Held, that the last mortgage constituted the prior lien. Ramsey v. Jones, 41 Ohio St. 685. See also Flynt v. Arnold, 2 Met. (Mass.) 619.

1. Moore v. Rollins, 45 Me. 493. See also Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 438; 87 Am. Dec. 254.

2. 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 567; Decker v. Boice, 19 Hun (N. Y.) 152; Stafford v. Van Rensselaer, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 316.

3. Corning v. Murray, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 652.

Compare, Granger v. Crouch, 86 N. Y. 494.

4. Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 439; 87 Am. Dec. 254.

A land warrant with which land is preempted is purchase money within the meaning of the term. Jones v. Tainter, 15 Minn. 512.

A debt for lumber bought and used for building a house is not purchase money of a homestead. Smith v. Lackor, 23 Minn. 454.

5. 1 Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.), § 465; Henisler v. Nickum, 38 Md. 270. See also Cohn v. Hoffman, 45 Ark. 376.

6. Stansell v. Roberts, 13 Ohio 148; 42 Am. Dec. 193; Cohn v. Hoffman, 45 Ark. 376; Alderson v. Ames, 6 Md. 52; Eyster v. Hatheway, 50 Ill. 521; 99 Am. Dec. 537; Small v. Stagg, 95 Ill. 39.

See also Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 439, 87 Am. Dec. 254.

7. Alderson v. Ames, 6 Md. 52; Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 439; 87 Am. Dec. 254; Small v. Stagg, 95 Ill. 39.

8. Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 438; 87 Am. Dec. 254; Kimble v. Esworthy, 6 Ill. App. 517; Flanagan v. Cushman, 48 Tex. 241.

A mortgage which is given subsequently to the conveyance of the land and execution of a mortgage thereon to secure the purchase money, and which is intended to be substituted in the place of such mortgage, is a mortgage for the purchase money, although by its terms it may extend the time of payment to a longer period than the former mortgage, and though the wife of the mortgagor may not have joined in its execution as she did in that of the first. Jones v. Parker, 51 Wis. 218.

even though part of the purchase money may have been paid before the execution of the second instrument.¹

IV. DEFENSE TO FORECLOSURE.—A purchaser of land, who has paid part of the purchase money, and given a bond and mortgage for the residue, and is in the undisturbed possession, will not be relieved against the payment of the bond, or foreclosure of the mortgage, on the mere ground of a defect of title, there being no allegation of fraud in the sale, nor any eviction. He must seek his remedy at law on the covenants in the deed of the vendor to him.² An allegation that there is an outstanding paramount title will not enable the owner of the equity of redemption

1. Pratt v. Topeka Bank, 12 Kan. 570.

2. 2 Jones on Mortgages (4th. ed.), § 1500; Bumpus v. Platner, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 213; Abbott v. Allen, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 519; 7 Am. Dec. 554; Gouverneur v. Elmendorf, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 79; James v. McKernon, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 543; York v. Allen, 30 N. Y. 104; Withers v. Morrell, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 560; Davison v. De Freest, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 456; Grant v. Tallman, 20 N. Y. 191; 75 Am. Dec. 384; Ryerson v. Willis, 81 N. Y. 277; Parkinson v. Sherman, 74 N. Y. 88; 30 Am. Rep. 268; Edwards v. Bodine, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 109; Burke v. Nichols, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 430; Parkinson v. Jacobson, 13 Hun (N. Y.) 317; McConihe v. Fales, 107 N. Y. 404; Price v. Lawton, 27 N. J. Eq. 325; Hile v. Davison, 20 N. J. Eq. 228; Hulfish v. O'Brien, 20 N. J. Eq. 230; Alden v. Pryal, 60 Cal. 215; Barkhamsted v. Case, 5 Conn. 528; Conwell v. Clifford, 45 Ind. 392; Church v. Fisher, 40 Ind. 145; Simpson v. Hawkins, 1 Dana (Ky.) 303; Booth v. Ryan, 31 Wis. 45; Peters v. Bowman, 98 U. S. 56; Noonan v. Lee, 2 Black (U. S.) 499. See also Cook v. Mix, 11 Conn. 432; Robards v. Cooper, 16 Ark. 288; Hill v. Butler, 6 Ohio St. 207; Hart v. Carpenter, 36 Mich. 402; Lessly v. Bowie, 27 S. Car. 193.

Compare Chambers v. Cox, 23 Kan. 393; Conklin v. Bowman, 7 Ind. 533.

See Withers v. Powers, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 350.

In Peters v. Bowman, 98 U. S. 56 the court by Swayne, J., said: "The rule is founded on reason and justice. A different result would subvert the contract of the parties, and substitute for it one which they did not make. In such case the vendor, by his covenants, if there are such, agrees upon them, and not otherwise, to be responsible for defects of title.

If there are no covenants, he assumes no responsibility, and the other party takes the risk. The vendee agrees to pay according to his contract, and secures payment by giving a lien upon the property. Here it is neither expressed nor implied that he may refuse to pay and remain in possession of the premises, nor that the vendor shall be liable otherwise than according to his contract. Where an adverse title is claimed, it cannot be litigated with binding effect unless the claimant is before the court. He has shown that he cannot be made a party. One suit cannot thus be injected into another. Without his presence the judgment or decree as to him would be a nullity. The law never does or permits a vain thing. A title which cannot be made good otherwise may be made so by the lapse of time or the Statute of Limitations. Is the vendor to wait until this shall occur? And, in the meantime, can the vendee, or those claiming under him, remain in possession and enjoy all the fruits of the contract and pay neither principal nor interest to the vendor?"

In Abbott v. Allen, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 519; 7 Am. Dec. 554, Chancellor Kent said: "If there be no fraud in the case, the purchaser must resort to his covenants, if he apprehends a failure or defect of title and wishes relief before eviction. This is not the proper tribunal for trial of titles to land. It would lead to the greatest inconvenience, and perhaps abuse, if a purchaser in the actual enjoyment, and when no third person asserts, or takes any measures to assert, a hostile claim, can be permitted, on suggestion of a defect or failure of title and on the principle of quia timet, to stop the payment of the purchase to arrest the enforcement of a purchase-money mortgage. But if there has been an eviction by title paramount, or an action is pending by an adverse claimant to try the title to the mortgaged premises, the court will interfere.¹ If the vendor has effected the money and of all proceedings at law to recover it. Can this court proceed to try the validity of the outstanding claim in the absence of the party in whom it is supposed to reside, or must he be brought into court against his will to assert or renounce a title which he never asserted, and perhaps never thought of? I apprehend there is no such practice or doctrine in this court, and that a previous eviction or trial at law is, as a general rule, indispensable.

. . . The only plausible argument for the injunction is that, as the plaintiff has covenants to secure his title, the interference of this court is necessary to prevent a circuitry of action, and that the plaintiff ought not to be compelled to pay the purchase money, when by a suit on his covenants, he might, almost concurrently, be enabled to recover it back again. This argument would apply to every case of mutual and independent covenants, and would prove too much; but the proper answer here is that to sustain the injunction would be assuming the fact of a failure of title before eviction or trial at law, and which this court, as not possessing any jurisdiction over legal titles, is not bound or authorized to assume."

In Patton v. Taylor, 7 How. (U. S.) 132, the court by Nelson, J., referring to authorities there cited, said: "These cases will show that a purchaser in the undisturbed possession of the land will not be relieved against the payment of the purchase money, on the mere ground of defect of title, there being no fraud or misrepresentation, and that in such a case he must seek his remedy at law on the covenants in his deed; and if there is no fraud and no covenants to secure the title, he is without remedy, as the vendor selling in good faith is not responsible for the goodness of his title beyond the extent of his covenants in the deed."

Parol Covenants.—The assignee of a purchase-money mortgage, duly recorded, will not be restrained from enforcing his lien against the land, on the ground that the purchaser of the land, under the foreclosure of a second mortgage, had a verbal understanding with the parties to the first mortgage, that its lien would be postponed to that of the second mortgagee, and that a sale under the second would pass a free title. Foxwell v. Slaughter, 5 Del. Ch. 396.

Exceptions.—While the general rule is that stated in the text, yet it has been held in some States that the mortgagor may defend a suit for foreclosure by recoupment or offset of damages for breach of covenants, to the extent of the damages sustained, for a failure or partial failure of title, or any other matter embraced in the covenants. Coy v. Downie, 14 Fla. 544; Lowry v. Hurd, 7 Minn. 356; Walker v. Wilson, 13 Wis. 522; Scantlin v. Allison, 12 Kan. 85; Chambers v. Cox, 23 Kan. 393.

The more especially is this true when the mortgagee is insolvent. Knapp v. Lee, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 452; McLemore v. Mabson, 20 Ala. 137.

See Hall v. Gale, 14 Wis. 54, as to what constitutes such a covenant as may be set off.

In a suit to foreclose a purchase-money mortgage, the mortgagor and grantee in the conveyance is entitled, by virtue of the covenants against incumbrances therein contained, to have the amount of tax liens outstanding on the mortgaged premises deducted from the amount due on the mortgage, and a decree taken only for the balance. And the assignee of such mortgage holds it subject to the same equity. Union Nat. Bank v. Pinner, 25 N. J. Eq. 495; White v. Stretch, 22 N. J. 76.

Where a mortgage is given for the purchase money of land conveyed by the mortgagee to the mortgagor with covenant against incumbrances, if it appeared that at the time of the conveyance, the premises were subject to a prior incumbrance, a decree of foreclosure will not be made upon such mortgage until the prior incumbrance is satisfied, or the prior incumbrance will, by the decree, be directed to be first paid out of the proceeds of the sale, and the amount deducted from the sum due upon the mortgage. Van Riper v. Williams, 2 N. J. Eq. 407; Woodruff v. Depue, 14 N. J. Eq. 168; Stiger v. Bacon, 29 N. J. Eq. 442; Dayton v. Dusenbury, 25 N. J. Eq. 110.

1. Price v. Lawton, 27 N. J. Eq. 325;

sale by fraud, the purchaser may, by moving promptly upon discovery thereof, have the contract of sale and the mortgage for the purchase money rescinded.¹

affirmed Lawton v. Price, 28 N. J. Eq. 274, citing Shannon v. Marselis, 1 N. J. Eq. 423; Van Waggoner v. McEwen, 2 N. J. Eq. 412; Green v. Whipple, 12 N. J. Eq. 50; Hile v. Davison, 20 N. J. Eq. 229; Hulfish v. O'Brien, 20 N. J. Eq. 23; Coster v. Monroe Mfg. Co., 2 N. J. Eq. 467; Johnson v. Gere, 2 Johns. Ch. (N.Y.) 546; Edwards v. Bodine, 26 Wend. (N.Y.) 109; Tallmadge v. Wallis, 25 Wend. (N.Y.) 107.

See also Couse v. Boyles, 4 N. J. Eq. 212.

Nebraska.—In Latham v. McCann, 2 Neb. 276, it is held that defect of title is no defence to an action for foreclosure of a mortgage given for purchase money, if the deed contains only a covenant of warranty; otherwise, if it contains a covenant of seisin.

Indiana.—In Wilber v. Buchanan, 85 Ind. 42, it is held that while a defective title cannot be pleaded in bar of the foreclosure of a mortgage for purchase money, it can be as a failure of the consideration of the notes given for the title, which would incidentally defeat the foreclosure.

Compare Rice v. Goddard, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 293; Tallmadge v. Wallis, 25 Wend. (N.Y.) 107.

As to what constitutes eviction, see Wilber v. Buchanan, 85 Ind. 42; Withers v. Powers, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 350; Simers v. Saltus, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 214; Cowdrey v. Coit, 44 N. Y. 382.

I. Booth v. Ryan, 31 Wis. 45; Furman v. Meeker, 24 N. J. Eq. 110.

The vendee of land cannot claim in a foreclosure suit a deduction from the mortgage money, on the ground that his vendor, who was not the mortgagor, misstated the number of acres of the land conveyed, and that the vendor of such vendor, who was the mortgagee and complainant, when he sold such lands, made a similar misstatement. To authorize such deductions, the mortgagee and the owner must be privies in contract. Davis v. Clark, 33 N. J. Eq. 579; Clark v. Davis, 32 N. J. Eq. 530; Northrop v. Sumney, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 196; Champlin v. Laytin, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 189; Dresbach v. Stein, 41 Ohio St. 70.

Several tracts of land were sold under one contract, and separate deeds naming a distinct consideration were given for each tract. Held, that fraud and want of consideration in the sale of one tract could not be set up as a defense in a suit to foreclose the purchase-money mortgage upon another of such tracts. Hicks v. Jennings, 4 Fed. Rep. 855.

Disposition of Proceeds of Sale.—Where a purchaser of land has paid no part of the purchase money, but has given mortgages therefor, some of which had been assigned to third persons as security, he is not entitled to a surplus, notwithstanding the vendor had agreed not to foreclose until prior incumbrances were canceled by means of a sale of such mortgages, or by money to be furnished by the purchaser; the latter not having paid the moneys to cancel any part of the prior incumbrances. Johnson v. Blydenburgh, 31 N. Y. 427.

Where a mortgage was taken by a vendor on one-third and one-third of a sixth of various tracts of land which the mortgagees took expressly subject to prior liens against former owners of the land, in distributing the proceeds of sale of the land which was sold at sheriff's sale, the mortgagee will not be confined to one-third and one-third of a sixth of the balance of the money for payment of the prior liens and costs; but if they were paid by the other portions of the land except one-third and one-third of a sixth, then that amount of the purchase money would be applicable to the mortgage in preference to judgments subsequent to the mortgage obtained against the owner of the land existing at the time of the sale. Devor's Appeal, 13 Pa. St. 412.

On the 4th of December, 1846, the plaintiff executed two mortgages on the same premises for the purchase money; one to S for $221.56, payable in nine equal annual installments; and the other for $86.23, payable to the defendant in three equal annual installments, the first to become due December 4, 1856. It was agreed that the mortgage to S should be the first lien on the premises. This mortgage was subsequently assigned by S to the defendant, and was foreclosed under the statute. Upon the sale of the premises on the 5th of January, 1850, the same was struck off to M for $431.56, a sum larger than the amount due upon the mortgage, with the costs of foreclosure. Held, that the defendant was entitled to have the mortgage for $36.23 first satisfied out of the surplus money, and that the plaintiff was entitled only to the balance remaining after paying that mortgage with interest. Barber v. Cary, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 549.

V. CHATTEL MORTGAGES TO SECURE PURCHASE MONEY.—Chattel mortgages have sometimes been given to secure the payment of the purchase money of the chattel mortgaged. In one instance,

Miscellaneous Cases Under Foreclosure.—When a mortgagee whose covenant against incumbrances has not been kept, sells land under a trust deed given to secure the purchase-money, the sale will be set aside; especially where the mortgage is the purchaser. Coffman v. Scoville, 86 Ill. 300.

When one standing in the position of junior mortgagee or owner requests a sale in parcels, and offers in good faith to bid the amount of the mortgage debt, cost and expenses upon a specified parcel, which can be conveniently sold and conveyed separately, although the premises are described in the mortgage as one tract, a purchase-money mortgagee may not sell the whole mortgaged property in one parcel on a statutory foreclosure.

Ellsworth v. Lockwood, 42 N. Y. 89.

But see Griswold v. Fowler, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 135.

Where a mortgage is payable by installments and the mortgage has been foreclosed and the property sold by the mortgagee for one installment, he still retains a lien on the land for the installment not due, and may, as they successively become due, foreclose and sell the same land for each installment as many times as there are installments. Watkins v. Hackett, 20 Minn. 106; Walker v. Hallett, 1 Ala. 379.

A strict foreclosure of a purchase-money mortgage is not improper, where the bill shows that the mortgage was given for the entire purchase-money, of which no part either principal or interest has been paid; and that the value of the premises is not more than the amount due, and that they are the only security for the debt, the mortgagors having absconded. Wilson v. Geisler, 19 Ill. 49.

A homestead is liable for its purchase money, and if it is sold upon foreclosure of a mortgage therefor, and only part of the debt is realized, and the mortgagor redeems, it remains liable in his hands for the balance of the purchase money. Campbell v. Maginnis, 70 Iowa 589.

One who sells and conveys his land to another, and then takes back a deed of trust to secure the payment of the purchase price, may bid, either for himself or as the agent of another, in the sale of the property under the deed of trust. Loveland v. Clark, 11 Colo. 265.

Where there were two separate mortgages on the same property belonging to different mortgagees, and the holder of the first mortgage filed a bill of foreclosure against the second mortgagee, and the owners of the mortgaged premises, and the same solicitor filed another bill, in behalf of the second mortgagee, against the first mortgagee, and the owner of the premises, to foreclose the second mortgage, it was held that only one bill of foreclosure was necessary, and that the owners of the equity redemption were to be charged with the cost of one suit only. Wendell v. Wendell, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 509.

An answer to a bill to foreclose cannot draw in question the fairness and validity of the sale, the purchase money of which the mortgage was given to secure, or impeach the contract on which the title of the mortgagor is founded. These matters can only be drawn in question by cross bill. Miller v. Gregory, 16 N. J. Eq. 274.

Proof of defense not pleaded cannot be received at the trial of the suit for foreclosure of the purchase-money mortgage. Sandford v. Travers, 2 Bosw. (N. Y.) 498.

The fact that a mortgagee in possession first conveyed the land with a covenant against incumbrances, and then took the mortgage, under which he holds possession, as security for a portion of the purchase money, will not render him chargeable with rent or for damages equal to rent, for a period of time during which a third party held possession of the land without right and without the consent of the mortgagee, such possession not constituting an incumbrance within the meaning of the law, or a breach of the covenant against incumbrances. Dinsmore v. Savage, 68 Me. 191.

the principle was applied that the dower interest of the wife was not superior to the lien of such mortgage, although the wife's dower rights were secured by statute.¹ In another case, the lien of a judgment creditor was held superior to that of an intended chattel mortgage for purchase money, which had not been recorded, because, under the statutes, a record is essential to such mortgage, which differs from mortgages of real estate in that in the one case delivery of the evidence of title is alone essential, while in the other, no mortgage can exist until properly recorded.²

1. In Barker v. Kelderhouse, 8 Minn. 207, a chattel mortgage had been executed upon certain household furniture which, by statute was exempt from execution. This mortgage had been given to secure the purchase money of said furniture, but the wife of the mortgagor had not joined in its execution. The mortgagee, upon the mortgagor's failure to pay a promissory note which the mortgage secured, brought an action against the mortgagor, claiming judgment for the delivery of the property and damages. It was held that the fact of the wife not having joined in the execution of the mortgage was no defense, and that the mortgagee could recover in the action. The principle of the decision was that the purchase of the property, and the execution of a mortgage thereupon to secure the purchase money, constituted in law one transaction, which left no interval of time in which any interest the wife might have under the statute could attach. The interest in the property given to the wife by the statute, which required that she should join in the execution of the mortgage, was declared to be analogous to a dower interest, and the court by Atwater, J., said: "The same principle has been applied as against the dower right of the wife of a mortgagor executing a mortgage to secure the purchase money. See cases cited in Banning v. Edes, 6 Minn. 402, above quoted. These cases, it is true, are those of mortgages of real estate, but it is not perceived why the principle is not equally applicable to the case of a chattel mortgage given to secure the purchase money of the property mortgaged, where, as in this case, it appears that 'it was a part of the agreement on the purchase of said property, that the defendant should execute said mortgage to the plaintiff to secure part of the purchase money of such property.' The dower right of the wife has been, perhaps, regarded with as much favor, and as jealously guarded by the courts, as any other for which the protection of law has been invoked; and while this is held secondary to the mortgagee's lien for the purchase money, it is not perceived why the statutory right of exemption should be viewed with more favor."

2. In Blatchford v. Boyden, 122 Ill. 657, a chattel mortgage was foreclosed by the mortgagee by means of a sale of the property covered by the mortgage to the mortgagor. A new mortgage on the same property to secure the purchase money was executed by the mortgagor, but the mortgagee did not take the property into his possession and failed to record the mortgage. Certain executions against the mortgagor were issued against the property before the mortgage was recorded. It was held that the lien of such execution creditors was superior to that of the mortgagee upon the ground that the lien of a chattel mortgage under the Illinois statute can be preserved in only two ways, first, by the mortgagee retaining possession of the property, or second, by recording the mortgage. The court by Shope, J., said: "We are referred to cases where mortgages have been taken to secure the purchase money of the land, and holding that, where such mortgage is executed as a part of a transaction of the conveyance to the mortgagor, such mortgage will take precedence of judgments against the mortgagor. In those cases, this superiority of lien is given to the mortgage, not because of any equity the vendor might be supposed to have for the purchase money of the land, but upon the grounds: 'The execution of the deed and mortgage being simultaneous acts, the title to the land does not for a single moment rest in the purchaser, but merely passes through the hands and vests in the mortgagee, without stop-

In a third case, the judgment debt was postponed to the lien of a recorded purchase-money mortgage.¹

VI. STATUTES GOVERNING PURCHASE-MONEY MORTGAGES—1. Judgments.—In New York it is provided that where real property is sold and conveyed and, at the same time, a mortgage thereupon is given by the purchaser to secure the payment of the whole or a part of the purchase money, the lien of the mortgage, upon that real property, is superior to the lien of a previous judgment against the purchaser.² In Mississippi a purchase-money mortgage has priority over judgments and other debts of the mortgagor to the extent of the land purchased.³ A similar provision exists in New Jersey.⁴

2. Mechanics' Liens.—In some States by statutes a mechanic's lien has precedence of any mortgage given to secure the payment of money to be used in the construction or repair of the building, except such part as was given to secure the purchase money of the land.⁵

ping at all in the purchaser, and during this instantaneous passage the judgment lien cannot attach to the title.' Curtis v. Root, 20 Ill. 518; Christie v. Hale, 46 Ill. 117; Jones on Mortgages, (4th ed.), § 464, et seq. In the conveyance of real estate, and taking back a mortgage to secure the purchase money, the title is vested in the mortgagor subject to the mortgage delivered simultaneously with the deed. Nothing further than the proper execution and delivery of the instruments is necessary to give validity to the mortgage. Under the chattel-mortgage act the recording of the chattel mortgage is as essential to its validity, as against third persons, as any other element entering into the making of a valid chattel mortgage. It is a valid lien only from the time of its being filed for record, even as against purchasers and creditors with actual notice. Frank v. Miner, 50 Ill. 444; Lemen v. Robinson, 59 Ill. 117. The title to personal property vests immediately upon its sale and delivery to the purchaser. The fact that the mortgage is for the purchase money, or the intention of the parties is to be secured thereby, can give no vitality to the lien of the mortgage."

1. In Pitt's Sons Mfg. Co. v. Poor, 77 Ill. App. 24, the mortgagee sold a thrashing machine to the mortgagor, who was to take it on trial, and if satisfied with it was to pay part cash, securing the balance by chattel mortgage on the machine. After the lapse of several weeks the mortgagor decided to keep the machine, made the first payment thereon, and gave a chattel mortgage for the deferred payments, antedated to the time of the delivery of the machine, for the purpose of securing interest for the full time on the notes. Between the date of the delivery of the machine for trial, and the consummation of the purchase and giving of the mortgage, an execution was issued by a justice of the peace against the mortgagor, and after that date was levied upon the machine in the hands of the mortgagor. It was held that the antedating of the mortgage was for a proper purpose, and the judgment creditor not having advanced the money on the faith of the machine was to be postponed to the superior claim of the mortgagee.

2. New York Code Civ. Proc., § 1254; Birdseye's Stat., tit., Judgments, § 54. See also Stow v. Tiff, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 458; 8 Am. Dec. 266.

3. Rev. Code Mississippi 1880 § 1205.

4. Wallace v. Silsby, 42 N. J. L. 1. In Wallace v. Silsby, 42 N. J. L. 1, the court by Beasley, C. J., said: "The provision of the New Jersey statute which gives preference to a purchase-money mortgage over previous judgments against the grantee, is merely declaratory of the common law."

5. Stims. Am. Stat. Law., § 1982, citing New Jersey Laws of 1879, p. 52; Pennsylvania Mechanic's Liens (Am. Dig. 1877) 1; Laws of 1881, p. 65.

3. Homestead Exemptions.—The homestead exemption does not, by the constitutions of twelve States, avail as against any obligation or debt contracted for the purchase of the premises.¹ By the constitutions of two States, no mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien on the homestead is ever valid except for the purchase money thereof, or improvements thereon.²

4. Dower.—There is a special provision in many States, that if lands are purchased by the husband during marriage and at the same time mortgaged to secure the purchase money, the widow has dower only in the equity of redemption, even if she did not join in the mortgage,³ and the same provision exists as to the husband's curtesy in the wife's lands in some of the States.⁴ The widow has dower in the surplus remaining after satisfaction of the mortgage debt when land has been mortgaged by the husband for the purchase money of the land.⁵

PURPORT—(See also EFFECT, vol. 6, p. 169; TENOR).—The word "purport" means no more than the substance of the instrument which appears to every eye that can read.⁶

1. Stims. Am. Stat. Law § 84, citing the constitutions of Kansas, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, Nevada, California, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana.

2. Stims. Am. Stat. Law, § 85, citing the constitutions of Texas and Louisiana.

See Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa 438; 81 Am. Dec. 493; Peterson v. Hornblower, 33 Cal. 266.

3. New York, 2135; Indiana, 2495; Illinois, 41, 4; Michigan, 5736; Wisconsin, 2163; Nebraska, 1, 23, 4; West Virginia, North Carolina, 1272; 2106; Arkansas, 2575; Oregon, 174; Georgia, 1763 a; Stimson's Am. Stat. Law, § 3213.

South Carolina.—In South Carolina it is provided that "nothing in this chapter (concerning the record of deeds) shall be construed to bar any widow of any mortgagor of any lands from her dower and right in or to said lands, who did not legally join with her husband in such mortgage, or otherwise bar or exclude herself from such dower or right." South Carolina, 1782.

4. Delaware, v. 15, 165, 3; v. 16, 126; Stims. Am. Stat. Law 3113.

5. Massachusetts, 124, 5; Maine, 103, 12; Vermont, 2217; New York, 1, 1, 3, 6; Illinois, 41, 5; Michigan, 5737; Wisconsin, 2164; Nebraska, 1, 23, 5; Virginia, 106, 3; West Virginia, 1882, 86, 3; Kentucky, 52, 4, 5; Arkansas, 2576; Oregon, 17, 5; Stims. Am. Stat. Law, § 3216.

Authorities.—Jones on Mortgages (4th ed.); Boone on Mortgages.

6. 3 Chitty's Crim. Law, p. 1040, followed in State v. Fenly, 18 Mo. 454, the question in that case being the sufficiency of an indictment for forgery which failed to allege in the words of the statute that it was "an instrument or writing being or purporting to be the act of another." See also FORGERY, vol. 8, pp. 503, n. 510 et seq.; INDICTMENT, vol. 10, p. 594; LIBEL AND SLANDER, vol. 13, p. 457.

Purport Distinguished from Tenor.—In Gilchrist's Case, 2 Leach 657, Buller, J., said: "Old cases have given rise to much learning and argument on the words 'purport' and 'tenor'; and the books are full of distinctions as to the meaning of these words, and the necessity for using the one or the other of them in indictments where written instruments are to be stated. But in the many cases upon this subject I can find no judicial determination that the purport and tenor should both be stated in any case whatever. Purport means the substance of an instrument as it appears on the face of it to every eye that reads it, and tenor means an exact copy of it; and, therefore, when an instrument is stated according to its tenor, the purport of it must necessarily appear." See 2 Russell on Crimes 804; Fogg v. State, 9 Yerg. (Tenn.) 302. See also State v. Atkins, 5 Blackf.

PURPOSELY.—See note 1.

PURPRESTURE.—See NUISANCES, vol. 16, p. 939; INJUNCTIONS, vol. 10, p. 841.

PURSUANCE.—(See also IN, vol. 10, p. 324).—See note 2.

PUTTING IN FEAR.—See ROBBERY.

PUTS (in Contracts).—See GAMBLING CONTRACTS, vol. 8, p. 1004.

(Ind.) 458; Myers v. State, 101 Ind. 381.

It was held in State v. Pullens, 81 Mo. 387, that it has never been required, either at common law or by any statute in Missouri, that the purport and tenor of an instrument charged to have been forged should both be set out in the indictment. An indictment setting out the instrument forged according to its tenor only is undoubtedly sufficient. "Where the tenor is given, the purport must necessarily appear, as the tenor of an instrument means an exact copy of it, whereas purport means the substance of it as it appears on the face of the instrument to every eye which reads it." See also FORGERY, vol. 8, p. 510, et seq.; LIBEL AND SLANDER, vol. 13, p. 457; INDICTMENT, vol. 10, p. 594.

Purport Clause.—"In the ordinary form of an indictment (forgery), we have seen, the recitation of the tenor of the instrument is preceded by its mention as 'purporting' to be a bond, . . . or whatever else it appears on its face to be. This is termed a purport clause. Now, in reason, the purport of recited words is a matter not of fact but of law—not for the jury, but for the court, and on familiar principles need not be alleged. Therefore it is believed that the purport clause in an indictment for forgery is never necessary." 2 Bishop Crim. Proc., § 413, followed in Myers v. State, 101 Ind. 381. See also Sharley v. State, 54 Ind. 168; State v. Gustin, 5 N. J. L. 749; Harding v. State, 54 Ind. 359.

1. As used in an Indiana statute, defining murder in the second degree. "purposely" means intentionally and designedly. To constitute the offense, the purpose, design or intention to perpetrate it must be formed before the act is committed. Fahnestock v. State, 23 Ind. 231.

The meaning of the word may be fully expressed in an indictment by the use of the words "with intent" or by "feloniously." Carder v. State, 17 Ind. 307. See generally HOMICIDE, vol. 9, p. 529.

2. An exceptional notice of action is frequently required to be given to one against whom a suit is brought for something done by him "in pursuance," or "under or by virtue," or "in execution" of a statute. For example, the act 24 and 25 Vict., relating to the offense of uttering, tendering, etc., false or counterfeit coin, authorizes any person whatsoever to apprehend any one offending against the act. And the 33d section of the act provides that notice in writing of all actions and prosecutions to be commenced against any person for anything done by him in pursuance of this act shall be given to the defendant one month at least before the commencement of the action. In strictness, anything not authorized by a statute cannot be "in pursuance" or "under or by virtue" of it; whilst if authorized, it would need no other protection. But if effect were given to such construction, it would altogether do away with the protection intended to be given by the requirement of such notices. Accordingly, it is held that if any public or private body or person charged with the execution of an act, honestly intends to put the law in motion, and really and not unreasonably believes in the existence of facts, which, if existent, would justify his acting and acts accordingly, his conduct will be "in pursuance" or "under or by virtue" of the statute under which he believes he is acting, although he errs in such belief. The question whether there was in fact reasonable ground for such belief, is a subordinate question, and one very material to be pressed on the minds of the jury. But the presence or absence of such reasonable ground can only be relied on for the purpose of determining whether the belief was bona fide or not. Herman v. Seneschal, 13

QUALIFICATION—(Compare QUALIFIED).—The endowment or acquirement which renders eligible to place or position.¹

QUALIFIED—(Compare QUALIFICATION).—See note 2.

QUALIFY—(Compare QUALIFICATION; QUALIFIED).—See note 3.

C. B., N. S. 392, and cases there cited. See also ACT, vol. 1, p. 172; Roberts v. Orchard, 2 H. & C. 769; Selnes v. Judge, L. R., 6 Q. B. 724; Chamberlain v. King, L. R., 6 C. P. 474; Midland R. Co. v. Witherington, 11 Q. B. Div. 788; Hughes v. Buckland, 15 M. & W. 346; Lea v. Facey, 19 Q. B. Div. 352; Rochfort v. Rind, 9 L. R. Ir. 204; O'Dea v. Hickman, 18 L. R. Ir. 233.

1. Hyde v. State, 52 Miss. 672.

Qualification is any natural endowment or any acquirement which fits a person for a place, office, or employment, or enables him to sustain any character with success. Webster's Dict. Quoted in Cummings v. Missouri, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 319.

As Used in the Kentucky Constitution.—"Qualification" and "Qualified," in the constitution of Kentucky, have their most comprehensive sense, referring not only to circumstances which render a citizen eligible to office or entitle him to vote, but also to those that exempt him from all legal disqualifications for either purpose. Anderson's L. Dict.; Com. v. Jones, 10 Bush. (Ky.) 744.

The word implies not only the presence of every requisite which the constitution demands, but also the absence of every disqualification which it imposes. Hall v. Hastetter, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 786.

Qualifications of United States Jurors.—An act of Congress of July 20, 1840, prescribed that jurors in the Federal courts must have the same "qualifications" as jurors in the State courts.

"Qualifications," as here used, refers to general qualifications, as age, citizenship, etc., and not to personal objections, such as bias, interest, and the like, which do not disqualify generally but only at the instance of a party. U. S. v. Williams, 1 Dill. (U. S.) 495. See also JURY AND JURY TRIALS, vol. 12, p. 322.

Qualification for Office.—(See also PUBLIC OFFICERS).—"Qualification for office, as defined by the most approved lexicographer, is 'endowment or accomplishment that fits for an office; having the legal requisites, endowed with qualities fit or suitable for the purpose.'" State v. Seay, 64 Mo. 101; 27 Am. Rep. 206.

For the qualifications of the various officers, public and private, see the specific title, under which they are treated, such as Governor, Sheriffs, Officers (Private Corporations), etc., etc.

2. "Liable" tantamount to "qualified."—See JURY AND JURY TRIAL, vol. 12, p. 322.

Qualified Voters—Electors.—See also ELECTIONS, vol. 6, pp. 260, 445; MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, pp. 1279, 1280.

"Qualified voters," as used in the Mississippi constitution, which requires the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of a county to an issue of municipal bonds, means those qualified and actually voting, and not those qualified and entitled to vote. Carroll Co. v. Smith, 111 U. S. 556.

The constitution of Colorado makes ineligible to hold any county office, every person who is not a "qualified elector." The term "qualified elector" is here used in its broadest sense, meaning a person qualified to vote generally, and does not include women. Notaries Public, 9 Colo. 628.

Qualified for Office.—Where a statute provided for the appointment of clerks pro tempore to fill vacancies, and authorized them to hold office until their successors should be elected and "qualified," it was held that the word "qualified" meant nothing more than that the person elected has complied with the requisitions of the statute, by giving bond and taking the oath of office. State v. Neibling, 6 Ohio St. 44.

Duly qualified.—"Qualified," in the expression "duly qualified," may refer to the condition or status of the officer or to the act of taking the oath. Anderson's L. Dict., citing People v. Crissy, 91 N. Y. 616; Morse v. Johnson, 77 Va. 300, 271. See also DULY, vol. 6, p. 55.

Qualified fee.—A base or determinable fee. See also BASE FEE, vol. 2, p. 129; ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 878; REAL PROPERTY.

3. Qualify.—"The word 'qualify,' in QUALITY.—See IMPLIED WARRANTY, vol. 10, p. 127; INDICTMENT, vol. 10, p. 563; PLEADING; REPRESENTATIONS; WARRANTY.

QUANDO ACCIDERINT.—When they shall come in; when they shall come to hand. A judgment against an executor or administrator directed to be satisfied out of the assets when they shall afterwards come to his hands, is termed a judgment quando acciderint. Such a judgment is proper if the defendant has pleaded plene administravit, and admits that the defendant has fully administered up to that time.¹

QUANTI MINORIS.—An action of the civil law, adopted in Louisiana, to obtain a reduction in the price of a thing sold in consequence of defects found in the article after the sale. The action must be commenced within twelve months from the date of the sale, or at least from the time within which the defect became known to the purchaser. And it lies equally in cases where the seller knew of the defects of the thing sold, as in those wherein he was ignorant of them and acting in good faith.²

QUANTITY.—See INDICTMENT, vol. 10, p. 563; PLEADING.

QUANTUM DAMNIFICATUS.—An issue directed by a court of equity to be tried in a court of law, to ascertain by a trial before a jury the amount of damages suffered by the non-performance of some collateral undertaking which a penalty has been given to secure. When such damages have thus been ascertained the court will grant relief upon their payment.³

QUANTUM MERUIT.—In pleading—as much as he has deserved. Where a person employs another to do work for him, without any agreement as to compensation, the law implies a promise to pay for the services as much as they may deserve or merit. In such case the plaintiff may suggest in his declaration that the defendant promised to pay him as much as he reasonably deserved, and then aver that his trouble was worth such a sum of money, which the defendant has omitted to pay. This is called an assumpsit on a quantum meruit.⁴

QUANTUM VALEBAT.—See ASSUMPSIT, vol. 1, p. 884.

its legal sense, means to take an oath to discharge the duties of an office, and when an executor named in a will alleges that he desires to qualify as such, and the court orders that letters testamentary issue to him upon his complying with the requisites of the law, we understand that they are to be issued to him when he shall have taken the oath well and faithfully to discharge the duties of his trust." Hale v. Salter, 25 La. Ann. 324.

"Qualify" held to be equivalent to "probate" where used in a statute authorizing "probate judges" "to qualify wills by receiving the evidence of witnesses, etc." Bent v. Thompson (N. Mex. 1890), 23 Pac. Rep. 238.

1. Anderson's Law Dict. See also EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS, vol. 7, pp. 382, 389.

2. Millandon v. Sonbercase, 3 Mart., N. S. (La.) 287.

3. Bouv. L. Dict., Citing, 4 Bouvier's Insts., n. 3913.

4. Bouv. Law Dict.; 2 Bl. Comm. 162; 1 Viner's Abr. 346. See ASSUMPSIT, vol. 1, p. 882. For illustrations, see

QUARANTINE.—(See also BOARD OF HEALTH, vol. 2, p. 429; CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, vol. 3, p. 670; HEALTH, vol. 9, p. 318; HOSPITAL, vol. 9, p. 771; INTERSTATE COMMERCE, vol. 11, p. 555-8; MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS, vol. 15, p. 1173; POLICE POWER).

The term was originally used to denote the forty days, during which a ship arriving in port and known or suspected to be infected with a malignant or contagious disease was not allowed to land its passengers, freight, or crew, for fear of communicating such disease. In modern usage, it applies to a space of time, varying according to the exigencies of the case, during which certain persons are required to forbear all intercourse with others in order to prevent the spread of some disease with which they are supposed to be infected.¹

LOGS AND LUMBER, vol. 13, p. 1021; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 776; PARENT AND CHILD, vol. 17, p. 339.

1. Anderson's Law Dict.; Century Dict. See also 10 Law Mag. & Rev. (14th series) 73; 2 Bl. Com. 135.

Constitutionality of Quarantine Laws.

—There is no doubt that a State may pass such laws regarding quarantine as may be necessary for the protection of its citizens. See POLICE POWER; Morgan L. & T. R. etc. Co. v. Louisiana, 118 U. S. 455; Passenger Cases, 7 How. (U. S.) 283.

And such laws will be upheld, even though they may, in some instances, appear to infringe upon the right of Congress to regulate commerce. The constitutionality of such acts depends upon the right which every State possesses to preserve and protect its citizens. See Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 203; Peete v. Morgan, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 581. This right was recognized in the case of Hannibal etc. R. Co. v. Husen, 95 U. S. 465, although the statute under consideration in that particular case (prohibiting the importation of any Texas or Mexican cattle into the State of Missouri at any time between March and December in each year) was held unconstitutional.

United States Quarantine Laws.—The United States statutes provide that the quarantine regulations established by any State respecting vessels arriving in or bound to any port thereof, shall be observed by the officers of the United States, and that their enforcement shall not be interfered with. U. S. Rev. Stat., § 4792; supplement to U. S. Rev. Stat., ch., 66, § 5. See Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 203; Morgan L. & T. R. etc. Co. v. Louisiana, 118 U. S. 455.

The President is authorized to purchase or erect suitable quarantine storehouses, and the Secretary of the Treasury to extend the time for entry of vessels subject to quarantine laws. U. S. Rev. Stat., §§ 4794-5-6. By Act of Congress of August 30, 1890, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to quarantine imported cattle at the expense of the owner at such ports as he may designate, and to appoint veterinary surgeons, inspectors, etc., and he may cause to be slaughtered all animals adjudged to be infected with contagious diseases, or to have been exposed to infection, etc. U. S. Stat at L., 1888-9, p. 416.

Quarantine Ordinances.—In Kosciusko v. Slomberg (Miss. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 297, it was held that an ordinance prohibiting any one from bringing second-hand clothing into a town, or from exposing it for sale therein, unless such person should furnish proof to the mayor that it did not come from an infected district, is not, in the absence of an epidemic showing an apparent necessity therefor, a valid exercise of the charter power to establish and enforce quarantine regulations, but an unreasonable restraint upon trade, and, therefore, void. The same view is taken in Greensboro v. Ehrenreich, 80 Ala. 579; 18 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 483; 60 Am. Rep. 130. See also Wells v. Ricord, 24 N. J. Eq. 169.

Quarantine Commissioners.—Laws of New York, 1863, ch. 358, make it the duty of the governor to appoint quarantine commissioners for each district, who shall be citizens of the State and Definition. QUARE CLAUSUM FREGIT—QUARRY. Definition.

QUARE CLAUSUM FREGIT.—See TRESPASS.

QUARREL.—See note 1.

QUARRY.—(See also MINES AND MINING CLAIMS, vol. 15, p. 499; PROFITS Á PRENDRE).—The word “quarry” is derived from the French word quarriere. In the Latin of the lower ages, quadratararius was a stone-cutter qui marmora quadrat, and hence quarriere, the place where he quadrates, or cuts the stone in squares; generally a stone pit; clearly, therefore, referring to a place upon or above, and not under, the ground.²

“residents” of such district. Under this act, it was held that one whose domicile is not within a certain district is not a “resident” there, even though he actually lives there. People v. Platt, 117 N. Y. 159.

Quarantine Fees—Interference with Commerce.—The requirement that each vessel passing a quarantine station shall pay a fee fixed by a State statute for examination as to her sanitary condition, etc., it is a part of all quarantine systems, and is a compensation for services rendered to the vessel, and not a tax, within the provision of the constitution forbidding the imposition of a tonnage tax by any State. Morgan L. & T.R. etc. Co. v. Louisiana, 118 U. S. 455.

But in Peete v. Morgan, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 581, it was held that a State cannot levy a tonnage tax on vessels owned in foreign ports and entering her harbors in pursuit of commerce, merely in order to defray the expenses of keeping them quarantined.

Authority of Municipal Corporation to Establish Quarantine.—In New Decatur v. Berry, 90 Ala. 432; 33 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 644, it was held that a municipal corporation authorized under the General Statutes (Code of Alabama, §§ 1486, 1516) has no power to establish and enforce quarantine regulations, and is not liable for the compensation of an officer employed to enforce such regulations against a neighboring town in which an epidemic is prevailing. The court, by McClellan, J., insisted that the power was not granted in express words; nor fairly implied as an incident to the powers expressly granted; nor was it essential to the declared objects and purposes of the corporation; citing 1 Dillon Mun. Corp., § 89 and cases.

But it is generally conceded that it is within the power of municipal corporations to provide for the health and safety of their inhabitants. See MUNI-CIPAL CORPORATIONS, vol. 15, p. 1173-4, where the cases are collected. See also O'Donovan v. Wilkins, 24 Fla. 281; 23 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 1, 11 note; 1 Dillon Mun. Corp. (4th ed.), §§ 144-5; Harrison v. Mayor etc. of Baltimore, 1 Gill (Md.) 264.

Other Cases.—General reference may be made to Elwell v. Fabre, 52 Hun (N. Y.) 70 (contract concerning wharves, as effected by quarantine); Bloom v. State, 57 Miss. 572 (indictment against shipmaster for not displaying flag at half-mast on coming into port, etc.); Train v. Boston Disinfecting Co., 144 Mass. 523; 19 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 548; 59 Am. Rep. 113 (regulation of a board of health concerning imported rags); Richmond v. Henrico Co., 83 Va. 204 (establishment of city small-pox hospital); Ferrari v. Board of Health, 24 Fla. 390 (Florida quarantine law construed).

In Real Property—Meaning of Quarantine.—In real property law the term “quarantine” is used to denote the right which belonged to the widow to remain for forty days in her husband’s mansion house unless her dower were assigned earlier. See DOWER, vol. 5, p. 923, note 4; 2 Minor’s Inst. (3rd ed.) [135] 156; 1 Thom. Coke-Lit. 584.

1. “It takes two to make a quarrel.” Carr v. Congers, 84 Ga. 287; 28 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 138.

2. Bell v. Wilson, L. R., 1 Ch. App. Cas. 309.

Working a Quarry.—The lease of a slate quarry contained the following covenant: “The party of the second part agrees to forfeit the lease when they fail in not working the quarry for a space of three successive months.” The lessor brought ejectment against the lessee for an alleged breach of this covenant. The court by Williams, J., upon the question of what constituted a “working of a quarry,” within the meaning of the covenant, said: “The quarry is an excavation or pit from

Definition.

QUASH—QUASI CORPORATIONS.

Definition.

QUASH—(See also ABATEMENT, vol. 1, p. 9; CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, vol. 4, p. 762; PLEADING).—Quash, from the French quasser, is defined to mean to overthrow; annul;¹ to make void or abate.²

QUASI.—As if. A Latin word, which marks a resemblance, and which supposes a difference between two objects.³

QUASI CORPORATIONS; QUASI MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.—

See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 188; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 588; COUNTIES, vol. 4, p. 346; MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS, vol. 15, p. 946; MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1234; SCHOOLS; TOWNSHIP.

which the slate is taken. Working the quarry, therefore, is the working of the pit. The doing of any work necessary to the proper and convenient use of the pit, such as the removal of earth, debris, water, ice, or snow, would seem to be working the quarry as truly and as usefully as the blasting and removal of the slate rock, for the latter cannot be done unless the quarry is kept reasonably free from obstruction." And accordingly it was held, that a forfeiture of the lease was not incurred by failure to remove slate from the quarry, during a period when it was necessarily interrupted by the work of removing the water, snow, and ice in the quarry, to make it possible to reach and remove the slate. Miller v. Chester Slate Co., 129 Pa. St. 81.

Quarry Distinguished From Mine.—

See MINES AND MINING CLAIMS, vol. 15, p. 504.

That a Trespasser May Be Restrained From Quarrying by Injunction—see INJUNCTION, vol. 10, p. 884.

1. Crawford v. Stewart, 38 Pa. St. 36.

2. Anderson's L. Dict.

When proceedings are clearly irregular and void, the courts will quash them both in civil and criminal cases. For example, when the array is clearly irregular, as if the jurors have been selected by persons not authorized by law, it will be quashed. The ground for the exercise of such a power is to clear the record of irregular, void, or defective proceedings, and the remedy appears to be applicable to such proceedings alone. Crawford v. Stewart, 38 Pa. St. 36, citing 3 Bouvier's Insts. n. 3342, and other authorities.

Quash and Dismiss Distinguished.—

In Bosley v. Bruner, 24 Miss. 457, plaintiff sued the defendants as sureties on the bond of one Elizabeth Newsom. The condition to the bond was as follows: "Now if the said Elizabeth Newsom shall prosecute her writ of error coram nobis aforesaid to effect, and shall pay the said judgment, damages, interest and costs, in case said writ of error coram nobis shall be dismissed . . . then this obligation to be void. The court by Yerger, J., said: "The question arises, to what extent have the conditions been broken, and how far can a recovery be had against the defendants. They were only liable to pay the original judgment, etc., of Bosley v. Newsom, in the event the writ of error was dismissed. By the special verdict it appears that the writ of error was 'quashed' not 'dismissed.' Is there any difference between 'quashing' and 'dismissing' a writ of error? We incline to the opinion that there is. The term 'quash,' as applied to writs of error or other writs, is predicated of some defect in the writ itself, or in the form of the writ, which defect does not reach to the merits of the case. (Tidd's Pr. 161, 1163). The usual practice in this State has been, as far as we have been able to ascertain it, whenever a writ is 'quashed' for mere formal exceptions, to grant a party a new writ upon his original plaint. The term 'dismiss' was not originally applied to common law proceedings, but seems to have been borrowed from proceedings in the court of chancery, where in practice the term is applied to the removal of a cause out of court, without any other hearing (Bouvier's L. Dict.). The term when used is applied to the removal or disposal of the cause itself, and not to the mere annulment of the writ. Such we conceive to have been the sense in which the parties to this bond used the word 'dismissal.' And in our opinion, the condition of the bond to pay the judgment, etc., if the writ of error should be 'dismissed,' has not been broken by a refusal to pay on the judgment of the court 'quashing' the writ."

3. Bouvier's L. Dict.; People v. Bradley, 60 Ill. 402.

QUASI CRIMES.—See note 1. (See also PENALTIES, vol. 18, p. 269.)

QUASI DEPOSIT.—See DEPOSIT, vol. 5, p. 571.

QUASI DERELICT.—See note 2.

QUASI PUBLIC RECORDS.—See RECORDS.

QUAY—(See also WHARF).—A wharf at which to load or land goods.³

QUESTION.—See note 4.

1. The constitution of Illinois provides that the criminal court of Cook County shall have the jurisdiction of a circuit court in all cases of a criminal and quasi criminal nature, arising in the County of Cook. Upon the question, what constitutes a quasi crime, the court in Wiggins v. Chicago, 68 Ill. 375, by Walker, J., said: "Wharton, in his Law Lexicon, defines quasi crime to be the act of doing damage or evil involuntarily, but this cannot be the sense in which the framers of our constitution intended to use the term. When the entire section is considered, in the light of our jurisprudence, we must conclude that it was intended to embrace all offenses not crimes or misdemeanors, but that are in the nature of crimes, a class of offenses against the public which have not been declared crimes, but wrongs against the general or local public, which it is proper should be repressed or punished by forfeitures and penalties. This would embrace all quasi actions and forfeitures imposed for the neglect or violation of a public duty." See also State v. Lee, 29 Minn. 452.

Prosecutions for bastardy, though civil proceedings, are often termed quasi criminal proceedings, and would fall within the above definition. State v. Snure, 29 Minn. 132; Wiggins v. Chicago, 68 Ill. 375; BASTARDY, vol. 2, p. 144.

2. Quasi Derelict.—A case of "quasi derelict" occurs when the vessel is not abandoned, but those on board are physically and mentally incapable of doing anything for their safety. Sturtevant v. The George Nicholas, 1 Newb. Adm. 452.

See also, for a general treatment of "goods derelict at sea," SALVAGE.

3. Bouv. L. Dict.

In Mayor etc. of New Orleans v. U. S., 10 Pet. (U. S.) 715; the vacant space in contest had been dedicated by the Western Company to public use, so far as a dedication was shown by the plan of the city and the indorsement of the word "quay" upon it. The court by M'Lean, J., said: "In the agreed facts a quay is admitted to be a vacant space between the first row of buildings and the water's edge, and it is used for the reception of goods and merchandise imported or to be exported. The term is well understood in all commercial countries; and whilst there may be some difference of opinion as to its definition, there can be little or none in regard to the probable and commercial signification of it. It designates a space of ground appropriated to the public use; such use as the convenience of commerce requires."

4. Question.—The Compiled Laws of Michigan, § 5209, provide that when a probate judge is interested in any question to be decided by the court, he shall be deemed incapacitated for acting in the decision of that question. In McFarlane v. Clarke, 39 Mich. 45, a will was presented for allowance in a probate court, the judge of which was a legatee under the will. The probate judge made an order assigning a date for a hearing thereon, and requiring notice thereof to be given by publication in a daily paper for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

The court by Cooley, J., said: "Neither, when the order for notice was made by him was there any question to be decided by the judge in which he was interested. A question implies something in controversy or which may be the subject of controversy; but this order was the determination of no question; it was only preliminary to the making of questions. It was in no proper sense judicial action at all." See generally JUDGE, vol. 12, p. 52.

Leading Question.—See EVIDENCE, vol. 7, p. 108. WITNESSES.

Reasonable Question.—See REASONABLE.

QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT—(See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, vol. 4, p. 729; INSTRUCTIONS, vol. 11, p. 236; JUDGE, vol. 12, p. 2; JURY AND JURY TRIAL, vol. 12, p. 318; TRIAL; VERDICT).

- I. Questions of Law, 598.
 1. Pure Questions of Law for the Judge, 598.
 2. Jury as Judges of the Law, 598.
 3. Arguing to the Jury Upon the Law, 620.
- II. Questions of Fact, 625.
 1. Pure Questions of Fact for the Jury, 625.
 2. Power of Judge to Decide Certain Questions of Fact, 625.
 - a. Preliminary Questions Touching Admissibility of Evidence, 625.
 - b. Other Matters of Fact, 632.
 - c. Judge Charging Jury as to Facts, 633.
- III. Mixed Questions of Law and Fact, 633.
- IV. Various Classes of Questions, 634.
 1. Existence, 634.
 - a. Of Facts, 634. [635.
 - b. Of Laws and Ordinances,
 - c. Of Foreign Laws, 635.
 - d. Of Customs, 635.
 - e. Of Contracts, 635. [635.
 - (1) Express Contracts,
 - (a) Date, 636.
 - (b) Consideration, 637.
 - (c) Signature, 637.
 - (d) Seal, 637.
 - (e) Delivery, 637.
 - (f) Acceptance, 639.
 - (2) Implied Contracts, 639.
 2. Constitutionality, Legality, Validity, 639.
 3. Reasonableness, 640.
 - a. Reasonable Time, 640.
 - b. Reasonable Doubt, 645.
 - c. Other Cases Involving the Question of Reasonableness, 645.
 4. Interpretation and Construction, 646.
 - a. Written Language, 646.
 - b. Spoken Language, 656.
 5. Intent, 657.
 6. Duress, 658.
 7. Usury, 658.
 8. Other Questions, 639.

I. QUESTIONS OF LAW—1. Pure Questions of Law for the Judge.—If the facts of a case are admitted, as, for example, by demurrer, or if they are determined in a special verdict, there is said to arise a pure question of law, which in all instances is for the decision of the court. As the law only comes into operation when facts exist to which it can apply, the question will be: "Such and such facts being given, what is the law that governs them?" The answer to this question, according to the better opinion, falls in all cases, both civil and criminal, within the province of the court.¹

2. Jury as Judges of the Law.—It is generally admitted that in civil cases, the jury are in no sense judges of the law, but must take the law from the court.² The question whether in criminal cases the jury are judges of the law, has been much discussed, and eminent authorities may be brought forward on both sides.³ The

1. See generally the next subdivision.

2. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 941; 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2132; Levi v. Milne, 4 Bing. 195, per Best, C. J.; 13 E. C. L. 396; Merrill v. Nary, 10 Allen (Mass.) 416, per Bigelow, C. J.; St. Louis Stock Yards v. Wiggins Ferry Co., 102 Ill. 514; State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14. Contra, Baylis v. Lawrence, 11 A. & E.

920; 39 E. C. L. 270; Georgia v. Brailsford, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 1 (but see the comment on this case in U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23); U. S. v. Wilson, Baldw. (U. S.) 78 (but see United States v. Shive, Baldw. (U. S.) 510, for an opposing view); Coffin v. Coffin, 4 Mass. 25 (slander case).

3. For instance, in opposition to the doctrine that juries are judges of the point has arisen most frequently in prosecutions for criminal libel, and in England, towards the close of the eighteenth century, the question was agitated with great vehemence and ability.¹ And in law, Chief Justice Vaughan, in Bushell's Case, Vaugh. 135, 143; Lord Hardwicke in Rex v. People, Lee temp. Hard. 28; 1 Jur. 942; Lord Mansfield, in Rex v. Dean of St. Asaph, 3 T. R. 428, note, and in Rex v. Woodfall, 5 Burr. 2661; Lord Kenyon, in Rex v. Withers, 3 T. R. 428; Parke, B., in Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M. & W. 105; Best, C. J., in Levi v. Milne, 12 Moo. C. P. 418; 4 Bing. 195; 13 E. C. L. 396; and in Rex v. Burdett, 4 B. & Ald. 95; 6 E. C. L. 404; Story, J., in U. S. v. Battiste, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 240, 243; Curtis, J., in U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23; Holman, J., in Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 151; Shaw, C. J., in Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263; and in Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185; Campbell, J., in Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 173; Parker, C. J., and Gilchrist, J., in Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 536; Lewis, C. J., and Livingston, J., in People v. Croswell, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 337, 394; Addison, P., in Pennsylvania v. Bell, Add. (Pa.) 156; and in Pennsylvania v. McFall, Add. (Pa.) 255; Bennett, J., dissenting, in State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14, 48; and see the view of Samuel Chase, 1 Chase's Trial 34.

Contra, in favor of the doctrine, Jay, C. J., in Georgia v. Brailsford, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 1; Baldwin, J., in U. S. v. Wilson, Baldw. (U. S.) 99 (but see U. S. v. Shive, Baldw. (U. S.) 510). Parsons, C. J., in Coffin v. Coffin, 4 Mass. 25; Putnam, J., in Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 477, 496; Kent, J. (afterwards Chancellor), and Thompson, J., in People v. Croswell, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 337; Sharswood, C. J., in Kane v. Com., 89 Pa. St. 522; 33 Am. Rep. 787; and Hall, J., in State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14.

1. The first case in which this was made a subject of much controversy was in 1770, in Rex v. Woodfall, 5 Burr. 2661. This was an information for seditious libel against the publisher, Woodfall, for the publication of one of the Junius letters. Lord Mansfield instructed the jury that whether the paper was in law a libel was a question of law upon the face of the record, and that all they had to consider was whether the defendant had published the paper set out in the information, and whether the innuendoes, imputing a particular meaning to particular words, were true. This charge obviously required the jury, if satisfied that the publication was made and had the meaning attributed to it, to render a verdict of guilty, notwithstanding they might believe the criminal element of malice to be wanting. The jury returned a verdict of "guilty of printing and publishing only," which was afterwards set aside as ambiguous, and a new trial ordered.

In Miller's Case, 20 How. St. Tr. 870, 891, tried in the same year, Lord Mansfield charged the jury similarly, that a verdict of guilty or of not guilty could establish finally nothing save the fact of publication or non-publication of the libel.

But the great struggle on this subject took place in Rex v. Dean of St. Asaph, 3 T. R. 428, note. This case was tried before Buller, J., who, in summing up, charged that there were two facts for the consideration of the jury, viz., the fact of publication and the truth of the innuendoes. It came before the full court, and was argued in a masterly fashion for the defendant by Lord Evershine, in one of his most celebrated speeches. The opinion of the court was given by Lord Mansfield, who again affirmed the correctness of the ruling, and upon the same grounds, and cited many authorities to show that this had long been the established practice.

In Rex v. Withers, 3 T. R. 428, Lord Kenyon, a few years later, instructed the jury in the same terms.

These views of the law were assailed as not only destructive of the liberty of the press, but as taking from the jury the right to cover by their verdict all the matters charged and constituting the alleged offence. In the House of Lords they were attacked by Lord Chatham; and Lord Camden, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, in direct contradiction to Lord Mansfield, declared his instructions not to be the law of England. Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.), 565-6. Nevertheless the judges generally followed the view of Lord Mansfield, and it continued to be enforced, so far as juries would suffer themselves to be controlled by the instructions of the court, until the passage, in 1792, of the celebrated statute (32 Geo. III, c. 60), known as Fox's Libel Act. This was entitled "An Act to Remove Doubts Respecting the Functions of Juries in Cases of Libel," and it declared and enacted that on every such trial the jury may give a general verdict of guilty or not guilty upon the whole matter put in issue upon the indictment or information, and shall not be required or directed by the court or judge to find the defendant guilty, merely on proof of the publication by the defendant of the paper charged to be a libel, and of the sense ascribed to the same in the indictment or information; that on every such trial the court or judge shall, according to their or his discretion, give their or his opinion and directions to the jury on the matter in issue in like manner as in other criminal cases; that nothing in the act shall be construed to prevent the jury from finding a special verdict at their discretion as in other criminal cases; and that in case the jury shall find the defendant guilty, it shall be lawful for him to move in arrest of judgment on such ground and in such manner as he might have done before the passing of the act.

several cases in the United States the question has come up and has been argued with conspicuous learning.¹

But the controversy did not cease with this enactment. The friends of the statute claimed that it made juries the rightful judges of the law as well as of the facts in libel cases; others maintained that it only placed these cases on the same footing as other criminal prosecutions, leaving it the duty of the jury to accept and follow the instructions of the judge upon the criminal character of the publication. See on the general subject Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 566; Forsyth's Trial by Jury, c. 12; May's Const. Hist. Engl. c. 9; Campbell's Lives of the Chancellors, c. 178; Introd. to Speeches of Ld. Erskine, ed. by J. L. High; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185; State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14.

In State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14, the court by Bennett, J., said: "The discussions that have at different times taken place in libel prosecutions are calculated to mislead on the question now before us, without a careful attention to the points in controversy. It was always conceded that the fact of publication and the meaning were purely matter of fact and exclusively for the jury; but when we come to the question of the tendency of the publication, and the intention of the publisher, a remarkable doubt has prevailed whether they were purely questions of law, and to be abstracted from the jury on the trial, or whether they were mixed questions of law and fact, and to be submitted to the jury with proper directions from the court, like any other mixed questions of law and fact. The essence of a libel consists in its tendency to produce mischief; and it has been insisted that the intrinsic illegality of the publication is not a mere question of law, since it consists in its tendency; nor is it claimed to be a mere question of fact, but it has been sometimes treated as an ambiguous question in its nature, depending for its solution upon a sound judgment and discretion, applied to the alleged libel, and the state and circumstances of society, and not purely on a profound knowledge of the law on the one hand, or the aid of evidence on the other."

But the real question here seems to have been, not whether the jury were judges of the law or not, but whether the question of libel was a question of law for the court, or a question of fact for the jury. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, 212, 219; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23.

And see 3 Wynne's Eunomus, 237-8, where the author says: "The least reflection will be sufficient to show that the power and province of juries is the same in case of libels as in every other criminal case."

1. In the United States two trials occurred at an early date, involving the functions of the jury in libel prosecutions.

Callender's case, Whart. St. Tr. 688, was an indictment in the Circuit Court of the United States, under the so-called Sedition Law, for a seditious libel upon John Adams, President of the United States. The defence insisted that this law was unconstitutional, and proposed to argue that question to the jury; but Judge Samuel Chase, of the United States Supreme Court, declared that the question of the constitutionality of the statute was a judicial question, and could only be passed upon by the court.

Starting with the maxim that juries are judges of the law in criminal cases, the discussion seems to have been directed less to the soundness of the maxim in its general terms, than to certain aspects in which it might be regarded as true. In the minds of those who have debated the proposition, two questions seem to have existed: "Have juries the right to judge the law?" and, "Have they the power (though not the right) to judge the law?" And as the point at issue has not always been clearly distinguished, there is perhaps less difference in effect between the opposite views taken of the general maxim than the advocates on both sides have supposed.

In regard to the former question: "Have juries the right (which includes here the power) to judge the law in criminal cases?" few have maintained the affirmative; and the position of those who have, is thought to be wholly untenable. Both from principle and from the weight of authority, it is believed to be deducible that in criminal as well as in civil cases, juries have not the right in any sense to pass upon the law. It is true that juries have the right in criminal¹ as in civil² cases to render at their option a

The law, however, under which this prosecution was instituted, expressly provided that the jury should have the right to determine the law and the fact under the direction of the court, as in other cases. The conduct of Judge Chase in this trial was afterwards made one of the grounds for his impeachment before the Senate of the United States.

In People v. Croswell, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 337, which was an indictment for a libel upon President Jefferson, the court were equally divided in opinion whether in libel cases the jury were to decide the law as well as the fact. Kent and Thompson, J. J., maintained the affirmative, while Lewis, C. J., and Livingston, J., took the opposite view.

At present, however, in many of the States, the question is set at rest by constitutional provisions, that in prosecutions for libel, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. In several it is added, "as in other cases," or "under the direction of the court," or "under the direction of the court as in other cases." See infra, p. 616, note 3. As to the effect of such provisions, see Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 567, where the author says: "It would seem that a constitutional provision which allows the jury to determine the law, refers the questions of law to them for their rightful decision. Wherever such provisions exist, the jury, we think, are the judges of the law; and the argument of counsel upon it is rightfully addressed to both the court and the jury, nor can the distinction be maintained which was taken by Judge Chase, and which forbids the jury considering questions affecting the constitutional validity of statutes. When the question before them is, what is the law of the case, the highest and paramount law of the case cannot be shut from view. Nevertheless, we conceive it to be proper, and indeed the duty of the judge, to instruct the jury upon the law in these cases, and it is to be expected that they will generally adopt and follow his opinion. Where, however, the constitution provides that they shall be judges of the law 'as in other cases,' or may determine the law and the fact 'under the direction of the court,' we must perhaps conclude that the intention has been simply to put libel cases on the same footing with any other criminal prosecutions, and that the jury will be expected to receive the law from the court."

1. 4 Bl. Com. 361; 4 Minor's Inst. (2d ed.) *751; Bushell's Case, Vaugh. 135; U. S. v. Taylor, 11 Fed. Rep. 470; People v. Antonio, 27 Cal. 404; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 285; Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 563.

2. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 2137; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 393; Mayor, etc., of Devizes v. Clark, 3 A. & E. 506; 30 E. C. L. 135; Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 563; Woodward v. Woodson, 6

general verdict,¹ and thus apparently to resolve all questions, as well

Munf. (Va.) 227. And compare Mosley v. Walker, 7 B. & C. 53, 56; 14 E. C. L. 13; Macclesfield v. Pedley, 4 B. & Ad. 403.

1. That there is in principle no difference between the functions of the jury in finding a general verdict and when they find only the facts in a special verdict, is shown in Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, 199-201, where the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "In criminal cases, special pleading, technically admissible, has never been practised, and all trials, therefore, in which both law and fact are controverted, are had upon a general plea of 'not guilty,'" and the result is a conviction, if both the law and the fact are found against the accused, or an acquittal, if either is found in his favor. Both must be tried, that is, submitted fully and freely to the consideration of the appropriate tribunal appointed by law, to exercise its reason and judgment without control or restraint; but the result is one single response to both questions—"Is there such a law?"—"Has the defendant done the acts charged?"—and that response is expressed, and entered and placed on the record in due form, 'guilty' or 'not guilty.' We are then to look at the means by which these two questions are resolved by a single answer; through what intellectual processes of reason and judgment the elements of these two distinct questions must pass, in order to reach this one required result. Assuming it as the theory and fundamental principle of the common law, that the judge is to adjudicate the law, and the jury the fact, it follows that the mind of the judge should act freely and fully, and within the scope of its proper authority and province, finally and exclusively decide upon the question of law, and that the mind of the jury should act freely and fully, and within the scope of its authority and duty, definitely and exclusively, in deciding the truth of the fact; and this is to be done in one of two modes. By the one, the jury, in the exercise of their exclusive right, find the facts in detail, which can only be done in the form of a special verdict; and then the court in the exercise of their judgment, determine whether in law, under all the aspects in which these facts can be placed, they do bring the accused within the penal provisions, and the result is declared by the court, 'guilty' or 'not guilty.' But how is it if the plain, intelligible, and usual course is adopted by the return of a general verdict? Do not the same ingredients, in another form, enter into and compose the elements from which the same result is drawn? The judge directs the jury in all matters of law, at each step of the trial, as questions arise, and ultimately in its application to the facts of the case, if proved by the evidence submitted to them. As the judge cannot foresee how the jury will find the facts, until they have retired to consider of their verdict, these directions are of necessity hypothetical; if they find certain facts proved, he directs them that the law affixes to them a certain character, and so upon each material point of law, and then if they find so, the accused is guilty, if otherwise, not guilty, and that they are to return their verdict accordingly. The law presumes that every man will do his duty, more especially every man invested with a high power in the administration of justice; it will presume that both judges and jurors have done their duty. If they have, and it is within the province of the jury to adjudicate on the question of fact, and of the judge to adjudicate on the question of law, the general verdict of 'guilty' or 'not guilty,' is as full and complete an answer to the compound question of law and fact, each adjudged by its appropriate organ, as the like conviction pronounced by the judge after a special verdict. As the law presumes that each has done its appropriate duty, in case of a special verdict, the court cannot question the truth of any fact expressly found by the jury, or assume the existence and truth of any fact not so found, or draw any inferences of fact not drawn by the jury and expressed in the verdict. By parity of reasoning, the law presumes, in case of a general verdict, that the jury have understood and conformed to the directions of the judge in matters of law, and so, as before said, the general verdict in the latter is as full a response to the compound question. The difference is, that, in the former case, of a general verdict, the law, coming authoritatively from the rightful source, is first stated to the

of law as of fact, that may be involved in the case.¹ But it is jury for their government, is assumed to have its legitimate and proper effect, is by them combined with their own conclusive findings in matters of fact on the evidence, and so the combined result is effectually embodied in their verdict of conviction or acquittal."

1. See Montee v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 149; Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 477; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185; State v. Allen, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 525.

In Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "The result of these several rules and principles is, that, in practice, the verdict of a jury, both upon the law and fact, is conclusive; because, from the nature of the proceeding, there is no judicial power by which the conclusion of law thus brought upon the record by that verdict, can be reversed, set aside, or inquired into. A general verdict, either of conviction or acquittal, does embody and declare the result of both the law and the fact, and there is no mode of separating them on the record so as to ascertain whether the jury passed their judgment on the law, or only on the evidence. The law authorized them to adjudicate definitively on the evidence; the law presumes that they acted upon correct rules of law given them by the judge; the verdict, therefore, stands conclusive and unquestionable, in point both of law and fact. In a certain limited sense, therefore, it may be said that the jury have a power and a legal right to pass upon both the law and the fact. And this is sufficient to account for many and most of the dicta in which the proposition is stated. But it would be more accurate to state, that it is the right of the jury to return a general verdict; this draws after it, as a necessary consequence, that they incidentally pass upon the law. But here again is the question, what is intended by 'passing upon the law?' I think it is by embracing it in their verdict, and thus bringing it upon the record, with their finding of the facts. But does it follow that they may rightfully, and by authority of the common law, by which all are conscientiously bound to govern their conduct, proceed upon the same grounds and principles in the one case as the other?

What the jury have a right to do, and what are the grounds and principles upon which they are in duty and conscience bound to act and govern themselves in the exercise of that right, are two very distinct questions. The latter is the one we have to deal with. Suppose they have a right to find a general verdict, and by that verdict to conclude the prosecutor in the matter of law, still it is an open and very different question, whether, in making up that verdict and thereby embracing the law, they have the same right to exercise their own reason and judgment, against the statement of the law by the judge, to adjudicate on the law, as unquestionably they have on the fact. The affirmative of this proposition is maintained by the defendant in this case, and by others in many of the cases before us. If I am right in the assumption that the judge is to adjudicate the law, and the jury the fact only, it furnishes the answer to this question, to what extent the jury adjudicate the law; and it is, that they receive authoritative directions from the court, and act in conformity with them, though by their verdict they thus embrace the law with the fact, which they may rightfully adjudicate."

In Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263, 282, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "In every charge of crime, there must be a question of law and a question of fact, to-wit: Is there any such rule of law as that on which the indictment is founded? Has the defendant done the acts charged in the indictment, which amount to a violation of such rule of law, and constitute the offence charged? The decision of both of these is necessarily involved in a verdict of 'guilty' or 'not guilty.' The former affirms that there is such a law, and that the accused has violated it; the latter affirms, either that there is no such rule of law, or, if there is, that the accused has not done any acts which amount to a violation of it.

"How, then, are these two questions to be decided and combined into one, if one is to be referred exclusively to the court, and the other to the jury? The jury may, in any case, if they think fit, find a special verdict; that is, they may find and report, in the form of a verdict, all the material facts, which are proved to their satisfaction, and call not true that, in making up their verdict, they have a right to exercise their own reason and judgment, against the statement of, the law by the judge, and to adjudicate upon the legal questions involved.¹ The considerations that appear to prove this proposition may be briefly outlined.

To attain an understanding and mastery of the law in its fundamental principles, and in its comprehensive details, requires a long course of preparatory training, of profound study, and of active practice,² a preparation which is essential in order to decide matters of law, but which is not to be expected, nor perhaps desired,³ in juries. Questions of law often involve the utmost difficulty and delicacy, turning upon the abstruse but most necessary duty of judges, the interpretation of statutes. Connected with this are inquiries touching the ordinary and technical meaning of the language used, the preamble and other provisions of the same statute, all other statutes and parts of statutes on the same subject, the previous state of the common law, and the mischief upon the court to decide whether, in point of law, the accused is guilty or not guilty upon the facts thus found. But this is the privilege of the jury, which they may exercise or not, and in no case are they bound to find a special verdict. The question then recurs, in case the jury return a general verdict, how is the law to be decided by the court, when, as we have seen, it is to be declared by the jury, as involved in the general verdict? As both questions are involved in the verdict, the appearance on the record is that both are decided by the jury, because both are declared by them. But this is in appearance only, and can scarcely mislead those who are acquainted with the practice of courts of justice in criminal trials, though it has sometimes led to the argument, that because they must, in a general verdict, declare the rule of law on which it rests, they have a power to pass upon it and therefore a rightful authority to decide it. But we think the course of proceeding, in such case, is very clear, is quite consistent with the principle before stated, and is constantly practised upon in such trials. It is the only and proper course which can be adopted, in order that the law may be carried into effect, in its spirit and integrity. That course is, for the judge to direct the jury hypothetically, to declare what the law is, with its exceptions and qualifications, to explain it, and to state the reasons and grounds of it, if, in his judgment, such explanation is necessary to make it clearly intelligible to the minds of men of good judgment and common experience, but without legal knowledge and skill; then to state to the jury, that if certain facts necessary to constitute the offence, and which there is evidence tending to prove, are proved to their satisfaction, they are to find the defendant guilty; but if certain material facts, which there is some evidence tending to prove, are not proved to their satisfaction, they are to find the defendant not guilty."

1. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 208, quoted in preceding note.

2. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 235. But compare Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 284; State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 44.

3. See Harris' Before and at Trial (Am. ed.), c. 26, and note; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 191, where the court by Campbell, J., said: "It may fairly be regarded as one of the best features of the jury system that the law, though interpreted by professional interpreters, can only be applied to facts through the understandings of ordinary men of average capacity, and usually including in their number some very simple minds. By this process it is divested of all that would not be readily comprehended by all men. In this way over nicety and technicality becomes less dangerous, if not absolutely harmless; and an apparent deviation in the verdict from the rules laid down, is often no departure from the rules as supposed to be laid down."

intended to be suppressed,—all requisite in order to ascertain the true intent and meaning of the legislature in the specific enactment in question.¹ That juries possess neither the knowledge nor the training necessary for such duties, needs hardly to be said; and the argument becomes even stronger when it is considered that if juries are held to be judges of the law, they are, since the constitution is the law, judges also of the constitutionality of legislative acts.² This is a duty requiring the most accurate and complete knowledge of both the written and the unwritten law, and an equally thorough and practical knowledge of constitutional law, as derived from the statutes and constitutions of the United States and of the State in which the case arises, from the adjudications thereon, ancient and modern, and from the books of acknowledged authority in which this branch of the law is treated. Questions of constitutional law have taxed the minds of the most eminent statesmen and jurists from the adoption of the Federal

1. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 190.

2. Cool. Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 567; Callender's Case, Whart. St. Tr. 688, 710; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23; State v. Buckley, 40 Conn. 246; Lynch v. State, 9 Ind. 541; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 188; Com. v. Kneeland, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 227; Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 536, 551, 557, 561, 570-1. Contra, Franklin v. State, 12 Md. 236, 246, 249.

In U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23, the court by Curtis, J., said: "What is here insisted on, is that every jury impaneled in every court of the United States is the rightful and final judge of the existence, construction, and effect, of every law which may be material in the trial of any criminal case; and not only this, but that every such jury may, and, if it does its duty, must, decide finally, and without any possibility of a revision, upon the constitutional power of Congress to enact every statute of the United States which on such a trial may be brought in question. So that we should have . . . a vast number of courts having final jurisdiction over the same causes, arising under the same laws; and these courts chosen by lot among us, and selected by the marshal elsewhere, out of the body of the people with no reference to their qualifications to decide questions of law; not allowed to give any reasons for their decisions; . . . not sworn to decide the law nor even to support the Constitution of the United States; and yet possessing complete authority to determine that an act passed by the legislative department, with all the forms of legislation, is inoperative and invalid. The practical consequences of such a state of things are too serious to be lightly encountered; and, in my opinion, the Constitution did not design to create or recognize any such power."

In Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 188, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "We really can perceive no ground upon which the power of the jury to decide on the question of constitutionality can be distinguished, in principle, from the power to decide on any other question of law, involved in the verdict. Many criminal prosecutions are of such a nature, that they impose a duty on some department of the judicial authority to decide, whether a particular legislative enactment be consistent with, or repugnant to, the Constitution of the Commonwealth, or of the United States, and it must be definitely adjudged, on true and just principles, by either judge or jury."

In Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 570, the court by Parker, C. J., said: "Had the jury in this case been advised that the statute was unconstitutional, and the plaintiffs in error been acquitted, another jury in a subsequent case, on a similar state of the fact, and having similar advice, might, notwithstanding, rightfully convict them, having a different opinion upon the constitutional question. And it could never be settled, so far as the administration of criminal justice was concerned, whether the statute is or is not constitutional. For if a case were carried by error to Constitution to the present time.¹ And it may well be doubted, whether there be in the jury box any such inspiration as would enable twelve men of ordinary intelligence and training, and with no knowledge of the law, to determine per saltum grave questions requiring for their solution profound knowledge, patient study, and time for undisturbed reflection.² It is to be considered further, that decisions on points of law constitute precedents to be followed in all subsequent cases depending on the same facts and involving the same principles. This makes it necessary, not only that all decisions on matters of law should be made in the first instance by competent tribunals, but that they should be re-examinable in a single court of last resort.³ But if juries were judges of the law, there could be no such court, and no such uniformity of interpretation as is necessary in order to make the law known and certain. The decisions upon the law by juries would vary according to the tempers and capacities, the prejudices and passions of the individual jurors.⁴ Such decisions could furnish no fixed rules for future guidance; and similar cases arising afterwards might be decided in exactly the opposite way,⁵ bringing the Supreme Court of the United States, and that court should hold the law to be constitutional, that decision would be no more binding upon those who were rightful judges of the law, in each case, than the instructions of a judge presiding at the trial."

1. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 192, 193.

2. Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 553.

3. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 194; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23.

4. U. S. v. Battiste, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 243; Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 158, 159; Montee v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 151; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 280; Pennsylvania v. Bell, Add. (Pa.) 160.

In Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 151, 158-9, the court by Holman, J., said: "If juries were authorized to determine matters of law, their rules of decision, and consequently the rights of individuals, would necessarily be uncertain and fluctuating. They neither have, nor are presumed to have, a competent knowledge to decide according to any settled principles; and being so frequently succeeded by each other, it would be impossible, in any future time, to establish any permanent rules of decision. If the court decide contrary to law, the decision may be corrected in an appellate tribunal, and no matter how often an erroneous decision may be made in the same case, it can be as often set right by a reversal of the judgment. If the jury may decide the law, the court, it is true, may set aside the verdict; but as only two new trials can be granted to the same party, if three successive juries concur in an erroneous verdict, the evil is without a remedy. The most important controversies might thus be determined, contrary to the plainest principles of law, without a possibility of redress. Thus, the rights of individuals might be destroyed by the decision of men who were never presumed to know the law, and that, too, in the presence of a competent tribunal, fully aware of the injustice that was done, but without the power to prevent it. If the jury have a right to find a verdict contrary to the direction of the court, it would not only render the rules of decision uncertain, and the rights of individuals precarious, but it would also prostrate the dignity of the court; and would ultimately effect a material change, if not the destruction of this branch of the government."

In Montee v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 151, the court by Robertson, C. J., said: "If the court had no right to decide on the law, error, confusion, uncertainty, and licentiousness would characterize the criminal trials; and the safety of the accused might be as much endangered as the stability of public justice would certainly be." See to the same effect Pennsylvania v. Bell, Add. (Pa.) 160.

5. Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 570. In about that greatest of all evils, a jus vagum.¹ As juries are totally irresponsible bodies, giving no reason for their decisions, and subject neither to impeachment nor to attain², there would be no restraint upon any vagaries they might see fit to adopt; they could disregard with impunity constitutional provisions, statutes, the instructions of the court, and the plainest principles of justice. Or supposing the jury to arrive conscientiously at a view of the law different from that laid down in the instructions of the court, there would arise, if the court still retained the right to set the verdict aside, this anomaly, viz., that it would be the duty of the jury to bring in a verdict which it would be the duty of the judge immediately to annul.³ It can hardly be maintained that such a conflict of duties could arise from the consistent principles of the law.⁴

this case, the court by Parker, C. J., said: "If any further matter is necessary to show that the jury have not and ought not to possess this right, it is found . . . in the uncertainty which must attend the administration of criminal justice, under the present organization of our courts, if such a principle were admitted. If one jury may so judge, all may. The decisions of one jury furnish no rule for the action of another. This is so as a matter of fact, and would be equally so in matter of law. No person could know what the criminal law was, for one jury might lawfully convict, even the same individual, upon a similar state of the fact, and under the same statute, upon which another had acquitted him."

1. Misera est servitus ubi jus est vagum aut incertum. Broom's Leg. Max. (8th Am. ed.) *150; Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 552.

2. Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 553; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 191. In this case, the court by Campbell, J., said: "It is necessary, for public and private safety, that the law shall be known and certain, and shall not depend on each jury that tries a cause. And the interpretation of the law can have no permanency or uniformity, and cannot become generally known, except through the action of the courts. . . . If the court is to have no voice in laying down these rules, it is obvious that there can be no security whatever, either that the innocent may not be condemned, or that society will have any defence against the guilty. A jury may disregard a statute just as freely as any other rule. A fair trial in time of excitement would be almost impossible. All the mischief of ex post facto laws would be done by tribunals and authorities wholly irresponsible, and there would be no method of enforcing with effect many of our most important constitutional and legal safeguards against injustice. Parties charged with crime need the protection of the law against unjust convictions, quite as often as the public needs it against groundless acquittals. Neither can be safe without having the rules of law defined and preserved and beyond the mere discretion of any one."

3. Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 569.

4. See Duffy v. People, 26 N. Y. 591, where the court by Selden, J., gives a summary of the arguments against the doctrine that jurors are the judges of the law, as follows:—

"1. The selection of jurors from all classes of the people whose education and business cannot, as a general rule, have qualified them to decide legal questions, renders it unreasonable as well as apparently unsafe to require them to pass upon such questions.

"2. If jurors were to determine the law, its stability would be subverted, and it would become 'as variable as the prejudices, the inclinations, and the passions of men.' Every case would be governed, not by any known or established rule, but by a rule made for the occasion. Jurors would become not only judges, but legislators as well.

"3. All questions in regard to the admission or rejection of evidence, being questions of law, are required to be decided by the court. If jurors are to decide law and fact, their jurisdiction should extend to these questions, which often control the verdict.

The above view of the question in the light of principle, is supported strongly by the fact, that, according to the better opinion, juries were not allowed at common law to decide any legal questions whatever. The maxim ad quaestionem facti non respondent iudices, ad quaestionem legis non respondent juratores,¹ which occurs frequently in the old books, expresses the doctrine in the form in which, according to the weight of opinion, it seems to have prevailed historically at common law. This view is supported by many of the authorities already cited, and by those in the note below.² The maxim that juries are judges of the law was, in the opinion of a learned author,³ a kind of legal fiction, introduced to secure the independence of jurors. Previously they were liable to punishment by attain, if they took upon themselves to return a general verdict that, in the opinion of the judges, was erroneous in point of law.⁴ But under the view that they were judges of the law, they could no longer be punishable, for a judge is not subject to punishment for rendering a mistaken decision.⁵ Since a leading case⁶ decided in 1670, it has been well settled that

"4. Where the jury finds the facts of a case by special verdict, if they also find a conclusion of law different from that which the law would derive from the same facts, the court disregards the conclusion, and gives judgment according to the facts found.

"5. If the jury find a verdict in a civil case against law, the court sets it aside. That the same is not done in criminal cases, is owing, I think, more to the tenderness of the common law toward persons accused of crime than to any recognized right of jurors to decide legal questions.

"6. In all cases, civil and criminal, where only legal questions are raised, as by demurrers to pleadings, demurrers to evidence, special verdicts, bills of exceptions, and motions in arrest of judgment, such questions are decided by the court and not by the jury.

"7. The fact of guilt being ascertained and declared by the jury, the court determines the punishment which the law prescribes for the offence."

And see on the other side, 8 Alb. L. J. 201-4.

1. See Broom's Leg. Max. (8th Am. ed.) 101; Best's Ev. (Am. ed.), § 82; Co. Litt. 155 b, 226 a, 295 b; 8 Co. 155 a, 9 Co. 13 a, 25 a; 11 Co. 10 b; Bishop of Meath v. Marquess of Winchester, 3 Bing. N. Cas. 217; 32 E. C. L. 90; 4 Cl. & F. 557; Bushell's Case, Vaugh. 135, 149; 6 How. St. Tr. 999; Fernie v. Young, L. R. 1 H. L. 78.

2. 3 Wynne's Eunomus, § 53; Hargrave's note, 1 Inst. 155 b; Nalson's Collection of State Papers, 575, 582; Bushell's Case, Vaugh. 135; 6 How. St. Tr. 999; Rex v. Poole, Lee temp. Hard. 28; Rex v. Dean of St. Asaph, 3 T. R. 428, note; Rex v. Withers, 3 T. R. 428; Rex v. Woodfall, 5 Burr. 2661; Levi v. Milne, 4 Bing. 195, per Best, C. J.; 13 E. C. L. 396; 12 Moo. C. P. 418; Rex v. Burdett, 4 B. & Ald. 131, 132; 6 E. C. L. 419, 420; Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M. & W. 108; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23; Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 151, 157-8; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 193-4, 202-6, 219; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 173; Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 536; People v. Croswell, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 337, per Lewis, C. J.; State v. Allen, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 523; State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14, per Bennett, J.

3. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2135.

4. Co. Litt. 155 b, 228 a; 3 Bl. Com. *378; 4 Bl. Com. *361.

5. JUDGE, vol. 12, p. 32.

6. Bushell's Case, Vaugh. 135; 6 How. St. Tr. 999. This case was as follows: In 1670, William Penn and George Mead were tried before the Recorder of London under an indictment for seditiously preaching to a crowd. The jury were charged that the court was the sole judge of the question of sedition, and that all they had to do was to find whether the defendants had preached or not. As this fact was not denied, the instruction virtually di-jurors are not subject to any penalty whatever, even for the most erroneous verdict.¹ And it would seem, in consequence, that whatever practical utility the view that jurors are judges of the law may have once possessed, has long since become obsolete.

A modified aspect in which it is sometimes said that juries are judges of the law arises out of the second question propounded above: "Have juries the power (though not the right) to judge the law in criminal cases?" It is conceded that juries may, in their discretion, render a general verdict. Does not this confer on them the power, at least, whether it be exercised well or ill, to determine not only the facts, but also the law of the case? In reply to this question, it may be said, in the negative, that the power is, in one case, subject to be annulled, viz., where, contrary to the opinion or instructions of the court upon the law, the jury return a verdict of guilty. In this instance, the verdict may be set aside, and in practice pretty certainly will be. The power to take a view of the law which is subject, if erroneous, to instant reversal, is not a power to judge the law. If it be replied that the opinion of the lower courts, which have undoubted power to judge the law, is also liable to be reversed in the appellate court, the answer is that such judgment, until reversed, is a valid and binding adjudication upon the law, so that execution, unless stayed by super-sedeas, may be issued upon it; while a decision of a jury which mistakes the law, being immediately swept aside, is practically a mere nullity. On the other hand, where the jury acquit the prisoner, although, in arriving at the verdict, they may have disregarded both the evidence before them, and the law as set forth by the court, the result is final. The verdict cannot, unless so authorized by statute, be set aside or reversed and the accused brought to trial again;² nor can the jury be punrected that the jury find for the crown. But they acquitted the prisoners, and the court, considering it as a contempt, imposed a fine of forty marks on each of the jurors. One of them, Edward Bushell, refused to pay the fine, and on being arrested therefor, sued out a writ of habeas corpus before Chief Justice Vaughan, of the Court of Common Pleas, who, without hesitation, discharged him from the imprisonment on the ground that it was illegal and arbitrary.

1. See supra, p. 607, note 2.

2. 4 Bl. Com. 361-2; 1 Chit. Cr. L. (5th Am. ed.) §657; 1 Bishop's Cr. L. (7th ed.), §992; 1 Bishop's Cr. Pro. (3d ed.), §1272; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 394; Rex v. Reynell, 6 East 315; 2 J. P. Smith 406; Rex v. Bear, 1 Salk. 646; Rex v. Challicombe, 6 Jur. 481; Rex v. Praed, 4 Burr. 2257; Anonymous, Lofft 451; Rex v. Read, 1

Lev. 9; Rex v. Jackson, 1 Lev. 124; Rex v. Cohen, 1 Stark. 516; 2 E. C. L. 197; Rex v. Silvertown, 1 Wils. 298; Rex v. Merchant, 2 Keb. 409; Rex v. Fenwick, 1 Sid. 153; Rex v. Lea, 2 M. C. C. 9; Rex v. Mann, 4 M. & S. 337; Rex v. Burbon, 5 M. & S. 392; Rex v. Brice, 1 Chit. 352; 18 E. C. L. 105; Rex v. Furser, Say. 90; Rex v. Wandsworth, 1 B. & Ald. 63; 2 Chit. 282; 18 E. C. L. 337; Rex v. Chigwell, 1 B. & Ald. 67; Rex v. Sutton, 5 B. & Ad. 52; 2 N. & M. 57; 27 E. C. L. 31; Rex v. Jones, 8 Mod. 201; Rex v. Davis, 12 Mod. 9; 1 Show. 336; Rex v. Russell, 3 E. & B. 942; 77 E. C. L. 942; 26 Eng. L. & Eq. 230; U. S. v. Gilbert, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 19; Nonemaker v. State, 34 Ala. 211; State v. Hicklin, 5 Ark. 190; State v. Hand, 6 Ark. 169; State v. Denton, 6 Ark. 259; Jones v. State, 15 Ark. 261; State v. Goff, 20 Ark. 289; People v. Webb, 38 Cal. 467; People v. Bange-

ished;¹ nor, in fact, is any one at liberty to allege or assume that they have disregarded the law, because, since they give no reason for their verdict, the precise grounds for it can never be legally known, and it is always presumable that it was given in favor of the accused because the evidence was insufficient.²

Here, then, the decision of the jury upon the law seems to be final.³ But this power of the jury is in no proper sense a power to decide legal questions. It is, as a learned writer well expresses it, a power to set aside the law, and not a power to judge the neur, 40 Cal. 613; Hannaball v. Spalding, 1 Root (Conn.) 86; State v. Brown, 16 Conn. 54; State v. Jones, 7 Ga. 422; State v. Lavinia, 25 Ga. 311; Black v. State, 36 Ga. 447; People v. Dill, 2 Ill. 257; People v. Royal, 2 Ill. 557; Martin v. People, 13 Ill. 341; State v. Davis, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 345; State v. Dark, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 526; State v. Johnson, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 533; State v. Daily, 6 Ind. 9; State v. Douglass, 1 Greene (Iowa) 550; State v. Johnson, 2 Iowa 549; State v. Certain Intoxicating Liquors, 40 Iowa 95; State v. Kinney, 44 Iowa 444; State v. Carmichael, 3 Kan. 102; Olathe v. Adams, 15 Kan. 391; Oswego v. Belt, 16 Kan. 480; State v. Crosby, 17 Kan. 396; State v. Phillips, 33 Kan. 100; Com. v. Sanford, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 289; Com. v. Jefferson, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 313; Com. v. Thompson, 13 B. Mon. (Ky.) 159; Com. v. Van Tuyl, 1 Metc. (Ky.) 1; Com. v. Anthony, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 399; Terrell v. Com., 13 Bush (Ky.) 246; State v. Upton, 5 La. Ann. 438; State v. Rentiford, 14 La. Ann. 211; State v. Cason, 20 La. Ann. 48; Com. v. Cummings, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 212; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185; State v. McGrorty, 2 Minn. 224; State v. Anderson, 3 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 751; State v. Heatherly, 4 Mo. 478; State v. Spear, 6 Mo. 644; State v. Carroll, 7 Mo. 286; State v. Rowe, 22 Mo. 328; State v. De Hart, 7 N. J. L. 172; State v. Kanouse, 20 N. J. L. 115; People v. Mather, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 229; 21 Am. Dec. 122; People v. Comstock, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 549; Paige v. People, 3 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 439; People v. Corning, 2 N. Y. 9; 49 Am. Dec. 364; People v. Merrill, 14 N. Y. 78; People v. Nestle, 19 N. Y. 583; People v. Bork, 78 N. Y. 346; People v. Tarbox, 30 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 320; People v. Dempsey, 31 Hun (N. Y.) 526; 66 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 371; State v. Jones, 1 Murph. (N. Car.) 257; State v. Taylor, 1 Hawks (N. Car.) 462; State v. Martin, 3 Hawks (N. Car.) 381; State v.

Credle, 63 N. Car. 506; State v. Phillips, 66 N. Car. 646; State v. Freeman, 66 N. Car. 647; State v. West, 71 N. Car. 263; State v. Lane, 78 N. Car. 547; State v. Brown, 5 Oregon 119; State v. Lee, 10 R. 1. 494; Steel v. Roach, 1 Bay (S. Car.) 63; State v. Riely, 2 Brev. (S. Car.) 444; State v. Wright, 3 Brev. (S. Car.) 421; Treadw. Const. (S. Car.) 517; State v. McKee, 1 Bailey (S. Car.) 651; State v. Nicholas, 2 Strobb. (S. Car.) 278; State v. Reynolds, 4 Hayw. (Tenn.) 110; State v. Fields, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 137; State v. Norvell, 2 Yerg. (Tenn.) 24; State v. Tolls, 5 Yerg. (Tenn.) 363; State v. Solomons, 6 Yerg. (Tenn.) 360; 27 Am. Dec. 469; Slaughter v. State, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 410; Esmon v. State, 1 Swan (Tenn.) 14; State v. Burris, 3 Tex. 118; State v. Daugherty, 5 Tex. 1; State v. Manning, 14 Tex. 402; Temple v. Com., 1 Va. Cas. 163; Com. v. Harrison, 2 Va. Cas. 202; Com. v. Scott, 10 Gratt. (Va.) 749; State v. Kittle, 2 Tyler (Vt.) 471; U. S. v. Salter, 1 Pin. (Wis.) 278; State v. Kemp, 17 Wis. 669. And see JEOPARDY, vol. 11, p. 926.

1. 4 Bl. Com. (Cooley's 3d ed.) *361, note 14; Bushell's Case, Vaugh. 135; 6 How. St. Tr. 999; Groenwelt v. Burwell, 1 Ld. Raym. 454; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, 198, 209, et seq.

2. Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th. ed.) 394; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 200, 201; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 189, 190.

3. People v. Croswell, 3 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 337; Montgomery v. Ohio, 11 Ohio 424; State v. Wilkinson, 2 Vt. 480.

In Montgomery v. Ohio, 11 Ohio 424, the court by Birchard, J., said: "The court were asked to charge that the jury were judges of the law and facts. The court refused to instruct in this form; but said the jury had the power, and, if they chose to exert it, the right to determine all questions of law and law.¹ And the fact, that in such a case juries can, without fear of punishment, disregard their moral duty and the obligation of their oaths, does not alter the nature of the question.²

It should be added that there is still another sense in which it is sometimes loosely said, that juries are the judges of the law, viz., in consequence of the power which they sometimes have of applying the law to the facts. As in cases where the facts are undisputed, or are found by the jury in a special verdict, the court has the duty not only of determining the law, but of applying it to the facts;³ so in the case where a mixed question fact, so far as to acquit, and if they did so, there was no power to correct any error committed by them in such acquittal, and that they were not exclusive judges of both law and fact, as a general rule, in criminal prosecutions; for, if they found the accused guilty, and it turned out that their finding was illegal, they had no power, but the court had, to set aside their verdict and grant a new trial. In this refusal to instruct, as requested, and in the instruction given, it is alleged there was error. It does not, however, appear to us that there was anything erroneous which could prejudice the rights of the plaintiff. We are aware that in some parts of the State, an opinion prevails that in all criminal trials the jury have a right, independent of the directions of the court, to determine as well the law of a case as the facts. By the last clause of § 6 of art. 8 of the constitution of this State, it is declared that 'in all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases.' It would seem from this, that the framers of our bill of rights, did not imagine that juries were rightfully judges of law and fact in criminal cases, independently of the directions of courts. Their right to judge of the law, is a right to be exercised only under the direction of the court; and, if they go aside from that direction and determine the law incorrectly, they depart from their duty and commit a public wrong; and this in criminal, as well as in civil cases."

1. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2133, where the author expresses the opinion that this power in cases of hardship to prevent the rigid application of the law, is one of the grounds for the public esteem in which jury trial has ever been held.

2. See Lord Mansfield's remarks in Rex v. Dean of St. Asaph, 3 T. R. 431: "Every species of criminal prosecution has something peculiar in the mode of procedure; therefore, general propositions, applied to all, tend only to complicate and confound the question. No deduction or conclusion can be drawn from what a jury may do from the form of the procedure, to what they ought to do upon the fundamental principles of the constitution and the reason of the thing, if they will act with integrity and a good conscience. The fundamental definition of trials by jury, depends upon an universal maxim, without an exception, ad questionem facti, etc. Where the question can be severed by the form of the pleadings, the distinction is preserved upon the face of the record, and the jury cannot encroach upon the jurisdiction of the court. But where, by the form of the pleadings, the two questions are blended together and cannot be separated upon the face of the record, the distinction is preserved by the honesty of the jury. . . . It is the duty of the judge, in all cases upon general issues, to tell the jury how to do right, though they have it in their power to do wrong."

3. 2 Thomp. Tr., §§ 1030, 2242, et seq.; Porter v. Havens, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 343; People v. Bennett, 49 N. Y. 141, 142; Powell v. Powell, 23 Mo. App. 365; U. S. v. Taylor, 3 McCrary (U. S.) 585; 11 Fed. Rep. 470, 474. In this case, the court by McCrary, J., said: "It is now well settled in the Federal Courts that in civil cases, where the facts are undisputed and the case turns upon questions of law, the court may direct a verdict in accordance with its opinion of the law. . . . It would be a useless form for a court to submit a civil case involving only questions of law to the consideration of a jury, where the verdict, when found, if not in accordance with the court's view of the law, would be set aside." Although the above remark is not true of criminal cases, the statement in the text is not thereby of law and fact is submitted to a jury under the instructions of the court, the jury, in addition to deciding the facts, have the function likewise of applying the law to the facts; and, in the latter case, it is sometimes said that this function constitutes them judges of the law.¹ But that this is erroneous may be readily shown:—

It has frequently been remarked that a legal proceeding resembles a syllogism in logic, the law as declared by the judge constituting the major premise, and the facts found by the jury forming the minor.² But, by the definition of a syllogism, where the premises are laid down, the conclusion at once follows of necessity,³—so much so, that it has been maintained by high authority that a logical reasoning is one organic whole, comprising only a single movement of the mind.⁴ This being so, where the facts and the law are ascertained, the conclusion, no matter by whom drawn, must follow with absolute certainty. The so-called application of the law to the facts, whether made by judge or jury, amounts simply to pronouncing the conclusion that must follow incontestably from a major premise of law and a minor premise of fact. Any difficulty that appears to arise in applying the law to the facts will be found, on analysis, to arise either from the law not being well settled, or the facts not being clearly ascertained. To take a familiar example,⁵ a statute⁶ makes it a felony to steal "sheep or other cattle." A man steals a cow; and the question arises, "Is he guilty under the statute or not?" It will be readily seen that the difficulty here lies in the question, "Do the words 'other cattle' in a penal statute include cows?" and that, this question being a question of law, the difficulty lies, not in the application of the law to the facts, but in the ascertainment of the law. With far greater frequency the difficulty consists in determining the facts. But it is submitted that after the facts are affected; for in criminal cases the question is regulated by constitutional provisions, securing trial by jury in all such cases without exception, so that it cannot be waived even by the prisoner himself. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2149; State v. Maine, 27 Conn. 261. And see U. S. v. Anthony, 11 Blatchf. (U. S.) 200, holding that even in criminal cases the court may, where the facts are undisputed, direct a verdict of guilty. And compare Theel v. Com. (Pa., 1888.), 12 Atl. Rep. 148.

1. U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23; Pleasant v. State, 13 Ark. 360; Sweeney v. State, 35 Ark. 585.

2. See Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, per Shaw, C. J.

3. Compare Whately's Elements of Logic, bk. 2, c. 3, § 1; Aristotle's Prior Analytics, bk. 1, c. 1; Aristotle's Topics, bk. 1, c. 1; and the rendering (by Aulus Gellius, XV. 26) of Aristotle's definition of a syllogism: "Oratio in qua, consensus quibusdam et concessis, aliud quid quam quæ concessa sunt, per ea quæ concessa sunt, necessario conficitur."

4. "Though, when expressed in language, it be necessary to analyze a reasoning into parts, and to state these parts one after another, it is not to be supposed that in thought one notion, one proposition, is known before or after another; for, in consciousness, the three notions and their reciprocal relations constitute only one identical and simultaneous cognition." Sir William Hamilton's Lectures (Blackwood's ed.), vol. 3, p. 276; Lecture 15 (on Logic).

5. 1 Bl. Com. 88.

6. 14 Geo. II., c. 6.

determined by the jury, and the law is declared by the court, the mere power that the jury has, in cases where they render a general verdict, of pronouncing the inevitable conclusion, does not constitute them in any sense judges of the law. If it be said that the jury may, with impunity, adopt the wrong conclusion, and bring in a verdict of acquittal contrary both to the evidence and to the instructions of the court, the reply is, as before, that this is a power rather to set aside than to judge the law; and as it must be assumed that every man concerned in the administration of justice will do his duty,¹ no argument can be drawn from the fact that either judges or juries sometimes disregard it.

The prevailing doctrine, then, except in certain jurisdictions,² is that, the province of the jury being only to determine questions of fact, they have no power to decide any question of law whatever, arising in the course of a trial, and far less questions of constitutional law.³ Questions of law are decided ex officio by the

1. Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 394; Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, where the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "The law presumes that every man will do his duty, more especially every man invested with a high power in the administration of justice; it will presume that both judges and juries have done their duty."

2. See post, p. 616, note 3.

3. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2133; Co. Litt. 155-6; Fost. Cr. L. 255-6; Willion v. Berkley, Plowd. 223; Grendon v. Bishop of Lincoln, Plowd. 493; Rex v. Oneby, 2 Str. 766, per Raymond, C. J.; Rex v. Dean of St. Asaph, 3 T. R. 428; Parmiter v. Coupland, 6 M. & W. 165; Levi v. Milne, 4 Bing. 195; 13 E. C. L. 396; U. S. v. Battiste, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 240; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23; U. S. v. Watkins, 3 Cranch (C. C.) 441; U. S. v. Fenwick, 4 Cranch (C. C.) 675; U. S. v. Greathouse, 4 Sawy. (U. S.) 457; 2 Abb. (U. S.) 364; U. S. v. Keller, 19 Fed. Rep. 633; U. S. v. Riley, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 204; Pierson v. State, 12 Ala. 149; Batre v. State, 18 Ala. 119; Washington v. State, 63 Ala. 135; 35 Am. Rep. 8; Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 156; State v. Miller, 53 Iowa 156; State v. Wright, 53 Me. 328; Massey v. Tingle, 29 Mo. 437; Pierce v. State, 13 N. H. 536; Carpenter v. People, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 610; People v. Upton, 38 Hun (N. Y.) 107; People v. Bennett, 49 N. Y. 137; Robbins v. State, 8 Ohio St. 166, 167; and see authorities in note 4, p. 614. Contra, U. S. v. Wilson, 1 Baldw. (U. S.) 78.

In U. S. v. Battiste, 2 Sumn. (U. S.)

243, 244, the court by Story, J., said: "My opinion is, that the jury are no more judges of the law in a capital or other criminal case, upon the plea of not guilty, than they are in every civil case, tried upon the general issue. In each of these cases, their verdict, when general, is necessarily compounded of law and of fact; and includes both. In each they must necessarily determine the law, as well as the fact. In each, they have the physical power to disregard the law, as laid down to them by the court. But I deny, that, in any case, civil or criminal, they have the moral right to decide the law according to their own notions, or pleasure. On the contrary, I hold it the most sacred constitutional right of every party accused of a crime, that the jury should respond as to the facts, and the court as to the law. It is the duty of the court to instruct the jury as to the law; and it is the duty of the jury to follow the law, as it is laid down by the court. This is the right of every citizen; and it is his only protection. If the jury were at liberty to settle the law for themselves, the effect would be, not only that the law itself would be most uncertain, from the different views which different juries might take of it; but in case of error, there would be no remedy or redress by the injured party; for the court would not have any right to review the law, as it had been settled by the jury. Indeed, it would be almost impracticable to ascertain what the law, as settled by the jury, actually was. On the contrary, if the court should err, in laying down the law to judge,¹ who is bound, upon the request of either party, to instruct the jury upon the law of the case,² and cannot, either in civil or in criminal cases, submit to the jury, in instructing them, a question of law for their decision.³ In his instructions to the jury, the judge presents his views of the law as authority, and not as matter to be submitted to their review; and the jury are bound to accept the law as laid down by the court, and to govern themselves thereby in their decision.⁴ Hence, the jury have no right to the jury, there is an adequate remedy for the injured party, by a motion for a new trial, or, a writ of error, as the nature of the jurisdiction of the particular court may require. Every person accused as a criminal has a right to be tried according to the law of the land, the fixed law of the land; and not by the law as a jury may understand it, or choose, from wantonness, or ignorance, or accidental mistake, to interpret it. If I thought, that the jury were the proper judges of the law in criminal cases, I should hold it my duty to abstain from the responsibility of stating the law to them upon any such trial. But believing, as I do, that every citizen has a right to be tried by the law, and according to the law; that it is his privilege and truest shield against oppression and wrong; I feel it my duty to state my views fully and openly on the present occasion."

In U. S. v. Greathouse, 4 Sawy. (U. S.) 464; 2 Abb. (U. S.) 364; the court by Field, J., said: "There prevails a very general, but erroneous opinion that in all criminal cases, the jury are the judges as well of the law as of the fact,—that is, that they have a right to disregard the law as laid down by the court, and to follow their own notions on the subject. Such is not the right of the jury. They have the power, it is true, to disregard the instructions of the court, and in case of acquittal their decision will be final, for new trials are not granted in criminal cases where a verdict is passed in favor of the defendant; but they have no moral right to adopt their own views of the law. It is their duty to take the law from the court and apply it to the facts of the case. It is the province of the court, and of the court alone, to determine all questions of law arising in the progress of a trial; and it is the province of the jury to pass upon the evidence and determine all contested questions of fact. The responsibility of deciding correctly as to the law rests solely with the court, and the responsibility of finding correctly the facts rests solely with the jury. The separation of the functions of the court from those of the jury, in this respect, is essential to the efficacy and safety of jury trials. Any other doctrine would lead only to confusion and uncertainty in the administration of justice. . . . You will, therefore, in this case, gentlemen, take the law from the court, and follow it. If the court err, the responsibility will not be shared by you."

1. See supra the title, Pure Questions of Law for the Judge; Sweeney v. State, 35 Ark. 601.

2. See INSTRUCTIONS, vol. 11, p. 251; Smith v. Carrington, 4 Cranch (U. S.) 62; Livingston v. Maryland Ins. Co., 7 Cranch (U. S.) 544; Pennock v. Dialogue, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 15, 16; Washington v. State, 63 Ala. 135; 35 Am. Rep. 8; Taylor v. Hillyer, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 433; Montee v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 150; Coffin v. Coffin, 4 Mass. 25; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 286; Zabriskie v. Smith, 13 N. Y. 338; Foster v. People, 50 N. Y. 601; Chapman v. McCormick, 86 N. Y. 479; Kendrick v. Cisco, 13 Lea (Tenn.) 247; Nels v. State, 2 Tex. 280; Souther v. State, 18 Tex. App. 352; Washburn v. Tracy, 2 D. Chip. (Vt.) 128; Fletcher v. Howard, 2 Aik. (Vt.) 115; State v. Wilner, 40 Wis. 306; Wheeler v. Konst, 46 Wis. 398; Connors v. State, 47 Wis. 528; Campbell v. Campbell, 54 Wis. 98; Sailer v. Barnousky, 60 Wis. 169.

3. Remon v. Hayward, 2 A. & E. 666; 29 E. C. L. 173; U. S. v. Carlton, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 400; Thomas v. Thomas, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178; Ragan v. Gaither, 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 472; Com. v. Davis, 11 Gray (Mass.) 4; Fugate v. Carter, 6 Mo. 267; Newman v. Lawless, 6 Mo. 279; Hickey v. Ryan, 15 Mo. 63; Valle v. Cerre, 36 Mo. 575; Glacius v. Black, 67 N. Y. 563; Green v. Hill, 4 Tex. 465; Keen v. Monroe, 75 Va. 427. Contra, Bavlis v. Lawrence, 11 A. & E. 920; 39 E. C. L. 270.

4. Rex v. Burdett, 4 B. & Ald. 95; 6 E. C. L. 404; U. S. v. Anthony, 11

undertake in the jury room an independent investigation of the law of the case, and it is error in both civil and criminal cases to allow them to take law books—even the statute book of their State—to their room for that purpose.¹

Blatchf. (U. S.) 211; Batre v. State, 18 Ala. 119; Pleasant v. State, 13 Ark. 360; Winkler v. State, 32 Ark. 539; Robinson v. State, 33 Ark. 180; Sweeney v. State, 35 Ark. 585; People v. Anderson, 44 Cal. 65; Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 151; Williams v. State, 10 Ind. 503; Sowerwein v. Jones, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 335; Bell v. State, 57 Md. 120; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Boyd, 67 Md. 32; Com. v. Blanding, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 305; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 286; Com. v. Rock, 10 Gray (Mass.) 4; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 192; People v. Mortimer, 48 Mich. 38; People v. Waldvogel, 49 Mich. 337; State v. Rheams, 34 Minn. 18; Williams v. State, 32 Miss. 389; Hardy v. State, 7 Mo. 607; Parrish v. State, 14 Neb. 60; Lord v. State, 16 N. H. 325; 41 Am. Dec. 729; People v. Pine, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 566; New York F. Ins. Co. v. Walden, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 513; Duffy v. People, 26 N. Y. 588; People v. Bennett, 49 N. Y. 137; Montgomery v. Ohio, 11 Ohio 427; Robbins v. State, 8 Ohio St. 166, 167; Adams v. State, 29 Ohio St. 412; Pennsylvania v. Bell, Add. (Pa.) 156; State v. Drawdy, 14 Rich. (S. Car.) 87; Nels v. State, 2 Tex. 280. Contra, Patterson v. State, 7 Ark. 59.

Hence it is error for the judge to instruct the jury in a criminal case that they are the exclusive and paramount judges of all questions of both law and fact, arising in the case. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185; Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 173. And see Hardy v. State, 7 Mo. 607. But contra in those jurisdictions where juries are held to be judges of both law and facts. See infra, p. 616, note 3.

1. Burrows v. Unwin, 3 C. & P. 310; 14 E. C. L. 322; Graves v. State, 63 Ga. 740; Newkirk v. State, 27 Ind. 1; State v. Gunter, 30 La. Ann. 539; State v. Nelson, 32 La. Ann. 842; State v. Harris, 34 La. Ann. 118; State v. Kimball, 50 Me. 409; Merrill v. Nary, 10 Allen (Mass.) 416; Barker v. Pool, 6 Mo. 260; Harrison v. Hance, 37 Mo. 185, partly overruling Hardy v. State, 7 Mo. 607; State v. Hopper, 71 Mo. 425; People v. Hartung, 4 Park. Cr. Rep. (N. Y.) 256; Wilson v. People, 4

Park. Cr. Rep. (N. Y.) 632; People v. Gaffney, 14 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 36; Gandolpho v. State, 11 Ohio St. 114; State v. Smith, 6 R. I. 33; Loew v. State, 60 Wis. 559. And see JURY AND JURY TRIAL, vol. 12, pp. 376-7; 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2586.

In Burrows v. Unwin, 3 C. & P. 310; 14 E. C. L. 322; the jury, after retiring, sent to the court, desiring to have Selwyn's Nisi Prius supplied them. But Lord Tenderden, C. J., although no objection was made by counsel on either side, refused to send the books, saying: "The regular way is for the jury to come into court and state their question, and receive the law from the court; and for the sake of precedent, that course should be adopted now."

In State v. Kimball, 50 Me. 409, the court by Tenney, C. J., said: "It is the duty of the judge to give the principles of law, which he regards as applicable to the facts, as the jury may find them.

... But a party has not the right to require the judge to furnish the statutes for the jury, and allow them therefrom to ascertain the law and judge of its applicability to the facts presented. The construction of statutes is often much aided by general principles, not laid down therein, and can only be known by careful study of elementary treatises and reports of decisions, requiring much and long labor. The simple statement of the defendant's proposition upon this point cannot fail to impress the mind, well informed on legal subjects, with its utter impracticability, uncertainty, danger and absurdity."

In Merrill v. Nary, 10 Allen (Mass.) 416, the court by Bigelow, C. J., said: "These important ends cannot be surely attained, unless the advice and direction of the court on all questions of law arising in the course of a trial by jury, are given in open court, and suitable precautions are taken in order to prevent the minds of jurors from being instructed or influenced by information or knowledge derived from other sources. If this course is not taken and strictly adhered to, there would be no safety in the ordinary presumption that the instructions of the court are

A consequence of this doctrine is, that the judge in every criminal trial has the right, whether requested or not, to instruct the jury upon the law of the case.¹ This is true, even where the jury are by law made express judges (for example, in prosecutions for libel) of the law and the facts. But even here, so it has been held, an erroneous instruction may be prejudicial, although the court charge the jury that the instructions given are advisory only, that they are not bound to follow them, and that they have the right to determine both the law and fact.²

But to the above general conclusions, exceptions exist in various States, in which, by statute or otherwise, juries have been made judges of the law either in criminal cases generally, or in prosecutions for libel.³

fully understood and properly applied by the jury. On the contrary, it would be quite as reasonable to suppose that they acted on views and opinions derived from other sources concerning matters of law involved in an issue submitted to them, as that they followed those which they received in the instructions of the court. The practical result would be, that, although the law might be laid down with precision and accuracy by the court, there could be no certainty that the rules prescribed would be acted on by the jury, and parties would be deprived of the right to know the principles on which their cases had been determined, and the privilege of obtaining a revision of them, if they were erroneous or mistakenly applied. . . . Every one familiar with the practice of the law and the administration of justice, in our courts, knows that cases not unfrequently turn on nice distinctions, and that the most simple and common rules of law are difficult of application, and that it often requires careful study, nice discrimination, and a well instructed mind, to perceive the distinctions on which the decision of cases depends. Certainly they cannot be apprehended in the brief time allotted to the deliberations of the jury room. Indeed, we know of no method that could be adopted which would more effectually tend to confuse the minds of jurors, and to mislead them in the proper discharge of their duty, than to permit them to read or refer to law books during their consultations for the purpose of ascertaining the rules of law which were applicable to the cases which are submitted for their determination. Nor are we able to see that there would be any difference in this respect whether the books which they were allowed to read were treatises, or books of reports, or volumes of statutes. The latter are often quite as difficult to interpret and apply as are the rules and principles contained in the former."

But, contra, it has been held that, under certain circumstances, it is not error for the jury to have had law books in their room. See JURY AND JURY TRIAL, vol. 12, p. 377, note 6.

1. Montee v. Com., 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 132; Gwatkin's Case, 9 Leigh (Va.) 678.

But in Virginia it is said that unless instructions are asked, the court should in general not instruct the jury upon the law. Dejarnette v. Com., 75 Va. 867. See INSTRUCTIONS, vol. 11, p. 251.

2. State v. Rice, 56 Iowa 431.

3. In the following note are collected the chief peculiarities, worthy of remark, arising from constitutional or statutory provisions in the several States mentioned:—

Alabama.—In all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court. Const., art. 1, § 13.

California.—The Constitution (art. 1, § 9) provides that in all criminal prosecutions or indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact.

Colorado.—In all suits and prosecutions for libel, the jury, under the direction of the court, shall determine the law and the fact. Const., art. 2, § 10.

Connecticut.—In all prosecutions or indictments for libel, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts under the direction of the court. Const., art. 1, § 7.

By statute, the jury are made judges of the law in criminal cases, but not in any such sense that they are at liberty to disregard the law. The court is to state its opinion to the jury upon all questions of law arising in a criminal trial. The jury are to inquire what the law is, and when their judgment is satisfied, the law, as thus ascertained, is binding upon them, and should be their guide, whether it is, or is not, as they may think it ought to be. State v. Buckley, 40 Conn. 246; State v. Thomas, 47 Conn. 546; 36 Am. Rep. 98.

Delaware.—In all indictments for libels, the jury may determine the facts and the law, as in other cases. Const., art. 1, § 5.

Georgia.—The constitution of Georgia (art. 1, § 2, par. 1) declares that the jury in all criminal cases shall be the judges of the law and the facts. See Ga. Code of 1882, § 5019. In the earlier cases under this provision, it was held that the jury had the power to determine the law otherwise than as instructed by the court. Holder v. State, 5 Ga. 441; Berry v. State, 10 Ga. 511; McGuffie v. State, 17 Ga. 497; Keener v. State, 18 Ga. 194; McPherson v. State, 22 Ga. 478; Dickens v. State, 30 Ga. 383. But the later cases hold that it is the province of the court to construe the law and give it in charge, and the duty of the jury to take the law as given them by the judge. Anderson v. State, 42 Ga. 9; McMath v. State, 55 Ga. 303; Hill v. State, 64 Ga. 454; Ridenhour v. State, 75 Ga. 382; Danforth v. State, 75 Ga. 614; Hunt v. State, 81 Ga. 140.

Illinois.—The jury are by statute judges of the law as well as of the facts in criminal cases, and are not bound by the opinion of the court as to what the law is. Schnier v. People, 23 Ill. 11; Fisher v. People, 23 Ill. 218; Adams v. People, 47 Ill. 376. But in Mullinix v. People, 76 Ill. 211, it was held that an instruction was "eminently just and proper" which ran as follows: "It is the duty of the jury to accept and act upon the law as laid down to you by the court, unless you can say, upon your oaths, that you are better judges of the law than the court; and, if you can say, upon your oaths, that you are better judges of the law than the court, then you are at liberty to so act." And this was regarded as strictly within what was laid down in the preceding case of Fisher v. People, 23 Ill. 218. See also Davison v. People, 90 Ill. 221, 231, 232; Spies v. People, 122 Ill. 1, 252.

Indiana.—The constitution of the State (Bill of Rights, § 19) makes the jury in all criminal cases the ultimate judges of the law. Hence, while it is the duty of the court to instruct as to the law, the jury are not bound by such instructions. The instructions are merely advisory, and are designed, not to bind the consciences of the jury, but to enlighten their judgments. Warren v. State, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 150; Armstrong v. State, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 247; Murphy v. State, 6 Ind. 490; Driskill v. State, 7 Ind. 338; Lynch v. State, 9 Ind. 541; Williams v. State, 10 Ind. 503; Daily v. State, 10 Ind. 536; Clem v. State, 31 Ind. 480; McCarthy v. State, 56 Ind. 203; McDonald v. State, 63 Ind. 544; Keiser v. State, 83 Ind. 234; Fowler v. State, 85 Ind. 538; Powers v. State, 87 Ind. 144; Nuzum v. State, 88 Ind. 599; Hudelson v. State, 94 Ind. 429; Stout v. State, 96 Ind. 407. Compare the earlier and, in part, overruled cases, Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 151; Carter v. State, 2 Ind. 617; Stocking v. State, 7 Ind. 326, 330; Hogg v. State, 7 Ind. 552. Notwithstanding this, if the instructions are erroneous, the judgment will be reversed. Clem v. State, 42 Ind. 447; 13 Am. Rep. 369.

Hence, it is error to instruct the jury that they must be governed by the decisions of the Supreme Court of the State. Keiser v. State, 83 Ind. 234.

Hence, also, counsel must be allowed to argue questions of law to the jury, and to read and discuss in argument the law applicable to the case. Lynch v. State, 9 Ind. 541; Harvey v. State, 40 Ind. 516; Stout v. State, 96 Ind. 407.

Kentucky.—In all indictments for libels, the jury shall have a right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases. Const., art. 13, § 10.

Louisiana.—Juries have, by the constitution of the State, the right to judge both of the law and the facts in criminal cases, and while it would doubtless be a safe rule for the jury to take the law from the judge as their guide, and while they are expected and ought so to receive it, they are not bound to do so. State v. Jurche, 17 La. Ann. 71; State v. Saliba, 18 La. Ann. 35; State v. Tally, 23 La. Ann. 677. Compare State v. Hannibal, 37 La. Ann. 619; State v. Vinson, 37 La. Ann. 792. But see State v. Ford, 37 La. Ann. 443, 465, and several earlier cases; State v. Ballerio, 11 La. Ann. 81; State v. Scott, 11 La. Ann. 421; State v. Scott, 12 La. Ann. 396. Compare also Tresca v. Maddox, 11 La. Ann. 206, 209.

It is not error, however, in charging the jury that they are judges of the law in criminal cases, to add the proviso "if you believe that you know more law than the judge does." State v. Johnson, 30 La. Ann. 904; State v. Hannibal, 37 La. Ann. 619.

Maine.—In all indictments for libel, the jury, after having received the direction of the court, shall have a right to determine at their discretion the law and the fact. Declaration of Rights, § 4.

In State v. Snow, 18 Me. 346, it was held that the jury are judges of the law in all criminal cases. But this case is overruled by State v. Wright, 53 Me. 328.

Maryland.—By the constitution, juries are judges of the law in all criminal cases. They are not bound by any instruction the court may choose to give, such instructions being merely advisory. Wheeler's Case, 42 Md. 569; Bloomer's Case, 48 Md. 539; Forwood's Case, 49 Md. 537; Swann v. State, 64 Md. 423.

Massachusetts.—The Mass. Sts. of 1855, ch. 152, enact that "in all trials for criminal offenses, it shall be the duty of the jury, to try, according to established forms and principles of law, all causes which shall be committed to them, and, after having received the instructions of the court, to decide at their discretion, by a general verdict, both the law and the fact involved in the issue, or to find a special verdict at their election; but it shall be the duty of the court to superintend the course of the trials, to decide upon the admission and rejection of evidence, and upon all questions of law raised during the trials, and upon collateral and incidental proceedings, and also to charge the jury, and to allow bills of exception; and the court may grant a new trial in cases of conviction."

Prior to this statute, it was held in some earlier cases that in criminal prosecutions the jury are the judges of both law and fact. Com. v. Worcester, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 475; Com. v. Blanding, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 305. And see Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick. (Mass.) 496. Compare also a dictum of Parsons, C. J., in a civil case, Coffin v. Coffin, 4 Mass. 1, 25. But in several later cases, though still before the enactment of the statute of 1855, it was held that it was the duty of the jury to receive the law from the court, and to conform their judgment and decision to such instructions as far as they understood them, in applying the law to the facts to be found by them; and that it is not within the legitimate province of the jury to revise, reconsider, or decide contrary to such opinion or direction of the court in matter of law. Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 286; Com. v. White, 10 Met. (Mass.) 14; Com. v. Abbott, 13 Met. (Mass.) 123-4.

As respects the statute, it is held that if it purports to allow to the jury in criminal trials the rightful power to determine, against the instructions of the court, questions of law involved in the issue (as to which point the court were evenly divided), it is unconstitutional; for neither before nor since this statute have the jury had any rightful power to determine questions of law involved in the issue against the instructions of the court. Com. v. Anthes, 5 Gray (Mass.) 185, and 303, note; Com. v. Rock, 10 Gray (Mass.) 4; Com. v. Anthes, 12 Gray (Mass.) 29.

Michigan.—In all prosecutions for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Const., art. 6, § 25.

Mississippi.—In all indictments for libel, the jury shall determine the law and the facts under the direction of the court. Const., art. 1, § 4.

Missouri.—In all suits and prosecutions for libel, the jury, under the direction of the court, shall determine the law and the fact. Const., art. 2, § 14.

Nevada.—On the trial of an indictment for libel, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Gen. Sts., § 4264.

New Jersey.—In all prosecutions or indictments for libel, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Const., art. 1, § 5.

In State v. Jay, 34 N. J. L. 368, the question was left undecided whether in a prosecution for libel the jury can, on the cause being submitted to them, lawfully disregard the instruction of the judge as to the law of the case.

New Mexico.—In all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases. Comp. Laws of 1884, § 2589.

New York.—In all criminal prosecutions or indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Const., art. 1, § 8; Code of Cr. Proc., § 418.

North Carolina.—In this State juries in criminal cases may by statute rightfully judge of the law independently of the court. State v. Miller, 75 N. Car. 73.

Oregon.—In all criminal cases the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court as to the law; and the right of new trial, as in civil cases. Const., art. 1, § 16. But all discussions of law are to be addressed to the court, and juries are bound to receive as law what is laid down as such by the court. Hill's Ann. Laws of 1887, §§ 1374-5.

Pennsylvania.—In all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases. Const., art. 1, § 7.

In this State the power which the jury have to judge of the law in a criminal case is considered one of the most valuable securities guaranteed by the Bill of Rights; and it is held not to have been changed by the adoption of a new constitutional provision, providing for a writ of error in criminal cases. Kane v. Com., 87 Pa. St. 522; 33 Am. Rep. 788. But in Nicholson v. Com., 96 Pa. St. 503, the following instruction was given: "The only safe course for you to pursue, so far as the law regarding offenses which you may have given you in charge, is to receive your instructions from the court, for the reason you are not supposed to be learned in the law; and if you should commit an error therein, or counsel should be mistaken in stating the law to you, and you, relying on their version, or your own ideas, in either case should you commit an error, there is no remedy for such error." This instruction was held not to be erroneous, the court having an undoubted right to instruct the jury as to the law, and to warn them against finding contrary to it. Compare, Theel v. Com., 12 Atl. Rep. 148. See also the earlier case of Pennsylvania v. Bell, Add. (Pa.) 156, 160.

South Carolina.—In all indictments for libel, the jury shall be judges of the law and the facts. Const., art. 1, § 8.

Tennessee.—In all indictments for libel, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other criminal cases. Const., art. 1, § 19.

In this State, the right of counsel to discuss to the jury propositions of law along with the facts, is upheld in civil as well as criminal cases. Hannah v. State, 11 Lea (Tenn.) 201. See infra this title, p. 621, note 1.

Texas.—In all indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the facts, under the direction of the court, as in other cases. Const. of 1876, § 8.

The jury are the exclusive judges of the facts in every criminal cause, but not of the law in any case. They are bound to receive the law from the court, and to be governed thereby. Willson's Crim. Sts., § 2331.

Utah.—On the trial of an indictment for libel, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Comp. Laws of 1888, § 5058.

Vermont.—In this State the jury are judges of law as well as fact in criminal cases, and this is considered to be the doctrine also of the common law. State v. Wilkinson, 2 Vt. 480, 488-9; State v. Croteau, 23 Vt. 14. There is no qualification of the right of the jury, in a criminal cause, to disregard the instructions of the court as to the law; and they may adopt their own theory of the law, even if it be more prejudicial to the prisoner than the law given them by the court. State v. Meyer, 3 Atl. Rep. 195, 199. But there is no objection to the judge's stating to the jury that the above rule is not intended for ordinary criminal cases; that it is a matter of favor to the defendant, and should not be acted upon by the jury, except after the most thorough conviction of its necessity and propriety; that any departure by the jury from the law laid down by the court must be taken solely upon their own responsibility; and that the safer, and better, and fairer way in ordinary criminal cases is to take the law from the court, in doing which the jury are always justifiable. State v. McDonnell, 32 Vt. 491, 532.

Wisconsin.—In all criminal prosecutions or indictments for libels, the jury shall have the right to determine the law and the fact. Const., art. 1, § 3.

3. Arguing to the Jury Upon the Law.—In those jurisdictions where juries are, by constitutional or statutory provisions, or by the decisions of the courts, made judges of the law in criminal cases, or in cases of indictment for libel, the argument of counsel upon the law of the case is rightfully directed to the jury. This implies the right to read to the jury out of books of the law; and the refusal to allow this, is error, for which a new trial will be granted.¹

In those jurisdictions where the better doctrine prevails, that juries are not judges of the law, in either criminal or civil cases,—whether counsel should be allowed to address arguments on the law to the jury, and read to them out of law books, is not settled. But on principle it would seem that, although, where a pure question of law is at issue, it should be argued to the court alone,² still, since the law and the facts of a case are generally inseparable,³ and since, in reality, the law can hardly be said to exist apart from the facts,⁴ it follows that counsel should be allowed to develop their whole case to the jury, law as well as fact,⁵ and hence to read to the jury out of law books;⁶ for unless the jury

1. Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 567; McMath v. State, 55 Ga. 304; Warmock v. State, 56 Ga. 503; Johnson v. State, 59 Ga. 189; Jones v. State, 65 Ga. 506; Lynch v. State, 9 Ind. 541; Harvey v. State, 40 Ind. 516; Stout v. State, 96 Ind. 407; State v. Verry, 36 Kan. 416. But see Carter v. State, 2 Ind. 617; Murphy v. State, 6 Ind. 490.

In Georgia, there exists in civil cases the qualified rule that counsel may, subject to the direction of the court, argue to the jury their view of the law, or what they expect the court to charge as to law. Robinson v. Adkins, 19 Ga. 398; Ransome v. Christian, 56 Ga. 351.

2. In this class constitutional questions, which are in general wholly for the court, appear to fall, and it seems that the argument upon such questions should be directed to the judge alone. Compare Callender's Case, Whart. St. Tr. 688, 710; U. S. v. Riley, 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 204; Franklin v. State, 12 Md. 236. And see Com. v. Murphy, 10 Gray (Mass.) 1.

3. Even in those courts in which counsel are not allowed to argue to the jury upon the law, it is necessary, in addressing the jury, to assume a certain state of the law as applicable to the facts, and from that assumption to proceed to the discussion of the facts.

4. Ex facto jus oritur. Broom's Leg. Max. (8th Am. ed.) *102. Apart from the facts, the law may, perhaps, be said to have only an abstract, potential, or hypothetical existence,—requiring a given state of circumstances to call it into actual operation. Any assemblage of facts having been settled by the jury, the law that governs them comes into actual existence through the determination of the judge, who declares, upon a view of all the facts, what the law of that particular case is.

5. People v. Keenan, 13 Cal. 581; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263; 1 Thomp. Tr. § 951, where the author says: "A just conclusion seems to be that in those jurisdictions where the practice of the English courts of law is followed, under which counsel make their arguments to the jury before the charge of the court is given, counsel must be permitted, within reasonable limits, to state and to argue their views and theories of the law applicable to the case; that in every such argument, it is necessary to the full presentation of the view upon which the prosecution or the defense rests, that a state of the law applicable to the facts should be assumed to exist, for which reason counsel must be permitted, in the very nature of things, to address the jury upon the whole case, both upon the law and the facts."

6. Reg. v. Courvoisier, 9 C. & P. 362; 38 E. C. L. 155; Robinson v. Adkins, 19 Ga. 398; Harvey v. State, 40 Ind. 516; Com. v. Abbott, 13 Met. (Mass.) 120; Legg v. Drake, 1 Ohio understand the rule of law with its exceptions, limitations, and qualifications, they cannot know how, after the determining facts, to draw the proper conclusion in a general verdict.¹

Accordingly it has been held that counsel has the right, by way

St. 286; Lott v. State, 18 Tex. App. 627; Wade v. De Witt, 20 Tex. 398; Mayfield v. Cotton, 37 Tex. 229. Contra, Murphy v. State, 6 Ind. 490; Good v. Mylin, 13 Pa. St. 538.

In Com. v. Abbott, 13 Met. (Mass.) 120, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "If it be asked, where, then, is the propriety of arguing questions of law to the jury, the just answer is, that, correctly speaking, questions of law, as such, are not argued to the jury. The mode of conducting a trial before the court and jury arises from necessity and convenience, from the obvious practical difficulty of adopting any other mode. The whole trial, embracing law and fact, and resulting in a general verdict, is necessarily conducted before the court and jury conjointly; and the law must be stated and explained by the counsel, first, for the consideration and decision of the court, and secondly, to enable the jury to apply the law to the facts they may find, which they must do, in order to return a general verdict. But this course of counsel in arguing questions of law before the court and jury at once, under the general direction of the court, no more implies that the jury may rightfully pass their judgment upon the questions of law, contrary to the instructions of the court, than it does that the court may rightfully pass a definitive judgment upon the questions of fact, upon the weight of evidence, and the credit due to witnesses, against the judgment and conviction of the jury, which they clearly cannot."

In a few instances, it has been held that the statement in the text does not apply to civil cases, but that in these, counsel should not be allowed to argue to the jury upon the law, nor to read to them from law books. Tuller v. Talbot, 23 Ill. 298; Sprague v. Craig, 51 Ill. 288; Philpot v. Taylor, 75 Ill. 309; Chicago v. McGiven, 78 Ill. 347; Heagy v. State, 85 Ind. 260. However, to permit them to do so, seems, even here, not to be considered an irregularity sufficient in itself to authorize the reversal of a judgment. Philpot v. Taylor, 75 Ill. 309.

1. Hannah v. State, 11 Lea (Tenn.) 201; Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263.

In Hannah v. State, 11 Lea (Tenn.) 201, the court by Turney, J., said: "During the trial of the cause . . . the court ruled that counsel might argue the law to the court, and read his authorities to the court, but would not be allowed to read the law books to the jury, or argue the law of the case to the jury. This was error. It is impossible to understand how counsel can make out a case from facts, while he is forbidden to state and argue the law applicable to the facts. It requires both facts and law to make a prosecution or defense in either civil or criminal proceedings. Without facts, there is no law to operate. To hold that the facts may be argued, but the law shall not be presented with these facts, is to deny the benefit of counsel. The value of facts depends upon the law that governs them. No lawyer can discuss propositions except in a combination of law and facts."

In Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263, 283, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "In thus conducting a jury trial in a criminal case, with a view to the return of a general verdict, it is obvious that the whole matter of law as well as of fact must be stated and explained to the jury, so that they may fully understand and apply it to the facts; because, as we have seen, in the form of the general verdict, they do declare the law as well as the fact. For this purpose, it seems to be necessary, and in our State it is the usual practice, for the parties, respectively, by their counsel, to state the law to the jury, in the presence, and subject to the ultimate direction, of the judge; because, unless the jury understand the rule of law, with its exceptions, limits, and qualifications, they cannot know how to apply the evidence, and determine the truth of the material facts necessary to bring the case of the accused within it. In thus presenting their respective views of the law to the jury, under the direction of the court, for the better information of both the judge and jury, great latitude has been of argument or illustration, to read books of the law to the jury, where he adopts the views therein laid down as his own, and makes them a part of his address to the jury.¹ But this principle does not authorize counsel, under pretence of reading legal authorities to the jury, to read passages bearing upon questions of fact which are before the jury for consideration, thus introducing to the minds of the jury evidentiary matters which have not been regularly admitted by the presiding judge.²

allowed in the practice of this Commonwealth, and counsel have been permitted to state and enforce their views of the law, especially in capital cases, by definitions, and cases from such works of established authority as the court may approve. In this, great latitude has been allowed, in tenderness to the accused, and a liberal confidence reposed in counsel called to defend the accused in the hour of his trial. But such an address, whether it be upon the matter of fact or the matter of law, and whether in form it be directed to the court or jury, is in legal effect and actual operation an address to both; not because they have not several duties to perform, and distinct questions to pass upon, but because it is one trial carried on at once before court and jury, in which the judge must have a clear comprehension of the nature and scope of the evidence, conducing to the proof of facts, which may or may not render the accused amenable to the law, in order that he may give such directions in matter of law as the state of the evidence may require; and the jury must have a clear comprehension of the rules of law, in order to determine whether the facts proved bring the accused within them; and because the minds of both judge and jury, acting in their respective departments, must result in that general verdict of acquittal or conviction, which is the appropriate determination of the cause. Considering the latitude which has been allowed in this commonwealth, by a long course of practice, and the difficulty of drawing an exact line of distinction between that full statement and exposition of his views of the law, which counsel may properly make in a general address to the court and jury, upon the questions embraced in the issue, and involved in a general verdict, and an address to the jury separately upon questions of law, we are of opinion that a party may by his counsel address the jury upon questions of law, subject to the superintending and controlling power of the court, to decide questions of law, by directions to the jury, which it is their duty to follow. In ordinary cases, such directions to the jury, upon the questions arising in the cause, are not given until the parties, by their counsel, have submitted their respective views of the law and the facts in an argument to the court and jury. . . . As the jury have a legitimate power to return a general verdict, and in that case must pass upon the whole issue, this court are of opinion that the defendant has a right by himself or his counsel to address the jury, under the general superintendence of the court, upon all the material questions involved in the issue, and to this extent, and in this connection, to address the jury upon such questions of law as come within the issue to be tried. Such address to the jury, upon questions of law embraced in the issue, by the defendant or his counsel, is warranted by the long practice of the courts in this commonwealth in criminal cases."

1. Reg. v. Courvoisier, 9 C. & P. 362; 38 E. C. L. 155; Harvey v. State, 40 Ind. 516; Legg v. Drake, 1 Ohio St. 386. The reason is, that, as counsel have an undoubted right, in arguing to the jury, to set forth the principles of law from recollection, it is better to have the law stated from authentic sources, than from the memory of impassioned orators strongly biased in favor of one side.

2. Baldwin's Appeal, 44 Conn. 37; Evansville v. Wilter, 86 Ind. 414; Com. v. Wilson, 1 Gray (Mass.) 337; Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Allen, 11 Mich. 501; Dempsey v. State, 3 Tex. App. 429.

Of the above rule, several illustrations may be given.

Insanity.—Thus, the party upholding a will which is attacked on the ground that the testatrix was of unsound mind,

The doctrine in the above paragraph as to the right of counsel to argue to the jury upon the law and to read to them out of law books, supposes that the practice of the English courts of law is followed, under which counsel make their arguments to the jury before the charge of the judge is given. But if the charge of the judge precedes the argument of counsel, or if the court has already decided any propositions of law in the trial, counsel cannot be allowed to controvert them in argument;¹ for this would be to appeal from the official expounder of the law to the jury, who are unlearned in the law, and who are not, as we have seen, cannot be allowed to read to the jury from decided cases, for the purpose of showing that the facts set forth in such cases were not inconsistent with the soundness of mind necessary to the making of a valid will. Baldwin's Appeal, 44 Conn. 37.

Measure of Damages.—So it is error to allow counsel, upon the question of the measure of damages, to read in the presence of the jury, extracts from reported cases in which large damages were held not excessive. Evansville v. Wilter, 86 Ind. 414; Porter v. Choen, 60 Ind. 338. But such error is cured by a direction of the court to the jury to the effect that the case before them must be determined upon the evidence, uninfluenced by the damages given in other cases. Evansville v. Wilter, 86 Ind. 414.

Reasonable Time.—So where the question for decision was whether a draft was presented for payment within a reasonable time, and the court held the question to be one of fact for the jury, it was held error to allow counsel to read to the jury and comment upon cases on this subject in the books of reports. Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Allen, 11 Mich. 501.

Evidence.—So in a trial for felony, the counsel for the accused cannot be allowed to read, in his argument to the jury, the statement of facts made up on a former appeal of the same cause, and the decision thereon of the supreme court holding that evidence insufficient,—the purpose of counsel being to deduce therefrom the insufficiency of the evidence brought forward on the present trial. Dempsey v. State, 3 Tex. App. 429. Compare Warren v. Wallis, 42 Tex. 472.

1. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 951; U. S. v. Morris, 1 Curt. (U. S.) 23; Com. v. Zimmerman, 1 Cranch (C. C.) 47; U. S. v. Watkins, 3 Cranch (C. C.) 443;

U. S. v. Columbus, 5 Cranch (C. C.) 304; U. S. v. Riley, 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 204; Edwards v. State, 22 Ark. 253; Smith v. Morrison, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 81; Harrison v. Park, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 170; Sowerwein v. Jones, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 335; Bell v. State, 57 Md. 108; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Boyd, 67 Md. 32; Davenport v. Com., 1 Leigh (Va.) 585; Delaplane v. Crenshaw, 15 Gratt. (Va.) 457; Dejarnette v. Com., 75 Va. 867.

In Sowerwein v. Jones, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 335, the court by Chambers, J., said: "It is the province of the court, whenever called on by plaintiff or defendant, to inform the jury what are the principles of law applicable to the case under trial, which should control and regulate their verdict. When the law is declared by the court, the jury are expected to govern themselves by it, and the counsel will not be permitted to claim their verdict, upon any principles at variance with the positions advanced by the court. If the court be wrong, the remedy is by appeal, and a reversal of the erroneous opinion."

In Bell v. State, 57 Md. 108, 120, the court by Grason, J., said: "Whatever powers the constitution may have conferred upon juries in criminal cases, it has conferred none upon counsel. They are still officers of the court, and under its proper control, and if the court expresses an opinion on a question of law, upon which it has a right to express it, and a party considers himself aggrieved by it, he has his remedy, either by petition in the nature of a writ of error, or by a bill of exception. But counsel have no right, and ought not to be permitted, to argue against it before the jury in order to induce them to disregard it."

The case of Com. v. Porter, 10 Met. (Mass.) 263, in which it was held to be error for the trial court to interrupt to be rightfully considered judges of the law.¹ In such cases, counsel should be confined in their argument to the legal premises embodied in the instructions of the court; and they cannot be allowed to read books of the law to the jury, particularly if the design in doing so should be to influence the jury to take the law from the books rather than from the court.²

But according to many excellent authorities, the whole question of the right to argue questions of law to the jury, and to read to them out of law books, is properly committed to the sound discretion of the trial court, subject, when it has been clearly abused to the prejudice of either party, to the corrective revision of the appellate courts.³ Thus, the court may curtail the right to read the law counsel and prevent him from expressing to the jury views of the law contrary to those of the court, seems, nevertheless, not to be counter to the statement in the text; for the counsel in that case was not arguing against any instruction or ruling previously laid down by the court.

In Virginia, it seems that great latitude of discussion is allowed in criminal cases, even against the instructions of the court. 4 Minor's Inst. (2d ed.) *747, citing Garth's Case, 3 Leigh (Va.) 770; Blunt's Case, 4 Leigh (Va.) 691; Gwatkin's Case, 9 Leigh (Va.) 681.

1. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 944, where the author says: "It is held in the Federal and in most of the State jurisdictions that counsel have no right to argue to the jury propositions of law contrary to those which have been laid down by the court. The courts which so hold, proceed upon the view that to permit this to be done, would be contrary to the respect which the court owes to itself, and that it would be a perversion of the law to allow an appeal from the court to the jury for the purpose of correcting the errors of law committed by the court, instead of correcting them by an appeal to the proper appellate tribunal provided by the constitution and the laws for that purpose."

In a State where the instructions of the court precede the argument, the judge in a criminal case failed to instruct the jury upon a material point, and the prosecuting attorney in his closing argument undertook to supply the omission, and in doing so, stated the law in a manner prejudicial to the prisoner. Held, that the judgment must be reversed. State v. Reed, 71 Mo. 200. But it is not error for the prosecuting attorney to state to the jury in argument a proposition of law which, though erroneous, has no bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the accused. State v. Dibble, 6 Mo. App. 584.

2. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 951; People v. Anderson, 44 Cal. 65.

3. Winkler v. State, 32 Ark. 539; Curtis v. State, 36 Ark. 284; People v. Anderson, 44 Cal. 65, 70; People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; Sullivan v. Royer, 72 Cal. 248; Sprague v. Craig, 51 Ill. 288; Murphy v. State, 6 Ind. 490; Lynch v. State, 9 Ind. 541; Heagy v. State, 85 Ind. 260; Com. v. Austin, 7 Gray (Mass.) 51; Good v. Mylin, 13 Pa. St. 538; Dempsey v. State, 3 Tex. App. 429; Hines v. State, 3 Tex. App. 483; Hudson v. State, 6 Tex. App. 565; Harrison v. State, 8 Tex. App. 183; Foster v. State, 8 Tex. App. 248; Cross v. State, 11 Tex. App. 84; Lott v. State, 18 Tex. App. 627; Smith v. State, 21 Tex. App. 278; Wade v. De Witt, 20 Tex. 398; Mayfield v. Cotton, 37 Tex. 229.

In the last case, the court by Walker, J., said: "The rule of practice is well established which allows attorneys to read the law authorities to the court, in the presence of the jury, during the progress of a trial. The court in its discretion may forbid any abuse of this privilege; the jury is to receive the law from the court, and upon plain principles of law, the court would have a right to forbid tedious and unnecessary reading or discussion. The authorities in this case which the plaintiff proposes to read may have been so well understood by the court that it was deemed unnecessary that they should be read and discussed, to the hindrance of the trial, for the enlightenment of the court. In matters of this kind, no positive inflexible rule can well be laid to the jury within reasonable limits,¹ and may refuse to allow the reading of law which has no application to the facts of the case.² Nor is the court obliged to allow the reading of numerous authorities to the jury, or the unnecessary consumption of public time in discussing such authorities, especially when the court is familiar with them, and is prepared to instruct the jury upon the law contained in them, so far as applicable to the case.³

II. QUESTIONS OF FACT—1. Pure Questions of Fact for the Jury.—As already stated, it is the function of the jury, with the few exceptions given in the next section, to decide all questions of fact whatsoever, that are put in issue in a trial.

2. Power of Judge to Decide Certain Questions of Fact—a. PRELIMINARY QUESTIONS TOUCHING THE ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.—It is the exclusive province and duty of the judge to decide all questions touching the admission or exclusion of evidence.⁴ Where this involves preliminary questions of fact, such, down. The court should be allowed, however, to protect the interests of litigants and the public against any unnecessary consumption of time in the discussion of law authorities in the presence of juries, and in the progress of jury trials. The court should understand the law well enough to give it to the jury, unassisted by counsel; yet, a courtesy due from the bench to the bar at all times, and the frequent necessity of the court availing itself of every source of information, should regulate this matter."

In People v. Anderson, 44 Cal. 65, the practice of reading from law books in an argument to the jury, was considered as improper; but it was held not to be a reversible error, because it was a matter within the discretion of the trial court, and unreviewable by the appellate court, except for an apparent abuse of discretion. "As a general rule," said the court by Crockett, J., "the practice of allowing counsel in either a civil or criminal action, to read law to the jury, is objectionable, and ought not to be tolerated. Its usual effect is to confuse rather than to enlighten the jury. There are cases, however, in which it is permissible for counsel, by way of illustration, to read to the jury reported cases, or extracts from text-books, subject to the sound discretion of the court, whose duty it is to check promptly any effort on the part of counsel to induce the jury to disregard the instructions, or to take the law of the case from the books rather than from the court."

19 C. of L.—40

1. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 946; Winkler v. State, 32 Ark. 539; Curtis v. State, 36 Ark. 284; People v. Anderson, 44 Cal. 65; Murphy v. State, 6 Ind. 490; Com. v. Austin, 7 Gray (Mass.) 51; Com. v. Murphy, 10 Gray (Mass.) 1; Mayfield v. Cotton, 37 Tex. 229. Thus the trial judge may refuse to allow counsel to read to the jury an adjudication of the highest court of another State that a statute, like that upon which the prosecution is founded, is contrary to the constitution of that State. Com. v. Murphy, 10 Gray (Mass.) 1.

2. Curtis v. State, 36 Ark. 284; Winkler v. State, 32 Ark. 539.

And so the trial court may refuse to allow the defendant's counsel in a criminal case, to read to the jury the whole of the statute, upon one section of which the prosecution is founded, if he is allowed to read all those parts which he contends affect the construction of that section, and to comment to the jury upon the whole of the statute. Com. v. Austin, 7 Gray (Mass.) 51.

3. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 946; Mayfield v. Cotton, 37 Tex. 229; Hudson v. State, 6 Tex. App. 565.

4. 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 49; 1 Taylor's Ev. (8th ed.), § 23; Best's Ev. (Am. ed.), § 82; Company of Carpenters v. Hayward, 1 Doug. 374, per Buller, J.; Doe v. Davies, 10 Q. B. 314; 59 E. C. L. 314; Rex v. Atwood, 2 Leach C. C. 522; Rex v. Smith, L. & C. 607; Lewis v. Marshall, 7 M. & G. 729; 49 E. C. L. 729; Chandler v. Van Roeder, 24 How. (U. S.) 227; Cliaquot's for example, as the fact of interest or of the execution of a deed, these, no matter how intricate, are to be determined by the judge,¹

Champagne, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 114; Scott v. Cox, 20 Ala. 294; Campbell v. State, 23 Ala. 45; Robinson v. Ferry, 11 Conn. 460; Townsend v. State, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 151; Carrico v. McGee, 1 Dana (Ky.) 6; Gorton v. Hadsell, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 508; Chouteau v. Searcy, 8 Mo. 733; Witowsky v. Wasson, 71 N. Car. 451; De France v. De France, 34 Pa. St. 385; Claytor v. Anthony, 6 Rand. (Va.) 285. And compare Merrill v. Berkshire, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 269.

In De France v. De France, 34 Pa. St. 385, the court by Lowrie, C. J., said: "There is scarcely any case that does not abound with facts which are totally inadmissible as evidence, in any proper treatment of the question. These are excluded by the court, especially if there is any danger that the jury may attach importance to them. This is a mode in which the judge is continually taking facts from the jury, and thus really weighing the importance of them, in the performance of his legitimate and undisputed functions. In the present case, the judge discussed the facts, and decided their inadequacy, as a ground for an equitable exception to the general rules of law; and yet, in doing so, he was simply performing his own functions. No judge ever assigns reasons for overruling an offer of evidence, without discussing the facts involved in it, in order to show that they have no weight or importance in the investigation. The preliminary operation for all the final reasonings on a case, is to get clear of all such facts as ought not to influence the conclusion. No philosopher ever attempts the solution of a case of natural science without having first eliminated all the facts that are unimportant, or that would tend only to embarrass or mislead. In a judicial case, this preliminary operation is performed by the judge, and in performing it, he is of course dealing with facts, and deciding how far they are proper elements of the case. He performs the same operation in a case stated, when he first sifts out all the irrelevant and immaterial facts, before he begins to reason upon the essential residue. In the early stages of juridical science, this function would, of course, be very rudely performed.

Centuries of observation and practice have been constantly improving our skill and science in this respect. The time was when many facts were admitted as important in given investigations, which are now admitted to be not so, and time may yet work other modifications of our ideas. A fact alleged contrary to the well known laws of cause and effect in nature and society, is not to be proved by the ordinary evidence that is proper for ordinary facts. The judge weighs all the evidence offered of the fact, and decides upon its competency or adequacy. If the fact really conflicts with a natural law that is not well known, then the law itself becomes matter of evidence by means of experts, or men of skill and science on the given subject. In matters of civil law, the judge is the expert. The facts being given, he declares the law and result of them. The jury find the disputed and disputable facts for him; but he excludes from their inquiry all testimony about facts which judicial logic regards as immaterial or misleading."

1. Dennison v. Jewison, 12 Jur. 485; Doe v. Davies, 10 Q. B. 314; 59 E. C. L. 314; Corfield v. Parsons, 1 C. & M. 730; Welstead v. Levy, 1 M. & R. 138; Boyle v. Wiseman, 11 Exch. 360; Davis v. Charles River Branch R. Co., 11 Cush. (Mass.) 506; Kendall v. May, 10 Allen (Mass.) 59; Harris v. Wilson, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 57. And see authorities in note 2, p. 628.

In Doe v. Davies, 10 Q. B. 314; 59 E. C. L. 314; the court by Denman, C. J., said: "There are conditions precedent which are required to be fulfilled before evidence is admissible for the jury. Thus, an oath, or its equivalent, and competency, are conditions precedent to admitting viva voce evidence; and apprehension of immediate death to admitting evidence of dying declarations; and search to secondary evidence of lost writings; and stamp to certain written instruments; and so is consanguinity or affinity in the declarant to declarations of deceased relatives. The judge alone has to decide whether the condition has been fulfilled. If the proof is by witnesses, he must decide on their credibility. If counter-evidence is offered, he must receive it before he decides;

and cannot, according to the better opinion, be submitted to the jury.¹ Where, however, the decision of the preliminary question of fact would decide the main issue, it seems that the judge should not decide the matter, but should admit the evidence provisionally, and leave the main question to the jury.² In determining preliminary questions of fact relating to the admissibility of evidence, the rule as to the weight of the testimony is the same as in case of issues tried by a jury; it is not sufficient that there be evidence tending to establish the particular fact, but the judge and he has no right to ask the opinion of the jury on the fact as a condition precedent."

1. 1 Thomp. Tr., §§ 321, 1025; Bartlett v. Smith, 11 M. & W. 483; Doe v. Davies, 10 Q. B. 314; 59 E. C. L. 314; Stowe v. Querner, L. R. 5 Ex. 155; 39 L. J. Ex. 60; Degraffenreid v. Thomas, 14 Ala. 681; Thomason v. Odum, 31 Ala. 103; Robinson v. Ferry, 11 Conn. 460; Chouteau v. Searcy, 8 Mo. 733; Ratliff v. Huntly, 5 Fred. (N. Car.) 545. Contra, 1 Phil. Ev. (8th. ed.) 2, note; 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th. ed.), §§ 49, 425; Egan v. Larkin, Arm. M. & O. 403; Scott v. Cox, 20 Ala. 294; Spencer v. Trafford, 42 Md. 1; Hartford F. Ins. Co. v. Reynolds, 36 Mich. 502; Bartlett v. Hoyt, 33 N. H. 151; State v. Squires, 48 N. H. 364; Hart v. Hellner, 3 Rawle (Pa.) 407; Gordon v. Bowers, 16 Pa. St. 226; Haynes v. Hunsicker, 26 Pa. St. 58. In regard to these contrary opinions Judge Thompson says: "We may venture to question the soundness of these views. Experience proves that juries are scarcely capable of deciding properly those questions which the law has clearly committed to them. It will still more embarrass them to compel them to shoulder a part of the burden which properly belongs to the judge." 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1025.

If, after such examination of the facts, the court decides to admit the evidence, it is for the jury to consider, weigh and apply it; but if it be rejected, the jury has no legal right even to know that it was ever offered. Robinson v. Ferry, 11 Conn. 460.

And where the evidence has been admitted by the court, the jury are bound to review it, and are confined to the consideration of its credibility and effect. If, in view of all the facts and circumstances, it is in their opinion unworthy of credit, they may disbelieve it, and disregard it in their decision of the case; but they cannot reject it as incompetent. Com. v. Knapp, 10 Pick.

(Mass.) 477; Rex v. Atwood, 2 Leach C. C. 322.

2. Stowe v. Querner, L. R. 5 Ex. 155; 39 L. J. Ex. 60; Hitchins v. Eardley, L. R. 2 P. & M. 248; 40 L. J. Pr. & Mat. 70. Contra, Doe v. Davies, 10 Q. B. 314; 59 E. C. L. 314, following Bartlett v. Smith, 11 M. & W. 483. In Stowe v. Querner, L. R. 5 Ex. 155; 39 L. J. Ex. 60; which was an action on a policy of insurance, in which the existence of the policy was in issue, the defendant refused, after notice to produce, to bring in the original policy. The plaintiffs thereupon attempted to put in an alleged copy of the policy. The defendant objected, and requested the judge to hear evidence that no original policy had ever existed. This being the main issue of the action, the judge refused to pass upon it, and allowed the alleged copy to go to the jury, leaving it for them to say whether or not there had been a duly stamped policy executed by the defendant. And this was held to be proper. "If," said Bramwell, B., "the objection on the part of the defendant had been that there was a policy, but that it was not stamped, it would, perhaps, have been well founded. But here it was objected that there was no policy executed at all, an objection which goes to the entire ground of action, and one which, if it had prevailed, might have left the jury nothing to decide. For, suppose the judge had ruled that the copy was inadmissible on the ground that there was no original ever in existence, the plaintiffs would in fact have had no case left, and the judge would himself have decided the whole of it. . . . But an illustration analogous to the present. Suppose an action to be brought for libel, and a copy of a letter which is destroyed, but which contained the libel complained of, is produced and tendered in evidence. Could the defendant say, 'Stop, I will show you that no letter was in point of fact ever written, and I call upon you, the

must be satisfied of it by competent proof.¹ Where the judge passes upon such preliminary facts, his decision is conclusive; but his ruling as matter of law that such facts render the evidence competent or incompetent, is subject to revision.²

Of the above principles numerous illustrations may be given.

Thus, whether a person is qualified to be sworn as a witness, is a question exclusively for the court, it being the province of the jury to determine the credibility of his testimony;³ hence the judge decides whether a witness is incompetent for defects in religious belief,⁴ or deficiency in understanding.⁵ And so whether or not a witness is an expert, so as to render him competent to judge, to hear evidence upon this point, and if I satisfy you that no such letter ever existed, you ought not to admit the copy?" Surely not; for that would be getting the judge to decide what is peculiarly within the province of the jury. The distinction is really this: where the objection to the reading of a copy conceives that there was primary evidence of some sort in existence, but defective in some collateral matter, as, for instance, where the objection is a purely stamp objection, the judge must, before he admits the copy, hear and determine whether the objection is well founded. But where the objection goes to show that the very substratum and foundation of the cause of action is wanting, the judge must not decide upon the matter, but receive the copy and leave the main question to the jury."

In Hitchins v. Eardley, L. R. 2 P. & M. 248; 40 L. J. Pr. & Mat. 70; the only question at issue before the jury was whether M. D., through whom the defendants claimed, was legitimate. The defendants, after producing prima facie evidence of the legitimacy of M. D., tendered his declarations in evidence. Since these, admissible only as matters of pedigree, could not be received unless M. D. were legitimate, the question of the admission of this evidence was the same as the principal question at issue. The court, upon the prima facie showing, admitted the evidence, but cautioned the jury that this ruling was a preliminary ruling upon imperfect evidence, and was not in the least degree to influence their verdict.

See generally EVIDENCE, vol. 7, p. 88.

1. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 322, citing Degraffenreid v. Thomas, 14 Ala. 681.

2. Bartlett v. Smith, 11 M. & W. 485; Cleave v. Jones, 7 Exch. 421; Campbell v. State, 23 Ala. 45; Foster v. Mackay, 7 Met. (Mass.) 531; Dole v. Thurlow, 12 Met. (Mass.) 157; Odiorne

v. Bacon, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 185; Gorton v. Hadsell, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 508; Com. v. Hills, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 530; Com. v. Mullins, 2 Allen (Mass.) 295; Com. v. Morrell, 99 Mass. 542; O'Connor v. Hallinan, 103 Mass. 547; Walker v. Curtis, 116 Mass. 98; Com. v. Gray, 129 Mass. 474.

3. Rex v. Hill, 5 Cox C. C. 259; Cook v. Mix, 11 Conn. 432; Nave v. Williams, 22 Ind. 368; Kendall v. May, 10 Allen (Mass.) 64; Com. v. Lynes, 142 Mass. 577; Den v. Vancleve, 5 N. J. L. 589; Reynolds v. Lounsbury, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 534; Commercial Bank v. Hughes, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 94.

See generally WITNESS.

4. Wakefield v. Ross, 5 Mason (U. S.) 16; Com. v. Hills, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 530; Jackson v. Gridley, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 98; People v. Matteson, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 432, note a; Smith v. Coffin, 18 Me. 157.

5. Reg. v. Hill, 2 Den. C. C. 259; 5 Cox C. C. 470; 20 L. J. M. C. 222; 5 Eng. L. & Eq. 547; Campbell v. State, 23 Ala. 44; Holcomb v. Holcomb, 28 Conn. 177; Com. v. Mullins, 2 Allen (Mass.) 295; Kendall v. May, 10 Allen (Mass.) 64; Com. v. Lynes, 142 Mass. 577.

Where the competency of a witness is attacked on the ground of insanity, if the court has decided in favor of his sanity, the evidence adduced to the court cannot be submitted to the jury to affect his credibility. Campbell v. State, 23 Ala. 45.

It has been held that the question whether a witness, sane at the time he testifies, was insane at the time of the transaction concerning which he testifies, is a question for the jury, since it goes to his credibility, and not to his competency, and the opposing party may adduce such testimony with his other evidence. Holcomb v. Holcomb, 28 Conn. 177.

express an opinion upon the question in issue, is a question for the judge.¹

In like manner, it is the province of the court to decide all questions as to the admissibility of writings offered in evidence;² and hence, to decide whether a document offered in evidence has come from the proper custody or not;³ and whether an instrument has been lost or destroyed so as to render secondary evidence of its contents admissible.⁴ It is for the court to determine whether a communication, oral or written, is a privileged one,⁵ and whether what are offered as dying declarations are admissible.⁶

And so whether there is sufficient proof of agency to warrant the admission of the acts and declarations of the agent in evidence, is a preliminary question for the court to determine.⁷ The question whether a confession is voluntary, or is to be excluded by reason of having been obtained through the influence of hope or of fear, cannot be referred to the jury, but is to be decided by the judge alone, whose determination of the facts is conclusive.⁸

1. Fairbank v. Hughson, 58 Cal. 314; Ives v. Leonard, 50 Mich. 296; Jones v. Tucker, 41 N. H. 546; Flynt v. Bodenhamer, 80 N. Car. 205; State v. Sanders, 84 N. Car. 728; State v. Efler, 85 N. Car. 585; State v. Burgwyn, 87 N. Car. 572; State v. Cole, 94 N. Car. 959.

See EXPERT AND OPINION EVIDENCE, vol. 7, p. 514, note 4.

2. Bartlett v. Smith, 11 M. & W. 483; Dumsford v. Curlewis, 1 F. & F. 702; Carrico v. McGee, 1 Dana (Ky.) 6; Hamilton v. Taylor, Litt. Sel. Cas. (Ky.) 444.

See generally WRITTEN INSTRUMENTS.

3. Rees v. Walters, 3 M. & W. 527, per Parke, B.; Doe v. Keeling, 11 Q. B. 884, per Denman, C. J.; 63 E. C. L. 884; Doe v. Phillips, 8 Q. B. 158; 55 E. C. L. 158; Bishop of Meath v. Marquess of Winchester, 3 Bing. N. Cas. 183; 32 E. C. L. 90, per Tindall, C. J.

An appellate court will not interfere, with the decision of the judge, unless it appear to be clearly wrong. Same authorities as above.

4. Reg. v. Kenilworth, 7 Q. B. 642; 53 E. C. L. 642; Taylor v. Riggs, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 591; Witter v. Latham, 12 Conn. 392; overruling Coleman v. Wolcott, 4 Day (Conn.) 6; Dormady v. State Bank, 3 Ill. 236; Loewe v. Reismann, 8 Ill. 525; Donelson v. Taylor, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 390; Ratliff v. Huntly, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 545; Graff v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 31 Pa. St. 489.

See generally LOST PAPERS, vol. 13, p. 1059.

In Witter v. Latham, 12 Conn. 392, the court, by Waite, J., said: "It is the peculiar province of the court to decide upon the admissibility of evidence; and it is for the jury to weigh and consider that evidence when received. But the court cannot legally admit secondary evidence of the contents of a written instrument in consequence of the loss of that instrument, until it has found the fact of the loss. The court must, in the first place, decide that question; and having decided it, there is a manifest impropriety in referring the same question again to the jury, and in suffering them to review a decision which the court has been by law required to make."

5. Hull v. Lyon, 27 Mo. 570; Cleave v. Jones, 7 Exch. 421.

See PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS.

6. See a remark of Lord Ellenborough, Rex v. Hucks, 1 Stark. 521; 2 E. C. L. 199; State v. Elliott, 45 Iowa 486; 2 Am. Cr. Rep. 322; State v. Molisse, 36 La. Ann. 920. Contra, Rex v. Woodcock, 2 Leach C. C. 563, where Eyre, C. B., left the question to the jury. But this case, according to Mr. Taylor, is virtually overruled. 1 Taylor's Ev. (8th ed.), § 23, note.

See DYING DECLARATIONS, vol. 6, p. 128.

7. Cliquot's Champagne, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 114, 140; Clayton v. Anthony, 6 Rand. (Va.) 285.

8. See CONFESSIONS, vol. 3, p. 465; 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 219; 1 Taylor's Ev. (8th ed.), § 872; Whart. Cr. Ev. (9th ed.), § 689; 1 Thomp. Tr., § 328; Rex v. Garner, 1 Den. C. C. 329; 2 Car. & K. 920; 61 E. C. L. 920; Rex v. Waringham, 2 Den. C. C. 447, note, per Parke, B.; Runnels v. State, 28 Ark. 121; Wallace v. State, 28 Ark. 531; Simon v. State, 5 Fla. 285; Whaley v. State, 11 Ga. 125; Brown v. State, 71 Ind. 470; State v. Fidment, 30 Iowa 541; Hector v. State, 2 Mo. 166; State v. Squires, 48 N. H. 364; State v. Vann, 82 N. Car. 631; State v. Efler, 85 N. Car. 585; State v. Burgwyn, 87 N. Car. 572; Ruffer v. State, 25 Ohio St. 464; Fife v. Com., 29 Pa. St. 429; Boyd v. State, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 39; Carter v. State, 37 Tex. 362. Contra, Garrard v. State, 50 Miss. 147, holding that where there is a conflict of testimony as to whether a confession was voluntary, it is a question of fact for the jury to determine.

In several Massachusetts cases the question of the inducement of the confession was left to the jury. Com. v. Cuffee, 108 Mass. 285; Com. v. Cullen, 111 Mass. 435; Com. v. Smith, 119 Mass. 305; Com. v. Piper, 120 Mass. 185. But in the latest as well as in several early cases, the question was properly decided by the court. Com. v. Chabcock, 1 Mass. 144; Com. v. Taylor, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 605; Com. v. Tuckerman, 10 Gray (Mass.) 173; Com. v. Morey, 1 Gray (Mass.) 461; Com. v. Morrell, 99 Mass. 542; Com. v. Culver, 126 Mass. 464. Thus in the last case the court by Lord, J., said: "We are aware that it is not an uncommon practice in the trial of criminal causes, when confessions of a defendant are offered in evidence and objected to upon the ground that they were improperly obtained, for the presiding judge to allow the confessions, and all the evidence bearing upon the manner in which they were obtained to be submitted to the jury either to be rejected by the jury wholly, or to be allowed such weight as under all the circumstances the jury deem it proper to give them. This, however, as we understand it, is rather by consent than otherwise, neither party desiring to take the decision of the presiding judge upon the question of competency. There may be, however, and commonly are, two questions: first, the competency of the evidence, and, secondly, the weight of the evidence; the former is always a question of law, and the latter is always a question of fact. The prisoner has always the right to require of the judge a decision of the competency of the evidence, and even after the judge has decided the evidence to be competent, the prisoner has the right to ask of the jury to disregard it, and to give no weight to it because of the circumstances under which the confessions were obtained. In the case at bar, however, the counsel for the prisoner insisted upon their right to have the judge decide upon the competency of the evidence, and tendered evidence of its incompetency; this evidence it was the duty of the presiding judge to hear. The evidence having been tendered at a stage of the case in which it was the duty of the defendants to offer it, and the presiding judge having refused to hear it at that time, the exception to his refusal to hear it must be sustained."

In Brown v. State, 71 Ind. 470, the court by Worden, J., said: "It is a general if not a universal rule of law that it is for the court to determine the competency of evidence. And the competency should be determined before the evidence goes to the jury, because, if incompetent, it should not go to the jury at all. When the competency of evidence depends upon extrinsic facts, as in this case upon the question whether the confessions were made under the influence of fear produced by threats, how can the court determine the question of competency without hearing the evidence offered on that subject? Doubtless, confessions of the defendants are prima facie competent; but when objection is made by the defendant to their competency, and evidence is offered by him in support of the objection, the court cannot determine the question without hearing the evidence; nor can it relegate the question to the jury, for it is the first duty of the court to pass upon it in the first instance, before the evidence can legally go to the jury. It seems to us to be clear, on principle as well as authority, that the court erred in refusing to hear the evidence offered by the defendant to show that the confessions were made under the influence of fear produced by threats."

In Simon v. State, 5 Fla. 285, the court by Semmes, J., said: "The second assignment of error is, that the court below left it to the jury to determine whether the confession of the accused was voluntary or not. It was undoubtedly the province of the court to determine in the first instance as to the admissibility of these confessions. There is a manifest distinction between the questions, whether a confession be voluntary or not, and the credit and weight to be given the evidence establishing the confessions. The one is as exclusively a question for the court as the other is for the jury, for it is only when the confession is voluntary that it becomes legal evidence, and can be submitted to the consideration of the jury. It oftentimes may become a question of no little embarrassment to determine whether the confession is voluntary or not, but still the law has proposed the exercise of this power in the court, and it cannot be delegated to the jury. Their province is widely different; they are not concluded by the confessions when submitted to them, for they are to determine not only the weight and credit to be given the testimony of the witnesses who depose as to the confessions, but the credit to be given to the confessions themselves. We do not consider this to be an open question. There is no conflict of authorities on the subject, and the doctrine is universally acquiesced in by the English and American courts."

In regard to the finality of the judge's decision on the facts relating to a confession, the court in Fife v. Com., 20 Pa. St., 429, 437, observed by Lewis, C. J.: "In 1792, when Chief Justice McKean was presiding, the Supreme Court of this State declared that 'the true point for consideration is whether the prisoner has falsely declared himself guilty of a capital crime.' In deciding this point, the chief question is whether the inducement held out was calculated to make the confession an untrue one. If not, it will be admissible. This is a question of fact to be determined, in the first instance, by the court. In the great variety of circumstances existing in the numerous cases reported, it is natural that there should be some diversity in the decisions upon them. But the principle is well settled that where the admissibility of evidence depends upon a preliminary question of fact to be tried by the court, its decision is not to be reversed unless in a case of clear and manifest error. The court that sees and hears the witnesses must be presumed to have better means of judging on a question of fact than the appellate tribunal, where the witnesses are neither seen nor heard, and where it often happens that their testimony is very imperfectly reported." But it is submitted that the true rule is that laid down in the text above, and ante,

p. 628, n. 2, viz., that the judge's determination of the facts is not reviewable at all. And see accordingly State v. Squires, 48 N. H. 364, where the court by Bellows, J., said: "If then the judge who tried the cause, in view of all the circumstances disclosed, with the witness before him, found that these confessions were not made under the influence of a promise or holding out of favor, we should not be justified in disturbing the verdict on that account. This question was one of fact to be determined by the court which tried the cause. . . . In deciding it, the court will take into consideration the age, character, and situation of the prisoner at the time the confession was made; whether he was under arrest for the alleged offence or not; and generally will consider all the circumstances bearing upon the question, whether his confessions were made under the influence of fear or the hope of favor. It is obvious also that what might affect one person greatly, might have no effect whatever upon another. So in weighing the evidence on this point, much may depend upon the appearance of the witness who is to testify to the confessions, and his manner of stating what inducements were held out, if any; and from the nature of the case the decision of the court may in many cases be greatly and properly influenced by circumstances in the appearance of the witness or the respondent, that could not be reported for the consideration of the whole court. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the decision of the court who tried the cause ought not to be reversed, unless a case of clear and manifest error is made out. . . . The case here stands much like the finding of a jury on a question of fact; and we are not aware of any reason why it should not be so. Whether the confession of the prisoner was voluntary or not, is purely a question of fact; as much so as the question whether a witness offered to testify was interested or not, or whether a witness was qualified to testify as an expert, or whether the loss of a paper has been shown so as to allow the introduction of secondary evidence of its contents. In this and the like cases, the judge who tries the cause must decide, although in some instances he may submit the question of fact to the jury. In either case, whether the decision be by the judge alone, or it be also passed upon by the jury, no exception lies so far as the question

But the facts being settled, whether they amount to such threats or promises as will exclude the confession, is a question of law, which, on exception, may be reviewed by an appellate court.¹ So where evidence is offered of acts done in places other than the place in dispute, it is for the judge to decide in the first instance whether there is such a unity of character in the different parts as to render evidence affecting a part not in dispute admissible with reference to the part in dispute, and whether the acts relied on amount to evidence of ownership.² And, finally, the judge must determine the facts which form the necessary basis for admitting or excluding leading questions.³

b. OTHER MATTERS OF FACT.—Facts shown by the records of the court are ascertained by the judge upon an inspection of the records, and are not submitted to the jury, the reason being that the judge is more familiar with the court records, and more competent to judge of their meaning than the jury can be.⁴ But is one of fact. If, however, upon the evidence reported by the judge, it clearly appears that there was error in his finding upon the matter of fact, it may be corrected as in other cases where the verdict is against evidence."

1. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 328, citing State v. Andrew, Phil. (N. Car.) 205; State v. Burgwyn, 87 N. Car. 572.

2. Doe v. Kemp, 7 Bing. 332; 20 E. C. L. 150, per Bosanquet, J.

3. Bundy v. Hyde, 50 N. H. 116, where the court by Foster, J., said: "The discretion to admit leading questions can only be exercised in a proper case, that is, a case falling within the exceptions to the general rule excluding such questions. Those exceptions are numerous, but so well defined that there can be little danger of error in the recognition of them. . . . And notwithstanding these exceptions or conditions thus prescribed by law are requisite to the admissibility of a leading question, still it is for the presiding judge, at the trial of the cause, to find, as matter of fact, whether, in a given case, the condition prescribed by the law is fulfilled; and from his decision, unless the question of discretion be expressly reserved, there can be no appeal. By discretion—judicial discretion—we mean the exercise of final judgment by the court in the decision of such questions of fact as, from their nature and the circumstances of the case, come peculiarly within the province of the presiding judge to determine, without the intervention and to the exclusion of the functions of a jury."

4. Records.—1 Thomp. Tr., § 1029;

Rex v. Hucks, 1 Stark. 521; 2 E. C. L. 198; Lewis v. Armstrong, 64 Ga. 645.

Thus, a plea of nul tiel record is always tried by the court, and not by the jury. 4 Minor's Inst. (2d ed.) *68, *922; Boteler v. State, 8 Gill & J. (Md.) 359; Hall v. Williams, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 232; Ridley v. Buchanan, 2 Swan (Tenn.) 555.

So, dates fixed by the records of the court may be stated to the jury as facts. Andrews v. Graves, 1 Dill. (U. S.) 108.

So, when the law authorizes a tender to be made by paying money into court, the judge will inform himself whether the money has been paid in, and need not submit that question to the jury. Newton v. Allis, 16 Wis. 197.

So, upon the hearing of a motion to enter an order nunc pro tunc, the court is to decide whether the order was in fact made, though not entered of record at the time claimed, and is not to submit the question to a jury. Lewis v. Armstrong, 64 Ga. 645.

In Rex v. Hucks, 1 Stark. 521; 2 E. C. L. 198, which was a trial for perjury, the question arose whether a word in a record produced, which was written above an erasure, was meeting or mutiny. Lord Ellenborough ruled that it was not a question for the jury, the inspection of a record being within the peculiar province of the court. But since the deciphering of illegible words in writings falls properly within the province of the jury (infra, p. 655, n. 1), the above decision may be questioned. "We apprehend," says Judge Thompson (1 Thomp. Tr., §1001), "that this last decision is unsound in principle; for the

where the record in a former lawsuit between two parties was introduced as a bar to a subsequent action, and extrinsic evidence was necessary in order to ascertain what issues were actually tried and determined, it was held that such evidence must go to the jury.¹

c. JUDGE CHARGING JURY AS TO FACTS.—Since, as we have seen, it is the exclusive province of the jury to determine all questions of fact, it will be error for the judge to charge the jury upon the facts.²

III. MIXED QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT.—The courts frequently speak of a given question as being “a mixed question of law and fact,” or as being “for the jury under the instructions of the court.” These expressions, when used alone, seem inadequate, in that they do not mark out the limits of the respective provinces of the court and jury in respect of the matter in controversy,—failing in the one case to indicate how much of the question is for the court and how much for the jury, and in the other leaving the functions of the court and jury equally unsettled by omitting to discriminate the nature of the instructions that should be given. It is the endeavor of the present article to avoid, in some measure, the ambiguity mentioned above.

By “a mixed question of law and fact,” it is meant that the controversy involves undetermined points of both fact and law, and not merely that it consists of law and fact mingled together; for, according to the view elsewhere taken, all questions that arise in courts are composed of law and fact commingled, and whether the facts, or the law, or both, are undetermined, is immaterial. If both are in dispute, furnishing a so-called mixed question of law and fact, either the jury must determine the facts in a special verdict, upon which the court determines the law that governs the facts; or what is more usual, the court, by means of instructions, determines the law applicable to the various groups of facts presented by the evidence, and the jury, ascertaining which of the supposed groups exists, embody categorically in their verdict the hypothetical conclusion of law previously pronounced by the judge.³

reading of a word in a writing is matter of fact, and not matter of law; and although it may properly be committed to the judge in civil cases, yet in a criminal case, where the essential question of criminal intent may depend upon it, and consequently where the whole question of guilt or innocence may turn upon it, it is manifestly an invasion of the province of the jury for the judge to withdraw its decision from them.”

1. Foye v. Patch, 132 Mass. 105. Compare Burten v. Shannon, 14 Gray (Mass.) 433, 438-9.

2. See INSTRUCTIONS, vol. 11, p. 236.

3. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1031; Fourth Nat.

Bank v. Heuschen, 52 Mo. 207; Marshall v. Schricker, 63 Mo. 308, 311.

In Fourth Nat. Bank v. Heuschen, 52 Mo. 207, 209, the court by Adams, J., said: “Where the facts are agreed on, due diligence in making a demand is a question of law; but when the facts are not agreed on, the question of due diligence becomes a mixed question of law and fact. That is, the jury are to find the facts, and the court is to pronounce the law upon the facts as they may be found by the jury. The usual way is to state in the instruction hypothetically the facts to be found from the evidence by the jury, and to pronounce upon those facts so to be found, the conclusion of law resulting therefrom.”

And the jury have no power to do otherwise, either in civil or in criminal cases.¹

IV. VARIOUS CLASSES OF QUESTIONS—1. Existence—a. OF FACTS.—To determine the existence of facts is the essential function of juries. No authorities are necessary.²

b. OF LAWS AND ORDINANCES.—Whether a law exists or not is a question for the court; and hence whether an act of the legislature was duly passed with the concurrence of the requisite majority of the members of both houses, and in conformity with all other requirements of the Constitution of the State, so as to become a valid enactment, is a question of law for the court, and not a question of fact for the jury; and in determining the question, the judge may, according to the weight of authority, resort to the written records of the legislature, so far as they disclose the steps which took place in the passage of the statute in question,³ or to any other source of information which, in its nature, is capable of answering such question clearly and satisfactorily.⁴ So also

1. See supra the title, Jury as Judges of the Law.

2. One or two examples may be given:—

Whether a contingency, upon the happening of which the payment of a draft is conditioned, has occurred, is a question for the jury. Nagle v. Homer, 8 Cal. 353.

Whether a husband carrying on a farm owned by his wife and held by her to her own use, occupying with her the dwelling house thereon, taking the crops annually, and having the general management of the premises, is a tenant or servant of the wife, is a question of fact. State v. Hayes, 59 N. H. 450; Albin v. Lord, 39 N. H. 196. Compare Bickford v. Dane, 58 N. H. 185.

The question which of two instruments was first executed, when one of them is not dated, and they do not refer to each other, is a question of fact. Coons v. Chambers, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 439.

Whether a contract has been performed, or its performance waived, will be, in most cases, for the jury, under instructions as to whether specific acts, brought out in evidence, do or do not constitute a performance or waiver. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1141; Spalding v. Hallenbeck, 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 80.

In a contest touching the title to a chattel, whether it was given or loaned to one of the parties, is a question of fact for a jury; and in such case the gift, if it took place, having been by parol, the court should instruct the jury as to what, in law, is necessary to the parol gift of a chattel. Respass v. Young, 11 Ga. 114.

Where an intestate promised to pay the plaintiff, who was his sister, after his death, a certain sum per year, for the time during which she should live with him and keep house for him, and the consideration was understood by the parties to be in part for the services to be rendered by her, and in part a desire to make her a mortuary gift from motives of affection, it was held that it was a question for the jury what portion of the stipulated sum was to be paid in consideration of her services, and what portion as a mere gratuity; that she was entitled to recover the former, but not the latter, since the right to the former rested upon a good consideration, but the recovery of the latter would contravene the policy of the Statute of Wills; and that the jury should have been specifically instructed to this effect." Frost v. Frost, 33 Vt. 639.

Whether a right of way has been acquired or not by an uninterrupted user for twenty-one years, is a question for the jury. Steffy v. Carpenter, 37 Pa. St. 41.

3. See CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, vol. 3, p. 675; JUDICIAL NOTICE, vol. 12, p. 159, note 2; 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1053; Cool. Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 162-3; 37 Alb. L. J. 428-33, 449-55.

4. Gardner v. Collector, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 499, 511, per Miller, J.

the existence of a city ordinance is to be proved by evidence addressed to the court, and not to the jury.¹

c. OF FOREIGN LAWS.—Whether the existence of a foreign law is a question for the court, or is to be proved to the jury as a fact, is a point on which there is conflict of opinion, the better view apparently being that it is a question for the jury.² If, however, there are statutes allowing courts to take judicial notice of foreign laws, and providing that foreign law books may be received as evidence of such laws, the question of the existence of foreign law falls within the province of the court, and not of the jury.³

d. OF CUSTOMS.—The existence of a legal custom or usage, and the extent to which it prevails, are questions of fact for the jury, provided the custom is not of a character so general as to be a matter of common knowledge, and subject to judicial notice.⁴

e. OF CONTRACTS—(1) Express Contracts.—Where a contract is wholly in writing, it is the function of the court, in declaring the effect of the instrument, to say whether or not it amounts to a con-

1. Roulo v. Valcour, 58 N. H. 347.

2. FOREIGN LAWS, vol. 8, p. 438; 1 Whart. Ev. (3d ed.), § 303.

Supporting the view that foreign laws are to be proved to the jury as other facts, are the following authorities: 1 Taylor Ev. (8th ed.), §§ 5, 48; Best's Ev. (Am. ed.), § 33; Millar v. Heinrick, 4 Camp. 155; Consequa v. Willing, 1 Pet. (C. C.) 225; Brackett v. Norton, 4 Conn. 517, 521; Dyer v. Smith, 12 Conn. 384; Kilgore v. Bulkley, 14 Conn. 362, 387; Hale v. New Jersey Steam Nav. Co., 15 Conn. 539; De Sobry v. De Laistre, 2 Har. & J. (Md.) 191, 219; Trasher v. Everhart, 3 Gill & J. (Md.) 234; Cecil Bank v. Barry, 20 Md. 287; Baltimore & Ohio R. Co. v. Glenn, 28 Md. 287, 323; Zimmerman v. Helser, 32 Md. 274; Holman v. King, 7 Met. (Mass.) 384; Kline v. Baker, 99 Mass. 253; Hazelton v. Valentine, 113 Mass. 472, 478; Ely v. James, 123 Mass. 36, 44; Charlotte v. Chouteau, 33 Mo. 194; Cobb v. Griffith, etc., Co., 87 Mo. 90, 94; Francis v. Ocean Ins. Co., 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 404, 429; State v. Jackson, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 566; Moore v. Gwynn, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 187; Hooper v. Moore, 5 Jones (N. Car.) 130; Ingraham v. Hart, 11 Ohio 255. Contra, holding that the proof must be made to the court, 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 486; Story's Conf. Laws, § 638; Charlotte v. Chouteau, 25 Mo. 465, 474; Pickard v. Bailey, 6 Post. (N. H.) 152; Ferguson v. Clifford, 37 N. H. 86; Hall v. Costello, 48 N. H. 176, 179; 2 Am. Rep. 207; Bock v. Lauman, 24 Pa. St. 435.

When the existence of a foreign law is necessary to be determined in order to the admission or exclusion of evidence, the question becomes one for the court. See supra the title, Preliminary Questions Touching Admissibility of Evidence; Trasher v. Everhart, 3 Gill & J. (Md.) 234; Wilson v. Carson, 12 Md. 54, 75.

3. Woodstock v. Hooker, 6 Conn. 35; Hale v. New Jersey Steam Nav. Co., 15 Conn. 539; Lockwood v. Crawford, 18 Conn. 361. Compare FOREIGN LAWS, vol. 8, p. 437, note 4. And see Owings v. Hull, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 607.

4. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1058; Parker v. Ibbetson, 4 C. B. N. S. 346; 93 E. C. L. 345; The Cadmus v. Matthews, 2 Paine (U. S.) 229; Colman v. Clements, 23 Cal. 245; Branch v. Palmer, 65 Ga. 210; Chicago Packing, etc., Co. v. Tilton, 87 Ill. 547; Grove v. Brien, 1 Md. 438; Burroughs v. Langley, 10 Md. 248; Chesapeake Bank v. Swain, 29 Md. 483; Steamboat General Worth v. Hopkins, 30 Miss. 703; Kuhtman v. Brown, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 479; Steamboat Sultana v. Chapman, 5 Wis. 454.

But if the custom in question would, if established, be unreasonable, the court will refuse to submit the question of its existence to the jury. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 1570, citing Bourke v. James, 4 Mich. 336.

See generally USAGES AND CUSTOMS.

tract.¹ But whether or not a given contract exists, in cases where it is attempted to be made out wholly or in part by oral evidence, is a question for the jury,—the court informing them as to the legal nature of a contract.² Where, however, the alleged agreement is in writing and is admitted to have been made by the parties, it is for the court to declare whether in effect it amounts to a contract or not.³ And so, although the question whether a partnership exists, is sometimes said to be a question for the jury,⁴ the true rule is that the jury ascertain only the facts, including the relation of the parties to the alleged contract, and it is for the court to say of any given state of facts whether in effect they amount to the legal relation defined in law as a partnership.⁵ The decision of the court is generally given, as so frequently in other cases, through instructions.⁶

(a) Date.—The date at which a deed is delivered, which is only prima facie the time when it bears date, is, of course, to be determined by the jury.⁷

1. Goddard v. Foster, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 123.

2. Bolckow v. Seymour, 17 C. B. N. S. 107; 112 E. C. L. 106; Haney v. Caldwell, 35 Ark. 156; Walthelm v. Artz, 70 Iowa 609; Farwell v. Tillson, 76 Me. 227; Globe Works v. Wright, 106 Mass. 207, 216; Cunningham v. Cambridge Sav. Bank, 138 Mass. 480; Sines v. Superintendents of Poor, 55 Mich. 383; Farley v. Pettes, 5 Mo. App. 262; DeRidder v. McKnight, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 204; Smalley v. Hendrickson, 29 N. J. L. 371; Stokes v. Burrill, 3 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 241; Russell v. Arthur, 17 S. Car. 477.

Whether an alleged written contract was entered into by a party or not, is a question for the jury. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cassell, 17 Ill. 394; Sigsworth v. McIntyre, 18 Ill. 128; May v. Burk, 80 Mo. 680.

Where the whole evidence in a case presents a disputed question of fact, whether the contract was parol or in writing, evidence may be received both as to that precise question, and as to the verbal declarations and acts of the parties which are claimed to have constituted the alleged parol contract, and also as to the contents of the alleged written instrument; and then it may be left to the jury to say whether the contract was written or parol, with instructions that if they first find that it was reduced to writing, they must afterwards, in determining the terms of the contract, consider only that part of the evidence which tends to show the contents of such writing. Jenness v. Berry, 17 N. H. 549.

When an obligation appearing upon its face to be independent, is sought, by facts connected with the transaction, to be made dependent on the performance of another contract, such facts should be averred and proved; and it will be for the jury to determine whether the contracts of the parties were dependent. Younger v. Welch, 22 Tex. 417.

Whether a novation of a contract has taken place or not, is a question for the jury. See NOVATION, vol. 16, pp. 873, 897, 906; Brown v. Kirk, 20 Mo. App. 524.

3. See infra the title, Interpretation and Construction; Eyser v. Weissgerber, 2 Iowa 463.

4. McMullan v. Mackenzie, 2 Greene (Iowa) 368; McDonald v. Matney, 82 Mo. 358. And see Kahn v. Central Smelting Co., 2 Utah 371.

5. Doggett v. Jordan, 2 Fla. 541, 549; Cumpston v. McNair, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 457, 463; Dulany v. Elford, 22 S. Car. 304, 308.

6. Doggett v. Jordan, 2 Fla. 541, 549; Dulany v. Elford, 22 S. Car. 304, 308.

7. See DATE, vol. 5, p. 78; Barry v. Hoffman, 6 Md. 78; Genter v. Morrisson, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 155.

As to the date at which a deed is recorded, see Budd v. Brooke, 3 Gill (Md.) 198, 231, where the court by Dorsey, J., said: "The time of recording of a deed is sometimes a matter to be determined by the court, and sometimes a question to be submitted to the finding

(b) Consideration.—Whether a consideration has been satisfactorily proved, is for the jury to decide.¹ When the illegality of consideration of a contract is apparent on its face, it is the province of the court to exclude it from evidence;² or if the facts in regard to the consideration are undisputed, it is for the court to say whether the instrument is valid or not.³ If, however, the facts are contested, the question must go to the jury, under proper instructions as to the conclusions of law arising out of the facts.⁴

(c) Signature.—The genuineness of a signature is a question for the jury.⁵

(d) Seal.—Whether an instrument be under seal or not, is a question for the judge.⁶

(e) Delivery.—As a deed is not operative until delivered, the question of delivery is to be settled in order to determine whether the contract exists. Whether a deed has been delivered, has been variously said to be a question of law,⁷ a question of fact,⁸ and a of a jury. If it plainly appears, from indorsements officially made upon a deed, or its exemplification, that it has not been recorded within the time prescribed by law, and there is no admissible evidence in contravention of such indorsements, then the admissibility of a deed or its exemplification, in evidence, is determined by the court without any reference on the subject to the jury. But if there be such admissible contravening testimony, as to the time of the recording of the deed, legally sufficient to be left to the jury, to warrant them in finding that the deed was recorded in due time, then is the question, as to the time of recording of the deed, to be submitted, with a hypothetical instruction from the court, to the jury."

1. Western Massachusetts Ins. Co. v. Duffy, 2 Kan. 347; Swain v. Etting, 32 Pa. St. 486.

And so it has been held that in order to render binding a promise (made in consideration of forbearance) to pay the debt of another, it must be proved that the promise was made for the purpose of obtaining time, that time was actually given, and that the indulgence thus accorded was in pursuance of the request implied by the promise,—and that all of these are questions of fact. And so whether actual forbearance, following a promise in consideration thereof, is an acceptance of the promise, is a question for the jury. Edgerton v. Weaver, 105 Ill. 43, 46.

2. Craig v. Andrews, 7 Iowa 17, 22; Danforth v. Evans, 16 Vt. 538.

3. Porter v. Havens, 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 343.

4. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1138; Craig v. Andrews, 7 Iowa 17, 23.

5. Magee v. Osborn, 32 N. Y. 669. And see 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 577; Garrells v. Alexander, 4 Esp. 37; Eagleton v. Kingston, 8 Ves. 464, 473; State v. Scott, 45 Mo. 305; State v. Clinton, 67 Mo. 384; Utica Ins. Co. v. Badger, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 162.

See generally SIGNATURE.

6. Schwarz v. Herrenkind, 26 Ill. 208.

But whether the seal is that of a particular party, as of a corporation, is a question for the jury. Crossman v. Hilltown Turnpike Co., 3 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 225.

And on the question as to the alteration of an instrument by affixing a seal, the jury may decide. Schwarz v. Herrenkind, 26 Ill. 208.

See generally SEAL.

7. See generally DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 445, et seq.; Rogers v. Carey, 47 Mo. 232. But in this case the facts were undisputed. "Where the facts are undisputed," said the court by Bliss, J., "their legal effect is a question of law, upon which the court may be required to pass."

8. Garnons v. Knight, 8 B. & R. 348; 5 B. & C. 471; Bensley v. Atwill, 12 Cal. 232; Hibberd v. Smith, 67 Cal. 547; Dearmond v. Dearmond, 10 Ind. 191, 194; O'Kelly v. O'Kelly, 8 Met. (Mass.) 436, 439; Parker v. Dustin, 2 Fost. (N. H.) 424; Lawton v. Sager, 11

mixed question of law and fact.¹ The true rule seems to be that the jury are to ascertain the facts alleged to constitute the delivery, together with the intent underlying them, and the court is to declare, generally by instructions, whether such facts amount, in effect, to a legal delivery of the deed.² In practice, however, the question generally requires no more than a determination of the facts;³ and this seems to be the meaning of the cases which hold that the question of delivery is for the jury.⁴ Whether a deed, or

Barb. (N. Y.) 351; Crain v. Wright, 36 Hun (N. Y.) 77; Floyd v. Taylor, 12 Ired. (N. Car.) 47; Hannah v. Swarner, 8 Watts (Pa.) 9; 34 Am. Dec. 442; Van Hook v. Walton, 28 Tex. 59.

In Hibbard v. Smith, 67 Cal. 547, 551, the court by Thornton, J., said: "The act, solemn and authentic, done in writing in form apt for the conveyance of land, with signature and seal, does not take effect as a deed until delivery with intent that it shall so operate. The elements going to make up such a paper all constitute an act, factum, or deed, but not complete until the paper has been delivered with the intent above mentioned. The intent with which it is delivered is all-important. This restricts or enlarges the effect of the instrument. It may be delivered to another person as a mere custodian, or to such person to be kept by him and delivered to a third person on a condition performed, or the happening of a certain event, or it may be delivered that it may have full operation as the deed of the party delivering it. This may be done in various modes. It is impossible to state a priori in exact terms what shall or shall not constitute a delivery, that the paper may have its full operation as a deed. It is to a great extent a matter of fact depending upon intent, and under such circumstances the intent as evidencing what the maker of the instrument meant to do, must be found from the circumstances of the transaction, the res gestæ, and while some general rules may be and are laid down in regard to it to ascertain such intent, the intent must be found as a fact, and cannot always be determined as matter of law. There are some cases in which the intent is so plainly indicated by the res gestæ that but one conclusion can be deduced. Take the case of the delivery of such an instrument to a third person as a mere custodian for the party giving it, its solution is plain that there is no delivery of the paper to make it operative as a deed. Take another case of such a paper handed by the grantor to the grantee, with the declaration, this is my act and deed, a delivery would be so plainly intended that no other conclusion could be reached. A third case of the delivery of such an instrument by the maker to a third person with directions to keep it and hand it to a person named as grantee in it, on the payment by him of a sum of money, the payment of the sum of money and the tradition of the paper as directed having been made, no other result could be reached than that the paper became by such delivery an operative conveyance. These cases are simple, but in other cases where the intent is to be inferred from circumstances in their very nature equivocal, the solution as to delivery or not becomes one of difficulty, and depends so much on the subjective state of the mind of person or persons trying the issue produced by the evidence of the attending circumstances, that the law can lay down no certain rule on the subject. It then becomes a question of fact, and if there is evidence tending to sustain the finding of the court a qua, this court will not disturb it. This is settled, that delivery is not complete until the person delivering (grantor) has so dealt with the instrument delivered as to lose all control over it. And whether he has so dealt with the instrument depends upon the intent to be deduced from all the surrounding circumstances, the res gestæ."

1. Burke v. Adams, 80 Mo. 504; 50 Am. Rep. 510; Hurlburt v. Wheeler, 40 N. H. 73.

2. Earle v. Earle, 20 N. J. L. 347; Hannah v. Swarner, 8 Watts (Pa.) 9; 34 Am. Dec. 442; Lindsay v. Lindsay, 11 Vt. 621. And compare Rogers v. Carey, 47 Mo. 232.

3. Hurlburt v. Wheeler, 40 N. H. 73.

4. See note 8, p. 637.

other instrument, was delivered as an escrow, is generally a question of fact for the jury.¹

(f) Acceptance.—In respect to the acceptance of a deed, the doctrine is the same as in reference to the delivery.²

(2) Implied Contracts.—Whether a promise, under any given circumstances, is implied by the law, is a question for the court.³ When the law does not imply a promise, the question whether the parties intended that compensation should be given, so as to justify a recovery upon a quantum meruit, is for the jury to answer.⁴

2. Constitutionality, Legality, Validity.—The constitutionality of laws or ordinances is a question exclusively for the court.⁵ The validity of the regulations and by-laws of a corporation is to be determined by the court,⁶ and to submit such a question to the jury is improper.⁷ Moreover, whether a given custom is valid or invalid, is always a question of law for the court, and should not be left to the jury.⁸ So it is for the judge to pass upon the validity of a judicial record,⁹ and of an assignment,¹⁰ and to determine whether a contract is invalid as being against public policy,¹¹

1. Ricketts v. Pendleton, 14 Md. 329; Jaquith v. Hudson, 5 Mich. 123; Scott v. Pentz, 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 572.

Thus, where a contract in duplicate was left by parties with a third person, and the evidence as to the arrangement for its subsequent delivery, and the terms upon which it was to become operative, was conflicting, it was held that the question of the terms and conditions upon which the contract was to become operative, was one of fact for the jury, depending upon the intention of the parties to be gathered from the whole transaction. Jaquith v. Hudson, 5 Mich. 123.

See generally, ESCROW, vol. 6, p. 857.

2. See Bensley v. Atwill, 12 Cal. 232; Earle v. Earle, 20 N. J. L. 347.

See generally DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 445.

3. Prickett v. Badger, 1 C. B. N. S. 296; 87 E. C. L. 295; commenting upon De Bernardy v. Harding, 8 Exch. 822; 22 L. J. Exch. 340. Compare Pitts v. Pitts, 21 Ind. 309; Smith v. Denman, 48 Ind. 65; Hilbish v. Hilbish, 71 Ind. 27; Boyer v. Riley, 41 Iowa 13; Ayres v. Hull, 5 Kan. 419; Greenwell v. Greenwell, 28 Kan. 678; Gordner v. Hefley, 49 Pa. St. 163.

4. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1154; Le Sage v. Coussmaker, 3 Esp. 187; Osborne v. Governors of Guy's Hospital, 2 Str. 728; Myers v. Malcom, 20 Ill. 621; Guild v. Guild, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 129; Strong v. Saunders, 15 Mich. 339; In re Young, 39 Mich. 429; Bickford v. Dane, 58 N. H. 185; Jacobson v. La Grange, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 199; Quackenbush v.

Ehle, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 469; Robinson v. Raynor, 28 N. Y. 497; 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 131.

Thus, where parents lived with a step-son, it is proper for a jury to decide, upon all the facts, whether it was the intention of the parties that the parents should pay board, or whether they lived upon the hospitality of their relative. Myers v. Malcom, 20 Ill. 621.

See generally, QUANTUM MERUIT.

5. See supra p. 620, n. 2; Peoria v. Calhoun, 29 Ill. 317; Maltus v. Shields, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 553.

6. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1057; St. Louis v. St. Louis R. Co., 14 Mo. App. 221; St. Louis v. Weber, 44 Mo. 547; State v. Overton, 24 N. J. L. 435, 440; Morris, etc., R. Co. ads. Ayres, 29 N. J. L. 353.

In Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. McLallen, 84 Ill. 109, 116, the court by Dickey, J., said: "Whether any given rule be reasonable, and therefore within the power of the corporation, or whether it be unreasonable, and therefore ultra vires, is a question of law for the courts. But whether such rules are adequate for the safety of the management of trains, is a question of fact, and was properly left to the jury."

See BY-LAWS, vol. 2, p. 708, note 1.

7. Neier v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 12 Mo. App. 25.

8. Chicago Packing, etc., Co. v. Tilton, 87 Ill. 547.

9. Sims v. Boynton, 32 Ala. 352, 360.

10. Snyder v. Kurtz, 61 Iowa 593.

11. Tallis v. Tallis, 1 E. & B. 391, 413; 72 E. C. L. 390, 413; Pierce v. Ran- and whether a will is invalid by reason of not having been executed with the proper formalities.¹ When the question is whether an instrument has upon its face been duly executed, the decision will, upon an inspection of the document, be made by the judge.² But where the validity of an instrument depends upon an extrinsic fact which is doubtful or disputed, as, whether a party to a contract was so intoxicated at the time of making it as to be entitled to rescind it after becoming sober, the question of validity is for the jury.³

3. Reasonableness—a. REASONABLE TIME.—It seems impossible, amid the large number of conflicting decisions, to lay down a general rule as to when the question of reasonable time is for the court and when for the jury. In many of the cases, it is said that where the facts are not in dispute, the question is purely one of law.⁴ Other authorities maintain that it is a question of dolph, 12 Tex. 290, 295, in which case the court by Hemphill, J., said: "It seems a new rule has been discovered (i. e., in the lower court) by which to test the validity of contracts, and that is, the belief of the jury with regard to their tendency to immorality and breaches of the peace, and this even where such contracts have been declared by the court of last resort to be valid in law, and to have all the force and efficacy which the law can impart to any contract. No doctrine more subversive of law and of private and public rights could have been devised. In fact it sets them afloat upon public sentiment, to fluctuate and rise and fall with the ebbs and flows of public opinion, and when brought to trial, to succeed or fail, not according to established rules of law, but upon the belief, the private opinions, or, in other words, the whims and caprices of the jury before whom they are presented. The most sacred rights, those most cherished by the law, may be frustrated and defeated, if, without any regard to the law, a justice of the peace with his jury might deem them against morals, good order, or public policy. Under this doctrine, not only would contracts for the sale of spirituous liquors, for public barbecues, or secular exhibitions of any kind, which would attract masses of people together, most likely be deemed nullities, but the regular physician might fail to recover for his rights and his services, if his rights were submitted to a jury of hydropathists, who might believe them to be dangerous to the health and life of the patient. The rights to lands, however clear, under patents and deeds, might suddenly be lost under the operation of agrarian principles by which the jury or some of them might be infected, and who, in their conscience, might believe that one hundred and sixty or three hundred and twenty acres were the extreme limit which should be allowed to any single individual, and to suffer more to be recovered or enjoyed would be destructive of the equal rights of others, and at war with sound public policy. But it is useless to multiply instances of the danger of such a doctrine. They will readily suggest themselves to any reflecting mind."

1. Riley v. Riley, 36 Ala. 496; Roe v. Tayler, 45 Ill. 485; Garner v. Lansford, 12 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 558, 561. Contra Watford v. Forester, 66 Ga. 738, holding that whether a will is signed and attested as required by law, is a question for the jury. This decision is characterized by Judge Thompson (1 Thomp. Tr. 829, note 1) as "an obvious judicial aberration."

2. Thus, whether a mortgage has been properly executed and acknowledged, is a question of law to be passed upon by the court, and it is error to leave such a question to the jury. Bullock v. Marrott, 49 Ill. 62.

3. Cummings v. Henry, 10 Ind. 109; Hanna v. Phillips, 1 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 253; Reynolds v. Dechaums, 24 Tex. 174.

See INTOXICATION AS A DEFENSE TO CONTRACTS, vol. 11, p. 776.

4. See generally REASONABLE; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Nunez v. Dautel, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 560; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Boyce, 73 Ill.

fact,¹ and still others, with convenient vagueness, characterize the question of reasonable time as "a mixed question of law and fact,"² or as "a question for the jury under the instructions of the court."³ On principle it would appear that if a statute or any positive rule of law prescribes the doing of an act within a reasonable time, it is the province of the court, in construing such law, to declare whether a given time is, within the intent or meaning of the law, a reasonable time.⁴ So, in the interpretation of a written 510; Gatling v. Newell, 8 Ind. 572, 577; Attwood v. Clark, 2 Me. 249; Kingsley v. Wallis, 14 Me. 57; Greene v. Dingley, 24 Me. 131; Ellis v. Paige, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 43; Holbrook v. Burt, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 546, 555; Derosia v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 18 Minn. 133; Bottom v. Moore, 13 Daly (N. Y.) 464; Sice v. Cunningham, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 397; Mohawk Bank v. Broderick, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 304; Roth v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548; 90 Am. Dec. 734; Hedges v. Hudson River R. Co., 49 N. Y. 225; Bennett v. Lycoming Mut. Ins. Co., 67 N. Y. 274; Bryden v. Bryden, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 187; Breuzer v. Wightman, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 264; Lancaster Bank v. Woodward, 18 Pa. St. 357, 362; Nudd v. Wells, 11 Wis. 407, 519.

1. Joy v. Sears, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 4; Derosia v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 18 Minn. 133; Johnson v. Whitman Agricultural Co., 20 Mo. App. 100; Gilhooly v. New York, etc., R. Co., 1 Daly (N. Y.) 197.

2. Bell v. Wardell, Willes 202; Davis v. Capper, 10 B. & C. 28, per Bayley & Parke, JJ.; 21 E. C. L. 20; 5 M. & R. 53; 4 C. & P. 134; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Boyce, 73 Ill. 510; Gatling v. Newell, 9 Ind. 572, 577; Derosia v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 18 Minn. 133; Roth v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548; 90 Am. Dec. 734; Chamberlain v. Fuller, 59 Vt. 247.

3. Field v. Nickerson, 13 Mass. 131, 137; Roth v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548; 90 Am. Dec. 734.

4. Stodden v. Harvey, Cro. Jac. 204; Co. Litt. 56, b; Benton v. Sutton, 1 B. & P. 24, 28; Sheibel v. Fairbain, 1 B. & P. 388; Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 167; 2 T. R. 186; Doe v. Smith, 2 T. R. 436; Hunt v. Royal Exchange Assurance Co., 5 M. & S. 47; Hurst v. Ray, 5 M. & C. 47; Startup v. Macdonald, 6 M. & G. 593, 623; 46 E. C. L. 591, 623; Standard Oil Co. v. Van Etten, 107 U. S. 325; Attwood v. Clark, 2 Me. 249; Kingsley v. Wallis, 14 Me.

57; Howe v. Huntingdon, 15 Me. 350, 354; Howe v. Nickels, 22 Me. 175; Greene v. Dingley, 24 Me. 131; Ellis v. Paige, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 43; Porter v. Blood, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 54; Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. 84; Bryden v. Bryden, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 187; Hughes v. Pipkin, Phil. (N. Car.) 4. And compare Scranton v. Stewart, 52 Ind. 68, 93; Hartman v. Kendall, 4 Ind. 403.

In Howe v. Huntingdon, 15 Me. 350, 354, the court by Shepley, J., said: "Where the law does not by the operation of any principle or established rule decide upon the legal quality of the simple facts, it is for the jury to draw the general inference of reasonable or unreasonable [time]. 1 Stark. Ev. 455. It is obvious that many of the cases would not be found to conform strictly to this rule. Its effect would be in some measure to relieve the court, while it would hardly carry out the design of Lord Mansfield in having rules established in all practicable cases by the court, for the purpose of affording settled views by which to be governed. It has evidently been the desire of the courts to decide themselves, where they could do so upon any rule which might become certain, and furnish a precedent for future cases. And it is in this way that the law in relation to demand and notice upon bills and promissory notes has become so well defined and exact. Where there is no certain time limited within which or from which the act is to be done, but it is to be accommodated in some degree to the interests of the party and the course of trade, as in the case of bills at sight and notes on demand; or where it may, in some measure, depend upon the state of the weather, as in the case of removal of goods distrained, or the tithe crop, it has been left to the jury to decide upon each case as it arises. Where there is a certain epoch, after which the act is to be performed as soon as it may be conveniently, without regard to one's interest, or to instrument specifying a reasonable time, the question what is such time, is one for the court to answer, after considering the terms of the instrument and the intent of the parties.¹ But an important qualification to both of the above principles is to be noted. If the question as to what is a reasonable time is not resolved expressly or impliedly by the rule of law, or by the writing, which is under consideration, so that the judge, in deciding the question, would have no legal ground, but merely his individual ideas to go upon; and especially if, in addition, the question depends in the individual case upon peculiar, numerous, or complicated circumstances,—the reasonableness of the time becomes a question for the jury, whose province it is, rather than that of the judge, to say, in view of all the facts of the case, whether or not the time in question is reasonable in the sense of being in accordance with the course of business and the ordinary transactions of life.² It has, however, the course of trade, or to other matters not within the control of human agency, the court may be able to come to a satisfactory conclusion for itself without the assistance of a jury."

Thus, in case of negotiable paper, what is a reasonable time for giving notice of dishonor is fixed by the mercantile law, and is consequently a question for the court. Tindal v. Brown, 1 T. R. 167; 2 T. R. 186; Howe v. Huntingdon, 15 Me. 350, 353; Hussey v. Freeman, 10 Mass. 84; Whitwell v. Johnson, 17 Mass. 449, 453; Bryden v. Bryden, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 187; Lamb v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 2 Daly (N. Y.) 454, 473. But see Hilton v. Shepherd, 6 East 14, note; Hopes v. Alder, 6 East 16.

But what is a reasonable time within which to present a bill for acceptance, or a demand bill or note for payment, depends upon circumstances, and is properly a question for the jury. Mullman v. D'Eguino, 2 H. Bl. 565; Fry v. Hill, 7 Taunt. 397; Wallace v. Agry, 4 Mason (U. S.) 336, 346-7; Howe v. Huntingdon, 15 Me. 350, 354; Wyman v. Adams, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 210; Salmon v. Grosvenor, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 160; Lancaster Bank v. Woodward, 18 Pa. St. 357, 362; Barbour v. Fullerton, 36 Pa. St. 105. Contra, Poorman v. Mills, 39 Cal. 345; Sice v. Cunningham, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 397; Carll v. Brown, 2 Mich. 401; Sylvester v. Crapo, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 92; Mohawk Bank v. Broderick, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 304 (presentment of check for payment). See note 2 below.

1. Hill v. Hobart, 16 Me. 164, 168.

And particularly when the question what is a reasonable time depends upon certain other controverted points, or involves the motives of the parties, must the question be submitted to a jury. Hill v. Hobart, 16 Me. 164, 168. And compare Stark. Ev. (9th. ed.) 769, where the author says: "The law cannot prescribe in general what shall be reasonable time by any defined combination of facts, so much does the question depend upon the situation of the parties, and the minute and peculiar circumstances incident to each case. If a man has a right, by contract or otherwise, to cut and take crops from the land of another, the law, it is obvious, can lay down no rule as to the precise time when they shall be cut and removed; all that can be done is to direct and imply that this shall be done in a reasonable and convenient time; and this must obviously depend upon the state of the weather and other circumstances which cannot, from their nature, form the basis of any legal rule or definition."

2. This statement is believed to be supported by a general view of the following cases: Parker v. Palmer, 4 B. & Ald. 387; 6 E. C. L. 529; Cave v. Mountain, 1 M. & G. 257; 39 E. C. L. 432; 1 Scott 132; Gillman v. Connor, 3 Jebb & S. 210; Mount v. Larkins, 8 Bing. 108; 21 E. C. L. 241; 1 Moo. & Sc. 165; Fry v. Hill, 7 Taunt. 397; Goodwyn v. Cheveley, 4 H. & N. 631; Burton v. Griffiths, 11 M. & W. 817; 824; Ellis v. Thompson, 3 M. & W. 445; 1 H. & H. 131; Facey v. Hurdom, 3 B. & C. 213; 10 E. C. L. 56; Pitt v.

Shew, 4 B. & Ald. 208; 6 E. C. L. 453; Graham v. Van Diemen's Land Co., 11 Exch. 100; 1 Jur. N. S. 806; Cocker v. Franklin, etc., Co., 3 Sumn. (U. S.) 530; Murrell v. Whiting, 32 Ala. 55, 65; Luckhart v. Ogden, 30 Cal. 548, 558; Simms v. Clark, 11 Ill. 137; Magee v. Carmack, 13 Ill. 289, 291-2; Kennedy v. Gibbs, 15 Ill. 406; Haywood v. Harmon, 17 Ill. 477; Union Nat. Bank v. Baldenwick, 45 Ill. 375; Davis v. Kenaga, 51 Ill. 170; Wiley v. Wilson, 77 Ind. 596; Mote v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 27 Iowa 22; Minnesota Linseed Oil Co v. Montague, 59 Iowa 448; Wilder v. Sprague, 50 Me. 354; Joy v. Sears, 9 Pick. (Mass.) 4; Bradford v. Drew, 5 Met. (Mass.) 188; Peter v. Thickett, 51 Mich. 589; Cochran v. Toher, 14 Minn. 385, 389; Du Laurans v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 15 Minn. 49; Derosia v. Winona, etc., R. Co., 18 Minn. 133; Pinney v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 19 Minn. 251; Roberts v. Mazeppa Mill Co., 30 Minn. 413; Boyd v. Mexico Southern Bank, 67 Mo. 537; Schwab v. Union Line, 13 Mo. App. 159; Kipp v. Wiles, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 585; Green v. Haines, 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 254; Lamb v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 2 Daly (N. Y.) 454, 473; Parkhill v. Imlay, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 431; Burrill v. Watertown Bank & Loan Co., 51 Barb. (N. Y.) 105; Cross v. Beard, 26 N. Y. 86, 89; O'Brien v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 76 N. Y. 459; Acton v. Knowles, 14 Ohio St. 18; Porter v. Patterson, 15 Pa. St. 229; Hays v. Hays, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 419; Scott v. Buchanan, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 468; Evans v. Harde-man, 15 Tex. 480.

In Lamb v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 2 Daly (N. Y.) 454, 473, the court by Daly, F. J., said: "What is a reasonable time within which goods deliverable at the warehouse or depot of the carrier must be taken away, is a question more or less dependent upon circumstances, such as the nature of the goods, the mode of doing business, as well as other considerations, upon which men equally intelligent may come to different conclusions; making it especially appropriate that such questions, as a general rule, should be determined by the jury, and not by the court. 'The question,' says Angel, 'of what is requisite to constitute a competent delivery by the carrier, or such a delivery as will determine the transit and dissolve his liability, in a great measure is left to the jury to determine.' Angel on Carriers, § 282. What is a reasonable length of time in cases of demurrage, is determined upon all the circumstances legitimately bearing upon the case, and is a question for the jury. Cross v. Beard, 26 N. Y. 89, 92. A case may arise in which the court can say at once, as matter of law, that more than a reasonable length of time has elapsed, as in Nudd v. Wells, 11 Wis. 407, where a package was to be conveyed by a carrier from Boston to Milwaukee, and a year had gone by without his delivering it; but in the great majority of cases, the question should be left to be determined by the jury."

In Cochran v. Toher, 14 Minn. 385, 389, the court by McMillan, J., said: "It is a familiar rule that all questions of law are to be determined by the court, and questions of fact are within the exclusive province of the jury. Ordinarily there is but little difficulty in ascertaining what questions are for the court and what for the jury; but there are cases in which it is somewhat difficult to determine whether the conclusion is one of fact or of law. This difficulty frequently arises when the inquiry is as to questions of reasonable time, reasonable cause, due diligence, probable cause, and others of a like character. Abstractly, these are questions of law, just as the terms 'larceny,' 'robbery,' and 'assault and battery' are, for 'it is a question of legal judgment and discretion to pronounce whether the facts, as found by a jury, do or do not satisfy the legal expression.' But the latter terms, and others of the same class, are absolutely defined and determined in the law by general rules applicable to all cases; so that, upon the finding by the jury of the specific facts in each particular case, the law draws the conclusion that they do or do not constitute the particular offence charged. In all such cases, therefore, it is for the court to determine, as a question of law, the sufficiency or insufficiency of the facts to constitute the offence. So, in some cases, the law determines what shall or shall not be reasonable time or cause, and the like. As in the case of a bill of exchange, where the law requires notice of dishonor to be given within a reasonable time, if it appears on the facts proved in evidence that the case is one falling within a rule by which the law itself prescribes and defines what shall be considered to be reasonable time, the question is a mere question of law, for the law itself, from the mere res gestæ, makes the inference that the time was reasonable. 1 Stark. Ev. 516. But in other instances questions of this character depend on such an infinite variety of circumstances, that, by reason of the impracticability of prescribing any general rule applicable to the facts of each particular case, the inference in law follows the inference in fact, and, in such cases, the time will be reasonable, or the cause probable in point of law, according as the one or the other is reasonable or probable in point of fact. 'Hence it follows that the test for deciding whether such general inference as to reasonable time, probable cause, etc., be one of law or of fact is this: If the court in the particular case can draw the conclusion by the application of any legal rules or principles, the conclusion is a legal one. . . . But if, on the other hand, the circumstances be so numerous and complicated as to exclude the application of any general principle, or definite rule of law, the further inference is necessarily one of mere fact, to be made by the jury. In other words, the rules of ordinary practice and convenience become the legal measure and standard of right.' 1 Stark. Ev. 514, 516, note i, 517."

been said that the time in question may be so short or so long

In Luckhart v. Ogden, 30 Cal. 548, 558, the court by Currey, C. J., said: "The term reasonable time is a technical and legal expression, which in the abstract involves matter of law as well as matter of fact. Whenever any rule or principle of law applies to the special facts proved in evidence and determines their legal quality, its application is matter of law. But whenever the special facts and circumstances are such that the court cannot, by the aid of any legal rule or principle, decide upon the legal quality of the facts, it is necessary that the jury should draw the inference in fact, with reference to the ordinary course and practice of dealing, and the general principles of morality and utility. Where the law itself prescribes what shall be considered to be reasonable time in respect to a given subject, the question is one of law, and the duty of the jury is confined to finding the simple facts. Where, on the other hand, the law does not by the operation of any principle or established rule decide upon the legal quality of the simple facts, or res gestæ, it is for the jury to draw the general inference of reasonable or unreasonable [time] in point of fact. In such cases, the legal conclusion follows the inference of facts; in other words, the question as to reasonable time, etc., is one of fact, and the time is reasonable or unreasonable, in point of law, according to the finding of the jury in point of fact.' Stark. Ev. 774."

In Magee v. Carmack, 13 Ill. 289, 291-2, the court by Caton, J., said: "The refusal of the court to give the instruction declaring this principle was attempted to be sustained upon the ground, as it was insisted, that what constitutes a reasonable time is a question of law for the court and not of fact for the jury; and hence that it would have been improper to have submitted that question to them. This position certainly was not well considered. When from the nature of the subject, a general rule can be applied to all cases, then what constitutes reasonable notice may be a question of law for the court, as notice to the indorser of a bill or note. But when, as in this case, the question of what would constitute a reasonable time, must depend upon the peculiar circumstances of each case, and cannot reasonably be subjected to any general rule, then it is a question of fact for the jury, to be determined from all the circumstances."

What is a reasonable time to keep a ticket office open for the purchase of tickets is a question for a jury. Du Lurans v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 15 Minn. 49. In this case the court by McMillan, J., said: "If, therefore, the ticket office was not open for such reasonable time previous to the departure of the train as to enable the plaintiff to procure his ticket, the defendant could not demand of him more than the ticket fare, and his expulsion from the train was wrongful. What is a reasonable time for such purpose must depend on circumstances; what would be a reasonable time at a country station might not be sufficient in a large city; what would be reasonable in either depends on the number of passengers usually entering the train there, and other circumstances. What was reasonable time in this instance, therefore, was properly submitted to that the court will declare it, as matter of law, to be reasonable or unreasonable.¹

b. REASONABLE DOUBT.—See HOMICIDE, vol. 9, p. 737; REASONABLE DOUBT.

c. OTHER CASES.—In all other instances where the question arises whether the court or the jury are to decide as to the reasonableness of any given thing, the same criterion is to be applied as was mentioned above in regard to the question of reasonable time, viz., that if the judge can be certain that there is legal ground, express or attainable by inference, upon which to base a decision of the question, then the question of reasonableness falls within the province of the court; but otherwise it goes to the jury.²

Thus, the reasonableness of the rules of a board of trade,³ or of the rules, regulations, ordinances, or by-laws of a corporation,⁴ is a question for the court. So, whether fines, customs, or services are reasonable or not, is a question for the court to decide.⁵ So, whether a provision in a contract prescribing the time within which suit shall be brought against a carrier, or notice of loss given to a carrier or telegraph company, is reasonable, is a question of law for the court.⁶ So, also, the reasonableness of a restriction in restraint of trade is, according to the better opinion, for the court to determine.⁷ But whether the excuse of a carrier for not delivering goods, founded on the insufficient identification of the person claiming them as consignee, was reasonable or not, is a question for the jury.⁸ So, it is for the jury to decide what is a the jury under the instructions of the court."

1. Druse v. Wheeler, 26 Mich. 189; Johnson v. Whitman Agricultural Co., 20 Mo. App. 100; Lamb v. Camden, etc., R. Co., 2 Daly (N. Y.) 454, 474; Lancaster Bank v. Woodward, 18 Pa. St. 357, 362; Nudd v. Wells, 11 Wis. 407, 419.

2. See supra, this title, Reasonable Time.

3. Chicago, etc., v. Tilton, 87 Ill. 548.

4. Ang. & Ames on Corp. (11th ed.), § 357; Common Council of Alexandria v. Brockett, 1 Cranch (C. C.) 505; Illinois Central R. Co. v. Whittemore, 43 Ill. 420; Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. McAllen, 84 Ill. 109, 116; Com. v. Worcester, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 462, 473; St. Louis v. St. Louis R. Co., 14 Mo. App. 221; St. Louis v. Weber, 44 Mo. 547; Paxson v. Sweet, 13 N. J. L. 196; Vedder v. Fellows, 20 N. Y. 126.

But in the two following cases, a distinction was taken between by-laws (which bind only the members of the corporation) and regulations which affect third persons; and it was held that whether the by-law of a corporation be void as being in a legal sense unreasonable, or in conflict with law, or with the charter of the corporation, is a question of law for the court; but that the reasonableness of such regulations as are deemed necessary and conducive to the comfort, convenience, or safety of passengers, or necessary to protect the rights of the company, is purely a question of fact. State v. Overton, 24 N. J. L. 435, 440; Morris, etc., R. Co. ads. Ayres, 29 N. J. L. 393.

5. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 1570, citing Co. Litt. 56, b, 59, b; Bell v. Wardell, Willes 202, 204; Wilson v. Hoare, 10 A. & E. 236; 37 E. C. L. 106; Bourke v. James, 4 Mich. 336.

6. Thompson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 22 Mo. App. 321; Brown v. Wabash, etc., R. Co., 18 Mo. App. 568, 577. Compare Dawson v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 76 Mo. 514.

See generally CARRIERS OF LIVE STOCK, vol. 3, p. 15; TELEGRAPH COMPANIES.

7. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 1572; Mallan v. May, 11 M. & W. 653. But see Tallis v. Tallis, 1 E. & B. 391; 72 E. C. L. 390.

See generally ILLEGAL CONTRACTS, vol. 9, p. 884, et seq.

8. McEntee v. New Jersey Steamboat reasonable amount of baggage,¹ or of money,² which a passenger may take with him in his trunk, so as to charge the carrier with liability therefor as an insurer. So, whether the claim of a boom company for services is reasonable or not, is a question of fact for the jury.³ So, what is the reasonable value of goods supplied as necessities to a minor,⁴ and what is a reasonable use of a right of way, are questions for the jury.⁵

4. Interpretation and Construction—a. WRITTEN LANGUAGE.—

As a rule, questions in regard to the interpretation, construction, or effect of written documents are for the court alone, and for the jury to submit such questions to the jury is error.⁶ This rule ap-

Co., 45 N. Y. 34; 6 Am. Rep. 28. Compare CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 887.

1. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Fraloff, 100 U. S. 24, 29. Compare BAGGAGE, vol. 1, p. 1042.

2. Merrill v. Grinnell, 30 N. Y. 594. And compare Jordan v. Fall River R. Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 69; Johnson v. Stone, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 419.

3. Hall v. Tittabawassee Boom Co., 51 Mich. 377; Sturgeon River Boom Co. v. Nester, 55 Mich. 113. And compare BOOM COMPANIES, vol. 2, p. 469.

4. Garr v. Haskett, 86 Ind. 373. See also INFANTS, vol. 10, p. 665.

5. Hawkins v. Carlines, 3 H. & N. 914.

Right of Way.—So where an administratrix brought an action to recover damages for the obstruction of a way, through the erection of a fence across it, the right of way being claimed as appurtenant to land conveyed to her intestate, it was held that the right of way passed as appurtenant to the land granted, even though no insuperable physical obstacles prevented access by another way, provided such other way could not be made without unreasonable labor and expense, and that of this the jury were to judge. Pettingill v. Porter, 8 Allen (Mass.) 1.

6. See INTERPRETATION, vol. 11, p. 518.

"The construction of all written instruments," said Parke, B., in Neilson v. Harford, 8 M. & W. 806, 823, "belongs to the court alone, whose duty it is to construe all such instruments, as soon as the true meaning of the words in which they are couched, and the surrounding circumstances, if any, have been ascertained as facts by the jury; and it is the duty of the jury to take the construction from the court, either absolutely, if there be no words which are to be construed as words of art, or phrases used in commerce, and no surrounding circumstances to be ascertainied; or conditionally, when those words or circumstances are necessarily referred to them. Unless this were so, there would be no certainty in the law; for a misconstruction by the court is the proper subject, by means of a bill of exceptions, of redress in a court of error; but a misconstruction by the jury cannot be set right at all, effectually." And in Hutchinson v. Bowker, 5 M. & W. 535, the same judge said: "The law I take to be this,—that it is the duty of the court to construe all written instruments; if there are peculiar expressions used in it which have in particular places and trades a known meaning attached to them, it is for the jury to say what the meaning of these expressions was, but for the court to decide what the meaning of the contract was. It was right, therefore, to leave it to the jury to say whether there was a peculiar meaning attached to the word 'fine' in the corn market; and the jury having found what it was, the question whether there was a complete acceptance by the written documents [of the offer of sale] is a question for the judge." And see Morrell v. Frith, 3 M. & W. 406.

In McKenzie v. Sykes, 47 Mich. 294, the court by Cooley, J., said: "It is for the court to interpret the written contracts of parties; for when they have assented to definite terms and stipulations, and incorporated them in formal documents, the meaning of these, it is supposed, can always be discovered on inspection; nothing which is within the purview of the contract is left in doubt, and there is, of course, nothing to submit to the jury."

In Cook v. Carroll, 6 Md. 104, the court by Le Grand, C. J., said: "It is exclusively the province of the court to interpret all written instruments, and to determine the materiality and force of each and all the facts contained in them. Were a jury permitted to do this, there would be no certain legal significance assignable to any paper, for it would depend upon the peculiar notions of each particular jury, under whose supervision it might be brought, and thus a recital in a case like the one now before us, might be deemed material by one jury, and by another as wholly immaterial and unimportant."

plies to all written laws, such as constitutional provisions,¹ statutes,²

In Denison v. Wertz, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 372, the court said: "This is a matter of very great importance. The security of property depends upon it; for there is no appeal from the decision of a jury. The injured party may indeed move for a new trial, but the court may grant or refuse, at its discretion. It is the right, therefore, of every suitor to have the opinion of the court on such matters as, by the law of the land, the court is bound to decide; and one of these matters is the construction of written contracts. There may be cases in which extrinsic circumstances are so connected with a writing as to render it necessary to leave the whole to the jury."

1. Constitutional Provisions.—See supra p. 620, n. 2. And compare Mal-tus v. Shields, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 553; Ramsey Co. v. Heenan, 2 Minn. 330.

2. Statutes.—Inge v. Murphy, 10 Ala. 897; Barnes v. Mayor, etc., of Mobile, 19 Ala. 707; Fairbanks v. Woodhouse, 6 Cal. 433; Thorp v. Craig, 10 Iowa 461; Belt v. Marriott, 9 Gill (Md.) 331; Byrne v. Byrne, 3 Tex. 336; Large v. Orvis, 20 Wis. 696.

Hence it is error for the court to submit to the jury the meaning of a material word in a statute. Goode v. State, 16 Tex. App. 411. But in Montgomery v. Townsend (Ala., 1887), 2 So. Rep. 155, it seems to have been held, contrary, it is believed, to principle and authority, that whether the cutting down of a sidewalk fifteen feet to the level of the street was a "construction" within the meaning of a provision in the State Constitution, was a question of fact for the jury.

Foreign Laws.—The construction and effect of a foreign law, after it has been proved, is a question for the court. Di Sora v. Phillips, 10 H. L. Cas. 624; U. S. v. McRae, L. R. 3 Ch 79; Bremer v. Freeman, 10 Moore P. C. 306; Consequa v. Willing, 1 Pet. (C. C.) 229; Ennis v. Smith, 14 How. (U.

S.) 400; De Sobry v. De Laistre, 2 Har. & J. (Md.) 191; Cecil Bank v. Barry, 20 Md. 287; Kline v. Baker, 99 Mass. 253; Haines v. Hanrahan, 105 Mass. 480; Ely v. James, 123 Mass. 36; Sherley v. McCormick, 135 Mass. 126; Shoe, etc., Nat. Bank v. Wood, 142 Mass. 563; Gibson v. Manufacturers' Ins. Co., 144 Mass. 81; Charlotte v. Chouteau, 25 Mo. 465; 33 Mo. 194; Cobb v. Griffith, 87 Mo. 90; State v. Jackson, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 563; Sidwell v. Evans, 1 P. & W. (Pa.) 383; Bock v. Lanman, 24 Pa. St. 435; Stack v. O'Hara, 98 Pa. St. 213. Contra, Holman v. King, 7 Met. (Mass.) 384. Compare FOREIGN LAWS, vol. 8, p. 435.

Sunday Laws.—An exception to the rule assigning to the court the interpretation of statutes, seems to exist in cases arising under Sunday laws, in which it has been held that whether or not an act done on Sunday amounts to a work of necessity or charity within the meaning of the statute, is a question of fact for the jury. Hooper v. Edwards, 18 Ala. 280; Stewart v. Davis, 31 Ark. 518; Edgerton v. State, 67 Ind. 588; Ungericht v. State, 119 Ind. 379; Com. v. Harrison, 11 Gray (Mass.) 309; Smith v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 120 Mass. 493; State v. Knight, 29 W. Va. 340. Compare Com. v. Sampson, 97 Mass. 409; Feital v. Middlesex R. Co., 109 Mass. 404. Thus in Mueller v. State, 76 Ind. 310, 313, the court by Woods, J., said: "The command of the law in question is that men shall not engage in common labor or in their accustomed pursuits on Sunday, works of charity or necessity excepted. What should be deemed a necessity, the law itself could not well have been made to say, and any attempt of the courts to frame a definition of general application would be more likely to produce confusion than certainty. The question in each case must be decided according to the circumstances, and is, therefore, more a question of fact than of law."

But see contra, Allen v. Duffie, 43 Mich. 1; Holcomb v. Danby, 51 Vt. 435; and the charge of Judge Barker in a case in the Superior Court of Boston, 20 Am. Law Review 755. And compare Hamilton v. City of Boston, 14 Allen (Mass.) 484.

In Smith v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 120 Mass. 493, it was said that it is difficult treaties,¹ municipal ordinances,² and the constitutions, rules, and by-laws of corporations and other voluntary associations.³ It applies to records,⁴ and pleadings,⁵ to contracts,⁶ to define as matter of law what state of facts will make traveling an act of necessity or charity within the legal exception, that the question is to be determined to a great extent by considerations of moral fitness and propriety, and that in most cases it should be submitted to the jury "with proper instructions." Compare Hooper v. Edwards, 25 Ala. 528, 532; Sullivan v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 19 Atl. Rep. 169; Johnson v. Irasbaugh, 47 Vt. 32; State v. R. Co., 24 W. Va. 783.

Whether the owner of a carriage had reasonable ground for believing that the purpose for which it was hired of him was one of necessity or charity, is a question for the jury. Myers v. State, 1 Conn. 504.

See generally SUNDAY LAWS.

1. Treaties. — Harris v. Doe, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 369, 376-7.

2. Ordinances. — Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Olsen, 4 Colo. 239; Pennsylvania Co. v. Frana, 13 Ill. 91. And compare Peoria v. Calhoun, 29 Ill. 317.

3. By-Laws. — Higgins v. McCrea, 116 U. S. 671; Osceola Tribe v. Rost, 15 Md. 295.

4. Records. — Wyatt v. Steele, 26 Ala. 639, 649; Sims v. Boynton, 32 Ala. 352, 360; State v. Anderson, 30 La. Ann., pt. 1, 557; Adams v. Betz, 1 Watts (Pa.) 425; Amory v. Amory, 26 Wis. 152. See supra the heading, Other Matters of Fact.

Thus, it has been held that where there is a question as to the meaning of an order of sale of personal property made by an orphan's court, it is not competent to introduce the order book and show similar orders made by the court in the matter of other estates, the construction of the particular order being for the court. Wyatt v. Steele, 26 Ala. 639, 649.

So, where, in an action on a contract, the defendant pleads a decree of a chancery court, to show a release by the plaintiff of his cause of action, it is for the court to construe the decree and determine from its face whether it was intended to operate as a release; and a charge which submits this question to the jury is erroneous. Shook v. Blount, 67 Ala. 301.

So, whether a certain instrument, for the alteration of which a person has been indicted, is a public record, is a question of law for the court to determine. State v. Anderson, 30 La. Ann. 557.

So, it is the province of the court to settle as a question of law the meaning of the specification of a patent; and, accordingly, in an action on the case for the infringement of a patent, where it was objected upon the face of the specification of the patent, which was for improvements in the mode of propelling wheels, that it was uncertain whether the patentee claimed a wheel constructed spirally or only spiral paddles attached to a wheel, it was held erroneous for the court to instruct the jury that the question whether the specification was ambiguous in the particular charged, was one compounded of law and fact, and that if the jury should find that a spiral wheel and a spiral propeller were the same thing in ordinary acceptation, then the specification was sufficiently certain in that respect. Emerson v. Hogg, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 1. And see Washburn v. Gould, 3 Story (U. S.) 122.

5. Pleadings. — Thus, it is the province of the court to construe the pleadings, and to determine from them what allegations are admitted and what denied. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1027; McKinney v. Hartman, 4 Iowa 154; Potter v. Wooster, 10 Iowa 334. And hence the court should inform the jury specifically what the issues are, without referring the jury to the pleadings. Dassler v. Wisley, 32 Mo. 498; Missouri Coal, etc., Oil Co. v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 35 Mo. 84.

To leave the jury to construe and determine the effect of the pleadings is error. Hall v. Renfro, 3 Metc. (Ky.) 51.

Whether there is a variance between the pleadings and proof, is also a question of law for the exclusive determination of the court. Riley v. Dickens, 19 Ill. 29; Berry v. Dryden, 7 Mo. 324; Birch v. Benton, 26 Mo. 153. Thus, in an action for slander, the jury ascertain what words were spoken, and the court decides whether there is such an identity between these and the words laid in the declaration, as will support the action. Berry v. Dryden, 7 Mo. 324.

6. Contracts. — See CONTRACTS, vol. 3, p. 867; INSTRUCTIONS, vol.

- 11, p. 236; Edwards v. Bagster, 2 M. & W. 221; Hutchin v. Groom, 5 C. B. 515; 57 E. C. L. 515; Parker v. Ibbetson, 4 C. B. N. S. 346; 93 E. C. L. 345; Begg v. Forbes, 30 Eng. L. & Eq. 508; Griffiths v. Rigby, 25 L. J. Ex. 284; Bowes v. Shand, 2 App. Cas. 455; 20 Eng. (Moak's) Rep. 30; Levy v. Gadsby, 3 Cranch (U. S.) 180; Walker v. Bank of Washington, 3 How. (U. S.) 62; Goddard v. Foster, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 123; Iasigi v. Brown, 17 How. (U. S.) 183; Holman v. Crane, 16 Ala. 570; Kidd v. Cromwell, 17 Ala. 648; Luckhart v. Ogden, 30 Cal. 547; Bennett v. Agricultural Ins. Co., 51 Conn. 504; Williams v. Waters, 36 Ga. 454; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cassell, 17 Ill. 389; Riley v. Dickens, 119 Ill. 29; Streeter v. Streeter, 43 Ill. 155; Beatty v. Gates, 4 Ind. 154; Terry v. Shively, 64 Ind. 106; Dixon v. Duke, 85 Ind. 434; Lucas v. Snyder, 2 Greene (Iowa) 499; Eyser v. Weissgerber, 2 Iowa 463; Pickrell v. Carson, 8 Iowa 544; Thorp v. Craig, 10 Iowa 461; Rohrabacher v. Ware, 37 Iowa 85; Warner v. Thompson, 35 Kan. 27; Thomas v. Thomas, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 178; Brown v. Orland, 36 Me. 376; Woodman v. Chesly, 39 Me. 45; Warren v. Jones, 51 Me. 146; Nash v. Drisco, 51 Me. 417; Cocheco Bank v. Berry, 52 Me. 293; Rice v. Dwight Mfg. Co., 2 Cush. (Mass.) 80; Worcester Medical Institution v. Harding, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 285; Eaton v. Smith, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 150; Smith v. Faulkner, 12 Gray (Mass.) 251; Globe Works v. Wright, 106 Mass. 207; Thompson v. Richards, 14 Mich. 172; Curtis v. Martz, 14 Mich. 506; Lapeer Co. Farmers' Mut. F. Ins. Assoc. v. Doyle, 30 Mich. 159; Stadden v. Hazard, 34 Mich. 76; Paine v. Ringold, 43 Mich. 341; McKenzie v. Sykes, 47 Mich. 294; Van Eman v. Stanchfield, 8 Minn. 518; Dodge v. Rogers, 9 Minn. 223; Donnelly v. Simonton, 13 Minn. 301; Spalding v. Taylor, 1 Mo. App. 34; Willard v. Sumner, 7 Mo. App. 577; State v. Donnelly, 9 Mo. App. 519; Brooks v. Standard F. Ins. Co., 11 Mo. App. 349; Brecheisen v. Coffey, 15 Mo. App. 80; Michael v. St. Louis Mut. F. Ins. Co., 17 Mo. App. 23; Miller v. Dunlap, 22 Mo. App. 97; Falls Wire Mfg. Co. v. Broderick, 12 Mo. 373; Caldwell v. Dickon, 26 Mo. 60; State v. Lefavre, 53 Mo. 470; Blakely v. Bennecke, 59 Mo. 195; Burruss v. Blair, 61 Mo. 133; Edwards v. Smith, 63 Mo. 119; Fruin v. Crystal R. Co., 89 Mo. 397; Drew v. Towle, 30 N. H. 531; Rogers v. Colt, 21 N. J. L. 704; Smalley v. Hendrickson, 29 N. J. L. 371; Gladius v. Black, 67 N. Y. 563; Arctic F. Ins. Co. v. Austin, 69 N. Y. 470, 477; 25 Am. Rep. 221; First Nat. Bank v. Dana, 79 N. Y. 108; Dwight v. Germania L. Ins. Co., 103 N. Y. 341; Brady v. Cassidy, 104 N. Y. 147; Collins v. Benbury, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 118; Brown v. Hatton, 9 Ired. (N. Car.) 319; Sellers v. Johnson, 65 N. Car. 104; Welsh v. Duser, 3 Bin. (Pa.) 337; Moore v. Miller, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 279; Dennison v. Wertz, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 376; Vincent v. Huff, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 381; Roth v. Miller, 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 100; Edelman v. Yeakel, 27 Pa. St. 30; Beatty v. Lycoming County Ins. Co., 52 Pa. St. 456; Bryant v. Hagerty, 87 Pa. St. 261; Nellis v. Coleman, 98 Pa. St. 470; Wheeler v. Schroeder, 4 R. I. 392; Russell v. Arthur, 17 S. Car. 477; Bedford v. Flowers, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 242; San Antonio v. Lewis, 9 Tex. 69; Wason v. Rowe, 16 Vt. 525; Rogers v. Bradford, 1 Pin. (Wis.) 418; Ranney v. Higby, 5 Wis. 62; Mowry v. Wood, 12 Wis. 413; Martineau v. Steele, 14 Wis. 272; Helmholz v. Everingham, 24 Wis. 266.
- Thus, for example, the court has the sole power of deciding whether a written contract is usurious. Walker v. Bank of Washington, 3 How. (U. S.) 62. Compare Lomer v. Meeker, 25 N. Y. 361; and see infra the title, Usury, p. 658.
- So, whether an agreement between parties amounts to an extension of time for the performance of a prior contract between them, and if so, for how long, are questions of law for the court, and not questions of fact for the jury. Luckhart v. Ogden, 30 Cal. 556.
- A written contract should be construed and interpreted by the court upon inspection only, unless there are terms of art or science, or other unusual language employed, or words used in a local sense or out of their ordinary signification, requiring explanation by extrinsic evidence. Van Eman v. Stanchfield, 8 Minn. 518. In such case the evidence of experts may be received to aid the court in fixing the meaning of such technical terms. See PAROL EVIDENCE, vol. 17, p. 450-1; 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 280; McAvoy v. Long, 13 Ill. 147; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McKenna, 13 Lea (Tenn.) 288; Sigsworth v. McIntyre, 18 Ill. 128; Myers v. Walker, 24 Ill. 133; Packard v. Van Schoick, 58 Ill. 79.

both executed and executory, including bonds,¹ deeds,² and all

In Myers v. Walker, 24 Ill. 133, the court by Walker, J., said: "Meaning of terms of art, of science, technical phrases, and words of local meaning, may, undoubtedly, when employed in an agreement, be proved by extrinsic evidence, and, by so doing, the rule is not violated which prohibits the introduction of evidence to alter, vary or explain an agreement, or that a written contract cannot exist partly in parol and partly in writing. By receiving such evidence, the court does no more than when it refers to a lexicon to ascertain the meaning of a word. This has no tendency to vary the contract, but is the only means of ascertaining the intention of the parties when they enter into the agreement, and when this can be ascertained, it must govern. When local terms or phrases are employed where they are in use, the presumption is, that the parties understood their meaning, and employed them according to their local signification. And to give effect to the agreement, the court must know the sense in which they were employed. The word season, as employed in this agreement, must have had reference to the period within which it was customary to purchase corn at that point, on the Illinois River, and the presumption is, that the meaning of the term was well known and understood, in the locality in which the contract was entered into by the parties. The court below, therefore, committed no error in receiving evidence to show the local meaning of this term."

The error in submitting to the jury the construction of a contract will, if they construe it rightly, be immaterial. Smith v. Faulkner, 12 Gray (Mass.) 251; Martineau v. Steele, 14 Wis. 273.

The meaning which parties have themselves placed upon their contract is a question, not for the court, but for the jury. Reissner v. Oxley, 80 Ind. 580.

When a contract is made by correspondence, it is the province of the court to examine the letters, to declare whether they constitute a contract, and if so, to construe the contract; and it is error to submit to the jury the question what the contract so entered into was. McFeath v. Haldimand, 1 T. R. 180; Begg v. Forbes, 30 Eng. L. & Eq. 508; Luckhart v. Ogden, 30 Cal. 547; Lea v. Henry, 56 Iowa 662; Smith v. Faulk- ner, 12 Gray (Mass.) 251; Van Valkenburg v. Rogers, 18 Mich. 180; Falls Wire Mfg. Co. v. Broderick, 12 Mo. App. 385; Russell v. Arthur, 17 S. Car. 477; Ranney v. Higby, 5 Wis. 62. Contra, Fry v. Franklin Ins. Co., 40 Ohio St. 108.

1. Bonds.—Butler v. State, 5 Gill & J. (Md.) 511.

2. Deeds.—McCutchen v. McCutchen, 9 Port. (Ala.) 650; Price v. Mazange, 31 Ala. 709; Seaward v. Malotte, 15 Cal. 304; Stark v. Barrett, 15 Cal. 362; Montag v. Linn, 23 Ill. 551; Harris v. Doe, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 369; Symmes v. Brown, 13 Ind. 318; State v. Delong, 12 Iowa 453; Miller v. Shackelford, 4 Dana (Ky.) 264; Venable v. McDonald, 4 Dana (Ky.) 336; Bonney v. Morrill, 15 Me. 252; American Exchange Bank v. Inloes, 7 Md. 380; Whiteford v. Monroe, 17 Md. 135; Friend v. Friend, 64 Md. 321; Fowle v. Bigelow, 10 Mass. 384; Eddy v. Chace, 140 Mass. 471; Whittlesey v. Kellogg, 28 Mo. 404; Dean v. Erskine, 18 N. H. 81; Smith v. Clayton, 29 N. J. L. 357; St. John v. Bumpstead, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Hurley v. Morgan, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 425; Cox v. Freedly, 33 Pa. St. 124; Mowry v. Stogner, 3 S. Car. 251; Beale v. Ryan, 40 Tex. 399; Hodges v. Strong, 10 Vt. 247; Stevens v. Hollister, 18 Vt. 204; Morse v. Weymouth, 28 Vt. 824; Poage v. Bell, 3 Rand. (Va.) 586; Addington v. Etheridge, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 436.

Thus, whether certain property appurtenant to the engine and machinery of a mill, passed, as after acquired property, to the grantee in a deed of trust, under the terms of the instrument, is a question for the court. Hancock v. Whybark, 66 Mo. 672.

Whether a deed of land, or a bill of sale of chattels, absolute on its face, was, nevertheless, intended to be only a mortgage, is, upon a suit in equity to have the instrument declared a mere security, a question of fact. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1124; Bishop v. Williams, 18 Ill. 104. And so also where the question arises in an action at law. Perkins v. Eckert, 55 Cal. 404; Cook v. Lion F. Ins. Co., 67 Cal. 368; Scott v. Pentz, 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 572; McCoy v. Lassiter, 95 N. Car. 91; Stevens v. Sherrod, 6 Tex. 294; Horne v. Puckett, 22 Tex. 201; Bemis v. Phelps, 41 Vt. 4.

See generally PAROL EVIDENCE.

others, to wills,¹ leases,² appointments,³ receipts,⁴ awards,⁵ and, in a word, to all other writings.⁶ The rule, however, is to be understood with one or two qualifications. Although the meaning of ordinary words and phrases in a written instrument is to be declared by the court and not by the jury, still if it appears doubtful whether they were intended to be understood in their ordinary sense, the question of their meaning should be left to be

When subsequently to the execution of a deed, absolute on its face, an alleged defeasance is executed, it is a question of fact for the jury whether the transaction was intended as a sale or as a security for money. Reitenbaugh v. Ludwick, 31 Pa. St. 134; Wilson v. Shoenberger, 31 Pa. St. 295. Compare Kerr v. Gilmore, 6 Watts (Pa.) 405; Jaques v. Weeks, 7 Watts (Pa.) 261; Rankin v. Mortimere, 7 Watts (Pa.) 372.

1. Wills.—Downing v. Bain, 24 Ga. 372; Willson v. Whitefield, 38 Ga. 269; Sartor v. Sartor, 39 Miss. 760; Magee v. McNeil, 41 Miss. 17; St. Luke's Home v. Association for Indigent Females, 52 N. Y. 200; Shepherd v. White, 11 Tex. 346; Burke v. Lee, 76 Va. 386.

In the absence of any latent ambiguity, all questions touching the operation, construction, and effect of wills are for the determination of the court, and not of the jury. Herbert v. Wise, 3 Call (Va.) 239; Burke v. Lee, 76 Va. 386.

Whether a paper tendered in evidence is testamentary in character, and whether as such it should be submitted to the jury for probate, are questions for the court, they being questions as to the admissibility of evidence. But when the paper is so introduced, the questions as to the testamentary capacity and free volition of the testator are questions of fact for the jury. Watford v. Forester, 66 Ga. 738.

Where it is doubtful whether a writing was intended to operate as a will or as an instrument of another kind, for example, a deed, it is for the jury to decide, on the facts touching its execution and delivery, the declarations of the maker, and the other circumstances, how it was intended to operate. King's Proctor v. Daims, 3 Hagg. 218; Wareham v. Sellers, 9 Gill & J. (Md.) 98; Herrington v. Bradford, Walk. (Miss.) 520; Jones v. Kea, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 301; Wigle v. Wigle, 6 Watts (Pa.) 522; Lyles v. Lyles, 2 Nott & M. (S. Car.) 531; Witherspoon v. Witherspoon, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 520; Ferguson v. Ferguson, 27 Tex. 344.

In case of a will purporting on its face to dispose of both real and personal estate, but not attested so as to pass the former, whether the testator intended, in case the will could not take effect as to the realty, that it should operate as to the personalty, is a question of fact for the jury. Fatheree v. Lawrence, 33 Miss. 628; Jones v. Kea, 4 Dev. (N. Car.) 301.

2. Leases.—Dumn v. Rothermel, 112 Pa. St. 272.

3. Appointments.—Perth Amboy Mfg. Co. v. Condit, 21 N. J. L. 659.

4. Receipts.—Union Bank v. Heyward, 15 S. Car. 296.

5. Awards.—1 Thomp. Tr., § 1071; Kanouse v. Kanouse, 36 Ill. 439.

And so whether the arbitrators had authority to act in reference to any particular subject-matter, or whether their award conforms to the direction and powers given them by the submission, must be determined by the court as a question of law upon a consideration of the terms of the submission. Squires v. Anderson, 54 Mo. 197.

6. Miscellaneous Writings.—Smith v. Thompson, 8 C. B. 44; 65 E. C. L. 42; Cahoon v. Ring, 1 Cliff. (U. S.) 592; Etting v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 59; Turner v. Yates, 16 How. (U. S.) 14; Brown v. Huger, 21 How. (U. S.) 305; Bliven v. New England Screw Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 432; West v. Smith, 101 U. S. 263; Earbee v. Craig, 1 Ala. 607; Holman v. Crane, 16 Ala. 570; Kidd v. Cromwell, 17 Ala. 648; Moore v. Leseur, 18 Ala. 606; Long v. Rodgers, 19 Ala. 321; Carpentier v. Thirston, 24 Cal. 268; Sullivan v. Honacker, 6 Fla. 372; Richmond Trading, etc., Co. v. Farquar, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 89; Leviston v. Junction R. Co., 7 Ind. 597; Cook v. Carroll, 6 Md. 111; Wilmarth v. Knight, 7 Gray (Mass.) 294; Battershall v. Stephens, 34 Mich. 68; Rapp v. Rapp, 6 Pa. St. 45; Miller v. Fichthorn, 31 Pa. St. 252; Heath v. Page, 48 Pa. St. 143; Esser v. Linderman, 71 Pa. St. 76; Louisville, etc., R. Co. v.

decided upon evidence by the jury;¹ or, more particularly, if the writing contains technical (other than legal) terms, abbreviations or phrases used in particular trades and branches of business, or ambiguous expressions, the meaning of such terms and expressions is to be determined by the jury.² But after the jury have declared the meaning of the doubtful or technical word, having ascertained the surrounding circumstances, if any, necessary to explain it, the interpretation and effect of the instrument are to be declared by the court.³ If, however, the meaning of the instrument depends not merely on its construction and language, but on collateral facts

McKenna, 13 Lea (Tenn.) 288; Swift v. Herrera, 9 Tex. 263.

1. Lucas v. Groning, 7 Taunt. 164; Rees v. Warwick, 2 B. & Ald. 113; Macbeath v. Haldemand, 1 T. R. 172; Morrell v. Frith, 3 M. & W. 402; Hutchinson v. Bowker, 5 M. & W. 535; Simpson v. Margitson, 11 Q. B. 23; 63 E. C. L. 21; Law v. Cross, 1 Black (U. S.) 533; Brown v. McGran, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 493; Prather v. Ross, 17 Ind. 499; Darling v. Dodge, 36 Me. 370; Eaton v. Smith, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 150; Brown v. Brown, 8 Met. (Mass.) 576; Van Eman v. Stanchfield, 8 Minn. 518; Fagin v. Connolly, 25 Mo. 94; Bunce v. Beck, 43 Mo. 280; Edwards v. Smith, 63 Mo. 127; McNichol v. Pacific Express Co., 12 Mo. App. 407; Weil v. Schwartz, 21 Mo. App. 381; Edelman v. Yeakel, 27 Pa. St. 26; Ward v. Lat-timer, 2 Tex. 248. In Brown v. Brown, 8 Met. (Mass.) 576, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "We think the general rule of law is that the construction of every written instrument is matter of law; and, as a necessary consequence, that courts must, in the first instance, judge of the meaning, force, and effect of language. The meaning of words and the grammatical construction of the English language, so far as they are established by the rules and usages of the language, are prima facie matter of law, to be construed and passed upon by the court. But language may be ambiguous and used in different senses; or general words, in particular trades and branches of business—as among merchants, for instance—may be used in a new, peculiar or technical sense; and therefore, in a few instances, evidence may be received from those who are conversant with such branches of business, and such technical or peculiar use of language, to explain and illustrate it."

In Brown v. McGran, 14 Pet. (U.

S.) 493, the court by Story, J., said: "It is certainly true as a general rule, that the interpretation of written instruments properly belongs to the court, and not to the jury. But there certainly are cases in which, from the different senses of the words used or their obscure and indeterminate reference to unexplained circumstances, the true interpretation of the language may be left to the consideration of the jury for the purpose of carrying into effect the real intention of the parties. This is especially applicable to cases of commercial correspondence, where the real objects and intentions and agreements of the parties are often to be arrived at only by allusions to circumstances which are but imperfectly developed."

In Prather v. Ross, 17 Ind. 499, the court by Davison, J., said: "If the question arises from the obscurity of the writing itself, it is determined by the court alone; but questions of custom, usage, and actual intention and meaning derived therefrom, are for the jury," quoting 2 Phil. Ev., § 280.

2. McNichol v. Pacific Express Co., 12 Mo. App. 407.

Thus, where one merchant instructed another to purchase for him two cargoes of coal "afloat," and testimony was given as to the meaning of this term among merchants, it was held that the court properly submitted the question of its meaning to the jury. Law v. Cross, 1 Black (U. S.) 538.

C. O. D.—So, where the question was as to the meaning of the abbreviation "C. O. D.," it was held proper to submit it to the jury. McNichol v. Pacific Express Co., 12 Mo. App. 401. See also C. O. D., vol. 3, p. 289.

3. Hutchinson v. Bowker, 5 M. & W. 535; Neilson v. Harford, 8 M. & W. 806; Eaton v. Smith, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 156; Edwards v. Smith, 63 Mo. 127; Fruin v. Crystal R. Co., 89 Mo. 404.

or extrinsic circumstances, the necessity of introducing parol evidence to ascertain the meaning draws the whole question of the interpretation to the jury,¹ who, however, are, as above, to receive such instructions upon the legal effect of the instrument

In Neilson v. Harford, 8 M. & W. 823, the court by Parke, B., observed: "The construction of all written instruments belongs to the court alone, whose duty it is to construe all such instruments, as soon as the true meaning of the words in which they are couched, and the surrounding circumstances, if any, have been ascertained as facts by the jury; and it is the duty of the jury to take the construction from the court,—either absolutely, if there be no words to be construed as words of art, or phrases used in commerce, and no surrounding circumstances to be ascertained, or conditionally, when those words or circumstances are necessarily referred to them; unless this were so, there would be no certainty in the law; for a misconstruction by the court is the proper subject, by means of a bill of exceptions, of redress in a court of error; but a misconstruction by the jury cannot be set right at all, effectually."

It seems that the jury should interpret the doubtful words or phrases in a special verdict; or else that hypothetical instructions should be given them, applicable to the various meanings of which the disputed words are capable. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1079; Hutchinson v. Bowker, 5 M. & W. 535; Eaton v. Smith, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 150; Smith v. Faulkner, 12 Gray (Mass.) 256

Thus in Smith v. Faulkner, 12 Gray (Mass.) 256, the court by Thomas, J., said: "If the use of the word in commerce or art, or the usage, is settled or agreed upon, the question of the interpretation of the contract is still exclusively with the court. But where the meaning of the word as used in commerce or art is matter of controversy, that meaning is to be found and settled as matter of fact by the jury. It may be found by special verdict, and then in the light of such finding, the court interprets the contract; or the case may go to the jury as a mixed question of law and fact, under instructions from the court, that if they find the meaning of the word to be so and so, then the construction and effect of the contract are one way, if otherwise, another; that is to say, the fact being found by the jury, the court instructs the jury as to the legal result which flows from it." And in Eaton v. Smith, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 156, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "When a new and unusual word is used in a contract, or when a word is used in a technical or peculiar sense, as applicable to any trade or branch of business, or to any particular class of people, it is proper to receive evidence of usage, to explain and illustrate it, and that evidence is to be considered by the jury; and the province of the court will then be, to instruct the jury what will be the legal effect of the contract or instrument, as they shall find the meaning of the word, modified or explained by the usage."

1. Bolckow v. Seymour, 17 C. B. N. S. 107; 112 E. C. L. 106; Etting v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 75; Turner v. Yates, 16 How. (U. S.) 14; Iasigi v. Brown, 17 How. (U. S.) 183; Barreda v. Silsbee, 21 How. (U. S.) 146; Sewall v. Henry, 9 Ala. 124; Holman v. Crane, 16 Ala. 580; Haney v. Caldwell, 35 Ark. 156; Jennings v. Sherwood, 8 Conn. 122; School District v. Lynch, 33 Conn. 330; Philibert v. Burch, 4 Mo. App. 470; Tansill v. Brinkman, 16 Mo. App. 557; Bell v. Woodward, 46 N. H. 332; Gardner v. Clark, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 551; First Nat. Bank v. Dana, 79 N. Y. 116; Blair v. Lynch, 105 N. Y. 636; Vernor v. Henry, 3 Watts (Pa.) 392; Overton v. Tracey, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 131; Edwards v. Goldsmith, 16 Pa. St. 48; Edelman v. Yeakel, 17 Pa. St. 26; Foster v. Berg, 104 Pa. St. 324; McKean v. Wagenblast, 2 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 462; Bradford v. South Carolina R. Co., 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 214; Ganson v. Madigan, 15 Wis. 144; Merriam v. Field, 29 Wis. 592; Bedard v. Bonville, 57 Wis. 270.

In Hopson v. Brunwankel, 24 Tex. 607, suit was brought on the following instrument:—

"There is a balance due the bearer, four hundred and seventy-five dollars.

"C. R. HOPSON.

"To H. L. KINNEY.

"Aug. 15, 1852."

"We are of opinion," said the court by Bell, J., "that the instrument upon as will meet the various phases presented by the extrinsic evidence.¹ Moreover, if written instruments are adduced as containing evidence of collateral facts, the jury are authorized to draw such inferences from them as they may deem warranted.²

which this suit is founded, is not a contract for the payment of money. If the writing were not addressed to a third person, it would be regarded as an acknowledgment that the sum of money mentioned in the writing, was due from the maker of the instrument to the bearer, and the law would imply a promise by the maker of the instrument to pay the money. But the writing, being addressed to a third person, can only be regarded as a memorandum of a fact, or as conveying information of a fact, without legal significance, until explained. The instrument, therefore, being necessarily open to explanation, it was for the jury to find what the fact was, of which the writing was a memorandum, or of which the writing was intended to convey information, or of which it was an acknowledgment, as the case might be."

Whether a contract is an original undertaking, or a collateral promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, has been held, in case of a written contract competent to be explained by parol evidence of the circumstances under which it was made, to be a question for the jury. Philibert v. Burch, 4 Mo. App. 470; Hueske v. Broussard, 55 Tex. 201. Where the contract is oral, the question whether it is a guaranty or an independent promise, would be in all cases for the jury. Flanders v. Crolins, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 206; Sinclair v. Richardson, 12 Vt. 33. See infra the title, Spoken Language.

1. Taylor v. McNutt, 58 Tex. 71; Williams v. Woods, 16 Md. 220; Fowle v. Bigelow, 10 Mass. 379.

In the case of Williams v. Woods, 16 Md. 221, the court by Eccleston, J., said: "Whilst . . . in a mercantile transaction, when the terms of a written instrument are technical, or equivocal on its face, or are made so by reference to extraneous circumstances, parol evidence of the usage and practice in the trade, is admissible to explain their meaning, the principle applicable to such a case is, that the evidence of usage, and the surrounding circumstances in explanation and illustration, is for the consideration of the jury, the province of the court being to instruct them conditionally or hypothetically what should be the proper construction or interpretation of the written instrument, as they may find the evidence either to support or not to sustain the purpose for which it has been offered."

In March v. Allabough, 103 Pa. St. 335, the court by Clark, J., said: "Evidence extra the contract may in some cases . . . be required to explain the subject-matter and exhibit the surroundings, and in the investigation of the transaction in its various phases, the testimony of witnesses may be admitted for other purposes affecting the inquiries already stated; the truth of the facts thus shown is for the jury, but their effect is for the court. Thus, the construction of an agreement is, in all cases, a matter of law for the court; the truth of the facts bearing on that construction is for the jury, whilst the force and effect of those facts upon the construction, are for the court in their instruction to the jury." And so the court held that the question whether a sum stipulated for in a written contract, to be paid on its breach, was a penalty or liquidated damages, was a question for the court, to be determined by the intention of the parties as drawn from the words of the whole contract, examined in the light of its subject-matter and its surroundings. Compare Bigony v. Tyson, 75 Pa. St. 157.

2. Primm v. Haren, 27 Mo. 211; Wilson v. Board of Education, 63 Mo. 142; McNichol v. Pacific Express Co., 12 Mo. App. 407; Reynolds v. Richards, 14 Pa. St. 205; McKean v. Wagenblast, 2 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 462. And see Barreda v. Silsbee, 21 How. (U. S.) 168.

In Primm v. Haren, 27 Mo. 211, the court by Scott, J., said: "The jury were the proper judges of the inferences of fact to be drawn from the papers. The legal effect of papers is to be determined by the court, but when documents are offered in evidence as the foundation of an inference of fact, whether such inference can be drawn from them, is a question for the jury. The most authentic documents, when offered for such a purpose, become no

Whether an illegible writing is to be deciphered by the court or by the jury, is a matter on which there is conflict of opinion. On principle, it would seem to be a fact for the jury to pass upon,¹ and especially so in criminal cases;² and so the weight of authority inclines. So, where there are blanks in an instrument or words left out, it is for the jury to say what was the intention of the parties as to such omissions.³ more than mere letters or a written correspondence, which, when offered in evidence to prove a fact, are always to be interpreted by the jury. When documents are offered for such a purpose, they, like a written correspondence, may be explained by extrinsic evidence."

Reynolds had an article of agreement with the commissioners of C county for two in-lots. He agreed, in consideration of $50 cash and $50 in carpenter work (the latter evidenced by a promissory note), to sell Richards his equitable title to one of the lots, and to procure the legal title to be made to him when the work should be done. Years afterwards, Reynolds indorsed on the article, a direction to convey the title to Richards, which was done. "Now, though this direction and the deed which followed it, were strong evidence of payment, it was open to contradiction, and ought to have been submitted to the jury as such. It followed not that because the evidence was written, its effect was to be determined by the court. To interpret the meaning of a writing unaffected by parol evidence, is doubtless the province of the judge; but the question below was not on the interpretation of the written direction, but on its effect as evidence of a collateral fact. It was certainly presumptive evidence of payment; but the conclusion from it was not to be drawn by the court." Reynolds v. Richards, 14 Pa. St. 205.

1. Norman v. Morrell, 4 Ves. 769; Jefferson Co. v. Savory, 2 Greene (Iowa) 238; Haven v. Brown, 7 Me. 421; Fenderson v. Owen, 54 Me. 372; Burnham v. Allen, 1 Gray (Mass.) 496; Paine v. Ringold, 43 Mich. 341; Arthur v. Roberts, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Sheldon v. Benham, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 129; Jackson v. Ransom, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 107; Armstrong v. Burrows, 6 Watts (Pa.) 266; Cabarga v. Seeger, 17 Pa. St. 519. Thus, in Armstrong v. Burrows, 6 Watts (Pa.) 266, the court by Gibson, C. J., said: "A writing is read before it is expounded, and the ascertainment of the words is finished before the business of exposition begins. If the reading of a judge were not matter of fact, witnesses would not be heard in construction of it; and though he is supposed to have peculiar skill in the meaning and construction of language, neither his business nor learning is supposed to give him a superior knowledge of figures or letters. His right to interpret a paper written in Coptic characters would be the same that it is to interpret an English writing; yet the words would be approached only through a translation. The jury were, therefore, not only legally competent to read the disputed word, but bound to ascertain what it was meant to represent."

But see contra, to the effect that illegible writings are to be deciphered by the court, Remon v. Hayward, 2 A. & E. 666; 29 E. C. L. 173; Rex v. Hucks, 1 Stark. 521; 2 E. C. L. 198; Riley v. Dickens, 19 Ill. 29; Com. v. Rich, 14 Gray (Mass.) 337; Lapeer Co. Farmers' Mut. F. Ins. Assoc. v. Doyle, 30 Mich. 159. And see Com. v. Davis, 11 Gray (Mass.) 4.

In Partridge v. Patterson, 6 Iowa 514, a third view of the question was taken. The trial court, being unable to determine the date of a promissory note, owing to the peculiar manner in which the figures were made, submitted the question to the jury under proper instructions. It was held on appeal to be within the discretionary power of the court to refer the question to the jury.

2. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1091. See generally AMBIGUITY, vol. 1, p. 525.

3. Conner v. Routh, 7 How. (Miss.) 176; Boyd v. Brotherson, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 93; Dobson v. Findley, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 495.

And compare Chouteaux v. Leech, 18 Pa. St. 232, in which it was held proper to be decided by a jury whether a clause in a bill of lading limiting the responsibility of a carrier, was not

b. SPOKEN LANGUAGE.—Questions as to what were the spoken words, their meaning, and the understanding and intention of the parties in using them, are for the jury.¹ But where the sense in inserted by mistake. But, in general, questions of mistake, such as the above, since they are of equity cognizance, do not fall within the province of juries. See MISTAKE, vol. 15, p. 626; Gray v. Hornbeck, 31 Mo. 400; Olendorf v. Cook, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 37.

1. Adams v. Davis, 16 Ala. 748; St. Louis Nat. Stock Yards v. Wiggins Ferry Co., 102 Ill. 514; Kingsbury v. Buchanan, 11 Iowa 387; Carl v. Knott, 16 Iowa 379; Copeland v. Hall, 29 Me. 95; Herbert v. Ford, 33 Me. 90; Brown v. Orland, 36 Me. 376; Houghton v. Houghton, 37 Me. 72; Bartlett v. Tarbell, 12 Allen (Mass.) 123; Cunningham v. Cambridge Sav. Bank, 138 Mass. 480; McKenzie v. Sykes, 47 Mich. 294; Tallon v. Grand Portage Min. Co., 55 Mich. 147; Sines v. Superintendents of Poor, 55 Mich. 383; Murphy v. Bedford, 18 Mo. App. 279; Dennis v. Crooks, 23 Mo. App. 532; Halbert v. Halbert, 21 Mo. 284; Judge v. Leclaire, 31 Mo. 127; Belt v. Goode, 31 Mo. 128; Deming v. Foster, 42 N. H. 165; Folsom v. Plumer, 43 N. H. 469; Chapin v. Potter, 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 366; Festerman v. Parker, 10 Ired. (N. Car.) 474; Warnick v. Grosholz, 3 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 235; Tobin v. Gregg, 34 Pa. St. 446; Brubaker v. Okeson, 36 Pa. St. 519; Codding v. Wood, 112 Pa. St. 371; Winship v. Buzzard, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 103; Steagall v. McKellar, 20 Tex. 265. But see Whitney v. Swett, 2 Fost. (N. H.) 14.

In Copeland v. Hall, 29 Me. 93, the court by Tenny, J., said: "It often happens, in conversation and in parol contracts, that the meaning of the parties may be understood, and is, in fact, intended to be very different from the literal import of the words employed. What may have been said before or after the use of figurative expressions, emphasis upon particular words or sentences, reference to other matters not fully expressed, but well understood by all in hearing, and many other circumstances, are material elements, and often have a controlling influence, in ascertaining the intention of those whose language is reported. Important contracts are made verbally, in terms not well suited to express the design of the parties, if they were used in a written instrument, but are understood by them and others with the utmost precision. Actions of slander are maintained upon words, which, taken literally, indicate no unworthy motive or conduct. In cases where such evidence is adduced in support of the affirmative or negative of any proposition presented to a jury, it is their province to determine its meaning. To find what the language was, is nothing more than to find the evidence which they adjudge to be true; the result of that as a fact, it is their duty to find, and the court cannot direct what it shall be; and if the jury omit to find the fact which is involved in the issue, the court have no power to infer it."

In Kun v. Young, 34 Pa. St. 60, it was held that whether the evidence of a promise to pay the debt of another, which must be clear, explicit, and certain, was so or not, was a question for the jury.

In an action by an executrix to recover for professional services rendered by her testator as general attorney of an estate of which the defendants were the representatives, after the testimony of several witnesses had been received, going to establish that the plaintiff's testator had for several years acted at the instance of the defendants as attorney of the estate, and placing estimates upon those services, it was testified by a witness for the defendants, that the plaintiff had admitted that the testator was employed to collect money due to the estate represented by the defendants, on a considerable number of notes which were placed in his hands, and that one of the defendants agreed to give him ten per cent. on all moneys collected. Held, that it should have been left to the jury to determine whether such agreement did not embrace all the notes which the plaintiff's testator had in his possession belonging to the estate, whether collected by means of suit or otherwise. Broward v. Doggett, 2 Fla. 49.

It has been held that whether an oral contract was entire, and whether the obligee was to be paid before or after the contract was fully performed, are questions of fact. Dodge v. Janvrin, 59 N. H. 16.

Where a proposal for a contract is in writing, it is for the court to construe which the parties understood the language, is thus ascertained by the jury, it is for the court to declare the legal effect of the words,—a principle which is most frequently illustrated in the case of oral contracts.¹

5. Intent.—Intent, purpose, or design, falling, as it does, under the general class of “mental conditions of which a person is conscious,” is a fact;² and as such it is always for the jury.³

it; but if the acceptance which is alleged, is verbal, it is a question for the jury whether the offer has been accepted or not. Wagner v. Egleston, 49 Mich. 218.

It has been held a question of fact, to be determined from all the evidence bearing upon the case and the conduct of the parties, whether a subscription to the capital stock of a railway company was made under the provision of the charter of the company, granted by a special act of the legislature, or under a provision of the general law of the State relating to railway companies. Mastin v. Pacific R. Co., 83 Mo. 634.

1. Estes v. Boothe, 20 Ark. 583; Rice v. Dwight Mfg. Co., 2 Cush. (Mass.) 80; Pratt v. Langdon, 12 Allen (Mass.) 544; Short v. Woodward, 13 Gray (Mass.) 86; Globe Works v. Wright, 106 Mass. 216; Judge v. Leclaire, 31 Mo. 127; Belt v. Goode, 31 Mo. 128; Deming v. Foster, 42 N. H. 165, 176; Folsom v. Plumer, 43 N. H. 469; Smalley v. Hendrickson, 29 N. J. L. 371; Whitney v. Swett, 22 N. H. 14; Islay v. Stewart, 4 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 160; Festerman v. Parker, 10 Ired. (N. Car.) 477; Rhodes v. Chesson, Busb. (N. Car.) 336; Codding v. Wood, 112 Pa. St. 377; Warnick v. Grosholz, 3 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 235; Diefenback v. Stark, 59 Wis. 462.

Thus in Globe Works v. Wright, 106 Mass. 216, the court by Gray, J., said: “It was rightly ruled that the construction and effect of the oral contract made by this defendant with Hepworth and Carr, were to be determined by the court. Where a contract is oral, the question what the contract is, must, if controverted, be tried by the jury as a question of fact; but where the terms of a contract are undisputed, its construction and effect, where the contract is oral as well as where it is written, are to be determined by the court.”

2. See Steph. Dig. Ev., art. 1; EVIDENCE, vol. 7, p. 45; INTENT, vol. 11, p. 366.

3. Beedy v. Macomber, 47 Me. 451; Knight v. New England Worsted Co., 2 Cush. (Mass.) 271; West v. White, 56 Mich. 126; Malone v. Doyle, 56 Mich. 222; Wilder v. St. Paul, 12 Minn. 192, 209; Herrington v. Bradford, Walk. (Miss.) 520; Huth v. Carondelet, etc., Co., 56 Mo. 202, 206; Brouwer v. Hill, 1 Sandf. (N. Y.) 629; Dolan v. Aetna Ins. Co., 22 Hun (N. Y.) 396; Shillito v. Reineking, 30 Hun (N. Y.) 345; Jones v. Jones, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 448; Landis v. Landis, 1 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 249; Jones v. Brownfield, 2 Pa. St. 55; Dumn v. Rothermel, 112 Pa. St. 272, 283; Shepherd v. Cassiday, 20 Tex. 26; McPherson v. Featherstone, 37 Wis. 632; Cross v. Barnett, 65 Wis. 431.

Thus, in Pennsylvania, where a purchaser of land at a sale for taxes may after two years consent to receive the redemption money, in which case the transaction will be a redemption and not a purchase, it was held to be a question of fact for the jury whether the transaction was intended to be a purchase or a redemption. Coxe v. Wolcott, 27 Pa. St. 154.

So, what amounts to an eviction, depending largely on intent, is, in so far, a question for the jury. Upton v. Townend, 17 C. B. 30, 64-5; 84 E. C. L. 29, 63; Henderson v. Mears, 1 F. & F. 636; Lynch v. Baldwin, 69 Ill. 210.

Whether possession is adverse or not, is a question for the jury. McPherson v. Featherstone, 37 Wis. 632; Allen v. Allen, 58 Wis. 202.

Whether premises are occupied as a home, so as to be exempt under the homestead laws, is, in most cases, a question for the jury. Thomp. Homesteads, § 240, et seq.; Cook v. McChristian, 4 Cal. 23.

So also whether a homestead has been abandoned, is a question of fact. Brennan v. Wallace, 25 Cal. 108; Potts v. Davenport, 79 Ill. 455; Shepherd v. Cassiday, 20 Tex. 24.

Whether land has been dedicated to the public, is a question for the jury. Daniels v. People, 21 Ill. 439;

Thus in questions of domicile,¹ and of the revocation of a will,² it is for the jury to determine the intention of the party as evinced by his acts, conduct, and declarations. In the single instance where the intent can be gathered from the terms of unambiguous writings, as it is here a mere matter of construction, it is, as already explained, to be declared by the judge;³ but when oral evidence is necessary to make out the intent, the general rule applies and the question is for the jury alone.⁴ Another qualification of the rule arises in a few cases, generally criminal cases, in which the law conclusively imputes an intent to the doing of a certain act.⁵

6. Duress.—Whether a contract has been obtained by duress (of threats or of imprisonment), is a question of fact for the jury.⁶

7. Usury.—When the question whether a contract is usurious or not, depends simply upon the terms of the instrument, or when the facts in regard to the transaction are established, it is the province of the court, in declaring the effect of the instrument, to Wragg v. Penn Township, 94 Ill. 11, 24; Gardiner v. Tisdale, 2 Wis. 153; Connehan v. Ford, 9 Wis. 240, 244; Eastland v. Fogo, 58 Wis. 274.

1. Pennsylvania v. Ravenel, 21 How. (U. S.) 103; Potts v. Davenport, 79 Ill. 455; Tiller v. Abernathy, 37 Mo. 196; Locke v. Rowell, 47 N. H. 46, 51; Foss v. Foss, 58 N. H. 283.

In Pennsylvania v. Ravenel, 21 How. (U. S.) 103, it was said that the question of domicile is a mixed question of law and fact, and that it is for the court to instruct the jury what constitutes domicile, and for the jury to apply the principles of law governing it to the facts as found by them.

See generally, DOMICILE, vol. 5, p. 857.

2. 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1346; Lawyer v. Smith, 8 Mich. 411; Burns v. Burns, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 295; Smiley v. Gambill, 2 Head (Tenn.) 164. In the last case it is said that "what facts amount to a revocation is, of course, a question of law." By this no more is probably meant than that the court is to declare to the jury that, in order to a revocation, two facts must appear, viz., the fact of intent to revoke, and the fact of cutting, tearing, obliterating, etc., to the extent, however slight, designed by the testator in beginning such act of cancellation.

See LOST PAPERS, vol. 13, p. 1232; WILLS.

3. Supra the title, Interpretation and Construction, Written Language.

4. Conner v. Routh, 7 How. (Miss.) 176; Boyd v. Brotherson, 10 Wend.

(N. Y.) 92; Shillito v. Reineking, 30 Hun (N. Y.) 345; Winter v. Norton, 1 Oregon 42; Connecticut, etc., R. Co. v. Baxter, 32 Vt. 805, 812.

In Winter v. Norton, 1 Oregon 42, 45, the court by Olney, J., said: "Law and fact are not always readily distinguishable. In respect to written instruments, it is sometimes difficult to say where the office of the court ceases and that of the jury begins. When the intention of the writer is to be judged of by the writing, it is a question for the court; but when the meaning is to be judged of by extrinsic facts, or when the writing forms part of a transaction the rest of which consists of words spoken or acts done, or when, whatever its meaning, it is but a circumstance tending to establish some other fact, it is for the jury to say whether the language was used in the sense imputed; or what is the character of the entire transaction of which the writing forms a part; or what is the truth of the ultimate fact which it tends to prove. In these cases, the writing must go to the jury to be considered with the other evidence."

The purpose for which a deed is given, as whether or not it be intended by way of confirmation of a prior deed, as a matter of fact. Huth v. Carondelet, etc., Co., 56 Mo. 202, 206.

5. See 1 Thomp. Tr., § 1334; 2 Thomp. Tr., §§ 2534, et seq.; INTENT, vol. 11, pp. 377-8.

6. Griffith v. Sitgreaves, 90 Pa. St. 161.

See generally DURESS, vol. 6, p. 57.

decide the question of usury.¹ But in most cases the question will be merely one of intent, whether the amount reserved or agreed to be paid in excess of the legal rate was understood by the parties to be a compensation for the forbearance or use of the money, or whether it was intended as a compensation for some other service; and hence the question is generally for the jury, under instructions from the court as to what is the legal definition of usury.²

8. Other Questions.—For a discussion of the respective provinces of the judge and jury in respect to the other questions, almost infinite in number, which arise in the course of trials, it must suffice to refer to the other titles of this work.³

QUIA TIMET.—See BILLS QUIA TIMET, vol. 2, p. 258.

QUICK DISPATCH.—See DEMURRAGE, vol. 5, p. 544; LAY DAYS, vol. 12, p. 972.

QUICK WITH CHILD.—See ABORTION, vol. 1, p. 30; BIG, vol. 2, p. 191; CHILD, vol. 3, p. 229; MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE, vol. 15, p. 211; PREGNANT.

QUIET ENJOYMENT.—See COVENANT, vol. 4, p. 463; IMPLIED COVENANT, vol. 9, p. 964; LEASE, vol. 12, p. 1011; REAL COVENANTS.

QUIETING TITLE.—See BILL TO REMOVE CLOUDS, vol. 2, p. 298.

1. Levy v. Gadsby, 3 Cranch (U. S.) 180.

See generally USURY.

2. Tyler on Usury, p. 98; Andrews v. Pond, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 65, 76; Cockle v. Flack, 93 U. S. 344; Tucker v. Willamouicz, 8 Ark. 157; Lloyd v. Keach, 2 Conn. 187; Beckwith v. Windsor Mfg. Co., 14 Conn. 594, 606; Belden v. Lamb, 17 Conn. 453; Belden v. Gray, 5 Fla. 509; 3 Fla. 110; Mix v. Madison Ins. Co., 11 Ind. 117; Williams v. Reynolds, 10 Md. 57; Stevens v. Davis, 3 Met. (Mass.) 211; Cram v. Hendricks, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 569; Cuyler v. Sanford, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 225; Robbins v. Dillaye, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 77; Ayrault v. Chamberlain, 33 Barb. (N. Y.) 229; Horton v. Moot, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 27; Catlin v. Gunter, 11 N. Y. 368; Smith v. Marvin, 27 N. Y. 137; Thurston v. Cornell, 38 N. Y. 281; Thompson v. Nesbit, 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 75; Fleming v. Mulligan, 2 McCord. (S. Car.) 173; Mitchell v. Napier, 22 Tex. 120. And see Scott v. Lloyd, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 418; Train v. Collins, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 145; Durant v. Banter, 27 N. J. L. 624; Dunham v. Dey, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 40; Sumner v. People, 29 N. Y. 337; Elwell v. Chamberlin, 31 N.

Y. 611; Beals v. Benjamin, 33 N. Y. 67.

Where a lender knowingly accepted and retained a contract for the payment of unlawful interest, the intent necessary to constitute usury is conclusively established, and should not be submitted to the jury. Grant v. Merrill, 36 Wis. 390.

3. See, for instance, AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 331; ALTERATION, vol. 1, p. 512; BILLS AND NOTES, vol. 2, p. 313; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 770; CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738; DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 1; EXECUTORS, vol. 7, pp. 165, 186; FRAUDULENT DEBTOR, vol. 8, pp. 782, 792; IDENTITY, vol. 9, p. 867; INNS AND INNKEEPERS, vol. 11, p. 19; INSANITY, vol. 11, p. 158; INSURANCE, vol. 11, p. 278; LACHES, vol. 12, p. 562; LIBEL AND SLANDER, vol. 13, pp. 292, 378 et seq.; LIMITATION OF ACTIONS, vol. 13, p. 666; MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, vol. 14, p. 16; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 917; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386; NOTICE, vol. 16, pp. 787, 796; NUISANCES, vol. 16, pp. 922, 930, 936; PARENT AND CHILD, vol. 17, p. 398; PAYMENT; SALES; WAIVER; WARRANTY.

QUI TAM ACTIONS.—See PENALTIES, vol. 18, p. 269.

QUOTA.—The proportion or share of a common burden which belongs to each of several persons or places.¹

QUO WARRANTO.—(See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 184; OFFICERS (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS), vol. 17, p. 39).

I. Jurisdiction, 660.

1. Nature and History of the Writ, 660.
2. Nature of the Information, 661.
3. What Courts Have Jurisdiction, 664.
4. How Far Courts Exercise Discretion, 665.
5. Limitation; Lapse of Time, 667.

II. Public Officers, 668.

1. In the United States, 668.
2. In Great Britain, 670.
3. Possession and User Necessary, 672.
4. Acquiescence a Bar, 672.
5. Expiration of Term, 672.
6. Canvassers' Returns, 673.
7. Proof Necessary, 673.

III. Private Corporations (See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 184), 674.

IV. Officers of Private Corporations (See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p.

184; OFFICERS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 39.) 674.

V. Municipal Corporations, 674.

VI. Parties, 675.

1. Attorney-General, 675.
2. Private Relator, 676.
3. Joinder, 678.
4. Miscellaneous, 678.

VII. Procedure, 678:

1. The Application, 678.
 - a. Petition; Rule to Show Cause, 678.
 - b. Affidavit, 679.
2. Pleading, 680.
 - a. General Principles, 680.
 - b. The Information, 680.
 - c. The Plea, 682.
 - d. The Replication, 683.
 - e. Amendments, 683.
3. Default, 683.

VIII. Judgment; Fine; Costs, 683.

1. Judgment, 683.
2. Fine, 684.
3. Costs, 685.

IX. New Trial; Review, 686.

I. JURISDICTION—1. Nature and History of the Writ.—The writ of quo warranto is a very ancient common law, high prerogative writ, in the nature of a writ of right for the crown against the usurper of an office or franchise, whereby the authority of the usurper was inquired into, and the right determined. It commanded the respondent to show by what right—quo warranto—he exercised the franchise, not having a grant of it, or having forfeited the right by misuser or non-user.² The earliest instance of its use appearing of record is said to have been in 1198, during the reign

1. Bridgewater v. Plymouth, 97 Mass. 390.

2. 3 Bl. Com. 262; Comyn's Dig., title, Quo Warranto.

The ancient writ of quo warranto is the proper remedy to seize into the hands of the State the franchises of a corporation which has forfeited them by misuser or non-user. State v. Real Estate Bank, 5 Ark. 595; 41 Am. Dec. 109; People v. Manhattan Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 351.

Where a franchise has been exercised from very remote times under circumstances which make it reasonable to suppose that it emanated from a grant by the crown, and there has at no period been any considerable opposition to it, the court will not allow a quo warranto to try its validity, merely on the ground that it cannot be distinctly traced to a legal origin, especially if the franchise has been partially recognized in any ancient statute. Reg. v. Archdall, 3 N. & P. 696; 8 A. & E. 281.

See also Com. v. Small, 26 Pa. St. 31; State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 279.

of Richard I.¹ In those days it was a powerful instrument in the hands of the crown to restrain the encroachments of the barons and to strengthen the power of the crown at the expense of the barons.² During the reign of Edward I, two statutes were enacted, having for their object the curtailing of the power of the crown in its relation to the writ of quo warranto, and the shaping and regulating of the remedy.³

2. Nature of the Information.—In the course of time the writ fell into disuse in England, giving place to the information in the nature of quo warranto,⁴ which is now used exclusively in that country and almost exclusively in the States of the Union for the purpose of correcting the usurpation of a public office or corporate franchise by trying the right and ousting the usurper.⁵ Precisely when the writ was superseded by the information cannot be stated.⁶ The information lies in all cases where formerly the writ would have issued,⁷ and, in the absence of constitutional or statutory provisions, in no other cases.⁸ Before the enactment of the statute 9 Anne, ch. 20, the information was not available as a remedy by an individual seeking to try the title to and gain possession of an office, being confined, in its operation, to cases of encroachments upon the prerogative of the crown. That statute authorized the filing of an information, by leave of court, upon the relation of a private person desirous of prosecuting the information, for usurpation or intrusion into any municipal office or franchise in the kingdom.⁹ So that now, in England, informa-

1. Darley v. Reg., 12 C. & F. 520, where Tindal, C. J., says that the writ in the instance referred to was issued against the incumbent of a church.

2. 2 Co. Inst. 280; Crabb's Hist. of Eng. Law 174. And see People v. Bristol etc. Turnpike Road, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 222, for a review by Cowen, J., of the history of the writ in this connection.

3. 6 Edw. I, ch. 2; 18 Edw. I, ch. 2. These statutes may be read in the appendix to High's Extraordinary Remedies.

4. The change is attributed by Blackstone to the length of the procedure on the writ and to the fact that the judgment, the writ being a writ of right, was final and conclusive, even against the crown. 3 Bl. Com. 263; Rex v. Trinity House, Sid. 86.

In High Ex. Rem., § 600, it is said that an additional cause for the gradual disuse of the ancient writ may perhaps be found in the fact that it was purely a civil remedy, while the information was at first used both as a civil and criminal process, and resulted in a fine against the usurper, as well as judgment of ouster or seizure.

5. State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 279; Lindsey v. Attorney-Gen'l, 33 Miss. 509; State v. Paul, 5 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 40; Com. v. Murray, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 73; 14 Am. Dec. 614; State v. Portland etc. R. Co., 58 N. H. 113.

6. The authorities are in accord in fixing the time at the abolition of the circuits of the king's justices in eyre, and the substitution therefor of the justices of assize, but are not in accord as to the time of such abolition and substitution. Coke assigns the time to the reign of Richard II, 2 Inst. 498. See also Crabb's Eng. Law, 277; Opinion of Tindal, C. J., in Darley v. Reg., 12 C. & F. 520; State v. Stewart, 32 Mo. 379.

7. Lindsey v. Atty. Gen'l, 33 Miss. 509.

8. Com. v. Murray, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 73; 14 Am. Dec. 614; State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 279.

9. See 9 Anne, ch. 20, in appendix to High Ex. Rem. In Rex v. Williams, 1 Burr. 402, Lord Mansfield said: "The tions in the nature of quo warranto are of two kinds, first, those exhibited by and in the name of the attorney-general, ex officio, without a relator, without leave of court, and without a recognizance; and, second, those filed in the name of the queen's coroner and attorney, sometimes known as the master of the crown office, upon the relation of a private citizen, by leave of court, and with a recognizance.¹ The proceedings had upon the writ did not contemplate a fine nor punishment, but merely judgment of ouster or seizure of the franchise usurped.²

The provisions of the statute of Anne have been adopted in substance in most of the States of the Union. Theoretically, the information is a criminal, not a civil remedy. Formerly it was so regarded in fact as well as in form, and a fine and imprisonment might be inflicted. Now, however, the criminal aspect of the proceeding is ignored, as a general rule, and it is contemplated as a civil remedy for the trial of a civil right.³ Its purpose is to act is meant to extend to all officers or corporations as such; and, as far as relates to all the corporate rights of the burgesses and freemen, it is very legally, clearly, and correctly drawn. But it is not within the reason or meaning of the act that it should extend generally to all offices or franchises exercised without authority from the crown, within a corporation. It was meant to be confined to such franchises as were claimed in instances affecting those rights between party and party."

A quo warranto will lie for usurping any office, whether created by charter of the crown alone, or by the crown with the consent of Parliament, provided the office is of a public nature, and a substantive office, and not merely the function or employment of a deputy or a servant, held at the will or pleasure of others. Darley v. Reg., 12 C. & F. 520.

A quo warranto will not lie for usurping an office which is not of a public nature, although such office may have been created by a charter of the crown. Ex parte Smyth, 11 W. R. 754; 8 L. T., N. S. 458.

An information in the nature of a quo warranto is a criminal proceeding and can only be resorted to in cases in which the public, in theory at least, have some interest. It is not to be allowed against persons for assuming a franchise of a merely private nature. People v. Ridgley, 21 Ill. 65; Atty-Gen'l v. Utica Ins. Co., 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 371.

1. High Ex. Rem., § 608. Mr. High here says that "The most frequent use to which the information is put in England is to determine the right to municipal offices and franchises, and its use as a means of testing the title to the franchises of private corporations in that country is of comparatively rare occurrence."

2. 3 Bl. Com. 263.

3. State v. Hardie, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 42; State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 279; Lindsey v. Attorney Gen'l, 33 Miss. 508; State v. Lingo, 26 Mo. 496; State v. Stewart, 32 Mo. 379; State v. Lawrence, 38 Mo. 535; State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154; 100 Am. Dec. 265; Com. v. Birchett, 2 Va. Cas. 51; Attorney Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567; Com. v. Philadelphia Co., 1 S. & R. (Pa.) 382; Com. v. McCloskey, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 369; State v. Price, 50 Ala. 568; State v. Degress, 53 Tex. 387.

The provision in the constitution of Indiana, that no person shall be put to answer to any criminal charge, but by presentment, indictment, etc., does not prohibit a quo warranto information. State Bank v. State, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 267; 12 Am. Dec. 234.

In Illinois it is otherwise, the information there being deemed a criminal remedy, contemplating punishment as well as ouster, and requiring the application of the rules of criminal pleading. Donnelly v. People, 11 Ill. 552; People v. Mississippi, etc., R. Co., 13 Ill. 66; Wight v. People, 15 Ill. 417; People v. Ridgley, 21 Ill. 65; Hay v. People, 59 Ill. 94.

The court, in People v. Gillespie, 1 Cal. 342, viewed the proceeding as a mixed one having for its object the obtain a judicial declaration and enforcement of existing rights, not to create or destroy them. The judgment of ouster which follows a successful prosecution in no way affects the status of the office or franchise, but only that of the incumbent.¹ Its function is not to afford relief for official misconduct nor to raise the question of the legality of official action, and it must not be confounded on the one hand with the remedy which an injunction to restrain illegal action sometimes affords,² nor on the other hand with the remedy of mandamus.³ One important analogy double purpose of vindicating public policy and enforcing a private remedy.

1. Attorney-Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567.

2. Dart v. Houston, 22 Ga. 506; People v. Whitcomb, 55 Ill. 172. In the former case it was held that a proceeding in equity, not one in quo warranto, afforded the appropriate remedy for a breach of trust committed by corporate trustees, and, in the latter case, it was adjudged that quo warranto could not be invoked to raise the question whether municipal officers could extend municipal government into annexed territory.

Equity has not jurisdiction to try the title to a public office. The remedy is by quo warranto. And the Connecticut practice act has not changed the rule. Hinckley v. Breen, 55 Conn. 119.

Quo warranto is the proper and only mode of questioning the official authority of a person exercising judicial functions. Grant v. Chambers, 34 Tex. 573.

So, in Stultz v. State, 65 Ind. 492, it was held that quo warranto did not lie against municipal officers to determine the legality of an attempted annexation of territory.

On the other hand, it affords the appropriate means of testing the legality of an election of corporate trustees, and their consequent right to manage the corporate affairs. Hullman v. Howcomp, 5 Ohio St. 237. And, in cases like this, the remedy by injunction is not appropriate. Updegraff v. Crans, 47 Pa. St. 103.

3. Officers de jure cannot ordinarily be ejected by mandamus; their rights should be determined by quo warranto. People v. Matteson, 17 Ill. 167; St. Louis Co. Ct. v. Sparks, 10 Mo. 117; 45 Am. Dec. 355; Duane v. McDonald, 41 Conn. 517.

Quo warranto and not mandamus, is the proper writ to unseat a member of a city council. State v. Camden, 42 N. J. L. 335.

Where a councilor's name has been expunged from the Burgess roll, a quo warranto is the proper mode to try his title to the office, and not a mandamus to the mayor to hold a fresh election. Reg. v. Ricketts, 3 N. & P. 151.

If a party has been ousted from an office by the election of another person to that office (the election not being merely colorable), his remedy is not by mandamus, but by a quo warranto Rex v. Oxford (Mayor) etc., 1 N. & P. 474; 6 A. & E. 349. And see Reg. v. Chester, 6 El. & Bl. 531.

On showing cause against a mandamus commanding commissioners to administer the oath of office as commissioners to a person, who, it was alleged, had been elected by a majority of votes under a statute, in opposition to another person whom the commissioners had sworn in as having a majority of legal votes, it was held that a mandamus would lie, on the ground that it was an office for which a quo warranto would not lie, and, therefore, there was no other remedy. Reg. v. Keyningham Level Comrs., 11 Jur. 58, n.

An information in the nature of a quo warranto is not a proper remedy for the recovery of real estate, except where the real estate has escheated or been forfeited to the State for its use. State v. Shields, 56 Ind. 521.

In Michigan the constitutionality of a statute may be inquired into by the people in a proceeding in the nature of quo warranto, to try the right of the respondents to exercise the franchise of a corporation, though the respondents justly under such statute. Attorney Gen'l v. Perkins, 73 Mich. 303.

An information in the nature of quo warranto lies to test the validity of a dram-shop license, where, as in Illinois, the writ lies where one holds or claims any "privilege, exemption, or license" exists between these three remedies, viz., that, as a general rule, neither is applicable where there is another adequate remedy.¹ Though, in the case of quo warranto, this rule is subject to the qualification that, where a State constitution has conferred the jurisdiction, a mere legislative enactment cannot take it away,² though such enactment confers another remedy.³

3. What Courts Have Jurisdiction.—In many of the States of the Union the courts empowered to entertain quo warranto proceedings are designated by constitutional or statutory provisions. As the jurisdiction is original, and not appellate, it cannot be exercised by a court which, under the constitution, has appellate jurisdiction only.⁴ Sometimes the jurisdiction is vested exclusively in the court of last resort, and sometimes in the various courts of general jurisdiction. In the latter case the Supreme court may decline to act.⁵

improperly issued. Swarth v. People, 109 Ill. 621.

Quo warranto does not lie to declare void a license to practice medicine procured by fraud. State v. Green, 112 Ind. 462.

1. People v. Hillsdale etc. Turnpike Co., 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 190; State v. Wadkins, 1 Rich. (S. Car.) 42; State v. Marlow, 15 Ohio St. 114; State v. Shields, 56 Ind. 521; Com. v. Baxter, 35 Pa. St. 263.

2. State v. Allen, 5 Kan. 213; People v. Boughton, 5 Colo. 487; State v. Baker, 38 Wis. 71.

3. State v. Messmore, 14 Wis. 115. In Kane v. People, 4 Neb. 509, it was held that a statute creating a mode of contesting elections did not affect the jurisdiction in quo warranto existing under the constitution.

It is no answer to an information in the nature of a quo warranto, that individuals aggrieved can seek their remedy in another manner, unless the remedy by information is taken away. People v. Bristol etc. Turnpike Road, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 222; People v. Hillsdale etc. Turnpike Road, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 254.

4. Ex parte People, 1 Cal. 85.

5. State v. Stewart, 32 Mo. 379; State v. Buskirk, 43 Mo. 111; State v. Claggett, 73 Mo. 388; Coon v. Attorney Gen'l, 42 Mich. 65.

See, as to the jurisdiction of the Ohio Supreme court, State v. Baughman, 38 Ohio St. 455.

The right of the supreme court to issue the writ of quo warranto is recognized, in general terms, by the Vermont statute; the occasions are left to be determined by common law rules. And, by those rules, it is apparent the writ is the appropriate mode in which to try any alleged usurpation of officers, or franchises, inconsistent with the State sovereignty. State v. Boston etc. R. Co., 25 Vt. 433.

There has been some conflict of authority as to whether the writ and the information were synonymous in so far as that jurisdiction of the information was conferred by a constitutional provision, speaking, not of the information, but of the writ. In Wisconsin, power to issue the writ includes power to entertain the information. State v. West Wisconsin R. Co., 34 Wis. 197; 36 Wis. 466. See also Attorney-Gen'l v. Blossom, 1 Wis. 317; Attorney Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567; State v. Messmore, 14 Wis. 115; State v. Baker, 38 Wis. 71.

In People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 358, 8 Am. Dec. 243, a similar doctrine was held. In Florida the same rule obtains. State v. Gleason, 12 Fla. 190. And so in Colorado. People v. Keeling, 4 Colo. 129. Formerly it was the same in Missouri. State v. Merry, 3 Mo. 278. But otherwise, according to the later decisions, which hold that the writ and the information may not be confounded together, and that the writ contemplated by the constitution was the common law writ, issuable as of right, without leave of court. State v. St. Louis etc. Ins. Co., 8 Mo. 330; State v. Stone, 25 Mo. 555. And see State v. Vail, 53 Mo. 97, as to the jurisdiction of the information.

4. How Far Courts Exercise Discretion.—Formerly, in England, the court of king's bench granted leave to file the information almost as a matter of course. Finally, however, where the application was at the instance of a private relator, it became the practice to exercise caution in granting leave;¹ and, in the United States, this

In Arkansas the rule is now the same as it formerly was in Missouri, and as it is in Florida, Wisconsin and Colorado. State v. Latherman, 38 Ark. 81; though formerly, in Arkansas, a contrary rule obtained. State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 279; State v. Real Estate Bank, 5 Ark. 595; 141 Am. Dec. 109; State v. Johnson, 26 Ark. 281.

In New York the civil action has been substituted by the code for both the writ and the information, the relief, however, being the same. People v. Hall, 80 N. Y. 117.

Neither the writ nor the information is in force in Tennessee, the remedy being under the statute, by suit in chancery. State v. Turk, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 287; Attorney Gen'l v. Leaf, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 753.

In Pennsylvania, the statutory remedy is substantially analogous to that afforded by the ancient writ of quo warranto, though dissimilar in form. Com. v. Burrell, 7 Pa. St. 34; Murphy v. Farmers' Bank, 20 Pa. St. 415. The writ, however, does not issue as of right, but in the discretion of the court. Com. v. Jones, 12 Pa. St. 365; Com. v. McCarter, 98 Pa. St. 607.

1. Rex v. Stacey, 1 T. R. 1.

It is discretionary in the court to grant or withhold a quo warranto information, even where a good objection to the title is shown. Rex v. Parry, 6 A. & E. 810.

A rule for a quo warranto, in respect of an annual office of guardian of the poor, the election to which was on the 14th of May, on the ground that the mode of election adopted was not a proper one, was not applied for till the 13th of January following, and it was then not shown that any rate payer had been prevented from voting, or that the result of the election was affected by the mode adopted. In the exercise of its discretion the court discharged the rule. Reg. v. Cousins, 42 L. J., Q. B. 124; 38 L. T., N. S. 116.

The court will not decide on the validity of the election of a corporate officer, if the question is new or doubtful, on a rule for a quo warranto. Rex v. Godwin, 1 Doug. 397.

It will be granted where the right depends upon a matter of doubtful law, in order to its being finally determined. Rex v. Carter, Cowp. 58; Lofft 516.

Where sufficient appears by the affidavits to draw the merits of an election to a corporate office into question, the court will grant a quo warranto, though the fact of the defendant's usurpation no otherwise appeared than by the deponent's swearing to their information and the belief that the defendant was admitted a freeman, and sworn and enrolled accordingly, the defendant not denying the fact when called upon by a rule to show cause. Rex v. Harwood, 2 East 177.

A relator, who has acquiesced in, and himself adopted, the mode of voting he objects to, is disqualified from applying for a rule. Reg. v. Lofthouse or Lockhouse, 1 L. R., Q. B. 433; 35 L. J., Q. B. 141; 7 B. & S. 447.

It is a valid objection to a relator applying for a quo warranto information for usurping the office of burgess, that he was formerly present at and concurred in the election of another burgess, when the objection he sought by the application to avail himself of was taken and overruled, and he voted for the party then elected. Rex v. Parkyn, 1 B. & Ad. 690.

A town councilor is disqualified to be a relator, to question the validity of the election of another town councilor, he having been cognizant of the objection before the election, been present at the election, and having afterwards administered to him, without protest, the declaration required by 5 & 6 Wm. IV, ch. 76, § 50; Reg. v. Greene, 2 G. & D. 24; 2 Q. B. 460.

The court discharged the rule where the relator was the legal adviser of the defendant, and advised him that he had been duly elected. Rex v. Payne, 2 Chitty 369.

The court refused to grant a quo warranto, because the party applying for it had agreed not to enforce a by-law, upon which he now grounded his attempt to impeach the defendant's title. Rex v. Mortlock, 3 T. R. 300.

On a motion for a quo warranto is the universal practice where the application is at the instance of a private relator to test the right to an office or franchise.¹

against a capital burgess, on the ground of irregularity in his election, it is no answer that the relator frequently acted with the party against whom he applies in corporation business, during two years following such party's election, the relator not being shown to have concurred in the election, nor is the relator disqualified by the mere circumstance of having formerly taken part in other elections, when the same irregularity existed as that complained of, but was not noticed. Rex v. Benney, 1 B. & Ad. 684.

It is no objection to the persons applying for a quo warranto which would operate in its effect to dissolve the corporation, that they attended the meeting at which the mayor was elected, whose election they impeach on the ground that the corporation was then dissolved by the loss of an integral part, and that they voted for another candidate, and afterwards attended other corporate meetings at which such mayor presided. Rex v. Morris, 3 East 213.

It is no objection to relators applying against a party for exercising the office of an alderman (his election to which they had opposed), that they afterwards made no opposition to his election to the principal office of magistracy (to which the other was a necessary qualification); or that they afterwards attended at and concurred in corporate meetings whereat he presided or where he attended in his official character, such application being made within the time limited by law, viz., in four years after his election as an alderman. Rex v. Clarke, 1 East 38.

The court made a rule absolute, though it was shown that the relator and other persons with whom he acted were influenced by a strong party spirit, and had, during three or four years, withdrawn themselves from corporation business, to the inconvenience of the borough. Rex v. Benney, 1 B. & Ad. 684.

It is no objection that the person applying is in low and indigent circumstances, and that there is strong ground of suspicion that he is applying not on his own account, or at his own expense, but in collusion with a stranger. The court, however, in a case of this kind, will require security for costs. Rex v. Wakelin, 1 B. & Ad. 50.

It was no objection to an application for a quo warranto against a mayor for not having taken the sacrament within the proper time before his election, that the relators concurred in his election, because that defect was a latent one, arising from the omission of an act positively required by the legislature. Rex v. Smith, 3 T. R. 573.

Renewed applications will be refused, where the effect of granting them would be to raise questions once decided. Rex v. Orde, 8 A. & E. 420, n.; Rex v. Langhorne, 2 N. & M. 618.

1. People v. Sweeting, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 184; State v. Lehre, 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 234; Com. v. Reigart, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 216; Com. v. Arrison, 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 127; 16 Am. Dec. 531; Com. v. Cluley, 56 Pa. St. 270; 94 Am. Dec. 75; Guntton v. Ingle, 4 Cranch (C. C.) 438; People v. Tibbets, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 358; People v. Kip, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 382 n.; People v. Waite, 70 Ill. 25; People v. Moore, 73 Ill. 132; People v. Callaghan, 83 Ill. 128; People v. North Chicago R. Co., 88 Ill. 537; People v. Keeling, 4 Colo. 129; State v. Tolan, 33 N. J. L. 195; State v. Schnierle, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 290; State v. Centreville Bridge Co., 18 Ala. 678; State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 266; Stone v. Wetmore, 44 Ga. 495.

The Supreme Court of New Jersey will, upon reasonable ground, disclosed by affidavit, allow an information in the nature of a quo warranto to be filed in the name of the attorney general, at the relation of any person or persons desiring to prosecute the same. Camman v. Bridgewater Copper Min. Co., 12 N. J. L. 84.

In Michigan, leave to file an information should not be granted, except on a sufficient showing, by the applicant, of facts entitling him to institute the proceedings. Vrooman v. Michie, 69 Mich. 42.

The discretionary power of the court over an information to inquire into the title to a public office, relates to allowing the information to be filed, in the name of the State, by a private relator; but when such information has been allowed to be filed, or when filed by the attorney general by virtue of the authority of his office, the court have no

The motive of the relator may be considered;¹ weight will be given to considerations of public convenience² and public expediency;³ it may be ground for refusing leave that the relator participated, without objection, in the election proceedings of which he complains;⁴ that the proceeding is likely to be unavailing may be considered;⁵ or that it will result in no practical benefit.⁶

5. Limitation; Lapse of Time.—In the absence of a statute there is no limitation as to the time within which the attorney-general may file an information on behalf of the people.⁷ And as the remedy, though in form criminal, is in fact civil, a statute of limitations applying to prosecutions under penal laws does not more power to dispense with the law applicable to the case, upon its trial, or to refuse to enforce the law, on the ground that the proceeding is unimportant or impolitic, than in any other case. State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1.

An information in the name of the circuit attorney, at the relation of a private individual, seeking the determination of a matter of private right between two private persons can be filed in the supreme court only on leave especially granted for that purpose; and leave will not be granted except on an agreed case on the facts, or in an extraordinary case. State v. Lawrence, 38 Mo. 535.

1. State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1; Rex v. Dawes, 1 W. Bl. 634.

2. State v. Schnierle, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 299.

3. For example, to the fact that municipal government may be suspended.

4. People v. Waite, 70 Ill. 25; People v. Moore, 73 Ill. 132.

5. People v. Callaghan, 83 Ill. 128.

6. A proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto, for trial of a title to office, will not be sustained, where the term of office must necessarily expire before judgment can be rendered. Morris v. Underwood, 19 Ga. 559; People v. Sweeting, 2 Johns. (N.Y.) 184; State v. Jacobs, 17 Ohio 143; though the information will not be dismissed on the ground that the office has expired since the filing of the information. People v. Hartwell, 12 Mich. 508; 86 Am. Dec. 70.

The court will not usually interfere to prevent a postmaster, in the employ of the United States, from acting as a justice of the peace, the office being of small importance, for one year only, with no complaint that others are kept from the office by the respondent's exercise of it, and the officer being in no way, practically, incompatible. State v. Fisher, 28 Vt. 714.

And see State v. Schnierle, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 299; Com. v. Reigart, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 216; State v. Centreville Bridge Co., 18 Ala. 678.

In Stone v. Wetmore, 44 Ga. 495, it was held that the court was not deprived of its discretion by a statute authorizing the filing of the information "on proper showing made."

7. State v. Pawtuxet Turnpike Co., 8 R. I. 521.

In State v. Beecher, 16 Ohio 358, it was held that, under the statute of 1838, a proceeding instituted after three years from the time of the accrual of the cause of ouster was too late.

By 32 Geo. III, ch. 58, if any person or persons against whom any information in the nature of a quo warranto for the exercise of any office or franchise in any city, borough or town corporate shall be exhibited, shall derive title under an election, nomination, swearing into office, or admission by any person or persons, the title of such person or persons shall not be defeated or affected by reason or on account of any defect in the title of such person or persons so electing, nominating, swearing into office, or admitting, in case such person or persons, under whom title shall be derived as aforesaid, was or were in exercise de facto of the franchise or office (in virtue of which he or they was or were so elected, nominated, sworn in, or admitted), at a period of six years at least previous to the time of filing such information, and his or their title shall not have been questioned by any legal proceeding carried on with effect. See as to the construction of this statute, Rex v. Stokes, 2 M. & S. 71.

A title to one office, which is a qualification to hold another office, is not embrace the information in the nature of quo warranto.¹ But lapse of time and the length of the period of acquiescence may induce the court, in the exercise of its discretion, in cases where discretion may be exercised, to refuse to entertain the proceeding.²

II. PUBLIC OFFICERS—1. In the United States.—The remedy under discussion is employed in the United States for the purpose of testing title to public office more frequently than for other purposes; in Great Britain, most frequently, in relation to municipal offices. The cases are sufficiently numerous to have defined, with tolerable precision, the principles governing the exercise of the jurisdiction.³ The public office in question must be a public office, as distinguished, on the one hand, from a mere employment or agency, less than an office, with the right to exercise which, the courts in quo warranto proceedings will not interfere, and, on the other hand, from an office in which the within the statute aforesaid; and, therefore, although the party had exercised the first for six years, the court made the rule absolute for an information for exercising the second office upon a defect of title to the first. Rex v. Stokes, 2 M. & S. 71.

1. Com. v. Birchett, 2 Va. Cas. 51.

2. Lapse of Time.—Before the enactment of St. 32 Geo. III, ch. 58, the court, in Rex v. Peacock, 41 T. R. 684, refused to grant an information to impeach a derivative title where the person claiming the original title had been in the undisturbed possession of his office six years; and, in Rex v. Dickinson, 4 T. R. 282, refused an information against a person who had been in the peaceable possession of his franchise six years.

An application for a quo warranto calling on a person to show by what warrant he holds the office of mayor, alderman, councilor or burgess, must be made within twelve months of his becoming disqualified. It is not sufficient that it is within twelve months of notice of his disqualification by his name being struck off the burgess list. Ex parte Birbeck, 22 W. R. 229; 9 L. R., Q. B. 256.

Where a party had entered into a continuing contract with the council, and the disqualification continued during the existence of the contract, it was held that a quo warranto might be applied for, notwithstanding more than twelve months had elapsed from the time of the election or from the time when the disqualification first attached. Reg. v. Francis, 18 Q. B. 526.

The court will not, in its discretion, grant a quo warranto against a mayor of a borough, where the ground of objection to his title is, that he was unduly elected alderman, such election having taken place more than twelve months before the rule was moved for; there being no special circumstances to induce the court to interfere. Reg. v. Preece, D. & M. 156; 5 Q. B. 94.

An application for a quo warranto against a burgess, who became subsequently qualified, for voting without a qualification, being delayed for six months, was dismissed with costs. In re Dunn, 10 Jur. 1095. And see Reg. v. Hodson, 4 Q. B. 648, n.

3. High Ex. Rem., § 623; Respublica v. Wray, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 490.

Quo warranto is the direct proceeding to try title to an office. People v. Scannell, 7 Cal. 432; People v. Forquer, 1 Ill. 104; First Parish v. Stearns, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 148; Lindsey v. Attorney Gen'l 33 Miss. 508; Ex parte Bellows, 1 Mo. 115; People v. Van Slyck, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 297; Lewis v. Oliver, 4 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 121; Mayor etc. of N. Y. v. Conover, 5 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 171; Com. v. Cullen, 13 Pa. St. 133; 53 Am. Dec. 450; Clark v. Com., 29 Pa. St. 129.

A quo warranto will be issued on reasonable grounds against one holding office who has not given the proper bond in season. Respublica v. Wray, 3 Yeates (Pa.) 429.

Where a person intrudes himself into an office, in consequence of the unlawful decision of a board of canvassers, in Michigan, the remedy by motion to the public have not an interest.¹ It may be legislative, executive, or judicial.² In the United States the proceeding has been held available to test the right to a military office;³ the legality of the election of trustees of school lands;⁴ of district school trustees;⁵ of the appointment of a prison inspector;⁶ the right to act as pilot;⁷ or as a recorder;⁸ and the right to preside over the meetings of a city council.⁹ On the other hand, it has been held not available against the chief engineer of a railway company;¹⁰ nor against the managers of a lottery appointed by a corporation having a grant of the lottery;¹¹ nor against the minister of a congregation, at least where the relator and the respondent did not claim under the same charter.¹² Neither can it be used against officers of a railway company, holding under an election by the board of directors.¹³ The governor of a State has been held amenable to this proceeding, when being charged with an unlawful intrusion into the office, and the court being charged by the constitution with jurisdiction to prevent the usurpation of offices.¹⁴ It is otherwise, of course, where, under the constitution, the legislature is vested with power to determine the result of a gubernatorial election.¹⁵

A fortiori, the proceeding may be availed of against an executive officer.¹⁶ It lies, also, to test the title to a judicial supreme court, for leave to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto, to try the right to such office, is proper, but the court have a discretion as to granting such motions. People v. Tisdale, 1 Dougl. (Mich.) 59.

A quo warranto is the proper mode of testing the validity or determining the result of a popular election. State v. Passaic Co., 25 N. J. L. 354.

1. Com. v. Dearborn, 15 Mass. 125; People v. Hills, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 202; State v. Champlin, 2 Bailey (S. Car.) 220. And from the cases generally this doctrine is deducible.

2. U. S. v. Lockwood, 1 Pin. (Wis.) 359; Com. v. Swasey, 133 Mass. 538.

3. Com. v. Small, 26 Pa. St. 31; State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1; State v. Utter, 14 N. J. L. 84. But see State v. Wadkins, 1 Rich. (S. Car.) 42, where the information was held not to lie to oust the captain of a beat company, the militia laws of the State having created another remedy.

4. Moore v. Caldwell, 1 Freem. (Miss.) 222.

5. Renwick v. Hall, 84 Ill. 162. But see People v. Collins, 34 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 336, which case, however, went upon the ground that the decision of the superintendent of public instruction was final.

6. Com. v. Douglass, 1 Binn. (Pa.)

77.

7. Palmer v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 43.

8. Reynolds v. Baldwin, 1 La. Ann. 162; State v. Ramos, 10 La. Ann. 420; State v. Gastinel, 18 La. Ann. 517; 20 La. Ann. 114; State v. Bernoudy, 36 Mo. 279.

9. Cochran v. McCleary, 22 Iowa 75.

10. Eliason v. Coleman, 86 N. Cal. 225.

11. Com. v. Dearborn, 15 Mass. 125.

12. Com. v. Murray, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 73; 14 Am. Dec. 614.

13. People v. Hills, 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 202; State v. Champlin, 2 Bailey (S. Car.) 220.

14. Attorney-Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 267. The contention that the court, in entertaining the information, unlawfully interferes with the executive functions, is here examined and decided to be without force.

15. State v. Baxter, 28 Ark. 129.

16. Com. v. Fowler, 10 Mass. 290; State v. Dellesseline, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 52. It has been held otherwise, however, in Louisiana. Terry v. Stauffer, 17 La. Ann. 306. As to the remedy by quo warranto in the case of an appointive office in Iowa, see State v. Minton, 49 Iowa 591.

In an information in the nature of a office,¹ unless, under the constitution, there is no quo warranto jurisdiction in the matter.² The remedy is available to prevent the setting up of a new office without authority,³ but not to try the title to an unauthorized office,⁴ nor to prevent the doing of a particular act; thus, where a special judge is commissioned to try a certain class of cases, the writ will not lie to inquire into his authority to try any one or more particular cases;⁵ nor to determine which of two certain officers should perform a given duty.⁶

2. In Great Britain.—Formerly, in Great Britain, crown offices only were deemed within the purview of this remedy, but, at the present day, offices created under charters and acts of Parliament may fall within it.⁷

quo warranto against an officer appointed by the executive, the reasons and motives of the executive in making the appointment cannot be inquired of when the right exists. State v. Adams, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 231.

1. A county probate judge for example. U. S. v. Lockwood, 1 Pin. (Wis.) 359.

2. As in Alabama. State v. Paul, 5 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 40.

3. Rex v. Boyles, Strange 836.

4. State v. North, 42 Conn. 79.

5. State v. Evans, 3 Ark. 585; 36 Am. Dec. 468.

6. State v. Smith, 55 Tex. 447.

7. Darley v. Reg., 12 C. & F. 520, in which case the authorities are reviewed, and the limits of the jurisdiction exhaustively discussed. It was here held that the office of the treasurer of the county of the city of Dublin was an office for which an information would lie.

When Information Lies in Great Britain.—The information has been granted for exercising the office of justice of the peace. Rex v. —, 2 Chitty 368; of constable, Reg. v. Booth, 12 Q. B. 884; of town paving commissioners, Rex v. Badcock, 6 East. 359; clerk to a board of guardians under a poor law act, Reg. v. St. Martin's in the Fields, 17 Q. B. 149; Hill v. Reg., 8 Moore P. C. C. 139; port-revee of a borough, Rex v. Mein, 3 T. R. 596; recorder, Rex v. Colchester, 2 T. R. 259; coroner, Reg. v. Grimshaw, 10 Q. B. 747; bailiff of a borough, Rex v. Highmore, 1 D. & R. 438; 5 B. & A. 771; for holding a court-leet after long disuser, without showing a title by the original grant. Darell v. Bridge, 1 W. Bl. 46.

In favor of the clerk of a county court improperly removed. Reg. v. Owen, 15 Q. B. 476.

For holding a court of record within a charter borough, and presiding therein in the absence of the bailiffs, the defendant not being one of them. Rex v. Williams, 1 Burr. 402; 2 Ld. Ken. 68.

The persons declared to be elected as town councilors by the mayor or ward alderman, at a municipal election, and who had accepted office and made the proper declaration, can only be removed from office by a quo warranto information. Rex v. Winchester, 2 N. & P. 274; 7 A. & E. 215.

A quo warranto was granted in order to try whether a residence in a borough, previously to an election, which required residence, was bona fide or not. Rex v. Richmond, 6 T. R. 560.

A person's name was on the Burgess list unobjected to at the revision in October, 1867, and he was elected town councilor on the 1st of November following. His father received parochial relief in December, 1866. Held, that the court would inquire by quo warranto into his title to be on the Burgess list. Reg. v. Ireland, 9 B. & S. 19.

A party having a majority of votes for the office of councilor of a borough, and having been declared elected according to the form prescribed by 5 & 6 Wm. IV, ch. 76, § 35, and having also been admitted, the office is full in fact, and the remedy to try whether it is full of right is by quo warranto. Reg. v. Derby, 2 N. & P. 589; 7 A. & E. 419.

A local act created a corporation, consisting of sworn commissioners, with summary power of seizure of goods, and imprisonment of the person, and of preventing and removing obstructions and nuisances in the streets; powers of paring, cleansing, and lighting; powers of appointing and paying officers, of determining the number of watchmen, of regulating them, and dismissing, paying, or pensioning them; of possessing property in materials required under the act, of instituting prosecutions, of imposing rates, of appointing and removing treasurers, to whom penalties, imposed by the act, were to be paid for the purposes of the act; and of hearing appeals by parties complaining of things done under the act. Held, that a quo warranto would lie against persons claiming to be commissioners. Rex v. Beedle, 3 A. & E. 467.

A quo warranto was granted against a person for exercising an office in a corporation after he had resigned by writing, but without deed. Rex v. Payne, 2 Chitty 367.

When a person wrongfully elected to a corporate office and admitted into it resigns, and his resignation is accepted, another candidate who claims to have been duly elected and to be admitted into the office, is entitled to a quo warranto. Reg. v. Blizard, 7 B. & S. 922.

A quo warranto lies against a person who had held the incompatible offices of capital Burgess and town clerk, before and since 32 Geo. III, ch. 58, without interruption. Rex v. Bond, 6 D. & R. 333.

So, where there is a continuing incompatibility, though the party held the offices of capital Burgess and town clerk for more than six years. Rex v. Lawrence, 2 Chitty 371.

A chairman of a local board of health was the returning officer at elections of members of the board, and must personally conduct the election; and where an election was conducted, during the absence of the chairman, by the clerk and secretary of the board, a quo warranto was granted against the members elected. Reg. v. Backhouse, 13 W. R. 846. See Reg. v. Backhouse, 7 B. & S. 911.

When Information Does Not Lie in Great Britain.—On the other hand, it has been held that quo warranto did not lie for exercising the office of guardian of the poor for a union, under 4 & 5 Wm. IV, ch. 76. In re Aston Union, 6 A. & E. 784; W. & D. 329; nom. Rex v. Carpenter, 1 N. & P. 773. But see contra Reg. v. Hampton, 6 B. & S. 923.

It has been held that a clerk to justices of a borough, appointed under 5 & 6 Wm. IV, ch. 76, §. 102, holds only during the pleasure of the justices, and therefore a quo warranto will not lie for his office. Reg. v. Fox, 8 El. & Bl. 399.

The office of governor and director of the poor of an incorporated district is not such an office as that for which a quo warranto will lie for an usurpation of it. Rex v. Ramsden, 5 N. & M. 325; 3 Ad. & El. 456.

It does not lie against overseers. Rex v. Danberry, 1 Bott's P. L. 324.

Nor to inquire into the election of an assistant overseer. Reg. v. Simpson, 19 W. R. 73.

Nor to try a question concerning the validity of an election to a fellowship of a college which was disputed by the master. Rex v. Gregory, 4 T. R. 240, n.

It does not lie for the office of trustees under a public local act, elected as vacancies occur, by occupiers in the parish, and taking an oath of office, with power to appoint salaried treasurers, collectors, etc., of moneys raised under the act, accountable to themselves; to pass by-laws with penalties; to impose rates in case of certain other functionaries not so doing; to supply omissions in the rates, and to relieve parties aggrieved or incompetent to pay; to appoint salaried watchmen; to purchase, hold, and manage property for the purposes of the act; to contract for the supply of the poor, remove nuisances, and apprehend for certain specified nuisances; to maintain the highways, and prevent encroachments thereon; to superintend the lighting, paving, watching, and cleansing of the streets; to remove dangerous buildings, on complaint upon oath (which they were to administer), and to sue in the name of their clerk or one of themselves. Rex v. Hanley, 3 A. & E. 463, n.

A quo warranto will not lie against a county treasurer to show by what authority he holds the office, if he has been de facto elected by the justices in quarter sessions. Rex v. Herefordshire, 1 Chitty 700.

It will not lie for the office of master of a hospital and free grammar school, established by a royal charter. Reg. v. Mousley, 8 Q. B. 946.

For an office of great trust and pre-eminence within the borough, touching the election and return of burgesses to serve in Parliament, it will not lie. Rex v. M'Kay, 6 D. & R. 432; 4 B. & C. 351.

Nor for encouraging the exercise of a franchise. Rex v. Marsden, 1 W. Bl. 579; 3 Burr. 1812.

Nor for the office of church-warden.

3. Possession and User Necessary.—There must be a possession and user of the office to lay a foundation for the proceeding.¹

4. Acquiescence a Bar.—Long acquiescence on the part of the relators, in the incumbent's claim of title, may constitute a fatal obstacle to the successful prosecution of the information.² So acquiescence in irregularities in the election may have the same effect.³

Where, however, the proceeding is instituted by the State, through its attorney-general, acquiescence on the part of a relator does not operate to estop the State.⁴

5. Expiration of Term.—The courts, as a general rule, refuse leave to file an information to attack the title to an office, the term of which has expired,⁵ or which will expire before the cause

Rex v. Shepherd, 4 T. R. 381; In re Barlow, 30 L. J., Q. B. 271; 5 L. T., N. S. 289.

For additional cases, see Bradley v. Sylvester, 25 L. T., N. S. 459; Rex v. Grimshaw, 5 D. & L. 249; Reg. v. Morgan, 26 L. T., N. S. 790; Reg. v. Ward, 8 L. R., Q. B. 210; Reg. v. Diplock, 4 L. R. 2 B. 549; Reg. v. M'Carthy, 10 L. R. 312; Reg. v. Pepper, 3 N. & P. 154; 7 Ad. & El. 745; Rex v. Bedford Level Co., 6 East 356.

1. Rex v. Whitwell, 5 T. R. 85. The court will not grant a quo warranto against a burgess for being illegally upon the burgess roll, unless it is shown that he has de facto exercised the office. Reg. v. Armstrong, 2 Jur., N. S. 211.

A quo warranto for usurping the office of free burgess, does not lie against the mere claim of one who, though elected, never was admitted. Rex v. Ponsonby, 1 Ves. Jr. 1; 2 Bro. P. C. 311; 1 Ld. Ken. 1. An averment the person elected tendered himself to be sworn in is not enough. Rex v. Whitwell, 5 T. R. 85. Though it is sufficient to aver that he acted in the office. Reg. v. Quayle, 11 A. & E. 508.

Where it appeared that the defendant had presided at a vestry meeting convened for the purpose of electing a member of a burial board, under 15 & 16 Vict. ch. 85, § 12, that he and others were proposed and seconded; that he declared himself elected; that the clerk wrote to the clerk of the burial board informing him of his election; and that at the next vestry meeting, when he again presided, the minutes of the previous meeting, one of which was a memorandum of his election, were unanimously confirmed; and the defendant stated that he had declined to attend any of the meetings of the board, and he had not at any time acted or claimed the right to act as a member of the board; it was held that this was not a sufficient user of the office to found an application for a quo warranto. Reg. v. Jones, 8 L. T., N. S. 270.

A mere statement in an affidavit for a quo warranto against a town councilor, that he has accepted the office, is insufficient, under 5 & 6 Wm. IV. ch. 76. The acts constituting acceptance should be also stated. Reg. v. Slatter, 3 P. & D. 263; 11 A. & E. 505.

To take the official oath has been held an acceptance and user, without a further discharge of the duties of the office. People v. Callaghan, 83 Ill. 128. And, in Rex v. Tate, 4 East 337, a swearing in, though defective in law, was held a sufficient user, the party claiming the office.

An information may lie where the office is claimed, and its duties have been performed, though the claimant refuses to perform them longer. State v. Graham, 13 Kan. 136.

2. Rex v. Stacy, 1 T. R. 1. And see Rex v. Dawes, 1 W. Bl. 634; Reg. v. Anderson, 2 Q. B. 740.

3. Reg. v. Lockhouse, 14 L. T., N. S. 359. People v. Waite, 70 Ill. 25.

4. State v. Sharp, 27 Minn. 38. As to effect of the acquiescence by the people for a long period of time, see State v. Seay, 64 Mo. 89.

5. In re Harris, 6 A. & E. 475; Morris v. Underwood, 19 Ga. 559; State v. Jacobs, 17 Ohio 143; State v. Taylor, 12 Ohio St. 130.

A writ of quo warranto brought within the term of an office may be tried after the term has expired; but title to a past and defunct office cannot be tried in a proceeding instituted, not can be determined.¹ The expiration of the term during the pendency of the proceeding will not, however, prevent its being retained for the purpose of the imposition of a fine and costs.²

6. Canvassers' Returns.—In proceedings in the nature of quo warranto the court will go behind the return of the canvassers of the votes cast at an election and treat their return as prima facie evidence only in favor of the incumbent of the office.³ So the commission will be treated as prima facie evidence only of title to the office.⁴

7. Proof Necessary.—On the respondent rests the burden of showing title to the office claimed by him. The prosecutor is not obliged, as in civil actions generally, to prove his title in order to put the respondent on his defense.⁵ If the respondent fails in his proof, judgment of ouster may follow.⁶ When the proceeding is against incumbents during its lifetime, but against those succeeding the next year. Com. v. Smith, 45 Pa. St. 59.

An information in the nature of a quo warranto may be filed against public officers after the expiration of their office, where their conviction is necessary to invalidate their acts, if said acts are of public concern, and intended to confer rights on others. Burton v. Patton, 2 Jones (N. Car.) 124; 62 Am. Dec. 194.

The court will make the rule absolute, although the party has, since the rule obtained, resigned his office, and his resignation has been accepted. Rex v. Warlow, 2 M. & S. 75. And see Reg. v. Blizzard, L. R., 2 Q. B. 35.

After the death of a mayor, capability to election cannot be disputed. Rex v. Spearing, 1 T. R. 4, n.

The court refused a rule for a quo warranto against the town clerk of a borough, which was moved for in order to contest his right to compensation as a displaced officer under § 6 Wm. IV, ch. 76, § 66. Rex v. Harris, 1 N. & P. 576; W., W. & D. 237; 6 A. & E. 475.

1. People v. Sweeting, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 184; Com. v. Reigart, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 216; State v. Schnierle, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 299. And see State v. Fisher, 28 Vt. 714.

The proceeding does not lie against an officer elected for one year only, because it would be impossible to decide the question until the expiration of the term, when the mischief complained of would be gone. Com. v. Athearn, 3 Mass. 285.

2. People v. Hartwell, 12 Mich. 508; 86 Am. Dec. 70; State v. Pierce, 35 Wis. 93. Contra, State v. Porter, 58 Iowa 19.

3. Attorney-Gen'l v. Ely, 4 Wis. 420; State v. Norton, 46 Wis. 332; People v. Van Slyck, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 297; People v. Thacher, 55 N. Y. 525; 14 Am. Rep. 312; People v. Pease, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 588; People v. Cook, 8 N. Y. 67; 59 Am. Dec. 451; State v. Steers, 44 Mo. 223; Attorney-Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567; State v. Buckland, 23 Kan. 259.

It may be otherwise, however, where the legislative decision, on a contest over the returns of the board of canvassers, appears, by the constitution, to be intended to be conclusive. People v. Goodwin, 22 Mich. 496.

4. State v. Steers, 44 Mo. 223; State v. Vail, 53 Mo. 97; State v. Townsley, 56 Mo. 107; Hardin v. Colquitt, 63 Ga. 588.

5. People v. Mayworm, 5 Mich. 146; State v. Gleason, 12 Fla. 265; Rex v. Leigh, Burr. 2143; People v. Thacher, 55 N. Y. 525; 14 Am. Rep. 312. See also People v. Niles, 2 Mich. 348; Clark v. People, 15 Ill. 217; State v. Beecher, 15 Ohio 723. See, however, People v. Lacoste, 37 N. Y. 192. And in State v. Hunton, 28 Vt. 594, it was held that the presumption of law was in favor of the right of the respondent in possession, and that the relator had the affirmative of the issue.

A party who applies to the court for relief against one, who, his term having expired, fills the office which the petitioner claims, must show prima facie, that a vacancy existed, and that he was chosen to fill it. Doane v. Scannell, 7 Cal. 393.

6. People v. Bartlett, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 422; People v. Pease, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 588.

In case of the default of the respondent instituted by the State the rights of an adverse claimant are not in issue.¹ Nor is the title of the relator material.²

III. PRIVATE CORPORATIONS.—See CORPORATIONS.³

IV. OFFICERS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS.—See CORPORATIONS: OFFICERS (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS).⁴

V. MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.—As to the existence of this remedy to forfeit the charter and franchises of a municipal corporation, in case of abuse or misuser, there can be no question, though the instances of its successful application are few.⁵ For the misconduct of municipal officers, or for usurpations on their part, or because of contests between them, a forfeiture of the corporate charter has never, in the United States, been decreed, the position taken by the courts being that the chartered rights of the community should not be divested by reason of the misconduct of individuals.⁶ The passage of an unauthorized ordinance does ent, in an information in the nature of a quo warranto to ascertain by what right he holds an office claimed by the relator, the court may, on strict legal principles, oust the respondent, and install the relator; but they will, in the exercise of their discretion, call upon the relator for evidence in support of his claim. Attorney Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567.

1. State v. Townsley, 56 Mo. 107.

2. Lake v. State, 18 Fla. 501; People v. Thacher, 55 N. Y. 525; 14 Am. Rep. 312.

3. The application of this remedy against private corporations and their officers is treated under the title CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 291, et seq., 302, et seq.

4. Vol. 17, p. 39.

5. High Ex. Rem. (2nd ed.), § 678; Dillon Mun. Corp. (4th ed.), § 720.

A case of political importance at the time was Rex v. London, 3 Harg. Stat. Trials 545, where, during the reign of Charles II, the entire franchises of the city of London was declared forfeited and seized into the hands of the crown. This decision was the culmination of a series of similar usurpations of regal power, and resulted in a reversal of the judgment by act of Parliament (2 Wm. & Mary, ch. 8, 9), the act declaring further that the franchises of that city should never again be seized for any misdemeanor or cause of forfeiture.

In State v. Bradford, 32 Vt. 50, the court by Redfield, C. J., said: "We are satisfied from the evidence in the case, that there could not have been a legal majority of the voters present at the meeting in favor of accepting the charter, and that it did not therefore, become a binding law. The organization therefore, under it, is a mere usurpation of corporate franchises, without any legal warrant. In such cases the law is well settled in England, that upon the information of the attorney-general, the court of King's bench will abate and dissolve the corporation, whether it be a private or public one. When the corporation is of a public character like a town or village, which constitute integral portions of the sovereignty itself, there is more propriety in visiting the usurpation of these important functions of sovereignty with this formal denial of their right to exercise such usurpation, than in the case of a mere private corporation, but the law seems to be the same in either case."

6. Dillon Mun. Corp. (4th ed.), § 720. It is here said, "It is believed by the author that such a remedy is not applicable to our corporations, created as they are by statute, for the benefit, not of the officers or a few persons, but of the whole body of the inhabitants residing therein and the public."

The leading case elaborating this principle is Com. v. Pittsburgh, 14 Pa. St. 177. Here a dispute arose between the mayor and the council as to which had the power to appoint a night watch and patrol, and an attempt was made to make this dispute the foundation of a quo warranto proceeding. The court held that as the only judgment would be a forfeiture of the franchises and charter, which were given for the benefit of the citizens, and not for the mayor or council, the rule to show cause must be discharged. Here there was no not afford ground for vacating the municipal charter.¹ Nor can the remedy be invoked to declare void or to annul such an ordinance.² The remedy is not appropriate to compel the performance of a municipal duty nor to punish its neglect or omission.³

An information against a municipal officer will not be permitted where its real purpose is to test the legality of the municipal charter. The corporation itself is an indispensable party in such a case.⁴

Long acquiescence and continued recognition on the part of the State may bar the maintenance of an information having for its object the deprivation of municipal franchises long exercised under a general law."⁵

VI. PARTIES—1. Attorney-General.—At common law the proceedings must be instituted in the name of the State or sovereign, and by the attorney-general or public prosecuting officer; this, on the theory that they are in form criminal, and are designed to redress a public wrong.⁶ And, where this is done, the court does question but that the power to make the appointment was vested in the corporation. The court by Coulter, J., said: "The law has abundant means and power of settling this dispute between the functionaries, without detriment to the people or corporation. Then why should the people be punished for the wrangling of its officers. . . . The proceeding has worn a grotesque appearance in my judgment from the beginning." The authority of Rex v. London, 3 Harg. State Trials 545, was invoked in support of the proceeding, but the court declined to recognize that case as an authority.

1. An ordinance, for example, unlawfully fixing the price of a license for retailing spirituous liquors at $1,000. State v. Cahaba, 30 Ala. 66.

2. State v. Lyons, 31 Iowa 432. Here the charge was that the council, without lawful authority, had passed ordinances vacating portions of a street, and praying that the ordinances be declared null and the city prevented from vacating the street. The court declared that the proceeding appeared to be without precedent.

3. Attorney-Gen'l v. Salem, 103 Mass. 138.

'Nor to question the validity of a subscription by a municipal corporation to railroad stock confirmed by legislative enactment. State v. Mayor etc. of Charleston, 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 491. But in People v. Board of Ed- ucation, 101 Ill. 308; 40 Am. Rep. 196, it was held that, under the Illinois statute, authorizing the remedy where any corporation "exercises powers not conferred by law," an information lay against a board of education to correct its illegal action in excluding colored children from the public schools.

4. Reg. v. Jones, 8 L. T., N. S. 503.

5. State v. Leatherman, 38 Ark. 81.

6. Lowther's Case, Ld. Raym. 1409; Com. v. Lexington etc. Turnpike Road Co., 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 397; Com. v. Union F. & M. Ins. Co., 5 Mass. 230; 4 Am. Dec. 50; Houston v. Neuse River etc. Co., 8 Jones (N. Car.) 476; Com. v. Burrell, 7 Pa. St. 34; Cleary v. Delieesseline, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 35; State v. Delieesseline, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 52; State v. Schneirle, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 299; Wright v. Allen, 2 Tex. 158; Murphy v. Farmers' Bank, 20 Pa. St. 415; U. S. v. Lockwood, 1 Pin. (Wis.) 359; Lindsey v. Attorney-Gen'l, 33 Miss. 508; Harrison v. Greaves, 59 Miss. 453; State v. Gleason, 12 Fla. 190; Robinson v. Jones, 14 Fla. 256; Rice v. National Bank, 126 Mass. 300; Barnum v. Gilman, 27 Minn. 466; 38 Am. Rep. 304; State v. Stein, 13 Neb. 529. See also Bartlett v. State, 13 Kan. 99; Saunders v. Gating, 81 N. Car. 298; Eaton v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 65; State v. Smith, 32 Ind. 213; State v. Moffitt, 5 Ohio 358; In re Mount Pleasant Bank, 5 Ohio 249; State v. Paterson etc.

not ask who, in fact, induced the action of the attorney-general, nor will it inquire into the motives, political or other, which may have prompted his action.¹

2. Private Relator.—In Great Britain, under the statute of Anne,² and in many of the States of the Union, an information by leave of court may be exhibited at the relation of a person possessed of an interest such as renders his interference not obtrusive. A distinction obtains, however, between encroachments or usurpations which affect the rights of the public at large, and not especially the rights of any individual member of the public, and those which, while incidentally wronging the public at large, primarily and peculiarly affect some particular person—as, for example, the individual deprived of an office by the unlawful holding of the usurper.³ It has been held in England that a burgess

Turnpike Co., 21 N. J. L. 9; State v. Somers' Point, 49 N. J. L. 515.

The people are necessary parties to an action to try the title to an office, and the rule is the same when the title is to be tried indirectly, as in an action to enjoin the incumbent. Morris v. Whelan, 64 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 109; 11 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 64.

1. State v. Gleason, 12 Fla. 190.

If the attorney-general has granted his fiat for a writ of error to issue, the court will not interfere, the fiat being conclusive. Reg. v. Clarke, 7 W. R. 601.

Where the attorney-general is the relator, a quo warranto will issue without a rule to show cause. As the law officer of the commonwealth, he is presumed to be impartial. Com. v. America Bank, 10 Phila. (Pa.) 156.

Where the attorney-general files the information, it seems to be immaterial whether any person shall be named as relator or not, as the information is that of the attorney-general and not of the relator. State v. Hardie, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 42.

An appeal taken at the instance of the relator in a quo warranto proceeding to dissolve a corporation may be dismissed in the discretion of the district attorney, against the relator's objection. The relator is not a party to the proceeding, and he cannot control it. State v. Douglas Co. Road Co., 10 Oregon 198.

In cases of usurpation by individuals of offices holden of the commonwealth, the attorney or solicitor general may file information against the supposed usurpers, ex officio, or at the relation of any person. Com. v. Fowler, 10

Mass. 295; Territory v. Smith, 3 Minn. 240.

It was held, also, in Com. v. Fowler, 10 Mass. 290, that the presumption that the attorney-general filed the information in his official capacity was not rebutted by a recital of a legislative order requesting its filing, as such an order might be deemed surplusage.

2. 9 Anne, ch. 20.

3. Com. v. Swank, 79 Pa. St. 154; Yonkey v. State, 27 Ind. 236; People v. Ryder, 12 N. Y. 433.

Where, as in Wisconsin, it is the duty of the attorney-general to file an information on the relation of one claiming a public office, such an information, filed and then dismissed as to the people, may still be prosecuted by the relator in his own behalf. Attorney Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567.

In Com. v. Cluley, 56 Pa. St. 270; 94 Am. Dec. 75, it was held that, even under a statute giving the remedy to "any person or persons desiring to prosecute the same," a private relator could not proceed where the right involved was a purely public right, not in any way especially concerning him.

In Arkansas, where the writ and not the information is used, the State must move, even though the controversy concerns the title to a public office. Ramsey v. Carhart, 27 Ark. 12; State v. McDiarmid, 27 Ark. 176.

In Louisiana, private citizens of a municipal corporation cannot enjoin officers from the discharge of their duties, nor contest nor inquire into their right to the offices by writ of quo warranto, even though they be taxpayers. Voisin v. Leche, 23 La. Ann. 25.

is a good relator in an information against a town councilor¹ or town clerk;² or even an inhabitant of the borough, though not a Burgess;³ or an owner of rated property in the town, not entitled to vote.⁴ In the United States a private citizen has been held a competent relator in a proceeding against one claiming the right to act as mayor,⁵ tax collector,⁶ city surveyor,⁷ member of the common council,⁸ street inspector,⁹ or against persons charged with usurping the functions of a board of assessment and revision of city taxes.¹⁰ In the case of a corporation proceeded against the same principle obtains. If there is no especial injury to an individual, the State must move; otherwise, a private relator, whose rights are invaded in a manner not shared by the public generally, will be recognized by the court, in its discretion. If the object of the proceeding is to destroy the corporation, and not merely to correct an abuse, the State, and not a private relator, is the proper moving party.¹¹

And it has been held in that State that in a proceeding under Louisiana Rev. St., §§ 2593, et seq., known as the "intrusion into office" law, at the instance and on the relation of a private individual, the relator, to maintain the proceedings, must show a muniment of title in himself; he cannot otherwise be heard to contest the right of the incumbent. State v. Miltenberger, 33 La. Ann. 263. And that, under that statute, the claimant of an office is the necessary plaintiff in such an action, and the officer de facto in actual possession the necessary defendant. Guillotte v. Poincy, 41 La. Ann. 333.

1. Reg. v. Parry, 2 N. & P. 414; 6 A. & E. 810.

2. Rex v. Davies, 1 M. & R. 538; and this even though the right of electing to the office of town clerk is in a select body.

3. Reg. v. Quayle, 11 A. & E. 508; Rex v. Hodge, 2 B. & Ald. 344, n.

4. Reg. v. Briggs, 11 L. T., N. S. 372.

In Rex v. Kemp, 1 East 38, n., Lord Kenyon said: "If he [the relator] had shown that his own and other persons' privileges had been injured, he would perhaps have had reason for preferring this complaint; but the fact is otherwise. He comes here as a perfect stranger to the corporation, prowling into other men's rights. I do not mean to say that a stranger may not in any case prefer this sort of application; but he ought to come to the court with a very fair case in his hands." And see Rex v. Stacey, 1 T. R. 1.

5. Com. v. Jones, 12 Pa. St. 365.

6. Com. v. Philadelphia Co., 1 S. & R. (Pa.) 382.

7. Com. v. Keilly, 4 Phila. (Pa.) 329.

8. Com. v. Meeser, 44 Pa. St. 341. See also Chicago v. People, 80 Ill. 496.

9. State v. Martin, 46 Conn. 479.

10. State v. Hammer, 42 N. J. L. 435. Otherwise, however, in Kansas, where it has been adjudged that the interest of a citizen and tax-payer is not sufficient. Miller v. Palermo, 12 Kan. 14. And see People v. Grand River Bridge Co., 13 Col. 11.

11. Com. v. Allegheny Bridge Co., 20 Pa. St. 185; Murphy v. Farmers' Bank, 20 Pa. St. 415; Com. v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 20 Pa. St. 518; State v. Paterson etc. Turnpike Co., 21 N. J. L. 9; State v. Somers Point, 49 N. J. L. 515; People v. North Chicago R. Co., 88 Ill. 537.

The fact that the relator owns land which the corporation has appropriated without compensation does not give him such an interest as enables him to maintain the action to dissolve the corporation. His interest is not one in which the public is concerned, being merely a right to sue for damages. People v. Grand River Bridge Co., 13 Colo. 11.

Nor does the fact that the relator is a creditor of the corporation and has an action pending for the recovery of the debt, make him competent. Com. v. Farmers' Bank, 2 Grant's (Pa.) Cas. 392.

An information in the name of the attorney-general, brought at the relation of an individual, for the pro-

3. Joinder.—The statute of Anne authorized the exhibition of one information to determine the rights of several persons to offices or franchises, where it should appear to the court that this might properly be done.¹ Therefore, in such a case, the proceedings under several informations may be consolidated.²

It has been held that an information against a corporation may not be joined with one against its officers, prosecuted by private relators.³

In a proceeding against school district directors, it has been adjudged not necessary to join the district, or its inhabitants, or the directors concerning whose rights there was no question.⁴

4. Miscellaneous.—A proceeding to test the title of a territorial judge to office must be in the name of the United States, not in the name of the Territory.⁵

VII. PROCEDURE—1. The Application—a. PETITION; RULE TO SHOW CAUSE.—In those cases where leave on the part of the court to file the information is required, the common practice is to present a petition supported by affidavit. This, in most jurisdictions, is followed by a rule to show cause. If, on the return to the rule, the right of the respondent is not clear beyond dispute, the rule is made absolute, and the information filed.⁶

tection of his private interests against the acts of a corporation, cannot be maintained for the purpose of restraining the corporation from the further use of its corporate powers, and from usurping public franchises to which it is entitled. Attorney-Gen'l v. Consumers' Gas Co., 142 Mass. 417.

An information in the nature of quo warranto under the Massachusetts statute, without the intervention of the attorney-general, will not lie against the stockholders of a corporation organized under the general statute, if the forms of law in the organization have been complied with, and the certificate issued by the secretary of the commonwealth, as provided by statute, although the certificate was obtained by fraud. Rice v. National Bank, 126 Mass. 300.

In South Carolina, an information, in the nature of a quo warranto will lie against a corporation, as a body, at the relation of a private person, in the name of the attorney-general. State v. City Council, 1 Mill (S. Car.) 36.

A statute authorizing the attorney-general to proceed at the instance of a private relator does not change the rule. People v. North Chicago R. Co., 88 Ill. 537.

English Rule.—A quo warranto against persons for claiming to act as a corporation must be filed by and in the name of the attorney-general. It cannot be filed at the instance of an individual, against persons for usurping a franchise of a private nature, not connected with public government. Rex v. Ogden, 10 B. & C. 230; and see Rex v. Trevenen, 2 B. & A. 479; Rex v. White, 5 A. & E. 613; Rex v. Parry, 6 Ad. & El. 810.

1. St. 9 Anne, ch. 20. And, at common law, this seems to have been permissible. High Ex. Rem. (2nd ed.), § 704; Symmers v. Reg. Coup. 508. It is not enough, however, that the duties of the two offices are somewhat similar. People v. DeMill, 15 Mich. 164; 93 Am. Dec. 179.

2. Rex v. Collingwood, 1 Burr. 573. But not where the several informations are against several persons for distinct offices. Rex v. Warlow, 2 M. & S. 75.

3. State v. Somer's Point, 49 N. J. L. 515.

4. State v. Simkins, 77 Iowa 676.

5. Territory v. Lockwood, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 236.

6. U. S. Lockwood, 1 Pin. (Wis.) 359; Com. v. Jones, 12 Pa. St. 365; In re Mount Pleasant Bank, 5 Ohio 249.

English Practice.—This is the English practice, under which, moreover, it is essential to specify in the rule objec-

In some jurisdictions, notice to the respondent of the application for leave to file the information is sufficient, and the rule to show cause is dispensed with.¹

b. AFFIDAVIT.—It may be stated, as a general rule, that the allegations of the affidavit should be positive and should not rest on information and belief.² The strictness of this rule is relaxed, however, as to allegations of usurpation, as distinguished from those of title.³

tions to be urged against the title of the respondent, to which objections the subsequent pleadings are confirmed, unless extended by leave of court. Reg. Gen. Hil. Term, 7 & 8 Geo. IV, See Reg. v. Thomas, 8 Ad. & El. 183; Reg. v. Reece, 5 B. 94.

The rule is applicable to the pleadings only, and does not prevent the relator at the trial of the information going into objections which may not be specified in the rule. Reg. v. Tugwell, 9 B. & S. 367.

By Stat. 6 & 7 Vict., ch. 89, § 5, the procedure was made more summary in the case of corporate offices, short notice to the respondent being substituted for the more formal rule.

The court will not grant a rule in the alternative for a quo warranto or a mandamus. Reg. v. Leeds (Mayor), 11 Ad. & El. 512.

It is not sufficient to state in the rule that the defendant was not entitled to be appointed to the office in question, and that the relator was. Reg. v. Eady, 12 Q. B. 936.

If circumstances are very strong in favor of a corporate franchise, and against the application, the rule nisi will be discharged with costs. Rex v. Wardroper, 4 Burr. 1963; 1 East 41, n.

For circumstances under which the rule was made absolute, see Reg. v. Earnshaw, 22 L. J. Q. B. 174; Reg. v. Blizard, 7 B. & S. 922; Reg. v. Newcombe, 15 W. R. 198.

1. In State v. Bennett, 2 Ala. 140, the latter course was stated to be good practice, sufficient time being allowed to enable the respondent to prepare affidavits in opposition to the case presented.

In Com. v. Jones, 12 Pa. St. 365, it was adjudged good ground for a motion to quash that the information was filed on a suggestion, in the absence of a rule to show cause. But, in Murphy v. Farmers' Bank, 20 Pa. St. 415, it was held that the rule to show cause was matter of form rather than of substance, and that, if the respondent had a preliminary hearing, as upon a motion to quash, the omission of the rule was not fatal.

So in Gilroy v. Com., 105 Pa. St. 484, it was declared that a rule to show cause was not indispensable.

In the case of a small annual township office, leave to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto, will be granted in the first instance, the defendant brought in by process, and then ruled to plead. In the case of a corporation or high public officer, a rule to show cause will be first allowed. State v. Gummersall, 24 N. J. L. 529; In re Mount Pleasant Bank, 5 Ohio 249.

In Illinois, a motion supported by affidavit, is presented. Then a rule nisi issues, and the respondent may file counter affidavits.

People v. Waite, 70 Ill. 25. The circuit court can acquire jurisdiction to render judgment on an information in the nature of a quo warranto, only by service of a writ under seal of the court, and running in the name of the people, or by voluntary appearance of the defendant—not after a mere notice to the defendant by the attorneys of the relator. Hambleton v. People, 44 Ill. 458.

In Vermont, the practice is substantially similar to that of Illinois. State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 14; State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 266.

2. Rex v. Newling, 3 T. R. 310; Rex v. Lane, 5 B. & A. 488.

3. Rex v. Harwood, 2 East 177; Rex v. Slythe, 6 B. & C. 240.

The rule was dismissed with costs, where the affidavits in support suppressed several material facts. Rex v. Hughes, 7 B. & C. 719; 1 M. & R. 625.

The following English cases deal with the requisites of the affidavit: Reg. v. Hedges, 11 A. & E. 163; Rex v. Blame, 4 A. & E. 664; Rex v. Headley, 7 B. & C. 496; Rex v. Barzey, 4 M. & S. 353; In re Bester, 7 Jur.,

2. Pleading—a. GENERAL PRINCIPLES.—At the present day, in most jurisdictions, the pleadings assimilate to those in civil proceedings more nearly than to criminal pleadings.¹ But this, while so generally, is not so universally.²

b*. THE INFORMATION.—In considering the requisites of the information, or the pleading corresponding thereto, it is to be borne in mind that, as a general rule, the burden of proof rests with the defendant;³ so that, viewing the proceeding from the civil standpoint, the allegations of the information may be more general than would be the case were the prosecution to prevail only on the strength of the relator's title, where there is a private relator claiming title. In this particular, the proceeding is somewhat anomalous, and the rules of pleading applicable to actions generally bend to conform to the anomaly. Thus, where the usurpation of a public office is charged, the information need not set forth the title of the relator.⁴ It is enough to allege, in general terms, that the incumbent of the office is in possession thereof

N. S. 262; 3 L. T., N. S. 667; Reg. v. Anderson, 2 Q. B. 740; 2 G. & D. 113; Rex v. Rolfe, 1 N. & M. 773.

1. State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154; 100 Am. Dec. 265; State v. Commercial Bank, 10 Ohio, 535; People v. Clark, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 95; People v. Ryder, 12 N. Y. 433; Territory v. Virginia Road Co., 2 Mont. 96; Attorney-Gen'l v. Mich. State Bank, 2 Doug. (Mich.) 359. See reporter's note to People v. Richardson, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 97. Under the New York Code, the ordinary civil action has taken the place of the information. See People v. Albany etc. R. Co., 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 308; 57 N. Y. 161; People v. Pease, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 588; People v. Conover, 6 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 220.

In Texas, the proceeding is declared expressly to be a civil one and the liberal rules of code pleading are applied. East Dallas v. State, 73 Tex. 371.

In Ohio it is held that the rules of pleading established by the code are inapplicable, and that the pleadings are still governed by the rules prevailing before the adoption of the code. State v. McDaniel, 22 Ohio St. 354.

2. In Illinois, it is held that an information by quo warranto is a criminal proceeding, and the rules of pleading applicable to indictments govern it. Under the constitution all informations of this nature must be carried on "in the name and by the authority of the people of the State of Illinois," and must conclude "against the peace and dignity of the same." Donnelly v. People, 11 Ill. 552; People v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 13 Ill. 66; Wight v. People, 15 Ill. 417; Hay v. People, 59 Ill. 91.

3. See supra, this title, Public Officers—Proof Necessary, and cases there cited. See also People v. Ridgley, 21 Ill. 66; People v. Bartlett, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 422; State v. Ashley, 1 Ark. 513; State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570; 36 Am. Rep. 460. But see State v. Kupferle, 44 Mo. 154; 100 Am. Dec. 265; Miller v. English, 21 N. J. L. 317.

4. People v. Miles, 2 Mich. 348; People v. Abbott, 16 Cal. 358.

But, where the proceeding is to decide, as between two parties which has the better right to a certain office, the information must show affirmatively that the relator has a title to the office, if the defendant's title be defeated, and therefore must show that the relator possessed all the requisite qualifications for the office. State v. Boal, 46 Mo. 528.

An information alleging facts showing the date of relator's appointment to an office; that there was at the time a vacancy in the office; that relator was eligible, and was duly appointed by the governor; that defendant has usurped and illegally held the office; and making a demand for the office, states facts sufficient to entitle relator to be given possession of the office. State v. Peelle, 121 Ind. 495.

A demand for the office need not be averred or proved. State v. McDiarmid, 27 Ark. 176.

An information, in the nature of a without lawful authority.¹ Nor, at common law, was it necessary to state whether the office existed under a charter or by prescription, it appearing to be a public office.² The cases cited in the following note bear upon the question of the requisites of the information in quo warranto proceedings generally.³

quo warranto for usurping a franchise, need not show title in the people to the franchise, but it lies with the defendant to show his warrant for exercising it. People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 358; 8 Am. Dec. 243.

Where the relator joins with the State, and a good cause of action in favor of the State is set forth, it is not ground for demurrer that it does appear that the relator is entitled to the office. State v. Palmer, 24 Wis. 63.

1. People v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 43; People v. Abbott, 16 Cal. 358. And see People v. River Raisin etc. R. Co., 12 Mich. 389; 86 Am. Dec. 64. In Ex parte Bellows, 1 Mo. 115, it was said, however, that mere general allegations that the respondent was not qualified for the office would not suffice but that the particulars relied upon should be set forth.

2. Rex v. Boyles, Ld. Raym. 1559.

3. Public Officers—It has been declared that facts necessary to be alleged to show a neglect of duty must be set out with all the exactness of pleading required in an action for a penalty. People v. Kingston etc. Turnpike Road Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 193; 35 Am. Dec. 551; People v. Bristol Turnpike Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 223.

And that an averment that the governor, by and with the consent of the senate, appointed another officer, is not equivalent to an averment that the incumbent was removed. People v. Carrique, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 93.

Where the act vesting certain powers of appointment by charter in the municipal officers was pleaded by its title, and it was further averred that the mayor and councilmen had been duly elected and the relator duly appointed and qualified, it was held that the allegations were sufficient. State v. Sherman, 42 Mo. 210.

An information merely alleged "that for the space of two days last the defendant has usurped," etc., without stating definitely the time when such usurpation commenced. Held, that the words "two days last past" referred to the filing of the information, and were sufficiently certain. People v. Miller, 15 Mich. 354.

Corporations.—An information against a corporation, seeking a forfeiture of its franchises for a non-compliance with its charter, must aver the alleged nonfeasance, misfeasance, or malfeasance to have been wilful on the part of the corporation. State v. Columbia etc. Turnpike Co., 2 Sneed (Tenn.) 254.

It was said, in People v. Manhattan Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 351, that great strictness was required in assigning a breach of a condition for the purpose of forfeiting a corporate franchise.

A complaint by quo warranto, against a plank-road company must aver the time of incorporation or the date of organization, that the court may know by what statute the decision is to be governed. Covington etc. Plank Road Co. v. Van Sickle, 18 Ind. 244. To the same effect is Danville etc. Plank Road Co. v. State, 16 Ind. 456.

Where an information charged certain parties with holding illegally and without proper warrant or authority, the offices of wardens and vestrymen of St Paul's Church, "a corporation created by the authority of the said State," it was held that the information was fatally defective in not showing in what manner the church became a body corporate, as it had no special charter. People v. DeMill, 15 Mich. 164; 93 Am. Dec. 179.

An information against a number of persons who claim to be, but are not legally, an incorporated company, must state that they have acted within the State as a corporation. State v. Kingan, 51 Ind. 142.

Under the Pennsylvania law of 1836, which was said, in 1857, to be still in force, as to pleading in quo warranto, the attorney-general may disclose in his information the specific ground of forfeiture, or merely set forth the franchise illegally exercised, and call on defendant to show by what authority they are held. Com. v. Commercial Bank, 28 Pa. St. 383. And such is the rule in Ohio. State v. Commercial Bank, 10 Ohio 535.

c. THE PLEA.—In most jurisdictions, under the liberal rules governing pleadings in civil actions, the defendant may set up several defenses, if he has them.¹ So he may plead to the merits and, at the same time, may disclaim.² The proper and usual course, however, is to disclaim or to justify.³ A plea merely of not guilty or non usurpavit does not satisfy the rule adverted to above, that the burden of proof is on the defendant.⁴

Filing an information in quo warranto against a municipal corporation by its corporate name is an admission of its corporate existence, which the relator cannot afterwards controvert, notwithstanding the very object and purpose of the proceeding are to show that the alleged corporation never had any legal existence. People v. Spring Valley, 129 Ill. 169. And see generally State v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 24 Tex. 80.

Miscellaneous Matters Relating to Informations.—Where, in a complaint against a corporation the prosecutor alleged that it had omitted to perform certain acts essential to its existence as a corporation, and had, since it had acted as a corporation, violated its charter, and the defendant demurred to the complaint as containing inconsistent allegations, the court held that the complaint was good, containing but one subject-matter, to wit, the right of the corporation to continue to exercise certain franchises. People v. Ravenswood etc. Turnpike etc. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 518.

Though the statute seems to contemplate that the petition for leave to file an information in quo warranto and the information itself shall be separate, yet, as the proceeding is expressly declared to be a civil one, the liberal rules of code pleading are to be applied, and it is sufficient if the petition for leave to file be included in and made a part of the information. East Dallas v. State, 73 Tex. 371.

An information by the attorney-general in the name of the people of the State does not conflict with the requirement of the constitution that "the style of all process shall be the 'State of Florida.'" State v. Gleason, 12 Fla. 190.

The heading to an information "A B, prosecuting attorney," sufficiently complies with a statutory requirement that it must be brought by the district attorney. Davis v. Best, 2 Iowa 96.

In North Carolina it is no objection to an information that the full title of the "solicitor for the State" is not given, and that the term "solicitor" only is used. State v. Hardie, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 42.

Under the Indiana practice a prayer for relief at the close of an information should be taken distributively; and a prayer at the end of each paragraph is unnecessary. State v. Bailey, 16 Ind. 46; 79 Am. Dec. 405.

1. Under the English practice, this may be done. Rex v. Autridge, 8 T. R. 467. And see Reg. v. Diplock, 19 L. T. R., N. S. 380.

So in Ohio. State v. McDaniel, 22 Ohio St. 354.

And in Michigan. Coon v. Plymouth Plank Road Co., 31 Mich. 178. And in California. People v. Stratton, 28 Cal. 382.

See, however, State v. Roe, 26 N. J. L. 215; People v. Jones, 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 601.

2. State v. Brown, 34 Miss. 688.

3. Larke v. Crawford, 28 Mich. 88; State v. Foote, 11 Wis. 14; Clark v. People, 15 Ill. 217; Illinois etc. R. Co. v. People, 84 Ill. 426; Holden v. People, 90 Ill. 434; State v. Jones, 16 Fla. 306; State v. Olcott, 6 N. H. 74; State v. Harris, 3 Ark. 570; 36 Am. Dec. 460.

4. Reg. v. Blagden, 10 Mod. 296; People v. Mayworm, 5 Mich. 146; State v. Foote, 11 Wis. 14.

And see Com. v. McWilliams, 11 Pa. St. 61; Com. v. Cross Cut R. Co., 53 Pa. St. 62.

Miscellaneous Matters Relating to the Plea.—Where the State by quo warranto calls upon an individual to show his title to an office, he must show the continued existence of every qualification necessary to the enjoyment of that office. People v. Mayworm, 5 Mich. 146; State v. Beecher, 15 Ohio 723.

It is enough to deny the user without denying the claim. People v. Thompson, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 655.

The plea need not adopt the words of

d. THE REPLICATION.—There is little on this head which is peculiar to this proceeding. To the return the State may reply several matters.¹

e. AMENDMENTS.—The liberality governing amendments in civil proceedings generally is exercised in quo warranto proceedings.²

3. Default.—The effect of a default is the same, usually, as in civil actions generally.³

VIII. JUDGMENT; FINE; COSTS—1. Judgment.—The judgment rendered against the respondent, on the information, is of ouster.⁴ On the ancient writ it was the same, except in the case of a franchise of such a nature that it subsisted at the hands of the crown, any law prescribing the qualification for exercising the office or franchise; but only set up facts sufficient to show clearly the right to exercise the same. State v. Jones, 16 Fla. 306.

To a writ of quo warranto against a corporation, the response properly recites the several acts of the legislature constituting the defendants a corporation. State v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 20 Ark. 495.

It is not enough for the defendant to assert his election. He should set out the particulars thereof. Com. v. Gill, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 228.

And see further as to the requisites of the plea under particular circumstances. State v. Cincinnati, 23 Ohio St. 445; Attorney-Gen'l v. Michigan State Bank, 2 Dougl. (Mich.) 359; People v. Van Cleve, 1 Mich. 362; 53 Am. Dec. 69; Com. v. Central Passenger R. Co., 52 Pa. St. 506; People v. Manhattan Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 351; Rex v. Knight, 4 T. R. 425; Rex v. Rowland, 3 B. & A. 130.

If defendant, in proceedings to oust him from office, fails to deny allegations which, although unnecessary, charge him with legal incapacity to hold the office, he admits them in like manner as though they were necessary allegations. People v. Knox, 38 Hun (N. Y.) 236.

1. Reg. v. Diplock, 10 B. & S. 174.

The statement, in a replication of several distinct facts which are all aimed to make out the one ultimate fact of a violation of corporate duty, relied upon as a ground of forfeiture of the charter of incorporation, affords no ground for charging the replication with duplicity. Coon v. Plymouth Plank Road Co., 31 Mich. 79.

In a quo warranto against a company formed by consolidation under the laws of Pennsylvania, "nul tiel record" is well replied to a plea that the company became a corporation by contract of consolidation. Com. v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 53 Pa. St. 9.

2. Com. v. Gill, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 228; Com. v. Commercial Bank, 28 Pa. St. 383; Poe v. State, 72 Tex. 625. The information may be amended, State v. Gleason, 12 Fla. 190.

The omission to show, in an information, that the offices usurped are corporate offices, may be amended. Guntton v. Ingle, 4 Cranch (C. C.) 438.

3. High Ex. Leg. Rem. (2nd ed.), § 739. So if the respondent fails to support his answer by testimony, judgment may go against him. Brown v. Jeffries, 42 Kan. 605. Where the case is of great public importance, the court, notwithstanding a default, may require evidence. Attorney-Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567.

4. Rex v. Tyrrell, 11 Mod. 235; In re Mayor of Penryn, Strange 582; Rex v. Leigh, Burr. 2143; State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1; People v. Ryder, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 370; People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 357; 8 Am. Dec. 243; People v. Thompson, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 235; 23 N. Y. 537; Campbell v. Talbot, 132 Mass. 174.

For the form of judgment upon an information in the nature of a quo warranto see Com. v. Fowler, 11 Mass. 339; U. S. v. Addison, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 291.

Upon an information to determine the right to occupy an office, the court, if it decides in favor of the relator, may order the respondent to vacate the office immediately. People v. Banvard, 27 Cal. 470; People v. Connor, 13 Mich. 238; People v. Snedeker, when the judgment was of seizure into the king's hands.¹ The judgment rendered in proceedings on the writ was regarded as final and conclusive upon all parties, even the crown.² On the information, the judgment being merely of ouster with, perhaps, a nominal fine, is less decisive, though, unreversed, it effectually concludes the respondent against whom it is rendered.³ The judgment merely declares a right; it does not create one.⁴ Judgment of ouster may be given, though the usurpation ceased before the trial;⁵ or where the term of office has expired.⁶ Neither a judgment of ouster nor of seizure, where the respondent is a corporation, dissolves the corporation.⁷ Nor are the judgments of ouster and of seizure the same thing.⁸

2. Fine.—The statute of Anne authorized the imposition of a

3 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 233; Gano v. State, 10 Ohio St. 237.

1. Com. Dig. Quo Warranto; 3 Bl. Comm. 263.

2. Rex v. Trinity House, Sid. 86.

3. Hart v. Harvey, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 55. High on Ex. Leg. Rem. (2nd ed.), § 748; Rex v. Clark, 2 East 75.

A judgment, finding that the defendant has usurped and is unlawfully holding a public office, cannot be attacked collaterally; and such judgment cannot be annulled by the subsequent decree of that or of any other court adjudging the non-existence of the office. Ex parte Henshaw, 73 Cal. 486.

The effect of the judgment of ouster against a corporation is to exclude it from the right to exercise any of its franchises or privileges, and no grantee or licensee of the corporation thereafter can justify his action under its rights or franchises. Campbell v. Talbot, 132 Mass. 174.

The effect of the judgment of ouster against the usurper of an office is to constitute a full and complete amotion, and to render void all pretended official acts of his after the judgment. Rex v. Serle, 8 Mod. 332; Rex v. Hall, 11 Mod. 390; Fuigham v. Johnson, 40 Ga. 164. And the judgment bars proceedings by mandamus instituted by him to procure a restoration to the office. Rex v. Serle, 8 Mod. 332.

The judgment does not, however, necessarily declare a vacancy in the office, this depending upon the further question whether any one else is entitled to it. State v. Ralls Co. Ct., 45 Mo. 58.

4. Attorney-Gen'l v. Barstow, 4 Wis. 567.

5. Rex v. Williams, 1 W. Bl. 93. But see State v. Taylor, 12 Ohio St. 130.

6. People v. Loomis, 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 396; 24 Am. Dec. 33; Hammer v. State, 44 L. J. L. 667.

7. Smith's Case, 4 Mod. 53; State Bank v. State, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 267; 12 Am. Dec. 234; People v. Rensselaer etc. R. Co., 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 113.

In State v. Bradford, 32 Vt. 50, it was held that, where the information was filed to test the right to exercise the franchise of a municipal corporation, and it was determined that the organization of the pretended corporation was a mere usurpation of a corporate franchise, without lawful authority, judgment, dissolving the corporation, might follow.

8. The distinction is thus set forth in Rex v. London, 2 T. R. 522: "Where it clearly appears to the court that a liberty is usurped by wrong, and upon no title, judgment only of ouster shall be entered. But when it appears that a liberty has been granted, but has been misused, judgment of seizure into the king's hands shall be given." See People v. Bartlett, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 422; People v. Rensselaer etc. R. Co., 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 113.

As to the effect of a judgment of seizure, see State Bank v. State, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 267; 12 Am. Dec. 234; 2 Kyd. on Corp. 409.

Where the proceeding is against a corporation for usurping corporate franchises, the State may waive a judgment of forfeiture of the charter, and take a judgment excluding the corporation from the use of the particular franchise usurped. Central etc. R. Co. v. People, 5 Colo. 39.

fine, as well as a judgment of ouster.¹ Whether a fine shall be imposed, and its amount, are matters of judicial discretion. If there is an absence of improper motive the fine is usually nominal.²

3. Costs.—The statute of Anne authorized the recovery of costs by or against the relator.³ In the United States the rule is generally the same.⁴

1. 9 Anne, ch. 20, § 5.

2. State v. Brown, 5 R. I. 1.

Even though a fine should have been imposed, the omission is not error of which the respondent can complain.

State Bank v. State, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 267.

3. 9 Anne, ch. 20, § 5.

On a judgment for the relator, he is entitled to costs. Rex v. Amery, 1 Anst. 178.

Where any one of several issues is found for the prosecutor, on which judgment of ouster is given, he is entitled to costs on all the issues. Rex v. Downes, 1 T. R. 453.

A private relator, who has obtained judgment in a quo warranto, is entitled as of course to the costs of the prosecution, as well as the costs of an interlocutory motion, in which he failed. Reg. v. Dudley, 4 Jur. 915.

A prosecutor shall pay costs where he makes a groundless and frivolous application for a quo warranto, knowing it to be so. Rex v. Lewis, 2 Burr. 780; 2 Ld. Ken. 497.

Where the respondent, charged with the usurpation of a municipal office, suffered judgment by default, it was held that, under the statute, the relator was entitled to costs. Lloyd v. Reg., 2 B. & S. 656.

Where the court has discharged the rule, it will, in its discretion, on a subsequent application, order payment of costs by the party who was virtually relator. Reg. v. Green, 7 Jur. 440; 12 L. J. Q. B. 239.

Where a rule nisi is discharged, and it appears that the party making the affidavit as relator is indigent, and unable to pay costs, and was procured to make the application by another, who is the real prosecutor, the court will order the costs to be paid by the party so promoting the application; and it makes no difference that such party was employed on the motion as an attorney. Reg. v. Greene, 4 Q. B. 646. And see Rogers v. London etc. R. Co., 26 W. R. 192.

In Reg. v. Hartley, 3 El. & Bl. 143, it was held that though a person whose election to the office of town councilor is void by reason of a mistake of the presiding officer, is willing to disclaim and consents to a rule for a quo warranto being made absolute, the court will not order that the relator should bear the expense of the information and disclaimer. But in Reg. v. Morton, 4 Q. B. 146, the court adjudged otherwise. See Reg. v. May, 2 L. M. & P. 144, where, in the circumstances, it was held that the respondent's resignation precluded the recovery of costs against him; and see Reg. v. Sidney, 2 L. M. & P. 149, where, in the circumstances of that case, costs were adjudged, notwithstanding the resignation.

The court will not stay proceedings until the prosecutor gives security for costs, on the ground that the relator is in insolvent circumstances, where it appears that he is a corporator, and no fraud is suggested. Rex v. Wynne, 2 M. & S. 346.

4. When an information is filed on the relation of a private person, the relator must give security for the costs; and if such security is not given before the commencement of the suit, it cannot be afterwards supplied. Taylor v. State, 31 Ala. 383.

Where there is no relator, the court cannot adjudge defendant to pay costs, nor order that the prosecutor shall have any part of the fine. Com. v. Woelper, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 52.

Where a corporation was dissolved upon quo warranto, and the officers, who were not shown to have taken part in any improper proceedings in organizing had filed a disclaimer of any purpose to further exercise the functions of their office, it was held that costs against the officers should not be allowed. State v. Bradford, 32 Vt. 50.

In People v. Clute, 52 N. Y. 576, costs were allowed against the respondent, though the relator failed to establish his own title to the office in question. And so in State v. Jenkins,

IX. NEW TRIAL; REVIEW.—As to new trials, the rule applicable to civil actions generally obtains;¹ and so as to reviewing the proceedings.²

RACING.—See GAMING, vol. 8, p. 1038.

RADIUS.—A radius is a straight line drawn from the center of a circle to any point of its circumference. Its length is half the diameter of that circle, or is a space between the center and the circumference.³

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS—(See also FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 910; INTERSTATE COMMERCE, vol. 11, p. 539).

I. In General, 686.

II. Appointment, 687.

III. Powers and Duties, 687.

IV. Salary and Expenses, 690.

I. IN GENERAL.—State legislatures have authority to establish reasonable regulations for the control of railway corporations.⁴ To enable them to exercise such authority prudently and intelligently, boards of railroad commissioners frequently are created, charged with the general duty of preventing the exaction of unreasonable or discriminating rates upon transportation within the State, and for the enforcement of reasonable police regulations for the comfort, convenience, and safety of travelers and persons 46 Wis. 616, under the statute of that State.

1. Rex v. Francis, 2 T. R. 484; People v. Sackett, 14 Mich. 243; People v. Doesburg, 17 Mich. 135.

2. People v. Sackett, 14 Mich. 243; People v. Cook, 8 N. Y. 67.

The reversal of a judgment removing an officer from office, restores him thereto without need of any further order. Phares v. State, 3 W. Va. 567; 100 Am. Dec. 777.

3. State v. Berard, 40 La. Ann. 172. A Louisiana act prohibits private markets "within a radius of six squares" of any public market. In State v. Barthe, 41 La. Ann. 46, it was held that the words "within a radius of six squares" does not import that the distance is to be measured in an air line, but that the words were intended to mean a route or distance of six squares in all directions from a public market such as a human being could use. The court noted the definition of radius as given in State v. Berard, 40 La. Ann. 172, and quoted in the text, but held the definition to be obiter. From this decision Bermudez, C. J., and Fenner, J., dissented.

A dentist sold his business, contracting with the purchaser not to practice dentistry "within a radius of ten miles of L." This was held to be a valid contract not to practice dentistry within ten miles of the center of the village of L. Cook v. Johnson, 47 Conn. 175. ILLEGAL CONTRACTS, vol. 9, p. 887, et seq.

4. Board of Railroad Commissioners v. Oregon, R. etc. Co., 7 Oregon 65, 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 542.

It is held in the following cases that statutes providing for boards of railroad commissioners are constitutional; Stone v. Yazoo etc. R. Co., 62 Miss. 607; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 6; 52 Am. Rep. 193; Charlotte, etc. R. Co. v. Gibbs, 27 S. Car. 385; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 464; Tilley v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 5 Fed. Rep. 641; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 615; Stone v. Jackson etc. R. Co., 62 Miss. 646; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 17; Georgia R. etc. Co. v. Smith, 70 Ga. 694; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 386; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Dey, 35 Fed. Rep. 866. See also FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 910.

Even where the charter of a railroad company gives it the right to regulate its charges, the State may create a commission with power to see that it keeps within its charter limits, to prevent unjust discrimination, and to doing business with the companies.¹ These boards are required, usually, to make annual reports to the legislature of their doings, including such statements, facts, and inspections as will disclose the actual working of the system of railroad transportation in its bearing upon the business prosperity of the State, and such suggestions as to the general railroad policy, the amendment of the laws, and the condition, affairs, or conduct of any railroad corporations as may seem to them appropriate, and to recommend and draft for the legislature such bills as, in their judgment, will protect the interest of the public.² The authority to create these boards is founded on the principle that railroad corporations enjoy privileges and franchises created for the benefit of the public, and is exercised in order that the public may not fail to receive it.³

II. APPOINTMENT.—In some States railroad commissioners are appointed,⁴ while in others they are elected by the people.⁵

III. POWERS AND DUTIES.—The provisions of the State laws creating railroad commissions are similar as regards the duties imposed but different as to the powers vested in them. Thus, in New York, the law gives the board full power of investigation and supervision enforce such reasonable regulations as the State may deem necessary. Stone v. Yazoo etc. R. Co., 62 Miss. 607; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 6; 52 Am. Rep. 193. Compare Stone v. Jackson etc. R. Co., 62 Miss. 646.

The constitutions of Nebraska and California provide for such boards. Nebraska Rev. Sts., § 202; California Code, 12, 22.

1. Stone v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 U. S. 307; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 577.

2. See the statutes of the various States.

3. Board of Railroad Com'rs v. Oregon R. etc. Co., 7 Oregon 65; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 542.

If properly constituted, these boards are of great service to State legislatures, whose sessions are short and whose members are often inexperienced in the detail of general legislation requisite for the proper management of railways and unfamiliar with the devices sometimes resorted to for the purpose of gaining unequal and unjust special legislation in behalf of interested individuals or corporations. 2 Redfield on Rys., p. 606.

4. See Georgia R. etc. Co. v. Smith, 70 Ga. 694; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 386; McWharton v. Pensacola etc. R. Co., 24 Fla. 417; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 566.

In Massachusetts they are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the council. Mass. Pub. St., ch. 112.

In New York, the commission consists of three persons appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. One is selected from each of the two political parties casting the greatest number of votes for governor, and the third is selected upon the recommendation of the presidents and executive heads, or a majority of such, of the Chamber of Commerce, the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, and the National Anti-Municipal League, or any two of such organizations so represented in case of disagreement. New York Rev. Sts., p. 2500.

5. Railroad Commissioners in Mississippi.—Under acts 1884, ch. 23, § 5, railroad commissioners were appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. By acts of 1886, ch. 21, § 1, this was changed, and it was provided that they should be elected by a joint vote of the two houses of the legislature. But the new constitution provides that all State officers shall be elected at the same time, and in the same manner as the governor, i. e., by vote of the qualified electors of the State; and there seems to be no doubt that railroad commissioners are included within the term "all other State of all railroads and their condition, with reference not only to the security but accommodation of the public; requires them to make annual reports to the legislature disclosing the actual workings of the system of railroad transportation and any suggestions in relation thereto, etc., as to them may seem appropriate; and declares that whenever, in their judgment, it shall appear, among other things, that any addition to or change of stations or station houses is necessary to promote the security, convenience, or accommodation of the public, they shall give notice to the corporation of the improvements and changes which they deem to be proper, and, if they are not made, shall present the facts to the attorney-general for his consideration and action, and also to the legislature. The statute merely recognizes the necessity for such a tribunal to adjust conflicting interests and controversies between the people and the corporation. It has clothed it with judicial power to hear and determine. But it goes no further. Its proceedings and determination, however characterized, amount to nothing more than an inquest for information, and there is no law by which the courts can carry into effect its decisions.¹ But in Nebraska and Oregon, whenever a railroad company violates, or refuses or neglects to obey any lawful order or requirement of the commission, the commission, or any company or person interested, may enter a complaint in the circuit court of the State in the district in which the violation or disobedience of the order or requirement has arisen, and when it is made to appear to the court on the hearing that the lawful order or requirement of the commission has been violated or disobeyed, the court may issue a writ of injunction or other proper process to distrain the company from further continuing such violation or disobedience.² So in Georgia,³ *Florida*⁴ and *Mississippi*⁵ adequate penalties are provided for the enforcement of the rules and orders of the commission, and in Connecticut the law is similar.⁶ And in Minnesota, it is held that orders of the commission are conclusive and not subject to review officers." Const. of Mississippi (1890), § 143; Id. p. 74, § 3.

1. People v. New York etc. R. Co., 104 N. Y. 58; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 480.

2. Board of Railroad Commissioners v. Oregon R. etc. Co., 17 Oregon 65; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 542; State v. Fremont etc. R. Co., 22 Neb. 313; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 426.

Where the board of transportation has investigated charges of unjust discrimination against a railroad company, and has found such unjust discrimination to exist, and ordered such railroad company to reduce its rates to conform to a schedule presented by such board, which order the railroad company has neglected to comply with, mandamus is a proper remedy to enforce such order; and the mention of the district court in the statute will not preclude bringing the action in the supreme court, where the latter court has original jurisdiction. State v. Fremont etc. R. Co., 22 Neb. 313; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 426.

3. Georgia R. etc. Co. v. Smith, 70 Ga. 594; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 387.

4. McWhorter v. Pensacola etc. R. Co., 24 Fla. 417; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 566.

5. Stone v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 U. S. 307; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 577.

6. State v. N. Haven etc. R. Co., by the court, upon proceedings taken for their enforcement.¹ The powers conferred by legislatures upon boards of commissioners, will not, however, be extended by implication; and the acts which a board attempts will not be upheld, unless the authority is affirmatively shown to be included in the power conferred.² Railroad commissioners have authority in some States to order companies to provide station accommodations,³ to designate the site or loca-

37 Conn. 153. See also Woodruff v. New York etc. R. Co., 59 Conn. 63.

1. Railway Transfer Co. v. Railroad Commission, 39 Minn. 231; State v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 38 Minn. 281.

By section 8, of the railroad and warehouse commission act (Laws Minnesota, 1887 ch. 10), the supreme court is vested (concurrently with the district court) with original jurisdiction of all proceedings by mandamus, to compel compliance with the regulations of the commission with reference to transportation rates, as provided therein. State v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 38 Minn. 281; State v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 40 Minn. 156.

Tennessee act 1883, ch. 199, § 3, was held invalid for leaving it to the commission to determine whether the statute had been violated, and to prosecute suits accordingly, this reversing the presumption of innocence, the court saying that it was against public policy to appoint a commission with such power, as it enabled a political party to bring to its aid the immense railroad property and influence, by action through the commissioners, which might be friendly or unfriendly, as the companies might favor one party or the other. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 19 Fed. Rep. 679.

2. Where the legislature created a board of railroad commissioners, empowering it to examine into the affairs of railroad corporations doing business within the State, and required it to make a biennial report, with such suggestions "as to what changes in the classification of freights, or what change in the rate of freights or fares are advisable for the public welfare," but conferred no express authority upon the board to regulate the price of freight, or to determine when freight charges were unreasonable, it was held that the board had no jurisdiction to require a railroad company to refund to a shipper a sum of money alleged to have been exacted from him in excess of a reasonable charge for the shipment. Board of Railroad Com'rs v. Oregon R. etc. Co., 17 Oregon 65; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 542.

The New Hampshire statute of 1883, ch. 401, requiring the railroad commissioners to fix tables of maximum charges, is not to be extended by construction to authorize the fixing of such charges to points beyond the limits of the State. Merrill v. Boston & Lowell R. Co., 63 N. H. 259.

No right of action being conferred by the statute on the railroad commissioners, when a company fails to erect a stationhouse when directed by the commissioners, none exists, the remedy being a suit by the State for the penalty. Railroad Comm'rs v. Spartanburg Union etc. R. Co., 26 S. Car 352.

State railroad commissioners will be enjoined from enforcing a schedule of rates so low as to preclude all profit to the company. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Dey, 35 Fed. Rep. 866; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Becker, 35 Fed. Rep. 883.

3. Where one requires the change, addition, or erection of a station, and the railroad commission has general supervision of railroads, and is required by the statute, upon a proper complaint being filed, to investigate the necessity for an addition to or change of stations, the party desiring the change must secure the action of the commission before mandamus will be granted to compel its location. State v. Chicago M. & Cent. R. Co., 19 Neb. 476.

So where the statute allows railroad companies to discontinue a station, if the approval of the railroad commissioners is obtained, and a company, acting under this law, discontinues two of its stations, with the approval of the commissioners on certain conditions which are complied with, and the general assembly subsequently amends the charter, re-establishing one of the stations, the assent of the commissioners does not constitute a contract.

tion of depot buildings,¹ to condemn lands for depot purposes,² to determine the manner and conditions of making crossings³ before a court may assume any power to make them even after condemnation, to regulate the keeping of flagmen at crossings,⁴ and to apportion and regulate the fencing of railroads.⁵

In England, it is held under a statute which provides that railroad companies shall, according to their respective powers, "offer all reasonable facilities for the receiving and forwarding and delivering of traffic upon and over the several railways," etc., that a railway commission has jurisdiction to require a railway company to resume passenger traffic on a part of its line upon which such traffic has been discontinued.⁶

IV. SALARY AND EXPENSES.—An act requiring all the railroad companies in the State to contribute to the salary and expenses of the State railroad commissioners has been held not to be invalid as contravening a constitutional requirement that all taxation shall be uniform.⁷ So under a statute providing that the salaries and expenses of the board of railroad commissioners shall be apportioned among the several railroad companies partly in on the part of the State with the railroad, and the act of assembly is valid. New Haven etc. Co. v. Hamersley, 104 U. S. 1; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 418.

Under a statute providing for the establishment of a passenger station for the use of several railroad corporations entering the city, authorizing them to extend their tracks to the station, and giving the board of railroad commissioners power to order such changes in the location and arrangements of tracks in the vicinity of a station as the safety and convenience of the public may require, the board has the power, in authorizing one corporation to take a portion of the location of another corporation, to annex the condition that the latter corporation shall have the right to use a track of the former, subject to reasonable regulations to be established by the board. Providence etc. R. Co. v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 138 Mass. 277; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 493.

In New York, railroad commissioners have no authority, which can be enforced by the courts, to require a railroad company to provide station accommodations. People v. New York etc. R. Co., 104 N. Y. 58, 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 480.

1. State v. Alabama R. Co., 67 Miss. 647; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 681.

2. Jager v. Day, 80 Iowa 23; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 683.

3. Detroit etc. R. Co. v. Probate Court, 63 Mich. 676; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 285.

Abolishing Railway Crossing.—Resolutions of the Connecticut legislature, by which commissioners are appointed to abolish a grade railway crossing, and which give them power to require any or all tracks within one-half mile of each side of the street where the crossing exists to be taken up and removed, give the commissioners power to compel the removal of tracks within such limits, although not within the bounds of the street on which the crossing exists, when the commissioners deem that the public convenience and necessity so require. Woodruff v. New York etc. R. Co., 59 Conn. 63.

4. Guggenheim v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 66 Mich. 150; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 89.

5. Davidson v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 49 Mich. 428; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 650.

Costs of Unsuccessful Applicant.—In England, railroad commissioners have no jurisdiction, under the statute, to order a company to pay the costs of an unsuccessful application. Foster v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 8 Q. B. D. 515; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 595.

6. Winsford Local Board v. Cheshire Lines Com., L. R., 24 Q. B. D. 456; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 274.

7. Charlotte etc. R. Co. v. Gibbs, proportion to net income and partly "in proportion to the length of the main track or tracks of the road," "the length," where several tracks are laid between the same points and parallel with each other, is held to be not the number of miles of rail laid, but the distance between the terminal points.¹ So where a statute which creates a railroad commission provides that each commissioner shall receive a certain salary "unless restrained by law from the performance of their duties," salaries do not cease upon the suing out by several railroads of temporary injunctions against the performance of the functions of the commission so far as these roads are concerned, which injunctions the court, upon motion and argument, declines to dissolve but has not made perpetual by final decrees.²

RAILROAD POOLS.—(See also RAILROADS; TRUSTS, Corporate.)

I. Definition, 691.

II. Legality, 691.

III. Equitable Relief, 693.

I. DEFINITION.—Railroad pools are contracts between rival railway companies whereby, in order to prevent competition, their business is united in one common total, from which the business or the money received therefor is divided among the combining companies in fixed percentages.³ They are of two kinds—traffic pools and money pools. A traffic pool is an agreement allotting a certain percentage of the total traffic to each road and providing that if any road exceeds its share of the business, freight shall be diverted from it to the other roads until the agreed proportion is restored. A money pool is an agreement whereby the money received by all the combining roads for transportation is brought together into one total and divided among the roads in certain fixed percentages, which do not necessarily correspond to the proportion of the freight actually carried by each road.⁴

II. LEGALITY.—In England pools are legal and their provisions binding.⁵ In the United States the authorities are not harmoni-

27 S. Car. 385; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 464. Section four of chapter one hundred and twenty-four of the laws of Kansas of 1883, which provides for raising a fund for the payment of the salaries and current expenses of the board of railroad commissioners and its secretary, by the taxation of the property of railroad companies only, was however held unconstitutional and void, being in contravention of section 1 of article 11 of the State constitution, which provides that "the legislature shall provide for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation." Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Howe, 32 Kan. 377.

1. People v. Chapin, 106 N. Y. 265; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 136.

2. Savage v. Pickard, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 46; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 490.

3. Hudson, The Railways and the Republic, 196.

4. Hudson, The Railways and the Republic 197.

5. Hare v. London & Northwestern R. Co., 2 Johns. & H. 80; 30 Law J. Ch. 817; Shrewsbury & Birmingham R. Co. v. London & Northwestern R. Co., 17 Q. B. 652; 9 Eng. L. & E. 394; Wood on Railroads 590.

The above decisions in effect hold that an arrangement for a division of ous.¹ A pooling arrangement which amounts to a virtual amalgamation of the combining companies, so that the entire management of one company would be conducted by the other, is clearly illegal, unless expressly authorized by statute.² And even in England a railway company cannot legally make a pooling contract in regard to traffic over a line not yet built.³ In interstate freight money between competing roads based on a past experience of the business of the roads, and providing for making up differences from time to time, as the actual should differ from the estimated proportion of business, and making distribution by way of evening up so as to accord with the estimated rather than the actual business, is not illegal necessarily; when preventive of a competition which would end in the survival of the stronger, leaving the community, ultimately, dependent upon a monopoly, it would not be illegal. But it is said by Sir William Hodges, that agreements to divide the profits arising from any particular traffic in fixed proportions without reference to the question by whose trains it has been carried are now considered unsafe. Hodges, Law of Railways (7th ed.) 58.

1. In 1 Redfield on Railways (6th ed.), § 146, it is said that there is no principle of public policy which renders void a traffic arrangement between two lines of railway for the purpose of avoiding competition.

It was said in Manchester & Lowell R. Co. v. Concord R. Co., 20 Atl. Rep. 383; 8 Ry. & Corp. Law Jour. 443, that, in the absence of any statutory prohibition, a pooling agreement is valid; while in Central Trust Co. v. Ohio Cent. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 306; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 666, the terms of a pooling contract were held to be specifically enforceable in equity. And see Ex parte Koehler, 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 57, where it was held by the U. S. Circuit Court for Oregon that interchange of freight was not of itself a pooling contract, and where the court inclined to take a favorable view of the validity of pooling contracts.

In New Jersey the courts have recognized the validity of such contracts. See Sussex R. Co. v. Morris & Essex R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 13; on appeal: 20 N. J. Eq. 542; Elkins v. Camden & Atlantic R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 246, 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 579.

But in Louisiana it has been recently held that pools are contrary to public policy, and therefore not enforceable. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Southern Pac. Ry. Co., 41 La. Ann. 970; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 475. And in New York pooling contracts between canal boats have been repeatedly declared illegal. Stanton v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 434; Hooker v. Vandewater, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 349; though a more recent decision in that State holds that a pooling combination for dividing certain territory between parallel railroad lines is not contrary to public policy. Ives v. Smith, 3 N. Y. Supp. 645, affirmed in 55 Hun (N. Y.) 606. And see Hartford etc., R. Co. v. New York etc., R. Co., 3 Rob. (N. Y.) 1865. The New York railroad commission has declared a pooling contract invalid. See 1 N. Y. R. R. Commission Rep., 1885, p. 77.

In Morris Run. R. Co. v. Barclay Coal Co., 68 Pa. St. 173, a "pool" formed for the division of a coal district, whereby the committee were to fix prices of coal, rates of freight, the quantities each coal company could sell, etc., was held to be both against the statute of New York—in which State the contract was made—making conspiracies against trade or commerce misdemeanors, and also to be against the public policy of the State of Pennsylvania, wherein the coal district was situated.

In Indiana the rule is that a combination between common carriers in order to prevent competition is prima facie illegal, and that in order to establish the legality of any pool the burden is on the carrier to show that the pool was formed to prevent ruinous competition, and that it does not establish unreasonable rates, unjust discriminations, or oppressive regulations. Cleveland, etc. R. Co. v. Closser, 126 Ind. 348; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 275. See Denver etc. R. Co. v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 110 U. S. 667, reversing 15 Fed. Rep. 650.

2. Charlton v. Newcastle & Carlisle R. Co., 7 Weekly Rep. 731; 5 Jur. N. S. 1096.

3. Midland R. Co. v. London and Northwestern R. Co., L. R., 2 Eq.

commerce pooling is now forbidden by act of Congress;¹ and several of the States have, in their constitutions or statutes, prohibitions of a somewhat similar character.²

III. EQUITABLE RELIEF.—The execution of an illegal pooling agreement may be enjoined at the suit of a non-assenting stockholder,³ or of the State,⁴ or of other railroad companies,⁵ or of any citizen, where the statute so provides.⁶ It is no defense to such a suit that the pool is advantageous to the roads,⁷ or that it has not resulted in increasing the freight rates beyond the statutory limits.⁸ Where the acting directors of the railroad company are made parties defendant to such a suit the fact of their election as such directors need not be proved by the corporate records.⁹ Where a pooling arrangement has been executed, and as a result one of the combining railroad companies has received money which according to the pooling contract ought to be divided between the combining companies, such company may be compelled by suit in equity to make such division, although the pool is contrary to statute.¹⁰

Cas. 524; Maunsell v. Midland Great Western (Ireland) R. Co., 1 H. & M. 164; 32 L. J. Ch. 513.

1. Section 5 of the Inter-State Commerce Act provides that "it shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act to enter into any contract, agreement, or combination with any other common carrier or carriers for the pooling of freights of different and competing railroads or to divide between them the aggregate or net proceeds of the earnings of such railroads or any portion thereof." 24 St. at L. 380.

In the second annual report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission (2 Int. Com. Rep. 436), it is said: "With pooling prohibited the tendency among the railroads seems likely to be in the direction of consolidation as the only means of effectual protection against mutual jealousies and destructive rate wars."

2. Thus in Texas there is a constitutional provision prohibiting railroad companies from controlling competing lines, and it has been held under it that a pooling agreement by which a managing committee is authorized to fix freight rates is illegal. Gulf etc. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 481; Missouri Pacific R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

In New Hampshire a statute prohibits the running of a railroad upon any arrangement by a railroad and directs that each railroad shall be managed by its own officers and agents, and shall be dependent for support upon its own earnings. It has been repeatedly held that this statute makes pooling illegal. Morrill v. Boston etc. R. Co., 55 N. H. 531; 11 Am. Ry. Rep. 484; Manchester etc. R. Co. v. Concord R. Co., 20 Atl. Rep. 383; 8 Ry. & Corp. Law Jour. 443. See also Currier v. Concord R. Co., 48 N. H. 321.

3. Charlton v. Newcastle & Carlisle R. Co., 7 Weekly Rep. 731; 5 Jur., N. S. 1006.

4. Gulf etc. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 481.

5. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 30 Fed. Rep. 2.

6. Currier v. Concord R. Co., 48 N. H. 321.

7. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Texas & Pac. R. Co., 30 Fed. Rep. 2.

8. Gulf etc. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 481.

9. Morrill v. Boston etc. R. Co., 55 N. H. 68.

10. Manchester etc. R. Co. v. Concord R. Co., 20 Atl. Rep. 383; 8 Ry. & Corp. Law Jour. 443.

And though the road bound to make division has passed into the hands of a receiver. Central Trust Co. v. Ohio Central R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 306; 23 Am. & E. g. R. Cas. 666.

RAILROAD SECURITIES.—See also MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1204; RAILROADS; RECEIVERS.

- I. Nature of Railroad Securities, 694.
- II. Power of Railroad Company to Mortgage Property 694.
- III. Form and Construction of Mortgage, 696.
- IV. Equitable Mortgages, 697.
- V. Statutory Liens and Mortgages, 698.
- VI. Who May Execute a Corporate Mortgage, 699.
 1. Generally, 699.
 2. Ratification, 701.
- VII. Construction of Provisions of Railroad Mortgages, 702.
- VIII. Property Covered by Railroad Mortgages, 704.
 1. Property Appurtenant, 705.
 2. Fixtures, 707.
 3. Earnings, 708.
 - a. Generally, 708.
 - b. Basis of Computation, 710.
 4. Money, 710.
 5. After Acquired Property, 710.
 - a. Generally, 710.
 - b. Relative Priority of Liens and Mortgages on After Acquired Property, 714.
 6. Rolling Stock, 716.
 - a. Conditional Sales, 717.
 - b. Rolling Stock Regarded as Fixtures, 718.
- IX. Bonds, 719.
 1. Generally, 719.
 2. Power of Railroad Companies to Issue Bonds, 719.
 3. Formalities in Making and Issuing Bonds, 720.
 4. Negotiability of Railroad Bonds, 721.
 5. Incomplete and Altered Bonds, 727.
 6. Over-issue of Bonds, 728.
 7. Action Upon Bonds, 728.
8. Promissory Notes and Unsecured Bonds, 729.
9. Contracts of Guaranty, 730.
10. Indorsement of Bonds, 731.
- X. Trustees, 733.
 1. Duties and Rights, 733.
 2. Notice to Mortgage Trustees, 735.
 3. Rights of Trustees in Possession, 736.
 4. Debts of Mortgage Trustees in Possession, 738.
 5. Compensation, 738.
 6. Liability of Trustees for Negligence, etc., 739.
 7. Removal, 739.
 8. Vacancies, 740.
- XI. Payment of Bonds, 741.
 1. Lost Bonds, 741.
 2. Subrogation, 742.
 3. Redemption, 743.
- XII. Foreclosure, 744.
 1. Default Must be Shown, 744.
 2. Parties, 745.
 - a. Plaintiffs, 745.
 - b. Defendants, 748.
 3. Defenses, 750.
 4. Decree, 750.
- XIII. Receivers' Certificates, 752.
 1. Generally, 752.
 2. Negotiability of Receivers' Certificates, 753.
- XIV. Relative Priorities of Railroad Mortgages and Equities Arising Subsequently, 754.
 1. Generally, 754.
 2. Equities Arising Under Contracts, 761.
- XV. Reorganization, 762.
 1. Generally, 762.
 2. Priority of Mortgages over Preferred Stock, 763.
- XVI. Foreclosure Sales, 764.
- XVII. Rights of Purchasers, 771.
- XVIII. Proceedings in Bankruptcy and Insolvency Against Railroad Companies. 774.

I. NATURE OF RAILROAD SECURITIES.—Railroad securities ordinarily consist of bonds secured by mortgages.¹ They are issued by railway companies as a means of raising money to defray the expenses of constructing and equipping their roads.

II. POWER OF RAILROAD COMPANY TO MORTGAGE PROPERTY.—A railroad company has only such powers as its charter gives, either expressly or incident to its existence.¹ It cannot, therefore, without legislative authority, mortgage its franchises² or that property which it takes and holds for the necessary use of its road.³ This doctrine is not founded upon any technical theory or arbitrary rule, but upon the reasonable implication that such alienation would be contrary to the intention of the legislature and subversive of the purposes for which the franchise was granted.⁴ The grant of the franchise is attended with an obligation on the part of the company to perform certain public duties, and it is held that they cannot therefore do an act which would amount to a renunciation of these duties. To mortgage the permanent way or fixed plant of the company would give the mortgagee the right to enter upon the property or to interfere with the use and possession of it, and thus divest the company of their capacity to discharge the duty to the public which devolves upon them.⁵ But there is nothing in their relation to the public which prevents them from making a valid mortgage of their personal property.⁶ And some of the cases hold that real property not in any way connected with the necessary use of the road may be mortgaged without legislative authority.⁷

1. Debentures are the commonest corporations. Brice on Ultra Vires form of security issued by English (2d ed.) 279.

The right of a railroad company to mortgage its property is provided for in a few of the States by special legislation,⁸ but almost all of them have a general statute upon the subject.⁹

1. Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Biss. (U. S.) 35.

See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 207.

2. State v. Consolidation Coal Co., 46 Md. 1; Thomas v. West Jersey R. Co., 101 U. S. 71; Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484; State v. Mexican Gulf R. Co., 3 Rob. (La.) 513; Daniels v. Hart, 118 Mass. 543; Com. v. Smith, 10 Allen (Mass.) 448; 87 Am. Dec. 672; Bardstown etc. R. Co. v. Metcalfe, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 200; Stewart v. Jones, 40 Mo. 141; Black v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 22 N. J. Eq. 130; Troy etc. R. Co. v. Kerr, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 581; Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio 21; Stewart's Appeal, 56 Pa. St. 13; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 27 Miss. 517; Hall v. Sullivan R. Co., 21 Law Rep. 138; Wood v. Bedford etc. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 94. See McAllister v. Plant, 54 Miss. 106. See also FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 634.

Note to the case Gloninger v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 46 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 292.

3. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372.

4. East Boston Freight R. Co. v. Eastern R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 422.

5. See Richards v. Merrimac etc. R. Co., 44 N. H. 127.

6. Hendee v. Pinkerton, 14 Allen (Mass.) 381; Kelly v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 58 Ala. 489; 21 Am. Ry. Rep. 138; Shaw v. Norfolk Co. R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 162; 16 Gray (Mass.) 407; Clay v. East Tennessee etc. R. Co., 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 421; 12 Am. Ry. Rep. 38; Bardstown etc. R. Co. v. Metcalfe, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 205; McAllister v. Plant, 54 Miss. 106; 17 Am. Ry. Rep. 389; Jones v. Guaranty etc. Co., 101 U. S. 622.

7. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 504; Kelly v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 58 Ala. 489; 21 Am. Ry. Rep. 138.

See OFFICERS (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS), vol. 17, p. 103; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 634 j, note 2.

8. There are no general statutes in the following States for the organization of railroad companies, and the power to borrow money and mortgage the corporate property and franchises as security is conferred by charter and special acts: Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Oregon, South Carolina.

9. See also Ala. Code. 1876, §§ 2848, 2849, 2051, 2052; Ark. Act of Jan. 22,

Public convenience has not only, because of the large number of these corporations and the importance of their functions, demanded general laws upon the subject doing away with the necessity of special legislation so often as such corporations may have occasion to exercise this power, but also has the public welfare demanded that the authority conferred should be uniform and that it should be regulated and restricted in a uniform manner.¹

III. FORM AND CONSTRUCTION.—A mortgage of a railroad company is ordinarily in the form of a trust deed with a power of sale. It takes this form from an apparent necessity and for the convenience of those interested, and it thus becomes a contract between the corporation and the persons, who may become holders of the bond secured by it, and who are entitled to the same benefit they would have if actually made parties to the instrument.² The conveyance is usually made to two or more trustees jointly, so that upon the death of one his interest does not descend to his heirs but vests in the other. This rule is not affected by statutes abolishing joint tenancies and converting them into tenancies in common, unless the language of the statute expressly embraces trust estates. The reason for this was to remedy the improper accretion to one party of that which properly belonged to two, and the consequent enrichment of one and impoverishment of the other's estate. But inasmuch as trust property whether held by one or both could only be held for the benefit of the cestui que trust, whose estate would be in no manner affected by the death of one of the trustees, the reason of the law ceases and with it the law itself.³ A trust deed is in legal effect a mortgage which leaves the title in the grantor and the grantee holds the deed as a mere security for the debt.⁴ But if the conveyance is not a deed in trust but a mortgage, the mortgagee after a p. 533, § 39, pl. 10; N. Car. Rev. 1873, p. 740, ch. 99, § 29, pl. 10; Ohio, (Ohio) R. S. 1860, ch. 29, § 31; Brights. Purdon's Dig. (Pa.) pp. 12, 13, § 8; Act of April 4, 1868, § 81; Tenn. Co. 1858, p. 315, § 1443; Comp. Sts. 1871, § 1443; Tex. Laws 1876, ch. 97, § 23 Vt. Gen. Sts. 1870, ch. 28, §§ 97, 98, 99; Va. Code 1873, ch. 61, § 43; W. Va. Acts 1872 to 1873, 68, §§ 20, 22; Wis. Laws 1877, ch. 144, § 1.

1855, § 7; Cal. Civ. Co. §§ 456, 457; Codes and Stats. 1876, §§ 5456, 5457; Col. Gen. Laws 1877, §§ 301, 306; Conn. Gen. Sts. 1875, pp. 332, 333; Dak. Ter. Rev. Codes, 1877, pp. 303, 304; Civ. Code, §§ 464, 465; District of Columbia, Rev. States. 1874, § 644; Fla. Laws 1874, ch. 1987, §§ 9, par. 10; Ill. Rev. Sts. 1877; Dassel's Sts. (Kan.) 1876, vol. 1, p. 167; La. R. S. 1870, §§ 692, 683, 2396-97; Me. R. S. 1871; p. 454; Acts 1871, ch. 108; Md. Laws, 1876, p. 903; Mass. Acts 1874, ch. 372, §§ 4950-51-52; Acts 1875, ch. 58; Mich. 1873, p. 527; Minn. Sts. at Large, 1873, vol. 1, p. 430; Act of Mar. 25, 1868; 1 Wagnr. Stats. (Mo.) 1872, p. 298; Mont. Ter. L. 1873, p. 102, § 14; Neb. Gen. Sts. 1873, ch. 11, §§ 84, 117, 118, 119; Nev. Comp. L. 873, p. 292, § 3440; N. J. Laws 1873, ch. 413, § 20; 2 Rev. Sts. 1873, p. 931, §§ 108; N. Mex. Ter. Acts 1878, p. 35, § 14. N. Y. Rev. Sts. 1875,

1. Jones on Corp. Bonds and Mortgages, § 27.

2. McClain v. Placerville etc. R. Co., 66 Cal. 621; Chamberlain v. Connecticut etc. R. Co., 54 Conn. 472; Butler v. Rahn, 46 Md. 541.

3. McAllister v. Plant, 54 Miss. 118.

4. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. v. Wisconsin River L. Co., 71 Wis. 94; Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Doyle, 8 Sawy. (U. S.) 60.

transfer of any of the bonds, holds a legal title for his remaining interest and in trust for the other bondholders.¹

Securities issued by English corporations are instruments under seal creating a charge according to their wording upon the property of a corporation, and to that extent conferring a priority over subsequent creditors, and other existing creditors not possessed with such a charge, and are termed debentures, which are in effect statutory mortgages.² These securities differ widely from those in use in the 'United States' in that each creditor is there secured by a separate mortgage, while here one mortgage is made to secure all the mortgage creditors.³

IV. EQUITABLE MORTGAGES.—A mortgage not being executed by or in the name of the corporation though intended to take effect as the deed of the corporation cannot operate as its deed, but it will be regarded in a court of equity as an equitable mortgage and the holders of what was intended to secure the payment of bonds will be entitled to their full right in equity to the mortgage which was intended to be given.⁴ An agreement for a mortgage has in equity the effect of a mortgage to the extent indicated,⁵ but it does not include damages for the breach of the contract. And stipulations in a contract for a mortgage for such sums as are specially mentioned in the contract raise the implication that no other or different mortgage or lien is to be given.⁶ So an agreement that bonds shall be a lien on property conveyed operates as an equitable mortgage,⁷ and a subsequent mortgage

1. Mason v. York, etc. R. Co., 52 Me. 82; In re York etc. R. Co., 50 Me. 552. See Jones on Mortgages, § 817.

2. Brice on Ultra Vires (2nd ed.) 279.

3. Jones on Railroad Securities, § 32.

4. Miller v. Rutland, etc. R. Co., 30 Vt. 452.

5. Waco Tap R. Co. v. Shirley, 45 Tex. 355; 13 Am. Ry. Rep. 233. A court of equity treats an agreement for a mortgage or pledge of bonds or other property as binding, and will give them effect according to the intention of the party. White Water Valley Canal Co. v. Vallette, 21 How. (U. S.) 414.

In Ashton v. Corrigan, 13 Eq. Cas. 76, the defendant had agreed to execute to the plaintiff a mortgage of certain leasehold premises in the usual form containing an absolute power of sale in consideration of money due and had, when requested to do so, failed to execute such mortgage. The court made a decree for specific performance. See also Peto v. Brighton, etc. R. Co., 1 H. & M. 468.

6. Waco Tap R. Co. v. Shirley, 45 Tex. 255; 13 Am. Ry. Rep. 233.

7. Three railroad companies were associated together for the purpose of building and running their several roads as one continuous line. A mortgage deed of their several roads and of all the personal property and income thereof was executed to secure the payment of their bonds. The bonds were executed and sold or pledged. The same companies afterwards executed a second mortgage of the same property to the same trustees to secure the payment of additional bonds. When the money provided by these bonds was expended and the companies being insolvent and still in need of funds to complete their road, they executed another mortgage of the property conveyed by the first mortgage to one of the trustees in the first and second mortgages in trust to secure the payment of bonds to be issued thereunder. That mortgage provided among other things that no bonds should be issued thereunder until the holders of the first mortgage bonds had first signed an agreement whereby they should severally agree that for the purpose of com-made subject to the former has priority though not executed and recorded.¹

If a company by a concluded agreement with another sets apart a specific fund in the hands of a third person to meet the interest and principal of its bonds, such agreement also creates an equitable lien or charge.² But a mortgage providing that the expenditure of all sums realized from the sale of bonds shall be made with the approval of at least one of the trustees, whose assent in writing shall be necessary to all contracts made by the corporation before the same shall be a charge upon any of the sums received from said sales, does not create a charge upon the proceeds of the sales of the mortgage bonds in favor of one who afterwards built a portion of the road under a written contract with the corporation, which contract did not itself impose such charge.³

V. STATUTORY LIENS AND MORTGAGES.—The bonds of a railroad company may be made a mortgage or lien on the road by legislative enactment without the execution of any deed of conveyance. Thus, where bonds are issued by the State to a company for the purpose of raising money to build its road and an act is passed by the legislature authorizing the issue of such bonds, they constitute a mortgage on the road.⁴ They are liens in the nature of mortgages created for the protection and indemnity of the State. In construing them, from the purpose for which they are created, and the terms employed in creating them, their scope and operation have been determined, as the scope and operation of a mortgage or other incumbrance would be ascertained.

It is not necessary that the obligation of the company to pay the bonds should be expressed. The law implies an obligation on the company to provide funds to pay them.⁵ But the statute pleting the roads and paying the interest of certain debts, such companies might issue such bonds "to be denominated preference bonds" which should continue and be a lien "on the property conveyed by such mortgage prior to the bonds held by" the several signers thereof. Such an agreement was signed by holders of the first mortgage bonds and a bill was brought by the trustee under the last mortgage for a foreclosure thereon, and a cross-bill was brought by the trustee under the first mortgage for a foreclosure thereon. Both bills prayed for a settlement of priorities and for general relief. Held, that the agreement operated as an equitable mortgage or pledge of the interest under the first mortgage of those who signed as security for the payment of the preference bonds, but that it in no way affected the interest of those who did not sign. Pollard v. Lamoille Valley R. Co., 52 Vt. 144.

1. Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372.

2. Ketchum v. Pacific R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 78. Aff'd in Ketchum v. St. Louis, 101 U. S. 306; Pinch v. Anthony, 8 Allen (Mass.) 536; Legard v. Hodges, 1 Ves. Jr. 478; Lett v. Morris, 4 Sim. 607; Ex parte Alderson, 1 Madd. 553; In re Strand Music Hall Co., 3 DeG. J. & S. 147; Watson v. Wellington, 1 Russ. & Myl. 602; Yates v. Groves, 1 Ves. Jr. 280.

3. Dillen v. Bonnard, 1 Holmes (U. S.) 386.

4. Tompkins v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 6; Wilson v. Boyce, 92 U. S. 320; 2 Dill. (U. S.) 520; Woodson v. Murdock, 22 Wall. (U. S.) 351; Murdock v. Wilson, 2 Dill. (U. S.) 188.

5. Dundas v. Desjardins Canal Co., 17 Grant (Up. Can. Ch.) 27; Tompkins v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 10.

must clearly express the intention to give a lien.¹ If a statute authorizes a city to contract with a railroad company for its bonds to be secured by mortgages, transfers or hypothecations of stock in the company, or by such other securities, real or personal, as may be mutually agreed on, and the certificate of stock is accepted as security, such statute is held not sufficiently definite to transform the pledge of stock into a lien or mortgage upon the road.²

A State legislature, when not prohibited by its constitution, may discharge a statutory lien in its favor on receiving the full value of its security.³ Where the constitution of a State prohibits the legislature from releasing the lien held by the State from any railroad, it is not a restriction on the power of the legislature to hold any claim held by the State against a railway company, but means only that while the debt remains the legislature may not let go the security for it.⁴ So a statutory lien may be waived.⁵ It may not only be waived but another person may be substituted by agreement of the parties in place of the original lienholders.⁶

VI. WHO MAY EXECUTE A CORPORATE MORTGAGE.—1. Generally.—

The directors of a railroad company are competent to exercise the power of the corporation to convey or mortgage its property in security of its bonds unless prohibited by its charter or the laws of the State from which it derives its existence.⁷ And the holders of railroad bonds properly executed by the directors

1. Brunswick etc. R. Co. v. Hughes, 52 Ga. 557; Collins v. Central Bank, 1 Kelly (Ga.) 435.

2. Cincinnati v. Morgan, 3 Wall (U. S.) 275.

3. Murdock v. Woodson, 2 Dill. (U. S.) 188. See Darby v. Wright, 3 Blatchf. (U. S.) 170. Where a release of a State lien upon bonds of two companies is provided for by an act of the legislature by the consolidation of the companies, such a release will not take effect unless consolidation is effected. Gibbs v. Greenville etc. R. Co., 13 S. Car. 228.

4. Woodson v. Murdock, 22 Wall. (U. S.) 351.

5. Gibbs v. Greenville etc. R. Co., 13 S. Car. 228. If the waiver is made for the purpose of promoting the consolidation of two railroad companies, the waiver will take effect only upon the completion of such consolidation. Gibbs v. Greenville etc. R. Co., 13 S. Car. 228.

6. While the State was in full possession of the revenue of defendant's road upon certain express trusts, which, as was provided by statute, were to continue until the said bonds loaned to the company were paid or exchanged, the county of St. Louis was empowered to loan such company its bonds, which was done, and accepted by the company. The statute authorized the person who had theretofore been in custody of the earnings of the road for the State to pay into the treasury out of such earnings a sum sufficient to meet the interest on said bonds loaned by said county as it accrued. Held, that by said act the State waived its lien and right to all the earnings of the company to the extent of the sum required to pay the interest on said bonds, and that the county was pro tanto substituted as to that amount in place of the State with a lien or charge to that extent as effectual as the State before possessed. Ketchum v. Pacific R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 78; aff'd in Ketchum v. St. Louis, 101 U. S. 306.

7. Ellis v. Boston etc. R. Co., 107 Mass. 1; Hendee v. Pinkerton, 14 Allen (Mass.) 381; Taylor Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 161; Hodder v. Kentucky etc. R. Co., 7 cannot be prejudiced by the fact that the mortgage given to secure the same was executed out of the State or by virtue of a resolution of its directors at a meeting held out of the State.¹ The power of a president of a railroad company to borrow money on its behalf includes authority to mortgage its property or to give other ordinary security for the money borrowed.² But where authority to act as business and financial agent is conferred upon the president, his authority is confined to the ordinary business of the corporation, and the execution of a mortgage on the personal property of the company is without the scope of his authority.³ If he affixes the corporate seal to the instrument, it will add nothing to its validity. It will, however, be presumed to have been affixed by proper authority, and this presumption may be repelled by showing that the seal was affixed without authority.⁴ The mortgage should be made in the name of the corporation.⁵ If an officer has the power to execute a mortgage in behalf of the company in his individual name, the fact that it is not signed by the corporate name does not invalidate it if the deed purports to be the deed of the corporation.⁶ But if a deed purports to be the

Fed. Rep. 793; McCurdy's Appeal, 65 Pa. St. 290; Bank of Middleborough v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 30 Vt. 159. See also OFFICERS AND AGENTS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 103.

Where a mortgage of the franchises of a railroad company was duly executed, acknowledged and recorded, under the authority of the directors, which was conferred by statute, it was held that the mortgage was valid though executed to a trustee. McCurdy's Appeal, 65 Pa. St. 290.

Where the general management and control of the property, business and affairs of a corporation were vested in the board of directors and president, and the corporation was by charter authorized to issue and sell bonds and execute a mortgage to secure the same; and the charter required the concurrence of the stockholders to authorize the consolidation with another company, held, the board of directors and president had the power, without the concurrence of the stockholders, to authorize the issue of bonds, and the execution of a mortgage upon the property of the company to secure them. Hodder v. Kentucky etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 793.

1. Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Cawdley, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. McPherson, 35 Mo. 13; Coe v. New Jersey Midland R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 105. See Bassett v. Monto Cristo N. Co., 15 Nev. 293.

2. Hatch v. Coddington, 95 U. S. 548. Irredeemable Bonds.—The general power to borrow money does not authorize the president to execute a mortgage to secure the issue of irredeemable bonds. McCalmont v. Philadelphia, etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 386; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 163.

3. Luse v. Isthmus Tran. R. Co., 6 Oregon 125; Dispatch Line of Packets v. Bellamy Mfg. Co., 12 N. H. 205; Hoyt v. Thompson, 5 N. Y. 320; Whitwell v. Warner, 20 Vt. 425.

4. Wood v. Whelan, 93 Ill. 153; Fidelity Ins. Co. v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 32 W. Va. 244; Union Gold Min. Co. v. Bank, 3 Colo. 226.

The mere fact that a deed has a corporate seal attached, does not make it the act of the corporation, unless the seal was placed to it by some one duly authorized. Where neither the president, nor the secretary pro tem. who signed the mortgage, nor the regular secretary who was the rightful custodian of the seal, had any knowledge of the way in which a mortgage became sealed, then the burden of proof is thrown on the party offering it, to show the circumstances under which the mortgage was sealed, and that it was rightfully and properly done. Koehler v. Hubby, 2 Black (U. S.) 715.

5. OFFICERS AND AGENTS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 154.

6. See Jones on Railroad Securities, § 47.

deed of the officer and is signed by him in that manner without disclosing his agency, nothing passes by it.¹ The authority given by the directors of a corporation to the president and secretary to execute a mortgage upon the company's property does not empower them to include a provision for attorney's fees in case of suit upon the mortgage.²

2. Ratification.³—A mortgage executed by the officers of a railroad company without previous authority may be expressly ratified by a vote of the stockholders or a ratification may be implied by the acts of the corporation as well as expressed by its vote.⁴ Thus, it may be impliedly ratified by the payment of interest upon the bonds,⁵ or by the receiving and detaining of money advanced by bondholders upon the mortgage.⁶ So if the president and secretary execute a mortgage more extensive than the one authorized to be made and the bondholders advance their money in good faith and it is received and used by the company in constructing its road, this is a ratification of the contract under which the money was obtained.⁷ Even if a statute providing that no railroad mortgage shall be valid unless authorized by a resolution adopted by a vote of two-thirds of all the stockholders and bonds are issued and secured by a mortgage in pursuance of a resolution not so adopted, the company is estopped from denying its authority to make a contract after it has received the benefits thereof.⁸ Good faith forbids that a security should be invalidated after one party has received the full benefit and can no longer place the other party in as good position as he originally occupied.⁹ But a mortgage cannot be ratified by a less number of stockholders than was required for its execution. So, where a vote of two-thirds of the stockholders of a company is required to enable the board of directors to mortgage the property of the company and the mortgage is given without such vote, it requires a two-thirds' vote to ratify it.¹⁰

1. OFFICERS AND AGENTS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 154.

2. Pacific Rolling Mill v. Dayton etc. R. Co., 7 Sawy. (U. S.) 61; 5 Fed. Rep. 852.

3. See OFFICERS AND AGENTS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 162.

4. Kelley v. Newburyport etc. R. Co., 141 Mass. 496; St. James' Parish v. Newburyport etc. R. Co., 141 Mass. 501; McCurdy's Appeal, 65 Pa. St. 290; Harrison v. Annapolis etc. R. Co., 50 Md. 490; Singer v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 6 Mo. App. 427; Fidelity Ins. Co. v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 32 W. Va., 244.

5. McCurdy's Appeal, 65 Pa. St. 290.

6. Ottaway etc. R. Co. v. Murray, 15 Ill. 336; Thomas v. Citizens' Horse

R. Co., 104 Ill. 462; Tyrell v. Cairo etc. R. Co., 7 Mo. App. 294; Singer v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 6 Mo. App. 427; Harrison v. Annapolis etc. R. Co., 50 Md. 490.

7. Elwell v. Grand Street etc. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 83. See Merchants' Bank v. State Bank, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 64; Mahoney Min. Co. v. Anglo California Bank, 104 U. S. 192; Page v. Fall River etc. R. Co., 31 Fed. Rep. 257; Lester v. Webb, 1 Allen (Mass.) 34.

8. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Gentry, 69 Tex. 625; Perkins v. Portland etc. R. Co., 47 Me. 573; Foulke v. San Diego etc. R. Co., 51 Cal. 365.

9. Elwell v. Grand Street etc. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 85.

10. Forbes v. San Rafael Turnpike Co., 50 Cal. 34.

VII. CONSTRUCTION OF PROVISIONS OF RAILROAD MORTGAGES.—When the legislature confers power upon a railroad company to mortgage its road, it has an undoubted right to annex to this power certain conditions which must be complied with. So where the only authority to make a mortgage is conferred by a statute which provides that the bonds are not to mature at an earlier period than thirty years, a condition in them that upon the failure to pay any installment of interest the principal shall immediately become due, is invalid. The mortgage may, however, properly provide that it shall be foreclosed upon non-payment of interest. The property of the company may be mortgaged for the payment of these installments of interest as well as the principal, and the company have a right to make it one of the provisions of the mortgage that it may be foreclosed if these installments are not paid as they fall due.¹ If the amount of the overdue coupons is not paid, the court must then order a sale of the mortgaged property with a foreclosure of all rights subordinate to the mortgage with directions to bring the purchase money into court. There can be but one decree of the foreclosure of the same mortgage on the same property, and it is a necessity of that foreclosure, under the principles of equity, that all the sums secured by that mortgage must be protected according to their priority of lien. If the case proceeds so far as to have an order of sale made by the court, the mortgagee will have a lien on the money thus paid into court, not only for his overdue coupons, but for his principal debt, and it must be provided for in the order distributing the proceeds of the sale. If, however, the company shall pay the sum found due in the decree nisi, no further proceeding can be had until another default of interest or of the principal.²

So where an officer of a railroad company is authorized in general terms to execute a mortgage upon the road, he has implied authority to execute it in the usual form and with the usual provisions for mortgages of that kind. He is not authorized to insert unusual provisions.³ Where the mortgage is given for the purpose of securing the due payment of the principal of the bonds and the interest to accrue thereon and it provides that the trustees shall hold the property in trust for the equal pro rata use

1. Howell v. Western R. Co., 94 U. S. 463; Central Trust Co. v. New York City etc. R. Co., 33 Hun (N. Y.) 513; Macon etc. R. Co. v. Georgia R. Co., 62 Ga. 103; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 378; Wiimer v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 409.

2. Howell v. Western R. Co., 94 U. S. 463.

3. In Jesup v. City Bank, 14 Wis. 359, it was held that a resolution of a board of directors of a railroad company authorizing the president in general terms to execute a mortgage upon the road, but not indicating any of its conditions or covenants, beyond saying that it was to secure bonds to be issued by the company, "running fifteen years with semi-annual interest," did not authorize the president to insert a stipulation in the mortgage and bonds that the principal sum should become due at the option of the holder upon default of the payment of the interest. See Walworth Co. Bank v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 14 Wis. 325.

of all persons who shall become holders of the bonds, and in case of the default of the company in paying the principal or interest the mortgagee is authorized to enter and sell the same, does not prevent him from at once bringing an action to foreclose the mortgage to collect any installment of interest falling due under the terms of the bonds as soon as default is made in its payment.¹ And it is no defense to such default that forgeries of the bonds were in circulation so executed as not to be distinguished from the genuine, and all the bondholders, except plaintiff, had accepted new bonds so prepared as to prevent the possibility of fraud or loss, and that plaintiff, after presenting his coupons and demanding payment, entered into negotiations for the protection of the obligor in case his coupons should, after payment, prove to be forgeries, and that the ninety days elapsed while these negotiations were pending.² But the provision that upon default in the payment of any installment of the principal or interest the whole debt shall become due and payable, must be inserted in the bonds as well as the mortgage. If not inserted in the bonds it will not effect their payment or enable a bondholder to enforce them by suit at law as becoming due upon default in the payment of interest.³ Where there is a difference between the terms of railroad bonds and of the mortgage given to secure them as to the payment of interest, the terms of the bonds will control.⁴ A railroad company cannot compel a foreclosure and payment of a mortgage bill before its maturity by refusing to pay the interest according to the obligation of its contract and appropriating its income and earnings to its own use.⁵ So where one of the terms of the mortgage is that if the principal or interest should not be

1. Central Trust Co. v. New York City etc. R. Co., 33 Hun (N. Y.) 513.

2. Wood v. Consolidated Electric Light Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 538.

3. Bonds were issued to certain trustees, bearing interest payable semi-annually, as provided in the interest coupons attached. Upon each of said bonds was a certificate signed by the trustees, which stated among other things that said series of bonds was secured by a first mortgage which contained a provision "that the principal sum secured by said mortgage shall become due in case the interest on the bonds remains unpaid for four months." The bonds contained no such provision and did not refer to the said mortgage. Plaintiff was the owner of some of these bonds, and the interest on the same had been unpaid for a period of four months after the same was due, and brought suit on the bonds to recover the principal of each, claiming that the sum had become due and payable by reason of such provision in said mortgage, and the said certificate of the fact upon said bonds. It was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the principal sums named in said bonds, and only entitled to recover the interest remaining unpaid and represented by the coupons; that this provision was not placed in the mortgage to give the several bondholders actions upon it for the principal of their bonds in case of non-payment of interest, but to give the trustees named in said mortgage (with whom in trust for the bondholders covenant was made) a right of action upon it for the foreclosure of the mortgage, thus making the mortgage a more complete security to the bondholders. Malory v. West Shore R. Co., 3 Jones & S. (N. Y.) 174.

4. Indiana etc. R. Co. v. Sprague, 103 U. S. 756.

5. Dow v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 260.

paid at the time stated the principal sum secured by the mortgage should become immediately due at the election of the trustees, a subsequent act of the legislature cannot authorize a sale of the property free from this mortgage, unless the trustees have exercised such election and the mortgage moneys are due.¹ But if a written request of the holders of a majority of the bonds outstanding is required to authorize trustees to proceed to collect both principal and interest, it is necessary to prove that the bill was filed to foreclose for the whole debt upon the written request of the holders of a majority of the bonds then outstanding.² This restriction, however, applies only when advantage is sought to be taken of that default as advancing the date when the principal becomes due. A suit thus instituted by a coupon holder, without the assent of a majority of the bondholders, may be properly brought to the extent of accrued and unpaid interest.³

VIII. PROPERTY COVERED BY RAILROAD MORTGAGES.—In England, railway securities ordinarily pledge "the undertaking" for the payment of money borrowed.⁴ The undertaking is defined to be the combined result of the corporate franchise and all the property rights and net avails of such combined property, which is but another name for the net earnings of the company. By a mortgage of the undertaking nothing more passes than a priority of the right to the net earnings of the company.⁵ In the United States railway companies usually mortgage their property. But a railway company has no authority to execute a mortgage, unless it has been granted such power either in express words or by reasonable implication. The question as to what property is covered by the mortgage depends upon the authority under which it was issued, a construction of the language used, and also the intention of the parties to be gathered therefrom. If there is any implication in the matter, this necessarily involves construction, not, indeed, the liberal and broad construction to be given to

1. Randolph v. Middleton, 26 N. J. Eq. 542; Middleton v. New Jersey West Line R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. 306.

2. Chicago, etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S. 47.

3. Beekman v. Hudson etc. R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 3; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S. 47; Shaw v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 100 U. S. 605; Credit Co. v. Arkansas etc. R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.) 23.

A railroad mortgage provided that, in case of default in interest for four months, the principal should become due, and that the trustees should, "upon written request of the holders of a majority in amount of . . . outstanding bonds, . . . proceed to foreclose the mortgage" within a reasonable time. Acting upon such request, the trustees filed a bill to foreclose in the State courts, which was dismissed in special term for want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter. The trustees took an appeal, but, before it was determined, a bondholder urged the trustees to renew the litigation in the Federal courts, and, upon their refusal to do so, brought the suit there himself, and in his own name. He'd, on demurrer to the bill, that, to the extent of accrued and unpaid interest, the suit was properly brought. Beekman v. Hudson etc. R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 3.

4. Gardner v. London etc. R. Co., L. R. 2. Ch. App. 201.

5. Myatt v. St. Helens, etc. R. Co., 2 Q. B. 364.

a remedial statute, or the strict construction to be given to a penal statute, but a construction consistent with and following a reasonable view of the general scope and purpose of the legislative grant viewed in the light of surrounding circumstances.¹ If the statute specifies what property may be mortgaged, of course the mortgage can embrace no other property, but as a rule, acts authorizing the issue of a mortgage by a railroad company are broad enough to embrace any property which the company may own, so that the question as to what is embraced in it is usually one depending on a fair construction of the mortgage itself, and the same rules of construction apply as are applied to the use of individuals.² Where the bonds of a company are made a mortgage on the road by legislative enactment without the execution of any formal mortgage, the act itself applied to the existing condition of the road, determines the character and extent of the lien.³

1. Property Appurtenant.—Where a conveyance of a railroad is made by mortgage, with its "corporate privileges and appurtenances," only such property passes as is directly appurtenant to the road, and is necessary for its maintenance, operation, preservation and security.⁴ The mortgage of the main line of a railroad

1. State v. Florida Cent. R. Co., 15 Fla. 699.

2. 3 Wood's Railway Law, § 464.

3. State v. Florida etc. R. Co., 15 Fla. 690; 3 Wood's Ry. L., § 464.

4. State v. Glenn, 18 Nev. 34; Morgan v. Donovan, 58 Ala. 241.

A railroad company held town lots adjoining their road-bed, ostensibly for a basin to connect with river navigation. They mortgaged the entire road with its corporate privileges and appurtenances, but without specific mention of the lots. The mortgaged property including the lots was sold under foreclosure proceedings, and the company brought an action of ejectment against the purchasers under the mortgage. It was held that the lands were not appurtenant to the road, and essentially and indispensably necessary to the enjoyment of the franchise, and as such were not included in the mortgage. Shamokin Valley R. Co. v. Livermore, 47 Pa. St. 465.

A railroad company organized under a charter which authorized it to take or purchase such real estate as might be necessary or convenient for the construction or operation of a road, made under authority of an act of the legislature, a mortgage to the treasurer of the State to secure an issue of bonds, which was recorded as required by the act, in the office of the secretary of state. The property mortgaged being described as "all the railroad of said company, as the same is now, or may be hereafter located or constructed, and all the lands that are or may be included in the location of the road, or required by said company for the purpose of the railroad, with all property, real or personal, which now belongs or may hereafter belong to said company, and be used as a part of the railroad, or be appurtenant thereto, or necessary for its construction or operation, and all the property rights and franchises of said company under its charter. Held, that this mortgage did not cover by its terms lots outside of the lay-out of the road and not needed for its construction or use. Boston etc. R. Co. v. Coffin, 50 Conn. 150; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 375.

Hotels.—Where a railroad company executed a mortgage to a trust company, covering a part of the line of their road, "as said road is or may be hereafter constructed, maintained, operated or acquired, together with all privileges rights, franchises, real estate, right of way, depots, depot grounds, side tracks, water tanks, engines, cars and other appurtenances thereto belonging," it was held that a hotel used for the accommodation of the patrons and employes of the road was covered by the mortgage. U. S. Trust Co. v. Wabash etc R. Co., 32 Fed. Rep. 480.

and its appurtenances has been held to include a lateral branch¹ but not an extension subsequently made.² Nor will a mortgage on the main line of a railroad in one State covering all rolling stock appurtenances and income, cover real estate, depot buildings and trackways, situated in another State across the State line from the terminal point of the main railway line.³ Where a change is duly made in the route from that described in the mortgage, the mortgage as executed binds the road as built, and the bondholders, to secure whose debts the mortgage was given, acquire a right to have the road as built sold to pay their bonds.⁴

But in Mississippi Valley Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 58 Miss. 896, it was held that such a mortgage did not cover a hotel not used in connection with the road and for its convenience, but as an ordinary hotel.

Canal Boats.—The railroad company mortgaged its locomotives, engines, cars, etc., and all other personal property whatsoever in any way belonging or appertaining to the railroad. Held not to include canal boats purchased by the corporation used and run in connection with the road. Parish v. Wheeler, 22 N. Y. 494.

Water Stations.—The company were authorized to hold so much land, not above five acres in any one place, and improvements necessary for water stations, etc. They purchased land which was not used for the road, and mortgaged all their property and franchises with the right to maintain possession "according to the effect and meaning" of the acts of incorporation. It was held that the land purchased was not included in the mortgage. Youngman v. Elmira etc., 65 Pa. St. 278.

Unpaid Subscriptions to Stock.—A claim for unpaid subscription to corporate stock is not covered by a mortgage purporting to convey the right of way of the railroad and its other property. Dean v. Biggs, 25 Hun (N. Y.) 122.

Woodlands.—A railroad company, engaged in constructing a railroad to secure the payment of money borrowed for that purpose gave a mortgage, by which they granted to the party of whom the loan was obtained all their railroad, with its superstructure, track, and all other appurtenances made or to be made, and all the right and title of said company to the land on which said railroad was and should be constructed, together with all rights of way then acquired, or thereafter to be acquired by the said company, and including the depots, engine houses, shops and other constructions at the termini and along the line of said railroad, and the parcels of ground on which the same were or should be erected, and all the lands which should be used for depot and station purposes, with the appurtenances, and all the embankments, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences and structures thereon, and all other appurtenances belonging thereto, and all the franchises, privileges and rights of the said company in, to and concerning the same. Held, that such mortgage did not create any lien as against a subsequent mortgage creditor, upon a tract of 285 acres of woodland afterwards acquired by the company, situate seven miles from said railway, although said land was purchased and used by said company for the purpose of supplying said road with timber and fuel. Dinsmore v. Racine etc. R. Co., 12 Wis. 725.

1. Cole v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 34 N. J. Eq. 266; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 513; Hardy v. Kentucky etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 793; Parker v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 693; Meyer v. Johnston, 53 Ala. 237; 64 Ala. 603. See LATERAL OR BRANCH RAILROADS, vol. 12, p. 948.

A branch road will pass built after the mortgage. Seymour v. Canandaigua etc. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 284. Unless indeed, its construction is authorized by subsequent legislation. Meyer v. Johnston, 53 Ala. 237.

2. Randolph v. New Jersey West Line R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. 49; Alexandria etc. R. Co. v. Graham, 31 Gratt. (Va.) 769.

3. Buck v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 4 Cent. L. J. 430.

4. Elwell v. Grand Street etc. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 83.

2. Fixtures.—A mortgage of a railroad, and all its property, real and personal, covers everything which comes under the head of fixtures. It covers rolling stock,¹ materials placed on the land for use in repairing the road, such as iron rails, spikes and ties;² old iron rails, etc., taken up from the road as useless and replaced by new ones,³ station houses, engine houses, freight houses and work shops, with their appurtenances, piers and wharves and

A decree foreclosing a mortgage of a water ditch particularly described as lying between given termini and a sheriff's deed given in pursuance thereof, does not operate to pass the title to a new and independent ditch subsequently constructed by a purchaser pendente lite from the mortgagor along a different course and between different termini, for the purpose of being used by him in place of the mortgaged ditch, when the new ditch is not an appurtenant of or an improvement on the original ditch. Mitchel v. Canal etc. R. Co., 75 Cal. 464.

1. Meyer v. Johnston, 64 Ala. 603; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584; Hamlin v. Jerrard, 72 Me. 62; Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. 237; reversed 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Butte v. Memphis etc. R. Co. (Tenn.), 4 Cent. L. J. 430; Palmer v. Forbes, 23 Ill. 301; and it is not subject to levy or sale upon execution. Youngman v. Elmira etc. R. Co., 65 Pa. St. 278; Shamokin Valley etc. R. Co. v. Livermore, 47 Pa. St. 465; Coney v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 172; Macon etc. R. Co. v. Parker, 9 Ga. 377; Gue v. Tidewater Co., 24 How. (U. S.) 257; but the mortgagee takes the property subject to all valid liens. Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235; Fosdick v. Southwestern Car Co., 99 U. S. 256; Hall v. Frost, 99 U. S. 389; Huidekoper v. Hinckley Locomotive Works, 99 U. S. 258.

In some States, however, rolling stock is treated as personal property, and as such, subject to levy and sale upon execution, unless it has passed into the possession of the mortgagees. Stephens v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 590; Hoyle v. Plattsburg etc. R. Co., 54 N. Y. 314; Randall v. Elwell, 52 N. Y. 521; Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372.

2. Palmer v. Forbes, 23 Ill. 237. In this case the court by Canton, C. J. said: "Nor do we want analogies in the well settled principles of the common law, to hold that materials provided and designed to be attached to the road are, for the purposes of a mortgage or a conveyance, a part of the real estate itself. It is a familiar principle to all, that rails hauled on to the land, designed to be laid into a fence, or timber for a building, although not yet raised, but lying around loose, and in no way attached to the soil, are treated as a part of the realty, and pass with the land, as appurtenances. By applying these familiar principles of the common law, we may be enabled to determine what we should consider as appurtenant to the freehold, and what should pass by a conveyance of the road, and consequently what is covered by and embraced within a mortgage incumbering the road, acknowledged and recorded as a mortgage of real estate." Wutzen v. St. Paul R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.) 529.

3. Salem Bank v. Anderson, 75 Va. 250.

The cast-off articles, fragments of old materials, once forming part of the road, or used in its operation still continue under the mortgage, if a proper and judicious management of the road requires that they should be recast or exchanged for new articles for the uses of the road. Coopers v. Wolf, 15 Ohio St. 523. In this case the court by Welch, J., said: "If such property is liable to execution, where shall we draw the line between the property of the mortgagees and that of the company? When a bridge breaks down, or a tunnel falls in, or when trains are thrown from the track and broken, shall executions be immediately levied upon the stone, the timbers, and the broken cars or engines? Shall creditors of an insolvent company line its track, and watch for, and seize its worn-out rails, broken wheels, fragments and scraps as fast as they come to hand; their priority over each other depending on their diligence in business? If so, it is easy to see, that the security of the mortgagees, which depends, ultimately, and almost solely, their appendages,¹ and also office furniture;² but an iron safe, and an iron planing machine,³ and other tools and implements used in repairing the railway, or its appliances, but not attached to the realty, do not pass under such mortgage,⁴ nor does it cover coal, wood, or other material used for fuel.⁵

3. Earnings—a. GENERALLY.—Every railroad mortgagee in accepting his security impliedly agrees that the current debts made in the ordinary course of business, shall be paid from the current receipts, before he has any claim upon the income. Only the net earnings can therefore be subjected to the lien of the mortgage.⁶ This is obtained by deducting from the gross earnings what is required for necessary operation and managing expenses, equipment and useful improvements. If, for convenience, something is taken from what may not be improperly called the current debt fund and put into that which belongs to the mortgage creditors, the current creditors thereby acquire a claim against the property.⁷ If the mortgage implies that the mortgagor is to hold possession and receive the earnings of the road until the mortgagee takes possession, they are not subject to the lien of the mortgage so long as they are allowed to remain in the possession of the mortgagor.⁸ So the income of a railroad company earned after the mortgage took effect may, so long as the company upon the ability of the road to run, and produce a revenue, would be seriously impaired. Besides, it would be almost impracticable to mark the boundary between the rights of the mortgagees and those of the judgment creditors, and the result would be, a scramble between creditors, continual litigation, without any nearer approximation to justice and equity between the parties; or else, it would result merely in causing the company to be more careful and prompt in disposing of, or using its of-fals as they came to hand, without benefit to any one, and to the detriment of the road."

1. Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. 277. Raymond v. Clark, 46 Conn. 129.

2. Raymond v. Clark, 46 Conn. 129; Wood v. Whelen, 93 Ill. 153; Ludlow v. Hurd, 1 Disney (Ohio) 552; compare Hunt v. Bullock, 23 Ill. 320. Furniture in stations is held to be mere personalty, and not subject to the lien of the mortgage. Lehigh etc. Co. v. Central R. Co., 35 N. J. Eq. 379.

3. Titus v. Mabee, 25 Ill. 257.

4. Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Lehigh etc. Co. v. Central R. Co., 35 N. J. Eq. 379.

5. Hunt v. Bullock, 23 Ill. 320. Compare Coe v. McBrown, 22 Ind. 252.

6. Addison v. Lewis, 75 Va. 701; Tompkins v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 6.

7. Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 255; Calhoun v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 14 Fed. Rep. 9. See Parkhurst v. Northern etc. R. Co., 19 Md. 472; 81 Am. Dec. 648.

8. Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235; Merchants' Bank v. Pittsburg R. Co., 24 Pittsb. L. J. (Pa.) 192; 12 Phila. (Pa.) 482; Sage v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 125 U. S. 361; Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459; American Bridge Co. v. Heidelberg, 94 U. S. 798; Teal v. Walker, 111 U. S. 242; Dow v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 124 U. S. 652; Mercantile Trust Co. v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 221; In re Life Assoc., 96 Mo. 632; Massachusetts etc. R. Co. v. U. S. Express Co., 81 Ill. 254; Smith v. Eastern R. Co., 124 Mass. 154; Bath v. Miller, 51 Me. 341; Noyes v. Rich, 52 Me. 115; Play v. Tennessee R. Co., 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 421; Dunham v. Isett, 15 Iowa 284; Emerson v. European etc. R. Co., 67 Me. 387; Ellis v. Boston etc. R. Co., 107 Mass. 1.

Notwithstanding the general rule that the mortgagor is entitled to the earnings and profits of the mortgaged property while in possession or until remains in the use and management of its property, be attached by trustee process to secure a claim accruing since that date.¹ If the mortgage trustees or the bondholders omit to take possession of the mortgaged property after a default, they cannot complain that the income of the road is applied to completing and operating the road, and to the payment of floating debts.² After the trustees take possession the earnings belong to them and are no longer subject to garnishment.³

Under a mortgage by a railway company conveying its road, franchises, tolls and income and providing that after default continued for a certain period the trustees might enter and take possession, the bondholders or trustees cannot make the railroad company or its assignees accountable for such income until at least a regular demand has been made upon the company therefor.⁴ So a receiver appointed in a suit to foreclose a railroad mortgage cannot recover the earnings of the road accruing before his appointment or until the company take possession through him.⁵

Where the mortgage conveys the income, rents, issues, and profits, and provides that if the interest or principal of its bonds should not be paid as they come due, then the trustees may take some action is taken by the mortgagee, it is competent for the parties to agree in the mortgage that such future earnings and profits shall be held in equity by the mortgagee, and under such a contract such income whenever received is operated upon by the mortgage, and the party receiving it holds it in trust for whoever is in equity entitled to it. Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 5 Biss. (U. S.) 237.

In Iowa it is held that a railroad company may mortgage its future net earnings to secure prompt payment of interest accruing on its construction bonds. Jessup v. Bridge, 11 Iowa 572; Dunham v. Isett, 15 Iowa 284.

1. Ellis v. Boston etc. R. Co., 107 Mass. 1; Smith v. Eastern etc. R. Co., 124 Mass. 154; Bath v. Miller, 51 Me. 341; 53 Me. 308; Noyes v. Rich, 52 Me. 115, overruling Woodman v. New York etc. R. Co., 45 Me. 207; Merchants' Bank v. Petersburg R., 34 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 240; DeGraff v. Thompson, 24 Minn. 452.

The earnings of a railroad company from the operation of its road, though mortgaged to secure the payment of certain bonds, before foreclosure or possession taken by the trustee, may be reached by other creditors of the company, and is liable to garnishment, where the mortgage provides that, until default, the company may possess and use the road, etc., and receive the rents, profits and increase arising therefrom. Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. U. S. Express Co., 81 Ill. 534.

2. Williamson v. New Albany R. Co., 1 Biss. (U. S.) 198.

3. Galena etc. R. Co. v. Menzies, 26 Ill. 121.

4. Gilman v. Illinois etc. Tel. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 170.

A railroad company of Texas made four successive mortgages in 1853, 1855, 1857 and 1859, and issued bonds under each. The road and its appendages were sold under judgment in 1860. The purchasers operated the road until 1867, and realized large receipts therefrom. In 1857, after the making of the first three mortgages, the legislature passed a law subjecting the road and chartered rights of all railroad companies to sale for their debts, either under mortgages, deeds of trust or judgments. Held, that although the first three mortgages covered and conveyed the tolls and profits, yet the purchasers under the judgment were not accountable for the tolls and income received by them from the road, before they were notified to pay them over to the bond holders. Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 78 U. S. 459.

5. Bath v. Miller, 51 Me. 341.

possession, work the road, and apply the net income to the payment of the bonds, interest and principal. With the affirmative right of possession and management of the road, it must follow that the manager has a legal right to contract for such articles as would enter into the expense in maintaining and operating the road.¹

b. BASIS OF COMPUTATION.—Where the mortgage on a section of a railroad is foreclosed, and it is shown in the proceedings before the master that the section has not been operated separately, but as a part of the whole road, and no separate accounts kept of the income or expenses of any particular part, he may make a pro rata estimate of the earnings and expenses of the whole road. Though such a rule leads to approximation merely, it is the best that can be adopted.²

4. Money.—A mortgage of the “income earnings,” etc., of a railroad company has no retrospective effect, and the use of the word “moneys” in connection with them does not enlarge the rights of the mortgagee so as to convey to him such moneys as are simply past income and earnings.³ So money in the hands of a station agent of a railway company, received for tickets sold and freight collected, cannot be attached in his hands by a trustee process in a suit against the company by one of its creditors.⁴ But funds in the hands of a treasurer, at the time of making a conveyance of all the property embraced therein, cannot be held against the paramount right of the trustees by a creditor of the company, who has subsequently caused them to be attached on trustee process, though the trustees have permitted the company to use and manage the road and its other property.⁵

5. After Acquired Property.—a. GENERALLY.—“Qui non habet, ille non dat,” is a maxim persistently followed at common law; therefore a mortgage of after acquired property is simply void and of no effect.⁶ But in equity a different rule prevails, and mortgages by railroad companies of after acquired property are valid.⁷ They are sustained either upon the ground that it is in

1. Parkhurst v. Northern Central R. Co., 19 Md. 472.

2. Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 5 Biss. (U. S.) 237.

3. Dow v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 768. See DeGraff v. Thompson, 24 Minn. 452.

4. Petingill v. Androscoggin R. Co., 51 Me. 370; Fowler v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 35 Pa. St. 22.

5. Woodman v. York etc. R. Co., 45 Me. 207. See Buck v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 4 Cent. L. J. 430.

6. Jones v. Richardson, 10 Met. (Mass.) 481; Bonsey v. Amee, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 236; Letourno v. Ringgold, 3 Cranch (C. C.) 103; Gardner v.

Macewen, 19 N. Y. 123; Chapin v. Cram, 40 Me. 561; Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484; Hunt v. Bullock, 23 Ill. 320; Looker v. Pockwell, 38 N. J. L. 253; Wilson v. Wilson, 37 Md. 1; Hunter v. Bostworth, 43 Wis. 583; Williams v. Broggs, 11 R. I. 476. See MORTGAGES, vol. 15, p. 749.

7. The proposition that a railroad company has power to mortgage after acquired property is almost universally supported by both English and American authorities. Halroid v. Marshall, 10 H. L. Cas. 191; Mitchell v. Winslow, 2 Story (U. S.) 630; Pennoch v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117; Barnard v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 2 Low.

the nature of accretions, or that the railroad has made an executory contract, which, though void in law, will in equity be allowed to become effective, when and as the property comes into existence.¹ Any authority given to a railroad company to mortgage the whole or part of its road implies the right to mortgage its after acquired property.² Whatever is added to the original structure becomes a part of it, and cannot be severed from it; and if the security by the mortgage is to continue to be of any value during the period that must transpire before the bonds become due, it must depend upon the implied covenant of the com-

(U. S.) 608; Brett v. Carter, 2 Low. (U. S.) 458; Dillon v. Barnard, 1 Holmes (U. S.) 368; Butler v. Rahm, 46 Md. 541; Williamson v. New Jersey S. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Cook v. Corthell, 11 R. I. 482; Morrill v. Noyes, 56 Me. 458; Wilmington etc. R. Co. v. Woelpper, 64 Pa. St. 366; Emerson v. European etc. R. Co., 67 Me. 387; Bell v. R. Co., 34 La. Ann. 785; Parker v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 693; Boston S. D. & T. Co. v. Bankers' etc. Tel. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 288; Nichols v. Mase, 94 N. Y. 160; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 230; Texas Western R. Co. v. Gentry, 69 Tex. 625; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 46; Shaw v. Bill, 95 U. S. 10; Calhoun v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 2 Flip. (U. S.) 442.

The principle of law enumerated in the text is of comparatively recent origin. It is first clearly and definitely stated by Story in Mitchell v. Winslow, 2 Story (U. S.) 638, which was decided in 1843. "Here," said Story, "the true question is not whether the assignment of the property to be acquired in future is good at law, but whether it is good in equity. Upon the best consideration which I am able to give the subject, I think it is good and valid." Other decisions to the same effect speedily followed, and at length, as early as 1859, the principle received the sanction of the Supreme Court of the United States, in Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117. See also Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 3 Phila. (Pa.) 173; Butler v. Rahm, 46 Md. 541; Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Scott v. Canton, 6 Biss. (U. S.) 529; Brett v. Carter, 2 Low. (U. S.) 458; Dillon v. Barnard, 1 Holmes (U. S.) 386; Emerson v. European etc. R. Co., 67 Me. 387; Stevens v. Watson, 4 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 302; Barnard v.

Norwich etc. R. Co., 4 Cliff. (U. S.) 351; Willenock v. Morris Canal Co., 3 Green Ch. 377; Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484; Ludlow v. Hurd, 6 Am. Law Reg. 493.

In England the same conclusion was not so early reached. Several authorities pointed to such a result, but it was not until the decision of the case of Holroyd v. Marshall that the law was deemed settled. In this case a decree was entered by Vice-Chancellor Stuart, affirming the validity of the mortgage. On appeal to the House of Lords that decree was reversed by L. C. Campbell, 2 De G. F. & S. 596. A reargument was, however, ordered, and in 1862 a decree reversing Lord Campbell was entered; Lord Westbury and Lord Wensleydale (Baron Parke) being of opinion that the mortgage was valid, though Lord Chelmsford dissented.

In Louisiana the execution of a mortgage by a railroad company does not extend to property acquired after the date of the mortgage. State v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 4 Rob. (La.) 231; State v. Mexican Gulf R. Co., 3 Rob. (La.) 513. See 2 Rev. Code 1870, art. 3308.

1. Hodder v. Kentucky etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 799.

2. Quincy v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 94 Ill. 537; Dunham v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 1 Wall. (U. S.) 254; Kelly v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 58 Ala. 489; Hamlin v. European etc. R. Co., 72 Me. 83.

In Covey v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 3 Phila. (Pa.) 173, Agnew, P. J., said: "To build a railroad requires a vast capital beyond ordinary means, and to borrow it, 'to carry into effect the objects of the corporation,' demands all the security within the possible power of the corporation to give. By necessity and practice, the money of the creditor capitalist finishes and pany to keep it in running order, and thus earn the necessary sums to discharge the accruing interest, and eventually indemnify the creditors for the principal debt.¹

The question of exactly what acquired property passes by a mortgage depends in a very great degree upon the terms of the instrument. Some authorities may be found to the effect that a mortgage of the franchises and property of a railroad without more would be sufficient to pass all after acquired property, on the ground that such after acquired property is to be considered as an accretion to the property owned at the time of the mortgage.² But, as a rule, this principle does not obtain. Some specific terms indicative of an intent to pass after acquired property are usually required to be inserted in the mortgage.³ Sub-equips the road; and slender indeed would his security be which extends not beyond the worn-out rails and rolling stock and equipment first in use, and these, indeed, not often in being at the time of the execution of the mortgage. In giving the power to borrow and pledge, it must be supposed the power was given to its fullest extent in order to carry into effect the objects of the incorporation."

1. Ludlow v. Hurd, 1 Disney (Ohio) 552.

2. Dinsmore v. Racine etc. R. Co., 12 Wis. 649; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Bank, 11 Wis. 207; Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484.

3. In re Panama etc. Mail Co., L. R., 5 Ch. 318; Seymour v. Canada etc. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N.Y.) 284; Elwell v. Grand St. etc. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N.Y.) 83; Meyer v. Johnston, 53 Ala. 237; Shaw v. Bill, 95 U. S. 10; Walsh v. Barton, 24 Ohio St. 28; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Cary, 13 Wis. 110; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Bank, 15 Wis. 424; Brainard v. Peck, 34 Vt. 496; Campbell v. Texas etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 263; Barnard v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 14 Niles' Bankr. Reg. 469; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Fisher, 17 Wis. 114; Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 26 N. J. Eq. 398; Weetgen v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 4 Hun (N.Y.) 529; Bath v. Miller, 53 Me. 308.

After acquired land not within the terms of the mortgage is not covered by it. Dinsmore v. Racine etc. R. Co., 12 Wis. 649.

A mortgage executed by a railroad company on the "road" of the company, "whether made, or to be made, acquired or to be acquired, and all property, real or personal" "of the company, whether now owned or hereafter to be acquired, used or appropriated for the operating, or maintaining the said road" is not a lien upon the real estate of the company then owned, or afterwards acquired, which has not been used or appropriated for operating or maintaining the road. Walsh v. Barton, 24 Ohio St. 28.

And where the mortgage contains a provision, covering after acquired property, acquired by the company, and used or employed for the purposes of the road, lands acquired by the company, and not thus used do not come within the description of such a mortgage. Seymour v. Canandaigua etc. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N.Y.) 284.

Leasehold Interests.—Where the mortgagors enumerate in the mortgage as objects of conveyance "all their lands, tracks, rails, bridges, depots, stations, leases, etc., and all the like estate that may be hereafter acquired, or constructed or belong to, or be controlled by the corporation," it is held to include a lease afterwards taken of another road. Barnard v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 2 Low. (U. S.) 608; but where a lease executed by a mortgagor subsequent to the mortgage, and there is no privity, of estate, or contract thereby created between the mortgagee and lessee, and there is no attornment by lessee to mortgagee, the mortgagee cannot either after or before the mortgagor's default, demand the benefits without the consent of the lessee. Moran v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 878.

Contracts.—A mortgage of the railroad with its superstructure, track, etc., and all the title of the company to the land on which the road was or might be constructed with all the rights of way then acquired, or thereafter to be sequently acquired personalty will, however, pass under the general terms of a railway mortgage without special mention, if the terms of the mortgage be broad and comprehensive enough to cover it.¹ The doctrine that where a railroad company mortgaged its entire road and all its franchises, any after acquired personal property will pass to the mortgagee, as an incident to the franchise of acquiring property, cannot, however, be applied to a case where several mortgages are given on separate divisions of acquired, and all depots, etc., and the parcels of land on which they were, or should be erected, attaches to a piece of land purchased for the use of the company for depot grounds, and taken possession of by the company, and used for such purposes. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Fisher, 17 Wis. 114; Hamlin v. European etc. R. Co., 72 Me. 83. So a railroad mortgage, conveying the road franchises and endowments does not cover or convey a contract with the United States for carrying the mail. St. Paul etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 112 U. S. 733.

Iron Rails.—Where a mortgage provides that all property subsequently acquired by the company, shall become a part of the property covered thereby, iron rails subsequently acquired by the company are embraced in the mortgage, although still in the hands of its agents at a distant port, and the holders of the bonds secured by such mortgage may restrain by injunction, the fraudulent diversion of them. Weetjen v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.) 529.

Fuel.—Where a railroad company is authorized by the special act of the legislature to extend its road, and to make a mortgage of its property, then owned by the new and old portion of the road, and all the property of the said extension, subsequently to be acquired, and the mortgage is accordingly executed, wood afterwards purchased with the earnings of the whole road will not pass by such a mortgage, and it is attachable. Bath v. Miller, 53 Me. 308.

Stock.—A mortgage of the real and personal property of a railroad, then held or to be acquired, covers railroad stock of another railroad company, subsequently purchased by the mortgagors. And under such a mortgage, it was held not necessary to the validity of the stock that it should have been filed, because the capital stock of the corporation is not goods and chattels, within the meaning of the act concerning chattel mortgages. Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 26 N. J. Eq. 398.

1. State v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 18 Md. 193; Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Biss. (U. S.) 35; Miller v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 36 Vt. 452; Morrill v. Noyes, 56 Me. 458; Phillips v. Winslow, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 431.

In Hamlin v. Jerrard, 72 Me. 62; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 488, Simons, J., said: "We regard it as settled by the weight of authority that any property connected with the use of the franchise of a railroad corporation for the purposes intended by its charter, to be subsequently acquired, may be effectually mortgaged. The validity of such a lien upon after acquired property is distinctly held by this court in Morrill v. Noyes, 56 Me. 458, 471, at least against a later mortgage given after the property was in existence and in the possession of the company; and the language of the court is quite as applicable to the case of a subsequent attaching creditor. That a mortgage of a railroad and the franchises of the company with all the rolling stock then owned and to be afterwards acquired and placed upon the road, will create a valid lien upon cars and engines subsequently purchased, there would seem to be no longer any doubt.

"It may therefore be regarded as judicially settled, with little or no divergence of opinion, that in equity a mortgage of a railroad will be held to apply to after acquired rolling stock, and other personal property, if the terms of the mortgage cover such future acquisitions; with the qualification, however, that the mortgage will attach to such property subject to the liens existing upon it when it comes into the hands of the mortgagor." See Myer v. Johnston, 64 Ala. 603; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584.

After Acquired Personal Property Not Embraced Within the Terms of the

the road.¹ Where the legislature authorizes a railroad corporation to borrow such sums of money as may be necessary for completing its road, and to mortgage corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of debts contracted by the company for that purpose, lands acquired subsequently for a new location will be embraced in such mortgage, whether or not the right of way was all acquired at the time the mortgage was recorded, or whether the road had or had not at that time been entirely located.² To free the road pro tanto from the lien, because a deviation is made in the route laid down, would not only violate the terms of the mortgage, but would tend to weaken such security, and to discourage the construction of necessary public works, which the policy of the law seeks to promote.³

b. RELATIVE PRIORITY OF LIENS AND MORTGAGES ON AFTER ACQUIRED PROPERTY.—If the after acquired property comes into the mortgagor's hands subject to other liens, a mortgage intended to cover such property does not displace the other liens, though they may be junior in point of time. A mortgage by a railroad company covering all after acquired property only attaches to such interests as the mortgagor acquires.⁴ If the company give a mortgage for the purchase money at the time of the purchase, such mortgage whether registered or not has precedence

Mortgage.—A mortgage granted the "railroad with its superstructure, track, and all other appurtenances, made or to be made; also railroad furniture, including engines, tenders, cars of every description, tools, materials, machinery and every kind of personal property, which shall be used for operating said railroad." Held, that these provisions of the mortgage did not pass property thereafter to be acquired by the company, except so far as it should be appurtenant to, or be used in operating the road. And that certain railroad chairs, afterwards acquired by the company, but never used in the construction of the road, were not appurtenant to it, nor used in operating it; therefore, the mortgagee had no title, although after such chairs were acquired, the company surrendered possession of the road, and the mortgaged property to the mortgagee. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Commercial Bank, 11 Wis. 207; aff'd by Dinsmore v. Racine etc. R. Co., 12 Wis. 649; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Carey, 3 Wis. 110; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Commercial Bank, 15 Wis. 424. So, where the first mortgage of a railroad, and its appurtenances, in the description of a portion of the property conveyed, contain the following words: "And all other personal property belonging to said company, as the same now in use by said company, or as the same may be hereafter changed or renewed by said company," it was held that these words did not embrace certain machinery for "burnetizing" ties and timber so as to render them more durable, which machinery was not in existence at the time of the mortgage, and took the place of nothing that was therein specified, but was constructed by the railroad company, as a new experiment, after the execution of the mortgage. Brainerd v. Peck, 34 Vt. 496.

1. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Commercial Bank, 11 Wis. 207.

2. Seymour v. Canandaigua etc. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 284.

3. Elwell v. Grand etc. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 83.

4. Galveston R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 254; U. S. v. New Orleans R. Co., 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362; Boston Safe Deposit etc. Co. v. Bankers' etc. Tel. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 288; Willink v. Morris Canal etc. Co., 4 N. J. Eq. 377; Branch v. Jesup, 106 U. S. 468; Myer v. Car Co., 102 U. S. 1; Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.) 130; Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 28 N. J.

of the general mortgage.¹ This rule is applicable to locomotives and cars, and loose property susceptible of separate ownership and of separate liens and to real estate not used for railroad purposes.² But it fails, however, when the property purchased is annexed to a subject already covered by the general mortgage and becomes a part thereof, as when iron rails are laid down and become part of the railroad.³ Rails and other articles, which become affixed to, and part of a railroad covered by a prior mortgage, will be held by the lien of such mortgage, in favor of bona fide creditors, as against any contract between the vendors of the property and the railroad company, containing stipulations that the articles furnished should remain the property of the vendors until the contract price for them should be fully paid.⁴

Eq. 277; 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Haven v. Emery, 33 N. H. 66.

1. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mellen, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362.

2. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.) 130; 11 Fed. Rep. 1; Frank v. Denver etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 123; Central Trust Co. v. Ohio C. R. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 520.

3. Porter v. Pittsburg Bessemer Steel Co., 120 U. S. 649; 122 U. S. 267; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 472, 495; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mellen, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362.

4. In New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mellen, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 362, the court, in their opinion, imply that the only exception to the general rule is where the property sought to be covered by the mortgage consists of rails or other material which can become affixed to and a part of the principal thing. They say: "A mortgage intended to cover after acquired property can only attach itself to such property in the condition in which it comes into the mortgagor's hands. If that property is already subject to mortgages or other liens the general mortgage does not displace them, although they may be junior to it in point of time. It only attaches to such interests as the mortgagor acquires; and if he purchase property and give a mortgage for the purchase money the deed which he receives and the mortgage which he gives are regarded as one transaction, and no general lien impending over him, whether in the shape of a general mortgage, or judgment, or recognizance, can displace such mortgage for purchase money. And in such cases a failure to register the mortgage for purchase money makes no difference. It does not come within the reason of the registry laws. These laws are intended for the protection of the subsequent, not prior, purchasers and creditors. Had the property sold by the government to the railroad company been rails, as in the case of Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459, or any other material which became affixed to and a part of the principal thing, the result would have been different. But being loose property, susceptible of separate ownership and separate liens, such liens, if binding on the railroad company itself, are unaffected by a prior general mortgage given by the company, and paramount thereto."

The general rule was recognized as applying to cars in Fosdick v. Schall, 9 Otto (U. S.) 235. It was there held that where one sold and delivered cars to a railroad company under an agreement that they were to remain his property until paid for, a prior mortgage given by the company upon all the property which it then owned or possessed, or might afterwards acquire, did not attach as lien upon the cars, but they remained the property of the vendor until paid for, and he might reclaim them on default of payment.

See generally Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 59 Miss. 896; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 414; Hamlin v. European etc. R. Co. and note, 72 Me. 83; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 503; Hamlin v. Gerrard, 72 Me. 62; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 488; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Page, 35 Ark. 304; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 36; Meyer v. Johnson, 64 Ala. 603; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 514; Branch v. Jesup, 106 U. S. 468; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Coffin and note, 50 Conn. 150;

A mortgage covering after acquired property does not take a first lien on land conveyed to a railroad company, but is subject to the vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money, and of such land, the mortgagee is not a purchaser for value.¹ So where land is taken for a right of way, and is afterwards transferred by mortgage, it passes subject to the paramount constitutional right of the owner of the legal estate in the land, and if compensation has not been made for damages for the taking of such property, the landowner has a lien on the property, which takes precedence of the mortgage.²

6. Rolling Stock.—A mortgage by a railroad company of "all the present and future acquired property of the company, including the right of way, and land occupied, and all rails and other materials used therein, or procured therefor," includes the rolling stock of the road.³ So a mortgage of the entire line of a railroad, with all the tolls and revenue thereof, covers not only the line of the road, but all the rolling stock and fixtures, whether movable or immovable, essential to the production of tolls and revenue.⁴ And a mortgage thus executed, on all the present and subsequently acquired property of a railroad, has priority of a 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 375; Mase v. Nichols, 94 N. Y. 160; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 230.

Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459, was a case where the seller of iron to a railroad was held to acquire no lien prior to an existing mortgage. The decision in this case was based upon the absence of a State lien law. The court said: "By the common law it is an inflexible rule that whatever is affixed to the freehold becomes a part of the realty, except certain fixtures erected by tenants, which do not affect the question here. The rails put down on the company's road become a part of the road. The road itself was included in the mortgage of the complainants. Pulsford, by allowing his property to go into or become a part of the road, consented to its being covered by the mortgages in question. He acquired no lien which can displace them. In certain States a lien is created by statute in favor of mechanics, called the mechanics' lien, by which a person furnishing materials for work on a building acquires a lien on the property to secure the payment of his claim. But this kind of lien did not exist in Texas in favor of those who supplied materials or money for constructing railroads. We have no hesitation in saying that Pulsford's claim to priority cannot be maintained."

Telegraph Wires.—Telegraph wires strung and connected with an existing system of telegraph lines do not lose their character as personalty, and become a part of the railroad, if it was the intention and the contract of the two companies, at the time they were affixed to the poles that they should retain their original character. With respect to this class of property, the parties in interest may agree that it shall remain personalty, subject to be removed; and such an agreement determines the real character, as against an existing mortgage. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.) 130; Boston Safe Deposit & T. Co. v. Bankers' etc. Tel. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 388.

1. Loomis v. Davenport etc. R. Co., 17 Fed. Rep. 301.

2. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Harvey, 107 Pa. St. 319; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 642.

3. Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Biss. (U. S.) 35.

4. State v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 18 Md. 193; Ceymer v. Johnson, 53 Ala. 237; 64 Ala. 603; compare Miller v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 36 Vt. 452.

A mortgage of a railroad company purported to convey "all the present and future to be acquired property, together with the superstructure and tracks thereon, rails and other materials used therein, engines, tenders, cars, etc. Held to include rolling stock. Phil-mortgage on after acquired rolling stock.¹ And such a mortgage lien is not lost by withdrawing the property from present uses upon the road, for the purpose of changing it to meet a contemplated narrow gauge.²

a. CONDITIONAL SALES.—Purchases of rolling stock are generally made on conditional sales. In nearly all the States, statutes have been enacted, providing in substance that contracts for the sale or lease of rolling stock with a reservation of title to the vendor, until full payment of the purchase price is made, shall not be valid as against judgment creditors of the vendee or purchasers, without notice, unless the contracts be in writing, and publicly acknowledged and recorded.³ In order to determine the real character of a contract, the courts always look to the purpose to be attained by it, rather than the name given to it by the parties. If it is the manifest intention of the parties by the agreement, that the ownership of the property transferred pass at once to the railroad company, such a transaction will not be changed by assuming the form of a lease, when it is, in effect, a mortgage.⁴ And the validity of such contracts is generally determined by the lex rei sitæ, rather than that of the jurisdiction lipps v. Winslow, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 431.

1. Coe v. Pennock, 6 Am. L. Reg. 27; Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117. Bonds were issued by a railroad company for the purpose of completing and equipping their road, and were secured by a mortgage in trust of their road and franchise, together with all "cars, engines, and furniture that have been or may be purchased by such company." The company afterwards purchased an engine, and certain cars which they subsequently mortgaged to the plaintiffs, and upon failure to execute the trust, a bill in equity was commenced by the holders of the bond against the company and assignees of the former mortgage, and the defendant was appointed a receiver by consent, who took all the property of the railroad from possession of the company, to hold the same under the direction of the court pendente lite. The plaintiff thereupon demanded the engine and cars of the receiver, and upon his refusal to deliver the property, they commenced an action of trover, and obtained leave of court to prosecute it. Held, that under the former mortgage, a lien was created upon the rolling stock to be subsequently acquired, which attached as soon as it was afterwards purchased, and placed upon the railroad by the company, and the plaintiffs acquired no title under their mortgage, which they could maintain against those holding under the former mortgage. Morrill v. Noyes, 56 Me. 458.

2. Hamlin v. Girard, 72 Me. 62.

3. Ala. Code 1886, §§ 1821, 1822, Colo. Laws 1885, p. 302; Dak. Laws 1883, ch. 93; Del. Laws 1883, ch. 146; Ill. Annot. Stats. 1885, ch. 114, § 84; Ind. Acts 1889, ch. 176; Md. Pub. Gen. Laws 1889, art. 21, § 84; Laws 1882, p. 317; Minn. Laws 1885, ch. 210; 2 G. S. (Supp.) 1888, ch. 34; §§ 91 d-91 H; Mont. Comp. Stat. 1887, ch. 36; §§ 709, 710, 711; N. J., R. S. Supp. 1887-1886, p. 846; N. Mex. Comp. Laws 1884, § 2739; N. Y., 4 R. S. 1889, p. 2521; N. Car. 1 Code 1883, § 2006; Laws 1883, ch. 416; Ohio R. S. 1884, p. 170; Act of March 16, 1882; Oregon, 2 Annot. Laws 1887, §§ 4042, 4043; Pa., 2 Brightly's Purdon's Dig. 1883, p. 1422, § 42; Tenn. Acts 1885, ch. 96; Va. Code 1887, § 2462; Wash. Laws, 1883, p. 62; Wis. Laws 1883, ch. 274.

4. Frank v. Denver etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 123; Heryford v. Davis, 102 U. S. 235; Central Trust Co. v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 520; Fidelity Ins. etc. Co. v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 86 Va. 1; Hervey v. Rhode Island Locomotive Works, 93 U. S. 664.

A contract, whereby cars and locomotive are leased to a railroad com-where the owner lives. If the sale was valid where the property was situated at the time of the transaction, it is valid as against an attachment made in another State, although the mortgage was not valid or recorded, or although the sale was not made as required by the laws of the State where the attachment was made.¹ In the absence of proof to the contrary it is to be assumed that such personal property was, at the time of the execution of the mortgage, in the State where the corporation was organized, and where the mortgage was executed.²

b. ROLLING STOCK REGARDED AS FIXTURES.—The question as to whether rolling stock is to be regarded as a fixture or personal property has been variously decided. Many decisions hold that rolling stock, such as cars, tenders and locomotives are accessory to the real estate, and pass by mortgage as a fixture or necessary incident,³ and are not subject to levy or sale on execution.⁴ Others hold that rolling stock is personal property,⁵ and, as such, subject to levy and sale on execution, unless it has passed into the possession of the mortgagee. Rolling stock is declared a pany, that agrees to pay for every car and locomotive so delivered, an annual rent, equivalent to one-sixth of the original cost thereof, for the period of ten years, at the end of which the cars and locomotives are to become the property of the railroad company, with a proviso that upon default in payment of the annual rent, or failure to observe any of the covenants of the lease, the rights of the railroad company shall be determined, and the property reclaimed by the lessors, is a mortgage, and not a lease. Frank v. Denver etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 123.

1. Jones on Corp. Bonds and Mort., § 135; Hervey v. Rhode Island Locomotive Works, 93 U. S. 664; Green v. Van Buskirk, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 307; U. S. Trust Co. v. Wabash W. Ry. Co., 38 Fed. Rep. 891; Rogers Locomotive Works v. Lewis, 4 Dill. (U. S.) 158; Hart v. Barney etc. Mfg. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 543, 550; Jones on Chattel Mort., § 305; Homans v. Newton, 4 Fed. Rep. 880, 885; Bank v. McLeod, 38 Ohio St. 174; Nichols v. Mase, 94 N. Y. 160.

2. Jones on Corp. Mort., § 135; Nichols v. Mase, 94 N. Y. 160.

3. Gue v. Tide Water Canal Company, 24 How. (U. S.) 257; Scott v. Clinton etc. R. Co., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 529; Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. James, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 750; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. St. Joseph etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 412; Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117; Youngman v. Elmira etc. R. Co., 65 Pa. St. 278; Elizabethtown etc. R.

Co. v. Elizabeth, 12 Bush (Ky.) 233; Buck v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 4 Cent. L. J. 430; Titus v. Mabree, 25 Ill. 257; Palmer v. Forbes, 23 Ill. 311; Hunt v. Bullock, 23 Ill. 320. Compare Sangamon etc. R. Co. v. Morgan Co., 14 Ill. 163.

4. Youngman v. Elmira etc. R. Co., 65 Pa. St. 278; Gue v. Tide Water Canal Company, 24 How. (U. S.) 251; Coney v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 173; Shamokin Valley R. Co. v. Livermore, 147 Pa. St. 465; Phillips v. Winslow, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 431; Macon etc. R. Co. v. Parker, 9 Ga. 337.

5. Neilson v. Iowa Eastern R. Co., 51 Iowa 184; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Gilmore, 37 N. H. 410; Williamson v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 311; Randall v. Elwell, 52 N. Y. 521; Hoyle v. Plattsburg, 54 N. Y. 324; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fort Howard, 21 Wis. 44; Stephens v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 590. See RAILROADS.

The provision in the Illinois constitution of 1870, that the rolling stock of a railroad company shall be deemed personal, does not change the rule that the mortgage made by the company covering all after acquired property includes all such after acquired stock, if obtained before the rights of execution creditors attach. Scott v. Clinton etc. R. Co., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 529. See Union Trust Co. v. Morrison, 105 U. S. 591.

fixture by statute in Dakota, Florida, Iowa, Minnesota, Utah Territory, Vermont, while in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Texas, and West Virginia the constitution expressly provides that it shall be regarded as personal property. When a mortgage of a railroad covers personal property in connection with the corporate real estate and franchises, statutes in regard to acknowledging and recording chattel mortgages do not ordinarily apply. Thus a mortgage by a railroad corporation embracing all its real and personal property, with its franchises, made in pursuance of express authority in its charter and recorded in each county through which the road passes, will create a valid and binding lien on its personal as well as its real property, notwithstanding it has not been acknowledged in accordance with the requirements of the chattel mortgage act.¹

IX. BONDS.—1. Generally.—Railroad bonds are ordinarily the forms of the obligations secured by the mortgage. They are instruments under seal containing an acknowledgment of certain debts and an agreement to pay the same upon the terms stated. They are a kind of public funds put on the market and dealt in as such. Coupons or interest certificates for each installment of interest accruing during the time the bonds have to run are attached to them and form a part of the original bonds.² And to make it a lien upon the property, and to give it priority over other claimants, it must be secured by a mortgage or deed of trust, unless it is made a charge upon the property by statute or by agreement.³ The mortgage provides for the security of the particular bonds it describes, and the company puts the bonds out from time to time as occasion requires. When thus put upon the market they are treated as current until past due or actually retired. The security is considered a continuing one, and the bonds negotiable by the company so as to carry the mortgage security until they have become commercially dishonored, or something else has been done to deprive the company of its power of putting them out.⁴

2. Power of Railroad Companies to Issue Bonds.—Railroad companies have an implied right to issue negotiable bonds, although that power may not be expressly conferred by the terms of their charter.⁵ They have the power to make a bond for any purpose for which they may lawfully contract a debt, without any special

1. Cooper v. Corbin, 105 Ill. 224; Pecoria etc. R. Co. v. Thompson, 103 Ill. 187; Hammock v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 105 U. S. 77; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. St. Joseph etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 412; Titus v. Mabree, 28 Ill. 257.

2. See COUPONS, vol. 4, p. 430.

3. In re Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Hughes (U. S.) 320.

4. Claffin v. South Carolina etc. R.

Co., 8 Fed. Rep. 118; 4 Hughes (U. S.) 12; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 231.

5. Olcott v. Tioga R. Co., 27 N. Y. 546; Kent v. Quicksilver Min. Co., 78 N. Y. 159; Richards v. Merrimack etc. R. Co., 44 N. H. 127; White Water Valley Canal Co. v. Vallette, 21 How. (U. S.) 414; Wood v. Whelan, 93 Ill. 153; Alabama Gold L. Ins. Co. v. Central A. & M. Assoc., 54 Ala. 73; Kelly v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 58 Ala.

authority to that effect, unless restrained by some restriction express or implied in their charter or some other legislative act. A bond is merely an obligation under seal. A corporation having the capacity to sue and be sued, the right to make contracts under which it may incur debts, and the right to make and use a common seal, a contract under seal is not only within the scope of their powers, but was originally the usual and peculiarly appropriate form of corporate agreement.¹ This implied power extends so far as to authorize the issuing of bonds for, or on account of, work done for a railroad company.²

3. Formalities in Making and Issuing Bonds.—Certain formalities in the preparation and issue of railroad bonds are generally imposed upon the officers of the company. Securities issued not in the prescribed form are subject to defenses in consequence thereof in the hands of bona fide holders.³ Thus, where the statute requires such bonds to be certified across their face and to be registered, and declares that no bond shall be valid unless so registered, bonds issued without such registry and certificate are void.⁴ But where the bonds are issued within the scope of the power of the officers of the company, a purchaser has a right to assume that all such conditions and formalities have been complied with.⁵ Where, therefore, the bonds on their face import a compliance with the law under which they were issued, a 489; Branch v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 481. Compare Bateman v. Mid. Wales R. Co., 1 C. P. 499.

1. Com. v. Smith, 10 Allen (Mass.)

455.

2. Pusey v. New Jersey R. Co., 14 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 434.

3. Hackensack Water Co. v. DeKay, 36 N. J. Eq. 548; Singer v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 6 Mo. App. 427; Webb v. Herne Bay, L. R., 5 Q. B. 642.

In general, where the charter of a corporation provides some specific method in which bonds must be issued by it or some necessary conditions precedent to such issue, the method must be strictly pursued and the conditions fully complied with, otherwise the bonds are deemed void. In Chambers v. Manchester & Milford R. Co., 5 B. & S. 588, the facts were these: A corporation authorized by its charter to borrow money only when its capital was all subscribed and half paid in, issued certain bonds prior to that time which were sought to be enforced against the company. The bonds were, however, held by the court to be clearly void.

To a similar effect are Com. v.

Smith, 10 Allen (Mass.) 448; Rockwell v. Elkhorn Bank, 13 Wis. 653.

4. Morrison v. Bernards, 36 N. J. L. 219. See Maas v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 83 N. Y. 223.

5. In re Atheneum Soc., 4 K. & J. 549; Hackensack Water Co. v. DeKay, 36 N. J. Eq. 546.

In Royal British Bank v. Turquand, 6 E. & B. 327, the directors of a joint stock company were authorized to borrow on bonds such sums as should from time to time be authorized by resolution of the company. A bond sealed with a common seal was given by the directors to a bank, without a resolution of the company authorizing it. In an action upon the bond, it was held that the company was liable, inasmuch as the obligee took it in full faith and belief that it was authorized by, and would be a binding security upon the company, and he had a right to presume that there had been a resolution at a general meeting authorizing the borrowing of money on bond. See also Agar v. Atheneum Life Assoc. Co., 3 C. B. N. S. 725; Colonial Bank v. Willan, L. R., 5 P. C. 417; London etc. R. Co. v. McMichael, 5 Ex. 855; Eastern Coun- purchaser is not bound to look further.¹ But if there is an entire absence of power to issue the bonds, as distinguished from a defective execution of a power, the recitals therein will afford no protection to the bona fide holders who are bound to take notice of the want of authority to issue the bonds.² Third parties dealing with the officers of a railroad company are bound to take notice of the extent of their power, but they have a right to assume in the absence of anything suggesting inquiry that they have proceeded regularly in the execution of that power.³

Where a statute or charter requires that the bonds of a corporation shall be issued only upon the vote of the stockholders at a general meeting, bonds issued in disregard of such formality and placed on sale in the community, are valid, because the company is estopped by waiver of such formality from contesting their legality.⁴ Bonds given in pursuance of void contracts made by the directors of a railroad company, with a construction company cannot be enforced, unless they are negotiable instruments in the hands of innocent holders for value. In a suit to foreclose a mortgage given to secure such bonds, relief may be had as on quantum meruit for the work actually done and accepted without regard to the price fixed by the contract.⁵ But the bonds of a railroad company are not rendered void in consequence of being secured by a mortgage which the company may have had no authority to execute.⁶

4. Negotiability of Railroad Bonds.—Although in the phraseology of the law, the term bond usually denotes a specialty, yet it does not necessarily imply a contract under seal. The term is used in various significations in popular language, as importing the substantive action expressed by the verb to bind, and it may imply nothing more than a binding contract.⁷ Railroad bonds are made payable to the trustee named in the mortgage, or the bearer, and pass by delivery from hand to hand with all the ordinary properties of negotiable instruments.⁸ This ties R. Co. v. Hawkes, 5 H. L. 331; Freeman v. Cooke, 2 Ex. 654; Pickard v. Sears, 6 A. & E. 469; Lowe v. London etc. R. Co., 18 P. B. 632.

1. Mercer Co. v. Hackett, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 93; Miller v. Berlin, 13 Blatchf. (U. S.) 245; Clay Co. v. Society for Savings, 194 U. S. 579; Hackett v. Ottawa, 99 U. S. 86; Warren Co. v. Marcy, 97 U. S. 96; Sherman Co. v. Simons, 109 U. S. 735. Compare Cagwin v. Hancock, 84 N. Y. 532.

2. Lippincott v. Pana, 92 Ill. 24; Williams v. Roberts, 88 Ill. 11; St. Joseph Township v. Rogers, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 644; Sykes v. Columbus, 55 Miss. 115; Williams v. Keokuk, 44 Iowa 88; Thompson v. Perrine, 193 U. S. 806.

3. Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v.

Cleveland etc. R. Co., 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

4. Zabriskie v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381.

5. Thomas v. Brownville etc. R. Co., 109 U. S. 522; Wardell v. Union etc. R. Co., 4 Dill (U. S.) 339; 103 U. S. 651.

6. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Lewis, 33 Pa. St. 22.

7. Ide v. Passumpsic etc. R. Co., 32 Vt. 297.

8. White v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 575; Clark v. Iowa City, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 583; Gelpcke v. Dubuque, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 175; Aurora City v. West, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 82; Haven v. Grand Junction R. etc. Co., 109 Mass. 88; Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v.

principle holds, though the bonds contain a clause rendering them convertible into stock.¹

A purchaser of negotiable railroad bonds before maturity for value in good faith and without any actual notice of defect in title may enforce the same against the company.² Thus a sale of bonds by a railroad company under a power given by a constitution that "no railroad corporation shall issue any stock or bonds, except for money, labor, or property actually received, and applied to the purposes for which such corporation was created;" and the proceeds are subsequently diverted to other than corporate purposes, the purchaser of such bonds, who has acted in good faith in the matter, cannot be affected by the subsequent misappropriation by the company.³ And it is not incumbent on the owner of bonds payable to bearer, and intended Cleveland etc. R. Co., 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; Reed v. Mobile Bank, 70 Ala. 199; Lehman v. Tallassee Mfg. Co., 64 Ala. 467; Blackman v. Lehman, 63 Ala. 547; Hackensack Water Co. v. DeKay, 36 N. J. Eq. 548; Morris Canal etc. Co. v. Fisher, 9 N. J. Ch. 667, 699; Carr v. LeFevre, 27 Pa. St. 413, 418; Chapin v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 8 Gray (Mass.) 575; Langston v. South Carolina R. Co., 2 S. Car. 248; Ex parte Williams, 18 S. Car. 299; Mercer Co. v. Hackett, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 83, 95; Bonner v. New Orleans, 2 Wood (U. S.) 135; Zabriskie v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381, 400; Knox Co. v. Aspinwall, 21 How. (U. S.) 539; Hubbard v. New York etc. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 286; Beaver v. Armstrong, 44 Pa. St. 63, 68; Craig v. Vicksburg, 31 Miss. 216; Rice v. Southern Pa. Iron etc. R. Co., 9 Phila. (Pa.) 294; Blake v. Livingston Co., 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 149; Brainerd v. New York etc. R. Co., 25 N. Y. 496; Welch v. Sage, 47 N. Y. 143; Dinsmore v. Duncan, 57 N. Y. 573; Hodges v. Shuler, 22 N. Y. 114; Wicks v. Adirondack Co., 2 Hun (N. Y.) 112; Virginia v. Chesapeake etc. Canal Co., 32 Md. 501; Elizabeth v. Force, 29 N. J. Eq. 587.

"Such bonds," says Chief Justice Lewis, in Carr v. LeFevre, 27 Pa. St. 413, "are not strictly negotiable under the law merchant as are promissory notes or bills of exchange. They are, however, instruments of peculiar character, and being expressly designed to pass from hand to hand, and by common usage actually transferred are capable of passing by delivery so as to enable the holder to maintain an action upon them in his own name."

And in Junction R. Co. v. Cleneay,

13 Ind. 162, it is held that bonds of a railroad company are not exactly governed by the law merchant, but pass by delivery like bank notes, and they are entitled to all the privileges of commercial paper.

1. Hotchkiss v. National Banks, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 354.

2. Madison etc. R. Co. v. Norwich Sav. Soc., 24 Ind. 247; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mississippi College, 47 Miss. 560; Galveston R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459; Gilbough v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 1 Hughes (U. S.) 410; Bronson v. La Crosse etc. R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 283; McElrath v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 55 Pa. St. 189; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Lewis, 33 Pa. St. 33; Nelson v. Iowa Eastern R. Co., 21 Iowa 184; 33 Am. Rep. 124; Railway Co. v. Sprague, 103 U. S. 756; Seybel v. National Currency Bank, 54 N. Y. 288; Dutchess Co. Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hachfield, 1 Hun (N. Y.) 675; 47 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 330; Belo v. Forsythe Co., 76 N. Car. 489; Grand Rapids etc. R. Co. v. Sanders, 17 Hun (N. Y.) 552.

If the bond is not signed in compliance with a special requirement, it does not seem to effect the right of one who has purchased in good faith, without knowledge of the informality. Prince of Wales L. Assur. Co. v. Harding, E. B. & E. 183; In re Land Credit Co. of Ireland, L. R., 4 Ch. 460; Hill v. Manchester & S. W. Works Co., 5 B. & Ad. 886; Allen v. Sea F. & L. Assur. Co., 9 C. B. 574; Bargate v. Shortridge, 5 H. L. 297; In re Norwich Yarn Co., 22 Beav. 143; Atwood v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 85 Va. 966.

3. Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Thompson, 103 Ill. 187.

to be circulated from hand to hand, in seeking to recover upon them, to account how he, or any freeholder obtained them. They will be presumed to be the rightful holders, until the contrary is shown.¹ But if fraud or illegality in the inception of negotiable paper be shown, an indorsee, before he can recover, must prove that he is a holder for value. The mere possession of paper under such circumstances is not enough.²

A purchaser of railroad bonds in good faith and for their market value may be a bona fide holder, although some of the interest coupons attached thereto are past due and unpaid at the time of purchase.³ But where it appears that the interest on the bond is overdue and unpaid this is held in some cases to be a circumstance of suspicion, sufficient to put the purchaser on his guard.⁴ The better doctrine, however, seems to be that suspicion of defect of title, or the knowledge of circumstances which would excite such suspicion in the mind of a prudent man or gross negligence on the part of the taker at the time of the transfer, will not defeat his title. Only bad faith on the part of the purchaser of bonds can destroy their validity, and the burden of proof lies upon the person who assails the right claimed by the party in possession.⁵ Bad faith on the part of the seller makes him liable

1. Chicago etc. R. Land Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408.

2. Simmons v. Taylor, 38 Fed. Rep. 636. See Smith v. Sac Co., 11 Wall. (U. S.) 139; Stewart v. Lansing, 104 U. S. 505.

3. McClain v. Placerville etc. R. Co., 66 Cal. 606; Morton v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 590; State v. Cobb, 64 Ala. 127; Boss v. Hewitt, 15 Wis. 260; Morgan v. U. S., 113 U. S. 476; Thompson v. Perrine, 106 U. S. 589; Indiana etc. R. Co. v. Sprague, 103 U. S. 756; National Bank v. Curley, 108 Mass. 497; Cromwell v. Sac Co., 96 U. S. 51.

The presence of two past-due coupons upon an unmatured bond is not notice to a transferee of the dishonor thereof. Indiana etc. R. Co. v. Sprague, 103 U. S. 756; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 532.

4. First Nat. Bank of St. Paul v. Scott Co., 14 Minn. 77; Parsons v. Jackson, 99 U. S. 434; Morton v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 590.

5. Murray v. Lardner, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 110; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Lewis, 33 Pa. St. 33; Galveston R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459; Spence v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 576.

Upon the presentation of a negotiable bond, the presumption of law is that the person presenting is a bona fide holder, and until evidence is introduced tending to negative that presumption, he is under no obligation of proving himself a bona fide holder. Kennicott v. Wayne Co., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 128; North Carolina R. Co. v. Brew, 3 Wood (U. S.) 692; Wicks v. Adirondack Co., 2 Hun (N. Y.) 112.

Where the petition avers the fact that the plaintiff is a bona fide holder, and it is denied by the answer, he has a right to prove by direct affirmative proof that he is a bona fide holder. Macon v. Shores, 97 U. S. 272; Reed v. Bank of Mobile, 70 Ala. 199.

Stolen Bonds.—Purchasers of negotiable bonds before maturity, in the usual course of business, and in good faith, acquire a good title thereto, although they have been stolen; and in a suit by the purchasers on such bonds the burden of proof that they did not acquire them in good faith is upon the defendant. Everton v. National Bank, 66 N. Y. 14; Spooner v. Holmes, 102 Mass. 503; Seybel v. National Currency Bank, 2 Daly (N. Y.) 382; California v. Wells, 15 Cal. 336; Consolidated Ass'n v. Numa Av. Egno, 38 La. Ann. 552; Carpenter v. Lomel, 5 Phila. (Pa.) 34; Gilbough v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 1 Hughes (U. S.) 410.

ex delicto and ex contractu. There is an implied warranty on his part that they belong to him, and that they are not forgeries.¹

A bona fide purchaser of bonds for value before maturity takes them freed from all infirmities in their origin, and he can recover against the maker the full amount of them, although he may have paid less than their par value. He can recover the full amount of such bonds, unless personally chargeable with fraud in purchasing them,² and it is only by specific allegations, distinctly proving such fraud, that their title can be impaired.³ The fact that bonds were received from the treasurer of a railroad company in payment of goods is not of itself sufficient to bar the merchant from claiming as a bona fide holder, if the goods were of such character as would be of value to the company in the construction or operation of the road.⁴ After maturity a purchaser for value is not a bona fide purchaser to the extent of being protected in his purchase (unless he succeeds to the right of such a holder who became such before maturity), for the fact of non-payment discredits the instrument and deprives it of any immunity which, before maturity, was secured to it in favor of a bona fide purchaser for value, without actual notice of any defect either in the obligation or the title. So if the bonds are stolen and sold after maturity, the purchaser for value is not a bona fide purchaser to the extent of being protected in his purchase against the rightful owner, unless he has succeeded to the rights of the bona fide purchaser before maturity. The burden is upon the purchaser in such case to show that he is, or has succeeded to the rights of a bona fide purchaser before maturity. If they are stolen before maturity and bought after maturity in good faith, and after passing through the hands of several persons who are purchasers in good faith and for value, there is no presumption that the thief had negotiated the paper before it came overdue.⁵

The holder of the bonds is not liable to the company issuing them for damages sustained by reason of any failure to comply with the terms of the contract upon which they were issued.⁶ Where bonds refer to a mortgage, purchasers are bound by the statement contained in the mortgage.⁷ If the bonds refer to the

1. Otis v. Cullom, 92 U. S. 447.

2. Cromwell v. Sac Co., 96 U. S. 51.

3. Lehman v. Tallassee Mfg. Co., 64 Ala. 567; Morton v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 590; Wicks v. Adirondack Co., 2 Hun (N. Y.) 112; Bronson v. LaCrosse etc. R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 283.

4. Kennicott v. Wayne Co., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 138.

5. Northampton Nat. Bank v. Kinder, 106 N. Y. 221; Hinkly v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 131 Mass. 147.

6. Thus, where a railroad company enters into a contract for finishing their road in a specified time, and in accordance with its terms delivers their coupon bonds from time to time to the contractor as the road progresses, and the road is not finished within the specified time, the company are estopped from setting up a claim for damages for the delay of finishing, against holders of the bonds, who had received them bona fide from the contractor. McElrath v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 55 Pa. St. 189.

7. Ceylus v. New York etc. R. Co., 10 Hun (N. Y.) 295.

statute under authority of which they were issued or indorsed, every person taking directly from the company issuing them is put on inquiry, and is chargeable with notice of the requirement of the statute, and for the uses and purposes for which they could be legally issued and transferred.¹ So persons who purchase bonds of a railroad company while a statute is in force authorizing the consolidation of the railroad, must be held to have contemplated, at the time of the purchase of the bonds, that the railway issuing them might consolidate with other railroad companies.² But purchasers of bonds are not bound to inquire whether they in fact were executed by the company contemporaneously with the execution of the mortgage by which they were secured.³ It has been held to be a presumption of law that all bonds secured by mortgage were issued at the same time, and the fact that they were numbered consecutively gives no priority to any, and interferes in no manner with the equality of their holders on distribution.⁴

If the bonds contain special stipulations, and their payment is subject to contingencies, not within the control of their holders, they are, by established rules, deprived of the character of negotiable instruments, and become exposed to any defense existing thereto as between original parties to the instrument. It is essential that the bond should provide for the unconditional payment to a person or order, or the bearer of a certain sum of money, capable of exact ascertainment.⁵

Bonds issued in violation of restrictions imposed by the charter are not void, when in the hands of bona fide holders. Thus, when a charter imposes a restriction that the bonds cannot be sold at less than par value, and they are delivered to bona fide holders for value, the fact that they were negotiated at less than par value cannot be received to defeat recovery of the bona fide holder.⁶ But where bonds of a railroad corporation are put upon the market for sale for a small per cent. of the face value, by the trustee named therein, whose duty is to enforce payment, the

1. Morton v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 590; Hillman v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 566.

2. Tysen v. Wabash R. Co., 11 Biss. (U. S.) 510.

3. Nelson v. Iowa Eastern R. Co., 8 Am. Ry. Rep. 88; Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117; Com. v. Susquehanna etc. R. Co., 122 Pa. St. 321.

4. Nelson v. Iowa Eastern R. Co., 8 Am. Ry. Rep. 88. The court in this case by Day, J., said: "The bonds are payable to bearer, and are intended to be negotiated for the purpose of raising money to construct the road. If the purchaser of a bond in New York in Amsterdam or London, is bound to inquire whether the bond in fact was executed by the company contemporaneously with the execution of the mortgage, or whether before the signing or the negotiating of the bonds, liens of laborers or material men may not have attached to the road, it is apparent that the value of these securities would be much depreciated, and all industries which depend upon the raising of means through negotiation would be paralyzed."

5. Reed v. Bank of Mobile, 70 Ala. 199; Savannah etc. R. Co. v. Lancaster, 62 Ala. 555.

6. Ellsworth v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 98 N. Y. 552; 33 Hun (N. Y.) 7.

purchaser is put upon inquiry in regard to the regularity or validity of their issue.¹ And where a railroad company issues illegal bonds, such bonds will be void in the hands of all persons acquiring them with notice of the facts showing the illegality of their delivery for unauthorized purposes.² So where a purchaser has notice that an authorized agent is disposing of bonds to him for an unauthorized purpose, he takes them at his peril.³ And bonds purchased with knowledge of an equitable lien thereon, remain subject to such lien in the hands of the purchaser.⁴ But a purchaser of a mortgage, and the bonds secured by it, with notice of a claim upon the property from one without such notice will be protected.⁵

Where bonds are pledged as collateral security, the pledgee becomes a legal holder of both the undue coupons attached and the bonds themselves, and he is entitled to be protected to the extent of his debt as fully as if he were the owner. He may ordinarily sue on such collaterals in his own name, and in the absence of any defense is entitled to recover for their full amount. From the sum thus recovered, he can rightfully deduct his debt, with interest and costs, and the surplus he holds as trustee for the pledgor. If the bonds thus pledged are without consideration, or are subject to prior equities, or have been fraudulently misappropriated, the pledgee, if a bona fide holder for value before maturity, may, nevertheless, prove or sue for the entire amount of the collaterals, but he can recover no surplus over and above the amount of his debt, or advances with proper costs of suit.⁶ Where a railroad company lawfully receives bonds issued by municipal corporations, and puts them on the market instead of their own, with a guaranty of payment on the back of them, the company becomes liable to the holders thereof.⁷ But written contracts are not necessarily negotiable, simply because by their terms they inure to the benefit of the bearer. So, certificates issued to stockholders in lieu of their stock, though they pass from hand to hand by delivery, do not partake of the character of negotiable paper. Holders may transfer them, but the assignees take them subject to every equity in the hands of the original owners.⁸

1. Riggs v. Pennsylvania etc. R. Co., 16 Fed. Rep. 804.

2. Chicago v. Cameron, 120 Ill. 447; 22 Ill. App. 91; Pierce v. Madison etc. R. Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 441.

3. Chew v. Henrietta Min. etc. Co., 2 Fed. Rep. 5; 1 McCrary (U. S.) 222.

4. Hervey v. Illinois Midland R. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 169.

5. Porter v. Pittsburgh Bessemer Steel Co., 122 U. S. 267.

6. Morton v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 621; Warner v. Rising Fawn Iron Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 514.

Clafin v. South Carolina R. Co., 4 Hughes (U. S.) 12; Atwood v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 85 Va. 966; Duncomb v. New York etc. R. Co., 84 N. Y. 190.

7. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392.

8. Weaver v. Barton, 49 N. Y. 286; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Dunn v. Commercial Bank, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Leitch v. Wells, 48 N. Y. 585; Shaw v. Spencer, 100 Mass. 382; Salisbury Mills v. Townsend, 109 Mass. 115.

5. Incomplete and Altered Bonds.—If the bonds put in circulation are incomplete or uncertain as to the amount of both principal and interest and place of payment, holders of them, though bona fide for value, are not protected by the rules which govern the transfer of commercial paper.¹ Where the name of the payee is left blank, the holder may fill in his own name, and bring suit upon the instrument.² But if the place of payment is left blank, the holder is not authorized to fill the blank, when the bond says that the place of payment should be designated by the president.³ So where the mortgage requires that the bonds be signed and sealed by a railroad company, and also be certified to by a trust company, and these are forged and affixed to the bonds after being stolen, a purchaser for value and in good faith cannot hold the company liable thereon, or compel the issue of other bonds in

1. Maas v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 83 N. Y. 223; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 30; Jackson v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 141; Parsons v. Jackson 99 U. S. 454.

The T. and N. R. R. Co. executed a mortgage on its road to secure its bonds to defendant, the U. T. Co., as trustee for the bondholders, and bonds were prepared for issuing, each of which contained a clause that it should not become obligatory until authenticated by a certificate indorsed thereon duly signed by said trustee. Said bonds were signed by the proper officers of the company, but before the company's seal was affixed or the required certificate attached a portion of them were stolen, a seal and certificate forged thereon, and the bonds sold; plaintiffs purchased them for a valuable consideration and in good faith. The T. and N. Co. was consolidated with defendant, the M., K. and T. Ry. Co. By the agreement of consolidation the latter was to take up outstanding bonds of the former company, issuing its own in exchange. In an action to compel such an exchange for plaintiffs' bonds, held, that plaintiffs were bound by the condition of the bonds making the certificate of the trustee essential to their validity; that neither the payment of value nor good faith on their part created a cause of action, and that the defect in the bonds was not waived by the agreement of consolidation; also, that the failure of the obligor, after discovering that the bonds had been lost or stolen, to notify the public of that fact did not constitute negligence making it liable. Maas v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 83 N. Y. 223; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 30.

2. Chapman v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 8 Gray (Mass.) 555; White v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 575.

3. A railroad company executed bonds for 225 pounds each, if payable in London, or for $1,000 each, if payable in New York or New Orleans, and with coupons attached, by each of which the company promised to pay 9 pounds if payable in London, or $40 if payable in New York or New Orleans, and the bonds declared that the president of the company was authorized by his indorsement to fix the place for the payment of both the principal and interest of the bonds. The bonds were indorsed as follows: "I hereby agree that the within bond and the interest coupons thereto attached shall be payable in _____," and the indorsement was signed with the genuine signature of the president. Held, that if such bonds were stolen from the company, and passed into the hands of bona fide holders for value, such holders would have no authority to fill the blank left in the indorsement and thus fix the place of payment, but would hold the bonds subject to any defect of title arising from the manner in which they were put in circulation. Jackson v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 141.

Bonds of a railroad corporation were conditioned to be paid either in English or United States currency, according to the place to be fixed for their payment, and authorized the president of the corporation to fix by his indorsement such place of payment. They had been indorsed in blank by the president. While in the possession of the corporation they were stolen. Held, that a bona fide holder could not acquire or their place.¹ Alterations in bonds and coupons are not necessarily evidence of fraud.² If the bonds are not required by law to be numbered, alterations of the numbers which do not change the tenor of the bonds so as to affect either in substance or in form a written contract or the proof thereof are immaterial. An immaterial alteration of a negotiable bond payable to the bearer, although made with fraudulent intent, does not avoid it against the holder, who took it afterwards in good faith, for value, without notice of, or reason to suspect the alteration.³

6. Over-issue of Bonds.—Bonds issued in excess of a certain sum per mile, contrary to an agreement, are void as against holders of regularly issued bonds to a limited extent, where none of the holders of the over-issued bonds are innocent purchasers.⁴ But where a company issues bonds in excess of the amount secured by the mortgage the company is estopped from denying that the extra bonds are secured by the mortgage.⁵

7. Action Upon Bonds.—A timely deposit of funds for payment of bonds by the party liable thereon is equivalent to a tender of the sum payable, provided such deposit was not accompanied by a condition not authorized by the instrument.⁶ A suit may be brought upon a coupon bond made payable at a certain time and place without first making a demand of payment,⁷ nor is it necessary to make a demand of payment at the place where the bonds are made payable when the corporation is insolvent and has no funds at the place designated.⁸ But the insolvency of the company and its want of funds at the place where the bonds were payable must be alleged in the bill or admitted by demurrer.⁹ If the bonds are lost, a court of chancery has the power to compel convey any title to the bonds. Ledwich v. McKim, 53 N. Y. 309.

1. Maas v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 8.

2. Birdsall v. Russell, 29 N. Y. 220.

3. Elizabeth v. Force, 29 N. J. Eq. 587; Com. v. Emigrant Industrial etc. Bank, 98 Mass. 12; Birdsall v. Russell, 29 N. Y. 220.

4. Union Trust Co. v. Nevada etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 80; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 207.

Where a railroad company contracts with the purchaser of part of its issue of mortgage bonds that the issue shall be restricted to a certain sum for each mile of completed road, a person who thereafter receives bonds exceeding the contract limit, and who has notice of the restriction, cannot be deemed a bona fide holder for value entitled to a first lien under the mortgage for the bonds so issued to them. But when the mortgage contains no provision giving effect to the restriction in the contract, purchasers of bonds for value without notice of the provision of the contract acquire a title to bonds which is not affected by the restriction. McMurray v. Moran, 134 U. S. 150; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 442.

5. Stevens v. Benton, 1 Duv. (Ky.) 112.

6. Bailey v. Buchanan, 22 Jones & S. (N. Y.) 237.

7. Langston v. South Carolina R. Co., 2 S. Car. 248; Truman v. McCullom, 20 Wis. 360; First Nat. Bank v. Scott Co., 14 Minn. 77.

8. Shaw v. Bill, 95 U. S. 10.

9. Jones on Railroad Securities, § 218; Potomac Mfg. Co. v. Evans, 84 Va. 717.

Where a railroad company issued bonds payable at its office in a particular way, and at the maturity of the bonds there was no office of the company at that place, it was held that a demand for payment elsewhere was sufficient. Alexander v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 67 N. Car. 198.

a re-execution of them,¹ and it makes no discrimination against loss by theft.² A court of equity will not, however, in all cases of lost bonds, decree the execution of new ones, but if such loss exposes the owner to undue perils in the future assertion of his rights, such a decree is eminently proper.³

8. Promissory Notes and Unsecured Bonds.—Railroad companies have implied power to issue promissory notes.⁴ And they can be enforced against such corporations when in the hands of holders in good faith for value taken before maturity, and without knowledge that the maker had not received full consideration, though made as accommodation notes.⁵ If it is not within the scope of the corporate powers of the company to issue such paper the defense of ultra vires is not available in a suit brought by a bona fide indorsee, provided a corporation is authorized to give notes for any purpose. The reason is that the corporation by giving the note has virtually represented that it was given for some legitimate purpose, and the indorsee cannot be presumed to know the contrary. The note, however, if given by a corporation absolutely prohibited by its charter from giving notes at all, would be voidable, not only in the hands of the payee, but in those of any subsequent holder because all persons dealing with

1. Chesapeake etc. Canal Co. v. Blaire, 45 Md. 102; Force v. Elizabeth, 27 N. J. Eq. 408.

Where registered coupon railroad bonds were destroyed at the same time that their owner lost his life by the burning of a steamboat, and an action was brought by the administrator of the decedent to compel the railroad company to pay interest in arrears and issue of the bonds, it was held that upon receiving an indemnity with sureties, the defendant should comply with the demands of the plaintiff. Rogers v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 6 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 253.

2. Force v. Elizabeth, 27 N. J. Eq. 408.

3. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mississippi College, 47 Miss. 560.

4. Olcott v. Tioga etc. R. Co., 27 N. Y. 546; Moss v. Averell, 10 N. Y. 449, 457.

"No question is better settled upon authority than that a corporation not prohibited by law from doing so, and without any expressed power in its charter for that purpose, may make a negotiable promissory note, payable either at a future day, or upon demand, or when such note is given for any of the legitimate purposes for which the company was incorporated." This principle is well settled by the courts in the United States. Richmond etc. R. Co. v. Snead, 19 Gratt. (Va.) 354; Smith v. Eureka Flour Mills Co., 6 Cal. 1; Barker v. Mechanics' F. Ins. Co., 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 94; Clark v. Farmers' Woolen Mfg. Co., 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 256.

But in England the decisions are not altogether uniform in this matter, for while there are a few decisions which really rest upon the principle that a corporation may make such ordinary negotiable paper as is incidental to the nature of its business, yet the cases generally are the other way. Jones on Railroad Securities, § 225. See In re Moseland Green Coal etc. Co., 4 DeG., J. & S. 756; Bateman v. Mid Wales R. Co., L. R., 1. C. P. 449.

5. Maitland v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 40 Md. 540; Monument Nat. Bank v. Globe Works, 101 Mass. 57; 3 Am. Rep. 322; Farmers' etc. Bank v. Empire Stone etc. Co., 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 275; Smead v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 11 Ind. 104; Bank of Genessee v. Patchin Bank, 13 N. Y. 309; Mechanics' Bank Association v. New York etc. White Lead Co., 35 N. Y. 505; Morford v. Farmers' Bank, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 568; Central Bank v. Empire Stone Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 22; Olcott v. Tioga R. Co., 27 N. Y. 546; Bridgeport City

a corporation are bound to take notice of the extent of its chartered powers.¹

A corporation having the right to contract an obligation for a specific purpose has also the right to issue any instrument which either party may consider convenient in the acknowledgment of it.² So where the legislature confers upon a corporation the power to borrow money on mortgage to enable them to complete their work, bonds issued without any accompanying mortgage are valid.³

9. Contracts of Guaranty.—The general rule is that one corporation cannot, without express power, lend its credit to another,⁴ because such a power is contrary to the objects of the incorporation. Nor can railway companies engage or pledge their funds, or intermingle their affairs in unauthorized transactions upon the speculation that they may obtain legislative authority for doing acts which were beyond their powers at the time when they were done.⁵ Authority of railroad corporations to enter into contracts of guaranty is ordinarily given by special or general statutes, but a number of cases hold that they may, on sufficient consideration, guarantee the payment of the bonds of another company, even if there is no authority conferred upon them to do so by their charters or the general statutes.⁶ And the authority to make the Bank v. Empire Stone Dressing Co., 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 421.

1. Bissell v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 11 N. Y. 289. In Smead v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 11 Ind. 104, it was held that if a company have the general power so to make money liabilities, but abuse that power in a particular instance, the instrument will be binding in the hands of the bona fide holder; but that if there is a total absence of power—that if the corporate powers of the country are clearly short of the privileges of making such instruments, they will not only be void ab initio, but also in the hands of subsequent holders, if indeed there can be any bona fide holders of paper made under such circumstances.

2. Miller v. New York etc. R. Co., 18 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 374; 8 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 431; Kelly v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 58 Ala. 489; Dana v. Bank of U. S., 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 223.

3. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Lewis, 33 Pa. St. 33.

4. Central Bank v. Empire Stone Dressing Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 23; Bridgeport City Bank v. Empire Stone Dressing Co., 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 421; Smead v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 11 Ind. 104; Bank of Genessee v. Patchin Bank, 13 N. Y. 309, 19 N. Y. 312; Stark Bank v. U. S. Pottery Co.,

34 Vt. 144; Lexington v. Butler, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 382; Sumner v. Marcey, 3 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 105.

The directors of a railway company, for the purpose of increasing the traffic, proposed to guarantee certain profits, and secured the capital of an intended steam-packet company, who were to act in connection with the railway. Held, first, that such a transaction was not within their powers, and they were restrained by injunction. Held, secondly, that in such a case one of the shareholders in a railway company was entitled to sue "on behalf of himself and all the other shareholders, except the directors," who were defendants, although some of the shareholders had taken shares in the steam-packet company. Colman v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 10 Beav. 1; 4 Ry. Cas. 513.

5. Logan v. Courtney, 13 Beav. 22; 23 L. J. N. S. Ch. 347.

6. Low v. California Pac. R. Co., 52 Cal. 53; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Arnot v. Erie R. Co., 67 N. Y. 315.

A railroad corporation which has power by its charter to issue its own bonds, has power to guarantee the bonds of another railroad corporation which it receives in payment of a debt guaranty cannot be denied where it is shown that it had been acquiesced in by the company for a number of years.¹ Where a statute empowers one company to guarantee bonds of another, but requires certain preliminary action on the part of the guaranteeing company, a company which exercises the power conferred by such statute cannot afterwards be permitted to show in defence of its liability on the bonds that the statutory requirements were not complied with.²

A railroad company may guarantee bonds taken and held by it in the usual course of its business.³ And a guaranty of

due to it, and which it sells for value or transfers in payment of its own debts, the guaranty being given as the means of augmenting the credit of the bonds, or to enable it to obtain an adequate price for them. Rogers Locomotive etc. Works v. Southern R. Assoc., 34 Fed. Rep. 278.

Section 3303 Rev. Laws Vermont, which provides that a railroad company may make contracts for leasing and running the roads of other companies, confers upon a railroad company power to enter into a lease by which it agrees to guarantee the payment of the interest on coupons and the mortgage bonds of the lessor company. Eastern Township Bank v. St. Johnsbury etc. R. Co., 40 Fed. Rep. 423; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 566.

1. Camden etc. R. Co. v. Coxe (Pa.), 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 10.

2. Thus, in 1851, the legislature of Ohio passed a general law relating to railway companies, which empowered them at any time, by means of their subscription to the capital stock of any other company or otherwise, to aid such other railroad company, provided no such aid shall be furnished until, at a called meeting of the stockholders, two-thirds of the stock represented shall have assented thereto. In 1852 another act was passed for the creation and regulation of incorporated companies in Ohio, re-enacting the above section, and providing further that any existing company might accept any of its provisions, and, when so accepted, a certified copy of their acceptance filed with the secretary of state, that portion of their charters inconsistent with the provisions of this act should be repealed. In 1854 the Cleveland, Columbus & Cincinnati R. Co. endorsed a guaranty upon four hundred bonds of one thousand dollars each, issued by the Columbus, Piqua & Indiana R. Co.

The C., C. & C. R. Co. had not formally complied with either of the above requirements. A stockholder of the Cleveland etc. Co. filed a bill to enjoin the directors from paying the interest upon the bonds, which they had thus guaranteed, upon the ground that the directors had exceeded their legal authority in making the guaranty. Held, that as between the parties to the suit, the acceptance of the acts of 1851 and 1852 might be inferred from the conduct of the incorporators themselves. That as the corporation had executed the powers and claimed the privileges conferred by them, they could not exonerate themselves from responsibility by asserting that they had not filed the evidence required by the statute to evince their decision. Zobriskie v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381. See also Cozart v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 54 Ga. 379; Madison etc. R. Co. v. Norwich Sav. Soc., 24 Ind. 457.

3. Madison etc. R. Co. v. Norwich Sav. Soc., 24 Ind. 457.

Even though the guaranty be made for a purpose not authorized by the charter, as for the accommodation of another road, the right of a bona fide holder without notice to recover upon it, is not affected thereby. Madison etc. R. Co. v. Norwich Sav. Soc., 24 Ind. 457.

When Guaranty Ultra Vires.—Where a corporation guarantees the bonds of another company, its stockholders may be estopped from repudiating the guaranty, though the indorsement or guaranty be ultra vires. Cozart v. Georgia etc. R. Co., 54 Ga. 379; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Fletcher, 35 Kan. 236.

The defendant company, in pursuance of an agreement made with another railroad company, guaranteed the payment of the interest of certain bonds issued by the latter company. Subsequently these bonds came into the possession of the defendant, and some of bonds without other designation embraces both principal and interest.¹ If the coupons be detached from the bonds as they become due, the guarantor of the prompt payment of the principal and interest is liable upon the detached coupons from the time the same are payable.² And as to the consideration of such a guaranty, it has been held that an arrangement between several connecting railroad companies entered into for the purpose of securing a uniform gauge of the several roads, and thus increasing the business and profits of each, was sufficient.³ So a lease by one company of its road, etc., to another company is a sufficient consideration for the guaranty of its bonds.⁴

Where bonds of a company are pledged to secure the payment of money borrowed by an authorized agent, the lender is not to receive the full amount of the bonds and account to the agent, but is entitled only to his loan and interest. The agent is in equity entitled to the benefit of the bonds received by a surety, or by a person standing in the position of a surety, for his indemnity, and to discharge the debt he is liable for, and it makes no difference that the agent did not know of the security at the time, or did not give credit on the faith of it.⁵ If the agent pays a part only of the debt of the principal debtor for which the guaranty was given, he cannot claim reimbursement out of the funds of such debtor as against the common creditor until the latter is fully satisfied.⁶

One who guarantees the payment of a debt, for failure to pay which relief is sought under a statute respecting railroads, is on payment of the debt, entitled to the benefit of the statute as a creditor in respect of the debt so paid, notwithstanding the fact that he has guaranteed the payment thereof.⁷

10. Indorsement of Bonds.—A railroad company may, without special authority, indorse negotiable instruments which it has taken in the course of business, or in payment of debts due it.⁸ Bonds issued by a municipal corporation payable to a railroad them were bought for a valuable consideration, sold and transferred to the plaintiff's testator. It was held that the defendant, having itself transferred the bonds and received the avails thereof, was estopped from claiming that the guaranty was ultra vires. Arnot v. Erie etc. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 315; 5 Hun (N. Y.) 608.

If a railroad has the general power to make a guaranty, it is immaterial as between third parties without notice, whether its act is authorized or ratified by vote of the stockholders. Holders of the coupon guaranty have a right to presume that the guarantors have done their duty and have proceeded regularly in execution of the power. Connecti- cut Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

1. New Orleans v. Clark, 95 U. S. 644.

2. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Knight, 124 Pa. St. 58.

3. Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 9.

4. Opdyke v. Pacific R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 55; Low v. California Pac. R. Co., 52 Cal. 53.

5. Rice's Appeal, 79 Pa. St. 168.

6. Virginia v. Chesapeake etc. Canal, 32 Md. 501.

7. Pennsylvania etc. R. Co. v. Pemberton etc. R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. 338.

8. Olcott v. Tioga etc. R. Co., 27 N. Y. 546.

company may be indorsed and transferred by the company.¹ So railroad bonds indorsed by a State are negotiable instruments by the general commercial law which must be presumed to be in force where they are payable, and are capable of transfer by delivery.² And the addition of the office or official title to the signature of the officer indorsing the instrument, is immaterial where his official character and position appears fully in the body and in the attestation clause of the instrument of indorsement.³ So where a railroad company indorses State bonds, the case comes within the rule which makes an indorser of commercial paper the guarantor of the genuineness and validity of the instrument he indorses, and the company are bound by the indorsement, though the bonds be void because issued under unconstitutional legislation.⁴ If the governor is authorized by statute to indorse bonds of a railroad company, bona fide holders for value of the bonds indorsed by the governor assuming to act under such authority may presume that the indorsement is regular.⁵

X. TRUSTEES.—1. Duties and Rights.—The duties of trustees of a railroad mortgage depend upon the express terms of the instrument and the necessary implications arising from the relation of the parties and the condition of the trust property.⁶ If the mortgage is made by virtue of a statute which imposes duties upon the trustees, the parties are relieved from the necessity of providing therefor in the mortgage.⁷ The duties of trustees are ordinarily performed or expected to be performed by the corporation or its officers so long as prompt payment of the principal and interest is made. If a forfeiture occurs, either by non-payment of interest or principal, or both, the duties of the trustees become not only active and responsible, but critical and delicate. It is no longer a dry and naked trust, but the trustees are generally required to take possession of the mortgaged property and use it for the benefit of the bondholders.⁸

When it becomes the duty of a trustee to enforce the mort-

1. Bonner v. New Orleans, 2 Woods (U. S.) 135. See Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392.

2. State v. Cobb, 64 Ala. 127; Morton etc. R. Co. v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 590; Gilman v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 72 Ala. 566.

3. Levy v. Burgess, 6 Jones & S. (N. Y.) 431.

4. Florida Cent. R. Co. v. Schutte, 103 U. S. 118.

5. Young v. Montgomery etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 606. See Mercer Co. v. Hackett, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 83; Meyer v. Muscatine, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 384; Knox Co. v. Aspinwall, 21 How. (U. S.) 539.

6. Sturges v. Knapp, 31 Vt. 1, 55; Corn. v. Susquehanna R. Co., 122 Pa.

St. 306; Fidelity Ins. etc. Co. v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 32 W. Va. 344; 33 W. Va. 761; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 577.

7. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Portland etc. R. Co., 10 Fed. Rep. 604.

In Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut there are statutes which prescribe more or less fully the duty of the trustees under railroad mortgages. Such statutes, so far as they provide for the rights and duties of trustees of the corporation, relieve the parties from providing therefor in each mortgage executed. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Portland etc. R. Co., 6 Fed. Rep. 604.

8. Sturges v. Knapp, 31 Vt. 1, 55.

gage, he is required to act discreetly as well as judiciously in making the best use of the security for the protection of the beneficiaries;¹ and that duty is personal to the trustee and he cannot divest himself of its responsibility by delegating its performance to any other person or persons. Thus, where a trustee colludes with a railroad company in fraudulently disposing of a large amount of iron rails bought by the company for its use and embraced in the mortgage as after acquired property, the bondholders are entitled to an action to prevent such a diversion of the property.² So where a trustee allows applicants claiming to own a majority of the bonds, to institute proceedings in his name to foreclose the mortgage and carry on the proceedings to final judgment and sell the property thereunder, the trustee, paying no attention to the said proceedings, but leaving them wholly subject to the control and direction of such persons, will be liable to a holder of one of the said bonds for the damages sustained by him by reason of the trustee's neglect to faithfully perform and discharge the duties imposed upon him by the acceptance of the trust.³

And it is the plain duty of the trustees in the execution of their trust to make the proceeds of the sales of lands as available as possible for the extinction of the indebtedness of the corporation.⁴ So where they take possession under a mortgage given to secure bonds, they cannot deal in such bonds, because they are regarded as the trustees of the corporation as well as of the bondholders. Such dealings would be inconsistent with the duties which they owe to the corporation.⁵ The trustee, in executing his trust, may exercise his own discretion within the scope of his powers. If there are differences of opinion among the bondholders as to what their interests require, it is not improper that he should be

1. Weetjen v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.) 529; Kennebec etc. R. Co. v. Portland etc. R. Co., 59 Me. 47.

A mortgage trustee, after taking possession of the road and entering upon the performance of the active duties of his trust, cannot make a valid contract for the railroad corporation in which he is a stockholder and director. Ashuelot R. Co. v. Elliott, 57 N. H. 397.

2. Weetjen v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.) 529.

No cestui que trust, however, can allege that to be a breach of trust which has been done under his own sanction, whether by previous consent or subsequent ratification. Either concurrence in the act or acquiescence without original concurrence will release the trustees. Thus, where a plaintiff, the holder of bonds secured by a mortgage on the property of an elevated railroad company, objected to the conduct of the trustee who bought the property under foreclosure in conveying it to a new organization and sought to enforce his objections by suit against the trustee and the new organization, and stay the consummation of their scheme, and thereafter withdrew his action and agreed to join the new organization, it was held a ratification of the trustee's act which precluded the plaintiff from alleging them as a breach of trust. Butterfield v. Cowing, 112 N. Y. 486.

3. Merrill v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 24 Hun (N. Y.) 297. See Wilkinson v. Perry, 4 Russ. 272; Chalmer v. Bradley, 1 J. & W. 51; Wilson v. Towle, 36 N. H. 129; Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.) 318.

4. Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Huntington, 120 U. S. 160.

5. Ashuelot R. Co. v. Elliott, 57 N. H. 435.

governed by the voice of the majority acting in good faith and without collusion, if what they ask is not inconsistent with the provisions of his trust.¹ Whenever the trustees fail to perform their duties either from willfulness, indifference, or error of judgment, the bondholders who are aggrieved by their conduct may obtain relief from a court of equity. Thus, where they neglect to take possession of the mortgaged property after default of the corporation to pay the debts secured by the mortgage, the bondholders may maintain a bill to compel performance of this duty. It is no defense that a litigation may be necessary to ascertain what property is covered by the mortgage, or that a great burden and personal liability for any deed done and debts subsequently incurred will thereby be imposed upon them.²

The trustees represent the bondholders in all legal proceedings carried on by them affecting their trust to which they are not actual parties.³ It is not necessary where the bondholders secured by a railroad mortgage are numerous, to make all of them parties to the suit, or to make any of them parties if the trustees are parties. The rule of chancery pleading which allows some parties to sue and to be sued, in behalf of all where their right is the same and the number is so large as to render it difficult to bring them all before the court, is held to apply in suits for the foreclosure of railroad mortgages. If the trustees fail or refuse to act, any of the bondholders, for themselves, and in behalf of the rest, may step forward and put in motion the machinery of the law, making the trustees parties defendant.⁴

2. Notice to Mortgage Trustees.—The rule that notice to a trustee is notice to the cestui que trust applies to trustees under an ordinary mortgage made by a railroad company to secure the holders of bonds issued under it.⁵ Notice to the trustee of an

1. In two suits for the foreclosure of two mortgages of an insolvent railway, which had by amendments and cross-bills become practically consolidated, the two sets of trustees acting in harmony and good faith, and with the approbation of the holders of the bonds issued under each mortgage (but against the wishes and objections of persons holding a minority of one of the issues as collateral and contesting the priority of lien as to some of the property, and the legality of some of the issues of bonds) procured the entry of a decree which ordered a speedy sale of all the property covered by either or both mortgages as being for the best interest of all concerned, but left the conflicting claims as to the priority of lien, and the amount of bonds issued to be settled by subsequent decree or decrees. Held, that the trustees represented the bondholders in the foreclosure proceedings and that a decree making such a sale was right. First Nat. Bank v. Shedd, 121 U. S. 74; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 439.

2. First Nat. Bank Ins. Co. v. Salisbury, 130 Mass. 303.

3. Shaw v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 100 U. S. 605.

Where the legal right is vested in a trustee all actions at law which affect the trust must be brought in his name. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Duncan, 111 Pa. St. 352; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 354.

4. Campbell v. Railroad Co., 1 Wood (U. S.) 368; In re Chickering, 56 Vt. 82; Murdock v. Woodson, 2 Dill. (U. S.) 188.

5. Fidelity Ins. Co. v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 86 Va. 1; Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484; Western Min. etc. Co. v. Peytona Cannel Coal Co., 8 W. Va. 409.

The trustees of railroad mortgages equitable mortgage is notice to the bondholders and they therefore take their bonds subject to all the legal consequences of such a mortgage.¹ But notice to trustees, who take a conveyance for the mere purpose of upholding an estate, without having any previous connection with the title, is not always nor perhaps usually regarded as notice to the cestuis que trustent.² Nor does notice of defense to bonds, given to one of the trustees in the deed of trust which secures their payment, operate to destroy the bona fide holding of the bondholders under the deed of trust.³

3. Rights of Trustees in Possession.—When the legislature confers power upon a company to mortgage its road to secure the issue of its bonds, the trustees have an implied authority in case of default in the payment of the bonds, to use the property conveyed in a proper and beneficial manner. The road cannot be taken up and the materials sold to pay the mortgage, but the trustees are endowed with sufficient powers to discharge the duty, which the public have a right to demand of them, by keeping in repair, maintaining, and operating the road, and for this purpose they may use their own proper names or adopt any other convenient business name as any other individual or company may do, and they are under no necessity of adopting the name of the company to whose rights and property they have succeeded.⁴ If the mortgage gives them power to take possession of the road and use it in certain contingencies, and, at their discretion, on certain conditions, to sell it, they may do the former only, or both. The trustees need not confine themselves to either measure, but may first enter and then sell, using the road for the purpose of the trust until the sale is effected.⁵

When the trustees have taken possession for condition broken the owner of the equity may save the effect of the foreclosure by payment of what is due on the mortgage, but he cannot be let into possession unless he pays or provides security for the remainder of the debt secured by the mortgage not yet due, although the mortgage provides that the trustee shall not be entitled to possession till the condition is broken.⁶ But where a railroad company is in default in respect of interest on bonds, the

are appointed by law to act for the bondholders and must be considered in the light of agents; they act for those who lend their money on the security of the mortgage; they are charged with the duty of protecting the interests of the bondholders who are unconnected individuals, having no ready means of acting together except through the trustees. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 521.

1. Miller v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 36 Vt. 452.

2. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 521.

3. Johnson v. Thayer, 94 U. S. 631.

4. Palmer v. Forbes, 23 Ill. 318.

Where a railroad has been taken possession of under a mortgage, by trustees for bondholders, and is being operated by them, and where, by the mortgage, power is given to them to make repairs and additions to the road, they may be held for a performance of the duties imposed by the statute in relation to fences. Jones v. Seligman, 81 N. Y. 190; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 236. 5. Macon etc. R. Co. v. Georgia R. Co., 63 Ga. 103; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 378.

6. Wood v. Goodwin, 49 Me. 260.

principal of which does not mature for many years to come, and the trustee, as mortgagee, enters into possession of the railroad, he cannot hold possession of the road after being paid the amount of past due interest, and may be directed to surrender the possession of the road to the railway company.¹ So where the trustees obtain an absolute judgment of foreclosure and receive possession, they hold this absolute title in trust for the bondholders. And if the mortgagee thereupon brings suit in equity for the purpose of having their title declared invalid, and obtaining authority to sell the premises for the benefit of the cestui que trust, the mortgagors and their privies in estate cannot be heard to object that the mortgage was not properly sealed, or that on a true construction of its terms an absolute judgment of foreclosure could not have been entered.²

Where trustees are in possession and operating the road under a mortgage for the security of bondholders they are entitled, there being no debts for current expenses, to receive all profits earned by the road since the commencement of the suit.³ No right of set-off can accrue against them,⁴ but they may be held liable to the extent of funds received by them in operating the road, to keep the road, buildings and equipments in repair, furnish such new rolling stock as is necessary for the running expenses, and apply the balance to the payment of any damages arising from misfeasance in the management of the road, and after that to the mortgage, as the rights of the parties may require.⁵ They are also liable as common carriers and for injuries occasioned in the operation of the road to the extent of the income realized by them therefrom.⁶ Thus, when a mortgage is made by authority

1. Union Trust Co. v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 26 Fed. Rep. 485.

2. Haven v. Grand Junction R. etc. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 337. See Kennebec etc. R. Co. v. Portland etc. R. Co., 59 Me. 47.

3. Dow v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 124 U. S. 562; reversing 20 Fed. Rep. 768.

4. The Wallkill Valley Company having made default in the payment of the interest falling due on mortgage bonds issued by it, plaintiffs, the trustees under the mortgage, in pursuance of the terms thereof, entered into possession of the road and received the rents and tolls thereof for the benefit of the bondholders. An action was brought to recover money due to the road for transporting the mails received by the agent of the road, and which he refused to pay over, he claiming to be entitled to set-off against this amount a note given by the company to him while in their service before the default, and which had not matured at that time.

Held, that the trustees' right to receive the earnings of the road was absolute, and no offset thereof could be made. Murray v. Deyo, 10 Hun (N. Y.) 3.

5. Stratton v. European etc. R. Co., 76 Me. 269; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 277.

6. Wilkinson v. Fleming, 30 Ill. 353; Grand Tower Mfg. etc. Co. v. Ullman, 89 Ill. 244; Palmer v. Forbes, 23 Ill. 301. See Lamphear v. Buckingham, 33 Conn. 237; Smith v. Eastern R. Co., 124 Mass. 154; Union Trust Co. v. Cuppy, 26 Kan. 754; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 562; Rogers v. Wheeler, 43 N. Y. 598; Jones v. Seligman, 81 N. Y. 190; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 236. Ballow v. Fornam, 9 Allen (Mass.) 47; State v. Consolidation etc. R. Co., 67 Me. 479; Barter v. Wheeler, 49 N. H. 9; Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421.

Trust deeds usually contain provisions limiting the liability of trustees as such to the moneys received, and their personal liability to misfeasance or fraud. Hollister v. Stewart, 111 N. Y.

of the legislature and the trustees take possession under it for breach of condition, they are liable for damages by fire from the engines upon the railroad in their possession to the same extent as the corporation itself would have been if no mortgage had been made.¹ A claim for damages to the property by fire thus communicated by a locomotive while passing along its track at a time when the road was in the possession of and operated by such trustees, does not depend upon proof of malfeasance or negligence, but is an incident to the running of the road, and may be considered a part of the running expenses, and is therefore an equitable lien upon the funds liable in the hands of the trustees.² If they have no rolling stock and equipment and no means of purchasing any, they cannot be required to attempt to operate the road on their own account, but may lease it to a company owning a connecting line.³

4. Debts of Mortgage Trustees in Possession.—Trustees under a railroad mortgage have an inherent equitable right to be reimbursed all expenses which they reasonably incur in the execution of the trust. All such expenses are a lien upon the trust property prior to that of the bondholders, and the trustee will not be compelled to part with the property until such expenses are paid.⁴ Among the expenses which should be allowed him are reasonable fees for counsel employed by him in the proper discharge of his trust, the cost of litigation, and the expenses of taking care of, protecting, and repairing the property in his charge.⁵ But the trustees cannot bind the bondholders personally for the payment of these expenses, nor for the performance of contracts which extend beyond the duration of the trust.⁶

5. Compensation.—Trustees may have reasonable compensation for their services. The old English doctrine that a trustee could not be paid, is changed in the United States by statutes and judicial determinations.⁷ Services, for which a trustee is entitled to compensation, performed in executing the bonds, etc., are to be paid for in preference to the claims of bondholders secured by the deed.⁸

A decree in a suit for the foreclosure of a railroad mortgage fixing the compensation to be paid to the trustees under the 644; Stratton v. European etc. R. Co., 74 Me. 422.

1. Daniels v. Hart, 118 Mass. 543.

2. Stratton v. European etc. R. Co., 76 Me. 269; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 277.

3. Sturges v. Knapp, 31 Vt. 1.

4. McLane v. Placerville etc. R. Co., 66 Cal. 606; Morrison v. Morrison, 7 De G. M. & G. 214; Rensselaer etc. R. Co. v. Miller, 47 Vt. 146.

5. McLane v. Placerville etc. R. Co., 66 Cal. 606; Cowdrey v. Galveston etc. R. Co., 93 U. S. 352; 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 361.

6. Chaffee v. Rutland R. Co., 53 Vt. 345; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 212.

7. Gilman v. Des Moines etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 22; Northern Cent. R. Co. v. Keighler, 29 Md. 572; Tuttle v. Robinson, 33 N. H. 104; Greening v. Fox, 12 B. Mon. (Ky.) 187; McKnight v. Walsh, 23 N. J. Eq. 136; Meacham v. Stearns, 9 Paige (N. Y.) 398; Blake v. Pegram, 101 Mass 592; Barney v. Saunders, 16 How. 535. And see 2 Perry on Trusts, §§ 916-919.

8. Smith v. Washington City etc. R.

mortgage from the fund realized from the sale, is a final decree as to that matter, from which an appeal may be taken. And a holder of railroad bonds secured by mortgage under foreclosure has an interest in the amount of the trustee's compensation which entitles him to intervene and to contest it, and to appeal from an adverse decision.¹

6. Liability of Trustees for Negligence, etc.—Trustees under mortgage deeds where they are in the exercise of the franchises of the railroad company and running its trains as common carriers, for the time being are generally liable for the acts of those under their control in matters, either of contract or tort, to the extent of the income realized by them therefrom.²

7. Removal.—A court of equity has power to remove a trustee in an ex parte proceeding, when called on for the purpose of preserving a trust estate situated mainly within its jurisdiction, even where service on the absent trustee is impossible.³ The cestuis que trustent are entitled to the personal services of the trustee, and the courts, when the trust is accepted will not permit the trustee to abandon it. Thus when such trustee voluntarily removes to, and becomes a resident of a foreign country, he incapacitates himself from discharging the duties of his office, and thereby vacates the same. The courts will enjoin him from further prosecuting an action, or from acting as such trustee.⁴ Where the mortgage provides for the appointment of a successor to the trustee therein named, in case of his absence from the State, such a provision means a permanent and not a mere casual or temporary absence.⁵ A citizen of the United States, however, has a

Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 617; Nickerson v. Atchinson, 3 McCrary (U. S.) 455.

1. Williams v. Morgan, 111 U. S. 684; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 217.

2. Lamphear v. Buckingham, 33 Conn. 237; Smith v. Eastern R. Co., 124 Mass. 154; Daniels v. Hart, 118 Mass. 543; State v. Consolidated etc. R. Co., 67 Me. 479; Barter v. Wheeler, 49 N. H. 9; Ballou v. Fornam, 9 Allen (Mass.) 47; Union Trust Co. v. Cuppy, 26 Kan. 754; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 562; Jones v. Seligman, 81 N. Y. 190; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 236; Rogers v. Wheeler, 43 N. Y. 598; Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421.

3. Ketchum v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 532.

The fact that such absent trustee was within the territory of a country at war with the country in which the court was sitting was held not to detract from the power of the court to remove him and appoint another, but to furnish a good reason for its exercise. Ketchum v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 532.

But the holding of the court in Washington etc. R. Co. v. Alexandria etc. R. Co., 19 Gratt. (Va.) 592, is inconsistent with the foregoing. In this case, the mortgage provided that if the trustee should become incapable of acting, any court of record, of Alexandria County, upon the application of three-fifths of the holders of the bond upon notice of the president, or any director of the company may appoint a trustee. The trustees, president and directors went into the enemies lines and remained there during the war. An order of the court of Alexandria County substituting another person as trustee, and a sale by such substituted trustee was held void for want of proper notice. This decision, however, can hardly be regarded as authority.

4. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Hughes, 11 Hun (N. Y.) 130; Hughes v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 15 Jones & S. (N. Y.) 531.

5. Equitable Trust Co. v. Fisher, 106 Ill. 189.

right to hold real and personal property, absolutely, or in trust for his own benefit, or in trust for the benefit of himself and others in any State of the Union. State statutes disqualifying a non-resident to act as such trustee are inconsistent with the constitutional provision,¹ that, "the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens of the several States."²

When proceedings are taken for the removal of trustees, they cannot be allowed to prevent the prosecution so begun by becoming themselves plaintiffs against their assailants on the theory that such bondholders are improperly resisting a scheme to which a large majority of the bondholders have assented and which is for the best interest of all.³ It seems that the right of removal is not controlled by a majority of the bondholders. It can only be made upon sufficient grounds.⁴

8. Vacancies.—In the New England States there are statutes which provide for the choice of new trustees at stated times or upon the happening of vacancies.⁵ But it is not uncommon for the mode of supplying vacancies in the office of trustee to be defined by the trust instrument, and when it is done appointments are governed by the instrument and not by the general law.⁶ And the provisions for the appointment of a successor in the trust must be strictly followed to render the acts of the successor valid.⁷ Where the mortgage provides that in case of any vacancy in the board of trustees, the remaining trustees, or trustee, shall supply the vacancy by appointment from the bondholders, the selection of persons who have procured bonds for the purpose of qualifying themselves will not be held invalid if no fraud is intended.⁸ If the intention is apparent that the board shall always be kept full, no proceedings can be taken by the trustees or any of them while there is a vacancy in the board. So where a suit is already commenced it does not abate by the death of one of the trustees, but must be postponed until the vacancy is filled.⁹

1. U. S. Const., art. 4, § 2.

2. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 146.

3. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. McHenry, 9 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 235.

4. A person who is a trustee under two railroad mortgages will not be removed from his trusteeship on the application of a majority in interest of the bondholders under the first mortgage, on the ground that he declines to employ counsel for the foreclosure of the first mortgage selected by such majority, and to elect to act as trustee only under one of the mortgages, and to resign his trusteeship under the other, where it is not clear but that the action of the trustee was the result of sound judgment and not against the interest of any of the bondholders. Beadleson v. Knapp, 13 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 335.

5. Me. R. S. 1883, ch. 51, §§ 85-92; N. H., G. S. 1878, ch. 165; Vt. R. L. 1880, §§ 3453-3456; Mass. P. S., 1882, ch. 112, §§ 66-70. For original statute, see Acts 1857, ch. 178; R. L., P. S. 1882, ch. 178, § 11; Conn., G. S. 1888, §§ 3573-3580.

6. Macon etc. R. Co. v. Georgia R. Co., 63 Ga. 103; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290; Pillsbury v. Consolidated European R. Co., 69 Me. 394.

7. Equitable Trust Co. v. Fisher, 106 Ill. 189.

8. Richards v. Merrimac, etc. R. Co., 44 N. H. 127.

9. Shaw v. Norfolk Co. R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 162.

XI. PAYMENT OF BONDS.—Bonds or coupons are payable in gold coin when provisions have been made therefor.¹ But an undertaking to pay in gold under the legal tender acts must be either express or implied in the contract; the implication cannot be gathered from the mere expectation of the parties.²

The modification of the mortgage does not extinguish it, nor is its lien affected by the substitution of new bonds for the old ones.³ But where a railroad corporation issues bonds in order to fund its indebtedness and creditors surrender old securities and accept new ones, such acceptance, in the absence of an agreement governing the transaction, constitutes a novation of the debt and a payment of the former obligation.⁴

Outstanding equities cannot be adjusted in the foreclosure of a mortgage executed by a railroad company to secure the issue of a limited number of bonds. The company, the trustees, or a court of equity have no power to enlarge the mortgage so as to make it security for an additional sum.⁵ Nor can the debt secured be increased as against subsequent encumbrancers without their consent.⁶

1. Lost Bonds.—When bonds have been lost without any negligence on the part of the holder, a court of chancery has power to enforce the payment of them provided such relief can be given without derogating from any positive agreement or violating any equal or superior equity in other parties. The relief will be granted, however, upon the condition that full and secure indemnity shall be furnished against its being enforced in the hands of others.⁷ Indemnity should be furnished upon each

1. Pollard v. Pleasant Hill, 3 Dill. (U. S.) 195; Missouri v. Hayes, 50 Mo. 34; Trebilcock v. Wilson, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 687.

2. Knox v. Lee, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 457.

3. Gilbert v. Washington City etc. R. Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 586; Stevens v. Mid-Hants etc. R. Co., 8 Ch. 1064.

A railroad company having executed a mortgage to secure a limited number of bonds, afterwards executed another mortgage upon the same property to secure a larger number of bonds, which recited that the holders of the bonds secured by the original mortgage had agreed to surrender the same and receive in substitution therefor new bonds to be secured by the original mortgage as modified by the second mortgage. All the bonds secured by the first mortgage except twenty were exchanged for bonds secured by the second. Held, that the holders of such twenty bonds were not entitled to be paid out of the said proceeds of the mortgaged property in preference to the holders of the substituted bonds, but that they could not be prejudiced by the increase of the number of bonds secured by the second mortgage, but were entitled to the same proportion of the proceeds for the mortgaged property as if the second mortgage had not been executed. Ames v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 206.

Old mortgage bonds were surrendered by a creditor and new ones received for all excepting a small portion of the reduced indebtedness to him. No bond was issued for it because no bond was issued for so small a sum. Held, that the said creditor was entitled to a lien equal to that of other mortgage creditors for the whole amount due him. Blair v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 524.

4. Fidelity Ins. etc. R. Co., v. Shenandoah Valley R. Co., 86 Va. 1.

5. Vose v. Bronson, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 455.

6. Jones on Railroad Securities, § 322; Taylor v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 55 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 279.

7. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mis- payment of interest as well as upon the payment of the principal sum, and then if at any time before final payment it be made to appear that the indemnity for past payments was insufficient or had become insecure, the court might properly make it a condition precedent to the receipt of further payments that additional indemnity be given in respect to payments previously made. All risks may in this way be provided against, and if the bonds should be discovered or be presented by a bona fide holder, the obligations issued in their place will cease to be of value.¹

2. Subrogation.—The right of subrogation is independent of any contractual relations between the parties. It is a creature of equity and is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of justice. So when it is the duty of a mortgagor to protect junior incumbrancers against a prior lien, and he fails to do so and they pay the amount of such lien to prevent a forced sale of the property, they are entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the prior lienholder.² And bona fide purchasers of certificates issued by a receiver in excess of the amount ordered may, in equity, be subrogated to the rights of the holders of coupons which were paid for out of the money raised from the sale of such certificates.³ But there is no equitable subrogation where a right of substitution to the security is given by statute though the result may be similar.⁴

Statutes authorizing the indorsement of bonds of a railroad company by the governor create a lien not purely personal to the State, but holders of the bonds are entitled to be subrogated to such statutory lien on a bill filed by the trustees to foreclose the deed of trust, and are entitled to be first paid out of the proceeds Mississippi College, 47 Miss. 560; Miller v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 40 Vt. 399. See Lawrence v. Lawrence, 42 N. H. 109.

In New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Mississippi College, 47 Miss. 561, the court by Peyton, C. J., said: "The jurisdiction in the case of lost bonds originates in the doctrine of profert at law. It was anciently a rule of pleading in the common law courts, that they could give no remedy for a debt secured by bond, unless the creditor offered to produce his bond in court. This was called making profert of the bond. If the bond were lost, profert was impossible, and the remedy at law was gone. But the court of chancery, on proof that the bond was really lost, entertained jurisdiction to compel its re-execution and payment of the money secured. The rule requiring profert is now dispensed with at law, in the event of loss; but the change of practice at common law does not annul the jurisdiction in equity. Adams' Eq. 166, 167. It thus appears that a court of chancery not only has the power to enforce the payment of a lost bond upon sufficient indemnity given the obligor, but also to compel a re-execution of it."

1. Jones on Railroad Securities, § 327; Chesapeake etc. Canal Co. v. Blair, 45 Md. 102.

2. Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Dow, 120 U. S. 287.

3. Newbold v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 5 Bradw. (Ill.) 367.

4. See Jones on Railroad Securities, § 328.

Under an act of the legislature passed in 1869, certificates of indebtedness were authorized to be issued by a railroad company for funding interest due upon its bonds which were secured by a lien under an act of 1866, and which lien was extended by the latter act to cover these certificates of indebtedness. Held, that this was a mere substitution and not a payment, and that the lien of these certificates was superior to that of

of the sale of the property.¹ But where a State issues its own bonds to a railroad company to aid its construction, there can be no subrogation as against it in behalf of a holder to whom the company has transferred the bonds. Thus, where a State issues bonds to a railroad company, and land is conveyed to the State by the company as indemnity against losses on her bonds, the holders of such bonds cannot be subrogated against the State, and her grantees take the property discharged of any claim of the bondholders.² So a lien created by an act of the legislature providing for a loan of the bonds of the State to a railroad company stands as a security for the payment of the bonds in favor of the bona fide holders of the same.³ An act of the general assembly providing that all the property of a railroad company should stand pledged and mortgaged to the State for the payment of certain bonds issued by such company and guaranteed by the State also creates a statutory lien for the benefit of the bondholders as well as the State, which no subsequent statute can postpone.⁴

3. Redemption.—The right of redemption is derived from State statutes allowing redemption after foreclosure sales. These statutes are valid and binding in the Federal courts as well as those of the States,⁵ except when called upon to decree a foreclosure sale of the mortgage which covers as an entirety the rights, franchises, and road of the company existing in several States.⁶ So statutes of a State giving the right to redeem mortgaged lands sold under a decree, do not embrace the real estate of a railroad corporation mortgaged in connection with its franchises and the mortgage executed between 1866 and 1869. Gibbs v. Greenville etc. R. Co., 13 S. Car. 228; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 459.

1. Colt v. Barnes, 64 Ala. 108; Young v. Montgomery etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 606; Forrest v. Ledington, 68 Ala. 1; Morton v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 72 Ala. 566.

A State indorsed the bonds of a railroad company, upon the express condition that such indorsement should vest in the State the title of all property purchased with the proceeds of said bonds, and should give the State a first lien on all the property of the company; and that upon failure of the company to pay the interest or principal of the bonds, the governor should take possession of all its property and sell the same for the purpose of paying said bonds. Default was made by the railroad company in the payment of interest, and the governor took possession of its property, which he advertised for sale: Held, that at the suit of a holder of bonds of a subsequent issue, which the State had indorsed on the same terms as the first issue, but which indorsement the legislature had declared not binding on the State, the court would not restrain the sale of the road by the governor, nor take the possession thereof from the State, nor appoint a receiver therefor. Branch v. Macon etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 385.

2. Chamberlain v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 92 U. S. 299.

3. Tomkins v. Little Rock etc., R. Co., 21 Fed. Rep. 370; 15 Fed. Rep. 6; 18 Fed. Rep. 344; North Carolina R. Co. v. Drew, 3 Woods (U. S.) 692; Daniels v. Iearney, 102 U. S. 415; Clews v. New Brunswick etc. R. Co., 54 Ga. 215; Improvement Fund v. Jacksonville etc. R. Co., 6 Fla. 708.

4. Hand v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 12 S. Car. 314; Gibbes v. Greenville etc. R. Co., 13 S. Car. 288.

5. Brine v. Hartford F. Ins. Co., 96 U. S. 627.

6. Turner v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 8 Biss. (U. S.) 382.

personal property. Nor do they embrace the authority to sell the appurtenances and franchises when mortgaged as a whole.¹ Its real estate, personalty, and franchises so mortgaged should be sold as an entirety and without the right of redemption given by statute.²

The vested right of a mortgagor to redeem under the general law cannot be destroyed or impaired by a special statute enacting that the mortgage has been foreclosed, or that it shall be foreclosed in case the debt be not paid within one year from the passage of the act.³ But where a railroad company mortgages its road, franchises, and property to a State to secure the payment of a loan made by the State, and subsequently surrenders the property to the State, the right of redemption to which the mortgagor is entitled cannot be enforced by suit against the State in its own courts, for a State cannot be impleaded in its own courts, except by its own consent clearly manifested by an act of its legislature.⁴

XII. FORECLOSURE.—It is usual for railway mortgages to contain a clause authorizing the trustees, to whom they are made, either to enter into possession of the premises in case of default in payment of interest, or else to expose said premises to sale. Trustees may exercise either of these powers, if they see fit;⁵ or they may, if they please, waive all rights to exercise these powers, and have resort to the ordinary remedy of a bill of foreclosure.⁶

1. Default Must be Shown.—The allegations of a bill in foreclosure proceedings must show a default within the terms of the mortgage. If the mortgage or deed of trust provides that the bonds may be considered due by any bondholder on default of payment of interest, the mortgage may be foreclosed for the whole amount, for a failure to pay a single installment of interest.⁷ Such a stipulation in a railway or other mortgage is not regarded as a penalty, but simply as a provision for the earlier maturing of the deed upon the happening of certain contingen-

1. Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Thompson, 103 Ill. 187.

2. Hammock v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 105 U. S. 77; Turner v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 8 Biss. (U. S.) 380; Simons v. Taylor, 36 Fed. Rep. 682.

3. Ashuelt R. Co. v. Elliott, 52 N. H. 387.

4. Troy etc. R. Co. v. Com., 127 Mass. 43.

5. Bradley v. Chester Valley R. Co., 36 Pa. St. 141.

The trustees must, of course, conform strictly to the provisions of the mortgage as to the time, when and the mode in which they shall exercise these powers. Macon etc. R. Co. v. Georgia

R. Co., 63 Ga. 103; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 378.

These powers must also be exercised upon the mortgaged premises as a whole. The trustees cannot, by virtue of them, intervene to prevent the sale of particular parts or portions of the mortgaged premises under execution issued by junior incumbrancers. Goe v. Peacock, 14 Ohio St. 187.

6. Williamson v. New Auburn etc. R. Co., 1 Biss. (U. S.) 108.

7. McLean v. Pressley, 56 Ala. 211; Gates v. Boston etc. R. Co., 53 Conn. 333; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 143; Pope v. Durant, 26 Iowa 233; Holden v. Gilbert, 7 Paige (N. Y.) 208; Bushfield v.

cies.¹ In the absence of such a stipulation in the mortgage, however, the decree of foreclosure can direct the payment of such part of the debt only as is due at the time of the commencement of the action, or such part as may become due before the final hearing; and enforce such decree by directing the sale of such part only of the mortgage premises as may be necessary to pay that portion of the debt which has matured.²

2. Parties.—a. PLAINTIFFS.—In a bill to foreclose a railway mortgage, it is not necessary that all the bondholders should be joined as plaintiffs.³ The trustee to whom the mortgage has been executed is the proper party to file the bill.⁴ If the mortgage has been executed to all the stockholders by name, instead of a trustee, they must, of course, all join in the foreclosure proceedings.⁵

Where the trustee named in a railroad mortgage files a bill of foreclosure he need not join the various bondholders as parties

Meyer, 10 Ohio St. 334; Hesie v. Gray, 71 Pa. St. 198; Richard v. Holmes, 59 U. S. 143.

1 Stillwell v. Adams, 29 Ark. 346; Gratten v. Wiggins, 23 Cal. 16; Jones v. Lawrence, 18 Ga. 277; Morgenstern v. Klees, 30 Ill. 422; Smart v. McKay, 16 Ind. 45; Taber v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 15 Ind. 459; Hunt v. Harding, 11 Ind. 245; Cecil v. Dynes, 2 Ind. 266; Greenman v. Pattison, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 465; Hough v. Doyle, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 300; Andrews v. Jones, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 440; Mobray v. Leckie, 42 Md. 474; Schooley v. Romain, 31 Md. 575; Salmon v. Clagett, 3 Bland Ch. (Md.) 125; Magruder v. Eggleston, 41 Miss. 284; Goodman v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 2 Disney (Ohio) 176; Baker v. Lehman, Wright (Ohio) 522; Richards v. Holmes, 59 U. S. 143.

2. Mussina v. Bartlett, 8 Port. (Ala.) 284; Greenman v. Pattison, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 465; Adam v. Essex, 1 Bibb (Ky.) 149; 4 Am. Dec. 623; Cauffman v. Sayre, 2 B. Mon. (Ky.) 202; Magruder v. Eggleston, 41 Miss. 284; James v. Fisk, 17 Miss. 144; 47 Am. Dec. 111.

3. Shaw v. Norfolk Co. R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 162; Chicago etc. R. L. Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408.

4. Savannah etc. R. Co. v. Lancaster, 62 Ala. 555; Boston etc. Air Line R. Co. v. Coffin, 50 Conn. 150; Hale v. Nashua & L. R. Co., 60 N. H. 333; Hays v. Gallon Gas Light etc. Co., 29 Ohio St. 230; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372; Knapp v. Railroad Co., 20 Wall. (U. S.) 117; Bardstown etc. R. Co. v. Metcalf, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 109.

In Hays v. Gallon Gas Light etc. Co., 29 Ohio St. 335, the court by Boynton, J., said: "The trustee in such case is usually, if not always, selected and appointed by the company for the convenience and benefit of itself, and of those who may become the owners of its obligations. One mortgage to the trustee is all that is required, no matter how numerous the holders of the notes or bonds secured thereby. He is the representative of the common interests of all who may invest in the security. The right of the owner of the debt secured by the mortgage to be represented by him gives additional value to the security, and facilitates the collection of the debt upon its maturity, and consequently enables the company the more readily and easily to realize and obtain the loan desired. It is not infrequently the case, especially in the business of great corporations, that the holders of the bonds are so numerous that it would be not merely inconvenient, but utterly impracticable, to bring them all before the court in a proceeding to foreclose the equity of redemption. Doubtless this is one of the considerations that gave rise to the rule held in Coe v. The Columbus, Piqua and Indiana R. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372, that the bondholders, when numerous, were, in an action for foreclosure, neither necessary nor proper parties."

5. Nashville etc. R. Co. v. Orr, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 471.

defendant.¹ They will all be at any rate bound by the decree.² Where in such case the trustee is also a bondholder he will be bound by the decree in his capacity of bondholder.³ If there be two trustees, one of a mortgage upon the whole road, the other of a mortgage upon only a portion of it, they may unite in filing the foreclosure bill, and such bill will not be deemed multifarious.⁴

A single bondholder cannot file a bill of foreclosure in behalf of himself and all the other bondholders,⁵ unless the trustee to whom the mortgage has been executed refuses or neglects to act, or has assumed a position prejudicial to the bondholders; or unless there be a vacancy in the office of trustee.⁶ A single bondholder may insist upon a foreclosure, though the mortgage provides for a foreclosure by the trustees upon the request of a majority of the bondholders.⁷ If the suit is brought by one bondholder in behalf of all, it is unnecessary for the rest to become formal parties to the suit.⁸ The proceedings being instituted for all of them, will, of course, enure to the benefit of all.⁹ The property conveyed to the trustee cannot, however, be reached by a single bondholder in a suit to enforce his individual claim. He must proceed against the trustee, not for his own separate benefit, but as a bondholder and on behalf of the bondholders as a class.¹⁰

The trustees or bondholders of a mortgage which is declared to be for the purpose of securing the payment of the interest as well as the principal of certain bonds may file a bill for its foreclosure after the default in the payment of either principal or interest

1. Shaw v. Norfolk Co. R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 162.

2. McElrath v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 68 Pa. St. 37; Board of Supervisors etc. v. Mineral Point R. Co., 24 Wis. 93; Campbell v. Railroad Co., 1 Wood (U. S.) 308.

3. Corcoran v. Chesapeake etc. Canal Co., 94 U. S. 741.

4. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Talman, 15 Ala. N. S. 472.

5. March v. Eastern R. Co., 40 N. H. 548; Mason v. New York etc. R. Co., 52 Me. 82; Carpenter v. Canal Co., 35 Ohio St. 307; Com. v. Susquehanna etc. R. Co., 122 Pa. St. 306; Brooks v. Vermont Central R. Co., 14 Blackf. (U. S.) 463; Mercantile Trust Co. v. LaMoille Valley R. Co., 16 Blackf. (U. S.) 324.

6. Campbell v. Railroad Co., 1 Wood (U. S.) 368; Susquehanna R. etc. Co. v. Blatchford, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 172; Galveston R. Co. v. Cowdley, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 479; Knapp v. Troy etc. R. Co., 20 Wall. (U. S.) 117; Webb v. Vermont Central R. Co., 20 Blackf. (U. S.) 218; Davies v. New York Con- cert Co., 41 Hun (N. Y.) 497; Weet-

jen v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.) 265; Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 88 N. Y. 52; Greaves v. Gouge, 69 N. Y. 154; Com. v. Susquehanna etc. R. Co., 122 Pa. St. 306; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S. 47; Credit Co. v. Arkansas Cent. R. Co., 5 McCreary (U. S.) 23.

7. Alexander v. Central R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 487; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Central R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 532; Sage v. Central R., 93 U. S. 412.

8. March v. Eastern R. Co., 40 N. H. 548; Mason v. York etc. R. Co., 52 Me. 82; Wilmer v. Atlanta etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 447; Campbell v. Railroad Co., 1 Woods (U. S.) 368.

9. Fisk v. New York Water Proof Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 16; Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117; Martin v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 7 Bush (Ky.) 116.

10. Com. v. Susquehanna etc. R. Co., 122 Pa. St. 306; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Johnson, 54 Pa. St. 127; Bradley v. Chester Valley R. Co., 36 Pa. St. 141; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Woelpper, 64 Pa. St. 366; Hackensack Water Co. v. Dekay, 36 N. J. Eq. 548.

continued for a period named.¹ So in the absence of any special provision therefor, the mortgage as security for the interest as well as principal may be foreclosed on default in payment of the interest.²

A mortgage may contain a clause making a demand for interest upon arrears a necessary precedent to foreclosure.³ If the usual place of payment is not at the place stipulated in the mortgage and the mortgagee knows that the mortgagor has the money ready at the usual place and requires payment at the place so designated in the mortgage, he should notify the mortgagor to this effect, and if he does not and he refuses to receive payment at the usual place except on conditions, he waives the right of payment elsewhere and cannot on a default so made treat the whole debt as due.⁴

While a cause is pending in the court of chancery to foreclose a mortgage brought by a part of the bondholders in behalf of themselves and all others, bondholders secured by the same mortgage who might choose to come into the suit on petition may, in the discretion of the court, be made parties. And this is so although the cause had passed to the supreme court and at the time the petition was brought had been pending for several terms in the court of chancery, having been remanded with a mandate affirming the decree below, and the bonds of the original orators paid off.⁵ So where a person holds the bonds of a railroad company as collateral security, his right to institute foreclosure proceedings is as great as though he held them by an absolute title.⁶ If, however, the amount advanced upon the bonds be less than their face value, the assignor ought to be made a party to the foreclosure proceedings.⁷

1. Central Trust Co. v. New York City R. Co., 33 Hun (N. Y.) 513; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S.

47.
2. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 221; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 259; Central Trust Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 846.

3. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S. 47; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 427.

A deed of trust, to secure certain coupon bonds, with interest coupons payable "upon presentation and surrender" as they become due, after providing that the interest shall be paid punctually when due, and on default, at any time "after demand" for any period exceeding six months, the trustee shall sell the trust property on demand in writing of the bondholders, contains the following clause: "It is further agreed . . . in the event of any default in the payment of interest . . . which shall continue for a period of six months . . . the whole principal . . . shall become due," provided a majority of the bondholders shall make a written demand upon the trustee. Held, that a default in the payment of interest can be predicated only upon refusal to pay after a demand has been made, and such default must continue for a period exceeding six months before a right of action accrues. Potomac Mfg. Co. v. Evans, 84 Va. 717.

4. Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Union Mill Plaster Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 286; Jones on Railroad Securities, § 383.

5. Smith v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 56 Vt. 82; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 646.

6. McCurdy's Appeal, 65 Pa. St. 290; Peck v. New York etc. R. Co., 59 How Pr. (N. Y.) 419.

7. Ackerson v. Long Branch etc. R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. 542.

b. DEFENDANTS.—Where property and franchises of a railroad company have been conveyed by trust deed or mortgage to trustees for the benefit of the bondholders, the bondholders are not generally necessary parties to a bill brought to foreclose the mortgage.¹ Nor need individual stockholders be joined.² They cannot even intervene in the cause unless indeed it be shown that the directors of the company are not properly protecting their interests.³

Whether the United States can compulsorily be made a defendant to a foreclosure bill, where it holds a lien or mortgage on the property in respect to which the foreclosure is sought, is not well settled.⁴ And where a State has indorsed bonds, the fact that it cannot be sued will alone excuse its joinder as a party defendant.⁵

If the bonds be indorsed by another corporation, that corporation should undoubtedly be a party to the cause.⁶ But ordinarily it is not necessary nor proper to make prior mortgagees parties to a foreclosure proceeding. Junior mortgagees must sell property subject to the lien of the prior mortgage.⁷ Nor is

1. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Vose v. Bronson, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 452; Shaw v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 100 U. S. 605; Wetmore v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 466; Shaw v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 562; In re Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Hughes (U. S.) 320.

2. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392.

3. Bronson v. La Crosse etc. R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 383; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Forbes v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 323; Des Moines Gas Co. v. West, 50 Iowa 16; Alexander v. Searcy, 81 Ga. 536; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 239.

Neither the minority stockholders nor one who is not a stockholder at the time of the alleged illegal transactions can maintain a bill in defense of the foreclosure of a railroad mortgage alleging that the affairs of the corporation have been mismanaged in the interest of the principal stockholder, and that the bonds are void for usury in their negotiation, where no demand has been made upon the directors or stockholders to make such defense, the only excuse for not making the demand being that the officers are in collusion with the plaintiff. Alexander v. Searcy, 81 Ga. 536; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 239.

4. Meier v. Kansas etc. R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 378; Elliott v. Van Voorst, 3 Wall. Jr. (C. C.) 299.

5. Davis v. Gray, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 203; Young v. Montgomery etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 606.

6. Searles v. Jacksonville etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 261.

7. Payne v. Hook, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 432; Jerome v. McCarter, 94 U. S. 734; Young v. Montgomery etc. R. Co., 3 Woods (U. S.) 606.

There are a great number of authorities which hold that it is both improper and unnecessary to join a prior incumbrancer or mortgagee in foreclosure proceedings, and that even if made parties the decree can have no effect whatever upon their rights. Rose v. Page, 2 Sum. 471; Shepherd v. Gwennet, 3 Swanst. 151; Richards v. Cooper, 5 Beav. 304; Richards v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 1 Hughes (U. S.) 28; Jerome v. McCarter, 94 U. S. 734; Weed v. Beebe, 21 Vt. 499; Strobe v. Downer, 13 Wis. 10; Walker v. Jarvis, 16 Wis. 28; Wakeman v. Grover, 4 Paige (N. Y.) 23; Eagle F. Co. v. Lant, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 637; Lewis v. Smith, 9 N. Y. 502; Kay v. Whittaker, 44 N. Y. 565; Hancock v. Hancock, 22 N. Y. 268; Brundage v. Domestic etc. Missionary Soc., 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 204; Post v. Markall, 3 Bland (Md.) 495; Hall v. Hall, 11 Tex. 547; Tome v. Building etc. Co., 34 Md. 12; Bogey v. Shute, 4 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 174; Young v. R. Co., 3 Am. L. J. R. (N. S.) 91; Hagen v. Walker, 14 How. (U. S.) 37; Summers v. Bromley, 28

it necessary to make purchasers pendente lite parties. But subsequent encumbrancers must usually be made parties.¹ So all Mich. 125; Wurcherer v. Hewitt, 10 Mich. 453; Comstock v. Comstock, 24 Mich. 39; Patterson v. Shaw, 6 Md. 377; Wright v. Bundy, 11 Ind. 398; Murphy v. Farwell, 9 Wis. 102; Payne v. Hoole, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 432; Straight v. Harris, 14 Wis. 509; Dawson v. Danbury Bank, 15 Mich. 489; Frost v. Koon, 3 N. Y. 428; Pridgen v. Andrews, 7 Tex. 451; Jones on Ry. Sec., Sect. 443.

But on the other hand other authorities may be found authorizing their joinder and declaring that a decree will bind their rights. Finley v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 304; Bishop of Winchester v. Beaver, 3 Ves. 315; Haines v. Beach, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 459; Bishop of Winchester v. Paine, 11 Ves. 108; Mondey v. Mondey, 1 V. & B. 223; Cookes v. Sherman, 2 Freeman 14; Ensworth v. Lambert, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 605; McGowan v. Yerkes, 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 450; Standish v. Daw, 21 Iowa 363; Heimstreet v. Winnie, 10 Iowa 430; Morris v. Miller, 45 N. Y. 708. See Woods v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 525, and note.

It is in some cases necessary to join the prior mortgagees as parties, as, for example, where the amount due them is not fixed, or the lien of their mortgage is disputed. Without their formal joinder no decree can be entered in such case which will be conclusive upon their rights. Richards v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 1 Hughes 28; Young v. Montgomery etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 606; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Marshall, 85 Pa. St. 187; Sutherland v. Lake Superior Ship Canal R. etc. Co., 1 Cent. L. J. 127; Bronson v. La Crosse etc. R. Co., 2 Black (U. S.) 524; Woods v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 525; Miltenberger v. Logansport R. Co., 106 U. S. 286; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 464.

In some cases it appears that it is proper to make a prior mortgagee a party when it sought to create a receivership for the benefit, not only of the party filing the bill, but for all parties concerned. Miltenberger v. Logansport R. Co., 106 U. S. 286; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 464.

The various courts differ widely upon the point in the text. It is generally conceded that the joinder of the junior incumbrancer is necessary to enable the foreclosure sale to pass a title free of all incumbrances. But as to how this result is to be attained there is a great diversity of opinion. Some authorities say that the court may decree such a sale, even though the prior incumbrancer may object, throwing him back to his claim on the fund. Clark v. Prentice, 3 Dana 468; Train v. Hunt, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 580; Persons v. Alsip, 2 Md. 67; Sutherland v. Lake Canal Co., 9 Nat. Bank. Reg. 208; Braward v. Hoeg, 15 Fla. 370; Walter v. Riehl, 38 Md. 211.

Others indicate that it is necessary to obtain the assent of the prior incumbrancer. Miller v. Finn, 1 Neb. 254; Rucks v. Taylor, 49 Miss. 552; Ducker v. Belt, 3 Md. Ch. 13; Vanderkemp v. Shelton, 11 Paige (N. Y.) 28. Such is certainly the law in England. Langton v. Langton, 7 De G. M. & G. 30; Wickerden v. Rayson, 6 De G. M. & G. 219; Parker v. Fuller, 1 R. & M. 656. And under this view of the case a prior mortgagee may obtain an injunction against a sale discharging all incumbrances, to which he has not given his consent. Rucks v. Taylor, 49 Miss. 552. A joinder of the prior mortgagee is sometimes made to ascertain the amount due on his mortgage so that the purchaser at the sale may know what burden he takes subject to. Richards v. Chesapeake and Ohio R. Co., 1 Hughes 28; or else to test the validity or priority of such mortgage, which is perfectly proper. Dawson v. Danbury Bank, 15 Mich. 439.

It may be said that in general, the disposition of courts of equity at the present day is towards recognizing the validity of the joinder of the first incumbrancer, in order that all the various rights may be at once considered and adjudicated. See Thomas on Mortgages in N. Y. 243-247. If the prior incumbrancer be improperly joined in the opinion of the court, his name will be stricken off, on application of either party without prejudice to complainant. Corning v. Smith, 6 N. Y. 82; Banning v. Bradford, 21 Minn. 308; Wilkinson v. Daniels, 1 Greene (Iowa) 179.

1. Youngman v. Elmira etc. R. Co., 65 Pa. St. 278.

subsequent judgment creditors must be joined.¹ Persons belonging to a class represented in a suit, such as mortgage creditors, represented by the trustees of the mortgage are regarded as quasi parties, and may be heard on petition and motion.²

3. Defences.—No other or further defences are allowed in an action to foreclose a railroad mortgage given to secure negotiable instruments than would be allowed in an action on such negotiable instruments.³ Persons taking bonds with a full knowledge that they are subject to bonds issued under a prior mortgage cannot deny the validity of the mortgage which they have assumed.⁴ So where a railroad company succeeds, through various mesne conveyances, to the franchises of another railroad company which is mortgaged, it cannot, in a proceeding to foreclose such mortgage, deny the incorporation of the mortgagor company.⁵ In a bill to foreclose, at the instance of a mortgagee who has acquired all the claims against a corporation and has been allowed by the receiver to enter into the possession of the corporate property and assets, the receiver cannot set up, as a defence, an agreement with the complainant by which the receiver was to hold the road for the benefit of the complainant, and the latter was to pay all the receiver's costs and expenses, which he has not done, such agreement not being intended to secure to the receiver the right to set off his fees and costs against the amount due on the mortgage.⁶

4. Decree.—The usual decree in foreclosure proceedings fixes the amount of principal and interest, and then stipulates a certain time within which said amount is to be paid. In case of failure to pay within the specified time, the mortgaged premises are ordered to be sold to satisfy the debt.⁷ But so long as a doubt exists as to the character and extent of the mortgage lien, a court of equity will not expose the mortgaged premises for sale under it if the interest be capable of being reduced to a certainty.⁸ A decree fixing the amount of principal and interest due, and stipulating the time within which it is to be paid, is final.⁹

1. Searles v. Jacksonville, Pensacola & Mobile R. R. Co., 2 Woods 261; Sang v. Brewster, 31 N. Y. 218. If he be not joined, the foreclosure proceeding are as to him void. Bronson v. La Crosse etc. R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 283; Kay v. Whittaker, 44 N. Y. 565; Howard v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 7 Biss. (U. S.) 80.

2. Benjamin v. Elmira etc. R. Co., 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 441; Howard v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 7 Biss. (U. S.) 23; Bronson v. La Crosse etc. R. Co., 2 Wall. (U. S.) 283; Railroad Co. v. James, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 750.

3. Kenicott v. Wayne Co., 16 Wall. (U. S.) 452.

4. Bronson v. La Crosse etc. R. Co.,

2 Wall. (U. S.) 283. See Jerome v. McCarter, 94 U. S. 734; Minnesota Co. v. St. Paul Co., 6 Wall. (U. S.) 722.

5. Beckman v. Hudson River etc. R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 3.

6. Ryan v. Anglesea R. Co. (N. J.), 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 51.

7. Blossom v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 1 Wall. (U. S.) 655; Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. Soutter, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 440; Hinckley v. Gilman etc. R. Co., 94 U. S. 467; Washington etc. R. Co. v. Bradley, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 575.

8. Sutherland v. Lake Superior etc. R. Co., 1 Cent. L. J. 127; Jerome v. McCarter, 94 U. S. 734.

9. Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. Soutter, and may be modified or set aside,—1, by appeal within the time allowed; 2, by bill of review filed within the time allowed for an appeal, charging error apparent upon the record; and 3, by original bill charging fraud or newly discovered evidence.¹

In foreclosure proceedings, decrees are often entered by consent. These are not to be regarded as decrees. Properly speaking they are rather agreements of the parties to which judicial sanction is given.² Courts exercise the right of correcting them so long as they remain unexecuted.³

When the property of a railroad company lies in two States, the courts of one of the States may, nevertheless, decree a sale of the whole property.⁴ Where, however, such corporation is incorporated by both States, the property in the State, the courts of which have not ordered the sale, will be sold subject to the existing liens thereon.⁵

There must be due and proper notice of the sale under the decree of foreclosure.⁶ If there be any material error in the notice, this will avoid the sale. Thus, where the notice recited that more bonds were outstanding than was actually the case, this was held a fatal error.⁷ But a foreclosure decree is not void as to persons actually parties by reason of the fact that a necessary party plaintiff or defendant has not been joined. It is, on the contrary, valid and binding upon the parties to the cause.⁸ So when a decree of foreclosure has once been entered, the defendants cannot set up any irregularity in the mortgage.⁹

² Wall. (U. S.) 440; Blossom v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 1 Wall. (U. S.) 655; Hinckley v. Gilman etc. R. Co., 94 U. S. 467; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S. 47; Grant v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 106 U. S. 429; First Nat. Bank v. Shedd, 121 U. S. 74; Forgay v. Conrad, 6 How. (U. S.) 201; Ray v. Law, 3 Cranch (U. S.) 179.

A decree directing a sale of trust property and that the proceeds be brought into court, is a final decree. Washington etc. R. Co. v. Bradley, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 575.

An order affecting a substantial right made in proceedings in relation to the appointment and removal of receivers is a final order and from which there may be an appeal. Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Sloan, 31 Ohio St. 1.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage on a railroad, a decree fixing an allowance to the trustee for his compensation is a final decree and appealable. Williams v. Morgan, 111 U. S. 684.

A decree which does not fix the amount due, nor specify the price of the property to be sold in the event of non-payment, is not a final decree from which an appeal lies. North Carolina R. Co. v. Swasey, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 405; Bostwick v. Brinkerhoff, 106 U. S. 3.

¹ Huntington etc. R. Co. v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 16 Fed. Rep. 906; Duncan v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 4 Hughes (U. S.) 125.

² Vermont etc. R. Co. v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 50 Vt. 500; 14 Am. Ry. Cas. 497.

³ Wadhams v. Gay, 73 Ill. 415; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Central R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 533; Anderson v. Jacksonville etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 268. Edgerton v. Nuse, 2 Hill Eq. (S. Car.) 51.

⁴ Muller v. Dows, 94 U. S. 444; Wilmer v. Atlanta etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 447; McElrath v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 55 Pa. St. 189.

⁵ Hand v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 12 S. Car. 314.

⁶ Kennebec etc. R. Co. v. Portland etc. R. Co., 59 Me. 9.

⁷ James v. Milwaukee etc. Co., 6 Wall. (U. S.) 752.

⁸ Board of Supervisors v. Mineral Point R. Co., 24 Wis. 92.

⁹ Haven v. Grand Junction R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 337.

The decree should name an upset price large enough to cover costs and all allowances made by the court, receivers' certificates and interest, liens prior to the bonds, amounts diverted from the earnings and all undetermined claims which will be settled before the confirmation and sale.¹ If the amount of the claims allowed depends upon a long course of litigation, it is proper for the court to order the property sold subject to such claims as finally adjudicated.²

XIII. RECEIVERS' CERTIFICATES.—1. Generally.—Courts of equity are frequently required, in foreclosure proceedings of railroad mortgages, to take possession of the property for its preservation. This is done through the agency of receivers. The receiver of a railroad, appointed to run it so as to keep it alive as a going concern, may be authorized by the court to cover all necessary expenses for repair and equipment. In analogy to the right of a mortgagee in possession to supply things necessary to put a house upon the estate in a condition to be rented or to be occupied, the receiver of a railroad may supply it with rolling stock or with other things essential to the operating of the road.³ In order to provide funds to meet these expenses, the court may authorize the receiver to borrow money, and make the sum so borrowed a lien on the railroad property superior to that of the first mortgage.⁴ And the priority of such lien is not affected by the fact that the suit in which the receiver was appointed was not brought by the bondholders or their trustee.⁵ The court may authorize the receiver to issue negotiable certificates of indebtedness which shall constitute the first lien on the property, all proceeds of which shall be redeemable within a limited time, or when the property is sold by the court.⁶

As the mortgagees themselves in most instances ask or expressly assent to the making of the orders by the court authorizing receivers to borrow money and make their obligations a first lien upon the property, they are precluded from afterwards claiming any priority over the lien thus

1. Blair v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 25 Fed. Rep. 232.

2. Turner v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 8 Biss. (U. S.) 380.

3. Jones on Corp. Bonds and Mortg., § 541; McLane v. Placerville etc. R. Co., 66 Cal. 606; Woodruff v. Erie R. Co., 93 N. Y. 601; Union Trust Co. v. Illinois etc. R. Co., 117 U. S. 434; Wallace v. Loomis, 97 U. S. 146; Hale v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 60 N. H. 333; Gilbert v. Washington City etc. R. Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 586.

4. Stanton v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 2 Woods (U. S.) 506.

Statutes.—In some of the States provision is made by statute authorizing receivers to borrow money and create liens upon the property. See Vt. Gen. Sts. 1870, p. 924; Acts 1866, No. 41, p. 53; N. J., 1 R. S. 1877, p. 196, § 106; Laws 1874, p. 11; Ohio Laws 1872, p. 31, §§ 1, 3, 4.

5. Union Trust Co. v. Illinois Midland R. Co., 117 U. S. 434; Wallace v. Loomis, 97 U. S. 146.

6. Taylor v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 14 Phila. (Pa.) 451; Central Trust Co. v. Tappan (N. Y.) 6 Ry. & Corp. L. Journ. 489.

The issuing of certificates cannot be authorized except after full notice to the parties interested and ample opportunity for them to be heard. And created for the purpose of preserving the mortgage property.¹ But a court cannot give certificates priority over liens already existing, without the consent of the parties holding such liens.² So debts contracted by receivers under a consent order are not binding upon bondholders who refuse their consent.³

2. Negotiability of Receivers' Certificates.—Receivers' certificates are not ordinarily negotiable.⁴ They are wanting in nearly every they should never be issued in excess of the urgent present need. Jones on Corp. Bonds and Mort., § 549; Meyer v. Johnson, 53 Ala. 237; 64 Ala. 603; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584; Hoover v. Montclair etc. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 7.

1. Jerome v. McCarter, 94 U. S. 734; Kennedy v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 2 Dill. (U. S.) 448; Cowbley v. Railroad Co., 1 Wood (U. S.) 331; Cooper v. Montclair etc. R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 4; Monson v. Monson, 7 DeG. M. & G. 214; Stanton v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 506; Bright v. North, 2 Phila. (Pa.) 216; In re Regent's Canal Iron Works, L. R., 3 Ch. Div. 411; In re N. S. Rolling Stock Co., 55 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 286; Galveston R. Co. v. Conden, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 59.

But in some instances, such consent has not been obtained and the order giving such priority has been made notwithstanding the opposition of prior incumbrances. Myers v. Johnson, 53 Ala. 123. This course has, however, been severely criticised in two able articles on "Claims and Equities Affecting the Priority of Railroad Mortgages," in 12 Am. L. Rev. 660, and 13 Am. L. Rev. 40. It may be doubted whether it is justified.

Waiver of Priority.—If the bondholders or trustees petition that the receiver, whose appointment they have obtained, may be allowed to borrow money on the credit of the property, there can be no question that they waive the priority secured to them by their mortgage in favor of such debts. So if the petition be made by the receiver himself, and the bondholders are mortgage trustees or parties to the proceedings, and before the court, and make no objection to the creating of such debts and liens upon the property by the receiver, they cannot afterwards object to according priority to the lien so created. Humphreys v. Allen, 101 Ill. 490; Metropolitan Trust Co. v. Tonawanda etc. R. Co., 103 N. Y. 345.

Where a plaintiff has procured the appointment of a receiver with power to control and operate the mortgage road, he may not object to the depreciation of his security by expenses incurred for that purpose, but he may properly seek to have excluded any previous ones. Metropolitan Trust Co. v. Tonawanda etc. R. Co., 103 N. Y. 235; Vatable v. New York etc. R. Co., 96 N. Y. 49; Hand v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 17 S. Car. 219.

When Parties Are Estopped to Deny Priority.—When persons act as receivers and managers and issue negotiable obligations as such, with the knowledge and assent of all the parties interested in the subject-matter of the receivership as against the bondholders of such obligations, such parties are estopped to deny that they are just what they purport to be, namely, the obligations of receivers and managers, and as such, entitled to the priority of payment from the assets of the trust. Langdon v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 53 Vt. 228.

2. Hervey v. Illinois Midland R. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 169. See Union Trust Co. v. Illinois etc. R. Co., 117 U. S. 434; Raht v. Attrill, 106 N. Y. 423.

3. Snow v. Winslow, 54 Iowa 200. A receiver was authorized by consent order without a reference, to construct an extension of a railway at a cost not to exceed an amount stated to be paid for out of surplus income, and the extension to stand pledged for such payment. The extension was built at a greater cost and then sold as a part of the entire road. It was held that the receiver acted only as agent to the consenting bondholders, and that a bondholder who had refused his consent to the extension and whose interest was expressly excepted in the consent order, was entitled to his full share of the whole proceeds of the sale under the mortgage without reference to the lien for building the extension. Hand v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 17 S. Car. 169.

4. Union Trust Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 513; Turner v.

essential quality of negotiable commercial paper, as they are not payable unconditionally out of any fund. Whether they are payable in full or only pro rata, depends upon the fact of the sufficiency of the fund under the control of the court.¹ And the fact that they are issued in excess of the amount ordered by the court,² or disposed of in a manner not in accordance with the order of the court authorizing their issue, will render them invalid.³

Certificates issued without consideration are not entitled to be paid out of any funds in the hands of the receiver, either at the suit of the payee or holder for value.⁴ Thus, where an order of the court appointing a receiver of a railroad company authorizes him to borrow such sums of money as are necessary for the further construction, equipment and final completion of the road, and to issue his certificates therefor, and that such certificates should constitute a first lien on the road, certificates issued for material contracted to be delivered but which in fact is never delivered, are void.⁵

XIV. RELATIVE PRIORITIES OF RAILROAD MORTGAGES AND EQUITIES ARISING SUBSEQUENTLY.—1. Generally.—When a railway mortgage is foreclosed, questions frequently arise as to the priority of claims between employees, contractors, material men, and those holding under the mortgage. A fixed legal right under a mortgage cannot, as a general rule, be impaired by any equities subsequently arising, except only the equities growing out of claims for operating expenses. This class of preferred debts includes taxes on the property;⁶ the wages of officers and employes of every Peoria etc. R. Co., 95 Ill. 134; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 348; Central Nat. Bank v. Hazzard, 30 Fed. Rep. 484.

Where a receiver, acting under a special order of the court, issued a certificate and placed it in the hands of the payee named therein for negotiation and sale, and the same subsequently came into the hands of the petitioner, who purchased it of a third party for 40 per cent. of its par value, and with notice of the order under which it was issued, held, that he took it subject to all equities between the receiver and the payee, and that, as it appeared that the latter had never accounted to the receiver for the certificate or its proceeds, the petitioner was not entitled to payment. The negotiation and sale of certificates is a trust personal to the receiver; he cannot delegate it to another and relieve himself from responsibility. Union Trust Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 513.

1. Turner v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 95 Ill. 134; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 348.

2. Thus, where a receiver of a railroad was by order of court authorized to issue receivers' certificates to a certain amount, the proceeds to be used in operating the road, to be paid out of the receipts of the road, an issue of certificates in excess of the amount ordered, was beyond the power of the receiver, and as to such excess, the certificates were void even in the hands of an innocent holder and constituted no claim upon the money in the hands of the receiver. Newbold v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 5 Bradw. (Ill.) 367.

3. Stanton v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 31 Fed. Rep. 585.

4. Turner v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 95 Ill. 134; Union Trust Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 513.

5. Bank of Montreal v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 48 Iowa 518; 7 Cent. L. J. 267.

6. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 778.

The amount due for a State tax upon the franchise of a corporation which is grade employed in operating the road,¹ the cost of material and supplies furnished, which are necessary to put the road and its rolling stock in a safe condition for the transportation of persons and property, and to keep them so;² and the balances due to in the hands of a receiver takes priority of claim upon the funds in the receiver's hands over claims of the bondholders of the corporation. Central Trust Co. v. New York City etc. R. Co., 110 N. Y. 250.

Such a lien is prior to all other liens whatsoever except the lien of judicial costs. Georgia v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 434.

In Stevens v. New York etc. R. Co., 13 Blatchf. (U. S.) 107, the court by Blackford, J., said: "There is no sound principle upon which the property of a person or a corporation which is placed in the hands of a receiver by a court of justice for the purposes of a suit pending in such court can be regarded as being thereby rendered exempt from the operation of the tax laws of the government within whose jurisdiction such property is situated."

Where a statute makes a lien for the taxes assessed upon the personal property of a railroad company only from and after the tax books are delivered to the collector, and the company assessed executes a valid mortgage upon the property before the tax books are received by the collector, the person holding under such a mortgage will hold the property free from any lien on the same for the taxes. Binkert v. Wabash R. Co., 98 Ill. 205; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 113.

1. Douglas v. Cline, 12 Bush (Ky.) 603; Skiddy v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Hughes (U. S.) 320; Duncan v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 19 Am. Ry. Rep. 286.

In New Jersey, claims of the employes of a railroad due at the time it is placed in the hands of a receiver, are, by statute, made a lien upon all unencumbered personal effects and all moneys which may be transferred to the receiver at the time of his entering upon his duties. But the statute limits the payments to not more than two months' wages. Feb. 12, Acts 1874, p. 12; 2 Rev. Stats. 1873, p. 943, § 161.

Why the Rule Recognized in Equity.—Mr. Jones on Corp. Bonds and Mortg's, § 580, says: "The most reasonable ground upon which a chancery court can order a receiver to pay the wages of employes of a railroad company due at the time the road is placed in the receiver's hands, is that the mortgagees, in asking for the appointment of a receiver, are seeking an equitable remedy and having only an equitable claim to the income in the receiver's hands, the court in granting their remedy may impose such conditions as may seem just."

Attorneys' Salary.—Where the annual salary of the attorney of a railroad falls due only a short time before the road is placed in the hands of a receiver, his claim against the company is entitled to priority over that of mortgage bondholders. But a claim of an attorney against a railroad, for fees earned a year and a half before the appointment of a receiver, is not entitled to any preference. Blair v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 521.

Secretary of Company.—Under a statute providing that in a foreclosure sale of a railroad the court granting the foreclosure decree should provide in such decree or otherwise that the purchaser should "fully pay all sums due and owing by such foreclosed railroad company to any servant or employe of such company," it was held that the terms "servant" and "employe" did not include a secretary of such railroad company. Wells v. Southern Minnesota R. Co., 1 Fed. Rep. 270.

2. Fosdick v. Southwestern Car Co., 99 U. S. 256; Addison v. Lewis, 75 Va. 701; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 702; Huidekoper v. Hinckley Locomotive Works, 99 U. S. 389; Parkhurst v. Northern Central R. Co., 19 Md. 472; Hale v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 60 N. H. 333; In re Kelly, 5 Fed. Rep. 486.

The earlier cases hold a different doctrine. Duncan v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 542; Durham v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 1 Wall. (U. S.) 254; Galveston v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459; Tommey v. Spartansburgh etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 429; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 632.

In Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235, where this doctrine is enunciated with great clearness, and where this distinction is recognized between railroad mortgages and others, the court says: "The income out of which the mortgagee is to be paid is the net income obtained by deducting from the gross earnings what is required for necessary operating and managing expenses, proper equipment, and useful improvements. Every railroad mortgagee in accepting his security impliedly agrees that the current debts made in the ordinary course of business shall be paid from the current receipts before he has any claim upon the income."

Persons furnishing to the company, car springs and spirals and supplies for the machinery department, which the receiver after his appointment continued to use, have superior equities to those of the mortgagees for such supplies. Hale v. Frost, 99 U. S. 389. See Williamson v. Washington etc. R. Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 624; Taylor v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 377.

In Mississippi, it is provided that no mortgage of the income, future earnings, or rolling stock of a railroad corporation shall be valid against debts contracted in carrying on the business of the corporation. R. Code, 1880, § 1033.

Claims for Damages to Passengers or Property.—Those claiming damages for negligence in operating a railway have never been held as having any privilege on the income of the property, but there are many cases to the effect that no such privilege or equity exists. So a person who has recovered judgment against a receiver of a railway for injuries received by him while traveling as a passenger, or for damages to his property, is not entitled to payment out of the earnings of the road or the proceeds of its sale in preference to first mortgage bondholders. Davenport v. Receivers, 2 Wood (U. S.) 519; Hiles v. Case, 9 Biss. (U. S.) 549; Easton v. Houston etc. R. Co., 38 Fed. Rep. 12; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 778; Central Trust Co. v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 71; 33 Fed. Rep. 566; Central Trust Co. v. East Tennessee etc. R. Co., 30 Fed. Rep. 895; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 450; Olyphant v. St. Louis etc. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 729; Hervey v. Illinois etc. R. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 169.

A person may recover for such injuries and be entitled to payment out of the earnings of the road in preference to first mortgage bondholders, if it is so provided by the order of the court placing the road in the possession of the receivers. Davenport v. Receivers, 2 Wood (U. S.) 519.

In Gibbes v. Greenville etc. R. Co., 15 S. Car. 518; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 723, it was held that passengers over a railroad and the employees of a company when entitled to damages for injuries received while the road was operated by a receiver should be paid out of the fund in court realized from the earnings of the road during the receivership in preference to mortgage or other debts existing at the time of action brought.

Money Advanced.—Where a railway company was in financial trouble and its employees threatened to strike, and certain of its bondholders at the request of its officers, advanced money to pay the wages of such employees on the agreement that the money was to be refunded out of the first net earnings of the company, and afterwards the road went into the hands of a receiver—held, that the bondholders were entitled to be paid such advances in preference to the claims of the mortgagees. Atkins v. Petersburg R. Co., 3 Hughes (U. S.) 307.

But where a bank loaned money to a railway company it was held on a petition of intervention filed in a suit for the foreclosure of the mortgages of the company, asking payment of the loan from the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property, that the bank occupied the position of a general creditor only, and the claim was not entitled to priority, provided the evidence did not show any fraud and deception and the misapplication of current income. Penn v. Calhoun, 121 U. S. 351.

Rent of Cars.—Although when a receiver is appointed pending foreclosure of a railroad mortgage, and both before and during such receivership improvements and equipments are made from current receipts, the income during the receivership may be charged with the claim for rent of cars, and if that is insufficient, the claim may be charged upon the proceeds of the property; yet the proceeds will not, in the absence of special circumstances, be for such rent and for claims for lease of cars, etc., which accrued more than six months prior to the appointment of the receiver. Thomas v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 103 Ill. 187; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 381.

Mechanics' Liens.—A mechanic's lien, filed against a railroad, will take precedence in point of lien, to any other railroads and lines of transportation on account of passenger tickets and freight charges.¹

mortgage executed upon the premises after the beginning of the work for which the lien is filed. Taylor v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 570; Railroad Co. v. Meyer, 100 U. S. 457; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Union R. Co., 108 U. S. 702; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 626; Fox v. Seal, 22 Wall. (U. S.) 424; Neilson v. Iowa R. Co., 44 Iowa 71; Shamokin etc. R. Co. v. Malone, 85 Pa. St. 25; Tyrone etc. R. Co. v. Jones, 79 Pa. St. 60; Coe v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 105; Botsford v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 41 Conn. 454; Seitz v. Union Pac. R. Co., 16 Kan. 133; Boston & Co. v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 263. See MECHANICS' LIEN, vol 15, p. 86.

Rails and other articles which become affixed to and a part of a railroad covered by a prior mortgage will be held by the lien of such mortgage in favor of bona fide creditors as against any contract between the furnisher of the property and the railroad company, containing a stipulation that the title to the property shall not pass till the property is paid for, and reserving to the vendor the right to remove the property. Porter v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 122 U. S. 267; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 495.

In some cases, however, it has been held that a mechanics' lien for work done subsequent to a pre-existing and duly recorded mortgage, has priority of lien. Brooks v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 101 U. S. 443; Meyer v. Hornby, 101 U. S. 728.

In other cases, it is held that a mechanic's lien upon a completed railway, is not paramount to the lien of a mortgage executed after the commencement and before the completion of the road. Bear v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 48 Iowa 619; Tommey v. Spartanburg etc. Co., 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 632.

A mechanic's lien filed before the appointment of a receiver will also take precedence of receiver's certificates, notwithstanding the fact that such certificates are by the decree of the court made a first lien upon the road. Snow v. Winslow, 54 Iowa 200.

A lien filed within six months of last delivery has priority to trust created in interim and is not affected by agreement that contractor should have lien on rails till payment, and that possession of company should be possession of contractor. Chicago & Alton R. Co. v. Union Rolling Mill Co., 108 U. S. 702; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 626.

1. Easton v. Houston etc. R. Co., 38 Fed. Rep. 12; Miltenberger v. Logansport R. Co., 106 U. S. 286; 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 778. See also Metropolitan Trust Co. v. Tonawanda R. Co., 41 N. Y. 80; Douglas v. Cline, 12 Bush (Ky.) 608; Jesup v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Woods (U. S.) 441; Ketchum v. Pacific R. Co., 3 Cent. L. J. 337.

In Miltenberger v. Railroad Co., 106 U. S. 286; 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140, the court by BLATCHFORD, J., said: "It is easy to see that the payment of unpaid debts for operating expenses accrued within ninety days, due by a railroad company suddenly deprived of the control of its property due to operatives in its employ, whose cessation from work simultaneously is to be depreciated in the interest both of the property and of the public, and the payment of limited amounts due to other connecting lines of road for materials and repairs, and for unpaid ticket and freight balances, the outcome of indispensable business relations, where a stoppage of the continuance of such business relations would be a probable result in the case of non-payment, the general consequence involving largely also the interests and accommodation of travel and traffic, may well place such payments in the category of payments to preserve the mortgaged property, in a large sense, by maintaining the good will and integrity of the enterprise, and entitle them to be made a first lien."

The rule charging operating expenses of a railroad, debts due from it to connecting lines growing out of an interchange of business, debts due for the occupation of leased lines, and generally, debts created under special circumstances which make an equity in favor of the unsecured debtor, upon the gross income of the road before a fund arises for the payment of mortgage interest, is not applicable to a fund realized from a sale of the road under foreclosure of a mortgage; and, as a general rule, unsecured debts of the company cannot, in such case, take precedence over

The rule that claims upon the gross earnings of a railroad company for supplies and labor have priority over all liens under mortgages, applies only to a debt for operating expenses,¹ and not to a debt for original construction.² Claims for advances made for the original construction of a railroad will be postponed in equity to the lien of the mortgage bondholders, unless such advances were made in consequence of the requests, promises, and acts of all the bondholders.³ When a court of chancery appoints a receiver of railroad property it may impose such terms in reference to the payment from the income during the receivership of outstanding debts for labor, supplies, equipment, or permanent improvement of the mortgage property as may under the circumstances of the particular case appear to be reasonable.⁴ If no such provision be made in the order appointing the receiver, a court of equity may, at any time during the progress of the cause, direct the payment.⁵ But so long as the road remains in the possession of the company the mortgagees of the mortgage covering the earnings of the road have no lien upon such earnings. When debts secured by prior and express liens, in the distribution of the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 125 U. S. 658; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 16.

1. Porter v. Pittsburgh Bessemer Steel Co., 120 U. S. 649; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 472; aff'd on new hearing, 122 U. S. 267; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 495; Cowdry v. Galveston etc. R. Co., 93 U. S. 352; Wood v. Guarantee Trust etc. Co., 128 U. S. 416.

There are, however, exceptions to this rule in cases where the bondholders have obtained a decree of foreclosure and instead of making a sale of the property enter into an arrangement among themselves with the consent of all parties in interest by which the entire property is transferred by a lease to another company under an arrangement whereby the rental is to go to the bondholders and the surplus to the lessor company without making any provision for the payment of the floating debts of the company and the holders of unsecured notes given for the construction of the company's road intervene after the foreclosure decree and pray that these debts be established as equitable liens upon the property paramount to the lien of the mortgage. Under these circumstances the court will grant relief. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 21 Fed. Rep. 264.

2. Hervey v. Illinois etc. R. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 169; Hiles v. Case, 14 Fed.

Rep. 141; Central Trust Co. v. East Tennessee etc. R. Co., 30 Fed. Rep. 895; Central Trust Co. v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 871; Olyphant v. St. Louis Ore etc. Co., 28 Fed. Rep. 729; Dexterville Mfg. Co. v. Receiver, 4 Fed. Rep. 873; In re Kelly, 5 Fed. Rep. 846; Davenport v. Receivers, 2 Woods (U. S.) 519. Compare Hale v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 60 N. H. 333.

In Reyburn v. Consumers' Gas etc. Co., 29 Fed. Rep. 564, the court by BLDGGETT, J., said: "The material for the building or construction of the works, in theory, at least, is supposed to be paid for out of the capital stock, or bonds secured by the mortgage upon the property. It is from this source that companies of this character raise the money with which to construct their works, and they depend upon the earnings or income after the works are constructed to pay for their operating labor and supplies, and pay interest upon their bonds, and dividends to their shareholders."

3. In re Kelly, 5 Fed. Rep. 846.

4. Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235; Union Trust Co. v. Souther, 107 U. S. 591; Miltenerberger v. Logansport R. Co., 106 U. S. 286; Thomas v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 381; Addison v. Lewis, 75 Va. 701; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 702.

5. Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235; Poland v. Lamoille Valley R. Co., 52 Vt. 144; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 777.

the mortgagor is suffered after default to remain in possession, and incurs debts in operating the road, the mortgagees cannot take possession of the property through receivers and assert their mortgage in preference to debts for expenses of operating the road, especially if the mortgage itself provides that the mortgagor shall remain in possession and apply the income of the road to the payment of current expenses.¹

While the property is under the administration of the court, only the income is subject to the payment of unsecured claims which the court may deem entitled to an equitable priority.² If the income is not sufficient to meet all demands for operating expenses, claims against a railroad corporation cannot be declared liens against the property, unless it be shown that the current earnings of the corporation have been used for the benefit of the mortgaged creditors. If current earnings are thus used for the benefit of mortgaged creditors, before current expenses are paid, the mortgage security is chargeable in equity with the restoration of the fund which has been thus improperly applied to their use.³ While ordinarily the power to pay claims for operating

1. Williamson v. Washington City etc. R. Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 624; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 498; Turner v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 8 Biss. (U. S.) 315; Lehigh etc. R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 34 N. J. Eq. 88.

A mortgage provided among other things that, until default, and while the mortgagors remained in possession and operated the roads and took the income, as aforesaid, they should apply the income "to the payment of the current expenses of the road . . . or dispose of the same for the lawful uses" of the mortgagors. The net earnings were in part expended in making a new road to the enhancement of the value of the mortgaged property; and the chattels of the several roads were lessened in value by use in the making of income. Held, that, as by the terms of the mortgages the mortgagors were bound to pay the current expenses from the current earnings, the mortgagees took their security burdened with that trust; that the mortgagees, out of possession, had no right to earnings superior to the mortgagors; and that the receivers should be ordered to apply the net income first to the discharge of debts that were for such expenses. Poland v. Lamaille Valley R. Co., 52 Vt. 144; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 410.

2. Taylor v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 377; Hand v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 17 S. Car. 495; 12 Am.

& Eng. R. Cas. 534; Blair v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 25 Fed. Rep. 232.

3. U. S. Trust Co. v. New York, 25 Fed. Rep. 800; Birmingham v. Bowen, 111 U. S. 776; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 308; Fosdick v. Shall, 99 U. S. 253; Huidekoper v. Hinckley Locomotive Works, 99 U. S. 258; Addison v. Lewis, 75 Va. 701; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 702.

If the earnings are diverted to the payment of interest on receivers' certificates made payable out of the corpus of the mortgaged property or to the payment of costs, or allowances in the foreclosure suit, or to any other matter not properly operating expenses, they must be returned to the current earnings fund, and applied to the payment of claims made payable therefrom. Taylor v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 377; Fosdick v. Schall, 99 U. S. 235; Burnham v. Bowen, 111 U. S. 783; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 308; Union Trust Co. v. Illinois Midland R. Co., 117 U. S. 434; Miltenberger v. Logansport R. Co., 106 U. S. 286, 311; Union Trust Co. v. Morrison, 125 U. S. 591; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 125 U. S. 658; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 16; Wood v. Guarantee Trust etc. Co., 128 U. S. 416; Easton v. Houston etc. R. Co., 38 Fed. Rep. 12; U. S. Trust Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 25 Fed. Rep. 797, 800; Calhoun v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 9 Biss. (U. S.) 330; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 778.

expenses in preference to other equitable liens is confined to the appropriation of the income of the receivership, cases may arise that will require the use of the proceeds of the sale of the mortgaged property in the same way; as when, before the appointment of the receiver, or in the administration of the cause, income applicable to the payment of old debts for current expenses is taken and used to make permanent improvements in the fixed property, or to buy additional equipment.¹ If there is likely to be a long delay before the claims for operating expenses can be met from the income, the court may authorize the receiver to issue certificates of indebtedness to the holders of such claims, bearing interest, and made payable out of funds applicable to such purpose, at such dates as may afterwards be fixed by the receivers.²

The courts in favoring creditors who have furnished labor and supplies to the extent of allowing them an equitable lien, take as a measure by which to determine the time within which this class of claim shall be protected, the usual term of credit upon which these companies purchase their supplies and do their business.³ In fixing a time within which such claims will be allowed

This doctrine of restoration of the funds rests not upon any ground of a supposed lien of the supply or labor creditor upon the earnings of the road, but upon the idea that the officers of the company are, in a sense, trustees of these earnings for the benefit of the different claims of creditors, and if they give to one class of creditors that which properly belonged to another, the court may, upon an adjustment of accounts, so use the income in its hands as to restore, if practicable, the parties to their original rights. Addison v. Lewis, 75 Va. 701; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 702.

CHIEF JUSTICE WAITE, in the case of Fosdick v. Schall, 9 Otto 251, thus states the doctrine: "The income out of which the mortgagee is to be paid is the net income obtained by deducting from the gross earnings what is required for necessary operating and managing expenses, proper equipment, and useful improvements. Every railroad mortgagee, in accepting his security, impliedly agrees that the current debts made in the ordinary course of business shall be paid from the current receipts before he has any claim upon the income. If, for the convenience of the moment, something is taken from what may not improperly be called the current debt fund, and put into that which belongs to the mortgage creditors, it certainly is not inequitable for the court, when asked by the mortgagees to take possession of the future income and hold it for their benefit, to require, as a condition of such an order, that what is due from the earnings to the current debt shall be paid by the court from the future current receipts before anything derived from that source goes to the mortgagees."

1. Thomas v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 281; Miltenberger v. Logansport R. Co., 106 U. S. 386; U. S. Trust Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 25 Fed. Rep. 797; Easton v. Houston etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 12.

2. Jones on Cor. & Mortg. Bonds, § 607; Taylor v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 377.

3. Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 778; Dow v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 260; Scott v. Clinton etc. R. Co., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 739; In re Kelly, 5 Fed. Rep. 846; Blair v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 471; Reyburn v. Consumers' Gas, Fuel, and Light Co., 29 Fed. Rep. 561.

Continuous Contracts.—Material-men furnished supplies for repairing the railroad from time to time, under continuous verbal contract made, after default in the payment of the companies bonded interest, and which was not and ordered paid, the Federal courts adopt by analogy the rule of the State statutes in relation to liens on railroads for work done and supplies and material furnished.¹

2. Equities Arising Under Contracts.—Contracts made by a railroad company after the execution of a mortgage and without the consent of the mortgagees and without a positive statute which enters into the mortgage contract, constitute no lien upon the property or franchise of the corporation superior to that of the mortgage. Such contracts are not binding upon the receivers, and they may properly refuse to appropriate the use of the property and the earnings of the road to the payment of debts thus previously contracted.² But if the receiver ratifies a contract previously made with the company the rights under such contract are not affected by the foreclosure proceedings.³

If a railroad company executes a mortgage on its road, franchises, etc., and afterwards occupies land for its uses the landowner's claim for damages for the land thus taken is paramount to a mortgage given before the damages had been assessed.⁴

terminated until the appointment of a receiver, more than two years after the first supplies were furnished. Held that, notwithstanding the statute of frauds, the material-men were, under the circumstances, entitled to judgment for the balance due them, and to a lien superior to that of the mortgage creditors, for the amount due on the earnings of the road. Blair v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 769. See also U. S. Trust Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 25 Fed. Rep. 797.

1. Turner v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 8 Biss. (U. S.) 315.

2. Ellis v. Boston etc. R. Co., 117 Mass. 17; Hale v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 60 N. H. 333; Newport etc. Bridge Co. v. Douglass, 12 Bush (Ky.) 673; In re Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Hughes (U. S.) 320. See Tommey v. Sparkenburg etc. R. Co., 4 Hughes (U. S.) 640; Elmira Steel Rolling Mills Co. v. Erie R. Co., 26 N. J. Eq. 284; Denniston v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 4 Biss. (U. S.) 414.

A receiver cannot be compelled to perform a contract for transportation made by the company before the execution of the mortgage of its property unless the contract is a lien upon the property and the mortgagee had notice of it. Southern Express Co. v. Western North Carolina R. Co., 99 U. S. 191.

3. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Atlantic etc. Tel. Co., 7 Biss. (U. S.) 367.

4. Western Pa. R. Co. v. Johnson, 59 Pa. St. 290.

The claim of a lot owner for damages resulting from the construction and maintenance on the street in front of his lot of a railroad mounted on trestle-work, is paramount to the claims of the railroad company's mortgage creditors. And this paramount right is not waived by allowing the railroad company to construct its railroad on the street without first making compensation or giving security according to the constitutional requirement. Mercantile Trust Co. v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 29 Fed. Rep. 72.

The constitution of a State provided that the municipal and other corporations vested with the privilege of taking private property for public use shall make just compensation therefor or give security for such compensation. A railroad company executed a mortgage upon its property, and subsequently entered upon land without paying therefor or giving security for the land taken. The landowner recovered a judgment for damages against the railroad company which the company failed to satisfy. The company became insolvent and its property and franchises were sold under the mortgage. Held, that the sale did not divest the estate of the owner of land so taken but that he could recover the amount of the judgment for damages against the purchaser at such foreclosure sale. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v.

XV. REORGANIZATION.—1. Generally.—The stockholders and unsecured creditors of a railroad corporation frequently have the power to embarrass and delay proceedings for the foreclosure of the mortgage and sale of the property. Difficulties arising in this way may be obviated by schemes of reorganization.¹ A scheme of reorganization is an arrangement between a company and its creditors, with provisions for settling and defining their rights. To be wholly effective, the reorganization must either be made with the consent of all the original bondholders, or it must be made after a foreclosure which has cut off all the liens of such bondholders upon the property, because it cannot be enforced by a majority, however large, upon a minority, except by virtue of a statute existing prior to the charter of the corporation.²

Harvey, 107 Pa. St. 319; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Cooper, 105 Pa. St. 239.

A railroad company, unable to agree with the owners of lands for right of way, gave a bond and took possession for railroad purposes. Subsequently the railroad and property were sold under proceedings of foreclosure upon a mortgage. Held, that in a proceeding by scire facias against the purchasers to compel the payment of land damages, that the purchaser took a clear title, and that the owner of the land was thrown back upon the bond for his said damages. Fries v. Southern Pa. R. etc. Co., 85 Pa. St. 73.

1. Sage v. Central R. Co., 99 U. S. 334; McIntosh v. Flint etc. R. Co., 34 Fed. Rep. 582; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 340.

2. Hollister v. Stewart, 111 N. Y. 644; Canada So. R. Co. v. Gebhard 109 U. S. 527.

Plaintiff, who was a member of the board of managers of a navigation company, held certain mortgage bonds issued by it and guaranteed by defendant, a railroad company. Owing to the financial embarrassment of the defendant, it was proposed to effect a financial reorganization of defendant's indebtedness. The board of managers of the navigation company accordingly recommended its bondholders to accept a proposition by which the outstanding obligations were to be deposited with a board of "reconstruction trustees," and new obligations were to be issued instead. Plaintiff, as one of the managers of the navigation company, opposed the scheme, and never deposited any of the bonds held by him, or agreed to receive others in exchange therefor, but the circulars and communications issued by the board of trustees contained no notice of plaintiff's opposition. Held, that plaintiff's failure to notify the holders of the other obligations that he was opposed to the scheme did not stop him from enforcing the defendant's liability under its guaranty. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Love, 125 Pa. St. 488; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 618.

The Consolidated Railroad Company of Vermont was formed by the organization of the bondholders of the Vermont Central Railroad Company after the foreclosure of the mortgage on the road, and the appointment of a receiver in a proceeding in the State court of Vermont. The holder of a large amount of the bonds, which were not surrendered into the reorganization, filed a bill in the circuit court of the United States to compel the Consolidated Railroad Company to account with him for the railroad property, to which the company pleaded that the road was in the hands of a receiver appointed by and accountable to the chancery court of the State having jurisdiction. Held, on demurrer, that the plea was not sufficient. Brooks v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 211; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 276.

A scheme of reorganization which contemplates the substitution of three mortgages for a first mortgage and some other obligations of the company, one of the mortgages being made a first lien on all the property of the company, is not binding upon the first mortgage bondholder who has never assented thereto, and the trustees under the first mortgage cannot divert to the new securities funds pledged by the first mortgage. Hollister v. Stewart, 111 N. Y. 644; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 599.

A railroad company having become

2. Priority of Mortgages Over Preferred Stock.—The lien of a mortgage is prior to that of a preferred stockholder.¹ The holder of preferred stock has no priority of lien to mortgages on the property of the company, unless some specific agreement to that effect be shown.² So the vendors of a railroad who receive preferred stock in the purchasing company as the price thereof, are not entitled to be paid out of proceeds of said road at a foreclosure sale in preference to mortgages created thereon subsequent to the purchase.³ What mortgage interest may be paid by the company before payment of the interest on its preferred stock must depend on the construction to be given the conditions attached to such stock. Whatever rights attach to the preferred stock when issued continue to adhere to it. If at the time of issue only interest on then existing mortgages was to be paid before interest on preferred stock, subsequent mortgage indebtedness will not affect that stock nor the legal right of its holders to payment of interest before payment of interest on mortgages given for such subsequent indebtedness; otherwise, however, if it should be held that interest on all mortgages of the corporations, whether for indebtedness prior or subsequent to the issue of such preferred stock, was first to be paid from its earnings.⁴

The holder of preferred stock is entitled to have the full amount of his accruing profits before anything is divided among the ordinary shareholders. If the profits accrued when the dividend is declared are insufficient to furnish the stipulated amount, the deficiency is a charge upon subsequent profits. It is not, however, a guaranty in any other sense than that preferred stockholders should be paid their dividends out of the profits of the company. The profits of the company is the only fund to which they can look. If there are no dividends there are no profits.⁵

insolvent and unable to pay its debts, certain of the bondholders and other creditors agreed that they would purchase the road, etc., at any sale that might be made thereof, and would organize a new company; that the new company should execute a first mortgage on the road to the amount of the then existing first mortgage on the road to secure the bonds of the new company; the bonds under the old mortgage to be exchanged for the new bonds. The subscribers to the agreement agreed to surrender their bonds, with all the coupons thereon, whenever they should be required so to do, and to receive in lieu thereof the new bonds. The plaintiff, a bondholder, signed this agreement, and received notice to surrender his bonds, but failed to do so until after the purchase of the road and the formation of the new company. Held, that not having complied with the terms of the contract, he had no right to claim any benefits under it, or to insist on the delivery of new bonds. Carpenter v. Catlin, 44 Barb. (N. Y.) 75.

1. Branch v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 481.

2. King v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 9 Biss. (U. S.) 278.

3. Branch v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 481.

4. Thompson v. Erie R. Co., 42 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 68; 11 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 188; Chaffee v. Rutland R. Co., 55 Vt. 110.

5. McGregor v. Home Ins. Co., 33 N. J. Eq. 181; Lehigh Coal etc. Co. v. Central R. Co., 34 N. J. Eq. 88; Lockhart v. Van Alstyne, 31 Mich. 76; Chaffee v. Rutland R. Co., 55 Vt. 110; Taft v. Hartford etc. R. Co., 8 R. I. 310; Stevens v. South Devon R. Co., 13 Beav. 48; 9 Hare 313; Matthews v.

Unless the directors declare a dividend preferred stockholders are not entitled as of right to dividends payable out of the net profits accruing in any particular year.¹ Whether a dividend should be declared is a matter of discretion with the directors.² See OFFICERS AND AGENTS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 107.

XVI. FORECLOSURE SALES.—Where a railroad company mortgages its road to secure the interest and principal of bonds, the whole may be sold on default of the payment of interest before the principal is due.³ The failure to pay any installment of interest will authorize a foreclosure and sale of the entire road, though the mortgage contains no provision making the whole debt due upon the default in payment of such installment, and no provision authorizing a sale of the whole property covered by the Great Northern R. Co., 5 Jur., N. S. 284; In re London India Rubber Co., 37 L. J. Ch. 235; Crawford v. North Eastern R. Co., 3 Jur., N. S. 1093; 3 Kay & J. 723; Smith v. Cork etc. R. Co., Ir. R., 3 Eq. 356; aff'd, Ir. R., 5 Eq. 65. In this case the prior cases are reviewed at length. Henry v. Great Northern R. Co., 1 De G. & J. 606, per Lord Cranworth, Lord Chancellor; 4 K. & J. 1.

Dividends or preferred stock can only be paid out of the profits; and this is so even when the stock is issued under a guaranty that a dividend of a certain sum shall be paid annually. McGregor v. Home Ins. Co., 33 N. J. Eq. 181.

1. Jones on Corp. Bonds & Mortg., § 631; Warren v. King, 108 U. S. 389; New York etc. R. Co. v. Nickals, 119 U. S. 296. See Williston v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 13 Allen (Mass.) 400; Barnard v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 7 Allen (Mass.) 512; Chaffee v. Rutland R. Co., 55 Vt. 110; Culver v. Reno Real Estate Co., 91 Pa. St. 367; Lockhart v. Van Alstyne, 31 Mich. 76; Elkins v. Camden etc. R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 233; Boardman v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 84 N. Y. 157; Richardson v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 44 Vt. 613; Dent v. London Tramway Co., L. R., 16 Ch. Div. 344.

2. An insolvent railroad company was reorganized by means of a foreclosure, etc. It was agreed that preferred stock should be issued to an amount equal to the preferred stock of the old corporation dividends, to be non-cumulative, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, but dependent on the profits of each particular year as declared by the board of directors. Held, that holders of the preferred stock could not compel the declaration of a dividend, even where there were profits, unless the condition of affairs as a whole justified it, this, in the first instance, being a matter determinable by the directors. New York, Lake Erie etc. R. Co. v. Nickals, 119 U. S. 296.

3. Wilmer v. Atlanta, etc., R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 447. See 2 Jones on Mortgages, §§ 1181, 1459, 1478, 1616-1619; Credit Co. v. Arkansas etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 52; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Oregon etc. R. Co., 24 Fed. Rep. 407; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fosdick, 106 U. S. 47.

In Tillinghast v. Troy etc. R. Co., 48 Hun (N. Y.) 425, the court by Learned, P. J., said: "From the nature of the property, however, there cannot be a foreclosure to enforce a part only of the mortgage debt. If the road were a divisible thing, it might be possible to sell enough of the mortgage property to satisfy those bondholders who desire the foreclosure. But that cannot be. A foreclosure and sale must sell the railroad as a whole and divide the proceeds pro rata."

So in Wilmer v. Atlanta etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 453, the court by Wood, C. J., said: "That where a mortgage or deed of trust is given to secure the interest and principal of notes or bonds, and the mortgage property cannot be sold in parts without injury to its value, the whole may be sold on default of the payment of interest before the principal is due, is sustained by the following authorities: Salman v. Calggett, 3 Bland's Ch. (Md.) 125 and other cases there cited; Seaton v. Twyford, 11 Law Rep. Eq. Cas. 591; Dunham v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 1 mortgage.¹ This rule, however, is applicable only where the property is not susceptible of division. So in a suit to foreclose a mortgage upon a railroad and its franchises, which contains no provision that the principal should become due upon the failure to pay interest, a sale should be ordered of so much as might satisfy the amount due if the property is divisible.²

Engines and cars put upon the road and necessary to keep up its equipment and do its business, pass to the purchaser.³ So where there has been a judicial sale of railroad property under a Wall. (U. S.) 254; Olcott v. Bynum, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 44; Pope v. Durant, 26 Iowa 233."

To allow a railroad to be cut up into fragments, and separate portions, sold at different sales, in the different counties through which it passes, to different purchasers, would not only sacrifice the rights and interests of creditors, but defeat the objects and intentions of the legislature in granting the charter. Macon etc. R. Co. v. Parker, 9 Ga. 377.

Statutes.—In some of the States special provision has been made by statute in regard to the sale of the entire property. See Statutes Ind., 1 R. S. 1876, p. 728, ch. 21, § 1; Act Mar. 3, 1865; N. J. R. S. 1877, p. 922, § 77; Kan. Laws 1876, ch. 108, § 1; Dassler's Stats. 1876, § 4625; Ky. Laws 1876, ch. 447, § 1; N. Y. Laws 1876, ch. 446, p. 482.

Consolidated Road.—Where a railroad in the hands of a court of equity is the property of the company constituted by the consolidation of three railroad companies, all of which had, before the consolidation, issued their bonds and executed mortgages on their property to secure them, the court may direct the property of the consolidated company to be sold as a whole and afterwards fix the amount to be paid to the several holders of the bonds and mortgages of the respective roads. Gilbert v. Washington etc. R. Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 586; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 473. See Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Newman, 127 U. S. 649.

Sale of Incomplete Road.—If a mortgage is given by a railway company upon its entire road to secure bonds issued by it, and it procures the grading of only a part of the road in the middle, and then abandons the work, leaving each end of the road unfinished, and another company organizes and completes the road, on bill to foreclose the mortgage given by the first company, it is erroneous to decree a sale of the middle portion of the road, leaving the two ends worthless. If any foreclosure can be had the entire road must be sold, and the proceeds distributed as between the bondholders of the original company and the new company in the proportion which the work done by the first company bears to the cost or value of the entire road as completed. But if the original company had no legal title to any of the right of way but only contracts for a small portion thereof to be conveyed upon conditions which it never performs, or has agreed to perform, and the new company is organized which builds a road and acquires a legal title to most of the right of way and is equitably entitled to the balance, no decree of foreclosure can be sustained under the mortgage as against the new company for the sale of its property. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Loewenthal, 93 Ill. 433.

1. Goodman v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 2 Disney (Ohio) 176; West Branch Bank v. Chester, 11 Pa. St. 282.

It appeared that the mortgagor was insolvent; that an execution purchaser under a junior incumbrance would do nothing to discharge the interest; that the operation of the road by the trustee would result in a loss; that the trustee had no proceeds with which to make repairs, and that the road if unused would necessarily decay. Held, that the court had power to order a sale of the property, although the mortgage did not, in terms, authorize a sale upon default in the payment of interest, and the bonds had not yet matured. McLane v. Placerville etc. R. Co., 66 Cal. 606.

2. Bardstown etc. R. Co. v. Metcalfe, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 199. See Campbell v. Texas etc. R. Co., 2 Wood (U. S.) 263.

3. Strange v. Montgomery etc. R. Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 613.

mortgage authorized by law covering its franchises, the franchises necessary to the use and enjoyment of the railroad pass to the purchaser.¹ A grant of authority to a railroad company to sell or mortgage its property and franchises, enables the company to sell or mortgage not only those rights and franchises which are essential to the use of the property as a railroad, but also those which are incidental without being essential. Thus, a purchaser under a sale of the company's property and franchises pursuant to such authority, would acquire the power of exercising the power of eminent domain to compel the construction of the railroad and to build branch lines, if that was one of the franchises of the company owning the road.² But, where a corporation has no power given it by its charter to mortgage its franchise, such mortgage cannot, of course, be effected, nor can the franchise be sold under a foreclosure decree.³

Nothing will pass not directed to be sold by the decree,⁴ nor will personal privileges, like the exemption from taxation, pass to purchasers from a railroad company at a foreclosure sale.⁵

1. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. De Lamore, 114 U. S. 501.

The court in this says: "It follows that if the franchises of a railroad corporation essential to the use of its road, and other tangible property, can by law be mortgaged to secure its debts, the surrender of its property, upon the bankruptcy of the company, carries the franchises, and they may be sold and passed to the purchaser at the bankruptcy sale."

This was also assumed to be the law by the opinion of the court pronounced by Mr. Justice Matthews in the case of Memphis R. Co. v. Commissioners, 112 U. S. 609, when it was said: "The franchise of being a corporation need not be implied as necessary to secure to the mortgage bondholders or the purchasers at a foreclosure sale the substantial rights intended to be secured. They acquire the ownership of the railroad and the property incident to it and the franchise of maintaining and operating it as such." See also Hall v. Sullivan R. Co., 21 Law Rep. 138; Galveston R. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459.

2. North Carolina, etc. R. Co. v. North Carolina Cent. R. Co., 83 N. Car. 489; Morawetz Corp. (2d. ed.) § 934.

3. Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21.

4. Osterberg v. Union Trust Co., 93 U. S. 424.

5. Trask v. Maguire, 18 Wall. (U.

S.) 391; Morgan v. Louisiana, 93 U. S. 217; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Gaines, 97 U. S. 697; East Tenn. etc. R. Co. v. Hamblen Co., 102 U. S. 273; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 652; Wilson v. Gaines, 103 U. S. 417; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 637; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Palmes, 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 380; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Berry, 112 U. S. 609; Chesapeake etc. R. Co. v. Miller, 114 U. S. 176.

But the legislature may, of course, unless restricted by the provisions of the State constitution, confer immunity from taxation upon the corporation formed by the purchasers of a railroad at a foreclosure sale. Such a result may be inferred from the terms of a general act granting to the new corporation the rights, powers, and privileges of the old one, where, from the context or surrounding circumstances such intent may be inferred. Humphrey v. Pegues, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 244; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Allen, 15 Fla. 637; State v. Winona etc. R. Co., 21 Minn. 315; State v. South Minn. R. Co., 21 Minn. 344; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Gaines, 3 Fed. Rep. 266; Nicholls v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 42 Conn. 103.

But a general grant to the new company of the rights, powers, and privileges of the old one will not exempt it from taxation where such an intent does not clearly appear. Maine Cent. R. Co. v. Maine, 95 U. S. 499; Central R. etc., Co. v. Georgia, 92 U. S. 655;

Officers acting under a decree of sale are usually invested with a reasonable discretion as to the manner of its exercise which they are not at liberty to overlook or disregard. They should adopt all necessary and proper means to fulfill the directions given to them, but they should, at the same time, never lose sight of the fact that, unless they are restricted by the terms of the decree, the time and manner of effecting the sale are in the first instance vested in their sound discretion.¹ The usual practice undoubtedly is that the officer in selling the property acts under the advice of the solicitor of the complainant, but it cannot be admitted that his advice is, under all circumstances, obligatory upon the officer.²

The marshal or sheriff may postpone a sale even after a bid has been made, nor can the bidder in such case claim that the property has been knocked down to him.³ But if a mistake is made by the marshal or sheriff in selling the property, which is of a material character, the sale is void, nor can it be validated

Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Georgia, 98 U. S. 359; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Steiner, 61 Ala. 559; St. Paul etc. R. Co. v. Parcher, 14 Minn. 297.

1. Blossom v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 3 Wall. (U. S.) 196.

The court heretofore rendered a decree of foreclosure of a railway mortgage in favor of the plaintiff, as the trustee for all the bondholders; certain bondholders, dissatisfied with the decree, appealed to the supreme court. Sage v. Central R. Co., 93 U. S. 412. The supreme court refused to dismiss the appeal, which is still pending in that court, but vacated the supersedeas; certain bondholders, in March 1877, applied for an order to compel the trustee to sell, under the decree, pending the appeal, against its judgment of what was best for all the bondholders, and the court refused to interfere with the discretion of the trustee. The same bondholders then applied to the supreme court for a mandamus to compel the circuit court to order the trustee to sell pending the appeal, which the supreme court (March 27, 1877), refused. The same bondholders now (May term, 1877) renew their application for an order to the trustee to cause the special master to execute the decree, notwithstanding the pending appeal and the protest of other bondholders. Held, that individual bondholders, not parties to the decree, had no legal right to have the decree executed, pending the appeal, against the judgment of the trustee as to what was for the best interests of all the bondholders; but that the trustee was at liberty to execute the decree or not, pending the appeal, as in its judgment was best for all the cestuis que trustent. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 4 Dill (U. S.) 533.

Statutes.—The time and manner of making sales of railroads in all cases of foreclosure of mortgages or deeds of trust are provided for by statute. Kan. Laws of 1876, ch. 111; Dassler's Stats. 1876, §§ 4627, 4631.

2. Blossom v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 3 Wall. (U. S.) 196. In this case the court by Clifford, J., said: "Granting that solicitors may properly advise the officer, still it must be borne in mind that the authority and discretion in making the sale are to a certain extent primarily vested in the officer designated in the decree. Unreasonable directions of the solicitor are not obligatory and should not be followed, as if the solicitor should direct the property to be struck off at great sacrifice when but a single bidder attended the sale. Under such circumstances the officer might well refuse to do as he was directed, and he might be justified in postponing the sale to a future day to prevent the sacrifice of the property. Every such officer has a right to exercise a reasonable discretion to adjourn such a sale, and all that can be required of him is, that he should have proper qualification; use due diligence in ascertaining the circumstances, and act in good faith and with an honest intention to perform his duty."

3. Blossom v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 3 Wall. (U. S.) 197.

of the fraud was first obtained, or should give a satisfactory reason why it was not sooner obtained.¹

A sale made to directors of a corporation who have combined to obtain the company's property for themselves at a sacrifice, and have by their efforts defeated a sale for a larger sum in order that they might become the purchasers for a smaller amount, will be set aside.² So a trustee in possession who becomes a purchaser at a foreclosure sale will be required to yield the property to the mortgagor corporation upon being reimbursed for the amount of his bid with interest thereon.³ But a trustee to whom the mortgage has been executed and by whom the foreclosure proceeding has been instituted, has the right and power to bid at the sale so as to protect the interests of the bondholders.⁴

A foreclosure sale of the property of a railroad company will not be set aside because the purchasers were bondholders and creditors of the company who had entered into an agreement to make the purchase and to reorganize the company.⁵ Creditors who enter into such agreements are bona fide purchasers and take the property clear of any trust in favor of other creditors.⁶ So a purchase in the name of the solicitor of one whose property is sold, is not necessarily in and of itself invalid when made pursuant to a decree in a foreclosure suit.⁷

Where it is shown that all the bondholders assented to the purchase, the sale will be valid.⁸ So where a railroad mortgage is foreclosed and bought for the benefit of the bondholders, most must also be brought within a reasonable time. Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 537.

1. Haywood v. Eliot Nat. Bank, 96 U. S. 617.

2. Jackson v. Ludeing, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 661.

Where directors procured a mortgage to be foreclosed on a railroad for a much larger sum than was actually due, by fraudulent combination with the purchaser, held, that the latter must be held liable as trustee, to creditors, for the value of the property he purchased on the sale of the road, after deducting the amount due him at the day of sale. Drury v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 7 Wall. (U. S.) 299.

Compensation for Repairs.—In Louisiana, where a railroad, in a complete state of dilapidation and ruin, was sold under a mortgage, under circumstances importing some fraud in the purchasers which induced the court to set the sale aside and order a resale, such purchasers, though deemed possessors in bad faith, are entitled by the spirit of article 508 of the Civil Code, to compensation for reconstructing and repairing the road and putting it in working order. Jackson v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 99 U. S. 513.

3. Racine etc. R. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 49 Ill. 331; Kitchen v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 69 Mo. 224; Ashhurst's Appeal, 60 Pa. St. 290.

4. James v. Cowing, 82 N. Y. 449; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 336.

5. Thornton v. Wabash Co., 81 N. Y. 462.

The bondholders and stockholders of a railroad company may unite for the purchase of the property at a sale made in good faith to prevent a sacrifice thereof. Pennsylvania Transp. Company's Appeal, 101 Pa. St. 576.

6. Vose v. Cowdrey, 49 N. Y. 236; Wetmore v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 466; Kropholer v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 299; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Ashhurst's Appeal, 60 Pa. St. 290.

7. Pacific R. Co. v. Ketchum, 101 U. S. 289.

8. Barnes v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 122 U. S. 1.

of whom unite in organizing and carrying on a new corporation, and afterwards certain creditors by judgment subsequent to the mortgage, succeed in obtaining a decree on a bill to set aside the foreclosure and subject the property to the payment of their judgments, a decree will render the foreclosure invalid only as to the creditors who filed the bill, and the bondholders who voluntarily took stock in the new company cannot again claim under the mortgage, nor can the trustee under the mortgage maintain a new bill of foreclosure for their benefit.¹ A master's sale will not be set aside on account of the inadequacy of the bid merely by showing that the property has not realized its full value. The price must be so inadequate as to show that it is not the result of fair dealings and an honest purchase.² But a deceptive notice of a sale under a railroad mortgage calculated to destroy all competition among the bidders and to exclude from the purchase every one except those engaged in the perpetration of the fraud, will be sufficient grounds for setting aside the sale.³

XVII. RIGHTS OF PURCHASERS.—A judicial sale upon mortgages executed by a railroad corporation does not invest purchasers with any corporate capacity.⁴ If a new company is organized, the purchasers are not regarded as continuing the old corporation.⁵ They are not liable for debts of the old company.⁶ The

1. James v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 6 Wall. (U. S.) 752.

2. Turner v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 8 Biss. (U. S.) 380.

3. James v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 6 Wall. (U. S.) 752; Barnes v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 122 U. S. 1; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 453; Equitable Trust Co. v. Fisher, 106 Ill. 189.

In a suit under a railroad mortgage where the amount of bonds in the hands of the bona fide holders are less than $200,000, and the notice of sale set forth that the mortgage debt was $2,000,000, and that $70,000 interest was due, the sale could not be upheld without sanctioning the grossest fraud and injustice. James v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 6 Wall. (U. S.) 752.

4. Western Pa. R. Co. v. Johnson, 59 Pa. St. 290; Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21. See Bruffett v. Great Western R. Co., 25 Ill. 353; Com. v. Tenth Mass. Turnpike Corp., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 509; Mendonhall v. Westchester etc. R. Co., 36 Pa. St. 145; State v. Rives, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 297.

5. Smith v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 18 Wis. 17; Vilas v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 17 Wis. 497; State v. Sherman, 22 Ohio St. 411; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Central Pass. R. Co., 52 Pa. St. 506.

6. Cook v. Detroit etc. R. Co. 43 Mich. 349; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 443; Cooper v. Corbin, 105 Ill. 224; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 394; Lake Erie etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 92 Ind. 487; Taylor v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 57 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 36; North Henderson R. Co. v. Vooreum, 28 N. J. Eq. 450; Rhine v. Hayes, 62 Tex. 42; Menasha v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 52 Wis. 414; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 300; Secombe v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 2 Dill. (U. S.) 469; Hopkins v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 2 Dill. (U. S.) 396; Chesapeake etc. R. Co. v. Greist, 85 Ky. 619; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 149, note 155; Hammond v. Port Royal etc. R. Co., 15 S. Car. 10; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 352. There has been some difficulty in determining what is to be included in "debts," within the meaning of the above rule. There can be no doubt, however, that if a railway company executes a mortgage upon its road, franchises, etc., and afterwards occupies land for its uses and damages are assessed, it has no interest in such land on which the mortgage can operate, and a sale under the mortgage would not convey the title nor extinguish the lien for the damages. Western Pa. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290. And such a sale, before the damages to the new company takes what it purchases subject to no liens or landowner are paid or secured, will not divest his right to recover compensation for the occupancy of his land from the purchaser under the mortgage. Western Pa. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; White v. Nashville etc. R. Co., 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 518.

In a Wisconsin case the complaint, in substance, averred that plaintiff, in 1859, obtained judgment against the S. & M. R. Co., for damages for land taken by it for its road; that in 1861 the property and franchises of that company were sold under a mortgage or trust deed; that the purchasers took with notice of the existence and non-payment of said judgment; that they subsequently organized and became the company here made defendant which is operating the road built by said S. & M. Co., claiming to own the same and its appurtenances; that, in continuation of the appropriation of plaintiff's said land made by the last-named company, defendant entered upon the same, and now holds, and ever since 1861 has held it, to its own exclusive use and benefit, without plaintiff's consent; that plaintiff's said judgment is a valid subsisting one, wholly unpaid; and that the S. & M. Co., ever since the mortgage sale aforesaid has been wholly insolvent and has no existence in fact, but has been wholly merged in the defendant. Held, that plaintiff has a remedy in equity to compel the defendant to make compensation for the land, or stop running cars over it; but defendant is not liable in an action at law for a debt upon the judgment. Gilman v. Sheboygan etc. R. Co., 37 Wis. 317; 40 Wis. 653; Pfeifer v. Sheboygan etc. R. Co., 18 Wis. 155, distinguished.

And in Gillison v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 7 S. Car. 173, it appeared that the charter of C, a railway company, authorized it to acquire lands by statutory proceedings, the land to "vest in said company in fee simple as soon as the valuation thereof may be paid, or tendered and refused." In 1860 C commenced proceedings to acquire title to a parcel of A's land. It was valued, and C appealed from the valuation, but did not prosecute the appeal. C took possession of the land, and having become insolvent, in 1866 all its property was sold and purchased by S, another and a distinct railway company, which thereupon took possession of the land. In 1872, A commenced his action against S to have the valuation paid or the land restored to him; held, that he was entitled to the relief he demanded.

The fact that a judgment against a railway company for taking land was obtained two years before the foreclosure sale and that the road had been operated over the land during that time and that no further steps were taken by suit to enforce payment of the damages until the new company had been occupying the land for thirteen years, does not constitute a waiver of the owner's right to compensation. Gilman v. Sheboygan etc. R. Co., 40 Wis. 653.

Where a mortgage given by a railroad company is foreclosed, and all the property rights, franchises, and effects of such company are duly sold under the decree of foreclosure, and a new company is thereupon organized under the laws of this State, for the purpose of owning and operating the line of railway previously owned by the old company, with all its franchises, rights and property, the new railway company is not liable at law for the general debts of the old company, except such debt or debts as it may assume. But where the old company has appropriated land for the purposes of its railroad, and a judgment has been rendered against it for the value of the land appropriated or condemned, which judgment is unpaid, if the new company enters upon and occupies such land, it will be liable in equity for the payment of such judgment upon the principle that it has adopted and ratified the original appropriation. Lake Erie etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 92 Ind. 487; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 235.

New Company Liable for Assumed Debts. — Where a mortgage given by a railroad company is foreclosed, and all the property, rights, franchises and effects of such company are duly sold under the decree of foreclosure, and a new company is thereupon organized under the laws of this State, for the purpose of owning and operating the line of railway previously owned by the old company, with all its franchises, rights and property, the new railway company is not liable at law for the general debts of the old com-claims save such as may be paramount to the mortgage under which the sale is made.¹ Although the purchasers upon a sale under a mortgage are not vested with the rights, franchises, powers, privileges and immunities which the corporation possessed before such sale,² yet there are, however, reorganization acts in many of the States which make the purchasers a body corporate with all the rights and privileges of the old company.³

The legislature has full power to authorize the bondholders, by the acquiescence of the majority, to reorganize as a new corporation with the rights of the old corporation. And when a new corporation is thus organized, it becomes an instrumentality for carrying into effect the original design in creating the first corporation and devoting the property to the only use which the law of its creation permits.⁴ But the legislature has no power to release or transfer to the new corporation the debts of the old corporation. It cannot release or discharge the old corporation from their legal liabilities to individuals, whether incurred by contract, forfeiture, or penalty.⁵

A purchaser under a sale by judicial process simply directing a sale of the debtor's property, takes the property subject to any prior liens and incumbrances existing upon it, with a right, nevertheless, to contest the validity of apparent incumbrances pany, except such debt or debts as it may assume. Lake Erie etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 92 Ind. 487.

1. Jones on Corp. Bonds & Mortg., § 671; Morgan Co. v. Thomas, 76 Ill. 120.

2. Wellsborough etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 57 Pa. St. 417; People v. Cook, 110 N. Y. 443; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 256; Metz v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 58 N. Y. 61.

In Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 67 Tex. 700, the court by Stayton, A. J., said: "These mortgages may be foreclosed through the courts, or sales may be made under powers contained in such mortgages, and title to the property will pass. They may become indebted, in the course of their business, and their property, including franchise, subjected to sale under judicial process to to pay such indebtedness. But in such cases the corporation continues, and the purchasers become in effect new stockholders, the corporation property, so purchased, however, being relieved from liability for debts not creating a prior incumbrance on the property sold. These are the means through which the laws of this State authorize the sale of railroads."

3. People v. Cook, 110 N. Y. 443; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 256.

See Alabama Code, 1886, §§ 1596-1598, 2052; Arkansas Dig. Sts. 1884, §§ 5455, 5457; Florida Dig. of Laws 1881, p. 259; Georgia Code 1882, § 1689 (v.); Illinois 2 Ann. Sts. 1885, p. 1907; Indiana, 2 R. S. 188, §§ 393-398, 3946; Iowa Code 1888, § 1086; Kansas Comp. Laws 1885, ch. 84, §§ 51, 52, 53; Kentucky G. S. 1881, pp. 957, 1004; Maine R. S. 1884, ch. 51, §§ 93, 94, 105-107; Maryland Pub. Gen. Laws 1888, art. 23, § 187; Michigan, 1 Annot. Sts. 1882, §§ 3314, 3351; Minnesota G. S. 1878, ch. 34, § 87; Mississippi Laws 1877, ch. 46; Laws 1876, ch. 112; R. Code 1880, § 1038; New Jersey, 2 R. S. 1877, p. 944, § 165; Supp. 1888, p. 844, § 86; New York, 3 R. S. 1889, pp. 1781, 1787, 1791; North Carolina Code 1883, ch. 49, § 1936; Ohio, 1 R. S. 1880, §§ 3393-3399; South Carolina G. S. 1882, §§ 1420-1424; Tennessee Code 1884, § 1253; Texas, Paschal's Dig. 1866, p. 820, arts. 4912, 4916; Utah, 2 Comp. Laws 1888, § 2573; Vermont R. Laws 1880, §§ 3461-3474; Virginia Code 1887, § 1233; West Virginia Code 1887, ch. 54, § 7273; Wisconsin R. S. 1878, § 828.

4. Gates v. Boston etc. R. Co., 53 Conn. 333.

5. Buffett v. Great Western R. Co., 25 Ill. 353; Hatcher v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 62 Ill. 477.

either with respect to their legal existence or the amount due upon them.¹ If a purchaser has knowledge of a lien of another upon the property, he is not a purchaser without notice, and therefore takes the property subject to such lien.² But he is not bound to look beyond what appears upon the face of the record in the foreclosure proceedings. Thus, in a suit to foreclose a mortgage, brought against a railroad company, where third parties intervene and seek to enforce a claim for materials furnished or used in the construction of the road against the earnings of the road, in the hands of the receiver, the purchaser is not bound to anticipate such a claim in case the earnings of the road should not satisfy the claim of intervenors.³

XVIII. PROCEEDINGS IN BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY AGAINST RAILROAD COMPANIES.—The bankrupt law applies to railway companies;⁴ and they are also subjected to compulsory insolvency proceedings under the State insolvent laws as much as natural persons.⁵

No vote or consent of the corporators is necessary to authorize counsel to appear for a corporation to an adjudication of bankruptcy, nor to admit acts of bankruptcy when involuntary proceedings against it have been commenced by a creditor. When involuntary proceedings are brought against a company, the usual course is adopted and matters proceed as in ordinary cases where legal measures are instituted against corporations.⁶ The petition and order to show cause is served by delivering a copy to the head or principal officers of the corporation, or by leaving the order at the principal place of business of the corporation.⁷ See SERVICE OF PROCESS.

Where the stockholders of a bankrupt railroad company purchase in good faith, all the outstanding floating indebtedness of

1. So a purchaser at a sale by a receiver whose conditions of sale state that the property will be sold "subject to all legal liens and incumbrances thereon," may contest the validity of a prior mortgage upon the premises. Hackensack Water Co. v. Dekay, 36 N. J. Eq. 548.

2. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 11 Fed. Rep. 1.

3. Hale v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 13 Fed. Rep. 203.

4. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Delamare, 114 U. S. 501; Adams v. Boston etc. R. Co., 4 Nat. Bank. Reg. 314; Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Jones, 5 Nat. Bank. Reg. 97; Sweatt v. Boston etc. R. Co., 3 Cliff. (U. S.) 332; 5 Nat. Bank. Reg. 234; Factors' etc. Ins. Co. v. Murphy, 111 U. S. 738; Winter v. Iowa etc. R. Co., 2 Dill. (U. S.) 487; 7 Nat. Bank. Reg. 289, 291; In re California Pac. R. Co., 3 Sway. (U. S.) 240.

5. Platt v. New York etc. R. Co., 26 Conn. 544.

"The rights which supervene upon the mortgage or other specific lien accompanied with possession before proceedings in bankruptcy, are very different, from those arising from proceedings in State courts in cases of general insolvency. A mere insolvent proceeding or a proceeding of that nature, and possession of the bankrupt property taken in pursuance thereof, is antagonistical and repugnant to the bankrupt law, and may be avoided by regular proceedings in bankruptcy." Per Bradley, C. J., in Davis v. Railroad Co., 1 Wood (U. S.) 661.

6. Jones on Corp. Bonds & Mortg., § 701; Leiter v. Republic F. Ins. Co., 7 Biss. (U. S.) 26.

7. In re California Pac. R. Co., 3 Sway. (U. S.) 240.

the company, except a few minor claims of the creditors, and those representing these few claims desire such a result, they should be allowed to have the bankrupt proceedings dismissed on giving proper security for the payment of the objecting creditors.¹

RAILROADS.—(For cross-references see note 1, p. 777.)

- I. Introduction, 777.
- II. Definition, 777.
- III. Legal Status of Railroads and Railroad Corporations, 780.
- IV. Railroad Corporations, 785.
 1. Creation and Organization, 785.
 2. Of the Charter, 789.
 3. Domicile, Citizenship, and Residence, 791.
 4. Corporate Existence, 798.
 5. Capital Stock of the Corporation—Its Creation—Subscriptions to—Issuance of Shares—Rights of Shareholders, etc. (See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 16, p. 1204; STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS), 803.
 6. Corporate Direction and Control—Officers and Agents of the Corporation (See OFFICERS AND AGENTS, vol. 17, p. 39, et seq.), 803.
 7. Suits by and Against the Corporation (See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 274 et seq.; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 375), 803.
 8. Consolidation (See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 272 et seq.), 803.
 9. Dissolution of the Corporation (See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 294, et seq.; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 404, et seq.), 803.
- V. Corporate Powers, 803.
 1. Power of Eminent Domain (See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, pp. 518, 530, et seq.), 805.
 2. Power to Issue Bonds and Negotiable Securities, to Contract Debts, etc. (See RAILROAD SECURITIES; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 223, 229), 805.
 3. Power to Construct Lateral or Branch Roads (See LATERAL OR BRANCH RAILROADS, vol. 12, p. 940, et seq.), 805.
 4. Powers as to Real Estate, 806.
 5. Powers as to Stock (See also STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS), 810.
 6. Power as to Connections with Other Roads—Traffic Arrangements, 812.
 7. Power to Contract, 815.
 - (a) Contracts to Farm Pools (See RAILROAD POOLS), 817.
 - (b) Contracts Concerning the Location of Stations, 817.
 - (c) Contracts with Other Railroads, 818.
 - (d) Various Other Contracts, 820.
 8. Power to Make Reasonable Rules and Regulations, 820.
 9. Miscellaneous Powers, 323.
- VI. Location, 826.
 1. Power of Company to Choose, 826.
 2. Conflicting Grants of Location, 831.
 3. Description of Location—Plans, etc., 832.
 4. Termini, 833.
 5. Property in Location, 834.
 6. Abandonment of Location or Right of Way, 836.
 7. Contracts to Influence Location, 837.
 8. Generally, 838.
- VII. Right of Way, 839.
 1. Acquisition by Right of Eminent Domain (See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 509, et seq.), 841.
 2. Acquisition by Public Grant (See GRANTS, vol. 9, pp. 48, 60; PUBLIC LANDS, vol. 19), 841. [842.]
 3. Acquisition by Dedication,

1. In re Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 5 Biss. (U. S.) 287.

4. Acquisition by Purchase or Private Grant, 842.
 5. Acquisition by License or Implied Grant, 858.
 6. Width of Way, 861.
- VIII. Construction and Operation of the Road, 862.
1. Liability for Injuries Caused by Construction, 862.
 2. Highway Crossings, 865.
 3. Railroads Crossing Each Other, 867.
 4. Construction of Fences, Cattle-Guards, Culverts, etc. (See FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906; SURFACE WATERS; WATER AND WATER-COURSES), 870.
 5. Bridges (See also BRIDGES, vol. 2, p. 540, et seq.), 870.
 6. Construction Contracts, 872.
 7. Services and Material, 879.
 8. Operation of the Road—Extent of Care Exercised, etc., 880.
- IX. Railroads in Streets and Highways—Elevated Railroads, (See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, pp. 534, 552-3; HIGHWAYS, vol. 9, p. 408; STREETS), 882.
- X. Rolling Stock and Similar Property—Whether Realty or Personality, 882.
- XI. State Regulation of Railroads, 884.
1. Is an Exercise of Police Power, 885.
 2. Regulation of Freight Charges and Passenger Rates (See FREIGHT, vol. 8, pp. 906-925; TICKETS AND FARES), 885.
 3. Railroad Commissions (See RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS), 885.
 4. As to Speed of Trains, 885.
 5. As to Crossings, Signals, etc., 886.
 6. As to Fencing Tracks, 888.
 7. As to Formation of Pools, 888.
 8. Miscellaneous Instances, 888.
 9. Limitations — Effect of Charter as a Contract, etc., 891.
- XII. Federal Control of Railroads, 894.
- XIII. Lease of Railroads, 895.
1. Authority to Lease, 895.
 2. Effect of Lease, 897.
3. Relative Liability of Lessor and Lessee, 899.
- XIV. Railroads as Common Carriers, 903.
1. Rights, Duties and Liabilities as Carriers of Goods (See CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 770), 903.
 2. As Carriers of Passengers (See also CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738, et seq.), 903.
 - (a) Expulsion of Passengers, 903.
 - (1) Right to Expel, 903.
 - (2) Manner and Place of Expulsion, 907.
 - (3) Damages for Wrongful Expulsion, 910.
 - (b) Liability for Loss of Baggage, 912.
- XV. Liability for the Creation or Maintenance of Nuisances, 921.
1. Generally, 921.
 2. Effect of Legislative Grant as Affecting Liability, 923.
- XVI. Liability to Indictment, 926.
- XVII. Crimes Against Railroads, 928.
- XVIII. Liability for Torts, 930.
1. For Negligent Injury Generally (See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386, et seq.; CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 15; COMPARATIVE NEGLIGENCE, vol. 3, p. 367), 930.
 2. Liability for Injuries to Servants and Employes (See FELLOW SERVANTS, vol. 7, p. 821, et seq.; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 84, et seq.), 930.
 3. Liability for Fires Caused by the Operation of the Road (See FIRES BY OPERATION OF RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1, et seq.), 930.
 4. Liability for Injuries Caused from Failure to Fence Track (See FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906, et seq.), 930.
 5. Liability for Injuries at Crossings (See CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 906), 931.
 6. Liability for Wrongful Acts or Defaults of Its Servants (See MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 17, pp. 805, 815), 931.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 7. Liability Where One Company Uses the Track of Another, 931. 8. Where Road Is Operated by Trustees or Receiver, 932. 9. Liability for Injuries to Trespassers, 933.  (a) Who Are Trespassers, 933.  (b) Duty Owing to Them, 935. 10. Stock-Killing Cases, 938. 11. Measure of Damages, 942. XIX. Mortgages, Bonds and Debentures (See RAILROAD SECURITIES), 942. | XX. Municipal Subscriptions (See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1204, et seq.), 942. XXI. Receivers (See RECEIVERS), 942. XXII. Injunction Against Railroads (See INJUNCTION, vol. 10, p. 969), 942. XXIII. Mandamus (See MANDAMUS, vol. 14, p. 158), 942. XXIV. Taxation of Railroads (See TAXATION), 942. XXV. Stations (See STATIONS), 942. XXVI. Tickets and Fares (See TICKETS AND FARES), 942. |
|--|--|

I. INTRODUCTORY.—A complete treatment of the law of railroads must involve a discussion of many legal subjects intimately connected with it; such, for example, as the law of carriers, of corporations, of negligence, etc. This article, however, will be confined to a treatment of the law relating peculiarly to railroads and not discussed elsewhere. But in order for a logical presentation of the whole subject, every topic usually classified under this title has been included in the analysis, such subdivisions as have been treated elsewhere, being made to consist merely of a cross-reference.¹ The subject of street railways constitutes a separate article.

II. DEFINITION.—No precise definition of the word "railroad" may be given; its meaning wherever found depends entirely upon the connection in which it is used. It may in some connections have a broad and comprehensive meaning, embracing not only the road-bed, but also all side tracks, rolling stock, station houses, etc., which belong to the railroad company, and may be even used to designate the corporation itself; while in others its meaning is much more narrow, including nothing more than the mere road-bed.²

1. Cross-References.—General reference may be made to CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 770; CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 184; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 509; EXPRESS COMPANIES, vol. 7, p. 539; FELLOW SERVANTS, vol. 7, p. 821; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 329; FRACTIONS, vol. 8, p. 584; FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 900; LATERAL RAILROADS, vol. 12, p. 940; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386; OFFICERS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 39; RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS; RAILROAD POOLS; RECEIVERS; SLEEPING CARS; STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS; TICKETS AND FARES; WATER AND WATER COURSES.

2. What Is Included in the Term Railroad or Railway.—See generally for definition of the term "railroad," Anderson's L. Dict.; 2 Bouvier's L. Dict.

A statute of Indiana authorized the State board of equalization to assess taxes upon railway property. Under this it was held that the term "railway track" included the right of way with all the improvements upon it. Pfaff v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 108 Ind. 144.

In Central etc. R. Co. v. Twenty-Third St. R. Co., 54 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 168, it was said that iron tracks or rails securely fastened to the soil, whether of a street or otherwise, constitute a "railroad," irrespective of the propelling power by which vehicles were transported thereon.

There is a distinction between "railway" and "railway station." A station is no part of a railway, nor are offices, warehouses, or other property which are ancillary to its working; but sidings, turntables, and so much of the platform as is to be considered as the side of the railway, do form part of it. South Wales R. Co. v. Local Board of Health, 24 L. J. M. C. 30; 4 E. & B. 189; 82 E. C. L. 188.

Under New Jersey Rev. St. p. 925, providing that any "railroad" constructed under this act shall not exceed one hundred feet in width—held, that the term "railroad" was not limited to the roadbed and tracks, but included all necessary appurtenances. State v. Hudson Terminal R. Co., 46 N. J. L. 289. See also Seymour v. Canandaigua, etc. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 284; Sharpless v. Mayor etc. of Philadelphia, 21 Pa. 169.

In Calhoun v. Memphis R. Co., 2 Flip. (U. S.) 45; 9 Cent. Law Jour. 66, where the expression "all the other property of such railroad" occurred, it was held that the word railroad there, as it frequently does, meant the railroad company.

In another case it is said that "railroad" ex vi termini includes sidings, branches and like accessories. Black v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 252; Lake Superior etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 12 Ct. of Cl. 54; 93 U. S. 442; 25 Am. Law Reg. 648, and cases cited; Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 335.

In Lake Superior etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 93 U. S. 442, it is said that when in an act of Congress a railroad is referred to in its charter as a road as a permanent structure and designated and required to be a public highway, the term railroad cannot be extended to embrace the rolling stock or other personalty of the company; that the reference in such case is to the immovable structure stretching across the country, graded and railed for the use of the locomotive and its train of cars.

Again it is said that "road" or "railroad" will include not only the principal railroads but all adjuncts. St. John v. Erie R. Co., 22 Wall. (U. S.) 148.

Under an act providing for the recovery of damages for injuries received by one "lawfully engaged on or about a railway," it was held that one engaged in a rolling mill to haul ashes from the furnace to a cinder pile on the opposite side of a railroad switch, who was killed while moving some cars that blocked his way, was not within the act. Richter v. Pennsylvania Co., 104 Pa. St. 511.

Whether "Railroad" Includes Street Railways.—It has often been made a question whether the general term "railroad" includes horse or street railways, or is confined to those run by steam. There can be no definite rule stated; the meaning of the word must depend upon the context and the general intent of the statute in which it is used. Thus, an act giving certain powers to "railroads" was held to embrace horse railways in the case of Chicago v. Evans, 24 Ill. 52.

A statute making the "proprietors of any railroad liable for injuries caused by the negligence of its servants, etc." was held to include horse railways. Johnson v. Louisville City R. Co., 10 Bush (Ky.) 231.

Where the legislature enacted that no other railroads than that of a certain corporation should be constructed within certain prescribed limits, and that any railroad which might be constructed in any direction should connect with the road of such comorator on reasonable terms, it was held that the term "railroad" did not comprise street railways, and that an injunction could not be granted restraining the construction of a street railway or requiring the connection of such a railway with the road in question. Lotsville etc. R. Co. v. Louisville etc. Co., 2 Duv. (Ky.) 175; 2 Abbott's L. Dict. Railroad. See also Money Penny v. Sixth Ave. R. Co., 4 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 357.

Under § 1957 of Code of Washington, giving a laborer's lien upon a "railroad" or "any other structure," and the land upon which it is erected, laborers cannot have a lien upon a street cable railway, since there can be no lien upon the land, the fee of the street being in the city. Front St. Cable R. Co. v. Johnson (Wash. 1891), 25 Pac. Rep. 1084.

"Railroads" include street railroads, in a statute prohibiting the obstruction of railroad tracks. Price v. State, 74 Ga. 378.

Dummy Lines.—The Alabama Code (1886), § 1173 provides: "Unless clearly otherwise apparent from the context the term 'railroad company,' as used in this chapter, includes any person or corporation owning or operating a railroad." Held, that a "dummy line" between Birmingham and Ensley City, organized under the above act, was a "railroad," within § 1145, which requires all trains to stop within 100 feet of where two "railroads" cross each other. Birmingham Mineral R. Co. v. Jacobs (Aia. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 320.

A "dummy" railway laid in the streets of a city, and engaged exclusively in carrying passengers, is a "railroad," within Tennessee Code, § 1298, which provides that "every railroad shall keep . . . some person upon the locomotive always upon the lookout ahead; and when any . . . obstruction appears upon the road, the alarm whistle shall be sounded, . . . and every possible means employed to . . . prevent an accident." Katzenberger v. Lawo (Tenn. 1891), 16 S. W. Rep. 611.

Roadbed and Roadway.—The "roadbed" is the bed or foundation upon which the superstructure of the railroad rests. The "roadway" includes all that and whatever other ground the company is allowed on which to construct its roadbed and lay its track. As applied to ordinary roads, the two words mean the same thing, but not in case of railroads. San Francisco v. Central Pac. R. Co., 63 Cal. 469; 118 U. S. 413.

Under English Statutes.—For particular definitions of "railroad" or "railway" under English statutes, see South Wales R. Co. v. Local Board of Health, 24 L. J., M. C. 34; 4 El. & B. 189; 82 E. C. L. 189; Southeastern R. Co. v. Railway Com'rs, 50 L. J., Q. B. 211; 6 Q. B. Div. 586; Reg. v. Newport Dock Co., 31 L. J., M. C. 266; Stroud's Jud. Dict. 645 and cases cited.

Road with Its Appendages.—This phrase occurring in a railroad charter has been held not to include the equipments, cars, engines, or other personal property of the railroad company, but to apply solely to the real estate. State Treasurer v. Somerville etc. R. Co., 28 N. J. L. 21; APPENDAGES, vol. 1, p. 630.

Railroad Corporation.—In the case of Union Trust Co. v. Kendall, 20 Kan. 515, it is held that the corporation which has possession, control and management of, and is engaged in the business of running and operating a railroad in that State is a "railroad corporation," within the Laws of 1874, providing for the liability of railroads for all stock killed, etc. And this, although such corporation is so engaged in the execution and discharge of a trust for the benefit of the bond and stockholders of the corporation which built and own the road, and is not itself the absolute owner thereof. See also Tracy v. Troy etc. R. Co., 38 N. Y. 433; Clement v. Canfield, 28 Vt. 302.

A company may be a railroad corporation within the meaning of the statutes, although authorized to do other kinds of business than transportation by railroad. Kentucky Imp. Co. v. Slack, 100 U. S. 648; Randolph Co. v. Post, 93 U. S. 502.

Tennessee Code, §§ 1166, 1167, provides a penalty for the failure of "railroad companies" to sound the whistle when there are obstructions on the track. Held, not to apply to contractors engaged in constructing a road. Griggs v. Houston, 104 U. S. 553.

"Proprietors" of a railroad does not include a company having a mere temporary right to run over the tracks of another company subject to its control. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Kastt, 11 Ill. App. 536. Compare Hall v. Brown, 54 N. H. 495.

But in McKnight v. Iowa etc. R. Construction Co., 43 Iowa 406, it is said that a company which is engaged in the construction of a railway, and to that end is running trains laden with gravel, is "operating a railroad" within the meaning of Iowa Code, § 1307, providing for the liability of such companies to their employees.

See for definition of "railroad company" as used in particular English statutes, Great Western R. Co. v. Central Wales R. Co., 52 L. J., Q. B. 211; 10 Q. B. Div. 231; Exmouth Docks Co., 43 L. J. Ch. 110; L. R. 17 Eq. 181; In re Brenthford etc. Tr. Co., 53 L. J. Ch. 624; 26 Ch. Div. 527.

Cars.—A contract by a railroad company provided that a certain elevator should have the handling of all through grain that should be received by the cars of said railroad company. It was held by the words "cars of said railroad company" was meant the cars used by the company in transporting grain over its road, and not the cars actually belonging to it. Richmond v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 26 Iowa 191.

In an act providing for liability for injuries occasioned by the running of "cars or engines" the term "cars"

There is no distinction to be made between the words "railroad" and "railway," for though, in their common acceptance, they may be used to convey different meanings, the distinction is not observed in law and the words are ordinarily used indiscriminately.¹

III. LEGAL STATUS OF RAILROADS AND RAILROAD CORPORATIONS.—

A railroad, although in some sense private property, owned and operated by private corporations or individuals, is yet to be regarded as a quasi public highway, as an institution in which the includes hand cars. Thomas v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 38 Ga. 222.

Connecting Road.—For definition of a connecting road in a particular case see Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 50.

The term "railroad connection" without qualification, means either such a union of tracks as to admit the passage of cars from one road to another, or such an intersection of roads as will admit the convenient interchange of freight and passengers at the point of intersection. Therefore two roads may "connect" with each other even though a difference of gauge prevents the running of common cars. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Catawissa R. Co., 53 Pa. St. 20.

Tracks.—In Delaware etc. Canal Co. v. Whitehall, 90 N. Y. 21; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 227, under the provisions of an act regulating "the construction of roads and streets across railroad tracks," the word "track" is held to signify the entire roadbed, including turnout and switches, or other contrivances used for passing engines or cars from one line of rails to another, or for public traffic purposes.

1. "Railroad" and "Railway." Thus in Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Johnson, 89 Ind. 88; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 181, where a judgment by default was taken against a railway company, while the summons and return were against a railroad company, it was held that the difference was purely immaterial. The same principle is upheld in Georgia Pac. R. Co. v. Probst, 83 Ala. 518.

So also the variance was considered immaterial where the citation was issued as against a railroad company which in its charter was designated a railway company. Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Donahoe, 56 Tex. 162; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 287; Central etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 68 Tex. 49; 28 Am. & Eng.

R. Cas. 50; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Yeates, 67 Ala. 164.

Likewise where the charter name was railway company, and the name in the indictment was railroad company, the variance was held unimportant. State v. Brin, 30 Minn. 522, the court, by Berry, J., saying: "Railroad," and "railway" are used interchangeably. They are as nearly exact synonyms as any two words in the language." See also Anderson's Law Dict. Railroad; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 1.

In East Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Mahoney (Tenn. 1891), 15 S. W. Rep. 652, it was held that after a trial upon the merits, a declaration against the defendants might be amended so as to read "Railway Co." instead of "Railroad Co."

In the case of Gyger v. Philadelphia R. Co., 136 Pa. St. 96; 46 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 229, it is said: "It is undoubtedly true, as we have several times decided, that the words railroad and railway are synonymous, and in all ordinary circumstances they are to be treated without distinction as to meaning." Hestonville etc. R. Co. v. Philadelphia, 89 Pa. St. 210.

But in the case of Munkers v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 60 Mo. 334, the distinction laid down by a leading lexicographer was followed: viz., that the word "railroad" should be confined to the highway in which the railway is laid and the word "railway" to the rails when laid. The circumstances of the case were, that there was an agreement relinquishing to the company a right of way one hundred feet wide over a tract of land situated in two sections of a township, the "railroad" to be located "on the section line." It was held that the company would not forfeit its right to the land merely because its track was not laid immediately on and along the section line, provided it was constructed within the limits of the one hundred feet, and that this strip embraced that line.

public have an easement closely similar to that possessed in public highways.¹

1. Railroads as Public Highways.—In the case of Olcott v. Fond du Lac Co., 16 Wall. (U. S.) 678, the court by Strong, J., said: "Whether the use of a railroad is a public or private one depends in no measure upon the question who constructed it or who owns it. It has never been considered a matter of any importance that the road was built by the agency of a private corporation. No matter who is the agent, the function performed is that of the State. Though the ownership is private, the use is public. So turnpikes, bridges, ferries and canals, although made by individuals under public grants, or by companies, are regarded as publici juris." Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 495; 11 Pet. (U. S.) 419.

So also it is held that although built and operated by private corporations, railroads are in one sense public works. They are for the accommodation of the public and are allowed and protected in their franchises by the public law. Worcester v. Western R. Co., 4 Met. (Mass.) 564.

Again, in the case of Holladay v. Davis, 5 Oregon 40, it is said that they are quasi public; that is, they are public to such an extent that the public interest is involved in their being rightfully located, and that in consequence of this a contract to influence the location by personal benefit to the locator is void as against public policy. Holladay v. Patterson, 5 Oregon 177; 1 Rorer on Railroads 1, et seq.

And the doctrine of the text is also set forth very clearly in the case of Newburyport Turnpike Co. v. Eastern R. Co., 23 Pick. (Mass.) 326; Com. v. Wilkinson, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 175. See also Pierce on Railroads, p. 2; 1 Rorer on Railroads, p. 4; Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 283; Stewart v. Erie etc. Transp. Co., 17 Minn. 372; Central etc. R. Co. v. Rockafellow, 17 Ill. 541; Davidson v. Ramsey Co., 18 Minn. 482; Weir v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Burlington etc. R. Co. v. Spearman, 12 Iowa 117 (in which case it was said: "The roadbed and depot grounds are not held as an easement of the public by the company as agents of the State"); Bradley v. New York etc. R. Co., 21 Conn. 294 (similar language used); Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 50.

In a New York case it is said that the ground upon which private property may be taken for railroad uses is primarily that such railroads are "highways" or "improved public ways." In re Niagara Falls etc. R. Co., 108 N. Y. 375. And it was held in that case that a road which could only be operated in summer, which was solely to enable summer visitors to see the Falls better, and along whose route there could be no habitations, traffic or business, was not a public highway, and therefore could not be entitled to the right of eminent domain.

Railroads are not private affairs but public improvements, and it is the right and duty of the State to advance the commerce and promote the welfare of the people by making or causing them to be made at the public expense. Sharpless v. Mayor etc. of Philadelphia, 21 Pa. St. 147; 59 Am. Dec. 759.

In Nevada, railroads are denominated "public improvements," although built by private corporations. Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 283.

A railroad is not a public highway so as to render an obstruction thereto a public nuisance. Stoneback v. Thomas Iron Co. (Pa. 1886), 4 Atl. Rep. 721.

In New Jersey it is said that railroads constructed under the general railroad law of that State become ipso facto, public, because the public have the right of passage thereon, by paying reasonable and uniform tolls; and this regardless of the motives of their projectors or the generality of their probable use. National Docks R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 32 N. J. Eq. 755; Messenger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 37 N. J. L. 531.

But the people cannot maintain an equitable action to compel a railroad company to operate a part of its route which it has abandoned. The only remedy is by mandamus, quo warranto or indictment. People v. Albany etc. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 261.

A railroad which legally forfeits its charter, remains what it was, a public highway. The corporation loses its franchise, which passes to the State. Erie etc. R. Co. v. Casey, 26 Pa. St. 287.

That a railroad is ordinarily such a public use as will justify the taking of private property in order for its construction is now beyond question.¹ That it is such a public use as that other governmental aid may be granted in its behalf has sometimes been questioned, but this also is now generally conceded.²

The status of any particular railroad as to whether it constitutes a public use is a question which, like all other political questions, addresses itself peculiarly to the consideration of the legislative department of the government and not to the judicial, and a decision once made will not be disturbed by the courts, except in extraordinary instances.³

The right to own and operate railways is not confined to Constitutional and Statutory Provisions.—In some instances railroads have been declared by statute to be public highways. The early legislation concerning railroads contemplated railroad tracks upon which private persons might run their own carriages or cars upon the proper payment of toll, etc., the railroad company to furnish the locomotive power. See Pierce on Railroads 2; Com. v. Fitchburg R. Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 180. Thus in 1846 a statute was passed in Pennsylvania, granting a charter to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and declaring that that railroad should be a public highway, subject upon certain terms to the use of persons generally owning and using their own cars, the company furnishing the road and motive power for hauling the cars. See Trunick v. Smith, 63 Pa. St. 18. And by the constitutions of many of the States, railroads are declared to be public highways; in others, to be common carriers free to all persons for the transportation of themselves and their property. See Stimson's Am. Stat. Law, § 460, citing the constitutions of Pennsylvania, Illinois, Nebraska, West Virginia, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, California, Colorado, (art. 15, § 4); Alabama, Louisiana. See also Const. of Mississippi (1890), § 180. And by the Nebraska constitution it is provided that the liability of railways as common carriers can never be limited. Nebraska Const. 1875, art. 11, § 4. See also Beach on Railways, §§ 22, 23.

But it has been held that such a constitutional provision does not prevent the raising of the question as to the character of a railroad in a proceeding by it to condemn land. Denver R. etc. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 34 Fed. Rep. 386; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 104, note.

A grant of land was made to a railroad company by Congress, and a provision was made in the grant that the said railroad should be a public highway for the use of the government, free of toll, for the transportation of property or troops of the government. It was held that this secured to the government the free use of the railway and track, but not the right to use the rolling stock, except upon payment of the usual charges. Lake Superior etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 93 U. S. 442.

1. See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 524-5; Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) 665, et seq.

The only question that arises in this connection is as to what extent the right of eminent domain is to be exercised in behalf of railroads. See this noticed in EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 525.

2. This subject has also been discussed elsewhere. See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1242, et seq. Also Sharpless v. Mayor etc. of Philadelphia, 21 Pa. St. 169; 59 Am. Dec. 759; Opinion of the Judges, 58 Me. 590.

3. 1 Rorer on Railroads, 4; Contra Costa R. Co. v. Moss, 23 Cal. 323; State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189; Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) 538; 4 Minor's Insts. (2nd ed.) [22] 27; People v. Smith, 21 N. Y. 597; Beekman v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 3 Paige (N. Y.) 45; 22 Am. Dec. 679, 686, note; Varick v. Smith, 5 Paige (N. Y.) 137; Spring v. Russel, 7 Me. 202; Dillon's Mun. Corp., § 465; Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) 538; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 516 and cases cited.

See also MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 16, p. 1242; Hill v. Memphis, 134 U. S. 198; Young v. Clarendon, 132 U. S. 340.

private corporations, but may be owned by private individuals or by public corporations as well. Practically, however, all railroads are the property of private corporations acting under charters from the State in which their road is located, instances of railroads belonging to private individuals being rare.¹

From the status of railroads as public highways it follows that railroad corporations, although in some respects private corporations, are not altogether so, nor are they created solely for the pecuniary advancement and profit of the stockholders. Being possessed of extraordinary and unusual corporate powers they also assume especial obligations involving great public interests.²

1. Right of Private Individuals to Own and Operate a Railroad—Thus a private individual may construct and operate a railroad on his own land or on the land of another where he has obtained a right of way by purchase or reservation; but he becomes liable for all nuisances arising from the operation of his road. Bank of Middlebury v. Edgerton, 30 Vt. 182; Pierce on Railroads (2nd ed.) 2; Henderson v. Ogden City R. Co. (Utah, 1891), 26 Pac. Rep. 286; 46 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 95; Dand v. Kingscote, 6 M. & W. 174; Farrin v. Vansittart, 1 Eng. R. & C. 602; Stewart's Appeal, 56 Pa. St. 413; Wilson v. Cunningham, 3 Cal. 241; Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Orton, 32 Fed. Rep. 457; Hall v. Brown, 54 N. H. 495. But a private person cannot take by transfer from a railroad corporation the charter right to build a railroad and to invade the premises of others. Stewart's Appeal, 56 Pa. St. 413.

And as is well said in State v. Boston etc. R. Co., 25 Vt. 433, "the right to build and run a railroad and to take tolls or fares is a franchise of the prerogative character, which no person can legally exercise without some special grant of the legislature."

2. See Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 50; Stewart v. Erie etc. Transp. Co., 17 Minn. 372; Davidson v. Ramsey Co., 18 Minn. 482; Gibson v. Mason, 5 Nev. 283; Thomas v. West Jersey R. Co., 101 U. S. 71.

Thus in the case of State v. McIver, 2 S. Car. 25, it is held that although railroad corporations are private corporations, yet they and their officers, when incorporated by law, are so far public that their duties and obligations in reference to the allowance of transfer on their books of their capital stock may be enforced against them, and they may be compelled to allow such transfer to be made, when there is a right in the applicant to have such transfer made; and that a mandamus is the proper remedy in such case. Georgia R. etc. Co. v. Smith, 128 U. S. 174; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 511; Sweatt v. Boston etc. R. Co., 3 Cliff. (U. S.) 339.

Railroad Companies as Private Corporations.—Railroad companies are private corporations in that they are built, owned, and operated by private individuals, who, by reason of their pecuniary interests therein and the privileges conferred upon them by charters, acquire vested rights not subject to control by the State. Pierce v. Com., 104 Pa. St. 150; Sweatt v. Boston etc. R. Co., 3 Cliff. (U. S.) 339; Beach on Railways, § 23; Donnahey v. State, 8 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 661; Thorpe v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 27 Vt. 140; 62 Am. Dec. 625; Sloan v. Pacific R. Co., 61 Mo. 24.

Though, as regards its right of eminent domain, a railroad company is to be considered a quasi public corporation, yet in all its other powers, functions and capacities it is essentially a private corporation, not distinguishable from any other of that name or character. Whiting v. Sheboygan etc. R. Co., 25 Wis. 167.

Nor does the corporation lose its private character by reason of the State being a shareholder. Moore v. Schoppert, 22 W. Va. 282; Marshall v. Western etc. R. Co., 92 N. Car. 322; Annapolis etc. R. Co. v. Anne Arundel Co., 103 U. S. 1; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 422; 1 Minor's Insts. (3rd ed.) 546; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 187, note and cases cited. Nor by being an agent of the government, e. g., carrier of mails, etc. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 5.

Railroads are not ordinarily legal monopolies. In order to render them such, there must be an exclusive privilege conferred upon them for conducting that particular business between the particular points or places of terminus and intermediate places, such as will prevent all other persons, corporate or natural, from carrying on the same business there for compensation.¹

Railroad Companies as Quasi Public Corporations.—But these corporations created and endowed with special privileges by the State, not with the view of promoting the private advantages of the stockholders, but rather in the interest of the public, are to be regarded as quasi public corporations subject to special control by the government. Thus it is said in Beach on Railways, § 23: "In that they derive certain prerogative franchises from the sovereign power, such as the right of eminent domain, and the right to levy tolls for the carriage of passengers and freight, in return for which concessions the State retains over them a power of supervision not exercised over strictly private corporations—they are to be considered public corporations." See also Newburyport Turnpike Co. v. Eastern R. Co., 23 Pick. (Mass.) 326; Worcester v. Western R. Co., 4 Met. (Mass.) 554. And see McCoy v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 13 Fed. Rep. 3; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 621.

A railroad corporation is not necessarily a public corporation such as may use a city's street, because it is connected with a grain elevator which is public in so far as that its charges may be regulated by law. Mikesell v. Durkee, 36 Kan. 97.

Railroad Companies as "Persons."—Railroad companies are "persons" within the meaning of the 14th Amendment forbidding a State to deny to any person the equal protection of its laws. Santa Clara Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 118 U. S. 394; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 523; San Mater Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 7 Sawy. (U. S.) 517.

1. Railroads Not Monopolies.—Pierce on Railroads 452—3; 1 Rorer on Railroads 9; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 376; 11 Pet. (U. S.) 419; Metropolitan R. Co. v. Highland St. R. Co., 118 Mass. 290; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. State, 45 Md. 596; Erie R. Co. v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 21 N. J. Eq. 283.

But there are instances in which railroad companies have been granted an exclusive right to operate a railroad between certain points, and such grants are within the power of the legislature. In re Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 6 Whart. (Pa.) 46; 36 Am. Dec. 202; Mohawk Bridge Co. v. Utica etc. R. Co., 6 Paige (N. Y.) 555, note; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Salem etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 1; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. National etc. R. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. 441; Mich. Cent. R. Co. v. Michigan Southern R. Co., 4 Mich. 361; Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 97 Ill. 506; 1 Wood's Railway Law, 26-27.

An exclusive grant of the right to operate a railroad between two places secures a corporation not only against a single railroad running directly between them, but also against a combination of railroads owned by one or more corporations, and pursuing the same or a circuitous line which will practically establish a rival route. Pierce on Railroads 454; Pontchartrain R. Co. v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 11 La. Ann. 253. Compare Pennsylvania R. Co. v. National etc. R. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. 441; 24 N. J. Eq. 562. An exclusive grant never exists by implication; it must always be express. Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 419.

Where the purpose of the exclusive grant is to protect through traffic between certain places from competition, it will not exclude grants for enterprises which will compete only between intermediate points. Pontchartrain R. Co. v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 11 La. Ann. 253. See also Delaware etc. Canal Co. v. Camden etc. R. Co., 16 N. J. Eq. 321; 18 N. J. Eq. 546.

The grant of an exclusive right to maintain a railroad for carrying freight and passengers by steam does not exclude a street railway from carrying only passengers by horse power. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Louisville City R. Co., 2 Duv. (Ky.) 175. Nor is the grant of an exclusive right to carry passengers violated by a subsequent grant of a right to carry freight.

IV. RAILROAD CORPORATIONS.—The status of such corporations, as private or public, has already been seen. The doctrines applicable to the creation and organization of corporations generally have also been discussed in a previous article.¹ There remains to be considered here, however, certain matters which apply peculiarly to railroad corporations.

1. Creation and Organization.—At an early period, railroad corporations were created by special acts of legislature, by which charters were granted, in which were enumerated the powers, duties, and liabilities of the corporation. But in order to secure uniformity in the powers conferred, to prevent the grant of special and exclusive privileges, and to secure to the State the right to alter, amend, or repeal the charter at pleasure, it has become an almost universal rule that such corporations are created by general laws, this rule being provided for by the constitutions of many of the States and by the statutes of others.²

Richmond etc. R. Co. v. Louisa R. Co., 13 How. (U. S.) 77.

See also as to the exact limits of the points between which the exclusive grant is given in certain cases, Macon v. Macon etc. R. Co., 7 Ga. 221; Mohawk Bridge Co. v. Utica etc. R. Co., 6 Paige (N. Y.) 554; Pontchartrain R. Co. v. Lafayette etc. R. Co., 10 La. Ann. 741.

A grant of the exclusive right to operate a railroad between Boston and Lowell was held not to be infringed by an act authorizing the construction of a railroad from Boston to a point not within five miles of Lowell. Boston etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 375.

But though railroads are not ordinarily monopolies, it must be remembered that all franchises are in their nature exclusive, except as against the government, and where a railroad has been chartered by the government, and a competing line is established without legislative authority, such competing road may be enjoined in equity. Raritan etc. R. Co. v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 546; 3 Blackstone's Com. 219; Newburgh etc. Turnpike Co. v. Miller, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 101. See also INJUNCTION, vol. 10, p. 967, 969; Torrey v. Camden etc. R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 293; Norwich Gas Light Co. v. Norwich City Gas Co., 25 Conn. 19.

Construction of Exclusive Grants.—It is a well known rule that grants of exclusive rights are always to receive a strict construction. Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. (U.

S.) 419; Pierce on Railroads 455; Lafayette Plank Road Co. v. New Albany etc. R. Co., 13 Ind. 90.

A charter gave a company "the exclusive right of transportation or conveyance of persons, merchandise and produce . . . provided that the charge shall not exceed" a certain rate. It was held that by this the State did not guarantee the exclusive right to charge the maximum rates named. Georgia R. & B. Co. v. Smith, 70 Ga. 694; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 385.

Jurisdiction.—No State court or circuit court of the United States, within one State, has jurisdiction of a bill in equity brought by a railroad corporation claiming the exclusive right under a charter from the legislature of another State, to construct a railroad over a certain line in such other State, to restrain another corporation from constructing a railroad interfering with the plaintiff's right. Northern Indiana R. Co. v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 15 How. (U. S.) 233.

1. Supra, this title, Legal Status, etc.; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 192, et seq.

2. The constitutions of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Indiana, Missouri, Colorado, Mississippi (1890, § 90), Louisiana, and Arkansas forbid the passage of any special act granting to any person or corporation the right to lay down railroad tracks. Stimson's Am. Stat. Law, § 395; 1 Morawitz on Priv. Corp. § 12; San Francisco v. Spring Valley Water Works, 48 Cal. 493. In Virginia, the matter is

The organization is usually brought about by persons known as "promoters," and the incorporation is effected afterwards by compliance with the general statutory requirements concerning railroad corporations in the State in which the corporation is to exist.¹ The usual manner of proceeding is this: A certain number of persons, usually not less than a stated number, sign articles of association, which name persons to act as provisional directors, and set forth particular descriptions of the enterprise, i. e., the name of the corporation, the route along which the road is to be built, the termini, and the amount of capital stock, of which each person signing is to take a certain amount, paying a prescribed per cent. in cash to the directors or to the treasurer.² When the regulated by statute. See 1 Minor's Insts. (3rd ed.) (509) 567; Davies v. Creighton, 33 Gratt. (Va.) 702.

Such provisions do not prohibit the legislature from passing a special act, changing the name of an existing corporation or giving it power to purchase additional property. Wallace v. Loomis, 97 U. S. 146. Nor is a special act enabling a railway company to take a new name and to extend its road an act renewing or extending its charter, or creating a new corporation. Attorney Gen'l v. Joy, 55 Mich. 94. See also for particular cases, Hodges v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 58 Md. 603; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 270; Haunnett v. Little Rock etc. R. Co., 20 Ark. 207; Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Orton, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 157. General laws as used in this connection mean laws passed governing the formation, etc., not of corporations generally, but of railroad corporations. See New York act 1850, Birdseye's Laws Stat. etc. of N. Y., p. 2401. See also In re Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 75 N. Y. 335; In re New York El. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 327.

For the reasons which induced the present tendency to constitutional provisions against special legislation, see Morawitz on Priv. Corp. (2d. ed.), § 12, and the reasoning adopted in Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 29; San Francisco v. Spring Valley Water Works, 48 Cal. 511.

The charter of the M. & C. road did not authorize it to mortgage or sell its corporate franchises; therefore, a judicial sale upon mortgages executed by it would not invest the purchaser with any corporate capacity whatever. A "special act" of the legislature undertaking to give such an effect to the sale, and authorizing the purchaser to reorganize, create a new stock, and elect another board of directors, is, in substance and legal effect, an attempt to create a corporation and confer corporate powers, and is therefore in conflict with the constitutional provision against the creation of a corporation by special act. Atchinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21.

1. Promoters.—Promoters are not peculiar to railroad corporations. As to their powers, liabilities, etc., see CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 201; Beach on Railways, § 1, et seq.; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Perry, 37 Ark. 164; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 610, note; Munson v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 103 N. Y. 58; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 77; Braddock v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 45 N. J. L. 363; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 436.

2. Subscribers to Articles.—In New York, the requirement is that not less than twenty-five shall sign the articles of association. Birdseye's Stat. of N. Y., p. 2401. In Illinois, five or more persons are required, and in New Jersey not less than seven. See Allman v. Havanna etc. R. Co., 88 Ill. 521; Central R. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 485.

Non-residents are not excluded by a general law authorizing any number of persons not less than seven to form a corporation to construct a railroad, unless it is expressly so provided. Central R. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 475; 32 N. J. Eq. 755.

Articles of Association.—Several copies of these articles signed by different subscribers will be treated as one set. Lake Ontario etc. R. Co. v. Mason, 16 N. Y. 451.

In California, it is required that the articles shall set forth the amount subscribed and by whom. The liability of stockholders at the date of the filing is limited to those named in the articles, and to the amounts specified therein. Monterey v. Hildredth, 53 Cal. 123.

Filing or Recording Articles.—Until the proper filing of the articles a railroad corporation is not properly formed, and before such filing a subscriber, having the articles in his possession, may alter and reduce his subscription to any extent he pleases. Burt v. Earrar, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 518; 8 So. Law Rev., N. S. 530.

The filing of the articles of association in the office of the Secretary of State is notice to the State at the time of the manner of organization; and after eight or nine years have elapsed it is too late for the State to file an information against the company for defective organization. State v. Bailey, 19 Ind. 452.

Where the articles are filed and the Secretary of State has issued the certificate required, the corporation, upon user, becomes one de facto, and neither the eligibility of the directors nor the existence of the corporation can be collaterally attacked. Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Danville etc. R. Co., 75 Ill. 113.

Naming Directors.—In Eakright v. Logansport etc. R. Co., 13 Ind. 404, it was held that the omission of the names of the directors in the articles would not defeat the corporate existence.

But the contrary is held in New York, and a subscription to articles where the names of the directors were left blank, is inoperative; and it is not made binding by the insertion of such names without the subscriber's consent. Dutchess etc. R. Co. v. Mabbett, 58 N. Y. 397; Troy etc. R. Co. v. Tibbitts, 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 297.

Payment.—A California act (Stats. 1861, p. 607) providing for the incorporation of railroad companies, required at least $1,000 per mile to be subscribed and ten per cent. thereof in cash actually and in good faith to be paid in before incorporation. It is held that a payment of said ten per cent. could not be made in a check on a bank drawn by a person who had not, on deposit, funds sufficient to meet it, even though it appeared that such check would have been paid if presented. People v. Chambers, 42 Cal. 201. In this case it was also held that the payment in cash of the ten per cent. of the amount subscribed was a condition precedent without which the subscribers would have no power to incorporate. See also People v. Stockton etc. R. Co., 45 Cal. 306. Compare Mitchell v. Rome R. Co., 17 Ga. 574.

Under a very similar provision in New York, it is held that if $1,000 of stock for every mile of the proposed road is subscribed and ten per cent. thereon is paid in good faith before the articles are filed, that is sufficient, and that it is not material that there are some subscriptions upon which the ten per cent. has not been paid. Ogdensburg etc. R. Co. v. Frost, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 542.

See also generally Boston etc. R. Co. v. Midland R. Co., 1 Gray (Mass.) 340; Lyon v. Ewings, 17 Wis. 61.

Subscription.—The subscription of a firm name is a proper compliance with a statute requiring the subscriber to sign "his name." Ogdensburg etc. R. Co. v. Frost, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 541.

The New York act required that at least one thousand dollars for every mile of road to be built should be subscribed, and ten per cent. of this amount paid up. It was held that it was a sufficient compliance with this requirement if a sum in gross had been subscribed and ten per cent. paid, equal to one thousand dollars for every mile. Lake Ontario etc. R. Co. v. Mason, 16 N. Y. 451; Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Hatch, 20 N. Y. 157. Conditional subscriptions may in some cases be valid. New Albany etc. R. Co. v. McCormick, 10 Ind. 499.

See generally Stock; Stockholders.

Description of the Enterprise.—Where an estimate of the length of the road is required, an approximate one is sufficient. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Hatch, 20 N. Y. 157.

Under New York Laws 1850, ch. 140, § 22, the map to be filed of the railroad route must show the land taken; a single line not indicating the width of the route, nor whether it represents the center or side, will not sustain a petition to condemn. In re Boston etc. R. Co., 10 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 104.

Where the articles were defective in not definitely stating the termini of the road, or the counties through which it was to pass, such defects are immaterial after the road has been put in operation, and the company recognized by legislation. Cayuga Lake R. Co. v. Kyle, 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 659; 64 N. Y. 185; Pierce on Railroads 6.

In the case of People v. Cheeseman, 7 Colo. 376, the articles of incorporarequisite amount of stock has been taken, and the whole, or a prescribed part, paid in, the articles are to be filed in the office of some officer, usually the Secretary of State, and the subscribers and stockholders then become a corporation possessed of all the rights, powers, and liabilities which belong to corporations.¹ It seems that a substantial compliance with the statute is sufficient, and that corporate existence will not be defeated by slight omissions or incorrect descriptions;² though the articles will not bind the subscribers unless complete in substance.³ And all defects in the process of organization and formation may be cured by tion declared an intention to create a company "for the purpose of locating, building, owning, and maintaining a union depot for railroads in the city of Denver. . . . and for the location, building and maintaining of as many different lines of railroad in said depot to the exterior boundaries of the city of Denver as may be necessary for the accommodation and use of the different railroad companies making said city a point of delivery for freight and passengers."

It was held that this language did not indicate an attempt to create an ordinary railroad company, and that therefore the corporation created could not act as such.

Description of the Route.—By the general railroad law of Maryland, it is required that the certificate of incorporation of a railroad company shall state the names of the termini of the road, and the county or counties, city or cities, through which it is to pass. It was held that it is a sufficient compliance with these requirements if the termini be fixed in the State of Maryland with reasonable certainty, and that the cities through which the road is to pass be specified; and the fact that the certificate describes the route of the road as running partly through the State of West Virginia, does not invalidate the incorporation under the general law of Maryland, its termini being in that State. Piedmont etc. R. Co. v. Speelman, 67 Md. 260; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 316. See also infra this title, Location and its subdivisions.

Where the articles are defective in not specifying with sufficient certainty the terminus of the road but are properly filed, such filing is constructive notice to the State of the defect and a failure by the State to take advantage thereof for eight years will destroy its right to proceed by quo warranto thereafter. State v. Bailey, 19 Ind. 452.

1. CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 192, et seq.; Pierce on Railroads 3, et seq.; Laws of New York (1850) ch. 140; Clarkson v. Hudson River R. Co., 12 N. Y. 304.

2. People v. Stockton etc. R. Co., 45 Cal. 306. In this case there was an omission of the words "in good faith" in a portion of the affidavit that payment of ten per cent. of the value of the stock subscribed had been paid in. See also Mokelumne Hill Canal etc. Co. v. Woodbury, 14 Cal. 424; Pierce on Railroads (2nd ed.) 4; 1 Wood on Railways 24; Com. v. Central Pass. R. Co., 52 Pa. St. 506.

Thus where the affidavit required by statute to be annexed to the articles did not contain the allegation required, viz., "that it is intended in good faith to construct or to maintain and operate the road mentioned in the articles of association," but all other provisions were properly complied with, it was held that the corporation was one de facto and that its stockholders could not object that it was not strictly one de jure. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Eary, 26 N. Y. 75.

And where the affidavit omitted to state in terms that the ten per cent. upon subscriptions had been paid "in good faith to the directors," but implied that the payment was so made, it was held that the omission was immaterial. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Hatch, 20 N. Y. 157.

3. Dutchess etc. R. Co. v. Mabbett, 58 N. Y. 397; Monterey etc. R. Co. v. Hildreth, 53 Cal. 123.

Must be a Substantial Compliance.—There must be at least a substantial compliance with the statutory requirements, else the subscribers acquire no right to constitute themselves a corporation. People v. Chambers, 42 Cal.

legislative recognition,¹ except that such recognition cannot create a corporation where one de facto did not exist.²

2. Of the Charter.—The articles of association or incorporation when properly filed and recorded, together with the general law providing for the formation of corporations, constitute the charter of a corporation, defining its rights, privileges and liabilities.³ If the corporation is created by a special act, as is sometimes the case, the special act constitutes in itself the charter of the corporation. When once there is an acceptance of the charter, it becomes a contract between the State and the corporation, the obligation of which cannot be impaired by legislation—except where the right is expressly reserved.⁴ But until 209; Eaton v. Aspinwall, 19 N. Y. 119; People v. Chesebrough, 7 Colo. 376; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 400; infra, this title, Corporate Existence.

1. Effect of Legislative Recognition.—McAuley v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 83 Ill. 348; McCartney v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ill. 611; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 326; Black River etc. R. Co. v. Barnard, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 258; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Marshall Co., 3 W. Va. 319; Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co., 3 Colo. 82; 100 U. S. 55; Mead v. New York etc. R. Co., 45 Conn. 199; Illinois etc. R. Co. v. Cook, 29 Ill. 237; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 3 Mo. App. 315; aff'd 66 Mo. 228; Pierce on Railroads, p. 7, note; 1 Wood's R. Y. Law 23.

The legislature has the same right to ratify and confirm an irregularly organized corporate body that it has to create a new one. Mitchell v. Deeds, 49 Ill. 416; 95 Am. Dec. 621.

2. Attorney Gen'l v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 35 Wis. 602.

3. See 1 Rorer on Railroads 13; Pierce on Railroads 3; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Danville etc. R. Co., 75 Ill. 113.

The charter of a railroad company cannot be attacked collaterally for bad faith in obtaining it. Garrett v. Dillsburg etc. R. Co., 78 Pa. St. 465.

4. Charter as a Contract.—Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 518; Bruffett v. Great Western R. Co., 25 Ill. 310; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Bowers, 4 Houst. (Del.) 506. See this subject discussed in all its bearings in CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 209; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 520. The charter does not become such a contract until it is accepted. State v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 12 Gill. & J. (Md.) 399; Pierce on Railroads 450.

There is one point in this connection not usually brought out; it is that mentioned by Chief Justice Waite in the case of Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U. S. 814, viz: that it is not the charter of a private corporation that is protected, but only any contract the charter may contain. If there is no contract therein there is nothing in the grant on which the constitution can act. There is always an inquiry in this class of cases whether or not a contract has been actually entered into.

It is a principle bearing its correctness on its face that a general law reserving the power to amend or repeal all charters granted does not apply to charters granted prior to its passage. It was not a part of the contract of those charters and cannot be invoked to justify an impairment of the charter contract. See this point held in State v. Augusta etc. R. Co., 54 Ga. 401.

A clause in a railroad charter authorizing the corporation to construct their road "in such direction as they shall deem best to connect with the termination of the city railroad" is a revocable license, and not a contract which is infringed by the taking up of a portion of the track of the city railroad, so as to prevent the connection. Southwark R. Co. v. Philadelphia, 47 Pa. St. 314.

The charter is not only a contract between the State and the corporation but it constitutes a contract between the corporation and a subscriber to the capital stock. Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Cross, 20 Ark. 443. So that any violation of this charter is an infringement of this contract and will release the subscriber. See also STOCKHOLDERS.

But a provision in the charter for a forfeiture in case a certain section there is an acceptance by the contemplated corporators, either express or implied, no rights or liabilities accrue to the corporators as a corporation.¹ The acceptance may be either express or implied. It may be and is implied in all cases for the formation of corporations under general laws, from the application of the corporators for a charter.² It may also be implied when acts are done in pursuance of a charter, which would otherwise be unlawful,³ or from an assumption of authority thereby granted,⁴ and where grants beneficial to a corporation are made it will be presumed that they have been accepted by it when nothing appears to the contrary, just as in the case of similar grants to a natural person.⁵

The right to alter, amend, or repeal the charter under certain conditions is usually reserved by the State; in such cases the reserved power is part of the contract, and the assent of the corporation is not necessary to render the alterations or amendments binding.⁶

of the road should not be completed within a specified time is not of the essence of this contract between the corporation and its subscribers. San Antonio v. Jones, 28 Tex. 19.

The charter also constitutes a contract between the several members of the corporation. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 27 Miss. 517; Zabriskie v. Hackensack etc. R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 178; 90 Am. Dec. 617.

Charter Granted on Condition.—

Where a charter of a railroad company is granted on condition that it shall secure the consent of the city before it can exercise its franchise, the road cannot be built without such consent. Where the consent was never obtained a charter to a new company giving authority to construct such railway is not a law impairing the obligation of a contract. People's R. Co. v. Memphis R. Co., 10 Wall. (U. S.) 38. See also Walker v. Devaux, 4 Paige (N. Y.) 251.

Failure to perform conditions subsequent annexed to grants of land to a railroad company have been condoned in particular cases—such, for example, where the existence of civil war or other similar circumstance prevents performance. See Davis v. Gray, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 203; Columbus v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 37 Ind. 294.

1. Pierce on Railroads 5; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 193; 1 Rorer on Railroads 19; 2 Kent's Com. (2d ed.) 277; State v. Dawson, 22 Ind. 272; State v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 12 Gill & J. (Md.)

399; Mississippi Society etc. v. Musgrove, 44 Miss. 820.

The acceptance must be unconditional and complete. Angell & A. on Corp., § 88. See also as to acceptance in case of condition precedent, Lyons v. Orange etc. R. Co., 32 Md. 18. Before the acceptance of a grant is made it may be withdrawn at any time, although no power of repeal is reserved in the grant. 1 Wood's Railway Law, and cases cited.

2. 1 Rorer on Railroads, p. 19; Pierce on Railroads, p. 5; Beach on Railways, § 28; Hawes v. Anglo Saxon Petroleum Co., 101 Mass. 385; State v. Dawson, 16 Ind. 40.

Express Acceptance.—See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 193; Hudson v. Carman, 41 Me. 84.

3. Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 3 Mo. App. 315; 66 Mo. 228; Kenton Co. Ct. v. Bank Lick Turnp. Co., 10 Bush (Ky.) 529; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Cole, 29 Ohio St. 126.

4. 1 Rorer on Railroads, p. 19, and cases cited; Bangor etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 47 Me. 34; Goodin v. Evans, 18 Ohio St. 150; 1 Wood on Railways, p. 21; Illinois River R. Co. v. Zimmer, 20 Ill. 655; Lyons v. Orange etc. R. Co., 32 Md. 18; Gifford v. New Jersey R. Co., 10 N. J. Eq. 171.

5. Bangor etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 47 Me. 34; Pierce on Railroads, p. 5. 1 Rorer on Railroads, p. 19; Coffin v. Collins, 17 Me. 442.

6. Amendments to the Charter—Reserved Power.—Pierce on Railroads

The charter defines the powers of the corporation and is the measure of such powers. Where a conflict exists between charter provisions and those of a general law, the former prevails as to the government of the corporation unless such general law was intended as an amendment or modification of the charter.¹

3. Domicile, Citizenship and Residence.—The general doctrines concerning the domicile, citizenship and residence of corporations apply as well to railroad corporations as to others, and these have

456-7; Stone v. Wisconsin, 94 U. S. 181; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 627, et seq.

And even where this power is not reserved an amendment may become valid by the assent, expressed or implied, of the corporation. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Steiner, 61 Ala. 559; Snead v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 11 Ind. 104; Pierce on Railroads 449; Bangor etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 47 Me. 34.

In all cases of railroad corporations formed under general laws, the power of amendment or appeal expressed there as reserved to the State will become a part of the corporation's charter. Stone v. Wisconsin, 94 U. S. 181.

Although the charter of an incorporated company may be altered by the procurement of the company, in furtherance of the designs and objects of the company, yet due regard must be had, in all such cases, to the inviolability of private contracts. The assent of subscribers must be obtained to any amendment of the charter which materially or essentially alters the original contract of the parties. Winter v. Muscogee R. Co., 11 Ga. 438.

The alteration of a railroad charter, subject to amendment, alteration or repeal, by extending the time for the completion of the road, is no alteration of the contract with a subscriber to its stock. Agricultural Branch R. Co. v. Winchester, 13 Allen (Mass.) 29.

A reservation in the charter of a company of the right to authorize other railway companies to enter upon and use its tracks extends to a branch road purchased from another company whose charter contained no such reservation; and this although since the purchase the legislature had enacted that the purchasing company "shall have all the powers and privileges and be subject to all the duties, restrictions and liabilities" set forth in the latter charter. Lexington etc. R. Co. v. Fitchburg R. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 266.

Repeal.—The repeal of a general law authorizing the formation of railroad corporations does not affect corporations already existing which were created under it. Donworth v. Coolbaugh, 5 Iowa 300; Bewick v. Alpena Harbor Co., 39 Mich. 700; Freehold Mut. L. Assoc. v. Brown, 29 N. J. Eq. 121.

A special charter may be repealed by a general law. State v. Comr's etc., 37 N. J. L. 228; aff'd 38 N. J. L. 472.

Under its power to repeal the legislature may provide a judicial proceeding for dissolving a corporation and winding up its affairs on account of its abandonment of its business. And it is no defense to such a proceeding that the abandonment was not voluntary or that the corporation has charters from other States. Such a proceeding affects only franchises granted by the State authorizing it. Pierce on Railroads, p. 10; Hart v. Boston etc. R. Co., 40 Conn. 524; Com. v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 26.

1. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 207.

Where the charter of a railroad corporation contains a provision as to the manner of condemning land for its right of way, the method pointed out by such provision, and not that prescribed by the general law, must be followed. Norfolk Southern R. Co. v. Ely, 95 N. Car. 77.

Construction of Charters.—Other leading cases than those cited in which the charters of particular railroad corporations have been construed, are Richmond etc. R. Co. v. Louisa R. Co., 13 How. (U. S.) 71; Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117; Nicholson v. New York etc. R. Co., 22 Conn. 74; Danbury etc. R. Co. v. Wilson, 22 Conn. 435; Norwich etc. R. Co. v. Killingly, 25 Conn. 402; Johnson v. Pensacola etc. R. Co., 9 Fla. 299; Florida etc. R. Co. v. Pensacola etc. R. Co., 10 Fla. 145; People v. Logan Co., 45 Ill. 162; Prather v. Jeffersonville etc. R. Co., 52 Ind. 16; Edward v. Lawrenceburgh etc. R. Co., 7 Ind. 711; Newcastle etc. R. Co. v. Peru etc. R. Co., 3 Ind. 464; been presented elsewhere.¹ The domicile of a railway corporation is always within the State creating it; its particular location depends upon the language of the statute.² For purposes of jurisdiction a corporation is always a citizen of the State creating it.³

State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189; Lowell etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 7 Gray (Mass.) 27; Boston R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 375; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Salem etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 1; Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Michigan Southern R. Co., 4 Mich. 361; State v. Southern Minn. R. Co., 18 Minn. 40; Ross v. Elizabethtown etc. R. Co., 20 N. J. L. 230; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. National R. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. 441; State v. Wilton R. Co., 19 N. H. 521; Tillitson v. Hudson River R. Co., 9 N. Y. 575; 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 406; Johnson v. Hudson River R. Co., 49 N. Y. 455; Coy v. Utica etc. R. Co., 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 643; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Canal Com'rs, 21 Pa. St. 9; Miller v. Canal Com'rs, 21 Pa. St. 23; Mayor etc. of Pittsburg v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 48 Pa. St. 355; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. First German Lutheran Congregation, 53 Pa. St. 445; Hughes v. Providence etc. R. Co., 2 R. I. 493; Vermont etc. R. Co. v. Clays, 21 Vt. 30; White River Turnpike Co. v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 21 Vt. 590; Haswell v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 23 Vt. 228; Quimby v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 23 Vt. 387.

1. CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 206; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 330; DOMICILE, vol. 5, p. 857; CONFLICT OF LAWS, vol. 3, pp. 573, 642. See also Pierce on Railroads, 14 et seq.; Rorer on Railroads, p. 64, et seq.; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Letson, 2 How. (U. S.) 497.

The question of citizenship arises in determining the jurisdiction of suits by and against corporations. The places of a corporation's domicile and of its citizenship are practically the same, being always in the State creating the corporation. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 3, p. 206; Pierce on Railroads p. 16, et seq.

Meaning of "Citizenship" as Here Used.—It is well understood that a corporation is not a "citizen" within the meaning of the provisions of the Federal Constitution respecting the privileges and immunities of the citizens of the several States. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Whitton, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 270; Paul

v. Virginia, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 177; Liverpool etc. Ins. Co. v. Massachusetts, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 566; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 265-6. But for the purposes of jurisdiction, it is conclusively presumed that all the stockholders are citizens of the State creating the corporation. FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 367.

So that wherever in this section the word "citizen" or "citizenship" occurs as referring to corporations, it is used with these qualifications.

2. Domicile.—Bank of Augusta v. Earle, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 519; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 206; Pierce on Railroads, p. 14; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, p. 28 et seq.; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 168; 1 Rorer on Railroads pp. 64-65.

A railroad corporation cannot migrate and change its domicile to another State than that of its creation without special legislative authority. Aspinwall v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 20 Ind. 492; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Glenn, 28 Md. 287.

The "home" of a corporation must be taken to be that place which is occupied as such—where its profits come home to it, whence orders emanate, and where the chief officers of the company are to be found. Adams v. Great Western R. Co., 6 H. & N. 404.

Residence and domicile are by no means synonymous, since, as will be seen, a corporation may have a residence in several States and in several places in the same State, while it can have only one domicile.

3. A "Citizen" of the Creating State.—For all purposes of Federal jurisdiction a railroad corporation is a citizen of the State creating it. It may or may not have its chief office and carry on its business in such State. The one criterion is, what State created it. See Connor v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 36 Fed. Rep. 273; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 696; Pacific R. Co. v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 565; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 590; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Whitton, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 270; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Letson, 2 How. (U. S.) 497; Marshall

In case of railroad corporations it frequently occurs that the corporation is incorporated in one State and has a mere license to build and operate its road through the territory of another. In such case the corporation is a citizen only of the State which created it, and is foreign so far as regards that State from which it has only a mere license.¹ And where a corporation is chartered in one State, and a statute is passed in a sister State authorizing such corporation to extend its road there, and to exercise within

v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 16 How. (U. S.) 314.

The citizenship of the members composing the corporation does not in the least affect the citizenship of the corporation. It is an absolute and conclusive presumption that they are all citizens of the creating State. Hatch v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 6 Blatchf. (U. S.) 105; Minnett v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 460; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 Ohio St. 208; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 1 Black (U. S.) 286; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 65.

1. Thus, in the case of Goodlett v. Louisville, etc. R. Co., 122 U. S. 391; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company was a corporation created by Kentucky and having from Tennessee a license to construct a railroad within its limits and between certain points and to exert there some of its corporate powers. It was held that the corporation was not a citizen of Tennessee and that, therefore, an action against it by a citizen of Tennessee was removable into the Federal courts. See also Pennsylvania etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 118 U. S. 290; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 58; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Koontz, 104 U. S. 5; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 105; Callahan v. Louisville, etc. R. Co., 11 Fed. Rep. 536; Myers v. Murray, 43 Fed. Rep. 695; Williams v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 267; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 Ohio St. 208; Allegheny Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 51 Pa. St. 228.

A different doctrine is laid down in Pierce on Railroads, p. 15, but it will be observed that the authorities for his rule are two Virginia cases (Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Wightman, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 431; 26 Am. Rep. 384; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Noell, 32 Gratt. (Va.) 394, both of which were reversed in the Federal Supreme Court in Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Koontz, 104 U. S. 5.

Effect of Leasing as to Citizenship.—

The fact that a railroad corporation leases a railroad chartered by a certain State does not make such corporation a citizen of that State. Callahan v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 11 Fed. Rep. 536; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 594; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Koontz, 104 U. S. 5; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 105. See also Brownell v. Troy etc. R. Co., 3 Fed. Rep. 761.

But a foreign company purchasing the franchises and property of a domestic company assuming its liabilities and becoming merged and consolidated with it becomes a citizen of the State. Angier v. East Tennessee etc. R. Co., 74 Ga. 634; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 618.

A corporation leasing and operating a railroad in a State other than that of its creation does not become a citizen of such State, but has a mere express or implied license, in the absence of actual incorporation. Williams v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 267; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 Ohio St. 208.

And a railroad company which has leased its property under a perpetual lease to a corporation of a foreign State, does not thereby become a citizen of such foreign State. Crane v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 402; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 174.

Foreign Corporation Filing Copy of Its Charter, etc.—Under an Iowa statute which gives foreign railroad companies, which have filed copies of their charters with the Secretary of State, the same rights and privileges as domestic railroad corporations, a foreign railroad company cannot claim the rights of a domestic corporation without first showing that it has filed a copy of its charter. State v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 80 Iowa 586.

Interstate Consolidation.—As to the citizenship of a corporation formed by the consolidation of several corporations each of a different State, see CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 272; Peik v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 94 U. S. 164.

its borders the same rights and privileges which belong to it in the State of its creation, such statute does not make the corporation a citizen of the latter State, but confers upon it a mere license.¹ A State, however, may confer citizenship upon a corporation of another State; the question as to whether it does so or not is one of legislative intent, and where it is plain that the legislature intended to incorporate the company and make it a citizen, its citizenship will not be denied.² A corporation by accepting the benefits accruing under the license assumes all the obligations necessarily accompanying it, and becomes liable to answer the claims of citizens of the licensing State as if a domestic corporation. It does not, however, surrender its right to have causes in

1. The case of Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 65, affords an illustration of this. The State of Maryland incorporated the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and subsequently the State of Virginia by a statute, which set out at large the Maryland act, declared that the "same rights and privileges shall be and are hereby granted to the aforesaid company in the territory of Virginia as are granted to it within the territory of Maryland," the company to be subject to the same penalties and obligations as were imposed by the Maryland act, and the same rights, privileges and immunities being secured to Virginia and her citizens, except as to lateral roads. Concerning the question whether the legislature of Virginia and of Congress created a new corporation the court said: "In both, the original Maryland act of incorporation is referred to, but neither, expressly or by implication, created a new corporation. The company was chartered to construct a road in Virginia as well as in Maryland. The latter could not be done without the consent of Virginia. That consent was given upon the terms which she thought necessary to prescribe. . . . The permission was broad and comprehensive in its scope, but it was a license and nothing more." See also Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 10 Fed. Rep. 497; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 Ohio St. 208; Erie R. Co. v. Stringer, 32 Ohio St. 468; State v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 30 N. J. L. 473; 31 N. J. L. 531; Pierce on Railroads p. 20; Williams v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 267.

The question is, however, always one of legislative intent, and where the plain purpose of the legislature is to adopt a foreign corporation, it becomes for all purposes of jurisdiction a citizen of the State adopting it. Uphoff v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 5 Fed. Rep. 545; Pierce on Railroads, 19 et seq.; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 31; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 65.

Consult here Mead v. New York etc. R. Co., 45 Conn. 198. Compare Allegheny Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 51 Pa. St. 288; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Wightman, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 431, neither of which cases, however, are any longer of weight.

2. Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Alabama, 107 U. S. 581; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 172; Goodlett v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 122 U. S. 391; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

It is undoubted that a State by appropriate legislation may make a corporation created by another State its citizen. And when the effect of the legislation is to adopt a foreign corporation, such corporation becomes a citizen, as well as the State adopting it, as of that to which it owes its original charter. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 444; Henen v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 881; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 496; Arapahoe Co. v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 277; Uphoff v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 5 Fed. Rep. 545; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 1 Black (U. S.) 286.

It is often difficult to distinguish whether the effect of State legislation is to make a corporation a citizen or merely to extend to it a license. Where the act of a State provides for the organization and incorporation of a company, it thereby becomes a corporation of that State and is a citizen thereof, although some persons with the same powers and objects have been incorporated by the same name in another State. But when the act does not create the corporation anew, but recognizes it as already existing by the laws of another State, and extends to it like powers as are given to it by the laws of the State incorporating it, it is to be regarded as a mere license enlarging the field of operation of the company; and such company on extending its operations under such an act does not become a citizen of that State, but goes there as the corporation of another State, liable to be sued in the State embracing the new field of its operations, but deprived of none of its qualities or rights as a corporation of another State. Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 10 Fed. Rep. 497. See also Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 444; Henen v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 881; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 496; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 65.

which it is a party transferred to the Federal courts, whenever it is sued by a citizen of a State other than that of which it is itself a citizen.¹

1. Right to Remove Causes Into Federal Courts.—Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 65 and cases; Austin v. New York etc. R. Co., 25 N. J. L. 381; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 1 Black (U. S.) 297; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Letson, 2 How. (U. S.) 497; Marshall v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 16 How. (U. S.) 329; Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 10 Fed. Rep. 497; Texas etc. R. Co. v. McAllister, 59 Tex. 349; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 289; Union Pac. R. Co. v. Meyers, 115 U. S. 1; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 324. Compare Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Gallahue, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 655; 65 Am. Dec. 308; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812. See also REMOVAL OF CAUSES, where the subject is fully treated.

The mere fact that a railway corporation created by one State has an office and transacts a great portion of its business within another State, does not domesticate it in that State and deprive it of its right to remove its causes into the Federal courts. And a plaintiff cannot by joining as nominal defendants citizens of the same State as himself, deprive the corporation of its privilege to have the cause removed to the Federal court. Hatch v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 6 Blatchf. (U. S.) 107; Baltimore etc. R.

Co. v. Cary, 28 Ohio St. 208; Erie R. Co. v. Stringer, 32 Ohio St. 468.

Since it is within the discretion of every State to allow or prohibit foreign corporations to carry on their business within its jurisdiction, it may prescribe such conditions as it shall see fit. One of which may be that the corporation shall consent to be sued there. And this consent is presumed from the fact of its doing business there. 1 Minor's Inst. (3rd. ed.) 579; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Gallahue, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 655; Milnor v. New York etc. R. Co. 53 N. Y. 365.

Thus it is said in the leading case of Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 446, in speaking of the right of a citizen of West Virginia to sue the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in that State: "Now is it possible that after this company has been for over half a century nurtured by the two Virginias, been permitted in their courts to condemn the lands of their citizens for its purposes, permitted to have nearly four hundred miles of their territory to lay its track, build station houses, hotels, and whatever else was requisite for its convenience, and barter and traffic with their citizens, it can be tolerated in the assertion that it is a stranger to the State granting all these rights, that as to all business transacted and all its liabilities incurred, it is not compelled to submit to the jurisdiction of the courts of the State granting all the favors it has received, but that it can drag the citizens of the State hundreds of miles from their homes to litigate their rights in the courts of another government."

In the case of Milnor v. New York etc. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 363, the court by Church, C. J., said: "When the defendant sought and obtained permission of the legislature to continue its line into and transact business in this State, it must be deemed, as to its contracts made here, to possess the powers and be subject to all the liabilities of similar corporations created by this State as adjudicated by our courts. It should not be permitted to make a contract valid here and enforceable according to our decisions, and then when its interests dictate, set up the decisions of another State holding a want of power as an excuse for its violation."

Where the corporation is chartered under the laws of several States, it becomes a citizen of each, and its domicile is in each of the States creating it.¹ In such case, although the corporation is the same in each State and in reality only one corporate body, yet for the purposes of jurisdiction the fiction is maintained that in each of the States there is a separate and distinct corporation.²

So also it is said in Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Gallahue, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 655: "It would be a startling proposition if in all such cases citizens of Virginia and others should be denied all remedy in her courts for causes of action arising under contracts and acts entered into or done within her territory, and should be turned over to the courts and laws of a sister State to seek redress."

This language is quoted with approval, in Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 65. But it must be understood that no State can impose upon a foreign corporation a condition that it shall not remove causes against it into the Federal courts. Statutes of one State enacting that a corporation organized in another State shall not transact business within its limits, unless it stipulates in advance that it will not remove into the Federal courts any suit which may be commenced against it by a citizen of the former State, have several times been decided to be an obstruction to the rights of citizens of one State to remove their causes under certain conditions into the Federal courts, and repugnant to the constitution and laws of the United States. And an agreement by a corporation in conformity to such a statute is void and of no effect. Home Ins. Co. v. Morse, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 445; Doyle v. Continental Ins. Co., 94 U. S. 535; Erie R. Co. v. Stringer, 32 Ohio St. 468; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 28 Ohio St. 208. Compare Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Wightman, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 436; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Noell, 32 Gratt. (Va.) 397; Railway Pass. Assur. Co. v. Pierce, 27 Ohio St. 155.

And notwithstanding the decisions of the courts of Virginia it has been distinctly held that the Baltimore and Ohio R. Co. has the right to remove causes against it by citizens of Virginia, to the Federal courts. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Koontz, 104 U. S. 5.

1. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Chicago

etc. R. Co., 6 Biss. (U. S.) 219; Quincy R. etc. Co. v. Adams Co., 88 Ill. 615.

A railroad company chartered by and carrying on its business in two or more States, though the capital be a unit, and there is only one set of stockholders, and one board of directors, is for all purposes of local government, a domestic corporation in each State subject to its laws as to all matters not within the exclusive control of Congress. Stone v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 U. S. 307; Graham v. Boston etc. R. Co., 118 U. S. 161; Clark v. Barnard, 108 U. S. 436.

Consolidation.—A railroad company created by the laws of any State remains a citizen of that State, although it may have been consolidated with a corporation of another State by consent of both States. Muller v. Dows, 49 U. S. 444.

2. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Vance, 96 U. S. 457; Horne v. Boston etc. R. Co., 18 Fed. Rep. 50; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 287; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 1 Black (U. S.) 286; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Whitton, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 270; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 5 Fed. Rep. 19; Uphoff v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 5 Fed. Rep. 545; Aspinwall v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 20 Ind. 492; Pacific R. Co. v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 565; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 590.

See also 1 Rorer on Railroads 68; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 30, 31. Compare Pierce on Railroads 19.

A corporation is a citizen of the State creating or incorporating it, and it cannot deny such citizenship by alleging that it is also a citizen of another State. Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Alabama, 107 U. S. 581; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 1 Black (U. S.) 286.

So that a corporation chartered by two States cannot be sued in the Federal courts for a tort committed in either against a citizen of either State, even though the plaintiff is a citizen of one State and the tort is committed in another. Burger v. Grand Rapids etc. R. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 561; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 607.

The same is true as regards the power of taxation of the several States.¹ In all other respects, however, the fiction is not observed, and a corporation is recognized as a single body politic, though a citizen of more than one State.²

The residence of a corporation is properly at the place at which its principal office is located,³ but it is an almost universal rule that within the State where it is chartered a railroad corporation is a resident in any county, city, or town through which its road passes, or in which it has an office or place of business, at least so far as regards the locality of suits against it, and the service of process in such suits.⁴

1. In such case the tax is apportioned by taking the whole income or value of the franchise, and the length of the road in the State. Pierce on Railroads (2nd ed.) p. 21; Delaware Railroad Tax Cases, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 206; State Railroad Tax Cases, 92 U. S. 581; TAXATION.

Venue of Suits Against Corporations Created by the United States.—The Union Pacific Railway Company and the Texas Pacific Railway Company, and other railway corporations created by the United States government are corporations of the United States, and not of any particular State, even though certain State and territorial corporations have been consolidated with them. Such corporations have a right, therefore, to have all causes against them removed into the Federal courts, on the ground that such causes are those "arising under some law of Congress." Union Pac. R. Co. v. Myers, 115 U. S. 1.

See also U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 98 U. S. 569.

Within the meaning of the Missouri damage act (1870) the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad though chartered by Congress, is "a corporation of another State." Smith v. Pacific R. Co., 61 Mo. 17.

2. "The fiction which makes two or three corporations out of what is in fact one, is established only for the purpose of giving each State its legitimate control over the charters which it grants; the acts and neglects of the corporation are done by it as a whole." Horne v. Boston etc. R. Co., 18 Fed. Rep. 50. See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 207, note 3.

In Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 12 Wall. (U. S.), the court by Justice Wayne said: "We see no reason why several States cannot by competent legislation unite in creating the same corporation, or in combining several pre-existing corporations into one." See also Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Maryland, 10 How. (U. S.) 392 (opinion of Taney, C. J.).

3. Southwestern R. Co. v. Paulk, 24 Ga. 356; Androscoggin etc. R. Co. v. Stevens, 28 Me. 434.

And a company may therefore be sued in the county where its principal office is, even though no part of the road lies in the county. Bristol v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 15 Ill. 436.

4. Residence.—Many cases sustain the doctrine of the text. See Glaize v. South Carolina R. Co., 1 Strobb. (S. Car.) 72; Bristol v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 15 Ill. 436; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Bank, 82 Ill. 493; Dixon v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 31 Mo. 409; Slavens v. South Pac. R. Co., 51 Mo. 308; Baldwin v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 5 Iowa 518; Richardson v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 8 Iowa 260; Hills v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 660; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 44 (principal office of lessor and lessee); Belden v. New York etc. R. Co., 15 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 17; Sherwood v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 650 (should be treated as an inhabitant and freeholder in each county where its track is laid); Pond v. Hudson River R. Co., 17 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 543 (company not to be deemed a non-resident of a county through which its road passes, so as to be liable to be sued on short summons); Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Letson, 2 How. (U. S.) 497; U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 98 U. S. 569; Davis v. Central R. Co., 17 Ga. 323; 1 Minor's Insts. (3rd ed.) p. (520) 581; Ang. & Ames on Corp. (10th ed.), § 107.

This is made the rule by statute in some States. See Slavens v. South Pac. R. Co., 51 Mo. 308; Dixon v.

4. Corporate Existence.—A railroad corporation may exist as one de facto and de jure, even though there may have been irregularities in the process of its formation and incorporation, unless, however, some essential condition of existence has been neglected.¹ Proof of corporate existence is made by producing the charter, and by evidence of user of the franchises granted under Hannibal etc. R. Co., 31 Mo. 409; Houston etc. R. Co. v. Ford, 53 Tex. 364; New Albany etc. R. Co. v. Haskell, 11 Ind. 301; 1 Rorer on Railroads 67; Androscoggin R. Co. v. Stevens, 28 Me. 434; Thomas v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 38 Ga. 222; Davis v. Central R. Co., 17 Ga. 323; Virginia Code (1887), §§ 3220-3225; 13 Va. L. J. 746-7.

See as to a qualification of the general rule under Georgia Code, §§ 746, 2988, 2994; Clark v. Chapman, 45 Ga. 486.

Service of process on leased road under Georgia Code, § 3369, see Atlanta etc. R. Co. v. Harrison, 76 Ga. 756; Hills v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 660; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 44.

Neither the principal place of business of a corporation nor the place where its officers reside, is necessarily the place of residence of the corporation. California Southern R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 65 Cal. 394; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 172. See also Hatch v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 6 Blatchf. (U S.) 105.

In Actions by the Corporation.—The residence of a railway company is limited to its line of road, and in actions or suits instituted in its favor is to be considered as being at that point on the road where the principal office is and the center of its business operations is situated. The residence of the corporations in no wise affects that of the corporation. Connecticut etc. R. Co. v. Cooper, 30 Vt. 476 (opinion by Redfield, C. J.). See also Thorn v. Central R. Co., 26 N. J. L. 121.

Where a railroad passes over parts of two counties, the corporation may maintain an action of assumpsit in that county where it has an office, which is made the depository of the books and records of the company by a vote of the directors, and a place where a large share of the business is transacted, although the company may at the same time have another office in the other county, where the residue of its business is transacted, and in which the treasurer and clerk reside. Androscoggin etc. R. Co. v. Stevens, 28 Me. 434.

1. Pierce on Railroads, p. 6; Spartansburg etc. R. Co. v. Ezell, 14 S. Car. 281; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 605; Baker v. Neff, 73 Ind. 68; Oroville etc. R. Co. v. Plumas Co., 37 Cal. 354; State v. Foulkes, 94 Ind. 493; Hughes v. Parker, 19 N. H. 181.

It is well said that it is obvious that irregularities in the organization of a corporation are not necessarily fatal to its being. Organization is but the creation of an agency by which the corporate body can act. It presupposes the existence of the artificial person. Com. v. Central Pass. R. Co., 52 Pa. St. 512.

Thus in an action to recover the amount of an unpaid subscription to stock, it is no defense that the articles of association were defective in not definitely stating the termini of the road, or the counties through which it was to pass, etc., the road having been put in operation and the company recognized by the legislature. Cayuga Lake R. Co. v. Kyle, 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 659; 64 N. Y. 185.

So also the non-payment of the installment required by law does not defeat corporate existence unless specifically made a condition precedent. Com. v. West Chester R. Co., 3 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 200; Eaton v. Aspinwall, 19 N. Y. 119.

Equity will not restrain a corporation de facto from exercising its powers merely because of the bad faith in the promoters or of the irregularities in the process of formation, or of a non-user or mis-user of its powers. National Docks R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 32 N. J. Eq. 755; Attorney Gen'l v. Stevens, 1 N. J. Eq. 369; 22 Am. Dec. 526. Compare Illinois etc. R. Co. v. Cook, 29 Ill. 237.

But no essential condition, such for example, as recording the articles of association and obtaining a certificate thereof may be omitted. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 26 N. Y. 75; Oroville etc. R. Co. v. Plumas Co., 37 Cal. 354; Hurt v. Salisbury, 55 Mo. 310; Lyons v.

it.¹ Such proof is sufficient to show an existence of the corporation de facto, and no other proof is necessary where the corporate existence is attacked in a collateral proceeding.² And private parties by dealing with the corporation are estopped thereby to deny its existence.³ There is an exception to these rules, however, in cases where there was no law authorizing the forma-

Orange etc. R. Co., 32 Md. 18; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Sullivant, 5 Ohio St. 280; Powers v. Hazleton etc. R. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429.

The California act relating to the formation of railroad corporations required the articles in corporation to set forth the amounts subscribed, and by whom, etc. California Civ. Code, § 290, 293. In Monterey etc. R. Co. v. Hildreth, 53 Cal. 123, it is held that a failure to comply with this requirement would so defeat corporate existence as to render the corporation unable to sue.

In Dutchess etc. R. Co. v. Mabbett, 58 N. Y. 397, the omission to name in the articles, the directors, was held to render the subscriptions inoperative.

When Corporate Existence Begins.—The corporation has no corporate existence until the date of the filing of the charter; persons named as directors incur no responsibility as such until then. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Tiernan, 37 Kan. 606; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 525; Hunt v. Kansas etc. Bridge Co., 11 Kan. 412.

1. Com. v. Bakeman, 105 Mass. 60; Pierce on Railroads, p. 8; Ward v. Minnesota etc. R. Co., 119 Ill. 287; Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Peoria etc. R. Co., 105 Ill. 110; Mitchell v. Deeds, 49 Ill. 416; 95 Am. Dec. 621.

The judgment of the State court upon the question of the corporate existence of a certain corporation is conclusive in the Federal courts. Secombe v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 23 Wall. (U. S.) 108.

In Ohio the method of proof is fixed by statute and is that the certificate or public record of the organization in accordance with the terms of the statute must be produced. Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Sullivant, 5 Ohio St. 276; Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21.

Proof of legislative recognition is sufficient in all cases. Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228; McAuley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 83 Ill. 348.

2. Proof Necessary in Collateral Proceedings.—Hudson v. Green Hill Seminary, 113 Ill. 619; Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Peoria etc. Co., 105 Ill. 110; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 129; Henry v. Centralia etc. R. Co., 121 Ill. 264; 30 Am. & Eng. Cas. 273; Stout v. Zulick, 48 N. J. L. 599; Heaston v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 16 Ind. 275; Swartwout v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 24 Mich. 394; Garrett v. Dillsburg etc. R. Co., 78 Pa. St. 465 (fraud in procurement of charter cannot be set up); Smith v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 6 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 179 (same); Paterson v. Arnold, 45 Pa. St. 410.

No other proof is needed, because the existence of a de facto corporation cannot be attacked collaterally. Reisner v. Strong, 24 Kan. 410; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 335; North v. State, 107 Ind. 356; Aurora etc. R. Co. v. Lawrenceburgh, 56 Ind. 80; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Stafford Co., 36 Kan. 121; Pacific Railroad Removal Cases, 115 U. S. 1; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 324; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ill. 589; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 158.

In an action by a corporation a plea of the general issue admits the corporate existence, but if defendant pleads in abatement the corporation must prove its existence. Pullman v. Upton, 96 U. S. 328; Oldtown etc. R. Co. v. Veazie, 39 Me. 571; Oroville etc. R. Co. v. Plumas Co., 37 Cal. 354; Wilcox v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 43 Mich. 584; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 518.

Proof of corporate existence is addressed always to the court, not to the jury. Ward v. Minnesota etc. R. Co., 119 Ill. 287.

3. Estoppel.—Broadwell v. Merritt (Mo. 1885), 1 S. W. Rep. 855; Oregonian R. Co. v. Oregon R. etc. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 245; 23 Fed. Rep. 332; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 518; Ensley v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 10 Ind. 178; Ward v. Minnesota etc. R. Co., 119 Ill. 287; Douglas Co. v. Bolles, 94 U. S. 104; Wilcox v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 43 Mich. 584; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584; ESTOPPEL, vol. 7, p. 29, and cases; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 284, et seq.; Black River etc. R. Co. v. Clarke, 25 N. Y. 208.

So also the members of a corporation, tion of the supposed corporation, or where the law, though existing, was unconstitutional; in such cases the charter is not voidable, but absolutely void, and may be declared to be so even in a collateral proceeding.¹

For the non-performance of the conditions provided in the statutes authorizing their creation, corporations are liable to forfeit their charter, and thus to have their existence terminated.² But it is the State, and the State alone, which has authority to take having acted as a corporation and entered into contracts as such are estopped to deny their existence as a corporation, when sued upon such contracts. Callender v. Hudson etc. R. Co., 11 Ohio St. 516; Racine etc. R. Co. v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 49 Ill. 331; Monroe v. Fort Wayne etc. R. Co., 28 Mich. 271; Montpelier etc. R. Co. v. Langdon, 46 Vt. 284.

But the estoppel does not exist where any essential of a de facto existence has been omitted. Indianapolis Furnace etc. Co., 46 Ind. 142.

1. Burton v. Schildbach, 45 Mich. 504; Snyder v. Studebaker, 19 Ind. 462; 81 Am. Dec. 415; Bennett v. Black, 19 Ind. 461 (overruling Evansville etc. R. Co. v. Evansville, 15 Ind. 395); Mok v. Detroit Building etc. Assoc., 30 Mich. 511.

This whole matter is well explained in the opinion of the court by Worden, J., in Snyder v. Studebaker, 19 Ind. 464; 81 Am. Dec. 415: "Estoppel (i. e., to deny the corporate existence) arises upon matter of fact only and not upon matter of law. Hence if there be no law which authorized the supposed corporation, or if the statute authorizing it be unconstitutional, the contract does not estop the party making it to dispute the existence of the corporation. But if, on the other hand, there be a law which authorized the corporation, then, whether the corporators have complied with it, so as to become duly incorporated, is a question of fact, and the party making the contract is estopped to dispute the organization or the legal existence of the corporation."

2. In re Brooklyn El. R. Co., 57 Hun (N. Y.) 590; aff'd 125 N. Y. 434; In re New York El. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 327; Swartwout v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 24 Mich. 389.

Conditions Precedent.—It is manifest that before any body can exist as a corporation de facto all conditions precedent provided by statute must be complied with. See Hudson v. Green Hill Seminary, 113 Ill. 618; Alman v. Havanna etc. R. Co., 88 Ill. 52; Lyons v. Orange etc. R. Co., 32 Md. 18.

Substantial compliance with statutes regulating the formation of corporations is one of these conditions always, and the failure to so comply in a material particular is ground for the impeachment of the corporate existence. People v. Cheseman, 7 Colo. 376; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 400.

But conditions precedent to corporate existence are matters of proof, and the failure to allege their proper performance is not ground for demurrer. Cheraw etc. R. Co. v. White, 14 S. Car. 51; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 605.

In People v. Chambers, 42 Cal. 201, it is held that the provision in regard to railroad corporations, requiring a payment of ten per cent. of the amount subscribed, and that at least 1,000 dollars per mile be subscribed, is a condition precedent to corporate existence; that payment by check is not a sufficient compliance. See also People v. Stockton etc. R. Co., 45 Cal. 314. Compare Mitchell v. Rome R. Co., 17 Ga. 574.

In some cases it is held that a subscription of the whole number of shares of capital stock fixed in the articles of association is a condition precedent to corporate existence. Allman v. Havana etc. R. Co., 88 Ill. 521; Swartwout v. Michigan, etc. R. Co. 24 Mich. 388 note; Abbott's Trial Evidence, p. 19 § 3. But these cases were decided upon special statutory provisions, and the rule is laid down in other cases that it is no defence to an action by a corporation that such subscriptions have not been made. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Cary, 26 N. Y. 75; Cayuga Lake R. Co. v. Kyle, 64 N. Y. 185; Jewett v. Valley R. Co., 34 Ohio St. 601; Minor v. Mechanics' Bank, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 46; Black River etc. R. Co. v. Clarke, 25 N. Y. 208.

Compare, however, Hunt v. Kansas etc. Bridge Co., 11 Kan. 412; Maltby v. Northwestern Va. R. Co., 16 Md. 422.

advantage of such non-performance, and until it does so, corporate existence remains unimpaired; it is only after proper judicial proceedings instituted on behalf of the State to have a forfeiture declared that the corporation ceases to exist.¹

A corporation de facto may sue and be sued, may exercise the right of eminent domain, and may enjoy all other powers, privileges, and immunities which belong to corporations de jure, except as against the State.²

Neither the adoption of a new name nor a grant of new powers changes the identity of a corporation or creates a new one.³

Conditions Subsequent.—The most common instances of conditions subsequent in this connection are where the company is required to commence work on its road within a certain time. A breach of this condition is always ground for forfeiture of the charter. See Cheraw etc. R. Co. v. White, 14 S. Car. 51; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 605; In re Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 75 N. Y. 335.

Therefore where a corporation failed to comply with a condition, in not commencing its road within the time specified, a grant to it, made after the expiration of such time, was of no effect, there being no grantee. Greenwood etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 55 Hun (N. Y.) 606.

In State v. Wheadon, 39 Ind. 520, there was an act requiring that a railroad company to which an appropriation had been made by a county, should commence work upon its road in such county, in good faith, within one year from the time of the levy of the tax. This requirement was in the nature of a condition subsequent, and a failure by the company to commence work within the time stipulated operated as a release to the county from its obligation to aid. It was held also that merely by acquiring a right of way or letting contracts for the construction of the road, did not constitute a "commencing work upon its road."

1. In re Brooklyn El. R. Co., 57 Hun (N. Y.) 590; 125 N. Y. 434; 46 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 251.

In re New York El. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 327; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Clifford, 113 Ind. 460 (ejectment suit by land owner on the ground that road was not constructed within the time limited by the charter.) In the case of In re Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 75 N. Y. 335, this doctrine was recognized, but in view of the mandatory words of the statute, the charter of the company was held to have been forfeited by its not having complied with the requirement, that the construction of the road should be begun within five years after the articles of incorporation were filed and recorded.

As to the method of procedure in such cases, whether by quo warranto or otherwise, see East Line etc. R. Co. v. State, 75 Tex. 434; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 574.

Proper Performance of Conditions a Judicial Question.—In the absence of a reserved power of repeal, the question as to whether these conditions, precedent or subsequent, have been complied with is a judicial and not a legislative question. Pierce on Railroads, p. 10; Brooklyn Cent. R. Co. v. Brooklyn City R. Co., 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 358; State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189.

2. 1 Wood's Ry. Law, pp. 15-19; Reisner v. Strong, 24 Kan. 410; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 335; McAuley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 83 Ill. 347; Hoagland v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 18 Ind. 452; Swartwout v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 24 Mich. 389; Wilcox v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 43 Mich. 584; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 518; Attorney-Gen'l v. Stevens, 1 N. J. Eq. 369; 22 Am. Dec. 526.

A corporation running its road is to be regarded as a corporation de facto in suits brought by it against individuals, who cannot contest its corporate existence. Wilcox v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 43 Mich. 584; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 518.

In several Ohio cases it is held that in a proceeding to condemn land the corporation must prove its proper formation and organization. Powers v. Hazelton etc. R. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429; Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 5 Ohio St. 276.

3. Corporate Identity.—Meyer v. Johnston, 64 Ala. 603; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584.

Limitations as to the continuance of corporate existence are sometimes imposed by the charter; when no limitation is expressed, however, it seems that the corporate existence may continue indefinitely.¹

A transfer of assets from one corporation to another does not establish any legal identity between them. Tawas etc. R. Co. v. Circuit Judge, 44 Mich. 479; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584; Columbia etc. R. Co. v. Gibbes, 24 S. Car. 60. In this latter case a company's charter declared it not subject to amendment. Afterwards an act was passed requiring railroad corporations to be taxed to meet the expense of the State railroad commission. The property of the company was sold at judicial sale and a new corporation formed under the general law. It was held that there was no legal identity between the old corporation and the new, and the latter was properly taxed to support the commission.

A railroad corporation organized by and consisting of persons who had purchased at mortgage sales, the road and other property of the M. & M. railroad company, and were endowed with the same powers and privileges as the like company is by no means identical with it, and is not liable for its debts. Vilas v. Milwaukee R. Co., 17 Wis. 497; Smith v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 18 Wis. 21. Compare Pfeifer v. Sheboygan etc. R. Co., 18 Wis. 155.

Variations in a route over which a railroad may run do not affect the identity of a corporate body that builds it, when subsequent acts, amendatory of the original charter, give permission for a deflection from the line first projected; and the right to exemption of property from tax granted in the original charter is retained unimpaired. Cheraw etc. R. Co. v. Anson Co., 88 N. Car. 519; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 431.

A railroad company which succeeds to the rights and privileges conferred upon another by its charter, becomes also subject to the same liabilities. Montgomery etc. R. Co. v. Boring, 51 Ga. 582.

1. Length of Corporate Existence.—See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 295; La Grange etc. R. Co. v. Rainey, 7 Coldw. (Tenn.) 432; Robbins v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 22 Minn. 286; State v. Bergen Neck R. Co. (N. J. 1890), 20 Atl. Rep. 762.

A company with a limited corporate existence does not lengthen its own term of life by purchasing the road and franchises of a company with perpetual existence. Henderson v. Central Pass. R. Co., 21 Fed. Rep. 358; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 542.

Statutory Limitation to Existence.—A Colorado statute provided that railroad corporations should, in their articles of incorporation, state the term of corporate existence (in no case to exceed twenty years); the articles of a company provided for an existence of fifty years. It was held that the company could continue to exist for twenty years only. People v. Cheseman, 7 Colo. 379; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 400.

In the case of Miner v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 46 Hun (N. Y.) 612, the charter of a certain company limited its existence to fifty years. It authorized the company to acquire land "for the use or accommodation of such railroad, or its appendages," also "to appropriate so much of such lands as might be necessary to its own use;" it also conferred the right to construct and maintain a railroad during its existence. It was held that the use of the land taken was not limited to the fifty years' corporate existence, but was to continue so long as it was devoted to such public purpose; and this company having been afterwards (but before its charter expired) consolidated by legislative act with another company, the original owners could not recover the land at the expiration of fifty years.

A Massachusetts statute (Stat. 1830, ch. 81) reserved to the legislature the power to amend, alter or appeal at pleasure, all acts of incorporation which should be afterwards passed, unless there should have been inserted therein an express limitation as to their duration. Under this it is held in Roxbury v. Boston etc. R. Co., 6 Cush. (Mass.) 424, that an act incorporating a railroad company with a condition inserted therein that it shall be void if not carried into effect within a time limited; and containing also a proviso that after twenty years the commonwealth may, in a certain contingency, purchase the franchise of the road, is not, by virtue

Corporate existence may be terminated by proceeding to forfeit the charter by quo warranto or scire facias; or by the running out of the period prescribed for its existence; or by any prescribed mode of dissolution.¹ It is not terminated by a lease of all the corporate property,² or by insolvency,³ or by the appointment of a receiver,⁴ or by the sale of its entire property.⁵

5. Capital Stock of the Corporation—Its Creation—Subscriptions to—Issuance of Shares—Rights of Shareholders, etc.—See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1204; STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS.

6. Corporate Direction and Control—Officers and Agents of the Corporation.—See OFFICERS AND AGENTS, vol. 17, p. 39, et seq.

7. Suits By and Against the Corporation.—(See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 274, et seq.; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 375.) The issuance of writs of injunction, mandamus, and quo warranto is discussed under other titles.⁶

8. Consolidation.—See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 272, et seq.

9. Dissolution of the Corporation.—See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 294, et seq.; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 404, et seq.

V. CORPORATE POWERS.—(See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 207; ULTRA VIRES).—The general principles which apply here are well known, viz.: that a corporation being a mere creature of law, possesses only those properties and powers which the charter of its creation confers upon it, either expressly or as incidental to its existence;⁷ and also that all grants to the corporation, whether of either of these provisions, expressly limited as to its duration.

1. Termination of Corporate Existence.—See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 294, et seq.; QUO WARRANTO; SCIRE FACIAS.

2. Com. v. Central Pass. R. Co., 52 Pa. St. 506; Bruffett v. Great Western R. Co., 25 Ill. 310; U. S. v. Little Miami etc. R. Co. (U. S. 1880), 9 Rep. 676; 1 Fed. Rep. 700.

3. Germantown Pass. R. Co. v. Fittler, 60 Pa. St. 124; People v. Northern R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 98; aff'd 42 N. Y. 213; State v. Bailey, 16 Ind. 46.

4. Willink v. Morris Canal etc. Co., 4 N. J. Eq. 377; State v. Board of Railroad Com'rs, 41 N. J. L. 235; Pierce on Railroads, p. 10.

5. Buffett v. Great Western R. Co., 25 Ill. 310; State v. Rives, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 297; Troy etc. R. Co. v. Kerr, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 581. The charter and franchises of a corporation are not an incident that is annexed to and passes with a transfer of its property.

6. See INJUNCTION, vol. 10, p. 969, et seq.; MANDAMUS, vol. 14, p. 158; QUO WARRANTO.

See also 1 Redfield on Ry's p. 673;

2 Redfield on Ry's (6th ed.), p. 401, et seq. (Injunction); 1 Redfield on Ry's (6th ed.), p. 699, 723, et seq. (Quo Warranto).

As to service of process in suits against railway corporations, see FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 382; SERVICE OF PROCESS.

7. Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 636 (Marshall, C. J.); State v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 24 Neb. 143; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 388; Pierce on Railroads 491; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Franks, 41 Miss. 494; 1 Minor's Insts. (3rd ed.); Com. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339.

The charter of a corporation is therefore the measure of its powers. This rule with its modifications, and the rule of construction of charters of corporations generally are set forth in CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 207, et seq.

The general incorporation law of Iowa provides specifically that articles of incorporation confer no power or privilege not possessed by natural persons. Rodemacher v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 301.

In Railroad Co. v. Furnace Co., 37 Ohio St. 321; 41 Am. Rep. 509; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 471, the court, by Johnson, J., said: But there is a "clear line of powers, privileges or exemptions, are to be construed strictly in favor of the State.¹ The powers conferred upon every corporation are express or implied, the latter class embracing all those powers necessary to carrying into effect those specifically granted,² and may be either incident to a parof distinction between cases involving the mode of exercising granted powers and those where the power to do the act is wanting. If the power to do an act is clearly conferred either by express grant or by necessary implication the corporation may adopt any appropriate means not expressly forbidden."

1. "A technical reason for this rule of construction is that the grant being made by the State at the request of the citizen is supposed to have been made in his language in a bill submitted by him, and, therefore, in case of doubt or ambiguity the construction should be against him; but a more substantial reason for the rule is that it tends to prevent improvident grants." Pierce on Railroads 491; Black v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 22 N. J. Eq. 401.

The principle of the text is well established. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 212, 215, and authorities cited; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, pp. 593, 620; Stourbridge Canal v. Wheeley, 2 B. & Ad. 792; 22 E. C. L. 185 (a railway act regarded as a bargain between a company of adventurers and the State); McCalmont v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 386; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 163. But this rule of strict construction is confined to cases where there is ambiguity or where a power is claimed by implication. Newhall v. Galena etc. R. Co., 14 Ill. 273.

The construction given to a charter by the courts of the State which granted it, will be followed in other States. Black v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 22 N. J. Eq. 139, 422 (this case was reversed in 24 N. J. Eq. 455, on other points decided in it, but not as to the one stated).

In some cases a charter granted by more than one State has been liberally construed in view of the magnitude of the enterprise, etc. Brocket v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 14 Pa. St. 244; Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 332.

The construction must be uniform. A corporation cannot adopt the acts of its agents in reference to matters not altogether beyond the general objects of its incorporation, but which would be embraced within a liberal construction of them, so long as they are beneficial; and when otherwise, shield themselves from responsibility by resorting to a more limited and literal construction of their corporate powers. Noyes v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 27 Vt. 110; Milnor v. New York etc. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 363.

This rule of strict construction has been carried so far that in one case where the right was granted "to connect with any passenger railway now constructed or hereafter to be constructed so as to give them a complete route from F. to E.," it was held that the company could not connect with another passenger railway which was not made, nor the right of making granted at the time this right was given. North Branch etc. R. Co. v. City etc. R. Co., 38 Pa. St. 361.

2. Lower v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 59 Iowa 563; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 17; Central etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 76 Ala. 572; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 25; Com. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339.

"Necessary."—In this connection the word "necessary" is not to be construed as to import an absolute physical necessity; nor is it to be made to mean "indispensable;" but it should rather be made to embrace all things suitable and proper for carrying into execution the powers granted. Necessarily, however, the construction must in each case depend greatly upon the peculiar circumstances involved. State v. Hancock, 35 N. J. L. 537; State v. Comr's of Mansfield, 23 N. J. L. 510; Worcester v. Western R. Co., 4 Met. (Mass.) 564. See also McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 413.

"But 'necessity' is a word of flexible meaning. There may be an absolute necessity, a great necessity and a small necessity; and between these degrees there may be many others depending on the ever-varying exigencies of human affairs. It is plain that corporations, in executing their express powers are not confined to means of such indispensable necessity that without them there could be no execution at all." Curtis v. Leavitt, 15 N. Y. 9.

ticular express power, or to the general objects of the corporation.¹

Railroad companies constitute no exception to these rules except in this respect, that they are not merely private corporations created solely for the pecuniary benefit of the stockholders, but are in their nature public uses.²

1. Powers of Eminent Domain.³—(See also EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, pp. 518, 530, et seq.)

2. Power to Issue Bonds and Negotiable Securities; to Contract Debts, etc.—See RAILROAD SECURITIES; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 223–229.

3. Power to Construct Lateral or Branch Roads.⁴—(See also LATERAL OR BRANCH RAILROADS, vol. 12, p. 940. et seq.)

1. Hood v. New York etc. R. Co., 22 Conn. 16; Central etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 76 Ala. 572; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 25.

2. This idea is well expressed in Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 91, where the court by Bartol, J., said: "It must also be borne in mind that we are not dealing with an ordinary private corporation created only for the pecuniary benefit of its stockholders. The powers granted to the appellee (i.e., the railroad company) are of the most extensive and comprehensive kind, involving in their exercise great public interests, to promote which was the chief object of its charter. Looking to the great and important objects which the legislature designed to accomplish by the charter of this road, the court of Appeals (in Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 6 Gill (Md.) 297; 48 Am. Dec. 531), have declared the rules by which this charter ought to be construed. . . . The court say: "In expounding, therefore, those provisions of the charter of the company by which its express privileges and exemptions are imparted, liberal rules of interpretation for its benefit ought to be adopted to effectuate the benevolent designs of the legislature, and not such rules of construction as are applied to the charters of companies incorporated for the peculiar benefit of the stockholders."

In Pierce on Railroads, p. 499, it is said: "Its capacity to make contracts cannot therefore be measured by the narrow and rigid rules which were applied at an early day to business or commercial corporations, still less by those which govern municipal and eleemosynary corporations. The courts while in theory adhering to the ancient formula which defines the power of a corporation to make contracts in fact deprive it of its legal force by a liberal application of the doctrine of estoppel."

3. The right of eminent domain does not exist in a corporation except by express legislative grant. It is never to be implied. Philips v. Dunkirke etc. R. Co., 78 Pa. St. 177.

And statutes conferring the power of eminent domain are always to receive a strict construction. Sandford v. Martin, 31 Iowa 67; Pierce on Railroads, p. 145 and cases cited; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 522.

See generally Mills on Em. Domain; Lewis on Em. Domain; Pierce on Railroads, ch. 7; Wood's Ry. Law, ch. 13, 14, 15; 1 Rorer on Railroads, ch. 10; 1 Redfield on Railways, ch. 11.

4. The whole subject is discussed in LATERAL RAILROADS, vol. 12, p. 940. Some later decisions may be added.

A lateral road is only an offshoot from the main line and authority to construct lateral railroads conveys the power to construct a branch line running in the same general direction with the main line. The fact that the branch road is intended to connect the main line with the line of another company does not change its character nor deprive the company of the right to construct it. Blanton v. Richmond, etc. R. Co., 86 Va. 618; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 617; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 255; Volmer's Appeal, 115 Pa. St. 166. See also Pierce on Railroads 495; Protzman v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 9 Ind. 467; Shoenberger v. Mulhollan, 8 Pa. St. 134.

Compensation for condemnation of land for a right of way is supposed to include future as well as present damages and therefore precludes a claim for additional compensation for a

4. Power as to Real Estate.—(See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 217, 230; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 518; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 357.)

The general power of corporations to acquire real property has already been considered.¹ Usually the power of a railroad company to hold real estate is limited to lands necessary for the location, construction, and operation of its road, and for other similar uses, such for example, as grounds for stations, machine shops, etc., and from which to get material for the construction of the road;² it does not extend to the purchase of lands as an investment or on subsequent construction of side tracks. White v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 122 Ind. 317; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 156.

As to the right to build a branch road in a street, see Republic Iron Works v. Burgwin (Pa. 1891), 46 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 232, note.

Agreement in conveyance not to build side tracks, see Donisthorpe v. Fremont etc. R. Co. (Neb. 1890), 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 583. See also Wilson v. Furness R. Co., L. R., 9 Eq. 29.

Where a railroad company has no authority to condemn right of way for a lateral line, there is no fraud on land-owners in its organizing another company of its own stockholders with such authority. Lower v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 59 Iowa 563. See also Bangor etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 47 Me. 34; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Second Municipality, 1 La. Ann. 128.

It has been held in some cases that power to build branch roads expires with the power to build the main line, which is usually after the line has been located and constructed. Morris etc. R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 31 N. J. L. 205; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228.

1. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 217, 230; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 518; infra, this title, Right of Way. See also generally Pierce, Railroads, pp. 130, 506-7, 1 Wood's Ry. Law, pp. 561-3; Rorer, Railroads 78; ULTRA VIRES.

2. Blunt v. Walker, 11 Wis. 334; 78 Am. Dec. 709; State v. Newark, 25 N. J. L. 315; 26 N. J. L. 519; Overmeyer v. Williams, 15 Ohio 26 (may hold land when necessary for procurement of materials or for economical construction of the road); Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604; Taber v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 15 Ind. 459; Eastern Counties R. Co. v. Hawkes, 5 H. L. Cas. 331; Land v. Coffman, 50 Mo. 243; Boston etc. R.

Co. v. Greenbush, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 461; McClure v. Missouri River R. Co., 9 Kan. 373; New York etc. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; 7 Am. Rep. 385; Virginia etc. R. Co. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 358; South Carolina R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 228. See also Georgia Pac. R. Co. v. Wilks, 86 Ala. 478; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 665.

Of course when the charter provides otherwise its provisions are to control. See Walsh v. Barton, 24 Ohio St. 28 (all the land "necessary and convenient" for railway purposes).

The charter of the Milwaukee, etc., Railroad Company provided that the corporation should not in its corporate capacity hold, purchase or deal in any lands within the State other than the lands on which the road should run, or which might be actually necessary for the construction or maintenance thereof, and of the warehouses, machine-shops and other fixtures connected therewith. It was held that this was intended to prohibit the corporation from purchasing, etc., lands directly and in a manner unconnected with the lawful and proper management and control of its business, but not to prevent acquiring an interest therein incidentally whenever in the proper exercise of its powers it became necessary for it to do so in order to protect its legal rights. Blunt v. Walker, 11 Wis. 334; 78 Am. Dec. 709.

Where lands are necessary for railway purposes when acquired, the company does not lose its right to hold them by the fact that they have become no longer necessary. Thus in Paige v. Heineberg, 40 Vt. 81; 94 Am. Dec. 378, a railroad company acquired certain lands by deed in fee. They were afterwards abandoned for railway purposes, the location of the road having been changed. It was held that the land did not revert, but that the fee remained in the company. See also Hendee v. Pinkerton, 14 Allen (Mass.) 381. Compare Kellogg v. Malin, 50 Mo. 496.

The corporation may acquire and hold a fee in lands, even though it be created for only a limited period of time. Nicoll v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 460; 12 N. Y. 121; New York R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; Yates v. Van DeBogert, 56 N. Y. 526.

The Iowa Code, § 1241, provides that any railway corporation "may take and hold so much real estate as may be necessary for the location, construction and convenient use of its railway. . . . the land so taken . . . shall not exceed 100 feet in width, except for wood and water stations." Under this it was held that a company could not take, outside of 100 feet, additional real estate to build passenger stations, freight or engine houses, warehouses, elevators, and such other appliances as might be necessary for its convenient use. Johnston v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 58 Iowa 537. See also Spofford v. Bucksport etc. R. Co., 66 Me. 26.

What Are Railroad Purposes.—Under the implied or express authority to hold lands necessary for railroad purposes a railroad corporation may own a coal mine from which to supply fuel for its engines; and it may sell the superfluous coal. Lyde v. Eastern Bengal R. Co., 36 Beav. 17.

Authority to buy land for the purpose of procuring stone and other material necessary to the construction of the road conveys power to buy lands from which to get cross-ties, fire wood, etc. Mallett v. Simpson, 94 N. Car. 37; 55 Am. Rep. 594.

A company may allow one of its buildings to be used for the examination of its passengers' luggage. Warden etc. of Dover v. Southeastern R. Co., 9 Hare 483.

A company may, with a view to an increase of its business, buy lands for the purpose of selling the gravel therefrom to persons who are to pay for its transportation over their road; and it may afterwards sell the land and enforce in equity the contract of sale. Old Colony R. Co. v. Evans, 6 Gray (Mass.) 255; 66 Am. Dec. 394.

In the case of Eldridge v. Smith, 34 Vt. 484, it is said that the manufacture of railroad cars is not so legitimately and necessarily connected with the management of a railroad that the railroad company would be authorized by its charter to condemn land for the purpose of erecting shops for such manufacture. This case, however, does not deny the right of a company to purchase and hold lands for such purposes.

A canal basin is not a legitimate incident to a railroad having no authorized canal connections, and is therefore not exempt from execution and sale. Plymouth R. Co. v. Colwell, 39 Pa. St. 337.

The acquisition of lands for the purpose of speculation or sale, or to prevent interference by competing lines or methods of transportation, or in aid of collateral enterprises remotely connected with the running or operation of the road, are not such purposes as authorize the condemnation of private property. Rensselaer etc. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137.

Where A quit-claimed "a right of way" to a company "for all purposes connected with the construction, use and occupation of said railroad," it was said that the company could not take sand from the way to construct a round house, that not coming within the purposes named. It was held also that A might take sand for any purpose so long as he did not interfere with the company's proper use of the land. Vermilya v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 66 Iowa 606; 55 Am. Rep. 279; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 108.

The erection of buildings by permission of the railway company within the line of its roadway for convenience in receiving and delivering freight, is not inconsistent with the purposes of the company. Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Richardson, 91 U. S. 454.

Passenger Depots; convenient and proper places for storing and keeping cars and locomotives; proper, secure and convenient places for the receipt and delivery of freight, and for the safe and secure keeping of property, between the time of its receipt and dispatch, or after its arrival and discharge and before delivery; turn-outs, engine houses, shops and turn-tables, are among the acknowledged necessities for running and operating a railroad; and the right to take land for those purposes is included in the grant of power which authorizes a railroad corporation to acquire real estate for the purposes of its incorporation or for the purpose of operating its road. New York etc. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; 7 Am. Rep. 385; Hannibal etc. R. Co. v. Muder, 49 Mo. 165; Cumberland speculation.¹ In all cases, however, where land is purchased, the presumption is in favor of the power of the company; and that the land was required for its purposes.² All railroad companies necessarily have some power to acquire land; the question as to whether the company was authorized to acquire certain land is therefore one of degree; it is not a question of ultra vires but of a violation of the charter, and can be raised only in a direct proceeding by the State; it cannot be litigated between private parties or in a collateral proceeding.³ Another result of

Valley R. Co. v. McLanahan, 59 Pa. St. 23; Spofford v. Bucksport etc. R. Co., 66 Me. 26; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Wilson, 17 Ill. 123.

As to acquiring by eminent domain a spring of water in order to supply a tank, see Strohecker v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 42 Ga. 509.

What is Real Estate.—In the case of Blunt v. Walker, 11 Wis. 350; 78 Am. Dec. 709, it is said that a mortgage for all the purposes of negotiation and trade is to be regarded as mere personality. It is not considered as a conveyance of land but as a charge which attaches itself to the debt, and follows its ownership; that therefore taking a mortgage to secure the payment of a debt due is not a dealing in lands as regards the powers of a railway corporation.

Consolidated Company.—Where two railroad companies are consolidated under Code of Alabama (1886), § 1583, the new company does not possess the power of the original corporations to acquire land, unless the road when consolidated will admit a continuous passage of cars without break or interruption. Georgia Pac. R. Co. v. Gaines, 88 Ala. 377; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

1. Pacific R. Co. v. Seely, 45 Mo. 212; 100 Am. Dec. 369; Waldo v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 14 Wis. 575; Rensselaer etc. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137.

Although in a suit for specific performance of a contract to convey lands to a railroad company, the contract may be incapable of enforcement as being intended for purposes of speculation, yet if the deed be made voluntarily the company will take a good title. Land v. Coffman, 50 Mo. 243.

A agreed with a railroad company to convey it a certain lot of ground for purposes of speculation, in consideration that the company would locate a freight and passenger depot on his land. There was no evidence that the land was to be used for the general purpose of locating, constructing, managing, and using the road. It was held that such an agreement was contrary to public policy and void; that the railroad company had no power to acquire land under such circumstances. Pacific R. Co. v. Seely, 45 Mo. 212; 100 Am. Dec. 369.

2. Yates v. Van De Bogert, 56 N. Y. 527; Pierce, Railroads 507; McCarthy v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 31 Minn. 279; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. McCarty, 96 U. S. 267.

3. Land v. Coffman, 50 Mo. 243; Hickory Farm Oil Co. v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 32 Fed. Rep. 22; Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Orton, 6 Sawy. (U. S.) 157; Russell v. Texas Pac. R. Co., 68 Tex. 646 (conveyance of excess of land is not void but voidable only, and the sovereign only can object); CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 233-4, and cases cited.

When a corporation has power to hold property and is forbidden to hold beyond a certain amount, the matter being one of degree merely, it is not a question of ultra vires but of a violation of its charter. Jones v. Habersham, 3 Wood (U. S.) 476; aff'd 107 U. S. 174.

In Martindale v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 60 Mo. 510, the court by Sherwood, J., said: "The only exception to the rule which prohibits collateral inquiry by a private citizen into the supposed illegal acts of a corporation is where express legislative permission is granted therefor."

This principle, however, does not apply in cases where the corporation as plaintiff seeks to acquire real estate which it is not by law authorized to acquire. Case v. Kelly (U. S. 1883), 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 70; aff'd 133 U. S. 21. In this case the court by Miller, J., said: "We think the questions are very different ones, and that while a court might hesitate to declare the title to lands, received already and in this principle is that a deed to a railroad company of any amount of land conveys (so far as corporate powers are concerned) a perfect title, and the company holds it subject only to the right of the State to escheat; so that if it conveys away such lands before proceedings to escheat are instituted the title in the vendee will be indefeasible.¹

But these doctrines do not all apply where the land is acquired under the right of eminent domain; in such a case the company acquires only an easement and the land reverts to the original owner whenever it is no longer necessary for railroad purposes, unless there is a specific statutory provision otherwise.²

Unless restricted by legislation, a railroad corporation may sell, convey, or mortgage its property, real or personal, with the exception of its franchises and property essential to them;³ these,

the possession and ownership of the company, void on the principle that they had no authority to take such lands, it is very clear that it will not make itself the active agent in behalf of the company in violating the law and enabling the company to do that which the law forbids."

The case of Runyan v. Coster, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 122, is to be distinguished from this. There the corporation was allowed to maintain ejectment for certain lands even though such lands were in excess of the amount it was authorized to hold. In this case the title had vested while in that of Case v. Kelly, 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 70, the title had never vested in the corporation. Compare also Showalter v. Pirner, 55 Mo. 232.

As a consequence of the doctrine of the text it is no defense to an action by a railroad company to recover the price of land sold by them, to allege a want of authority in the company to acquire such lands. Rutland etc. R. Co. v. Proctor, 29 Vt. 93.

1. Power to Convey a Perfect Title.—The doctrine of the text is confirmed in Walsh v. Barton, 24 Ohio St. 28; Blunt v. Walker, 11 Wis. 334; 78 Am. Dec. 707.

Having acquired a fee in lands necessary for its purposes, a railway company may convey it away, the lands having become no longer necessary to its uses. Yates v. Van DeBogert, 56 N. Y. 526.

In Blunt v. Walker, 11 Wis. 334; 78 Am. Dec. 707, it is held that though a corporation is not empowered to deal in lands, it may yet acquire and transmit a title to lands as an incident to its general power to contract.

Power to Mortgage.—In Hendee v. Pinkerton, 14 Allen (Mass.) 381, it is said that a corporation authorized to hold lands for depots and storehouses as well as for railway purposes and to allow other railway corporations to establish depots upon its premises, etc., may lawfully mortgage lands held by it and not required for railroad purposes, to secure bonds issued by it.

See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 236.

A company having a general power to mortgage its road may mortgage any part of it. Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Biss. (U. S.) 94.

2. Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) [558] 697-8; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 530; Dean v. Sullivan R. Co., 22 N. H. 321; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Barclay v. Howell, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 498; Jackson v. Rutland etc. R. Co. 25 Vt. 151; Kellogg v. Malin, 50 Mo. 496.

The fee may be taken only when absolutely necessary for public uses, and when a lesser estate will not suffice. New Orleans Pac. R. Co. v. Gay, 32 La. Ann. 471.

The condemnation of the fee in lands for railroad purposes is forbidden by the Illinois Constitution, art. 2, § 13.

The conversion of land taken under the right of eminent domain to uses remote from any connection with railroad uses is a misappropriation, and entitles the original owner to a writ of entry to establish his right and to recover damages for the wrongful use. Pierce, Railroads 508; Proprietors etc. v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 104 Mass. 1.

3. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N. H. 484; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372; Miller v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 36 Vt. 452; Kelly v. Alabama etc. R.

in most jurisdictions, it is not permitted to sell without special legislative authority.¹

Where a railway company has acquired real estate by purchase it has the same right of property in it which would belong to a natural person. But in its use of land acquired by eminent domain it is limited strictly to what is necessary for the proper construction, maintenance and operation of the road.²

5. Powers as to Stock—(See also STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS).—Railroad companies are no exception to the general rule which forbids one corporation, in the absence of express authority, to Co., 58 Ala. 489; Yates v. Van De Bogen, 56 N. Y. 526; McAllister v. Plant, 54 Miss. 106.

Where the enacting section of the charter provided that "they and their successors . . . shall be capable of purchasing, holding and conveying, any lands, tenements, goods and chattels, whatever, necessary and expedient to the objects of this incorporation"—this only authorized property to be sold or conveyed when necessary or expedient for the objects of the incorporation; it did not authorize the source from which the corporation derived its income to be sold and conveyed. Kean v. Johnson, 9 N. J. Eq. 401.

As to the power of a railroad company to sell the exclusive right to convey passengers and freight over a portion of its road, see Tippecanoe Co. v. LaFayette etc. R. Co., 50 Ind. 85.

1. See FRANCHISES, vol. 8, pp. 634 et seq.; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 238; Pierce, Railroads 503; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372; 75 Am. Dec. 518; Thomas v. West Jersey etc. R. Co., 101 U. S. 71; Clark v. Omaha etc. R. Co., 4 Neb. 458; Stewart's Appeal, 56 Pa. St. 413.

The estate which a railroad company acquires in land appropriated to its use may be transferred, by legislative assent, to another railroad company, and the use may extend beyond the prescribed term of the existence of the first corporation. Miner v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 46 Hun (N. Y.) 612.

2. Thus the company may take materials such as stone, gravel, timber, etc., from the land condemned as far as may be needed for the construction of the road, but it may not sell them. Chapin v. Sullivan R. Co., 39 N. H. 564; Henry v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 2 Iowa 288; Aldrich v. Drury, 8 R. I. 554; 5 Am. Rep. 624; Taylor v. New York etc. R. Co., 38 N. J. L. 28; Brainard v.

Clapp, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 6; 57 Am. Dec. 74; Pierce, Railroads, 159.

And while it may use the timber on the right of way for constructing the road it may not appropriate it for fuel. Preston v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 11 Iowa 15.

In one case it is said the company may not use such timber even for construction. Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282. But this decision was rendered under a peculiar statute.

In statutes concerning the right of a railroad to appropriate material on the right of way to the extent that may be necessary for the construction of the road, the word "construction" implies not only the making of the road-bed, but also its preparation and readiness for use in a safe and convenient manner. Preston v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 11 Iowa 15.

Whether or not a certain use is necessary or not is a question for the jury. Curtis v. Eastern R. Co., 14 Allen (Mass.) 55. There is no burden of proof upon the company to show the necessity. Brainard v. Clapp, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 6; 57 Am. Dec. 74.

There are many other uses to which a railroad company cannot put its property acquired by eminent domain, while a private owner might. Thus he cannot by erecting boardings shut out the light from an adjoining proprietor, even one who has acquired no presumptive right to it. Norton v. North London etc. R. Co., L. R., 9 Ch. Div. 623; 13 Ch. Div. 268. See also Fenwick v. East London R. Co., L. R., 20 Eq. Cas. 544 (injunction granted to restrain erection of a noisy mill).

A railroad company cannot devote a portion of its roadway, over which it has only a right of passage, to station purposes—such as the making up of trains, distributing cars, the standing thereon of locomotives and cars laden with live stock—to the detriment of hold stock in another corporation.¹ There seems to be no reason, however, why a railroad company may not purchase and hold shares of stock which it has issued to individuals or to public corporations,² if it is done in good faith, and the exchange is free private residences. Angel v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 38 N. J. Eq. 58; 41 N. J. Eq. 316; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 559.

1. Power to Hold Stock of Another Company.—As to corporations generally, CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 249; STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS. As to railway corporations, Pearson v. Concord etc. R. Co., 62 N. H. 537; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 102, 119, note; Hazellhurst v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 43 Ga. 13; Central R. Co. v. Collins, Ga. 582; Green's Brice's Ultra Vires 91; Pierce on Railroads 505; Elkins v. Camden etc. R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 5, 233; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 590, 639; Brightley's Digest (Pa.), vol. 1, p. 343.

See also Burke v. Concord R. Co., 61 N. H. 160; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 552 (railroad has no power to form partnership with another company). A railway corporation cannot in its own name subscribe for stock or be a corporator, under the general railroad law of New Jersey; nor can it do so by a simulated compliance with the provisions of the law through its agents as pretended corporators and subscribers of stock. Central R. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 475.

In Pierce on Railroads 505, it is said that the purchase by a railroad company of the stock of other corporations when not prohibited by statute may be allowed to a limited extent and for incidental purposes; but when it involves a misappropriation of the corporate funds or is a mere speculation, or is induced by a vicious purpose, it will be enjoined at the instance of the stockholders. See also Hodges v. New England Screw Co., 1 R. I. 312; 3 R. I. 9.

In Ryan v. Leavenworth etc. R. Co., 21 Kan. 365, it was held that, a railroad having authority to hold real and personal estate necessary for its uses, it will be presumed that a purchase by it of the stock of a connecting road was made for corporate purposes, and it will therefore be upheld.

Authority to subscribe may be given by express statutory provisions. See White v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 559 (such provisions are constitutional); Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 50 (Baltimore and Ohio road authorized to acquire any interest in any connecting road, not exceeding two-fifths of its estimated cost); Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Cochran, 43 Kan. 225; 19 Am. St. Rep. 129; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 48.

Purchase of a Rival Road—Consolidation.—A necessary consequence of the principle of the text is that a railroad company has no power to purchase a rival road. The contract for such purpose would be void as being ultra vires, and also as being against public policy, since it would tend to create a monopoly. 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 175; Morgan v. Donovan, 58 Ala. 241.

But a charter provision allowing a company to consolidate with another may authorize such a purchase. Branch v. Jesup, 106 U. S. 468; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558. See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 272.

Generally.—A railroad company having under its charter a right to construct a road between two places by a circuitous route and intending to apply to the legislature for authority to construct a more direct road between these places may, before such authority is obtained or any location thereunder made, make a valid contract for a sale of its stock conditioned upon the building of the latter route. Portage Co. v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 121 Mass. 460. See also STOCK.

A railroad corporation cannot, without special legislation, contract and pay interest on stock before the road is completed or any income received; and a contract to do so cannot be enforced against the capital stock of the company. Painesville etc. R. Co. v. King, 17 Ohio St. 534.

A railroad corporation having by its charter, power to make contracts conducive to the interest of the company, may assign its stock subscriptions, unless expressly restricted therefrom. Downie v. Hoover, 12 Wis. 174; Racine Co. Bank v. Ayers, 12 Wis. 512; Kimball v. Spicer, 12 Wis. 668.

2. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Marseilles, 84 Ill. 145, 643 (and such sale is a from all fraud actual or constructive, and the rights of creditors are not affected adversely thereby.¹

Authority to issue shares to the extent of its capital stock belongs to a railroad corporation as an incident to its existence, though it is usually conferred by statute.² So also a company, in the absence of special provision otherwise, has authority to guarantee the bonds of another company.³

6. Power as to Connections with Other Roads—Traffic Arrangements—(See also CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 859, et seq.)—As a common carrier a railroad company has an undoubted right to enter into contracts for the transportation of goods or passengers; and this power is not confined to such contracts as relate only to its own lines, but extends further so as to embrace contracts for carriage to points beyond its lines.⁴ As an incident to this power sufficient consideration to support an agreement to pay money); State v. Smith, 48 Vt. 266; Pierce, Railroads 505; Cook, Stock and Stockholders, § 311; St. John v. Erie R. Co., 10 Blatchf. (U. S.) 271; Clapp v. Peterson, 104 Ill. 31 ("the doctrine that a corporation has power to purchase its own stock seems well enough settled").

Railroad companies are forbidden by statute in New York to purchase shares of their own stock. New York Rev. Stat. (7th ed.), p. 1547; New York Sess. Laws, 1881, ch. 468, § 12; "except so far as the same may be agreed upon in the articles of association." In Barton v. Port Jackson etc. Plank Road Co., 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 397, it is held that an agreement by a plank road company to purchase its own stock is against public policy and void. And this seems to be the doctrine at common law. Cook, Stock and Stockholders, § 309; In re Marseilles Extension R. etc. Co., L. R., 7 Ch. 161; 1 Moak's Rep. 490.

1. Clapp v. Peterson, 104 Ill. 26.

2. Angell and Ames on Corp., § 556; Somerset etc. R. Co. v. Cushing, 45 Me. 524; Chicago City R. Co. v. Allerton, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 233; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Lewis, 33 Pa. St. 33; 75 Am. Dec. 574.

As to the general power of a corporation to issue stock, the liability for an overissue, etc., see STOCK; OFFICERS AND AGENTS (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS), vol. 17, p. 39; Pierce on Railroads, pp. 110-127; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, 37, et seq.

3. Power to Guarantee Bonds of Another Company.—Madison etc. R. Co. v. Norwich etc. Soc., 24 Ind. 457;

Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Fletcher, 35 Kan. 236; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 34; Pierce on Railroads, p. 504; Zabriskie v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381; Cozart v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 54 Ga. 379; Arnot v. Erie R. Co., 5 Hun (N. Y.) 608; 67 N. Y. 315; Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; East Boston etc. R. Co. v. Eastern R. Co., 13 Allen (Mass.) 422; Low v. Central Pac. R. Co., 52 Cal. 53. It may guarantee municipal bonds issued in payment of subscriptions to its capital stock. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Havard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392.

In leasing the road of another company it may as a part of the transaction guarantee its bonds. Low v. Central Pac. R. Co., 52 Cal. 53; Opdyke v. Pac. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 55.

See also RAILROAD SECURITIES, vol. 19.

4. Where the power is not specifically conferred by the act of incorporation it belongs to the company by implication as necessary to the proper and profitable exercise of its enumerated powers. Perkins v. Portland etc. R. Co., 47 Me. 573; 74 Am. Dec. 507; Noyes v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 27 Vt. 110; Morse v. Brainard, 41 Vt. 550; Packer v. Sunbury etc. R. Co., 19 Pa. St. 211; Baltimore etc. Steamboat Co. v. Brown, 54 Pa. St. 77; Nashua Lock Co. v. Worcester etc. R. Co., 48 N. H. 339; Burtis v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 269; Kessler v. New York Cent. R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 63; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Pontius, 19 Ohio St. 235; 2 Am. Rep. 391; Grover etc. Sewing Mach. Co. v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 70 Mo. 672; 35 Am. Rep. 444; Stewart v.

a railroad company may enter into traffic arrangements with connecting lines for the purpose of providing through transportation over its road.¹ And where there is no actual connection it may construct and operate a branch road, stage² or steamship line to Erie Transp. Co., 17 Minn. 372 (the whole question considered); Wheeler v. San Francisco etc. R. Co., 31 Cal. 46; 89 Am. Dec. 147; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. McCarthy, 96 U. S. 258; Ogdensburg etc. R. Co. v. Pratt, 22 Wall. (U. S.) 123; Lindley v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 547; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 31; Rome R. Co. v. Sullivan, 25 Ga. 228; Cummins v. Dayton etc. R. Co. (Ind. 1882), 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 36; Munhall v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 92 Pa. St. 150; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 337; Napman v. People, 19 Mich. 352; Kerrigan v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 81 Cal. 250; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 28.

The doctrine announced in the text seems to be opposed nowhere except in the Connecticut courts. In Hood v. New York etc. R. Co., 22 Conn. 1, 502, the authority of a railroad company to contract for transportation beyond its lines was denied. In Elmore v. Naugatuck R. Co., 23 Conn. 471, a general clause of the charter allowed the company to contract, but it was held that neither the receiving of goods for transportation, nor a receipt given stating the goods had been so received, nor an advertisement of the general facilities of the road, was evidence of any special contract to carry beyond its terminus. In Naugatucket R. Co. v. Waterbury Button Co., 24 Conn. 468, the power was specially conferred by the charter. See also Converse v. Norwich etc. Transp. Co., 33 Conn. 166, where all the decisions on this subject are reviewed.

But power to make connections does not give the company authority to make a contract to extend its road beyond its charter terminus. Union Bridge Co. v. Troy etc. R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 241. See also as to authority to make connections North Branch etc. R. Co. v. City etc. R. Co., 38 Pa. St. 361; Warren etc. R. Co. v. Clarion Land Co., 54 Pa. St. 28.

Under a power by charter to contract with connecting roads, for their use, etc., a railroad company is authorized to accept bills drawn by a connecting road as a consideration for a change of gauge of that road. Smead v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 11 Ind. 104.

Liability for Injury by Connecting Carrier.—The contract being a valid one renders the company liable for all injuries occasioned by its negligence and that of the connecting lines. See in addition to the cases cited above, CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 3, pp. 859, et seq.; TICKETS AND FARES, where the liability of connecting carriers is discussed. See also Maghee v. Camden etc. R. Co., 45 N. Y. 514; 6 Am. Rep. 124; Bissell v. Michigan Southern R. Co., 22 N. Y. 258; Hill Mfg. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 104 Mass. 122; 6 Am. Rep. 202; FORWARDING MERCHANTS, vol. 8, p. 577.

Where a statute imposes the duty of receiving goods from other lines the receiving company is not liable as partner or joint contractor. Fort Worth etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 77 Tex. 121; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 464.

1. Traffic Arrangements.—Division of Profits.—Pierce on Railroads, p. 510; Sussex R. Co. v. Morris etc. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 13; 20 N. J. Eq. 542; Stewart v. Erie etc. Transp. Co., 17 Minn. 372; Simpson v. Denison, 10 Hare 51; Midland R. Co. v. Great Western R. Co., 8 Ch. 841; 7 Moak's Rep. 408.

This is provided for by the English Railway act (1845), 8 Vict. ch. 20, § 88. Two roads may agree upon a division of fares by which one allows to the other part of the fares earned on its own road. Such a contract may be valid as to future extensions of the road, even such as may be authorized by subsequent legislation. Sussex R. Co. v. Morris etc. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 13; 20 N. J. Eq. 542; Llanelly R. Co. v. London etc. R. Co., L. R., 7 H. L. 550; 13 Moak's Rep. 73.

2. It may build side-tracks to large manufacturing establishments. Wilson v. Furness etc. R. Co., L. R., 9 Eq. 28; Lydick v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 427; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 336.

So also it may build a short elevated road from its terminus along a public landing. McAlvoy's Appeal, 107 Pa. St. 548; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 314.

It may have a stage line to convey passengers to and from its depots. Buflit v. Troy etc. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 420; 40 N. Y. 168.

connect with another road, provided such an enterprise is not so large as to be plainly beyond the powers intended to be conferred by the charter.¹

Authority to make traffic arrangements with other roads embraces not only the power to provide for a division of the freights and fares, but also to contract for the use of one road for the carriages of the other.² But such authority cannot be so construed as to authorize the company to enter into a contract by which it practically gives up all control of its road, and in effect surrenders its franchises.³ The permanence of traffic and connection

Or it may contract with a stage line to convey their passengers, and in such case the stage line will be regarded as its agents, for whose negligence the company will be liable. Wilson v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 21 Gratt. (Va.) 654.

1. To Operate Steamship Lines.—A railroad company may own and control a steamboat for the purpose of transporting its freight and passengers across navigable waters on the line and constituting a part of its route, or lying at the end of its road. Wheeler v. San Francisco etc. R. Co., 31 Cal. 46; 89 Am. Dec. 147. But such a steamboat is not "railroad property" and exempt from taxation as such. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Irvin, 72 Ill. 452. See also as to purchase of a steamboat by a railway company, Rutland etc. R. Co. v. Proctor, 29 Vt. 93 (where contract to purchase was sustained, the defense of want of authority not being open to the parties); Shawmut Bank v. Plattsburg etc. R. Co., 31 Vt. 491.

In South Wales R. Co. v. Redmond, 10 C. B., N. S. 675; 100 E. C. L. 674, a railway company was allowed to own and operate a steamer between Cork and Dublin, and its terminus in England. This was because "the whole object of the incorporation of the company was to connect England and Wales with the Irish Coast."

In Gregory v. Patelutt, 33 Beav. 595; Hare v. London etc. R. Co., 2 Johns. & H. 80; Colman v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 10 Beav. 1, a railway company was enjoined from investing its funds in a steamboat company. These cases, however, are clearly distinguishable from those sustaining the principle of the text.

But a company has no power to form a partnership with an individual to buy and operate a steamer on a river forming no part of its route. Central R. etc.

Co. v. Smith, 76 Ala. 572; 52 Am. Rep. 353; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 25.

In the case of Pearce v. Madison etc. R. Co., 21 How. (U. S.) 441, two railroad corporations whose roads connected, united their business and became practically one corporation. Together they purchased a steamboat intending to run it upon a river on which one of their termini was situated. In an action upon a note given for the price, signed by the adopted name, recovery was denied, and it was held that the corporations had no authority to unite; that in the absence of express authority a railroad corporation had no authority to purchase a steamboat to operate beyond its terminus. This case is followed in Hogland v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 39 Mo. 451; St. Joseph v. Saville, 39 Mo. 460. It is criticised, however, in Pierce on Railroads, p. 510, note; Bisseil v. Michigan Southern R. Co., 22 N. Y. 258, 278 (called an "extreme authority").

2. Sussex R. Co. v. Morris etc. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 13; 20 N. J. Eq. 542.

3. Beach, Private Corp., § 408; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. (Ohio, 1866), 5 Am. L. Reg., N. S. 733; Midland R. Co. v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 8 Ch. 841; 7 Moak's Rep. 408; Gardner v. London etc. R. Co., L. R., 2 Ch. 201.

To fix the charges for the transportation of passengers and freight is an exercise of the franchise by a company, and if two companies agree that both shall regulate this it is no abandonment or transfer of the franchises of either. Columbus etc. R. Co. v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 5 McLean (U. S.) 450.

In the case of Johnson v. Shrewsbury etc. R. Co., 3 DeG. M. & G. 914, a railway company agreed with the contractors that the contractors should work the line and keep the engines and rolling stock in repair at a specified arrangements must depend upon the conditions under which they were made, and the character and terms of the contract.¹

7. Power to Contract.—(See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 245; ULTRA VIRES).—The power of a railroad company to contract or be contracted with is a necessary incident to its existence, and so far as it relates to contracts connected with the proper construction, maintenance, and operation of the road, and not expressly prohibited, is coextensive with that of an individual.²

remuneration, and that the contract should be in force for seven years. It was held that the agreement was not of such a kind as to be enforceable by injunction to restrain the company. Whether the agreement was consistent with public policy, quaere.

1. Permanence of Traffic Arrangements.—In a leading case, Boston etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 375, one company allowed another to use its track and made expensive arrangements to accommodate it in pursuance of its (the first company's) charter. It was held that this was not a perpetual arrangement, and that, notwithstanding the expenditures by the first company, the second might build a new track and so discontinue the use of that of the other company.

In another case it is said that the connection of the roads, being by contract a continuance of the contract, will be enforced in equity. Androscoggin etc. R. Co. v. Androscoggin R. Co., 52 Me. 434.

But where an arrangement amounts to a guaranty by one company of the dividends upon the capital stock of the other, irrespective of the amount of traffic carried, it is void as being beyond corporate powers. Simpson v. Denison, 10 Hare 51; 16 Jur. 830. In this case there was an agreement under which one company agreed to carry the whole traffic of the other for such a "toll" as would, when added to the net profits of the second company, make up its dividend to a certain amount. A different decision was rendered in Green Bay etc. R. Co. v. Union Steamboat Co., 107 U. S. 98. But in that case the powers granted to the company were much greater.

Change of Gauge.—Two railroad companies agreed to build a road from certain cities, and to connect with each other at a given place; that the charges, etc., and the meeting of the cars and through freight cars should be regulated by both companies. It was held that an injunction would be granted to prevent one company from changing its gauge whereby the connection would be broken. Columbus etc. R. Co. v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 5 McLean (U. S.) 450; and this case seems to state the better doctrine.

But in Sussex R. Co. v. Morris etc. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 13; 20 N. J. Eq. 542, it is said that a contract between railroad companies using the same gauge, to transport passengers and freight continuously over both lines does not imply a contract on the part of either company that it will not change the gauge of its road.

2. South Wales R. Co. v. Redmond, 10 C. B., N. S. 675; 100 E. C. L. 674; Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 6 Gill (Md.) 297; 48 Am. Dec. 531; Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 91; Hamilton v. Newcastle etc. R. Co., 9 Ind. 359; Frye v. Tucker, 24 Ill. 180; Joy v. St. Louis, 138 U. S. 1; Shrewsbury etc. R. Co. v. Northwestern R. Co., 6 H. L. Cas. 113 (where the Lord Chancellor said: "When the legislature constitutes a corporation it gives to that body prima facie an absolute right of contracting"); Mayor etc. of Norwich v. Norfolk R. Co., 4 El. & B. 397; 82 E. C. L. 396 (may make any contract not expressly or impliedly prohibited); 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 179; Smith v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 27 N. H. 94; 59 Am. Dec. 368; Buffit v. Troy etc. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 423; 40 N. Y. 168; Church v. Sterling, 16 Conn. 388.

The power of a railroad company to make contracts, in the absence of an express provision, "is implied as necessary and incidental to the express power to locate, construct and work a railroad. The power, whether expressed or implied, must, in view of the purposes and methods of such an enterprise, be allowed a liberal scope." Pierce on Railroads 499.

"By the weight of modern authority,

In cases of doubt the presumption is in favor of the power of the corporation, and the burden of proof to show a want of power rests upon the party attacking the validity of the contract,¹ indeed, in some English cases, it is said that in all cases the proper inquiry is whether the contract was prohibited by the charter, not whether it was permitted.² A railroad corporation differs from other corporations in that it is quasi public and has assumed unusual obligations, and it cannot enter into any contract whereby it is to be released from any of its obligations to the public.³

a railroad corporation independent of any express authority in its charter so to do, may, as incident to its creation and existence and as a necessity growing out of the purposes of its organization, contract generally in the necessary course of its legitimate business . . . unless prohibited or restricted by some express provision of law." Rorer on Railroads, p. 228

A grant to a railroad company of power to locate and construct a railroad, open books of subscription, etc., confers, by implication, the power to make all contracts and agreements which the execution and management of the work, and the convenience and interests of the company in the construction of the road may require, so far as the same are not forbidden by any restrictive clause. Western Bank v. Tallman, 17 Wis. 530.

A corporation is liable upon its contracts not in writing where it has accepted the benefits arising from them, even where the statute expressly confines its liability to written contracts. The statute must be limited to contracts wholly executory. Foulke v. San Diego etc. R. Co., 51 Cal. 365. See, as to a particular case, Tappan v. Western etc. R. Co., 62 Ga. 198 (railroad owned by the State).

1. Ohio etc. R. Co. v. McCarthy, 96 U. S. 267; Yates v. Van De Bogert, 56 N. Y. 526; Morris etc. R. Co. v. Sussex etc. R. Co., 20 N. J. Eq. 542.

Contracts must be clearly shown to be outside of the objects of the corporation in order to be held invalid between the corporation and innocent third parties. Eastern Counties R. Co. v. Hawkes, 5 H. L. Cas. 331; Pierce on Railroads 501.

2. Mayor etc of Norwich v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 4 El. & Bl. 397; 82 E. C. L. 396, 397; South Wales R. Co. v. Redmond, 10 C. B., N. S. 675; 100 E. C.

L. 674; South Yorkshire R. etc. Co. v. Great Northern R. Co., 9 Exch. 84; Eastern Counties R. Co. v. Hawkes, 5 H. L. Cas. 331; Cary v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 52; Shrewsbury etc. R. Co. v. Northwestern R. Co., 17 Q. B. 652; 6 H. L. Cas. 113; Taylor v. Chichester etc. R. Co., L. R. 2 Exch. 356.

"Corporations have at law capacity to make all contracts not expressly or impliedly prohibited, and therefore, contracts frustrating or necessarily inconsistent with the object for which the company is incorporated by an act are impliedly prohibited by it." Erle, J., South Wales R. Co. v. Redmond, 10 C. B., N. S. 682, 100 E. C. L. 674. It will be seen from the latter part of the quotation that the English rule virtually amounts to the same as that in America.

3. See infra, this title, Legal Status of Railroads; Thomas v. West Jersey R. Co., 101 U. S. 71.

In the case of Thomas v. West Jersey R. Co., 101 U. S. 71, the court by Miller, J., after mentioning that there was a principle which showed clearly that the railroad company had no power to make a certain contract, said: "That principle is that where a corporation like a railroad company has granted to it by charter a franchise intended in a large measure to be exercised for the public good, the due performance of those functions being the consideration of the public grant, any contract which disables the corporation from performing those functions, which undertakes, without the consent of the State, to transfer to others the rights and powers conferred by the charter, and to relieve the grantees of the burden which it imposes, is a violation of the contract with the State, and is void as against public policy. This doctrine is asserted with remarkable clearness in the opinion of this court

The general power of corporations to contract, and the effect of their contracts, has received treatment in other articles.¹ This section will be confined to a consideration of the power of such companies in relation to particular contracts.

a. CONTRACTS TO FORM POOLS.—See RAILROAD POOLS.

b. CONTRACTS CONCERNING THE LOCATION OF STATIONS.—It is a duty which railroad companies owe to the public to provide reasonable depot facilities, and contracts whose effect would be to cause a breach of this duty are void as against public policy.² Therefore contracts or conditions in deeds, the consideration or object of which is to secure the location of a depot or of the line of road at certain places with regard to private interests only are usually held to be void and of no effect.³ This is delivered by Mr. Justice Campbell, in the case of York etc. R. Co. v. Winans, 17 How. (U. S.) 30."

Contracts Involving Breach of Duty as Carrier—Exclusive Privileges.—The rule of the text will prevent a railroad company from entering into any contract the effect of which must be a breach of its duties as a common carrier of goods and passengers. Thus, a contract giving to one person or company the exclusive privilege of transportation in their passenger trains, is illegal and void. Sanford v. Erie R. Co., 2 Phila. (Pa.) 107.

So also a contract by a railroad company with certain elevators, that it will deliver grain to them exclusively is not a valid excuse to the company for refusing to deliver grain to other elevators upon the line of its way, the owners of which are not parties to the contract and to which grain has been consigned. The court in this case went on to say that a common carrier under the common law came under obligations from which he could not discharge himself by his own volition, and that much less should a railroad company be permitted to do so when it is created for the public benefit and is the recipient of extraordinary privileges. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. People, 56 Ill. 365, 8 Am. Rep. 690.

Compare Richmond v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 26 Iowa 191, in which a contract by a company that a certain elevator should have the handling "of all through grain" was upheld as being neither contrary to public policy nor involving a breach of the carrier's duty; nor was it violative of the power of Congress over interstate commerce. Richmond v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 33 Iowa 422; 40 Iowa 264; aff'd 19 Wall.

(U. S.) 595; Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 73 Mo. 389; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

1. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 245; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 331, et seq.; ULTRA VIRES; STOCK; RAILROAD SECURITIES; RAILROAD POOLS. See also generally Pierce on Railroads, pp. 510. et seq.; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 179, et seq.; Beach on Private Corp., § 421, et seq.; 1 Rorer on Railroads, p. 228, et seq.; 1 Redfield on Ry's (6th. ed.), 407, et seq.; Marshall v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 16 How. (U. S.) 314 (lobbying contract).

2. St. Joseph etc. R. Co. v. Ryan, 11 Kan. 602; 15 Am. Rep. 357; Fuller v. Dame, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 472; Pacific R. Co. v. Seely, 45 Mo. 212; 100 Am. Dec. 369; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. People, 132 Ill. 559; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 671 (this duty not affected by contract as to other stations); Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Territory, 3 Wash. Ter. 303; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 82 (equity will enforce the performance of this duty). Railroad companies are quasi public corporations, and the public have an interest in the location of their lines and depots. Holladay v. Paterson, 5 Oregon 177; State v. Republican Valley R. Co., 17 Neb. 647; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 506; 18 Neb. 512.

3. Fuller v. Dame, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 472; Marsh v. Fairburg etc. R. Co., 64 Ill. 414; Pacific R. Co. v. Seely, 45 Mo. 212; 100 Am. Dec. 369; Holladay v. Patterson, 5 Oregon 177; Currier v. Concord R. Co., 48 N. H. 321; St. Joseph etc. R. Co. v. Ryan, 11 Kan. 602, 15 Am. Rep. 357; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Mathers, 104 Ill. 257; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 600; Houston etc. R. Co. v. McKinney, 55 Tex. 176; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 723; Louisville etc. R. Co. v.

particularly true where the object is to prevent the location of other depots in the vicinity of the one contracted for.¹

c. CONTRACTS BETWEEN RAILROADS.—Aside from the law of railroad pools and that of connecting carriers, there is little to be said in this connection. A contract between two railroad companies owning different lines, if not invalid as being ultra vires, is not objectionable, unless its plain purpose and object is to destroy competition and establish a monopoly of carriage between certain points.² In the interpretation and construction of such contracts

Sumner, 106 Ind. 55; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 641.

See also Snell v. Pells, 113 Ill. 145; Wooters v. International etc. R. Co., 54 Tex. 294; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 100.

So of an agreement to establish its terminus and machine shops at a certain place. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Marshall, 136 U. S. 393; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 637.

A different doctrine is maintained and such contracts are upheld in Cedar Rapids etc. R. Co. v. Spafford, 41 Iowa 292; First National Bank v. Hendrie, 49 Iowa 402; Texas etc. R. Co. v. Robards, 60 Tex. 549; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Tygard, 84 Mo. 263; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 54; Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 18 Kan. 494; Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. Ragsdale, 54 Miss. 200; Cumberland Valley R. Co. v. Babb, 9 Watts (Pa.) 58 (contract to locate line of road at certain place). In none of these cases, however, were there any monopoly or bribery features in the contract; and it seems that the doctrine propounded by them should govern in all similar instances. The interests of the public and of the stockholders are both to be consulted and are opposed by the directors' blinding the company not to locate depots at proper places. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Mathers, 71 Ill. 592. Even where the interests of neither are prejudiced, yet if the company made its power the instrument of private emolument equity will not enforce the contract. Bestor v. Mathew, 60 Ill. 138.

But a contract to pay a given sum of money to one who should present a petition to the directors of a railroad company for the location of the depot on certain land, the money to be paid on the location of the depot and the completion of the road, is not void as against public policy, unless it appear that sinister, extraneous, or corrupting influences were brought to bear on the company to superinduce the location. Workman v. Campbell, 46 Mo. 310.

1. Williamson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 53 Iowa 126; 26 Am. Rep. 606; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Mathers, 71 Ill. 592 (condition that no other depot should be erected within three miles); St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Mathers, 104 Ill. 257; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 600; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Sumner, 106 Ind. 55; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 641.

2. See RAILROAD POOLS, vol. 19; infra, this title, Powers as to Connections with Other Roads; RAILROAD SECURITIES; ULTRA VIRES; Currier v. Concord R. Co., 48 N. H. 321.

Two companies whose roads form a continuous line may appoint a common manager and run through trains. State v. Concord etc. R. Co., 59 N. H. 85; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 94.

Even if a railroad company owning a road forming a continuous line with that of another company, might not make arrangements for a joint ownership of locomotives to run over both their roads, yet a charter providing for the connection of the first road, "by railroad" with the farther end of the second, justifies such an arrangement. Olcott v. Tioga R. Co., 27 N. Y. 546.

In the case of Central R. Co. v. Collins, 40 Ga. 582, it is said that it is a part of the public policy of the State of Georgia, as indicated by the charter of several railroads from the seaboard to the interior, to secure a reasonable competition between those roads for public patronage. And it is contrary to that policy for one of those roads to attempt to secure a controlling interest in another. Any contract made with that view, will be set aside by a court of equity as illegal, beyond the objects of the charter, and contrary to the public policy of the State.

An agreement between two connecting railroad companies, that the one shall discontinue the use of a part of its road by which it has for a long time been connected with a line of steamboats at tide water, which by the terms of its charter was one of its termini, and that in consideration therefor the other road shall use its influence to prevent the extension of a third road which would interfere with the business of the first one, is against public policy and void. State v. Hartford etc. R. Co., 29 Conn. 538.

the usual rules of law apply; there is no practical distinction in this regard between these contracts and those of private individuals or of other corporations.¹

When the contract between two railroad companies provides that all disputes between the two shall be settled by arbitration, and one road has made an illegal misapplication of funds or profits belonging to both, with the assent of a majority of the other road, if stockholders in the latter road, not thus assenting, bring their bill to recover their share of such profits, the court will enjoin both roads, if necessary, from settling, or attempting to settle the claims made by such stockholders by arbitration. March v. Eastern R. Co., 43 N. H. 515.

In Pearson v. Concord R. Co., 62 N. H. 537; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 102, two railroad companies, whose lines connected with a third one, desiring to control the line of such third company, bought a controlling interest in its stock at a rate greatly in excess of the market value. They then placed a number of their own directors in the board of the third company so as to obtain the control thereof, and had such board to enter into contracts with them relative to the transportation of goods over the third company's line, and to vote the payment of certain large sums as compromises of claims preferred by the first two companies against the third one. Upon a bill for relief filed by the stockholders of the third company, it was held that although it was not shown that the contracts entered into were not fair and just, nor that the sums voted were more than were justly due, nevertheless the manner in which they had been procured constituted a fraud in law; that the company had no power to purchase the third company's stock for the purpose above indicated, and at that price; and that, therefore, the directors of the third company were incapable of serving as such, and that a trustee would be appointed by the court to manage the road.

Contract of Sale.—In Branch v. Jesup, 106 U. S. 468; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558, it was held that while as a general rule a corporation cannot dispose of its franchises, nor a railroad company its road, nor purchase the road and franchises of other companies without specific legislative authority, yet in the particular case in hand, where one company had the right to construct a particular line of road with general power to purchase all kinds of property of whatever nature or kind, it might purchase from another company a road constructed upon that line, the other company having the power to sell.

1. Construction of Such Contracts.—State v. New Orleans etc. R. Co. (La. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 606; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 276; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Brydon, 65 Md. 198; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 287; Railroad Companies v. Schutte, 103 U. S. 118; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

In Naugatuck R. Co. v. Waterbury Button Co., 24 Conn. 468, there was a charter provision that the company might "make any lawful contract with any other railroad corporation in relation to the business of said road." It was held that the object of this permission was to enable such road to contract for the common use of so much of another road already constructed as lay within the limits of the road so chartered.

Where several railroad companies enter into an agreement by which through coupon-tickets are sold and baggage checked for the united length of their lines, each company receiving fares for the passengers it has carried, such arrangement does not constitute them partners, and renders neither liable for losses on other than its own road. Straiton v. New York etc. R. Co., 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 184.

See Bartlett v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 33 Conn. 560, as to the construction of a contract whereby several railroad companies agreed that one of them should build a connecting road, and the others contribute a specified proportion of the expense thereof.

See also Chicago etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 24 Fed. Rep. 516; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 265, as to construction of contract between two

d. VARIOUS OTHER CONTRACTS.—A contract by a railroad company, based upon a proper consideration, to give to a party during his life a free pass over its roads is not objectionable as being illegal or against public policy, and will be enforced in equity or damages may be recovered for a breach of it.¹ So also of an agreement between two companies by which one agrees to transport free the officers and employes of the other.² A company may lease a portion of the premises along its line to be used for refreshment rooms, and contract that all its passenger trains shall stop there for a reasonable time.³ The power of a company to make contracts for its right of way has already been noticed.⁴

A railway company may in certain cases make a contract whereby it agrees to give to a certain ferry company all its ferrying business.⁵

As to contracts for the services of physicians or attorneys see other articles.⁶

8. Power to Make Reasonable Rules and Regulations.—As a carrier of passengers a railroad company has the right and it is its duty to make and enforce all regulations necessary for the convenience companies in which they agreed to establish a dispatch line.

Joy v. St. Louis, 138 U. S. 1; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 655, as to construction of tripartite agreement between two companies and the city for a right of way through a park of the latter.

1. Contract to Give Free Pass.—Erie etc. R. Co. v. Douthet, 88 Pa. St. 243; 32 Am. Rep. 451 (injuries received); Bettridge v. Great Western R. Co., 3 Grant (Up. Can.) 58; Grimes v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 37 Minn. 66; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 123. See also Shaffer v. Lee, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 412.

The grant of a free pass may be to the party alone or to him and his family. Erie etc. R. Co. v. Douthet, 88 Pa. St. 243; 32 Am. Rep. 451; Grimes v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 37 Minn. 66.

But receivers, it is said, have no authority to enter into a covenant to grant annual free passes in consideration of a conveyance of the right of way. Martin v. New York etc. R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 109; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 448.

2. Niagara Falls Bridge Co. v. Great Western R. Co., 25 Up. Can., Q. B. 313.

See also Pennsylvania Co. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 108 Pa. St. 621; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 549; Knopf v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 85 Va. 769; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 140.

3. Contracts for Refreshment Rooms—Stoppage of Trains.—A company made such a lease and contracted that all passenger trains, except those not under its control, should stop ten minutes. The company was a mail carrier and the Postmaster General, subsequently, under authority given him by statute, required all mail trains to stop only five minutes at stations. It was held that it was not a breach of the contract for the company to stop none of its trains ten minutes at the said station since it was beyond its power to do so. Phillips v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 7 Ch. 409; 2 Moak's Rep. 316. See also Burnett v. Great North etc. R. Co., 10 App. Cas. 147; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 647; Rigby v. Great Western R. Co., 14 M. & W. 811; Flanagin v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 7 Eq. 116; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 185.

4. Contracts Concerning the Right of Way.—Infra, this title, Acquisition by Purchase. See also Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 401.

5. Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 73 Mo. 389; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1. Compare Sanford v. Erie Co., 2 Phila. (Pa.) 107; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. People, 56 Ill. 365; 8 Am. Rep. 690.

6. Employment of Physicians and Attorneys.—See AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 364; OFFICERS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, pp. 150, 151; PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, vol. 18, p. 434 et seq.; Davis v. Memphis City R. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 883; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1 (president has power to employ attorney); Canney v. South Pac.

and safety of its passengers.¹ So also it may make whatever other rules and regulations may be necessary for the proper management of its road and conduct of its business,² subject in each case to the limitation that such regulations shall be not unreasonable or unnecessary, and shall be uniform in their operation.³ It may eject from its premises or accommodations all who refuse obedience, but this must be done with due regard to the safety of the person ejected;⁴ or it may decline to enter into business relations with those who disregard its regulations.⁵

R. Co., 63 Cal. 501; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 310; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Grove (Kan. 1888), 18 Pac. Rep. 958 (authority of general manager to employ attorney).

1. See CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 759, note; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 55 Ill. 185; Gray v. Cincinnati Southern R. Co., 11 Fed. Rep. 683; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 588. See also infra, this title, Expulsion of Passengers.

2. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. People, 56 Ill. 365; 9 Am. Rep. 690; Com. v. Power, 7 Met. (Mass.) 596; Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Bartram, 11 Ohio St. 457; Reagan v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 93 Mo. 348.

As to regulations concerning freight and passenger charges, see FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 900; TICKETS AND FARES.

The superintendent of a railroad depot may exercise this power to a certain extent by delegation. Com. v. Power, 7 Met. (Mass.) 596; 41 Am. Dec. 472.

It is the positive duty of a railroad company to make proper regulations for the protection of its servants. Abel v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 103 N. Y. 581.

3. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 55 Ill. 185; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. People, 56 Ill. 365; 9 Am. Rep. 690; West Chester etc. R. Co. v. Miles, 55 Pa. St. 209; Attorney Gen'l v. Fitchburg R. Co., 142 Mass. 40; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 54 (a rule or regulation cannot exist which impairs the obligation of the contract existing between the railroad and the State). A company cannot discriminate between persons and sell tickets to some and refuse them to others without reason. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Rinard, 46 Ind. 293; Old Colony R. Co. v. Tripp, 147 Mass. 35.

It is sometimes said that the question as to whether any particular regulation is reasonable is for the jury. Brown v. Memphis etc. R.

Co., 4 Fed. Rep. 37; Com. v. Power, 7 Met. (Mass.) 596; 41 Am. Dec. 472, note; CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 759 and cases cited. But the correctness of this may well be doubted. See Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Fleming, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 128; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 347; Smith v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 92 Mo. 359; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 331; South Florida R. Co. v. Rhoads, 25 Fla. 40; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 100; Vedder v. Fellows, 20 N. Y. 127; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whittemore, 43 Ill. 420, where the direct contrary is held. See also QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT.

4. Landrigan v. State, 31 Ark. 50; 25 Am. Rep. 547; Marquette v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 33 Iowa 562; Harris v. Stevens, 31 Vt. 79; 73 Am. Dec. 337; Texas etc. R. Co. v. Pearle (Tex. 1885), 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 195.

See also infra, this title, Expulsion of Passengers.

One who desires to take passage upon the cars must exercise his right to enter and remain in the station-house in conformity with the due and reasonable regulations of the company as to his conduct while there; and he cannot exercise it until a reasonable time next prior to the departure of the train on which he intends to go. What is such a reasonable time depends upon the circumstances of each particular case. Harris v. Stevens, 31 Vt. 79; 73 Am. Dec. 337.

Effect of Failure to Comply with Regulations.—A failure by a passenger to comply with the reasonable rules and regulations may constitute such contributory negligence as to relieve the company from liability for injuries received. See CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 50, et seq.; Eaton v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 57 N. Y. 383; 15 Am. Rep. 513; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Langdon, 92 Pa. St. 21.

5. See CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 787, et seq.

It is no evidence of the waiver of any rule that the employes of the company were accustomed to act in disregard of it unless the officer charged with its enforcement was aware of such custom.¹

Passengers and other persons avail themselves of the accommodations offered by railroads subject to these rules and regulations and must inform themselves of them and conform to them.²

Instances of such regulations might be multiplied.³

1. O'Neill v. Keokuk etc. R. Co., 45 Iowa 546; Prince v. International etc. R. Co., 64 Tex. 144; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 152; Hobbs v. Texas etc. R. Co., 49 Ark. 357; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 268.

Compare Britton v. Atlanta etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 536; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 391.

The company is not bound by a conductor's agreement to let a passenger off at a station at which the published regulations of the company do not allow the train to stop. Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Hatton, 60 Ind. 12; Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. Nuzum, 60 Ind. 533.

2. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Fleming, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 128; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 348; McRae v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 526; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 316; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Miles, 40 Ark. 298; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 10; Abend v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 111 Ill. 202; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 614 (person riding in engine cab contrary to rules); Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Hawk, 72 Ala. 112; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 195 (passenger on platform).

The rules must be so published that all persons connected with the road, whether passengers or servants, may easily inform themselves of them. Otherwise no one can be bound for violation of a regulation of which he was ignorant. St. Joseph etc. R. Co. v. Wheeler, 35 Kan. 185; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 173; Fay v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 30 Minn. 231; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 193; Burlington etc. R. Co. v. Rose, 11 Neb. 177; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 153; Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 123 Ill. 162; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 61; McGee v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 92 Mo. 208; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Trotlinger v. East Tennessee etc. R. Co., 11 Lea (Tenn.) 533; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 49; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Spicker, 105 Pa. St. 142; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 672.

There is no irrebuttable presumption that a passenger is informed of the rules of the company. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Rosenzwing, 113 Pa. St. 519; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 489.

3. Instances.—As to regulations concerning freight or passenger charges, see FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 200; TICKETS AND FARES. As to regulations concerning stations, see STATIONS.

The following are regulations which have been held reasonable and valid:

That passengers shall not drum for custom for hotels while on the train. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Pearle (Tex. 1885), 26 Am. & Eng. Cas. 195, note.

That hackmen, peddlers, expressmen, and loafers shall not enter a passenger room at the station. Summit v. State, 8 Lea (Tenn.) 413; 41 Am. Rep. 637; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 302.

That passengers shall not stand on the platform while the train is in motion. Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Hawk, 72 Ala. 112; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 195; Wills v. Lynn etc. R. Co., 129 Mass. 35; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 27.

That persons hauling freight shall receive freight from the platform and shall not enter the warehouse, and that persons transacting their business with the company shall do so over a counter. Donovan v. Texas etc. R. Co., 64 Tex. 519; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 320.

That various passenger trains shall stop only at certain stations. Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Grants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 200; Pennsylvania Co. v. Wentz, 37 Ohio St. 333; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 478.

The company may prescribe conditions upon which passengers shall be allowed to ride upon freight trains. Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Bartram, 11 Ohio St. 457; Burlington etc. R. Co. v. Rose, 11 Neb. 177; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 253. But a regulation is not reasonable which, while allowing passengers to travel on freight trains, affords them no opportunity to procure tickets except at such hours as would make it more

9. Miscellaneous Powers.—If its charter does not forbid, a railroad company may become a joint owner of a ferry with the same rights as a natural person;¹ and where its road forms with that of another company a continuous line, the two companies may expeditious to travel by the passenger trains. Evans v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 56 Ala. 246; 28 Am. Rep. 771; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Myrtle, 51 Ind. 566.

The company may divide passengers and freight over their road into classes, but their charges must be uniform upon all persons and freight embraced in the several classes. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Parks, 18 Ill. 468; 16 Am. Dec. 562.

A company may set apart a certain car as a "ladies' car" and may authorize its employes to exclude from such car men traveling without female company. Peck v. New York etc. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 587; Bass v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 36 Wis. 450; 17 Am. Rep. 495.

But a regulation that the company will not be responsible for baggage unless fully addressed with the name and destination of the owner is unreasonable, and not enforceable. Cutler v. North London R. Co., 16 Q. B. Div. 64; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 105.

Nor is a regulation a reasonable one which prohibits passengers from wearing the uniform cap of a rival line. South Florida R. Co. v. Rhodes, 25 Fla. 40; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 100.

A regulation by a company which has five passenger stations within the corporate limits of a city, that tickets shall be sold only to the station which forms the terminus of the road, and that baggage shall be checked only to that station, though the other stations are regular stopping places for passenger trains, is unreasonable and void as a matter of law, even though it was made for the purpose of preventing the transfer of passengers and baggage to a rival road. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Lyon, 123 Pa. St. 140; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 231.

Discrimination on Account of Color.—In the case of West Chester etc. R. Co. v. Miles, 55 Pa. St. 209; 93 Am. Dec. 744, it is said that there is such a natural, legal, and customary difference between the white and black races, that their separation in a public conveyance may be the subject of a sound regulation to secure order, promote comfort, preserve the peace, and maintain the rights of both carriers and passengers. And this seems to be the doctrine generally, but only in cases where accommodations equally good are afforded to each class of passengers. Houck v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 38 Fed. Rep. 226; Heard v. Georgia etc. R. Co., 1 Interst. Com. Rep. 428; Logwood v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 318; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 256; Chesapeake etc. R. Co. v. Wells, 85 Tenn. 613; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 111; Britton v. Atlanta etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 536; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 391; Civil Rights Bill, 1 Hughes (U. S.) 541; Murphy v. Western etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 637; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 258; Green v. Bridgeton (U. S. 1879), 9 Cent. L. J. 206. See also Day v. Owen, 5 Mich. 520, and Gaines v. McCandless, 4 Phila. (Pa.) 255 (decided prior to adoption of 14th Amendment).

Compare Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 55 Ill. 185; Gray v. Cincinnati Southern R. Co., 11 Fed. Rep. 683; Coger v. Northwest etc. Packet Co., 37 Iowa 145.

In Washington etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 450, such a regulation was held invalid because the road was operated under a statute which forbade such discrimination.

In Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 485, a statute providing for a similar regulation was held invalid as infringing upon the congressional power over interstate commerce.

In some cases, statutes have been passed forbidding the enforcement of such regulations. Central R. Co. v. Green, 86 Pa. St. 421; Washington etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 450.

In other cases, it has been provided that such regulations shall be enforced, and that separate coaches shall be provided. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. State, 66 Miss. 662; aff'd 133 U. S. 587; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 46; Alabama Acts 1890-91, No. 185, p. 412; Arkansas Acts 1891, ch. 17, p. 15; Louisiana Acts 1890, No. 111, p. 152; Tennessee Acts 1891, ch. 52, p. 135; Gen. Laws Texas (1891), ch. 41, p. 44.

1. Hackett v. Multnomah R. Co., 12 Oregon 124; 53 Am. Rep. 327 (and it be joint owners of all the rolling stock used on both roads.¹ It may in certain cases carry on an express business, to the exclusion of all other parties.² If the charter does not forbid, it may dedicate for a public highway land which it has taken by eminent domain.³

The power to own and operate a canal does not belong to railroad companies unless conferred by express grant; it cannot exist by implication.⁴

A railroad company has no implied power to lend its funds or credit to aid in the construction of another railroad or similar enterprise; such power is not incidental to its authority to construct and operate its own road, but is entirely foreign to the objects and purposes of its incorporation.⁵ The power to do so may, however, belong to it by statute.⁶ A railroad company may compel an account for its share of its earnings).

A railway company owning boats which it is bound to supply to a ferry may, when the boats are not otherwise needed, use them for excursions to places not mentioned in the acts. Forrest v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 30 Beav. 40.

1. Olcott v. Tioga R. Co., 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 179; 27 N. Y. 546; 84 Am. Dec. 298. The power exists irrespective of a statute authorizing the connection of the lines.

2. Sargent v. Boston etc. R. Co., 115 Mass. 416. And this notwithstanding a statute requiring every railroad to give all persons or companies reasonable and equal terms and facilities for transportation, etc.

Upon this immediate question there has been considerable conflict of authority. The case of St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Southern Express Co., 108 U. S. 24; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 545, supports the doctrine of the text in holding that a railroad company is not bound to afford facilities to express companies. But see this subject treated in EXPRESS COMPANIES, vol. 7, p. 542.

3. But only in connection with the owners of the fee. Green v. Canaan, 29 Conn. 157.

4. Plymouth R. Co. v. Colwell, 39 Pa. St. 337; 80 Am. Dec. 526.

And a railroad company has no power to improve the navigation of a stream merely because it has extensive wharves upon it whose business is decreasing owing to lack of such improvement in the stream. Munt v. Shrewsbury etc. R. Co., 13 Beav. 1.

5. Authority to Aid Other Enterprises—Loan of Corporate Funds.—East Anglian R. Co. v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 11 C. B. 775; 73 E. C. L. 775 (no authority to assist in securing an act of Parliament to extend the line of road of another company); McGregor v. Dover etc. R. Co., 18 Q. B. Div. 618; 83 E. C. L. 618 (same as preceding); Davis v. Old Colony R. Co., 131 Mass. 258; 41 Am. Rep. 221 (no authority to assist a musical company); 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 176; Mannsell v. Midland etc. R. Co., 1 H. & N. 130 (assisting bill through Parliament); Zabriskie v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381.

See also ULTRA VIRES; Caledonian etc. R. Co. v. Helensburgh Trustees, 39 Eng. L. & Eq. 28.

Therefore a corporation created to construct a railroad between certain points will be enjoined from using its funds or pledging its credit for the purpose of extending its road beyond such limits. Stevens v. Rutland etc. R. Co. 29 Vt. 545.

A general corporate franchise to a railroad company has been construed to authorize it to lend its surplus funds and to recover the same by action. North Carolina R. Co. v. Moore, 70 N. Car. 6.

6. To Guaranty Bonds of Other Railroads.—Cases in which such authority has been expressly given are Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 9; 26 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 225; Mayor etc. of Baltimore v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 21 Md. 50; Smead v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 11 Ind. 104; Madison etc. R. Co. v. Norwich etc. Soc., 24 Ind. 457.

may have authority to do various other things connected with its business; such, for example, as maintaining restaurants for passengers,¹ machines for public weighing at its stations;² it may erect telegraph lines along its route,³ and grant exclusive privileges to a telegraph company under certain circumstances;⁴ and make other arrangements for the proper carrying on of its business.⁵

See also East Boston etc. R. Co. v. Eastern R. Co., 13 Allen (Mass.) 422; Arnot v. Erie R. Co., 5 Hun (N. Y.) 608; aff'd 67 N. Y. 315 (question not decided); Cozart v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 54 Ga. 379; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Pierce, Railroads 504. In taking the lease of the road of another company it may as a part of the transaction guaranty such company's bonds. Low v. Central Pac. R. Co., 52 Cal. 53; Opdyke v. Pacific R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 55.

1. Restaurants.—Flantsgan v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 7 Eq. 116.

2. London etc. R. Co. v. Price, 11 Q. B. Div. 485; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 128.

3. In Prather v. Western Union Tel. Co., 89 Ind. 501; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1, the railroad company was expressly authorized to appropriate the fee of its right of way sixty feet in width. It was held that it might construct, within the limits of the way (sixty feet), a telegraph line.

In Western Union Tel. Co. v. Rich, 19 Kan. 516; 27 Am. Rep. 159, it was held that a railroad company might for its own use in operating its line construct a telegraph line along and upon its right of way; and in so doing might remove trees upon the right of way if necessary without becoming liable for extra damages. See also St. Joseph etc. R. Co. v. Dryden, 11 Kan. 186.

If such a line be built by the railroad company and another party at their joint expense and for their joint use the latter only is liable for the damages caused by the additional burden upon the easement held by the company. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Rich, 19 Kan. 516; 27 Am. Rep. 159.

4. A contract by a railroad company with a telegraph company for such exclusive rights is not against public policy as creating a monopoly and discouraging competition so far as it excludes competitors from the line of poles occupied by the telegraph company. And if the railroad company authorizes any other company to erect another line equity will enjoin the placing of wires upon such poles. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 86 Ill. 246; 29 Am. Rep. 28. The same view is upheld in Western Union R. Co. v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 7 Biss. (U. S.) 367; Beach on Private Corp., § 405.

But in Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.) 130, it is said that it is not competent for a railroad company to grant a single telegraph company the exclusive right to a line of telegraph along its right of way; that a contract with such object is against public policy and void.

See also New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Southern etc. Tel. Co., 53 Ala. 211.

5. A railroad company may subscribe to secure the permanent location of a State fair upon its line. State Board v. Citizens' St. R. Co., 47 Ind. 407; 17 Am. Rep. 702.

It may out of its funds give gratuities to the employés or directors. Beach on Private Corp., § 405; Hutton v. West Cork R. Co., 23 Ch. Div. 654.

It may offer a reward "for the arrest with proof to convict, of any person for the malicious obstruction of" its tracks, and such offer is binding upon it. Central R. etc. Co. v. Cheatham, 85 Ala. 292; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 282.

It may have a line of wagons to cart freight to and from its depots. Attorney Gen'l v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 16 Dec. Des. Trib. (L. C.) 9; Beach on Private Corp., § 405. So of a stage line for passengers to and from its depots. Buffitt v. Troy etc. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 420; 40 N. Y. 168; and it may arrange with an omnibus line as to the carriage of its patrons to and from stations; such arrangements are exempt from municipal interference. Napman v. People, 19 Mich. 352.

As incident to the power to conduct its business the company may compromise disputes and release a part of a doubtful claim in order to secure the

In addition to those enumerated, a railroad company possesses usually all those minor powers which belong to corporations generally. These have already been detailed.¹

VI. LOCATION—1. Power of the Company to Choose.—In some instances the exact location of the railroad is prescribed by the charter of the company;² in others only the termini and general route are so prescribed, the determination of details being left to the discretion of the company;³ while in still other instances the determination of the general and particular location is left entirely to the company, subject only to the approval of certain public authorities.⁴ When such discretion is allowed to the residue. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Hickman, 28 Pa. St. 318.

1. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 248; FOREIGN CORPORATIONS, vol. 8, p. 331, et seq.; OFFICERS AND AGENTS, (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS), vol. 17, pp. 87, 135; ULTRA VIRES; BRIDGES, vol. 2, p. 550.

2. An instance is seen in In re Coney Island R. Co., 12 Hun (N. Y.) 451, where it was held that the particular location by the legislature dispensed with the notice of the location of the route required under the general railroad law.

The charter constitutes a contract between the corporation and a subscriber to its capital stock; and any material departure from the points designated in the charter for the location of the road, is a violation of the charter, for which the franchise of the corporation may be seized upon quo warranto, unless the legislature has waived the right of the State to seize the franchise, by acts legalizing the violation of the charter. Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Cross, 20 Ark. 443.

In Louisiana the laws regulating the appropriation of land for railroads do not make it the province of the jury to determine the route of the road. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Robertson, 34 La. Ann. 865.

3. Thus in Boston Water Power Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 23 Pick. (Mass.) 360, the charter authorized the company to construct a railroad "in or near the city of Boston and thence to any part of the town of W, in such manner and form as they should deem convenient."

In Wisconsin a general railroad act conferred authority to change the routes of railroads, but it was held to be confined to a change of route, not of termini. Attorney Gen'l v. West Wisconsin R. Co., 36 Wis. 466. And this is by far the most usual. See Boston etc. R. Co. v. Midland R. Co., 1 Gray (Mass.) 341; Com. v. Franklin Canal Co., 21 Pa. St. 117; Parke's Appeal, 64 Pa. St. 137; Norton v. Wallkill Valley etc. R. Co., 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 476; 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 77.

All railroad charters which do not express the contrary must be taken to allow the exercise of such discretion in the location of the route as is incident to an ordinary practical survey of the same, made with reference to the nature of the country, etc. Southern Minn. R. Co. v. Stoddard, 6 Minn. 150.

When the legislature authorizes the construction of a railroad between two designated points, no intermediate point being named, and there are routes between said points equally feasible, that which is most direct may be deemed to have been contemplated; but where there is a difference in the feasibility of the routes, a reasonable discretion must be allowed in the selection of that which is to be followed. Newcastle etc. R. Co. v. Peru etc. R. Co., 3 Ind. 464.

4. Massachusetts St. of 1874, ch. 372, §§ 23-31 authorized persons incorporating themselves for the purpose, to construct a railroad upon submitting a map and profile of the proposed route to the selectmen of any town and to the mayor and aldermen of any city through which the road passed, and agreeing with them as to the route in that town or city. Boston etc. R. Co. v. Lowell etc. R. Co., 124 Mass. 368. See also Williams v. Hartford etc. R. Co., 13 Conn. 397.

In Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Speer, 66 Pa. St. 326; 94 Am. Dec. 84, the company were authorized to build their road by the most direct and least expensive route; it was held that after the location and construction of the road were company, it is not to be abused, and it cannot be exercised to build a road entirely different from that intended by the charter;¹ but neither is the exercise of it to be disturbed, unless there is a plain case of error or abuse.² Having once exercised this discretion it is complete the exercise of the discretion could not be impeached by a private individual.

In Frankfort etc. Turnp. Co. v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 54 Pa. St. 345; 93 Am. Dec. 708, it is said that in the absence of any charter provisions the company may locate its road and stations on such route and at such points as, in its judgment, will be beneficial to its own and the public's interest.

In Com. v. Crosscut R. Co., 53 Pa. St. 62, authority to construct a road "to connect with any railroad constructed or to be constructed, at any point in the northern boundary" of two counties, was held to authorize the termination of the road at any point of the boundary named and not to limit the terminus to another road.

In New York.—Under the General Railroad Act, any person aggrieved by the proposed location of the road over or through his land, may apply to a justice of the supreme court for an appointment of commissioners. These commissioners act in each county, and it is their duty to examine the route proposed and to affirm or alter it as may best subserve the interests of the parties concerned and the public. Their power is not restricted to that portion of the route which lies within the bounds of the land of the party procuring their appointments, but any portion of the route within the limits of their county may be altered by them to obviate such objections of the party aggrieved as they may deem well founded; but their alteration must not disturb the continuity of the line, or so change the proposed route as to leave it disconnected at either end with the other portion, thereby abridging or interrupting the road. There is but one board of commissioners for each county, and when their work is done, the route through the county is settled. People v. Tubbs, 59 Barb. (N. Y.) 401; aff'd, 49 N. Y. 356; In re Hartman, 9 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 124; Norton v. Wallkill Valley R. Co., 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 470.

No person is authorized to apply for the appointment of commissioners, except one whose lands have not been acquired by the company. He must feel himself aggrieved by the proposed location over his land, and should set forth his objections to the route designated in his petition. People v. Tubbs, 59 Barb. (N. Y.) 401; aff'd, 49 N. Y. 356.

1. Thus where the authority to the company was to build a road between certain points "by such route as the said company shall deem most expedient and advantageous, it was held that it was not intended that the company should regard their own advantage but the advantage of the route as a route between the points prescribed. Com. v. Franklin Canal Co., 21 Pa. St. 117. See also Brigham v. Agricultural Branch R. Co., 1 Allen (Mass.) 316; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Midland R. Co., 1 Gray (Mass.) 340.

An injunction will lie to prevent a contemplated abuse of this discretion. Central R. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 475; 32 N. J. Eq. 755.

Such a discretion cannot authorize the construction of the road in a different manner from that intended. Boston etc. R. Co. v. Lowell etc. R. Co., 124 Mass. 368.

Nor can a company use a granted right of way for a road running in a different direction from the one contemplated in the grant. Crosbie v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 62 Iowa 189; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 463.

2. Hentz v. Long Island R. Co., 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 646; New York Cent. etc. R. Co. v. People, 12 Hun (N. Y.) 195; 74 N. Y. 302 (election as to mode of crossing a highway when exercised by company in good faith, not reviewable); Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 326; 94 Am. Dec. 84 (location not reviewable after road is built); Parke's Appeal, 64 Pa. St. 137; Struthers v. Dunkirk etc. R. Co., 87 Pa. St. 282.

Under a charter which fixes one terminus of a railroad at or near a certain point, a large discretion is conferred upon the railroad company in locating their road, the exercise of which will not be revised by the court unless they have clearly exceeded its just limits, or acted in bad faith; and where a charter authorizes a railroad company to extend, locate, construct said that the power of the company is exhausted, and it cannot change the location without specific legislative authority,¹ and and maintain a railroad "from a point at or near the present terminus of its track in Fall River in a southerly direction to the line of the State of Rhode Island," a location starting at a point, 2,475 feet, by the line of the railroad, northerly from the termination of the old track, is authorized. Fall River Iron Works Co. v. Old Colony etc. R. Co., 5 Allen (Mass.) 221.

Authority to "Extend" the Road.—A legislative grant of authority to "extend" the road contemplates that one terminus shall remain the same, and does not authorize the construction of an independent road. Savannah etc. R. Co. v. Shiels, 33 Ga. 601.

Authority to extend and unite with any other railroad in the State confers a general authority to extend to any other road within the prescribed limits. Belleville R. Co. v. Gregory, 15 Ill. 20.

Temporary Location or Right of Way.—Where a railroad company is authorized by law, only "to enter upon any land to survey, lay down, and construct its road;" to appropriate land for "necessary side tracks," and "a right of way over adjacent lands sufficient to enable it to construct and repair its road," and such company has located, and is engaged in the construction of its permanent main road along the north side of a town, it is not authorized to appropriate a temporary right of way, for three years, along the south side of the town, to be used as a substitute for the main track while the same is in course of construction along the north side of the town. Currier v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 11 Ohio St. 228.

1. Power to Change Location.—It is an ancient rule that "if a man once determines his election, it shall be determined forever." Comyn's Dig., Election, c. 2. See Little Miami R. Co. v. Naylor, 2 Ohio St. 236; 59 Am. Dec. 667; Mason v. Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 373; People v. New York etc. R. Co., 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 73; aff'd 3 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 220; Hudson etc. Canal Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 9 Paige (N. Y.) 323; Turnpike Road Co. v. Hosmer, 12 Conn. 361; Morris etc. R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 31 N. J. L. 205; Brigham v. Agricultural Branch R. Co., 1 Allen (Mass.) 316; Lance's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 16; 93 Am. Dec. 722; Neal v. Pittsburgh etc. R.

Co., 2 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 137 (though they may make experimental surveys at pleasure).

Even where the act of incorporation gave express authority "to vary the route and change the location after the first selection had been made:" 1. Whenever a better and cheaper route could be had; and, 2. Whenever any obstacle to continue said location was found, either by difficulty of construction or of procuring right of way at a reasonable cost, authority was not thereby conferred upon the corporation to relocate their road, after completing it upon the first location, and to take private property for the uses of the road. Moorhead v. Little Miami R. Co., 17 Ohio 340.

Where a petition for a private railroad has been granted, and a survey accompanies the petition, and where the courses, distances, grades, and the like are laid down on draughts that are put on file, if, upon the proposed plan, a view has been granted and damages assessed, the location cannot be changed except upon a new petition. Lance's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 16; 93 Am. Dec. 722.

The power to lay double tracks is not exhausted by the laying of one set, and may be subsequently exercised. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; People's Pass. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 37 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 424.

What Constitutes an Exercise of the Right to Choose Location.—In the case of Appeal of Western Pa. R. Co., 99 Pa. St. 155; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 191, a company, authorized by its charter to construct a railroad from an incorporated city to a certain point, accepted an ordinance of such city granting it a right of way to a certain point therein. It then built its track from that point, and established there its freight and passenger depots. There was no other act on its part indicating an intention to fix its terminus at that point. The court held that the power imposed in the company to build its road from that city, authorized it to commence its road at any point within it, and that its power to locate its terminus had not been exhausted, and it might subsequently extend its line to a point beyond where these depots were located.

this authority, when granted, is to be construed strictly.¹ This rule, however, has been variously modified and restricted, and in some cases even denied.² The power of the company to select

A executed a writing with the C. & O. road professing to convey for valuable consideration certain lots through which the company's road was expected to be built, and containing a clause that such grant was on the condition that the property should revert to the grantor, his heirs or assigns, in case it should ever cease to be used for railroad purposes; containing also a covenant that A should have leave to connect a single branch with the road at a point near his hotel, and that the company should erect lawful fences, etc. Such a writing does not constitute a contract on the part of the company to build its road, along and through such lots, which can be enforced by a bill for specific performance. Such a contract as well as the law, contemplates the right of a company to change its route before being built and to abandon it afterwards, and if the complainant is injured thereby his only remedy is by an action at law. Hoard v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 123 U. S. 222. See also Morrill v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 96 Mo. 174; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 425.

Effect of a Change of Location.—If a railroad company has received from individuals or municipalities donations of land or of money, or other assistance, and in consideration thereof has engaged to locate its road through certain points, and grant certain privileges in connection with the road, it cannot change its location without making due compensation to such parties. Chapman v. Mad River etc. R. Co., 6 Ohio St. 119; MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1295, et seq. Therefore a municipal subscription is invalidated if the location, on the strength of which it was given, is changed. Curry v. Decatur Co., 61 Iowa 71; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 80; Saginaw etc. R. Co. v. Chappell, 56 Mich. 190; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 16. See also Braddock v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 45 N. J. L. 353; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 436; Montgomery etc. R. Co. v. Matthews, 77 Ala. 375; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 9.

And a note given to aid in the construction of a road cannot be recovered upon, when the road is constructed along a different route from that contemplated when the note was given, unless the assent of the maker to the change of location can be shown. Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Lamphear, 54 Mich. 575; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 43; Miller v. Gulf etc. R. Co., 65 Tex. 659; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 158. See also MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1295; STOCKHOLDERS.

A company having begun proceedings for the condemnation of land, if it changes its route and discontinues them, must pay all the costs growing out of the suit. North Missouri R. Co. v. Reynal, 25 Mo. 534; Drath v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 15 Neb. 367; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 385; Leisse v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 72 Mo. 561; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611; Hudson River R. Co. v. Outwater, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 689; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 634.

A change in its location constitutes an abandonment of the old location. Stacey v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 27 Vt. 39.

1. Thus a power to change the route does not include a power to change the terminal points. Attorney Gen'l v. West Wisconsin R. Co., 36 Wis. 466; Brigham v. Agricultural Branch R. Co., 1 Allen (Mass.) 316.

And authority to vary the route and change the location after selection does not include authority, after the road is constructed, to relocate the road and condemn land to the new uses of the road. Moorehead v. Little Miami R. Co., 17 Ohio 340; Little Miami R. Co. v. Naylor, 2 Ohio St. 236; 59 Am. Dec. 667; Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21.

See also Doughty v. Somerville etc. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. 443.

A company authorized to change the location of its track on account of "difficulty of construction" and other causes, may do so at any time before the track is completed. Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21. And this authority to change is exhausted when once the change has been made. Mason v. Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 373.

2. Thus it does not apply except in cases where the land is to be acquired by eminent domain. If the company purchase the right of way it may change its location at pleasure within certain limits. Mine Hill etc. R. Co. v. Lipincott, 86 Pa. St. 480.

In Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Devaney, 42 Miss. 583; 2 Am. Rep. 608, the company was allowed to relocate part of its road in view of the necessities of the case, and of the fact that no detriment would thereby accrue to the public. See also Atkinson v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21.

The right of a company to change its location, at least before the actual construction of the road, in accordance with its discretion, was also conceded in Mahaska Co. R. Co. v. Des Moines Valley R. Co., 28 Iowa 437. So also where there was a charter right to change the location after an appraisal made of condemned lands but before confirmation. Hudson River R. Co. v. Outwater, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 689.

In Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Compton, 2 Gill (Md.) 20, there was express legislative authority to relocate.

In Virginia etc. R. Co. v. Lovejoy, 8 Ney. 100, it is said that the fact that the road has been constructed according to the surveys and maps already filed, does not prevent the company from condemning other land which may be necessary and proper for its purposes.

In Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Wilson, 17 Ill. 123, it is said that the power to condemn lands for a location is not exhausted by the apparent completion of the road. And in Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103, 107, the doctrine is intimated that the power continues so as to meet all requirements for new and increased facilities. See also Black v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 249. But the doctrine of these last three cases is considered to be opposed by principle and the weight of authority and they have been criticized as being wrongly decided. Lodge v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 345; Prather v. Jeffersonville etc. R. Co., 52 Ind. 16. See also People v. Lockport etc. R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.) 211.

The True Rule.—An examination of the cases cited will demonstrate that the right of a company to change its location where sufficient reason exists cannot be denied. In all the cases denying the right, the decision was based on the ground that there was no necessity for the change, and that a railroad company should not be allowed to condemn land for relocation merely from caprice or for the benefit of individuals.

Thus in the case of Moorhead v.

Little Miami R. Co., 17 Ohio 340, the court enjoined the company from condemning land for relocation, assigning as a reason that "there was no necessity for the change, and it was not a case for the exercise of any implied power." Citing Little Miami R. Co. v. Naylor, 2 Ohio St. 235; 59 Am. Dec. 667.

And in Griffen v. House, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 397, the court in denying the right of the turnpike company to change its gates said: "When the discretion has once been exercised, the power is exhausted, and cannot be revived so as to authorize the company to move the gates to suit their convenience, without some strong and manifest necessity to warrant it."

These and other cases are reviewed in the leading case of Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Devaney, 42 Miss. 555; 2 Am. Rep. 608, and the conclusion is reached that a railroad company may condemn land for its relocation, if there be a manifest necessity for the change of location, and no detriment accrues therefrom to the public.

The correct rule, therefore, seems to be that while a railroad company may not change its location from motives of caprice, or for the sake of private individual convenience, it may do so whenever the interest or convenience of the public is to be subserved thereby and where it is essential to the accomplishment of the ends for which the road is being built. See Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Devaney, 42 Miss. 555; 2 Am. Rep. 608; Ex parte South Carolina R. Co., 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 434; South Carolina R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 228; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. New Orleans, 1 La. Ann. 128; Atlantic R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228; Works v. Junction R. Co., 5 McLean (U. S.) 425; Eel River etc. R. Co. v. Field, 67 Cal. 429; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 91; McCartney v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ill. 611; Minneapolis etc. R. Co. v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 35 Minn. 265; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 638; Hewitt v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 35 Minn. 226; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 342 (statutory authority to relocate); In re New York etc. R. Co., 88 N. Y. 279; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 113 (statutory authority); 1 Rorer, Railroads, p. 275, 277; Mahaska Co. R. Co. v. Des Moines Valley R. Co., 28 Iowa 437; Hoard v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 123 U. S. 222; North Missouri R. Co. v. Lackland, 25 Mo. 515.

lands for its location is also exhausted by the expiration of the time limited in its charter for the completion of the road.¹

It is within the discretion of the company to locate the track on any part of the right of way; it is not bound to place it in the center.²

2. Conflicting Grants of Location.—It is a rule to govern in all cases of public grants that lands already appropriated to another purpose are excepted from such grants, even though the exception be not mentioned specifically.³ Therefore where grants of a definite location are inconsistent the earlier one will prevail;⁴ if the grants are indefinite, leaving the exact routes to be selected by the companies, the right to specific lands will belong to the company making the prior location.⁵ Where in a peculiar case

1. Peavey v. Calais R. Co., 30 Me. 498; Morris etc. R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 31 N. J. L. 205; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228.

But a failure to select the location within the time limited does not exhaust the power where the assent of the city to the location was not given until after the time had expired. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Rucker, 14 Ill. 353.

2. Track Need Not be in Center of the Way.—Stark v. Sioux City etc. R. Co., 43 Iowa 501; Dougherty v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 19 Mo. App. 419.

Nor is the company bound to so construct its road and lay its track as to produce the least possible inconvenience to the owner of the land over which the right of way has been acquired. International etc. R. Co. v. Pope, 62 Tex. 313.

3. Wilcox v. Jackson, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 498; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Lowell etc. R. Co., 124 Mass. 368; Pierce, on Railroads pp. 157, 257.

4. Chesapeake etc. Canal Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 4 Gill & J. (Md.) 1; Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150.

5. Prior Location Prevails.—Morris etc. R. Co. v. Blair, 9 N. J. Eq. 635; New Jersey So. R. Co. v. Long Branch Comrs., 39 N. J. L. 33; Waterbury v. Dry Dock etc. R. Co., 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 388; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Lowell etc. R. Co., 124 Mass. 368; Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150; Titusville etc. R. Co. v. Warren etc. R. Co., 12 Phila. (Pa.) 642.

And a land owner cannot defeat the prior location of one company by conveying his land to other parties. Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150.

A survey followed by occupancy for the purpose of constructing a railroad, will determine the location so as to give priority against other companies attempting to appropriate the land within it. Pierce on Railroads, p. 257; Denver etc. R. Co. v. Canon City etc. R. Co., 99 U. S. 463; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Mecklim, 23 Kan. 167.

But a location had before the incorporation of a company is ineffective to preserve the location as against another corporation afterward making and adopting the same location. A ratification after incorporation will not avail. New Brighton etc. R. Co. v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 105 Pa. St. 13.

The case of New York etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 11 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 386, does not conflict with the doctrine stated in the text. In that case, one railroad company was the owner of the land, and it was held that a second company could not merely by filing a map of its route prevent such owner from constructing a road there. In order for such company to acquire any right against the owner it must either purchase the land or appropriate it by condemnation proceedings.

Since the prior location prevails, one railroad company cannot by purchasing land and proceeding to lay its track thereon, debar from the same land another company which had previously staked on and surveyed there a line of its own. Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770.

A railroad company permitted its charter to be used for purposes of condemnation of lands for another company's road, and the latter company, there is but one location practicable on a part of the route followed by two companies, though priority of location will determine the ownership as between two companies, yet equity will compel the owner to allow the use of such location to the other company.¹

Grants of locations for railroads are to receive a reasonable interpretation, due regard being had to the magnitude, character and general public utility of the enterprise.²

3. Description of the Location, Plans, etc.—A written description, usually known as a location or survey, verified and recorded as required in most jurisdictions, determines the exact property taken for the location, and constitutes the record evidence of the amount;³ in most cases the location is not complete until the filing or recording of this description.⁴ The description, either on the location of its road, paid and took title in its own name for the lands, and built the road. Held, that the road was the property of the latter company. If, in such case, any of the land condemned was paid for by the former company with its own funds which have not been repaid to it, the latter company is bound to refund the amount. Coe v. N. J. Midland R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 105.

1. Denver etc. R. Co. v. Canon City etc. R. Co., 99 U. S. 463; Springfield v. Connecticut River R. Co., 4 Cush. (Mass.) 72; Western etc. R. Co. v. Georgia etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 79; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 28.

The first of these cases was as to the right of contesting railroad companies to use the grand canon of the Arkansas for railway purposes. The second was a somewhat similar case, and in the course of its opinion, the court by Shaw, C. J., said: "Take the familiar case of the Notch of the White Mountains, a very narrow gorge which affords the only practicable passage for many miles through that mountain region. A turnpike road through it has already been granted. Suppose the notch not wide enough to accommodate another road, but the legislature, in order to accommodate a great line of public travel should grant power to lay a railroad in that line, they would by necessary implication grant the power to take some portion of the road-bed of the turnpike."

And in Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150, it is said that the right of priority of location must give way to the exigencies of the case, and if the surrender of a portion of the first line is essential to insure the building of the second the priority of location will not enable the first line to exclude the second.

2. Construction of Grants.—Pierce, on Railroads, p. 258, and authorities; Bradley v. New York etc. R. Co., 21 Conn. 294; infra, this title, Corporate Powers. See also Peavey v. Calais R. Co., 30 Me. 498.

A legislative grant to construct a railroad "along" a river does not authorize the construction of the road in or upon such river. Stevens v. Erie R. Co., 21 N. J. Eq. 259.

The mere enumeration of certain places in designating the route of the road does not require the road to be located through them in the order named. Com. v. Fitchburg R. Co., 8 Cush. (Mass.) 240.

3. Pierce on Railroads, p. 256; Drury v. Midland R. Co., 127 Mass. 571; Morris etc. R. Co. v. Blair, 9 N. J. Eq. 635; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. East Saginaw etc. R. Co., 72 Mich. 206; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 553 (plat on which terminal branches are designated and mapped out and approved by directors, is sufficient to give State crossing board jurisdiction). This description being the record evidence is conclusive as against the corporation, and extrinsic evidence cannot be admitted. Hazen v. Boston etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 574.

4. This was a requirement provided in statutes granting public land to railroad companies. Baker v. Gee, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 333; Western Pac. R. Co. v. Tevis, 41 Cal. 489; Pacific R. Co. v. McComb, 39 Mo. 329; Hannibal etc. R. Co. v. Moore, 37 Mo. 335; Hannibal etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 41 Mo. 310.

alone or aided by maps and plans accompanying it, and properly referred to, must be exact and complete, and must clearly identify the property taken and define its precise limits.¹

Ambiguity in the description may be cured by possession by the railroad company, acquiesced in by the land owner.²

4. Termini.—A description of the termini of the intended road is usually required to be given in the articles of association or in the map and plan filed with them. A slightly defective statement in this regard is not fatal to the validity of the articles;³ in one case it has been considered sufficient where one terminus was given and the other designated as "at or near B,"⁴ or as "some

In Kansas, the description need not be filed prior to commencing proceedings to condemn. Missouri River etc. R. Co. v. Shepard, 9 Kan. 647.

Survey.—A charter of a company provided that it should have authority to take possession of lands for its right of way, when a survey of the route located should have been filed in the office of the Secretary of State. A statement of the commencement of the road, the different stations made at the time of the survey, the courses and distances between the stations, and the number of stations to the termination, constitutes a "survey" within the meaning of this provision. Attorney-General v. Stevens, 1 N. J. Eq. 369; 22 Am. Dec. 526.

1. Housatonic R. Co. v. Lee etc. R. Co., 118 Mass. 361; Kohlhepp v. West Roxbury, 120 Mass. 596; In re New York etc. R. Co., 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 89; Callender v. Painesville etc. R. Co., 11 Ohio St. 516; Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Prentice, 13 Ohio St. 373; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Porter, 29 Pa. St. 165 ("land must be so described that its identity cannot be questioned"); Vail v. Morris etc. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. 189; Strang v. Beloit etc. R. Co., 16 Wis. 635; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 610 and cases cited; Convers v. Grand Rapids etc. R. Co., 18 Mich. 459; Brock v. Old Colony R. Co., 146 Mass. 194; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 96 (name of owner need not be stated); Mason v. Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 373.

The plan or map relied on to assist the description must be intelligible without the aid of parol evidence and must be referred to in the description. Portland etc. R. Co. v. York Co., 65 Me. 292; Wilson v. Lynn, 119 Mass. 174; Grand Junction R. etc. Co. v. Middlesex, 14 Gray (Mass.) 553; Hunt

v. Smith, 9 Kan. 137; Quincy etc. R. Co. v. Kellogg, 54 Mo. 334.

Such a map filed together with the location of the road and expressly made "a part of the description of said location," may be referred to in order to explain, but not to modify or control the written location. Hazen v. Boston etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 574.

A location filed with the county commissioners, by which alone the true location upon the ground cannot be fixed and ascertained, is nevertheless sufficient, if, by a plan which is made part thereof and filed therewith, the location can be determined. Grand Junction R. etc. Co. v. Middlesex, 14 Gray (Mass.) 553.

See also as to quantity and description in such cases, Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Bruner, 55 Pa. St. 318; In re Washington Park Com'rs, 65 N. Y. 131.

2. Drury v. Midland R. Co., 127 Mass. 571; Pierce on Railroads, p. 257, note 6.

See also Brock v. Old Colony R. Co., 146 Mass. 194; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 96.

3. Cayuga Lake R. Co. v. Kyle, 5 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 659; 64 N. Y. 185; Warner v. Callender, 20 Ohio St. 190 ("in or near" sufficient).

See also Attorney-Gen'l. v. West Wisconsin R. Co., 36 Wis. 466.

4. Central R. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 475; 32 N. J. Eq. 755; Warner v. Callender, 20 Ohio St. 190.

See also State v. Hudson Tunnel R. Co., 38 N. J. L. 548; Fall River Iron Works Co. v. Old Colony etc. R. Co., 5 Allen (Mass.) 221.

But in De Long v. Schimmel, 58 Ind. 64, a petition for a highway and the report of viewers thereon were eligible and convenient point in the county of S, there to connect with" another railroad.¹ The terms "beginning at" or "from," or "running to" certain places are inclusive, and, in the absence of special provision otherwise, authorize a location within such place.² So also where the authority is to build the road "between" two designated places.³

5. Property in Location.—The term "location" is used in railroad law to designate the line over which it is proposed to run the road, after such line has been surveyed and fixed upon as the route of the road, but before the actual acquisition by the company, by condemnation or purchase, of the land which it covers.⁴

considered too uncertain and indefinite in describing the beginning point of the highway "as at or near the residence of B." See also Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Newson, 54 Ind. 121; Griscom v. Gilmore, 16 N. J. L. 105.

"At the termini" was made to read "near the termini" in State v. Camden, 38 N. J. L. 299.

1. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Chamberlain, 84 Ill. 333.

2. Mohawk Bridge Co. v. Utica etc. R. Co., 6 Paige (N.Y.) 554 note ("commencing at or near S"); Smith v. Helmer, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 416 ("from" opposed to "to"); Moses v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 21 Ill. 516 ("to" equivalent to "into"); Mason v. Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 373; Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Adams, 3 Head (Tenn.) 596 ("from"); Hazelhurst v. Freeman, 52 Ga. 244; Farmers' Transp. Co. v. Coventry, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 389 ("to"); Com. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; Rio Grande R. Co. v. Brownsville, 45 Tex. 88 ("at" and "from" correlative with "to"); Pierce on Railroads, p. 258.

Thus, authority to construct a road "from the city of Chicago to any point in the town of E," means from any point within the city of Chicago. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ill. 589; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 158; McCartney v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ill. 611; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 326; S. P. in Appeal of Western Pa. R. Co., 99 Pa. St. 155; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 171.

A railroad company whose charter gives it the right to build its road "from" a certain city is not barred from making the Union depot in such city its terminus by the fact that it began to construct its road from a point in the outskirts of the city, and for some time ran trains from such point, when it appears the company never made any permanent improvements at such point, and that from the first it made efforts to extend its line to the Union depot. Colorado E. R. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 41 Fed. Rep. 293; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 10.

The charter of a railroad fixed the terminus "at or near P." A location a mile and a half from P would not transgress the discretion allowed, and a court has no right to interfere, nothing appearing to show any error. Park's Appeal, 64 Pa. St. 137.

Authority to construct a road "to the place of shipping lumber" on a tide water river does not limit the right of location to the uplands or to the shore, but the road may be extended across tide water to a point where lumber may conveniently be shipped. Peavey v. Calais R. Co., 30 Me. 493.

Contra.—In Northeastern R. Co. v. Payne, 8 Rich. (S. Car.) 177, a different view is taken from that of the foregoing cases and it is held that authority to construct a road "from Charleston" conferred no right to enter the city.

3. Morris etc. R. Co. v. Central R. Co., 31 N. J. L. 205.

The extension of the boundaries of a town which is the terminus of a road does not increase the powers of the railroad company; its power of location is confined to the town limits at the time when the grade was made. Com. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; Chope v. Detroit etc. Plank Road Co., 37 Mich. 195.

4. Definition of Location.—Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150; Van Wyck v. Knevals, 106 U. S. 360; West v. West etc. R. Co., 61 Miss. 536; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 402; Hickey v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 6 Ill. App. 172.

The right of the company to its location is an inchoate one enforceable against all except the owners of the land; it is not until after condemnation proceedings are had or the land is purchased that it becomes a right of way, and the company's title is perfected.¹ Its right as against the land owner is such that he cannot deprive it of its location by the conveyance of the land to a third party or to another company.²

"Locate" means "to fix or establish the situation of anything, as to locate a railroad." 2 Abbot's L. Dict., p. 58. Or "to select the line upon which a road or way is to be constructed." Anderson's L. Dict., p. 636. See also 2 Bouv. L. Dict., p. 80.

The definition must be governed, however, to some extent by the connection in which the word is used. Hence a condition in a subscription that the railroad shall be located within a certain distance of a town, means that it shall be actually constructed and operated within that distance. Jewett v. Lawrenceburgh etc. R. Co., 10 Ind. 539.

It is not necessary in order to constitute a location of the route of a railroad, for the purpose of fixing the liability of subscribers to the stock, that the route should have been staked and marked on the ground, in such a manner that its precise line could be found and identified. Location may be completed by resolutions or acts of the directors manifesting a corporate determination to construct the road over a particular route. Parker v. Thomas, 28 Ind. 277. See also in this immediate connection 1 Wood's Ry. Law, p. 68. In this last case the word "location" was used to mean, as it frequently does, the act of locating. Thus in another case, Foster v. Park Com'rs, 133 Mass. 332, it is said to be synonymous with "laying out." Its meaning when so used is evident. See definitions, just quoted, of "locate."

1. Lafferty v. Schuylkill etc. R. Co., 124 Pa. St. 297; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 575; infra, this title, Right of Way; Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150; Davis v. Titusville etc. R. Co., 114 Pa. St. 308; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 341; Rochester etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 110 N. Y. 128; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 267.

In Rochester etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 110 N. Y. 128; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 267, the court by Gray, J., said: "When, therefore, a corporation has made and filed a map and survey of the line of route it intends to adopt for the construction of its road, and has given the required notice to all persons affected by such construction, and no change of route is made, as the result of any proceeding instituted by any land-owner or occupant, in our judgment it has acquired the right to construct and operate a railroad on such line, exclusive in that respect as to all other railroad corporations and free from the interference of any party. By its proceedings it has impressed upon the lands a lien in favor of its right to construct, which ripens into title through purchase or condemnation proceedings. We could not hold otherwise without introducing confusion in the execution of such corporate projects, and without violating the obvious intention of the legislature."

In some cases, notably where grants of land are made to the company together with a right of way, the company's title vests as soon as the location is complete, i. e., when the maps and profiles have been filed. Of course in such cases no condemnation or purchase is needed to complete their title. See PUBLIC LANDS; GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 51: Van Wyck v. Knevals, 106 U. S. 360; New Orleans Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 124 U. S. 124; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 74, note.

The right to enter upon land on which the road has been located depends upon the method of procedure adopted in each particular jurisdiction. Thus in some cases the company may enter as soon as the road is located and take immediate possession, but when the commissioners on application to them have required security for damages this right of entry and possession is suspended until the security is given. See Davis v. Russell, 47 Me. 443; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 586; PUBLIC LANDS.

2. Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150.

"All that the owner can demand is

The title of the company to its location is not impaired by mere non-user, unless it be permanent and entire;¹ in case of mis-user, the original owner of the land may maintain a writ of entry or some equivalent proceeding.²

6. Abandonment of Location or Right of Way.—What constitutes a technical abandonment must depend upon the circumstances of the case.³ The effect of an abandonment of a location or right that his damages shall be paid, and subject to this right of compensation to the owner, the State has the control over the right of way, and can, by statute, prescribe when, and by what acts, the right thereto shall vest, and also what shall constitute an abandonment of such right." Sioux City etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Fed. Rep. 770; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 150.

1. Non-User of Location.—Hestonville etc. R. Co. v. Philadelphia, 89 Pa. St. 210 (non-user of portion of double track for ten years); Barlow v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 276 (non-user for thirteen years owing to delay in construction of the road); Noll v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 32 Iowa 66; Ball v. Keokuk etc. R. Co., 62 Iowa 751; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 375; People v. Albany etc. R. Co., 37 Barb. (N. Y.) 216; 24 N. Y. 261; Chesapeake etc. Canal Co. v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 4 Gill & J. (Md.) 1.

An easement of the right of way when acquired by express grant is not extinguished by non-user. See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 604, and cases cited in note 7.

But the grant in the charter of a passenger railway company of an optional circuit over another road not having been exercised for eleven years, is such proof of abandonment of the franchise as will defeat the right as against other companies. Girard College etc. R. Co. v. Thirteenth etc. R. Co., 7 Phila. (Pa.) 620.

2. Mis-User.—Proprietors etc. v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 104 Mass. 1; 6 Am. Rep. 181.

A mis-user does not necessarily operate as a forfeiture. Proprietors etc. v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 104 Mass. 1.

3. What Constitutes an Abandonment.—"No general rule of law, applicable to all cases, can be laid down, as to what change of a station will constitute an abandonment or relocation." Attorney-Gen'l v. Eastern R. Co., 137 Mass. 48. "Whether abandonment exists must depend upon the circumstances of the case." Central Iowa R. Co. v. Moulton etc. R. Co., 57 Iowa 249. See also 40 Am. Dec. 464, note; ABANDONMENT, vol. 1, p. 4; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 603.

Abandonment of the right of way may be presumed from non-user for ten years. Henderson v. Central Pass R. Co., 21 Fed. Rep. 358; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 542.

Where a railroad, without authority, leases its road it thereby abandons the operation of it. State v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 24 Neb. 143; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 388.

The mere erection of structures for amusement on the land of a railroad, while such structures might be superfluous, does not constitute an abandonment. Prospect Park etc. R. Co. v. Williamson, 91 N. Y. 552; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 34.

A railroad is to be regarded as a unity, and so long as there is an intention to complete an uncompleted part there is no abandonment. Central Iowa R. Co. v. Moulton etc. R. Co., 57 Iowa 249; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 138.

A mere sale or transfer of the right of way to another company before the road is built does not constitute an abandonment. Crolley v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 30 Minn. 541; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 47; State v. Rives, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 297; Henry v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 2 Iowa 288; Junction R. Co. v. Ruggles, 7 Ohio St. 1; Hatch v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 18 Ohio St. 93.

Nor does a mere failure to run passenger cars operate as an abandonment where the road is regularly used for hauling freight, and the company is ready at all times to transport passengers for reasonable compensation. Com. v. Fitchburg R. Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 180.

A company may lose its location by allowing another company to occupy and use the land included in it. Coe v. New Jersey Midland R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 105.

of way is that the company loses all its right thereto and the original owners may resume possession.¹ The abandonment of the whole road or a material part is ground for the forfeiture of the corporate rights and franchises.² Abandonment of condemnation proceedings has been already noticed.³

7. Contracts to Influence Location.—A railroad partaking of the nature of a public institution, its location is not to be governed by considerations of private advantage only, and any contract whose object is to secure such advantage at the expense of the public utility of the road will not be upheld.⁴ But when no injury to the public is occasioned there seems to be no objection

1. Effect of Abandonment.—Hastings v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 38 Iowa 316; Troy etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 86 N. Y. 107; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 49; Harrison v. Lexington etc. R. Co., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470; Great Cent. R. Co. v. Gulf etc. R. Co., 63 Tex. 529; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 114; New York etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; Fernow v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 75 Iowa 526; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 420; Girard College etc. R. Co. v. Thirteenth etc. R. Co., 7 Phila. (Pa.) 620.

In St. Thomas v. Credit Valley R. Co., 12 Ont. App. Rep. 273; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 473, damages were allowed to a municipality where the railroad company by the abandonment of a station caused a decline in the value of property and a decrease of the tax receipts.

But an injunction will not lie to restrain the removal of a depot by a company, thereby abandoning a part of its road. Moore v. Brooklyn City R. Co., 108 N. Y. 98; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 76.

Where a company has, by its charter, a right to use one of three routes, it cannot complain that one of those routes not adopted, or abandoned by it, was used by another company. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 2 Duv. (Ky.) 175.

2. Abandonment of the Road.—State v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 24 Neb. 143; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 388; Noll v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 32 Iowa 66 (statute authorizing forfeiture for such cause held constitutional); Lake Erie etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 107 Ind. 464; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 394; People v. Albany etc. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 26 (State cannot maintain an equitable action to compel a company to operate its road; remedy is by mandamus, quo warranto, or indictment); Attorney-Gen'l v. West Wisconsin R. Co., 36 Wis. 466.

In People v. Northern R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 98, it is said that the law providing for the forfeiture of the charter of a railroad company which has suspended its ordinary and lawful business for more than a year, admits of no excuse for or explanation of such suspension.

A railroad corporation chartered to operate a road between A and B cannot legally operate only between A and C (a way station between A and B), and abandon the part of the route lying between C and B; and if it does so, its charter may be vacated, or its corporate existence annulled by proper proceedings. People v. Albany etc. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 261.

A statute provided that in case any railroad company should not within twelve months after the acceptance of the route by the commissioners, pay for a right of way over all the land covered by its location, such acceptance should be void. It was held that such failure to pay for the right of way was not in the nature of a forfeiture, to be taken advantage of only by the State in a direct proceeding against the company, but that the whole proceeding became of no effect upon the expiration of twelve months. New York etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196.

3. See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 634; Cooper v. Anniston etc. R. Co., 85 Ala. 106; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 581, 583, note.

4. Berryman v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 14 Bush (Ky.) 755 (contract to influence officer of the corporation); Cook v. Sherman, 20 Fed. Rep. 167; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 561. See also Marshall v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 16 How. (U. S.) 314. As to the location of stations see infra, this title, Contracts Concerning the Location of Stations.

to the validity of contracts stipulating for the location of the road along a particular line.¹

8. Generally.—An illegal location may be made perfect by legislative confirmation;² so also a defective location may in some cases be reformed in equity.³

Courts do not take judicial notice that a company in locating its road between two given points will not run it to or near certain other places from which it has received subscriptions of stock.⁴

In an action of trespass brought by the owner of the land against the company the burden rests upon the company to prove a justification by showing that they acted within the location.⁵ But the presumption of law is in favor of the necessity of any track laid by the company, and any person claiming damages by reason of its being laid must show to the contrary.⁶

A company may enter upon land for the purposes of examination, preliminary survey, location, etc., without previously acquiring the land; and a statute authorizing such entrance is not invalid as taking private property without due process of law or without just compensation.⁷

1. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Tygard, 84 Mo. 263; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 54; McClure v. Missouri River etc. R. Co., 9 Kan. 373; Stowell v. Stowell, 45 Mich. 364; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 598; Railroad Co. v. Babb, 9 Watts (Pa.) 458.

Subscriptions to the stock of a railroad company conditioned to be valid only upon the location of the road at particular points are common, and such conditions are not considered objectionable. See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, p. 1286; STOCK. See also Saginaw etc. R. Co. v. Chapell, 56 Mich. 190; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 16; Braddock v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 45 N. J. L. 363; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 436; infra, this title, Right of Way.

Contract or Penalty Influencing Location.—A proviso in an act granting certain privileges recited that if the company "shall not locate the said road in the manner provided for in this statute, then they shall forfeit $1,000,000 to the State for the use of W county. This proviso, though assented to by the company, did not constitute a contract but was a penalty subject, as to its enforcement, to the pleasure of the legislature. State v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 12 Gill & J. (Md.) 399; 38 Am. Dec. 319.

2. Such confirmation will not, however, relieve the company from liabilities for injuries to parties, which existed at the time of confirmation. Com. v. Old Colony etc. R. Co., 14 Gray (Mass.) 93; Salem v. Eastern R. Co., 98 Mass. 431.

3. See Central Mills Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 127 Mass. 537.

4. Phillips v. Albany, 28 Wis. 340.

5. Burden of Proof.—Hazen v. Boston etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 574; Crawfordsville etc. R. Co. v. Wright, 5 Ind. 252; In re New York etc. R. Co., 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 85.

Pending the determination of a controversy between a land-owner and a railroad company, as to the true location of the road under a written grant of way, the court will not arrest the construction of the road by injunction, but will order security to be given sufficient to cover all damages. Rainey v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 767. Compare Com. v. Hicks, 7 Allen (Mass.) 573.

6. Carson v. Central R. Co., 35 Cal. 325.

7. Authority to Enter on Land to Select Location, Make Surveys, etc.—Polly v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 449 (the statute in this case provided for compensation in case the land should afterward be appropriated); Bloodgood v. Mohawk etc. R. Co., 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 51; Lyon v. Green Bay etc. R. Co., 42 Wis. 538; 15 Am. Ry. Rep. 91; Fox v. Western

VII. RIGHT OF WAY—(See also WAY).—A “right of way,” as applied to railroads, is the right held by a railroad company in the land over which its road runs, for railroad purposes. It is sometimes used also to denote the land itself.¹ The exact property possessed by a railroad in the land over which its right of way passes, depends upon the manner in which the right was acquired; whether by purchase, by grant, or by the exercise of the right of eminent domain. In the first two cases, it will be determined by the terms of the conveyance or patent;² in the Pac. R. Co., 31 Cal. 538; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Stewart v. Mayor etc. of Baltimore, 7 Md. 516; Walther v. Warner, 25 Mo. 289; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 562.

1. Definition of the Right of Way.—The definition of the text is taken from Calcasieu L. Co. v. Harris, 77 Tex. 18; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 570.

Other definitions may be given of the technical term. Thus, “the term ‘right of way’ can only be understood as embracing the land used as a way for the road, and not such additional grounds as may be used for the convenience of the railroad but not part of its way.” Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Paddock, 75 Ill. 616 (railroad tax case).

It is a way over which the company has to pass in the operation of its trains. The term includes land acquired for necessary side tracks and turnouts, and the improvements thereon. Pfaff v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 106 Ind. 144; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 181 (tax case).

It sometimes refers to the mere intangible right of crossing; oftener to the strip which the company appropriates for its use, and upon which it builds its road-bed. Keener v. Union Pac. R. Co., 31 Fed. Rep. 128.

The words “right of way” in a grant, held to describe the tenure, not the land granted. Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Lesueur (Arizona, 1888), 19 Pac. Rep. 157; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 368.

A “right of way” for all purposes “connected with the construction, use, and occupation of said railway” does not, it is said, give the company a right to take sand from the way in order to build a round house. Vermilya v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 66 Iowa 606; 55 Am. Rep. 279. Sed quære.

In the case of Williams v. Western Union R. Co., 50 Wis. 71; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290, it is defined as a mere easement in the land of others obtained by purchase, or by lawful condemnation for a public use.

Is an “Incumbrance.”—A land owner conveyed to a railroad company a right of way over certain lands, upon which the company built and operated its road; subsequently he conveyed the same land to another by a deed purporting to pass the fee to the entire tract without any reservation in respect to the right of way. It was held that the easement of the railroad constituted an incumbrance upon the land, and its existence constituted a breach of the covenant against incumbrances contained in the deed, for which the covenantee might maintain an action. Nor was it a release of the covenant that both parties knew well of the easement of the railroad company. Beach v. Miller, 51 Ill. 206; 2 Am. Rep. 290; Wadhams v. Imres, 4 Ill. App. 646; aff’d 109 Ill. 47; Patterson v. Sweet, 3 Ill. App. 550; Barlow v. McKinley, 24 Iowa 69; Van Wagner v. Van Nostrand, 19 Iowa 422; McGowen v. Myers, 60 Iowa 256; Butler v. Gale, 27 Vt. 742 (opinion by Redfield, C. J.); Kellogg v. Malin, 50 Mo. 496.

Ownership.—The railroad company and not the owner of all its stocks and bonds, owns its right of way, and the latter cannot maintain an action in relation to it. Fitzgerald v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 45 Fed. Rep. 812.

2. See generally 1 Wood’s Ry. Law, 601 et seq.; 1 Rorer on Railroads, § 312; Hill v. Western Vt. R. Co., 32 Vt. 68; U. S. Rev. Stat. § 24, 77; Flint etc. R. Co. v. Gordon, 41 Mich. 420; GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 48, et seq.; Washington Cemetery v. Prospect Park etc. R. Co., 7 Hun (N. Y.) 655; aff’d 68 N. Y. 591 (right of way granted by special act).

Grant by Deed in Fee-Simple.—In the case of Ottumwa etc. R. Co. v. McWilliams, 71 Iowa 164; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 544, there was a contract releasing to a railroad company a right of way of indefinite size and location last case, the railroad would possess only an easement, the fee remaining in the original owner, except where it is specifically provided for otherwise by statute.¹

A legal right of way can never be acquired except by deed or patent, or by payment of damages after proper condemnation proceedings, or by prescription;² and if a railroad company enters upon land over which it has acquired no right of way whatever, it must be regarded as a mere trespasser and the land owner may maintain an action for ejectment or for damages, at his election.³

through certain land and agreeing to convey a certain strip of ground by metes and bounds by deed in fee-simple when desired. It was held that this was a contract for the conveyance of an easement only, and not of the fee in the strip. See also Barlow v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 276.

1. Property in Right of Way.—Williams v. Western Union R. Co., 50 Wis. 71; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290; Mills on Eminent Domain, §§ 110, 208; Pierce v. Boston etc. R. Co., 141 Mass. 481; Oregon R. etc. Co. v. Oregon Real Estate Co., 10 Oregon 444; Quimby v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 23 Vt. 387; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 531, note, 599; Dean v. Sullivan R. Co., 22 N. H. 321; Giesy v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 327; Robbins v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 22 Minn. 286 (easement acquired is practically equivalent to the fee).

"In any case, however, an easement only would be taken unless the statute plainly contemplated and provided for the appropriation of a larger interest." Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) 559; Lyon v. McDonald, 78 Tex. 71; Washington Cemetery v. Prospect Park etc. R. Co., 68 N. Y. 591.

Even where the charter provided that a company "shall be seised and possessed of the land, etc." this does not, it is said, make it the owner of the fee, but gives it a right of way only. Quimby v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 23 Vt. 387 (opinion by Redfield, C. J.); Kellogg v. Malin, 50 Mo. 496.

It is however competent for the State to appropriate the fee for the use of a railroad, upon payment of proper compensation. The legislature is the sole judge as to the extent to which the public use requires the extinguishment of the owner's title. Brooklyn Park Comr's v. Armstrong, 45 N. Y. 234; Beal v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 41 Hun (N. Y.) 172; Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) 558. See also Towle v. Remsen, 70 N. Y. 503; New York etc. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; 7 Am. Rep. 385.

The constitution of Illinois forbids the condemnation of lands for a railroad's right of way except to the extent of granting the road an easement. Illinois Const. (1870), art. 2, § 13. See also Heyward v. Mayor etc. of N. Y., 7 N. Y. 314.

The Brooklyn and Jamaica Railroad Company, under a charter power to acquire lands only for its own corporate purposes, took a strip of land, and some time afterwards assumed to sell it to the city of Brooklyn for a public street forever. It was held that only such an estate in the land was acquired as was necessary for the uses of the railroad, and therefore when the land became no longer necessary it reverted to the original owners, and they might in this case maintain ejectment against the city. Strong v. Brooklyn, 68 N. Y. 1; Heard v. Brooklyn, 60 N. Y. 242.

The railroad company has no authority to use its right of way acquired by condemnation proceedings for any other purposes than those connected with the proper construction, maintenance, and operation of its road. Therefore it has no right to take ice from the ponds on the way. Julien v. Woodsmall, 82 Ind. 568. Nor to take sand for building a round house. Vermilya v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 66 Iowa 606; 55 Am. Rep. 279. Nor to sell material removed in grading the road, though it may use it. Aldrich v. Drury, 8 R. I. 554. Nor to erect buildings, machinery, etc., upon it not necessary to the exercise of the franchise. Lance's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 16.

2. Perkins v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 72 Me. 95; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 608.

3. Donald v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 52 Iowa 411; Daniels v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 35 Iowa 129; 14 Am. Rep. 490; 41 Iowa 52; Ruppert v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 43 Iowa 490; Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Pfeuffer, 56 Tex. 66; McClinton v. Pittsburg etc. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404

The fact that the owner of land permitted a railroad company to enter upon it and construct its road there, does not give the company a title to a right of way or estop the owner to maintain an action for damages, though it may preclude him from maintaining ejectment.¹

Where the company has acquired the fee in the lands over which its road is constructed it has all the property rights possessed by a natural person, and therefore an exclusive right of possession ab solo usque ad coelum.²

1. Acquisition by Right of Eminent Domain.—See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, pp. 509, et seq.

2. Acquisition by Public Grant.³—(See also GRANTS, vol. 9, pp. 48-60; PUBLIC LANDS.)

(owner may waive his right to eject and proceed for damages under the statute); Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. Strange, 63 Wis. 178; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 413.

The owner of land may maintain ejectment where, from defects in condemnation proceedings, a railroad company has failed to acquire rights in the land. Hull v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 21 Neb. 371.

A purchaser of land which has been wrongfully taken by a railroad may recover the value of the land taken and the damages occasioned by the trespass since his purchase. Donald v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 52 Iowa 411. Or an injunction will be granted to restrain the company from a use of the right of way until compensation has been made. Hibbs v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 39 Iowa 340.

Where a railroad appropriates land without compensating the owner, he may maintain ejectment; but if the damages have been assessed, execution for possession will not issue until the company has been granted a reasonable time, fixed by the court, in which to pay the damages assessed and interest thereon. Conger v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 419.

See also Austin v. Rutland R. Co., 45 Vt. 215, where a railroad company located its road on land in which it had only an estate for the life of another.

1. Conger v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 419; Hibbs v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 39 Iowa 340; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Beck, 119 Ind. 124; Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Pfeuffer, 56 Tex. 66; Western Pa. R. Co. v. Johnson, 59 Pa. St. 290; McAuley v. Western Vt. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311; Rio Grande etc. R. Co. v. Ostig, 75 Tex. 602; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 67; Thornton v. Sheffield etc. R. Co., 84 Ala. 109; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 226. See also infra, this title, Acquisition by License.

The mere failure of a land-owner to order a railroad company off his land, or to bring his action against it as a trespasser until near the end of the statutory period of limitation, will not operate as a consent to its occupation and use of the land. Rusch v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 54 Wis. 136. But it will estop him to maintain an action of ejectment. Pryzlylowicz v. Missouri River R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.) 586; 17 Fed. Rep. 492. See also as to waiver of damages Perkins v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 72 Me. 95; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 608.

Too long a delay in such cases, to insist upon damages will be considered a waiver of damages by the owner. Thus when the owner delayed seventeen years it was held that his right to recover damages was gone. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Suter, 59 Tex. 29.

A land owner cannot stand by without demanding compensation until a railroad is in operation and public interests involved and then have an injunction or maintain ejectment; his only remedy is a proceeding to have damages assessed. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Beck, 119 Ind. 124; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 94.

2. Thus where the road ran through a tunnel, neither the original owner nor the public authorities had any right to build above the roadway Junction R. Co. v. Boyd, 8 Phila. (Pa.) 224; 1 Leg. Gaz. Rep. (Pa.) 107. Compare Kellogg v. Malin, 50 Mo. 496.

It may trim a hedge which is built so close to its way that the branches extend over. Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Green, 67 Ill. 199.

3. Construction of Grants.—The rule

3. Acquisition by Dedication.—Cases in which a right of way has been acquired by dedication are rare. A railroad being a quasi public highway it seems that the principles which govern the dedication of ordinary highways apply in case of a way occupied by a railroad.¹

4. Acquisition by Purchase or Private Grant.—Railroad companies are not confined to governmental assistance as the only means by which they may acquire a right of way; the right with all the incidents attaching when acquired by eminent domain, may be obtained by purchase from the land owner;² indeed, in many is well known that grants of land from a State constitute an exception to the general rule of construction and are always construed in favor of the State. Dubuque etc. R. Co. v. Litchfield, 23 How. (U. S.) 66; Leavenworth etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 92 U. S. 733; GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 56, note 2.

But a distinction must be observed where the grant is to a public or quasi public body and intended for the public benefit, since, in these cases, it is to receive a liberal construction in favor of the purposes for which it was granted. Bradley v. New York etc. R. Co., 21 Conn. 294; Pierce on Railroads 491; Galloway v. Lardon, L. R., 1 H. L. Cas. 34.

See also generally as to effect of the congressional grant of a right of way over public lands. Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Burkett, 46 Ala. 569.

1. These principles are laid down in DEDICATION, vol. 5, p. 400, et seq.; HIGHWAYS, vol. 8, p. 363, 408. That they apply to railroads, see Texas etc. R. Co. v. Sutor, 56 Tex. 496; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 506. See also Giesy v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 308; Denver Circle R. Co. v. Nestor, 10 Colo. 403.

In Daniels v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 35 Iowa 129; 14 Am. Rep. 490, it was held that a dedication of land for a public use, as for a railroad, cannot be established by mere occupancy alone. It must be shown that the occupancy or use was with the knowledge and acquiescence of the land owner for the full period of time fixed by the statute for the limitation of real actions.

Where a husband and wife executed and put upon record a plat of a town laid out on lands of the wife, exhibiting thereon a railroad track and the words "Depot of Ohio and Penn. Railroad," this did not constitute a dedication of the lot to the railroad company nor to a public use. Todd v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 19 Ohio St. 514.

In the case of Texas etc. R. Co. v. Sutor, 59 Tex. 29, a land owner permitted a railroad company to build its road on his land without charge, upon condition that it should construct ditches to carry off water. It was held that this constituted a dedication of the way and that the owner could not declare it forfeited for the failure to construct proper ditches.

2. See Hill v. Western Vt. R. Co., 32 Vt. 68; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 601; Yates v. Van De Bogert, 56 N. Y. 526; Junction etc. R. Co. v. Ruggles, 7 Ohio St. 1; Barlow v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 276; Page v. Heineberg, 40 Vt. 81; Harrison v. Lexington etc. R. Co., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470. Where a railroad company has authority to acquire lands for railroad purposes it is presumed that land deeded to it was acquired for that purpose. Yates v. Van DeBogert, 56 N. Y. 527.

But the policy pursued in some States refuses to allow foreign railroad corporations to acquire a right of way either by condemnation or purchase. Holbert v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 45 Iowa 23; Abbott v. New York etc. R. Co., 145 Mass. 450; Const. of Mississippi (1890), § 197. Compare Dodge v. Council Bluffs, 57 Iowa 560. See generally Pierce on Railroads, 130 et seq.; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 208 et seq.

Rights and Obligations in Such Cases.

—The right thus secured by purchase carries with it the same rights, privileges and exemptions which attach when the same right is secured by eminent domain. 1 Rorer on Railroads 313; Conwell v. Springfield etc. R. Co., 81 Ill. 232; Junction R. Co. v. Ruggles, 7 Ohio St. 1.

The power to purchase lands necessary to the carrying out of their objects is a power incident to all corporations unless they are specially restrained by their charters or by statute. 2 Kent's Com. 281; Nicholl v. New York etc. R. Co., 13 N. Y. 127; Co. Lit. 44 a; 1 Kyd on Corp. 76, 78, 108; First Parish v. Cole, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 232; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 217, et seq.; Page v. Heineberg, 40 Vt. 81; 94 Am. Dec. 378.

A company acquiring a right of way by private grant is not released from its statutory obligations as to fencing, etc., even though nothing is said of it in the deed. Poler v. New York Cent. R. Co., 16 N. Y. 476; Clarke v. Rochester etc. R. Co., 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 350.

The right to cast smoke, cinders, etc., upon other parts of the way passes to the grantee of a right of way by necessary implication, being an incident to the operation of the railroad. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 111 Ill. 363; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558.

Where land is conveyed to a railroad company for railroad purposes, it is presumed that all the contingent damages, which would have been included in an assessment of damages by commissioners, were considered in determining the price. Norris v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 28 Vt. 99.

And the same duty as to the construction of its road and the building of necessary culverts, embankments, fences, etc., rests upon the company as would have existed if the land had been taken under the right of eminent domain. Hortsman v. Covington etc. R. Co., 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 218; Smith v. New York etc. R. Co., 63 N. Y. 58.

A grant of the right of way carries with it the right to construct suitable culverts; and the right to construct such culverts includes the power to cut the necessary ditches to carry the water into them, although such ditches may extend beyond the limits of the right of way. Babcock v. Western R. Co., 9 Met. (Mass.) 553; 43 Am. Dec. 411; Boothby v. Androscoggin etc. R. Co., 51 Me. 318; Rood v. New York etc. R. Co., 18 Barb. (N. Y.) 80; Hortsman v. Lexington etc. R. Co., 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 218; Conwell v. Springfield etc. R. Co., 81 Ill. 232.

Compare, however, Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Muhlman, 17 Kan. 224; 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 428.

One who, by deed, grants a right of way over his premises impliedly waives all rights to damages, not reserved in the deed, occasioned by the removal of timber or other obstructions in the line of the right of way. Houston etc. R. Co. v. McKinney, 55 Tex. 176; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 723.

But in Vermilya v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 66 Iowa 606; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 108, it is said that a grant of a right of way does not authorize the company to take sand from the land without making compensation to the owner.

The grant does not release the company from liability for damages caused from its negligent construction of the road. Houston etc. R. Co. v. Adams, 58 Tex. 476.

When the grant is expressed to be for a particular use neither the grantor nor any claiming under him can object to the use and recover damages resulting therefrom. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 111 Ill. 363; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558.

As to the laying of side tracks, see Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 182.

That a grant conveys by implication what is necessary to its enjoyment, see Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 111 Ill. 363; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558; Riedinger v. Marquette etc. R. Co., 62 Mich. 29; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611.

Grant of a right of way gives no license to overflow grantor's land by the unskillful construction of a levee. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 35 Ark. 622; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 48.

The execution of a contract for the right of way by the land owner gives the company an immediate right of entry; and if indefinite as to location, the company has the right of selection. Burrow v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 107 Ind. 432; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 574.

What Amounts to a Sale of Right of Way.—Pending an appeal from an assessment of damages in an ad quod damnum proceeding, an agreement was entered into between the land owner and the railway company by which judgment was entered in the circuit court for a specified amount with stay of execution "or other proceeding to collect judgment" for two years. It was held that this agreement did not amount to a sale of the right of way, nor did it confer authority to enter into possession; that at the expiration of two years upon default of payment by the company an injunction would lie restraining it from the use of the right of way. Irish v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 44 Iowa 380.

States the refusal of the land owner to sell for a reasonable price is made a condition precedent to valid condemnation proceedings.¹ The estate acquired may be a fee simple, a mere easement, or any intermediate estate, according to the terms of the conveyance.² And where a right of way has been obtained by purchase or otherwise and the road is in operation, the fact that

An agreement in writing executed by a land owner to give a right of way upon compliance by the company with certain conditions, being placed in the hands of a third party who returned it after the company had failed of compliance, is not a sale of the right of way, and the company could claim nothing under it. Hibbs v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 39 Iowa 340.

•In the case of Boston etc. R. Co. v. Babcock, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 228, a party agreed to sell a railroad company "the land they take on the northern side of the M turnpike, adjoining T's land, at twenty cents per square foot, for each and every foot so taken." The company brought a bill in equity "or specific performance. It was held that the agreement was not for a sale of the land generally, or of such part of it as the company might elect, or of such as they should accept the offer of; but that the sale was of such a part of the land described as the company might take in the exercise of the authority conferred on them by law to take land for a road.

Where a party executes a release of right of way over any of his lands, for a railroad, he cannot avoid the same as to a particular tract, on the ground that he had, at the time, given a bond for a deed to such tract, where there is no proof made of the payment of any of the purchase-money. And if any payment had been made, that fact would not show he had no interest to release. Conwell v. Springfield etc. R. Co., 81 Ill. 232.

1. Inability to Purchase a Condition Precedent to Acquisition by Eminent Domain.—The fact that no agreement with the land owner could be arrived at, and the reasons therefor are usually required to affirmatively appear in the proceedings of condemnation. Ellis v. Pacific R. Co., 51 Mo. 200; Lind v. Clemens, 44 Mo. 540; Powers v. Hazelton etc. R. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429; Reitenbaugh v. Chester Valley R. Co., 21 Pa. St. 100; Brown v. Rome etc. R. Co., 86 Ala. 206; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 571; Vail v. Morris etc. R. Co., 21 N.

J. L. 189; Doughty v. Somerville etc. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. 442; Coster v. New Jersey R. etc. Co., 23 N. J. L. 227; In re Marsh, 71 N. Y. 318 (reversing 10 Hun (N. Y.) 49); In re Prospect Park etc. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 371; In re Boston etc. R. Co., 79 N. Y. 71; Oregon etc. R. Co. v. Oregon Real Estate Co., 10 Oregon 444; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 62 Mich. 564; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 272; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Dunlap, 47 Mich. 456; Contra Costa R. Co. v. Moss, 23 Cal. 324; Pierce on Railroads, p. 181, and cases cited; Lewis' Em. Domain, §§ 268, 348. Compare Bigelow v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 2 Head (Tenn.) 624.

As to the proper affidavit as evidence of such facts, see Doughty v. Somerville etc. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. 442; Booker v. Venice etc. R. Co., 101 Ill. 333; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 357.

See also generally, In re New York etc. R. Co., 98 N. Y. 447; 33 Hun (N. Y.) 639.

In Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 116 Ind. 578, there was an attempt made to secure a right of way across another railroad track. It was held that the effort to agree must be made on three points: compensation, points of crossing and character of crossings and connections; that such effort is a condition precedent to a right to condemn. Under such a statute, the fact that the company had once acquired a right of way across another road by agreement does not preclude it from acquiring a more extended way by exercise of the right of eminent domain in a case where public necessity required it. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 113 Ill. 156.

2. Property in Right of Way Acquired by Purchase.—Whenever a corporation is empowered by its charter to acquire real estate by deed or charter gift, without limitation in point of estate it has a right to acquire title in fee simple. Yates v. Van De Bogert, 56 N. Y. 527; Frank v. Evansville etc. R. Co., 111 Ind. 132; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 224. See also Ottumwa etc. R. Co. v. McWilliams, 71 Iowa 164; 29

the title obtained is defective does not, it seems, prevent the company from acquiring a perfect title by the exercise of eminent domain.¹

Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 544; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 230, et seq.

The fee may be acquired even though the corporation is created for a limited time. Nicoll v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 460; aff'd 12 N. Y. 121.

Having acquired the fee, the power to alien the title is a necessary accompaniment. New Jersey etc. R. Co. v. Van Syckle, 37 N. J. L. 496; Yates v. Van De Bogert, 56 N. Y. 527; Harrison v. Lexington etc. R. Co., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470; Pollard v. Maddox, 28 Ala. 321.

All the other rights possessed by an owner of a fee simple belong to a railroad company which has acquired that title to a way. Therefore statutes prohibiting buildings on the right of way have no application where the company has acquired a fee by purchase. Calcasieu L. Co. v. Harris, 77 Tex. 18; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 570.

As to whether a grant of the right of way conveyed a fee or an easement in a particular case, see Ballard v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 85 Ky. 307; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 135; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Houghton, 126 Ill. 233; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 422.

Where land is granted to a company and by the habendum clause of the deed it is limited to fifty years or so long as the charter shall continue, a base or qualified fee vests in the company and only a possibility of reverter remains in the grantor, which is incapable of alienation. Davis v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 87 Ala. 633; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 65. It is inalienable because re-entry is necessary to re-vest the estate, and this right of re-entry belongs only to the grantor or his heirs.

Under a deed granting a qualified fee the grantee enjoys the same right to exclusive possession as an owner of a fee. New Jersey Zinc etc. Co. v. Morris Canal etc. Co., 44 N. J. Eq. 398; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 515.

Where a grant of land is made to a railway company all the means necessary to attain it, and all the effects of it (within the power of the grantor) are granted also, and will pass without words cum pertinentiis. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 111 Ill. 363; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558; Riedinger v. Mar- quette etc. R. Co., 62 Mich. 29; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611.

In the case of Williams v. Western Union R. Co., 50 Wis. 71; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290, it is said it would be using the term "right of way" in an unusual sense to apply it to an absolute purchase of the fee simple of the lands to be used for a railway or any other way. But this distinction it seems is not recognized by other authorities.

Easement Perpetual.—Where a land owner grants a right of way to a railroad company organized under a charter in perpetuity, and the grant contains no limit as to time, the easement of the railway company will be perpetual, unless terminated by release or abandonment. Junction R. Co. v. Ruggles, 7 Ohio St. 1.

1. Right to Perfect an Imperfect Title.—In re Prospect Park etc. R. Co., 8 Hun (N. Y.) 30; aff'd 67 N. Y. 371. In this case the right to perfect title was specially provided for by statute. New York Rev. Stat. 1553. But there seems to be no reason why the principle should not apply in other cases. See also Daniels v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 52.

And in view of the hardship which must follow the ejectment of a railroad from its right of way after the road has been constructed and is in operation, equity will always restrain proceedings to eject or to enjoin and allow it to acquire a perfect title by condemnation. Harrington v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; North Br. R. Co. v. London etc. R. Co., 1 Ry. Cas. 653; Jones v. Great Western R. Co., 1 Ry. Cas. 684; Lohman v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 18 Minn. 174; Conger v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 419.

The right of a railroad company to condemn land for its right of way is in no way prejudiced by its having obtained a less advantageous way by purchase. Eel River etc. R. Co. v. Field, 17 Cal. 429; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 113 Ill. 156. Or by its having entered on land illegally. State v. Baker, 20 Fla. 616.

Even where judgment has been obtained in ejectment against the company, equity will restrain execution upon it and allow the railroad to condemn the land so as to secure a perfect right of way. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Bruce, 102 Pa. St. 23; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Harrington v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; New York etc. R. Co. v. Stanley, 35 N. J. Eq. 283; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 345.

No one other than the owner of the fee can convey a right of way to a railroad; a mere equitable owner of an undivided interest in a possible reversion, or the holder of contingent interests, has no power to authorize the appropriation of lands for a railroad's right of way.¹

In the case of Detroit etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 37 Mich. 533, a railroad company contracted for certain lands, and under the conditions of the contract proceeded to lay its track across them, receiving a deed from the only owner of whose rights it had any notice. The land had, in the meantime, been set off by deed of partition to a party who held an unrecorded claim to an undivided interest in the premises, and this party quit-claimed the land by deed, referring to the company's occupancy. It was held that an injunction would lie to restrain proceedings in ejectment brought against the company by the holders of the quit-claim.

After a railroad has been completed and put in full operation it would not be equitable nor would it be doing justice to the public to allow a land-owner who had received no compensation for his land taken, to stop the cars until he might coerce the company to pay him an exorbitant amount, or to go through with the dilatory process of having the damages assessed. An injunction therefore should not be granted until all the ordinary means for obtaining indemnity have failed. Hentz v. Long Island R. Co., 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 646.

1. Who May Convey a Right of Way.—Tapert v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 50 Mich. 267; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 413; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Dunlap, 47 Mich. 456 (railroad can obtain no rights of control over lands by license or grant from the holder of a contingent dower interest or from a tenant at will); 1 Wood's Ry. Law 602.

As to power of testamentary trustees in England to convey lands to railway company, see Peters v. Lewes etc. R. Co., L. R., 16 Ch. Div. 713; L. R., 18 Ch. Div. 429; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 583.

But in Tutt v. Port Royal etc. R. Co., 16 S. Car. 365, it was held that under a trust deed which vested the legal title to lands in a trustee for the benefit of a married woman and her children but which gave to the husband the absolute control and management of the land, the husband might give to a railroad company license to construct their roadbed over such land, binding so long as he should live, or, at least until revoked; unless such right of way injuriously affected the duties and limitation imposed upon the husband by the deed.

In the case of Pitcher v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 38 Kan. 516, it was held that a husband cannot without the consent of his wife grant a right of way for a railroad across land owned by him and occupied as a homestead by his family. See also Conboy v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 42 Kan. 658; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Anderson, 42 Kan. 297; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 41.

In Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Luniney, 38 Iowa 182, it is held, however, that in such case the husband may convey a right of way when such conveyance will not defeat the substantial enjoyment of the homestead as such. And this case seems to state the more correct doctrine. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Luniney, 38 Iowa 182; Ottumwa etc. R. Co. v. McWilliams, 71 Iowa 164; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 544; Randall v. Texas etc. R. Co., 63 Tex. 586; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 102.

In Colorado it is held that a married woman may convey property for a right of way, although the statute requires that the husband be joined in eminent domain proceedings. Colorado Cent. R. Co. v. Allen, 13 Colo. 229; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 193.

One who has pre-empted a portion of the public lands but whose right is still inchoate may convey a right of way, and the patent when obtained would inure to the benefit of the company. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 182; PUBLIC LANDS.

Where a company, with the wife's cognizance, had entered into a written agreement for their right of way with her husband, who was the record owner of the land, an injunction

The conveyance to the road may of course be upon condition, either precedent or subsequent, a failure to perform which shall defeat the vesting of the estate.¹ Whether any condition is one precedent or subsequent to the vesting of the title must depend prayed for by her after the company's entry and road making, with her knowledge, under a license therein was refused; the company being guilty of no negligence in not sooner ascertaining that at the time of the agreement she was the alleged owner by an unrecorded deed. Pickert v. Ridgefield Park R. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. 316.

A mother having one-third interest as joint tenant of minor children cannot release a right of way in behalf of all. But in such case where one tenant grants the right of way through a tract the company may compel partition and enjoin proceedings for damages, by co-tenants. Charleston etc. R. Co. v. Leish (S. Car. 1890), 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 588. See also as to joint tenants, Rush v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 57 Iowa 201; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298.

A railroad company enters on land with the permission of the "owner," where it enters with the permission of him who has the control of the land, as, for instance, an executor in control. Tompkins v. Augusta etc. R. Co., 21 S. Car. 420.

A life tenant may grant a right of way during his life, but such a grant confers no right as against the reversioner or remainderman, and after the tenant's death the railroad company is liable to an action for unlawful detainer. Hope v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 79 Va. 283; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 171.

A tenant is the owner of the leased premises during the term of his tenancy and the landlord can confer no rights to others in respect to them which he could not himself exercise. Therefore a railway company entering upon leased premises and constructing its road there under authority from the landlord only, is a trespasser and liable as such to the tenant for damages caused to his crops, etc. Crowell v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 61 Miss. 631; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 306; Chattanooga etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 84 Ga. 256; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611.

1. 1 Wood's Ry. Law, 603; Tutt v. Port Royal etc. R. Co., 16 S. Car. 365;

Douglas v. New York etc. R. Co., 1 Clarke Ch. (N. Y.) 174 (condition to construct the road over a certain route).

But if the act of the party imposing the condition makes its performance impossible or unnecessary, the estate is absolute, and discharged of the condition. Jones v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 14 W. Va. 514.

The condition must, of course, be one not unreasonable nor against public policy. Hammond v. Port Royal etc. R. Co., 15 S. Car. 10; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 353.

Instances of Grants of Right of Way on Condition.—Instances of conditions precedent are seen where by deed a right of way is granted across certain lands, the route not being described. Until the location of the route the company acquires no title. Detroit etc. R. Co. v. Forbes, 30 Mich. 165; Burrow v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 107 Ind. 422; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 574.

The conveyance of land for a right of way upon condition that the railroad company shall erect and maintain a certain dam or embankment conveys the title to the land subject to be defeated by the failure to comply with the conditions. Underhill v. Washington etc. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455.

A person conveyed a right of way for a railroad upon condition that crossings and cattle-guards should be constructed. It was held that the grantor had an equitable lien upon the land conveyed not only for the purchase money but also for the damages caused by the road not being constructed as the contract provided; that the retention by the grantor, of the legal title, was sufficient to put subsequent grantees and mortgagees upon their guard as to his legal rights. In such case the grantor might either enforce specific performance of the contract or his specific lien. Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 401.

The condition in a deed that certain portions of the land conveyed should be kept open as public streets is not void as imposing a duty or trust upon the company inconsistent with its business and foreign to the objects for which it was formed. Tinkham v. Erie R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 393.

A conveyance of the right of way was made on condition that the depot of the railroad should be located within a certain distance of a given place. It was held that a breach of this condition defeated the title conveyed by the deed, and that the grantor was entitled to have his damages assessed as if no deed had ever been made; that the estate conveyed being less than a freehold no formal act of entry on his part was necessary in order to avail himself of his right to proceed in this manner. Taylor v. Cedar Rapids etc. R. Co., 25 Iowa 371.

Other instances may be seen in Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Jones, 50 Pa. St. 417 (where the owner of land incumbered by a mortgage sold a portion of it to a railroad for a right of way); 1 Wood's Ry. Law 604; Rice v. Boston etc. R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 141; Paul v. Connorsville etc. R. Co., 51 Ind. 527; Aikin v. Albany etc. R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 289 (to erect farm crossings).

A condition in a deed to a railroad company providing that the same shall be void unless the railroad and one of its stations be built in a certain locality is not void as being in contravention of public policy. McClure v. Missouri River etc. R. Co., 9 Kan. 373.

In the case of Rathbone v. Tioga Nav. Co., 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 74, a clause in a conveyance of a right of way "provided the same did not interfere with buildings on the grantor's land was held to prevent the construction so close to the buildings as to endanger them or destroy their usefulness.

A mere stipulation in a deed to the company that it is to maintain the fences is not a condition. Hornback v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 20 Ohio St. 81.

A deed recited "provided always and this deed is upon express condition" that a certain system of drainage be kept up. Here was a condition subsequent. Hammond v. Port Royal etc. R. Co., 15 S. Car. 10; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 353.

A right of way was relinquished to a company, the deed reciting "the railroad to be located on the section line dividing those two sections (aforesaid)." It was held that a failure by the company to lay its track immediately on the section line would not forfeit its right to the land. It had the right to lay its track on any part of the one hundred feet granted. Munkers v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 60 Mo. 334.

Illegal Condition.—A condition in a deed that the company should not establish a depot within three miles of a certain point is contrary to public policy and illegal, and a reconveyance of the property could not be decreed on account of the violation of it by the company. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Mathers, 71 Ill. 592; infra, this title, Contracts for the Location of Depots.

What Is Sufficient Compliance With Conditions.—Whether any condition has been properly complied with must of course depend upon the peculiar circumstances of each case. The general rule is to be remembered that conditions precedent tending, as they do, to create estates, are liberally construed, and that conditions subsequent, since they tend to destroy estates already vested, are to receive a strict construction. 2 Minor's Inst. (3rd ed.), p. [240] 273; Tiedeman on Real Prop., § 273; ESTATES, vol. 6, pp. 901-2; Washburne, Real Prop., p. 5, et seq.

But the rule as to the construction of conditions subsequent is not to be misunderstood. It is construed most strictly against the party claiming a forfeiture under it, and no act or failure to act will be held a breach of the condition unless it is clearly and plainly such. The result is that a substantial compliance is usually sufficient. See Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N. H. 327; Voris v. Renshaw, 49 Ill. 422; Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 178; Martin v. Ballou, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 119.

A conveyance of a right of way through his land to a railroad company on condition that it should make the village of C a station; the company made C a station, but located its depot about a quarter of a mile from the town plat. It was held that this was a sufficient performance of the condition under the circumstances. Jenkins v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 255; Meador v. Lowry, 45 Iowa 686.

So also where the company agreed to locate its depot upon a certain forty-acre tract or upon any five-acres adjoining, and the depot was placed on a five-acre tract which touched a corner of the forty-acre tract, but did not lay alongside of it. The company was held to have properly performed the condition. Fitzgerald v. Britt, 43 Iowa 498.

The condition in another case was to build a depot and open its road to a upon the intention of the parties and is to be gathered from the terms of the conveyance and the nature of the whole transaction;¹ if the performance of the whole condition does not necessarily precede the vesting of the estate, but may accompany or follow it, the condition must be considered as one subsequent.² The law, however, favoring the vesting of estates, is inclined to treat conditions as subsequent rather than precedent in all cases in which there is room for doubt.³ And for the same reason where a provision may be either a condition subsequent or a covenant, it will usually be construed as a covenant;⁴ whether or point within one mile of the postoffice. It was held that the building of a side track, which was operated as such, and a depot at a point within the distance named was a substantial and sufficient compliance with the condition, although neither the main track of the road nor all of the depot building was within the mile. Cedar Falls etc. R. Co. v. Rich, 33 Iowa 113; Courtwright v. Stickler, 37 Iowa 382.

A deed conveyed a right of way, and recited that the license was to operate in perpetuity if the company should continue to maintain and operate their railroad; but to cease with the non-use of it for the purposes stated. It was held that there was no breach of the condition where the company completed a part of its road within the statutory limitation of time (ten years) but did not complete the whole. Morrill v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 96 Mo. 174; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 425.

1. Nicoll v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 121; Hotham v. East India Co., 1 T. R. 638; 4 Kent's Com. 124.

No precise or technical words are required to make a condition precedent or subsequent. The construction must always be founded upon the intention of the parties. Underhill v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455; Parmalee v. Oswego etc. R. Co., 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 559; aff'd 6 N. Y. 74.

A railway company was informed by letter of the conditions under which it could lay its track through the lands of a person living on the line of the road. The company accepted the proposition, and constructed their roadbed accordingly, but failed to comply with the condition to open a certain street. Held, that the opening of the street was not a condition precedent to the right to locate the road, and that the proposition was not a license revocable at will. Wilmington etc. R. Co. v. Battle, 66 N. Car. 540.

2. The rule is thus stated in a leading case: "If the act or condition required does not necessarily precede the vesting of the estate, but may accompany or follow it, and if the act may be as well done after as before the vesting of the estate, or if from the nature of the act to be performed and the time required for its performance, it is evidently the intention of the parties that the estate shall vest, and the grantee perform the act after taking possession, then the condition is subsequent." Underhill v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455. See also 2 Washb. on Real Prop. (4th ed.) 17; Parmalee v. Oswego etc. R. Co., 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 599; aff'd 6 N. Y. 74.

And the rule in the text is sustained by many cases. Finlay v. King, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 346; Ludlow v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 440; Nicoll v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 130.

3. Tiedeman on Real Prop., § 273; Finlay v. King, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 346; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 605; ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 901.

This is not to be confused with the recognized rule of construction that conditions subsequent tending as they do to defeat estates are to be strictly construed. See 2 Minor's Insts. (3rd ed.), p. [253] 289; 2 Washburne on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 5.

The rule of the text is illustrated in the case of Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Hood, 66 Ind. 580, where the owner of the land conveyed a portion of it "for and in consideration of the permanent location and construction of the depot of said railroad company" thereon. This was construed as a condition subsequent. See also Blanchard v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43; 18 Am. Rep. 142. Compare East Line etc. R. Co. v. Garrett, 52 Tex. 133.

4. Conditions Subsequent and Covenants.—The principle announced is well settled. See 2 Washburne on Real Prop.

not a covenant is one running with the land, must depend upon its character and may be determined by well known rules.¹ The 5 et seq.; Chapin v. School District, 35 N. H. 445; Ayer v. Emery, 14 Allen (Mass.) 67; Packard v. Ames, 16 Gray (Mass.) 327; REAL PROPERTY; Rawson v. School District, No. 5, 7 Allen (Mass.) 127; Curtis v. Board of Education, 43 Kan. 144; Hornback v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 20 Ohio St. 81.

The case of Blanchard v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43; 18 Am. Rep. 142, sustains the same view. But it is there held that the reason of the rule is confounded and the rule itself is inapplicable to a case where the grantor seeks to have the writing enforced as a covenant, and the grantee contends that it is but a condition. Therefore the following clause, coming after the description, and preceding the habendum in a deed to a railroad company: "But this conveyance is made upon the express condition that said railroad company shall build, erect and maintain a depot or station house on the land herein described, suitable for the convenience of the public, and that at least one train each way shall stop at such depot or station each day when trains run on said road, and that freight and passengers shall be regularly taken at such depot," is held to be an express condition subsequent, and not a covenant, nor specifically enforceable as one against the grantee.

In Aikin v. Albany etc. R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 289, it is laid down as the true principle that words in a conveyance which are not in form either a condition or a covenant will be construed as either the one or the other where without such construction the party injured would have no remedy. The condition in this case was to maintain "two good farm crossings."

The condition must always be express and plain, and a parol condition will not be inserted into a deed unless the evidence be very clear and explicit. East Line R. Co. v. Garrett, 52 Tex. 133.

The deed granting a right of way recited "the water on the southeast side of the road to be made to run on the same side of the road instead of through the cattle guards." This provision was held to be a covenant running with the land, not a condition. Peden v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 73 Iowa 330. (See this case also as to measure of damages.)

But where the condition is clearly expressed to be such it will not be construed as a covenant. Thus an agreement to fence is usually construed as a covenant, but where it is expressed as a condition with a clause of forfeiture attached it must be held a condition. Hartung v. Witte, 59 Wis. 285; Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N. H. 475.

1. Covenants Running with the Land.—The general doctrine of covenants in conveyances of real property is treated in the article REAL COVENANTS. Instances of such covenants as connected with the subject under consideration may be given here.

Thus a covenant to fence the right of way and to maintain such fence is one running with the land, and may be enforced by a subsequent grantee against a successor of the original railroad company. Midland R. Co. v. Fisher, 125 Ind. 19; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 578; Kentucky Cent. R. Co. v. Kenney, 82 Ky. 154; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 458; Gill v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 27 Ohio St. 240. But in Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Bosworth, 46 Ohio St. 81; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 200, where it was the duty of the company, by statute, to fence and the grantor had covenanted to fence, it was held that the grantor's covenant did not bind a subsequent purchaser.

So also of stipulations in a deed that the company shall erect stations or farm crossings, etc., or the agreement may be a separate instrument. Georgia Southern R. Co. v. Reeves, 64 Ga. 492; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 333; Akin v. Albany etc. R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 289; Congregation etc. v. Texas Pac. R. Co., 41 Fed. Rep. 568.

A deed conveying right of way recited: "It is hereby agreed and understood a depot and station is to be located and given to said O. R. on the land and strip above conveyed, to be permanently located for the benefit of said O. R. and his assigns, etc." Held, to be a covenant running with the land. Georgia Southern R. Co. v. Reeves, 64 Ga. 492; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 333.

Where the company in consideration of a grant of the right of way covenants with the grantor, his heirs and assigns, to build and forever maintain a switch from said railroad to a mill on his land for the use of such mill, it is a most frequent stipulations in deeds conveying a right of way are those concerning the location of depots, the building of fences, cattle guards, etc.; such stipulations, in the absence of a clear and express condition, are always construed as mere covenants, for a breach of which the grantor may have a remedy in damages or in some cases a bill in equity for specific performance.¹

covenant running with the land; and though verbal, equity will enforce it. Lydick v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 427; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 336.

There may be a covenant running with the land by which the railway company is released from all liability for injury which may be caused in future by land slides, etc. Van Rensselaer v. Albany etc. R. Co., 1 Hun (N. Y.) 507.

A parol contract, whatever its nature, cannot run with the land, but if it is of such a nature that if it were a covenant it would run with the land and be a covenant real, it will be regarded in equity as running with the land, and will be enforced at the instance of one who has acquired the land from the covenantee, whether he hold the legal or equitable title. Lydick v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 427; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 336.

Covenants which from their nature do not inhere in the land cannot be attached at the caprice of the owner. Thus a covenant of a railway company to have its terminus at a certain place and not to extend the road beyond it, will not bind another corporation which succeeds to the ownership of the road. Pierce on Railroads 135; Lynn v. Mount Savage etc. Co., 34 Md. 603; Keppell v. Bailey, 2 Mgl. & K. 517.

1. Stipulations as to Location of Depots, Building of Fences, etc. — In Georgia Southern R. Co. v. Reeves, 64 Ga. 492; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 333, the grantor conveyed to the railroad company in fee simple a right of way through his land. The deed contained a clause: "It is hereby agreed and understood a depot and station is to be located on the land and strip above conveyed to be permanently located, and to be used for the general purposes of the railroad company." It was held that this constituted a covenant running with the land, and became obligatory on any second company which became the purchaser of rights, franchises, etc., of the former. As to contracts for the location of depots at certain places see infra, this title, Contracts for the Location of Depots, etc.

In Hornback v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 20 Ohio St. 81, the land owner by written contract agreed to give the company a right of way; the contract providing that on the completion of the road the company should fence the land. It was held that this provision was not a condition but a mere contract, so that the land owner could not maintain an ejectment for breach of it. See also Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 401.

In Hubbard v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 63 Mo. 68, a relinquishment of the right of way was made, the depot, under the relinquishment, to be located at a certain point. It was held that the remedy for not so locating the road was not ejectment, but that an action for damages for the appropriation of land under false pretenses might be sustained, and the measure of such damages would be payment for the land and all subsequent injuries occasioned by the construction of the road as if no grant had been made.

A deed recited that it was given in consideration of one dollar "and the permanent location of a depot on the grounds conveyed." It was held that if there was any condition it was one subsequent; that the words did not constitute a promissory undertaking on the part of the railroad company or its grantee to maintain a depot on the grounds; and that in case of a failure to so erect and maintain a depot the grantor was entitled only to a forfeiture of the estate, and not to a specific performance nor to a judgment for damages. Close v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 64 Iowa 149; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 33.

In one case it is said that specific performance will not be decreed at the suit of the land owner to compel a railway company to maintain cattle guards. Columbus etc. R. Co. v. Watson, 26 Ind. 50, citing Story's Eq. Juris. §§ 725-6. But it may well be doubted whether this case states the correct view. See Aikin v. Albany etc. R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 290; Gray v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 37 Iowa 119

Where there is a failure to perform a condition precedent the estate never vests;¹ in cases of a breach of condition subsequent the grantor or his heirs have a right of re-entry and may maintain ejectment against the railroad; nor is this the only remedy; an action to recover damages or a suit to obtain specific performance will lie in many cases.² But where there is a failure (specific performance granted as to crossings); Windham Cotton Mfg. Co. v. Hartford etc. R. Co., 23 Conn. 373 (specific performance as to construction of turnout and sidetrack).

See contracts for location of depot held void, infra, this title, Contracts for Location of Stations.

As to a covenant for the building of culverts and drains in a particular case, see Madden v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 36 Ohio St. 46; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 332.

Other Stipulations as Covenants.—A deed for a right of way to a receiver contained a covenant as to fencing, and the receiver agreed verbally to give the grantor an annual free pass over the road. Before the delivery of the deed, but after its execution, an objection was made to the fencing covenant, and the receiver promised verbally that if it were stricken out the fences should be maintained as under the covenant. When the receivers were relieved, the re-organized company refused to comply with the promises. It was held that the deed might be reformed in equity so as to insert the fencing covenant; but there was no remedy on the promise of the free pass, since the receiver had no power to so bind his successors. Martin v. New York etc. R. Co., 36 N. J. Eq. 109; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 448.

In the case of New Jersey etc. R. Co. v. Van Syckle, 37 N. J. L. 496, a railroad company obtained under its charter the consent of the land owner, by deed, to enter on lands and construct its road over a certain route. There was a covenant for further assurance by formal conveyance. It was held that after the construction of the road the land owner could not revoke his consent or refuse to perform the covenant.

In Purinton v. Northern Ill. R. Co., 46 Ill. 297, the covenant was to build a side track on a certain portion of the land. It was held that the construction of a double main track would, in the absence of other evidence, be considered a performance of the agreement.

A railroad crossed a farm and an agreement was made that the fences should be left open for the crossing of cattle. It was held that the company had the right to run its trains as if no such privilege existed, subject only to its duty to look out for the cattle and avoid injuring them if possible. Whittier v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 26 Minn. 484. See also Artman v. Kansas Cent. R. Co., 22 Kan. 296 (agreement to construct a wagon road crossing).

1. See ESTATES, vol 6, p. 900-901; 2 Minors' Insts. (3rd ed.), p. 292.

Thus, a deed of "one hundred feet in width being fifty feet on each side of the line which may be hereafter established by said company for the route of their railroad over and across the following described land" (describing specifically a forty-acre tract) conveys only a mere floating right which can only be rendered effectual and made to operate as a conveyance of title by the actual location of the road across such tract of land; and until such location is made the title to the whole tract remains in the grantor. Detroit etc. R. Co. v. Forbes, 30 Mich. 165.

Escrow.—A deed conveying the right of way to a railroad company was executed as an escrow, to be delivered to the company when it should erect a depot at a point designated. The company platted the land and paid taxes thereon, but the depot was not erected until long afterward, and then by another company. It was held that the first company acquired no title to the land either by deed or by adverse possession. Sioux City Co. v. Wilson, 50 Iowa 422.

2. Right of Re-Entry for Condition Broken—Belongs Only to Grantor or His Heirs.—Such conditions inure only to the benefit of the grantor or his heirs—not to his assignees—in accordance with a well settled principle of estates on condition. Underhill v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455; Nicoll v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 260; aff'd 12 N. Y. 121; 2 Minor's Inst. (3rd ed.) (240) 270; Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. (U.

to perform any condition and the grantor neglects to avail himself of it in seasonable time and allows the company to continue making improvements and expenditures without protest or objection, he will be estopped to take advantage of such failure.¹ An

S.) 63; Paul v. Connersville etc. R. Co., 51 Ind. 527; 1 Rorer on Railroads 320; Ruch v. Rock Island, 97 U. S. 693.

The right of re-entry is not in its nature severable, and is lost when even a portion only of the land is conveyed away. Trinkham v. Erie R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 393.

Action for Damages for Breach of Conditions.—A railroad corporation, in consideration of the amicable settlement of his damages by the owner of the land taken for their road, agreed with him to fence the land taken; and having failed to do so within a reasonable time was sued by him for breach of the agreement. It was held that a subsequent erection of the fences by them without the plaintiff's consent or approbation did not affect his right to recover, and that the damages were the sum which it would cost to erect the fences according to the agreement. Lawton v. Fitchburg R. Co., 8 Cush. (Mass.) 230.

By accepting and acting under a deed conveying a right of way and containing certain conditions, a railroad company impliedly contracts to perform such conditions, and a failure to do so renders it liable to assumpsit or to an equivalent action. Conger v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 15 Ill. 366; Joliet etc. R. Co. v. Jones, 20 Ill. 225; Kankakee etc. R. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 17 Ill. App. 530; Burnett v. Lynch, 5 B. & C. (11 E. C. L.) 589; Gray v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 37 Iowa 119; Baker v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 57 Mo. 265; 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 168.

In the case of Ruch v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 57 Iowa 201; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298, one of two tenants in common conveyed a right of way through their premises upon certain conditions. The company entered but failed to perform the conditions. The tenant granting the right was allowed to recover damages for the breach of the conditions; while the other tenant might maintain trespass since the entry as to him was without right.

Relief in Equity.—Ordinarily there is no relief in equity for breach of conditions subsequent, the remedy at law being sufficient. In some cases a bill in equity to cancel the deed as a cloud on the title has been sustained. See Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. Ragsdale, 54 Miss. 200; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412.

A railroad company accepting and acting under a deed impliedly agrees to perform all the conditions therein; and where it fails to erect fences or crossings, or similar structures as agreed upon, equity will decree specific performance against it at the suit of the land owner. Gray v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 37 Iowa 119; Aikin v. Albany etc. R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 290; Baker v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 57 Mo. 265; 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 168; Hubbard v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 63 Mo. 68.

As to whether in a particular case, equity will enforce specific performance, it depends upon the character of the contract, the effect of the relief, etc. As to all of which see SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

1. Ludlow v. New York etc. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 440; Taylor v. Cedar Rapids etc. R. Co., 25 Iowa 371; 2 Washb. on Real Prop. (4th ed.) 21 (456); Goodin v. Cincinnati etc. Canal Co., 18 Ohio St. 169.

In Baker v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 57 Mo. 265, a party executed a conveyance to a railroad company granting a right of way over his land, conditioned that the company should within a given time after the completion of the road, construct fences and cattle guards. The deed was delivered to an agent with the understanding that it was not to be delivered until the company had complied with its terms. The company without objection from the grantor went on and built the road, making expensive and permanent improvements on the land, but constructed no fences or cattle guards. The deed was therefore never delivered to the company, and the land owner brought ejectment. It was held that he was estopped to maintain the action by having permitted the improvements to be made, though he might have insisted upon a payment of damages as a condition precedent to the building of the road.

In McAulay v. Western Vt. R. Co., absolute grant by deed of a right of way is never defeated by a failure by the company to comply with certain covenants constituting the consideration on which the grant was obtained where no fraud is charged.¹

Where the conveyance is unrestricted as to use there is no reversion in the grantor, and the railroad company takes a perpetuity.² Grants from private persons, however, frequently contain 33 Vt. 311; 78 Am. Dec. 627, an owner allowed a railroad company to enter his lands and construct its road upon an understanding or contract for future payment. It was held that after the road was put in operation he could not upon non-payment of the price, maintain either ejectment or trespass for the land.

1. Absolute Grant—Failure of Consideration.—In the case of Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Pfeuffer, 56 Tex. 66; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 373, a land owner executed an absolute grant of the right of way in consideration of one dollar, etc., and the enhanced value to his property. The enhanced value was supposed to arise from the location of a terminal depot at a certain place according to a collateral agreement. The depot was not located as agreed, and in a suit against the company it was held that the grant would not be affected, that the measure of damages would have no relation to the land, but would be determined by the injury to the land owner otherwise caused by the non-location of the depot at the agreed place. The same principle is found in Houston etc. R. Co. v. McKinney, 55 Tex. 176; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 723; Hubbard v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 63 Mo. 68.

In East Line R. Co. v. Garrett, 52 Tex. 133, a grant was made, in consideration of one dollar, "and in further consideration that the company will locate its road" on the grantor's land. It was held that this was not a condition, but only a mere contract.

In Hull v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 65 Iowa 713; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 341, the land owner conveyed a right of way in consideration of $500. The deed also contained a clause that "the company agrees . . . to fence said right of way . . . and to put in two crossings," etc. It was held that this agreement constituted part of the consideration.

2. Restriction as to Use.—State v. Brown, 27 N. J. L. 13; Page v. Henie-berg, 40 Vt. 81; 94 Am. Dec. 378; Hickox v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 78 Mich. 615; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 613.

When the company is consolidated with and merged into another company, which succeeds to all its rights and franchises, and continuously operates the road, the right of way does not determine and revert to the land owner at the end of the time for which the original company was chartered. Aff'g 46 Hun (N. Y.) 612; Miner v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 123 N. Y. 242.

Where, however, the conveyance is restricted to the time the land is used for railway purposes, the title reverts to the grantor when it is no longer used for such purposes. State v. Brown, 27 N. J. L. 13. But no forfeiture can be claimed on this ground because the land is used for other purposes so long as it is also used for the purposes stipulated. McKelway v. Seymour, 29 N. J. L. 321.

A deed of land to be used for certain purposes, but which provides that if used for other purposes a certain sum shall be paid in addition to the original consideration upon which the title shall be absolute does not create a qualified or determinable fee but only a condition subsequent. Board of Education etc. v. Trustees etc., 63 Ill. 204.

The use of the words in a grant "for the use of a plank road" constitutes a limitation, and the deed conveys but an easement. Robinson v. Missisquoi R. Co., 59 Vt. 426; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 299.

Where a railway company ceases to use a particular part of its right of way for the operation of its road and uses it merely for the storing of cars, the defeasance clause in the grant of the right of way which provided that if "it should cease to be used and operated as a railroad, . . . this release shall cease to be operative, and the right of way granted thereunder shall terminate," becomes operative, and the conveyance is of no further effect. Hickox v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 78 Mich. 615; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 613.

a clause providing that in case of abandonment or non-user, the right and title shall revert to the grantor. In all such cases no actual reversion takes place until a forfeiture is declared by judicial decision,¹ and it cannot be considered as an abandonment where the company loses the road under a mortgage and sale.²

A railroad company may also enter into a contract or agreement for a conveyance of the right of way,³ and such contract

In consideration of the erection of a depot and junction on his place, the owner of a large body of land granted to a railroad company the right of way across the same and two acres near the middle of the tract "to be used for railroad purposes only and none other." The land-owner, among other things, bought and shipped cotton seed in bulk, and was desirous, as the company knew, of preventing competition. To this end he retained ownership of all the surrounding land. As was its custom elsewhere, the company licensed other parties (rival merchants) to erect on the depot grounds, a house in which to store seed for shipment in bulk. It was held that this was not a "railroad purpose and none other" within the meaning of the contract, and that the owner was entitled to an injunction against the erection of any such house on the depot grounds or on the right of way, within the limits of his land. Wilczinski v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 66 Miss. 595. The court also held that in such a case, where the question arises as to whether a certain use attempted to be made of the property is within the terms of the contract, the situation and surroundings of the subject-matter, the consideration and other circumstances attending the execution of the instrument, may be shown in evidence.

1. Harrison v. Lexington etc. R. Co., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470.

In the case of Barlow v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 376, it was held that a right of way thus secured was not forfeited or lost by a failure to occupy it for a period of thirteen years, growing out of a delay in the construction of the road. A mere non-user of an easement of this character, acquired by deed, will not operate to defeat or impair the right. See also Washburn on Easements 640; Noll v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 32 Iowa 66; Slocumb v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 57 Iowa 681.

2. Harrison v. Lexington etc. R. Co., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470; Fries v. Southern Pa. R. etc. Co., 85 Pa. St. 73.

Therefore upon a sale of such right of way all of the interests of the grantee company pass to the purchaser. Barlow v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 376; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Jones, 50 Pa. St. 417.

The grant of a right of way by deed, "in consideration of the location and construction of the road, was for so long as it shall be required for the uses of said company." The company mortgaged the right of way but never constructed the road, and it was sold under foreclosure to A, who sold to B. Subsequently another company condemned the right of way and paid the damages assessed into court. It was held that the original grantor and not B was entitled to the damages. Ingalls v. Byers, 94 Ind. 134.

3. Contract to Convey Right of Way.—

The power to purchase lands carries necessarily the power to enter into a contract for the sale of lands. See Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 401; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 606.

But where a company had not secured its charter, nor filed its articles of association, etc., it has no power to enter into such a contract or to take a conveyance of land. Gage v. New Market etc. R. Co., 18 Q. B. 457; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Babcock, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 228. A failure by the company to complete its road within the time required by its charter does not release a party from the obligation of his contract to convey. The State alone may take advantage of such failure. Ross v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 77 Ill. 127.

Though specific performance of such contracts may be had in most cases, yet proof of a written agreement to sell land to a railroad company for a specified price within a certain time, and of a tender of the amount within the time and a refusal to accept it, will not authorize the company to enter upon the land afterwards and locate their road upon it, or defeat a petition for the damages sustained by reason of such

when made stands on the same footing as other contracts, and in proper cases a bill for specific performance will be sustained in equity, such enforcement being frequently the only adequate remedy after the location is fixed;¹ or damages may be recovered, and in such case the measure of damages is the difference between the price agreed on and that assessed in the condemnation location. Whitman v. Boston etc. R. Co., 3 Allen (Mass.) 133.

A railroad company having entered into possession under an agreement to purchase, and having constructive notice of a prior mortgage on the land sought to be used for a right of way, is bound to contribute to its payment to the extent of the value of the land so taken, and also damages at the time of the appropriation with interest thereon, without regard to the condition of the premises at the time of foreclosure or improvements made by the company. North Hudson Co. R. Co. v. Booraen, 28 N. J. Eq. 450; 1 Rorer on Railroad, p. 321.

1. Specific Performance of Contract for Right of Way.—Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Swinney, 38 Iowa 182 (may compel specific performance and enjoin ad quod damnum proceedings); Ross v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 77 Ill. 127; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Babcock, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 228; Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 402.

See also SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Where a party has contracted to convey to a railroad company a right of way it is no defense to a suit for specific performance that the railroad company did not commence or complete its work within the time limited by its charter. The State alone may take advantage of such failure. Ross v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 77 Ill. 128.

To entitle any suitor to a decree for specific performance, such relief must not be inequitable (see SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE). Therefore where there is an agreement between two railroad companies, one, in consideration of a right to cross its road gave to the other a right to cross in future, specific performance will not be decreed where the crossing was to be at a place not contemplated by the parties, and where it would do very great damage to the company crossed. Coe v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 107.

Specific performance to compel a conveyance of the right of way will not be decreed upon a bill filed by the railroad company more than three years after the other party has refused to convey, and after they have located their road over other lands including only a small portion of this, and where no steps have been taken meanwhile by the company to enforce the agreement. Boston etc. R. Co. v. Bartlett, 10 Gray (Mass.) 384.

Specific performance will not be refused merely because the value of the land taken far exceeds the price agreed on where the building of the road is also a part of the consideration. Ottumwa etc. R. Co. v. McWilliams, 71 Iowa 164; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 544.

In order to secure specific performance the proper conditions must exist; i. e., the contract must be complete, just, mutual, fair, and certain; free from doubt, misrepresentation, fraud, mistake, or illegality; and the remedy must not be harsh or oppressive. See SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE. Coe v. New Jersey Midland R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. 105; 1 Wood's Ry. Law 601.

A party who had agreed to grant the right of way over his land to a railway company, after the construction of the road, brought ejectment for the land so taken, and also sued in trespass for damages; he afterwards dismissed the suit upon the agreement of the company operating the road to make a cattle pass, which was constructed at a cost of $800. A bill for specific performance, and to enjoin the prosecution of the ejectment action, was brought by the company, and it was held that it would be inequitable to allow the owner to recover possession of the right of way after having induced the company to incur the expense solely for his benefit, and after his election to take damages instead of possession of the land. Ross v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 77 Ill. 127.

Resulting Trust.—Where a party purchases lands for a railroad's right of way, but without the knowledge or consent of the company takes the legal title himself, equity will enforce the resulting trust arising from the purchase proceedings.¹ A contract to convey confers no right to enter the land against the owner's will, and if entry is opposed the company must resort to its equitable remedy to obtain possession and title.² If there is a breach of the contract by the company the land owner has, of course, a remedy in an action for damages.³ For the purchase price and for the damages caused by the company's failure to comply with the provisions of the money being of the funds of the company, and will compel the conveyance of the legal title to the railroad company. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Lampson, 47 Barb. (N.Y.) 533; Pierce on Railroads, 140; Church v. Sterling, 16 Conn. 388.

1. Western R. Co. v. Babcock, 6 Met. (Mass.) 346.

See also Ross v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 77 Ill. 127.

2. Whitman v. Boston etc. R. Co., 3 Allen (Mass.) 133; Eggleston v. New York etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N.Y.) 162.

3. Doe v. Leeds etc. R. Co., 16 Q. B. 796; Hubbard v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 63 Mo. 68; Gallagher v. Fayette Co. R. Co., 38 Pa. St. 102.

But an action at law for the price of lands sold to a railroad company can not be maintained where there is no written contract as provided by the Statute of Frauds, subscribed by the parties to be charged, etc. Reynolds v. Dunkirk etc. R. Co., 17 Barb. (N.Y.) 613; Jacobs v. Petersburg etc. R. Co., 8 Cush. (Mass.) 223.

The measure of damages in such cases is not the full contract price, but the difference between that price and the market value of the land at the time of the breach. Old Colony R. Co. v. Evans, 6 Gray (Mass.) 25.

The plaintiff entered into a written contract with the defendant railroad company, by which he agreed to convey to it the right of way over a certain tract of land, in consideration of the payment of one dollar, the fencing of the tract through the land, and the construction of a crossing for his own use within a specified time. The road was built and afterwards transferred by foreclosure to another company, but neither company ever complied with the terms of the contract. A specific performance was decreed, and it was held—

1. That the measure of plaintiff's damages for the breach of contract was the difference in the rental value of the property caused thereby.

2. That the judgment for such damages would constitute a lien on the portion of the railroad located on the land covered by the contract. Varner v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 55 Iowa 677; Davis v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 56 Iowa 192; Hull v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 65 Iowa 713; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 341 (as to measure of damages).

Relief in Equity.—An injunction may be had where it is necessary to prevent irreparable injury from which the company has agreed to refrain. Unangst's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 128; INJUNCTIONS, vol. 10, p. 969.

In other cases it is said that the land owner has an equitable lien on the land in case of a breach of contract. McAulay v. Western Vt. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311; 78 Am. Dec. 627; Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 401.

An injunction against a company will not be granted to restrain it from progressing with the construction of its road, and the erection of necessary buildings in such manner as they may deem proper, merely because of the violation of some contract which they may have previously made in relation to it. Gallagher v. Fayette Co. R. Co., 38 Pa. St. 102.

In the case of Stacy v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 32 Vt. 551, it is held that if the railroad company enters land under a contract of purchase which is not carried into effect, an action for use and occupation cannot be maintained against it. See also McAulay v. Western Vt. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311; 78 Am. Dec. 627. Compare, however, Whitman v. Boston etc. R. Co., 2 Allen (Mass.) 133.

A lateral railroad was constructed over land under an agreement which stipulated that the road should be constructed in a particular manner and with a turn-out for the benefit of the land-owner. It was held that the remedy for a violation of this agreement was not by injunction to restrain the use of the road until the contract should have been complied with, but an action at law to recover damages. Pusey v. Wright, 31 Pa. St. 387.

contract of sale the land owner has a lien on the portion of the roadway covered by the contract.¹

A contract by a railroad company for a right of way, the plain purpose of which is to secure for itself the sole access to certain places to the exclusion of all other railroads, being contrary to the policy of the law, will not be upheld.²

5. Acquisition by License or Implied Grant.—A railway company may enter upon land and construct its road there under a mere parol license from the owner; this license, until revoked, affords the same protection to the company which it would enjoy under a deed or after regular condemnation proceedings.³ Such

1. Davies v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 56 Iowa 192; Dayton etc. R. Co. v. Lewton, 20 Ohio St. 401.

Action for Failure to Pay Purchase Money.—Where the company fails to pay the purchase price the owner of the land may have an action at law to recover it; he is not confined to the remedy by assessment of damages. Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 18 Kan. 494.

2. Kettle River R. Co. v. Easton R. Co., 41 Minn. 461; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 449; Skrainka v. Scharinghausen, 8 Mo. App. 523; Greenhood on Pub. Policy 672, et seq.; West Virginia Transp. Co. v. Ohio River Pipe Line Co., 22 W. Va. 626.

But a third party, not interested in lands taken for a right of way by a railway company cannot raise the objection that the corporation has no power under its charter to acquire the specific lands for railway purposes. Kettle River R. Co. v. Easton R. Co., 41 Minn. 461; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 449.

3. Where an individual consents that a railroad may pass through his lands, it is no trespass for the company to enter. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Thompson, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 735. See generally LICENSE, vol. 13, p. 539, et seq.; Pierce on Railroads, 131; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 211, et seq.

A parol license to do a certain thing or series or succession of things on the land of another does not convey any interest in the land, but simply a privilege to be exercised upon the land; hence the Statute of Frauds does not apply in such a case. Houston v. Lafce, 46 N. H. 507 and cases cited; Mumford v. Whitney, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 380; 30 Am. Dec. 60; Blaisdell v. Portsmouth etc. R. Co., 51 N. H. 483.

And the doctrine of the text is sustained in other cases. Miller v. Au- burn etc. R. Co., 6 Hill (N. Y.) 63; Blaisdell v. Portsmouth etc. R. Co., 51 N. H. 483; Tompkins v. Augusta etc. R. Co., 21 S. Car. 420; Wolfe v. Frost, 4 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 72; 1 Wood's Ry. Law p. 609; Pierce on Railroads, 131.

An entry under license gives to the railway company the entire width of land authorized by law to be taken. Hargis v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 100 Mo. 210; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 599; Campbell v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 110 Ind. 490; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 303.

In New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Moye, 39 Miss. 374, it is said that a parol license is not within the Statute of Frauds, and is a good defense to an action of trespass against the company for entry on the land. But it must be noticed that while a mere license may not be within the Statute of Frauds, a permanent easement is and can be granted only in writing signed by the parties to be charged, etc. See Pierce on Railroads 131; FRAUDS (STATUTE OF), vol. 8, p. 694.

If a company construct and operate its road by license from the landowner it is still liable for injury to his cattle on the land caused by its negligence. Mathews v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 18 Minn. 434.

In Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Algire, 63 Md. 319; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 145, it is said that a railway company which has entered upon land under a license from the owner, and constructed its road cannot plead such license to an action of trespass for running its trains over said land after the revocation of the license; that a right of way is such an interest in land as cannot be acquired by license, but only in the manner provided by statute—i. e., by deed duly executed and recorded.

license is, however, revocable at the will of the licensor, particularly in cases where it was granted in ignorance or under a misapprehension of the effect of its exercise.¹ But where a licensee has made expensive improvements of a permanent character so that a revocation would act as a fraud upon him, equity will enforce the license against the landowner, or will at least restrain the revocation until condemnation proceedings can be had.²

Hays v. Richardson, 1 Gill & J. (Md.) 366. And being in its nature revocable such license cannot protect him from an entry by the land owner. Eggleston v. New York etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 162.

Such licenses are, under the Statute of Frauds, always void as the grant of an easement or incorporeal hereditament. Fort v. New Haven etc. Co., 23 Conn. 214.

As to what constitutes a parol license in a particular case, see Murdock v. Prospect Park etc. R. Co., 73 N. Y. 579.

1. Hetfield v. Central R. Co., 29 N. J. L. 571 (even though money has been paid for it); Campbell v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 110 Ind. 490; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 303; Houston v. Laffee, 46 N. H. 505; Miller v. Auburn etc. R. Co., 6 Hill (N. Y.) 63; LICENSE, vol. 13; p. 548, et seq.; Eggleston v. New York etc. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 162; Selden v. Delaware etc. Co., 29 N. Y. 634; Mathews v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 18 Minn. 434; Blaisdell v. Portsmouth etc. R. Co., 51 N. H. 483; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Moyer, 39 Miss. 374.

So of a parol license to enter and connect the tracks of two companies. Richmond etc. R. Co. v. Durham etc. R. Co., 104 N. Car. 658; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 168 (even though valuable improvements have been made).

The law presumes that when a man assents to the doing of an act, he only assents to its being so done as not to injure him. Bankhardt v. Houghton, 27 Beav. 425; 1 Wood's Ry. Law. 611.

The owner, through her agent, granted permission to the company to build its road over her land, but with the understanding that it should not thereby acquire any rights to the soil. The permission was held not to be revoked, and its effect not changed by the fact that the agent from time to time thereafter claimed that the company was trespassing. Harlow v. Marquette etc. R. Co., 41 Mich. 336.

The revocation may be by a subsequent as well as the original owner. Foot v. New Haven etc. Co., 23 Conn. 214; unless such subsequent owner had notice. Campbell v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 110 Ind. 490; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 304; Masterson v. West End etc. R. Co., 72 Mo. 342; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 439 (mortgagee without notice).

See as to license coupled with an interest, Wilmington etc. R. Co. v. Battle, 66 N. Car. 540.

2. Taylor v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Wis. 327; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 123; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Moyer, 39 Miss. 374; Brown v. Bowen, 30 N. Y. 519; Cook v. Prigden, 45 Ga. 331; 12 Am. Rep. 582; Campbell v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 110 Ind. 490; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 303 (subsequent purchaser with notice cannot revoke); Pickert v. Ridgefield Park R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. 316 (license by husband, the record owner, with wife's cognizance). Compare Hetfield v. Central R. Co., 29 N. J. L. 571.

The rule that a license to do something on the licensor's land, followed by an expenditure on the faith of it, is irrevocable, rests upon the principle of estoppel, because the parties cannot be placed in statu quo. Huff v. McCauley, 53 Pa. St. 206; 91 Am. Dec. 203.

Or equity will in other cases restrain the landowner from proceeding against the company until it can acquire a right to the way occupied by condemnation proceedings. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Algire, 63 Md. 319; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 145.

Permission to build a road on one's land implies authority to use it afterward, and when a landowner allows the construction of a road on his land he is chargeable with knowledge that the road is of such a permanent character that it cannot well be removed or abandoned. Harlow v. Marquette etc. R. Co., 41 Mich. 336.

In Wisconsin if the owner of land has permitted a railroad company to enter thereon and construct its road-bed, track, etc., he waives his remedy by injunction, or action for the trespass, and is relegated to the statutory mode of obtaining compensation. Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. Strange, 63 Wis. 178; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 413; Cassidy v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 70 Wis. 441.

Acquisition by implied grant exists in cases where the owner of lands allows a railroad company to occupy and use them for the construction of its road without remonstrance or complaint; by his action, the landowner is considered to have acquiesced therein and to have waived his right to dispossess the company.¹

It is a rule of law that a license cannot be revoked so long as it is essential to the enjoyment of a vested interest created by the licensor's assent. Therefore an owner who, by not insisting on prepayment as a condition precedent to a surrender of the land, nor attempting to impede the progress of the road-making, induces a railroad company to expend large sums therein, cannot maintain ejectment on the ground of the failure to prepay. Provolt v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 57 Mo. 256; McAuley v. Western Vt. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311; 78 Am. Dec. 627. The owner in such a case has a remedy, however, in a suit for damages or specific performance. Provolt v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 57 Mo. 256.

Where the railroad company obtains, by deed, the consent of the landowner to enter and construct its road over a fixed route, the deed containing a covenant for further assurance by formal conveyance, the landowner cannot revoke his consent and sue the company in trespass. New Jersey etc. R. Co. v. Van Syckle, 37 N. J. L. 496.

1. Lawrence v. Morgan's L. & T. R. etc. Co., 39 La. Ann. 427; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 309; St. Julien v. Morgan etc. R. Co., 35 La. Ann. 924; Taylor v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Wis. 327; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 123, note; Omaha etc. R. Co. v. Redick, 16 Neb. 313; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 107. Compare Conger v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 419.

As to what acquiescence constitutes an estoppel in such cases, see Richards v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 137 Pa. St. 524; Denver etc. R. Co. v. School District No. 22, 14 Colo. 327.

In the case of St. Julien v. Morgan etc. R. Co., 35 La. Ann. 924, the principle was thus stated: "One who permits a railroad company to occupy and use his lands and construct its road (a quasi public work) thereon without remonstrance or complaint, cannot afterwards reclaim it free from the servitude he has permitted to be imposed upon it. His acquiescence in the company's taking possession and constructing its works under circumstances which made imperative his resistance, if he ever intended to set up illegality, will be considered a waiver. But while this presumed waiver is a bar to his action to dispossess the company, he is not deprived of his action in damages for the value of the land or for injuries done him by the construction or operation of the road."

And in McAuley v. Western Vt. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311; 78 Am. Dec. 627, the court by Redfield, C. J., said: "In these great public works the shortest period of clear acquiescence so as fairly to lead the company to infer that the party intends to waive his claim for present payment, will be held to include the right to assert the claim in any such form as to stop the company in the progress of the work, and especially stop the running of the road after it has been put in operation whereby the public acquire important interests in its continuance."

In Conger v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 419, it is said that the fact that the owner of lands permits a railway company to enter upon it and construct its road does not give the company title to the right of way, or estop the owner from maintaining an action of ejectment against the company. But this was a case where the damages had been assessed and the company had neglected to pay them. Even though ejectment was allowed, it was held that its execution would be stayed until the company should have reasonable time to pay.

Right to Damages.—But such acquiescence on the part of the landowner, though acting as a waiver of his right to maintain ejectment, is by no means a waiver of his right to damages such as would have been recovered in regular condemnation proceedings. Lawrence v. Morgan's L. & T. R. etc. Co., 39 La. Ann. 427; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 309; Harlow v. Marquette etc. R.

6. Width of Way.—The width of the way which may be acquired by any railroad company by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, is usually fixed by statute.¹ Where the way is obtained by purchase, its width is determined by the terms of the conveyance or agreement; there seems to be no limit to the amount which may be acquired by purchase except the limit fixed to the power of the corporation to hold and acquire lands.² A conveyance, in the absence of specific provisions as to the width, will be presumed to convey a strip of the same width as is allowed to be acquired by condemnation proceedings.³

Co., 41 Mich. 336; Western Pa. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; Perkins v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 72 Me. 95; Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Pfeuffer, 56 Tex. 66; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 373; Thornton v. Sheffield etc. R. Co., 84 Ala. 109; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 226.

Unless the delay has been so long as to constitute a waiver or to be barred by the Statute of Limitations. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Sutor, 59 Tex. 29.

1. Thus in New Jersey it is one hundred feet. State v. Hudson etc. R. Co., 46 N. J. L. 289; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 294. And so in almost every other State. Stark v. Sioux City etc. R. Co., 43 Iowa 501 (road need not be in center of way); Johnston v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 58 Iowa 537; Booker v. Venice etc. R. Co., 101 Ill. 333; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 357; Lewis on Eminent Domain, 279-80; Pittsburgh Nat. Bank v. Shoenberger, 111 Pa. St. 95 (twenty feet for a lateral railroad); Prather v. Western Union Tel. Co., 89 Ind. 501; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1 (sixty feet only allowed); EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 501; Eaton v. European etc. R. Co., 59 Me. 520 (six rods allowed); Spofford v. Bucksport etc. R. Co., 66 Me. 26 (four rods); Booker v. Venice etc. R. Co., 101 Ill. 333; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 357 (more than one hundred feet when necessary).

And if a corporation presents a petition for the condemnation of more land than it is authorized to condemn, the proceedings will be set aside in toto. State v. Hudson etc. R. Co., 46 N. J. L. 289; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 294.

Where the railway company seeks to condemn a strip more than one hundred feet wide, and the necessity for such greater width is controverted by the landowners, the burden of proof is upon the company. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. v. Cornell University, 52 Wis. 537. In this case a strip two hundred feet wide was condemned. As to widening the roadway, see Childs v. Central R. Co., 33 N. J. L. 323.

2. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 230, et seq.; Georgia Pac. R. Co. v. Wilks, 86 Ala. 478; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 665; Case v. Kelly, 133 U. S. 21; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

A deed conveyed a right of way "not exceeding one hundred feet in width" within which limit the company were to "use so much of the land as they may deem necessary." It was held that this was not an absolute grant of one hundred feet, but was, until located, a floating right, exercisable over any portion of the land within the limit specified. Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. Barrett, 67 Miss. 579; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 595. So that the company by occupying a narrower strip for a year was estopped to eject other grantees in order to widen its way.

Where a statute provides that a railroad company may receive, from owners of land over which its road is to pass, grants of rights of way, not exceeding a specified width, and one of such owners grants such a right without specifying the width thereof, the company is authorized to appropriate and use an area across the lands of such owner of any width, in its discretion, not exceeding that specified by the statute. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424.

3. Presumption as to Width of Way.—Hargis v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 100 Mo. 210; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 598; Duck River etc. R. Co. v. Cochran, 3 Lea (Tenn.) 482; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Obert, 109 Pa. St. 193; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 65 (presumption exists, but after a purchase, in a contest involving the exact lines, the company must establish the extent of its ownership in same manner and by same

VIII. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION OF THE ROAD.—1. Liability for Injuries Caused by Construction.—In the construction of its road-bed and tracks, and of its yards, machine shops, stations, etc., a railroad company is bound to use due care to have such construction done in a skillful manner, and to keep strictly within the bounds of the authority granted.¹ So long as it does so, there is no liability on its part for consequential damages sustained by landowners from the construction of the road; the rightful and proper exercise of a lawful authority can never afford a basis for an action.² It is only when such authority is negligently, measure of proof as others); Morris etc. R. Co. v. Bonnell, 34 N. J. L. 477; Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 182.

In Day v. New York etc. R. Co., 41 Ohio St. 392; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 559, the agreement conveyed a right of way to a railway company; it recited that a description of the plat, etc., granted "is hereto attached and made a part of this agreement." No such description was ever attached. It was held that the company was entitled under the agreement to as much ground on either side of the track as was reasonably necessary for the convenient use and maintenance of the railway in the customary mode; and such possession was notice to a subse-quent purchaser of its title.

The presumption arises that a grant of the right of way is limited to the strip between fences built by the landowner, and unless this is rebutted a railroad cannot encroach upon land beyond the fences without making compensation. And proof that some time after the road was built the president had reported that a right of way for a double track had been obtained, will not rebut the presumption. West Chester etc. R. Co. v. Goddard (Pa. 1888), 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 195.

1. Lafayette Plankroad Co. v. New Albany etc. R. Co., 13 Ind. 90; Rockwell v. Third Ave. R. Co., 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 438; Wooster v. Forty-Second St. R. Co., 50 N. Y. 203; Biscoe v. Great Eastern R. Co., 16 L. R. Eq. 636; 7 Moak's Rep. 630; 21 W. R. 902; Georgetown etc. R. Co. v. Doyle, 9 Colo. 540; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 231; Rathburn v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 16 Neb. 441; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 137; Gudger v. Western etc. R. Co., 87 N. Car. 325; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 144. See also Hortzman v. Covington etc. R. Co., 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 218. See also EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p.

563, et seq. The right of the public in a highway is paramount to the mere convenience of the railroad company; the company is therefore not justified in building a depot upon a public highway or so near it as to injuriously obstruct the public travel, when its own convenience only is concerned. State v. Morris etc. R. Co., 25 N. J. L. 437.

See also infra, this title, Effect of Legislative Grant as Affecting Liability.

In the assessment of damages for a right of way, it is presumed that the company will execute its work properly and keep within the bounds of its authority. To all damages resulting the special remedy for damages for taking by eminent domain apply. See Pierce on Railroads, p. 179. But when the company exceeds its authority or makes an unlawful use of it, it becomes a trespasser and is liable in tort just as private individuals would be. Pierce on Railroads p. 179; Mason v. Kennebec etc. R. Co., 31 Me. 215; Rogers v. Kennebec etc. R. Co., 35 Me. 215; Vermont Cent. R. Co. v. Baxter, 22 Vt. 365; Hatch v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 25 Vt. 63; 28 Vt. 142; Dearbron v. Boston etc. R. Co., 24 N. H. 187; Dodge v. County Comr's, 3 Met. (Mass.) 380; Fowle v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 112 Mass. 334; Canals v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 385; Hooker v. New Haven etc. Co., 14 Conn. 146; 15 Conn. 312; Brown v. Cayuga etc. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 486; Bellinger v. New York Cent. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 42; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Gilleland, 56 Pa. St. 445; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Reaney, 42 Md. 130; Fleming v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 34 Iowa 458; McCormick v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 57 Mo. 433; Southside R. Co. v. Daniel, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 344.

2. Slattern v. Des Moines etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 154; 4 Am. Rep. 205; Ellis v. Iowa City, 29 Iowa 229; Dodge v. Essex Co., 3 Met. (Mass.)

380; Boston Gas Light Co. v. Old Colony R. Co., 14 Allen (Mass.) 444; Carson v. Western R. Co., 3 Gray (Mass.) 423; Stone v. Fairbury etc. R. Co., 68 Ill. 394; Bordentown etc. Tp. Co. v. Camden etc. R. Co., 17 N. J. L. 314; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Yeiser, 8 Pa. St. 366; Sunbury etc. R. Co. v. Hummel, 27 Pa. St. 99; Burroughs v. Housatonic R. Co., 15 Conn. 124; Salin v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 25 Vt. 363; Richardson v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 25 Vt. 465; 60 Am. Dec. 283; Hatch v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 25 Vt. 49; Aldrich v. Cheshire R. Co., 21 N. H. 359; Thomas v. Androscoggin Co., 54 N. H. 556; Fowle v. Eastern R. Co., 17 N. H. 519; 18 N. H. 547; 47 Am. Dec. 153; Hahn v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 51 Cal. 605; Lessee v. Buchanan, 51 N. Y. 476; 10 Am. Rep. 623; reversing 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 86; Lansing v. Smith, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 146; Conklin v. New York etc. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 107; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 365; Sweetser v. Boston etc. R. Co., 66 Me. 583; Whitehouse v. Androscoggin R. Co., 52 Me. 208; Pierce on Railroads, p. 263-4; Vaughn v. Tuff Vale R. Co., 3 H. & N. 743; 5 H. & N. 679; Lynn etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 114 Mass. 88.

But see Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Reaney, 42 Md. 117, where it was held that damage done to a house of a party by reason of the excavation of a street by a railroad company, even when acting in the proper exercise of a lawful authority, is not damnum absque injuria and a recovery may be had therefor. See also Fletcher v. Auburn etc. R. Co., 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 462; Alton etc. R. Co. v. Deitz, 50 Ill. 210.

The leading cases, Hatch v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 29 Vt. 49 (opinion by Redfield, C. J.), and Slatten v. Des Moines etc. R. Co., 29 Iowa 154; 4 Am. Rep. 205 (opinion by Cole, C. J.), both review exhaustively the cases on the subject, and lay down substantially the rule stated in the text.

In the case of Dodge v. Essex Co., 3 Met. (Mass.) 380, the court, holding that, under the statute, consequential damages might be recovered, went on to say by Shaw, C. J.: "It is a reasonable and now well settled principle that when the legislature under the right of eminent domain and for the prosecution of works for public use authorizes an act or series of acts, the natural and necessary consequence of doing which will be damage to the property of another, and provides a mode for the assessment and payment of the damages occasioned by such work, the party authorized, acting within the scope of his authority, is not a wrongdoer; an action will not lie as for a tort, and the remedy is by a statute, not at common law."

In Pennsylvania, in the case of Woodward v. Webb, 65 Pa. St. 254, the doctrine is laid down that "consequential damages are never recoverable from a corporation of this nature, except when expressly given, and on terms on which they are allowed." The corporation in that case was authorized by an act of the legislature to improve a stream, and the action was brought to recover damages from the proper exercise of the corporate power. The Iowa court, in commenting upon this case, by Cole, C. J., said: "This, it seems to us, is sound doctrine; and, indeed, it must be true, as a general proposition, that the rightful and bona fide exercise of a lawful power or authority cannot afford a basis for an action. If the power or right is exercised carelessly, negligently, wrongfully, improperly, and, may be, maliciously, the party so exercising it may be liable to respond in damages for any injury, direct or consequential, resulting to another from thus exercising the right or power; but such liability can only arise upon and for the manner of doing the act, and not for the act itself. Slatten v. Des Moines Valley R. Co., 29 Iowa 154.

The case of Evansville etc. R. Co. v. Dick, 9 Ind. 433, is difficult to reconcile with the rule of the text. The plaintiff, D, was the owner of real estate on the banks of the White River, below the place where the railroad crossed that stream. The land was one-half mile from the railroad, separated from it by lands of one W. During the floods in the river the embankment raised by the railroad company caused the water to overflow on D's land, thereby greatly injuring his crops, etc. It was held that even though the embankment was constructed in a proper manner and place, yet if it necessarily injured D, the company was liable; that the legislature cannot authorize either a direct or consequential injury to property without making due compensation to the owner. This case is followed in Protzman v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., wrongfully, or improperly exercised that the company is liable to respond in damages for injuries resulting as a consequence of such improper exercise of authority, and then it is not the mere exercise of the authority, but the manner of its exercise which constitutes the ground of recovery.¹

9 Ind. 467; Indiana Cent. R. Co. v. Boden, 10 Ind. 96.

Compare, however, Wabash etc. Canal v. Spears, 16 Ind. 441. And in the case of State v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 86 Ind. 114; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286, it was held that a railroad is not liable for injuries caused by such temporary obstructions as result from the reasonable and necessary transaction of its railroad business. The court by Elliott, J., said: "As long as a railroad company uses proper care, and makes a reasonable effort to so conduct its business as to cause no unnecessary obstruction, it cannot be deemed the author of a nuisance. While it has no right to unnecessarily obstruct the streets, it has a right to use them in a reasonable manner for the necessary transaction of its business."

1. A review of the cases in which railroad companies have been held liable for damages to property adjacent to their right of way, caused by the construction, will show that in every case the ground of liability was the unlawful exercise of the authority granted. See infra, this title, Effect of Legislative Grant as Affecting Liability. Thus in Georgetown etc. R. Co. v. Eagles, 9 Colo. 544; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 228, the railroad company, in constructing its roadbed threw rock and debris upon the adjoining land during its blasting operations. The landowner, a hotel keeper, brought suit to recover damages for the injury he sustained, alleging and proving that as a consequence of the blasting many guests had left his hotel and his business had thereby suffered. The court held that he had a right to recover, but assigned as a ground for such holding that the blasting under such conditions was not a proper exercise of the general authority granted. Georgetown etc. R. Co. v. Doyle, 9 Colo. 549; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 231.

In Brewer v. Boston etc. R. Co., 113 Mass. 52, a party sustaining injury from the construction of the road was allowed to recover; but the principle was distinctly recognized that the company was liable only for such acts as were done in excess of its authority, or negligently done.

In Lawrence v. Great Northern River Co., 16 Ad. & El. 643; 71 E. C. L. 643; 6 Ry. Cas. 656; 20 L. J. Q. B. 293, the company was held liable for injuries resulting from the overflow of water caused by the railroad embankments. But as in the other cases the ground of the holding was that the company had been negligent in the construction of the embankment; that there had been an improper exercise of authority.

In Jones v. Festing R. Co., 3 L. R. Q. B. 733; 17 W. R. 28; 18 L. T. N. S. 902, the railway company was held liable because it had no lawful authority. So in Biscoe v. Great Eastern R. Co., 16 L. R. Eq. 636; 7 Moak's Rep. 630; 21 W. R. 902, the company was restrained from the exercise of its granted powers in a negligent manner.

In Hazen v. Boston etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 574, the company was held liable for constructing its road outside its location. Eaton v. European etc. R. Co., 59 Me. 537.

In Parson v. Howe, 41 Me. 218, it was held liable for appropriating materials without authority.

In Proprietors etc. v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 385, for unlawfully obstructing an easement. In Brown v. Cayuga etc. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 486, the company was authorized by its charter to cross any stream in a manner not to impair its usefulness or value to its owner. It was held liable to a riparian proprietor for damages caused by so crossing the stream as to obstruct it and divert it from its channel.

In Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Hicks, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 427, a company was authorized by its charter to build a bridge over a navigable stream, providing that the navigation should not be obstructed thereby. There was a temporary obstruction while the bridge was building, but only such as was caused by the necessary framework and scaffolding used in the erection of the bridge. It was held that the company was liable for the injury caused to any one by such

2. Highway Crossings—(See also CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 906).—Wherever its road crosses a highway the duty rests upon the company to restore the highway to its former condition as nearly as possible and to construct and to maintain a safe and convenient crossing;¹ a failure to perform this duty renders it liable for injuries obstruction; that the charter did not authorize it.

In Gudger v. Western etc. R. Co., 87 N. Car. 325; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 144, a person was injured by tripping over a stake negligently left in the street by the engineer constructing the road. The company was held liable for the injury.

See also Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Hutchins, 37 Ohio St. 282; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 219 (conversion of timber by the company); Rathburn v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 16 Neb. 441; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 137; Woodman v. Metropolitan R. Co., 149 Mass. 335; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 484 (obstruction of street); Shaw v. New York etc. R. Co., 150 Mass. 182; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 547 (negligent obstruction); Cairo etc. R. Co. v. Worsley, 85 Ill. 370 (company liable for trespass of its servants in digging up soil); St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Capps, 72 Ill. 188.

Compare Alton etc. R. Co. v. Deitz, 50 Ill. 210.

1. See CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 906, et seq.; Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Long, 27 Kan. 684; Masterson v. New York Cent. R. Co., 84 N. Y. 247; 38 Am. Rep. 510; People v. New York Cent. R. Co., 74 N. Y. 302; Lincoln v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 75 Mo. 27 (company must construct crossing without being notified); Ellis v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 17 Mo. App. 126; Brown v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 99 Mo. 310; 72 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 87; Eatman v. New Orleans Pac. R. Co., 35 La. Ann. 1018; Jamestown v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 69 Wis. 648; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 263 (mandatory injunction issued); Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 91 Ind. 119; State v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 39 Minn. 219; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 250; Terre Haute etc. R. Co. v. Clem, 123 Ind. 15; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 229; Allen v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 50 Conn. 215; Mann v. Central Vt. R. Co., 55 Vt. 484; 45 Am. Rep. 628; Paducah etc. R. Co. v. Com., 80 Ky. 147; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 318 (company indictable for failure to maintain crossing); Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Greenlee, 62 Tex. 344 (company bound to leave the approaches of the highway in as good a condition as they were in before, even though the statute does not expressly so direct).

A provision requiring a railway company to place a highway crossed or diverted "in such condition as not to impair its former usefulness," is a condition inseparable from the right or franchise granted to the company to cross the highway with its road. State v. Dayton etc. R. Co., 36 Ohio St. 434. And if the company continues in the exercise of its franchise the equity powers of the court may be invoked to compel a performance of the condition. State v. Dayton etc. R. Co., 36 Ohio St. 434; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 312.

As to what is a proper compliance with such provisions, see Appeal of North Manheim (Pa. 1888), 14 Atl. Rep. 137; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 194; Dallas etc. R. Co. v. Able, 72 Tex. 150; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 453.

An injunction will be granted at the instance of a city to prevent the use of four tracks across a street at grade in addition to five already there. Newark v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 42 N. J. Eq. 196.

Statutory Duty.—This duty to construct crossings is almost universally provided for by statute, and is considered to apply as well to highways built after the completion of the road as those constructed before. See Allen v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 50 Conn. 215; Clawson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 95 Ind. 152; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 56; State v. Shardlow, 43 Minn. 524; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 106; Worcester etc. R. Co. v. Nashua, 63 N. H. 593.

Compare People v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 52 Mich. 277; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611, in which it is held that the duty applies only to such after constructed highways as are made necessary by the existence of the railroad.

In Evansville etc. R. Co. v. Carver, 113 Ind. 51; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 134, the track was left nine inches above the surface, and a horse died resulting as a proximate consequence of its negligence.¹ There from over exertion in pulling a load over it. The company was held liable in spite of the fact that the load might have been lightened.

The Kansas statute requiring railroad companies to erect crossings at the intersection of their road with every regularly laid out public highway does not embrace a way generally traveled by the public for more than fifteen years as a road, but not regularly laid out under the statute or set apart upon the public records as a highway or street. Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Long, 27 Kan. 684; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 554; Flint etc. R. Co. v. Willey, 47 Mich. 88; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 305. Compare Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Bridges (Tex.), 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 604.

The New York statute authorizes railroad companies to carry the highway over or under their tracks "as may be found most expedient." Under this the company may elect the mode of crossing, but under the general railroad law of 1850 it seems that a mode of crossing would not be permitted which made it impracticable to restore the highway to a reasonable state of usefulness. People v. New York Cent. R. Co., 74 N. Y. 302.

Connecticut Laws (1883), ch. 107, § 2, provide that "no new highway or portion of a highway shall be constructed across a railroad at grade." See New York etc. R. Co. v. Waterbury, 55 Conn. 19. See also Central Vt. R. Co. v. Royalton, 58 Vt. 432, for construction of Vermont Rev. St., § 3381, providing that a way "may be made so as to pass over or under a railroad."

Indiana Rev. St. 1881, § 3915, provide that whenever the track of a railroad shall cross a road or highway, the latter may be carried under or over the track as may be most expedient; and where a change in the road is desirable, additional land may be taken. See Clawson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 95 Ind. 152.

Definitions.—The term "crossing" includes the necessary embankments and approaches. Moberly v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 17 Mo. App. 518; Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Greenlee, 62 Tex. 344; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 322; Maltby v. Chicago, etc. R. Co., 52 Mich. 108; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 606, though in another case it is said that if the company agrees forever to maintain a crossing over A's land, and afterwards raises the grade of its road, A must bear the expense of making new approaches. Williams v. Clark, 140 Mass. 238.

If a portion of a highway in a city is lowered for the purpose of having a railroad pass over it by means of a bridge, such portion is not included in the "approaches" to the bridge. Whitcher v. Somerville, 138 Mass. 454.

1. CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 916 and cases cited; Scanlan v. Boston, 140 Mass. 84 (company liable and not the city); Carter v. Boston etc. R. Co., 139 Mass. 525; Maltby v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 52 Mich. 108; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 606 (makes no difference that injured party was aware of the defect); East Line etc. R. Co. v. Brinker, 68 Tex. 500 (horse's foot caught in a hole in the crossing whereby rider was thrown); Domingues v. New Orleans R. Co., 35 La. Ann. 751 (liability not affected by city's authority to operate the road); Eatman v. New Orleans Pac. R. Co., 35 La. Ann. 1018 (duty to construct crossing created by contract); Kimes v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 85 Mo. 611; Spooner v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 115 N. Y. 22; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 599 (child's foot caught between rail and plank where it was crushed by passing train); Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Walker, 70 Tex. 126; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 34; Dallas etc. R. Co. v. Able, 72 Tex. 150; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 453; Tobin v. Portland etc. R. Co., 59 Me. 183.

Circumstances may be such that the company will not be liable for an injury caused by a defective crossing; e. g., where the highway was changed by the county commissioners so as to run it in a peculiar position, without any notice being given to the company. Hill v. Portland etc. R. Co., 31 S. Car. 393; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 607.

Where a road over a railroad track is used openly and notoriously by the public as a highway, and the company recognizes it as such by permitting the public to cross, and by assuming to maintain a crossing at that point, the company is as much bound to repair as if it were a legal highway. Kelly v. Southern Minn. R. Co., 28 Minn. 98.

Private Crossing Acquired By Prescription.—A proprietor of lands may by is no duty to construct crossings for private ways unless it is created by contract or by special statutory provisions.¹

As to the duty of the railroad company in regard to signals, signboards, etc., at crossings, and its liability for injuries occurring, see a previous article.²

3. Railroads Crossing Each Other.—Every railroad corporation

open, adverse, and uninterrupted use for more than twenty years, acquire a right of way by prescription notwithstanding the existence of statutes which prohibit, under penalty, the traveling upon or crossing of a railroad without consent of the company. Turner v. Fitchburgh R. Co., 145 Mass. 433; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Co. 433.

1. Road Crossing Private Ways.—Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Kregel, 32 Kan. 608; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 241; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gongle, 29 Kan. 94; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 151; Curtis v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 62 Iowa 418; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 593; Flint etc. R. Co. v. Willey, 47 Mich. 88; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 305; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Chalcraft, 14 Ill. App. 516 (crossing may not be "necessary," though it would add greatly to the convenience of the land owner); Georgia R. Co. v. Cox, 61 Ga. 455. Compare Canada So. R. Co. v. Clouse, 13 Sup. Ct. (Can.) 139; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 296; Jones v. Seligam, 81 N. Y. 190. And there being no duty on the part of the company in this respect it is not liable for injuries occasioned by a defect in the crossing. Mann v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 86 Mo. 347; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 415.

Nor is the company bound to construct crossings where it intersects with unfrequented ways, even where the road laws require crossings for private ways. Berry v. Northeastern R. Co., 72 Ga. 137; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 575.

A charter provision that the railroad shall be so constructed as not to obstruct the safe and convenient use of any private way imposes a duty on the company to maintain a safe and convenient crossing for private ways which it crosses. Kiefe v. Sullivan Co. R. Co., 63 N. H. 271; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 301.

Though the statute may not require railroad companies to construct farm crossings, yet where the plan of the road shows such crossings, and in awarding damages the commissioners took them into account, the company becomes bound to construct them. Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Kregelo, 32 Kan. 608.

Where by the terms of its charter the company must erect farm crossings on each farm through which its road passes the company may select the place of crossing. Holmes v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 1 Pa. L. J. Rep. 348. Compare, Van Vrankin v. Wisconsin etc. R. Co., 68 Iowa 576.

In Nebraska, a railroad company is bound to provide adequate means of crossing its way where it passes through a farm. Fremont etc. R. Co. v. Lamb, 11 Neb. 592; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 367.

So in New York, and the landowner is not confined to an action for damages; he may compel the company to construct a crossing. Jones v. Seligman, 81 N. Y. 191; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 256. And so in Illinois and Iowa. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Willenborg, 117 Ill. 203; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 358; Van Vrankin v. Wisconsin etc. R. Co., 68 Iowa 576 (owner may select place of crossing); Henderson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 48 Iowa 216 (crossing need not be built unless landowner's interest and convenience require it). See also for particular cases Grasse v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 36 Wis. 582; Chalcraft v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 113 Ill. 86; Boggs v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 54 Iowa 435; Williams v. Clark, 140 Mass. 238.

A stipulation in a conveyance of a right of way that railroad shall construct crossings raises no privity of contract between the railroad and an employé of the grantee; but the construction of a farm crossing is an implied invitation to the farm hands to use it, and the company is liable for injuries occasioned by defects. Stewart v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 80 Mich. 154; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 101; Stewart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Ind. 1883), 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 679.

2. CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 906, et seq. NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386, et seq.

holds the land covered by its right of way subject to the right of the State to have other railroads constructed across it, whenever the public exigency demands it.¹ But in view of the increased danger to public travel arising from railroads crossing each other at grade, such crossings are not allowed unless absolutely necessary;² and a general authority to condemn a right of way across

1. See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 537, 579 and cases cited; Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 97 Ill. 506; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 437, 440; East St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. East St. Louis etc. R. Co., 108 Ill. 265; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 163; Northern R. Co. v. Concord etc. R. Co., 27 N. H. 183; Hannibal v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 49 Mo. 480; Fitchburg R. Co. v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 134 Mass. 547; North Carolina etc. R. Co. v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 83 N. Car. 489.

A provision that a railroad company "shall be deemed to be seised and possessed of the land" appraised by the commissioners cannot exclude a new company from acquiring a right of way across its track except at the older road's dictation. Central Vt. R. Co. v. Woodstock R. Co., 50 Vt. 452.

One railroad is not restricted in its right to cross the tracks of another, as authorized by law, because the title of the latter company to its land was derived from the commonwealth. Western Pa. R. Co.'s Appeal, 99 Pa. St. 155.

Under the Minnesota statute a railroad company has no absolute right to cross the road of another company. It is for the court to determine whether the crossing is necessary. In re St. Paul etc. R. Co., 37 Minn. 164. See also State v. Hennepin Co. Ct., 35 Minn. 761.

Special Statutory Provisions.—California Code, § 1244, providing for one railroad acquiring a right of way over another, is held to authorize the joinder of a proceeding to acquire a right of way over a right, and a right of way over the land owned in fee. California So. R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 67 Cal. 59.

Nebraska Gen. Sts. 195, §§ 97, 113, respecting the crossing and connecting of railroads and the condemnation of property for their use, applies as well to foreign as to domestic corporations. Union Pac. R. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 463.

Under the New York statute (Laws of 1850, ch. 140, § 28), where one company seeks to condemn a right of way to cross another railroad, it must first appear that the two companies were unable to agree. After this, in the condemnation proceedings, the commissioners are to determine the necessity of the crossing, the manner in which it should be done, and must determine generally of such particulars as would ordinarily be provided for by the contract between the companies had they been able to agree; and this both as to their own interests and the public safety; for example, whether a train shall come to a full stop; whether a flagman shall be employed, etc. In re Lockport etc. R. Co., 19 Hun (N. Y.) 38; 77 N. Y. 557; In re Boston etc. R. Co., 79 N. Y. 69. See also Boston etc. R. Co. v. Troy etc. R. Co., 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 167; In re New York etc. R. Co., 44 Hun (N. Y.) 215; aff'd 110 N. Y. 374; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 576, note.

Damages.—For the measure of damages where a right of way is condemned for a railroad crossing, see EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 579-580.

"Intersection" and "Crossing."—A distinction is to be noticed between the meaning of these two terms. Every intersection is a crossing, but every crossing may not be an intersection. Intersection is used to denote a crossing at grade, and not where a crossing is above or below the other road. In re Lockport etc. R. Co., 77 N. Y. 563; People v. New York Cent. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 199; 113 N. Y. 78.

2. Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Appeal, 116 Pa. St. 84; Northern Cent. R. Co.'s Appeal, 103 Pa. St. 621; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Southwest Pa. R. Co., 77 Pa. St. 173; Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 10 Fed. Rep. 297; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 594.

Therefore, except under some paramount necessity demanded by the public service, a railroad cannot be allowed to be constructed so as to cross on the same plane line of another railroad at a railroad is not to be extended by implication, but is rather to be restricted.¹

two points within 200 feet of each other and less than a mile from another crossing of the same road. Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 4 Wood (U. S.) 360; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597.

In the case of Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Southwest Pa. R. Co., 77 Pa. St. 173, the court, by Mercur, J., said: "The evident intentment of the statute is to discourage crossing at grade. This is a question in which the company, whose road is to be crossed, is not the only party liable to injury thereby. It involves the safety and security of the public. Crossings at grade are always attended with danger. As our population becomes more dense, travel and traffic will increase, and the injuries resulting from grade crossings will be multiplied. Each succeeding year will increase the necessity for avoiding them. Their construction should now and henceforth be discouraged." Pennsylvania R. Co.'s Appeal, 116 Pa. St. 84.

Injunction.—Since the right of way of a railroad company is held subject to the right of eminent domain and the courts of law afford an adequate remedy for the recovery of compensation, etc., an injunction will not ordinarily be granted to prevent the condemnation of a portion of the right of way for a crossing. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 97 Ill. 506; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 440; East St. Louis R. Co. v. East St. Louis R. Co., 108 Ill. 265; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 162.

But the taking and condemnation by a railroad company of any part of the road-bed of another company is interference with the rights and franchises of such other company and unless plainly authorized will be enjoined. Alexandria etc. R. Co. v. Alexandria etc. R. Co., 75 Va. 780; 40 Am. Rep. 743; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Salem etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 1.

Texas Const., art. 10, § 1, gives the right to railroads to cross each other. But this provision is not self-enacting, and the exercise of the right conferred may be enjoined until, by negotiation or legal proceedings, it is established with proper limitations. Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 4 Wood (U. S.) 360; 10 Fed. Rep. 297; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597.

A company proceeding in good faith to acquire land and construct its road under the general railroad law may have an injunction against another corporation which maliciously and in bad faith takes a lease of the land and lays a switch thereon for the purpose of harassing and delaying plaintiff corporation. Rochester etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co., 44 Hun (N. Y.) 26.

If practicable the crossing should be over or under the first road, and equity will enjoin a crossing at grade when it is practicable to avoid it. Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 4 Wood (U. S.) 360; 10 Fed. Rep. 297; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 63 Mich. 645; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 280; Pittsburg Junction R. Co.'s Appeal (Pa.), 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 266; Baltimore etc. R. Co.'s Appeal (Pa.), 10 W. N. C. 530; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42; Humeston etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 74 Iowa 554; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 263; Central Vt. R. Co. v. Woodstock R. Co., 50 Vt. 452.

The Iowa statute granting the right of one railroad to cross another, provides that the crossing shall be so constructed so as not unnecessarily to impede the travel or transportation upon the railroad crossed. In the case of Humeston etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 74 Iowa 554; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 263, it appeared that the track of the old road at the point at which it was proposed to construct the crossing was upon a heavy grade, so that if loaded trains were stopped within two hundred feet of the crossing, as required by statute, it would be impossible to acquire sufficient momentum to ascend the grade, and that trains going the other way, being on a down grade, would be unable to stop except with great difficulty. It was shown that an under crossing could be constructed at a cost less than $15,000 in excess of the crossing at grade. The court held that the old road was entitled to an injunction against a crossing at a grade, and the fact that the new company, pending the proceedings, had constructed various works at a cost of $6,000, which would become useless in case the crossing at grade was enjoined, was not sufficient reason for the refusal of the injunction.

1. Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. South-

Both in the construction and maintenance of these crossings, due regard is to be had to the public safety, and proper care exercised to prevent the occurrence of accident.¹

4. Construction of Fences, Cattle Guards, Culverts, etc.—(See FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906; SURFACE WATERS; WATERS AND WATER COURSES.)

5. Bridges—(See also BRIDGES, vol. 2, p. 540, et seq.)—As a part of its duty to construct and maintain crossings, a railroad company must construct bridges over its track, wherever it passes under a highway,² and its liability for injuries caused by defects in such west Pa. R. Co., 77 Pa. St. 173; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Lowell, 124 Mass. 368.

Thus authority to a railway company "to cross, intersect, join and unite its railways with any other railway before constructed, at any point in its route," is not to be construed to authorize a condemnation longitudinally for a number of miles. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 122 Ill. 473; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 287.

Power to appropriate the property of a railroad company in such a manner as to destroy or greatly injure its franchise, or render it impossible or very difficult to carry out the objects for which it was formed cannot be inferred from a general grant of power to construct a road across the right of way of such company. Hannibal v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 49 Mo. 480.

But a statute restricting railroads incorporated under the general railroad law of the State, from crossing or intersecting other railroads terminating in any city, near such terminus, is contrary to public policy, because in the nature of special legislation and tending to benefit particular localities at the expense of the commerce of the State generally; and is therefore not to be extended by construction. Aurora etc. R. Co. v. Lawrenceburgh, 56 Ind. 80.

1. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Walker, 45 Ohio St. 577; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 271; California Southern R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 67 Cal. 59; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 309; New York etc. R. Co. v. Grand Rapids etc. R. Co., 116 Ind. 60; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 283 (where agreement has been made regulating use of the crossing the employes of a train having a right to pass are not bound to anticipate a breach of the agreement). CROSSINGS, vol. 4, pp. 907, et seq.

Under the Wisconsin statute it is not necessary that the train be stopped exactly at the 400 foot post on approaching a railroad crossing; it is sufficient if it be stopped anywhere between the post and the crossing. Lockwood v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 55 Wis. 50; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 151.

Injuries Occurring at Railroad Crossings.—For the rules of law relating to recovery for injuries sustained by collisions or accidents at railroad crossings, see CROSSINGS, vol. 4, pp. 907, et seq.; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 387, et seq.; CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 15, et seq.

2. Newton v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 66 Iowa 422; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298; State v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 39 Minn. 219; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 250; New York etc. R. Co. v. State, 50 N. J. L. 303; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 186; Montclair v. New York etc. R. Co., 45 N. J. Eq. 436; Titcomb v. Fitchburg R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 254; Rouse v. Somerville, 130 Mass. 361; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 598; People v. Troy etc. R. Co., 37 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 427; Hanley v. Harlem R. Co., 1 Edm. Sel. Cas. (N. Y.) 359; Vosburg v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 374; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 249 (purchasing company bound to maintain bridges established by purchased road; People v. New York etc. R. Co., 89 N. Y. 266; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 230; Caldwell v. Vicksburg etc. R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 624; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 245; White v. Quincy, 97 Mass. 430 (company bound to keep bridge and its abutments in repair, although a portion of the structure lies outside of the boundaries of the location of the railroad); Mayor etc. of Bury v. Lancashire etc. R. Co., L. R., 20 Q. B. Div. 485; 14 App. 467, 42-56.

Such bridges must be altered from time to time to meet the exigencies of travel. The fact that when first built they were sufficient does not relieve the company from the duty of alteration bridges or their approaches is the same as in case of other crossings.¹

In the construction of its bridges over which its trains are to pass, the company is bound to exercise the greatest practicable care to have them safe and secure, and to prevent the occurrence of accident from their giving way.² And they must be so constructed that no injury will result to its servants who ride upon the top of its cars, unless due provision otherwise is made.³ It is when the increased use demands a change. Cooke v. Boston etc. R. Co., 133 Mass. 185; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 328.

A way belonging to a party over his own farm is not a "road" within the meaning of a charter provision that the company shall erect bridges at all road crossings. Green v. Morris etc. R. Co., 24 N. J. L. 486; Cox v. East Tennessee etc. R. Co., 68 Ga. 446; Georgia Code, § 706.

In the case of People v. Troy etc. R. Co., 37 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 427, it is held that this duty to construct bridges is not affected by the mere abandonment of the railroad and the removal of its track; the company cannot incur a forfeiture at its own pleasure and in disregard of the rights of others.

1. Titcomb v. Fitchburg R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 254 (defect in railing of an approach to the bridge); Dickie v. Boston etc. R. Co., 131 Mass. 516; Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. State, 64 Miss. 51; Rembert v. South Carolina R. Co., 31 S. Car. 309; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 252; Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Gascamp, 69 Tex. 545; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 6; Chesapeake etc. R. Co. v. Dyer Co., 87 Tenn. 712; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 676; Mayor etc. of Bury v. Lancashire etc. R. Co., L. R., 20 Q. B. Div. 485; 14 App. Cas. 467; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 56; Quimby v. Boston etc. R. Co., 69 Me. 340 (party injured by foot bridge leading to company's station); Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Botler, 38 Md. 568; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Jones, 111 Ind. 259; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 491 (burden of proof on company to show that it had adopted reasonable precautions to prevent animals from entering on approaches to its bridge).

The charter of a railroad company required them to build certain bridges and ways, and provided that, in case of omission of this duty, the landowner might build the bridges and recover their value. The remedy thus afforded was merely cumulative and did not affect the liability of the company to an action of tort. Green v. Morris etc. R. Co., 24 N. J. L. 486.

2. This duty arises from the character of the company as a carrier of passengers. It is well understood that carriers of passengers are under a high and special duty, and this rule as to the care to be exercised by them in the construction of bridges is but one of the many cases in which this special duty is insisted upon. See Pershing v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 71 Iowa 56; 34 Am. & Eng. Cas. 405; Bedford etc. R. Co. v. Rainboat, 99 Ind. 551; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 466.

Where the case does not involve the relation of carrier and passenger, the care required of the company is not the same. Thus in Omaha etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 14 Neb. 170; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 501, the plaintiff sued for damages alleged to have been sustained by him in the destruction of his mill by an overflow of water and ice, caused by the faulty plan and construction of a railway bridge. The court laid down the rule that it was the duty of a company in planning and constructing a bridge to bring to their execution the engineering knowledge and skill ordinarily known and practiced in such works, and to see to the practical application of such knowledge and skill to the work in hand; approving the case of Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. Gilleland, 56 Pa. St. 445, and held that an instruction was error, which charged the jury that the company was bound to do anything further.

3. Overhead Bridges.—A brakeman injured by coming in contact with a low bridge of which he had neither knowledge nor notice, is entitled to recover; such an injury is not one of the risks assumed by him. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Wright, 115 Ind. 378; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 370; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Rowan, 104 Ind. 88; 23 not bound, however, to anticipate that its bridges, made solely for the use of its trains, will be used by foot passengers, and it is not liable for injuries caused to persons attempting to use them, except in cases where it has extended an express or implied invitation.¹

As to construction of bridges over navigable streams, see a previous article.²

6. Construction Contracts.—Under this head is included contracts entered into by the railroad company to build its road within a certain time, or along a certain route, and contracts for the construction of the road by "contractors." The former exist

Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 390; Warden v. Old Colony R. Co., 137 Mass. 204; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 612 (injured by bridge guard); Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Stricker, 51 Md. 47; Riley v. Connecticut River R. Co., 135 Mass. 292; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 181.

See also MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 850.

But when he has been warned of such low bridges, or from his long service is fully aware of their existence, he is not entitled to recover. Hooper v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 21 S. Car. 541; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 433; Clark v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 78 Va. 709; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 78; Stunback v. Thomas Iron Co. (Pa. 1886), 4 Atl. Rep. 721; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 458, note.

The company is not liable where the fault was on the part of a company crossing over its road. Gibson v. Midland R. Co., 2 Ont. Rep. 658; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 507. Or when the negligence of the injured servant was the proximate cause of the injury. Riley v. Connecticut River R. Co., 135 Mass. 292; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 181.

In the case of Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Hall, 37 Ala. 708; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298, the rule is laid down that when, in crossing a street or other public highway, it becomes necessary for a railroad company to span it with a bridge, it is its duty, if reasonably practicable, to place the structure at such an elevation as that trains can pass under it without danger to employés. Smoot v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 67 Ala. 17; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Allen, 78 Ala. 501; Wilson v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 85 Ala. 269; Houston etc. R. Co. v. Oran, 49 Tex. 341. This is not an absolute or unbending requirement, but yields to circumstances; and if inequality of surface or other hindrance renders such elevation impossible or impracticable, the bridge may be so constructed as to extend below the line of absolute safety. But in such case it is the duty of the company to take all reasonable precautions against injury. Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Hawk, 72 Ala. 112; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 194; Wells v. Burlington etc. R. Co. (Iowa); 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 243; Rains v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 71 Mo. 164; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 610. In no case is it permissible to place a bridge so low that a brakeman on top of a train in the discharge of his duties could not avoid danger by bending or stooping. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Welsh, 52 Ill. 183; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Gregory, 58 Ill. 272; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Russell, 91 Ill. 298.

The risk of being struck by an overhead bridge, which is constructed too low, is not one of the risks assumed by the servant on entering the employment of the company. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Wright, 115 Ind. 378; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 378; unless he has had sufficient notice, or is fully aware of such danger. Carbine v. Bennington etc. R. Co., 61 Vt. 348; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 45; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, pp. 843, 850; Hooper v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 21 S. Car. 541; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 433.

1. Koontz v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 65 Iowa 224; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 85; State v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 60 Md. 555; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 481.

2. See BRIDGES, vol. 2, p. 540, 548.

See also Attorney Gen'l v. Stevens, 1 N. J. Eq. 369; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Brooks, 39 Ark. 403; 43 Am. Rep. 277; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 152, 157, note; Green etc. Nav. Co. v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co. (Ky. 1888), 10 S. W. Rep. 6; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 238; Silver v.

principally as conditions in deeds granting a right of way,¹ or in bonds issued in aid of the road, or in subscriptions to stock.² The law relating to them is not peculiar and their construction and enforcement is governed by the ordinary rules of law applicable in such cases.³

The latter class of contracts constitutes an important branch of railroad law. As to the parties to the contract, the only question arising is as to the right of directors of a company to give the contract of construction to themselves or to any of their number. It is a well settled rule that public policy forbids the contract to be so given,⁴ and for the same reason, a valid

Missouri etc. R. Co., 101 Mo. 79; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 67.

1. See infra, this title, Acquisition by Purchase or Private Grant. Waterson v. Alleghany Valley R. Co., 74 Pa. St. 208 (measure of damages for failure to erect depot.)

No one other than the grantor or his heirs can take advantage of a breach of such conditions when subsequent. ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 903-4. Therefore, in case of grants by the government no one can object to a non-performance of the condition except the government. Hughes v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 18 Fed. Rep. 106; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 157.

A railroad company in return for "borrowed land" belonging to the plaintiff, agreed to forever maintain a side track opposite certain of the plaintiff's lots. The railroad having changed hands, the new company discontinued the side track, and took up the rails which composed it. Held, that the true measure of damages was not the difference in the annual rental value of the lots with the side track operated, and without it; but the difference in value of the lots, irrespective of the rental value. Amsden v. Dubuque etc. R. Co., 28 Iowa 542.

In Crane v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 402; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 174, the specific performance of a contract to build a road through a city was sought, but was denied because of the absence of proper parties.

2. See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, pp. 1242, 1284-6; STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS.

A subscription to stock contained a condition that the road should be constructed within a certain time, "so that cars may be run over the same between" two named points. It is a sufficient performance of such a condition if the road is so constructed within the time stated that cars may be run between the two points though it be by no means completed, or perfectly built. Wemple v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 120 Ill. 196; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 246.

A party agreed to pay a fixed sum to a railroad company, one-half within thirty days after the construction of the road from T to M, and the other half when the company should establish and construct its general repair shops at M. It was held that the agreement required that the company should have a road under its control, covering the entire distance, and should have its repair shops at M for the whole road, and that the contract was not satisfied by the company's securing access to T over another road. Brown v. Dibble, (Mich. 1887), 32 N. W. Rep. 656; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 241.

3. See generally CONTRACTS, vol. 3, p. 823; CONDITIONS, vol. 3, p. 422; ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 900, et seq.; MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 15, pp. 1242, 1284-6; REAL COVENANTS; STOCK; STOCKHOLDERS; SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

Expiration of Time for Construction of Road.—Only the State can object to a railroad company's proceeding in the construction of its road, on the ground that the time allowed by law for completing it has expired. The landowner whose lands have been taken, or a city in whose streets the track is being laid, cannot object. Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228. See also infra, this title, Corporate Powers.

4. Paine v. Lake Erie etc. R. Co., 31 Ind. 283; Thomas v. Brownsville etc. R. Co.; 109 U. S. 522; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 557; Blake v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 56 N. Y. 485; Flint etc. R. Co. v.

assignment of such a contract cannot be made to any of the directors.¹

Stipulations in a contract that an engineer shall make estimates as to the value and character of the work, and of compensation to be paid, and that both parties shall be bound by them, are frequent in these contracts, and, in the absence of fraud or such gross error as to imply bad faith or a failure to exercise an honest judgment, such estimates are conclusive and binding.² Such

Dewey, 14 Mich. 478 ("fidelity in the agent is what is aimed at, and as a means of securing it, the law will not permit the agent to place himself in a situation in which he may be tempted by his one private interest to disregard that of his principal"); European etc. R. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me. 277; Ryan v. Leavenworth etc. R. Co., 21 Kan. 365; Gilman etc. R. Co. v. Kelly, 77 Ill. 426; Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 330; U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 98 U. S. 610; OFFICERS AND AGENTS (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS), vol. 17, p. 95 et seq.

An agreement by the directors with a contractor whereby they are to share in the profits of the contracts for the construction of the road can only be valid by the confirmation of the stockholders and not by the directors themselves. Paine v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 31 Ind. 283.

In the case of Wardell v. Union Pac. R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 330, the court by Miller, J., said: "Such a contract is void upon the clearest principles of public policy. The corporation is represented by an agent who controls both sides of the contract, and whose interest is in every way against his principal and in his own favor. All the selfishness of human nature is brought into play to secure terms most favorable to the party who acts for both parties, himself being one of them. While the glaring evil of this thing may be obscured by using the name of the corporation as one party, and that of individuals having no connection with the corporation as the other party, the danger that selfish greed will make with the agents of the corporation a contract of which they will reap the advantage and in which the corporation will suffer all the losses, is only increased by the fact that the names of the parties really interested do not appear in the transaction."

1. Paine v. Lake Erie etc. R. Co., 31 Ind. 283; Flint etc. R. Co. v. Dewey, 14 Mich. 478.

See also OFFICERS AND AGENTS (PRIVATE CORPORATIONS), vol. 17, p. 95-98.

Who Are Contractors.—In the case of Hart's Appeal, 96 Pa. St. 355; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 618, it is held that one who has contracted to furnish 5,000 ties is not a "contractor" within the meaning of the Pennsylvania Act giving a special remedy, and special directors and laborers of such person are also not contractors.

In Atchison etc. R. Co. v. McConnell, 25 Kan. 370, proof that a railroad company paid a bridge builder for work done on one of its bridges upon estimates made by the company's agent as the work progressed, was held sufficient proof that such bridge builder was a "contractor" within the mechanics' lien law.

A, having contracted with a railroad company to construct its road and furnish iron therefor and to receive certain bonds in payment, made a contract with B for the iron required, payments to be made in bonds of the same class. A contract was then made by A, B, and the company providing for the deposit of bonds in a bank and their withdrawal on the joint order of the parties to pay B for his iron. It was held that this last named contract did not operate to make the company a party to the contract between A and B. Blatzer v. Raleigh etc. R. Co., 115 U. S. 634; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 354.

2. Engineers' Estimates.—Validity of Agreement to be Bound By.—McMalen v. New York etc. R. Co., 20 N. Y. 463; Delaware etc. Canal Co. v. Pennsylvania Coal Co., 50 N. Y. 250; Wilson v. York etc. R. Co., 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 38; Martinsburg etc. R. Co. v. March, 114 U. S. 549; Mitchell v. Kavanaugh, 38 Iowa 286; Condon v. Southside R. Co., 14 Gratt. (Va.) 402; Mansfield etc. R. Co. v. Verder, 17 Ohio 385; Eaton v. Pennsylvania etc. Canal Co., 13 Ohio 81; Vanderwerker v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 27 Vt. 130; Howard v.

Allegheny Valley R. Co., 69 Pa. St. 489; Lauman v. Young, 31 Pa. St. 306; Keller v. McAuley, 130 Pa. St. 53; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 509; Snell v. Brown, 71 Ill. 133; Fox v. Railroad Co., 3 Wall. Jr. (C. C.) 243; ARBITRATION AND AWARD, vol. 1, p. 646, 706.

Upon the question as to the validity of such stipulations, there is some conflict of authority. In Kistler v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 88 Ind. 460; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 314, there was a stipulation that if any dispute or misunderstanding should arise among the parties, it should be referred to the company's engineer whose decision should be final. It was held that if this stipulation was intended to make the engineer sole umpire, and to preclude resort to the courts, it was against public policy and void, the court relying upon 1 Redfield on Railways, p. 454, where it is said that "a stipulation that no action shall ever be brought upon a contract, or what is equivalent, that all disputes under it shall be referred to arbitration is a repugnancy, which if carried out literally, must render the contract itself as a mode of legal redress wholly idle." This case is followed and approved in Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Donnegan, 111 Ind. 179; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 116; Bauer v. Sampson Lodge, 102 Ind. 262 and cases cited.

But in the case of Lauman v. Young, 31 Pa. St. 306, it is held that such a stipulation precludes an action at law, in reference to matters embraced in the submission. The case of Fox v. Hempfield R. Co., 2 Abb. (U. S.) 151, tried before Grier, J., was cited, where it was held that a stipulation "that the decision of the chief engineer shall be final and conclusive in any dispute which may arise between the parties to this agreement relating to, or touching the same, and each and every of said parties do hereby waive any right of action, suit or suits, or other remedy in law or otherwise by virtue of such covenant; so that the decision of the engineer shall be final and conclusive on the rights and claims of the said parties," was valid and binding. Other cases, constituting the great weight of authority, sustain the doctrine laid down by the Pennsylvania court. Grant v. Savannah etc. R. Co., 51 Ga. 348; Martinsburg etc. R. Co. v. March, 114 U. S. 549; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Price, 138 U. S. 135; 47 Am. & Eng. R.

Cas. 298; McMahon v. New York etc. R. Co., 20 N. Y. 463; Wilson v. York etc. R. Co., 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 73; Denver etc. R. Co. v. Riley, 7 Colo. 494; Vanderwerker v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 27 Vt. 130 (no recovery can be had for work done under such a contract beyond the engineer's estimate, without the most irrefragable proof of mistake in fact, corruption in the engineer, or positive fraud in the opposite party in procuring an under estimate. Opinion by Redfield, C. J.); Hostetter v. Pittsburg, 107 Pa. St. 433; ARBITRATION AND AWARD, vol. 1, p. 646.

It is even said that a provision is valid that the company itself shall be the sole arbiter. Gray v. Central R. Co., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 70.

But the engineer's estimate is an adjudication which is conclusive only upon the condition that it is made according to the terms of the submission: in order to oust the jurisdiction of the courts upon any matter, it must clearly appear that the special subject of the controversy was within the submission. The right to resort to the courts cannot be taken away by implication. Lauman v. Young, 31 Pa. St. 306; Drhew v. Altoona, 121 Pa. St. 420; Hostetter v. Pittsburgh, 107 Pa. St. 433.

What Engineer May Act—It is indispensable that the engineer chosen should himself measure and examine the work and make estimates, and it is error to hold that the estimates of a third person are binding, provided they are adopted by the engineer himself. Wilson v. York etc. R. Co., 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 38; Snell v. Brown, 71 Ill. 133.

Compare Herrick v. Belknap, 27 Vt. 673, where it was held otherwise under the terms of the particular contract under consideration.

Where the estimates of a certain person are contemplated by the contract and by reason of his death it becomes impossible to procure such estimates, equity will afford relief to the contractor. Firth v. Midland R. Co., L. R., 20 Eq. 100.

Where it is specially provided that the estimates are to be made by the chief engineer, the chief engineer in office at the time the question arises is meant, and not the former incumbent at the time of the contract. North Lebanon R. Co. v. McGrann, 33 Pa. St. 530. If the old engineer has stipulations are founded upon a consideration which enters into, and is a part of, the contract, and in the absence of fraud in the procurement of the contract, are irrevocable. They are in this respect unlike a submission in arbitration, which is usually revocable at any time before the award is made.¹ Where an resigned and no new one has been appointed, immediate recourse may be had to the courts for relief without waiting for an estimate.

Where the contract provided for monthly payments to the contractor "on the certificate of the engineer," and that the determination of the chief engineer should be conclusive on the parties as to quantities and amounts, and where in executing the contract each monthly contract as made up by the division engineer was sent to the chief engineer, and the monthly payments were made on the certificate of the latter officer, his action in making such a certificate was a "determination" under the contract, and conclusive upon the parties in an action at law in the absence of fraud or gross error. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Price, 138 U.S. 185; 47 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298.

Duty of the Company.—Such stipulations impose upon the party employing the engineer to select competent, upright and trustworthy engineers, and to see to it that they perform the service expected of them at a proper time and in the proper manner. Herrick v. Belknap, 27 Vt. 673.

The company must have proper estimates and measurements made. If they neglect to do so, the contractor may prove the value of his work otherwise, and may recover, with interest, from the time the measurement should have been made. McMahon v. New York etc. Co., 20 N. Y. 463; Herrick v. Belknap, 27 Vt. 673; Kistler v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 88 Ind. 460.

Where under the contract for construction of a railroad by which all measurements are to be made and the amount of labor determined by the employer's engineer, whose decision is to be final, the contractor is entitled to notice and an opportunity to be present; he is not concluded by measurements made ex parte. McMahon v. New York etc. R. Co., 20 N. Y. 463.

Engineer's Discretion as to How Work is to be Done.—Contracts often provide that the work shall be done "according to the directions of the engineer," or "after such plans and of such dimensions as may be adopted by the engineer." Where this is the case the contractors are not entitled to any additional allowance or compensation, because a plan prepared before the execution of the contract is departed from, or because the engineer causes more work to be done than he verbally stated at the time of the execution of the contract would be required. Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 13 How. (U. S.) 307; Cannon v. Wildeman, 28 Conn. 472.

Estoppel.—Where a contractor does not, at the time of the making of an estimate, object thereto, but accepts it, he is estopped from subsequently averring the illegality of the same. Kidwell v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 11 Gratt. (Va.) 676.

Extent of Engineers' Authority.—A contract for railroad ties to be paid for upon the monthly certified estimates of a certain engineer contained a provision that he should decide all disputes that might arise during the execution of the contract, and that his estimates should be final and conclusive. It was held that this did not constitute the engineer a final umpire to determine mixed questions of law and fact which might arise, nor prevent a recovery by the plaintiffs in an action on a quantum meruit for the ties actually delivered. Jemison v. Gray, 29 Iowa 537.

The engineer can create no new contract between the parties, and where the contract provides for embankment measurement, he has no authority to say that contractors are to be paid by excavation measurement. Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Henry, 65 Tex. 685; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 265.

If the engineer's decision be honest and does not appear to be tainted with fraud it is conclusive upon the parties, no matter how erroneous. Kidwell v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 11 Gratt. (Va.) 776; Gray v. Central R. Co., 11 Hun (N. Y.) 70; Zaleskie v. Clark, 44 Conn. 218; Gibson v. Crange, 39 Mich. 219; Martinsburg etc. R. Co. v. March, 114 U. S. 549; Keller v. McCauley, 130 Pa. St. 53; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 509.

1. Denver etc. Construction Co. v. Stout, 8 Colo. 61.

inspection and estimate by the engineer in charge are required by the terms of the agreement before either monthly or final payment may be demanded, this inspection and estimate form a condition precedent, and no right of action accrues until they have been made; and if a dispute arises between the contracting parties as to the quality and sufficiency of any work under the contract, the dispute must be settled in a manner provided for by the contract before resort can be had to another forum.¹

Various decisions have been made in the construction and interpretation of this class of contracts, but they present nothing more than an application of familiar rules.²

The remedy for a breach of such contracts is an action for damages, or where extra work is done, for quantum meruit.³

1. Delaware etc. Canal Co. v. Pennsylvania Coal Co., 50 N. Y. 250; Hudson v. McCartney, 33 Wis. 331; Jackson v. Cleveland, 19 Wis. 400; Reynolds v. Caldwell, 51 Pa. St. 298; Snell v. Brown, 71 Ill. 133; Fox v. Railroad Co., 3 Wall. Jr. (C. C.) 243; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Price, 138 U. S. 185; 47 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298.

In a suit on a construction contract containing the usual provision concerning engineer's estimates, such estimates must be produced or there must be averment and proof of legal cause for their non-production. Loup v. California Southern R. Co., 63 Cal. 97; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 589; Herrick v. Belknap, 27 Vt. 673; Kidwell v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 11 Gratt. (Va.) 676; Finnegan v. L'Engle, 8 Fla. 413.

2. Reference may be made to cases in which particular contracts have been construed. Mansfield v. New York Cent. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 205; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 628 (assignment of contract by partner, though invalid, no bar to an action on contract by assignee—other matters); Campbell v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co. (Ky. 1888), 6 S. W. Rep. 337; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 113 (contractor to receive a certain sum per mile for stone "hailed by wagon"—company not bound to pay for transportation otherwise); Wright v. Kentucky etc. R. Co., 117 U. S. 72; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 312 (contract of construction company held subject to prior contract for conditional sale of right of way); Hutchinson v. New Sharon etc. R. Co., 63 Iowa 727; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 617; Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Henry, 65 Tex. 685; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 265; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Hollerbach, 105 Ind. 137; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 340; Dudley v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 65

Mich. 655; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 236; Hendrie v. Canada Bank, 49 Mich. 401; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 610; Western Union R. Co. v. Smith, 75 Ill. 406 (meaning of the word "surfaced"—properly to be determined from evidence of witnesses conversant with the subject to which it related.)

Evidence.—Where the question as to the time required to complete work is material, the testimony of builders as to length of time in which it might be reasonably completed is competent. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Donnegan, 111 Ind. 179; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 116.

See also for various questions of evidence, Phelps v. George's Creek etc. R. Co., 60 Md. 536; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 600; Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Henry, 65 Tex. 685; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 265.

3. Extra work done upon promise of payment by the company must be sued for separately, and not upon the original contract. Hinkle v. San Francisco etc. R. Co., 55 Cal. 627; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 595. See also Jemmisson v. Gray, 29 Iowa 537.

One for whom extra work is done not contemplated by the contract, but which is done under the supervision of an engineer placed there by the employer to direct and supervise the work to be performed under the contract, must, when the work is received by the employer, pay for it according to its value, the engineer having made the original contract, and no limitation on his power to contract being shown. Houston etc. R. Co. v. Trentem, 63 Tex. 442.

Where delay in the construction is caused by the railroad company the contractor may recover damages therefor. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Holler-

Equity will not enforce the specific performance of a contract of this character for the reason that a decree of specific performance would entail upon the court the duty of supervising the performance of a great number of acts involving a great amount of labor and detail.¹ But where the construction of the road is necessary to prevent a valuable land grant from lapsing, and to secure the bach, 105 Ind. 137; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 340. In this case interest at six per cent. was allowed on contractor's investments lying idle during the suspension of work.

In Kistler v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 88 Ind. 460; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 314, it is said that a receipt by the contractor of the money adjudged by the engineer to be due him does not estop him to maintain a suit for recovering the remainder due. The holding of this case as to the effect of the engineer's estimates has already been adverted to as being opposed by the weight of authority.

Liquidated Damages—Stipulated Forfeiture.—In the case of Wolf v. Des Moines etc. R. Co., 68 Iowa 380, there was a provision in the contract that an estimate should be made once a month as to the value of the work done, and that within twenty days of the estimate the company should pay to the contractors ninety per cent. of such estimate, and that in case of a failure to carry on the work properly the reserved ten per cent. should be retained by the railroad company as liquidated damages. The court held that the ten per cent. reserved should be treated as liquidated damages rather than as a penalty. It was said that the failure, either as to time or manner of performing the work, would necessarily delay the final completion of the road and derange all plans for its equipment and operation, and the damage and injury which would result would be matters of mere conjecture, and it was therefore competent for the parties to agree in advance upon a certain measure of damages in case of failure properly to prosecute the work. Citing Eaton v. Pennsylvania etc. Canal Co., 13 Ohio 79; Pierce v. Jung, 10 Wis. 30; Faunce v. Burke, 16 Pa. St. 469; Geiger v. Western Maryland R. Co., 41 Md. 4. And in the case of Elizabethtown etc. R. Co. v. Geoghegan, 9 Bush (Ky.) 56, it is said that the character and importance of the work, and the great difficulty in estimating damages resulting from a failure to perform the contract for the construction of any portion of the railroad, render it just and proper that the party so failing should be held to pay the stipulated forfeiture unless it be so exorbitant that to enforce its payment would be to inflict a penalty on the party in default, instead of merely making good the injury.

The same view is taken in Hennessy v. Farrell, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 267; Dwinel v. Brown, 54 Me. 468; Jackson v. Cleveland, 19 Wis. 400.

1. Specific Performance of Contract to Construct.—South Wales v. Wythes, 1 K. & J. 186; Ross v. Union Pac. R. Co., 1 Woolw. (U. S.) 26 (Miller, J.); Fallon v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 1 Dill. (U. S.) 121; Ranger v. Great Western R. Co., 1 Eng. Ry. Cas. 51; Danforth v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 30 N. J. Eq. 12; 18 Am. Ry. Rep. 66; 1 Story's Eq. (10th ed.) 778, n.; Rorer on Railroads, p. 466; SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

And since equity will never enforce specific performance against one party, unless it can also enforce performance against the other party as well, it will not enforce the contract against a railroad company in favor of the contractor. Munro v. Wivenhoe etc. R. Co., 4 De G. J. & S. 723; Peto v. Brighton etc. R. Co., 1 H. & M. 468; Heathcote v. N. Staffordshire R. Co., 20 L. T., N. S. Ch. 82; Waring v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 7 Hare 492; Ross v. Union Pac. R. Co., 1 Woolw. (U. S.) 26.

Equity will not specifically enforce such contracts, even in cases where the equities are strongly in favor of the complainant, and the court is anxious to grant him all the relief in its power. Thus, in Peto v. Brighton etc. R. Co., 1 H. & M. 468, Wood, V. C., said: "I have every possible inducement to afford the plaintiffs as large a measure of relief as I can give them consistently with the established principle of this court, but I feel the difficulties to be quite insuperable." Note to Chicago etc. R. Co. v. New York etc. R. Co. (U. S.), 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 272.

rights of stockholders, it seems that a receiver may be appointed with power to complete the road.¹

As to the liability of the company for injuries committed by contractors in the execution of their work, see a previous article.²

7. Services and Material.—The liability of a railroad company for services rendered or materials furnished in the construction of its road is governed by the law of mechanics' liens, and needs no special treatment here.³ The principle applicable to maritime cases, which gives a priority of lien to the last creditor furnishing supplies and repairs for the conservation of a ship on a voyage does not apply to railroads;⁴ liens on railroad property take priority according to the date when they attached.⁵ For the

1. Kennedy v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 2 Dill. (U. S.) 448. See also RECEIVERS.

2. See MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 829, et seq.

3. See MECHANICS' LIENS, vol. 15, p. 1, et seq.; LIENS, vol. 13, p. 574, et seq.; Digest of Am. & Eng. R. Cas. (1890), p. 607.

See also Schuster v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 60 Mo. 290; Wells v. Kavanaugh, 70 Iowa 519; Jemison v. Gray, 29 Iowa 537.

4. Galveston R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459.

5. As to the liens of laborers and material men on railroads, the common-law rule prevails; Qui prior est in tempore, potior est in jure. Galveston R. Co. v. Cowdrey, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 459; MECHANICS' LIENS, vol. 15, p. 86, et seq.; Fox v. Seal, 22 Wall. (U. S.) 424.

See also Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Candler (Ga. 1891), 47 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 296; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Canada etc. R. Co., 127 Ind. 250; 47 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 271; Arbuckle v. Illinois etc. R. Co., 81 Ill. 429 (statute giving sub-contractor a lien for labor and materials, relates only to labor and materials furnished after its passage); Vaughn v. Smith, 58 Iowa 553; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 82 (sub-contractor entitled to benefit of mechanics' lien under Iowa statute); Templin v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 73 Iowa 548; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 107 (where company sells road and enters into contract with third party for construction, such third party cannot acquire a lien against purchasing company unless they are sub-contractors); Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 14 Kan. 557; Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Baker, 14 Kan. 563 (one who is in the employ of a contractor with the company simply as a timekeeper and superintendent, is not a "laborer" within the meaning of a statute concerning the lien of laborers); Peters v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 24 Mo. 586; Ireland v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 79 Mo. 572; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 493 (mechanics' lien must be enforced against the whole of that part of the road lying within the State, and not against a section of that part only); St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 72 Mo. 664; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 600; Knapp v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 74 Mo. 374; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 394 (lien must be enforced against whole road and not against all of rolling stock); Martin v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 62 Mich. 458; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 351; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Sturgis, 44 Mich. 358; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 619 (contractors and sub-contractors are not "laborers" within the meaning of the statute); Delaware etc. R. Co. v. Oxford Iron Co., 33 N. J. Eq. 192; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 205, 211 note; Balch v. New York etc. R. Co., 46 N. Y. 521 (statute giving lien to a "laborer" does not extend to one who contracts for and furnishes the labor of others or the labor of teams whether with or without his own services); Cummings v. New York etc. R. Co., 1 Lans. (N. Y.) 68; Chapman v. Black River R. Co., 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 96; Atcherson v. Troy etc. R. Co., 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 13; Pusey v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 14 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 434; Austin etc. R. Co. v. Rucker, 59 Tex. 587; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 258 (lien may be assigned); Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Union Rolling Mill Co., 109 U. S. 702; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 626 (when lien to be filed); Boston v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 76 Va. 180; 12 Am. & Eng. R.

reason that a railroad partakes of the nature of a public use the ordinary lien laws which give to mechanics, laborers, and materialmen a lien upon buildings constructed by them are not to be construed to give a lien upon the roadway, bridges and other property of a railroad company essential to the operation and maintenance of the road. Such liens exist only where express provision is made for them.¹

8. Operation of the Road; Extent of Care Exercised, etc.—In case of willful injuries the question as to whether proper care was exercised is not involved. Where the injuries result from negligence in the operation of the road, the extent of care required must depend upon the relation the parties sustain to each other, and upon the various circumstances of time, place, and attendant conditions.² There can be, therefore, no invariable rule laid down as to what care a railroad company must use in the operation of its road, in order to prevent the occurrence of injury.³ But it has already been seen that in their character of carriers of passengers, railroad companies are bound to exercise the greatest possible care to secure the safety of their passengers;⁴ this duty

Cas. 263 (when contractor's lien not entitled to priority over mortgage); Mundt v. Sheboygan etc. R. Co., 31 Wis. 451; King v. Alford, 9 Ch. Div. 643; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 331 (mechanics' lien not analogous to vendor's lien).

1. Buncombe Co. v. Tomney, 115 U. S. 122; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 495.

2. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 398, 434; CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 910; CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 19, 22; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Pillsbury, 123 Ill. 9; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 24; Louisville City R. Co. v. Weams, 80 Ky. 420; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 399; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Matthews, 36 N. J. L. 531; Northern Cent. R. Co. v. State, 29 Md. 420; Gordon v. Grand Street etc. R. Co., 40 Barb. (N. Y.) 546.

The duty is dictated and measured by the exigencies of the occasion. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Jones, 95 U. S. 441.

3. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 398, 426-7.

4. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 428; CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738, et seq. See also Topeka City R. Co. v. Higgs, 38 Kan. 375; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 529 ("all possible skill and care" defined); Raymond v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 65 Iowa 152; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 217 (to use "extraordinary care and caution" is the carrier's duty); Georgia R. Co. v. Homer, 73 Ga. 251; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 186 ("extraordinary diligence"); Kellow v. Central Iowa R. Co., 68 Iowa 470; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 485 (duty of carrier exceeds reasonable care; safety of passengers must be provided for as far as human foresight can go); Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Pedigo, 108 Ind. 481; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 310; Thayer v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 22 Ind. 26 ("utmost care of cautious persons"); New York etc. R. Co. v. Daugherty (Pa. 1882), 11 W. N. C. 437; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 139; Black v. New Orleans etc. Co., 10 La. Ann. 33; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Pillsbury, 123 Ill. 9; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 24; Gibson v. Jackson Co. R. Co., 76 Mo. 282; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 132; Fuller v. Naugatuck etc. R. Co., 21 Conn. 557; Nashville etc. R. Co. v. Messino, 1 Sneed (Tenn.) 220; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Roy, 102 U. S. 451; Hutchison on Carriers, § 495; 2 Shear. & Red. on Neg. (4th ed.), § 495, where numerous other cases are cited. But though the law exacts from carriers of passengers the greatest practicable care and holds them liable for the slightest failure of duty, it does not make them insurers of the safety of passengers. Gibson v. Jackson Co. R. Co., 76 Mo. 282; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 132; Renneker v. South Carolina R. Co., 20 S. Car. 219; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 149; Dougherty v. Missouri R. Co. (Mo. 1888), 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 497; 2 Red. on Ry's (6th ed.), § 192; Brunswick etc. R. Co. v. Gale, 56 Ga.

resting, not upon the contract alone, but being founded on the policy of the law.¹ In all other cases, in determining the duty of such companies as to the care which they must exercise, regard is to be had to the dangerous agencies which they are allowed to employ, the unusual privileges granted to them, and the great injury which must result to the public generally from the negligent or careless management of a railroad; a greater degree of vigilance and care is exacted in consequence.²

322; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Stumps, 69 Ill. 409; Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Miller, 2 Colo. 442.

The requirement that carriers of passengers exercise the highest degree of care applies irrespective of the character of the train; there is no reason for relaxing the rule because a passenger is carried on a freight train. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Horst, 93 U. S. 291; Edgerton v. New York etc. R. Co., 39 N. Y. 227. See also Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Derby, 14 How. (U. S.) 486; New York Cent. R. Co. v. Lockwood, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 357.

This requirement applies to the receiving, keeping, carrying, and discharging of passengers. It does not, however, apply to precautions adopted to prevent their being left if they are unnecessarily late in taking their places after full opportunity has been afforded. Central R. etc. Co. v. Perry, 58 Ga. 461.

1. 2 Shear. & Red. on Neg. (4th ed.), § 486; Nolton v. Western R. Co., 15 N. Y. 444; affirming 10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 97; Gillenwater v. Madison etc. R. Co., 5 Ind. 339.

2 Redfield on Ry's (6th ed.), § 192; Hutchison on Carriers, § 496-7; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 416.

As a consequence, in a suit by a passenger for injuries received owing to the negligence of the carrier, he is not bound to sue on the contract, but may bring an action in tort for the breach of the carrier's duty. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 425; Shear. & Red. on Neg. (4th ed.), § 22. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Kemp, 61 Md. 74; 48 Am. Rep. 134; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 220.

2. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Stumps, 69 Ill. 409; Hicks v. Pacific R. Co., 64 Mo. 430; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. State, 29 Md. 252; Cook v. New York Cent. R. Co., 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 432; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Phillips, 49 Ill. 234 ("when they are employing so dangerous an element as steam, for their gain and profit, a proper regard for human life and safety requires that a high degree of care and skill should be employed"); Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Galbreath, 63 Ill. 436; Klien v. Jewett, 26 N. J. Eq. 474.

Thus in an Indiana case it is laid down that it is no defense to an action for an injury caused by fire communicated from a passing locomotive, that the company used on its locomotives such machinery as was in common and general use, and approved by experience to prevent fire from being communicated; for, though the law does not require absolute scientific perfection in the construction of engines, it does require the exercise of a high degree of care and skill to ascertain, as near as may be, the best plan for their construction; and it also requires not only that skilled and experienced workmen shall be employed in their construction, but that due skill be exercised in the particular instance where injury has resulted from the use of a particular engine. Pittsburgh R. Co. v. Nelson, 51 Ind. 150; FIRES BY RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1.

The same principle is upheld in Cos-tello v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 92; Greenleaf v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 29 Iowa 14; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Valirius, 56 Ind. 511.

The same degree of diligence in the selection or construction of tools, apparatus, machinery, etc., to be used in operating a railroad, is not required when the question is between an employé of the company who habitually uses the tool, etc., in question, and has opportunity to know its defects, as is exacted when the question is between the company and a passenger. West-ern etc. Co. v. Bishop, 50 Ga. 465.

And in an Illinois case where a bystander had been injured by the explosion of a boiler, the doctrine is stated that railroad companies must exercise their franchises in such manner as does not endanger the security of persons, so far as the employment of human sagacity and foresight can reasonably anticipate and prevent. They must provide good and safe machinery, constructed of proper materials, and free, so far as known and well recognized tests can determine, from defects; and must exercise care and vigilance in examining it, and keeping it in proper repair and safe condition; and must employ skillful and experienced servants. And while they are not liable, in general, for injuries that may result from using their franchises, which skill and experience are unable to foresee and avoid, nor for acts of persons not in their employment and over whom they have no control, they are responsible for injuries that result from a failure to exercise judgment and skill in the selection of material in the construction of their machinery, or in the use of it upon their roads. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Phillips, 49 Ill. 234.

IX. RAILROADS IN STREETS AND HIGHWAYS; ELEVATED RAILROADS.—See EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, pp. 534, 552-3; HIGHWAYS, vol. 9, p. 408; STREETS.

X. ROLLING STOCK AND SIMILAR PROPERTY—WHETHER REALTY OR PERSONALTY.—The question as to whether the rolling stock and other similar property of a railroad company is to be regarded as personalty or realty often arises in cases involving the validity and effect of railroad mortgages. It is now regulated by statute in many jurisdictions; independently of these statutory provisions the weight of authority seems to be that such property is personalty, though there is much conflict of opinion on the subject.¹

This is particularly true where the railroad occupies a public highway. Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Harman, 47 Ill. 298; Hicks v. Pacific R. Co., 64 Mo. 430; Wilson v. Cunningham, 3 Cal. 241 (owners of a railroad running through city streets bound to use extraordinary care); Murray v. South Carolina R. Co., 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 227.

There is no such thing as a reasonable increase of danger to passengers. An engineer is not justified in diminishing the speed of a train to avoid injury to live stock, if he thereby augments the danger to passengers. Sandham v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 38 Iowa 88.

Arrival and Departure of Trains.

The publication of a time table, in common form, imposes upon a railroad company the obligation to use due care and skill to have the trains arrive and depart at the precise moments indicated therein; but it does not import an absolute and unconditional engagement for such arrival and departure, and does not make the company liable for want of punctuality which is not attributable to their negligence. Gordon v. Railroad, 52 N. H. 506.

1. Authorities Holding Rolling Stock, etc., to be Realty.—In Tiedeman on Real Property, § 2, it is said that such property is realty so as to pass in a conveyance of real property without being specifically mentioned.

In the case of Palmer v. Forbes, 23 Ill. 301, it is laid down that the railroad itself, including the superstructure as well as the depot grounds, buildings, turn-tables, and the like, is real estate, and so are its rolling stock, rails, ties, chairs, spikes, and all other materials brought upon the ground of the company and designed to be attached to the realty. See also Hunt v. Bullock, 23 Ill. 320.

In the case of Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Hendrickson, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 484, it is held that as between mortgagees and judgment creditors of the mortgage, the rolling stock of a company, such as locomotives, engines, passenger, baggage and freight cars, hand-cars, snow-plows, etc., are to be deemed fixtures and will pass under a mortgage of the track or road-way and the lands occupied by the company for depot buildings and the like.

In the case of Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. James, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 750, it is said, that the rolling stock owned by a railroad company and used and employed in connection with the road is made a fixture by the statute of Wisconsin, "and such we think is the true construction of the charter independent of the statute." Citing Pennock v. Cox, 23 How. (U. S.) 117.

In Louisville etc. R. Co. v. State, 25

Ind. 177, the rolling stock "is treated as realty for the purpose of taxation, as being intimately connected with the purposes and uses of the railroad track and superstructure."

In Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. St. Joseph etc. R. Co., 3 Dill. (U. S.) 412, the court by Miller, J., said: "In my opinion rolling stock and other property strictly and properly appurtenant to the road is part of the road and covered by the mortgage in question." The mortgage was recorded only as a mortgage of realty, though it embraced expressly the rolling stock. See also Green's Brice's Ultra Vires, p. 238, note and authorities cited; Morrill v. Noyes, 56 Me. 458; Strickland v. Parker, 54 Me. 263; Titus v. Mabree, 25 Ill. 257; State v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 18 Md. 193; Pennock v. Coe, 23 How. (U. S.) 117; Phillips v. Winslow, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 431; Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Commercial Bank, 11 Wis. 207.

Authorities Holding Rolling Stock, etc., to Be Personalty.—But the better and more recent authorities decline to accept the view of the preceding cases, and hold that such property is personalty. Thus, in the case of Randall v. Elwell, 52 N. Y. 521; 11 Am. Rep. 747, it is expressly held that the rolling stock of a railroad company is personal property and not fixtures, and, as such, is liable to be sold for the collection of taxes. Hill v. La Crosse etc. R. Co., 11 Wis. 214.

In Stevens v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 602, the case of Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. Hendrickson, 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 484, is directly overruled.

Again in Hoyle v. Plattsburgh etc. R. Co., 54 N. Y. 315; 13 Am. Rep. 594, in an action to foreclose two mortgages on a railroad and its franchises and equipments, it appeared that the rolling stock had, subsequent to the giving of the mortgage, been sold on execution, and purchased at a sheriff's sale under judgment. The court held that the rolling stock was personal property and the mortgage should therefore have been filed as a chattel mortgage. The opinion of Johnson, C., in this case contains citations of many authorities upon this subject.

In Williamson v. New Jersey Southern R. Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 311, it is said engines and rolling stock must be regarded as chattels, which have not lost their distinctive character as personalty, by being affixed to the railroad, so that a mortgage of such property is a chattel mortgage. The court in this case reviewed at great length the authorities on the subject and arrived at the conclusion that "wherever the question has been directly presented as to whether the rolling stock of a railroad is real or personal property, the great weight of authority is in favor of its being considered as personalty." Citing, Stevens v. Boston etc. R. Co., 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 590; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Ft. Howard, 21 Wis. 44; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Gilmore, 37 N. H. 410; Coe v. Columbus etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372; Dubuque v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 39 Iowa 56; State Treasurer v. Somerville etc. R. Co., 28 N. J. L. 21; Beardsley v. Ontario Bank, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 619. In this last case it was held that locomotives, engines, and all other rolling stock of a railroad company, the stock, materials, rails, ties, and other things on hand for running or repairing the road, the platform scales, tools and implements, and all articles not constituting a part of the road-bed or firmly affixed to the land or to some building which is itself a fixture, are not embraced in and will not pass by a mortgage of "the railroad real estate, chattels real, and franchises" of the company, and are subject to execution as personal property. See also Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 1 Ill. App. 399.

In Rorer on Railroads, p. 10, it is said that "there is much diversity of rulings in the State courts as to the character of the rolling stock and appliances, but with a decided preponderance of authority, it is regarded as personal property when not influenced by statute."

In Green's Brice's Ultra Vires, p. 238, note a, the subject is considered at length and the same conclusion reached. So also in 1 Minor's Inst. (3rd. ed.) [541] 609. Pingrey on Chattel Mortgages, § 428, et seq. See also Pacific R. Co. v. Cass Co., 53 Mo. 17.

In the case of Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. James, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 750, such property was considered a fixture, and therefore real property, but it was because it was declared to be so by statute. And in a later case, under the same statute, it is said that though such property is a fixture by statute, it is such only for the purposes contemplated in that section, and so liable to seizure and sale for delinquent taxes as personal property. Chicago etc.

XI. STATE REGULATION OF RAILROADS.—This portion of the subject has received considerable treatment elsewhere.¹ It is settled that the construction and operation of a railroad is a business "affected with a public interest," such as that the State has a right to control and regulate it.²

R. Co. v. Fort Howard, 21 Wis. 44; 91 Am. Dec. 458.

Iron Rails.—Iron rails when fastened to the road-bed so that engines and cars can pass over them are a part of the realty, unless by agreement between the parties to a transfer they remain personalty. But as between the vendor and those who remain entitled to the possession as security for prior claims, such rails continue to be personalty only so far as such prior mortgagees have consented to such agreement. Hunt v. Bay State Iron Co., 97 Mass. 279.

Statutory Provisions.—In Wisconsin, such property is declared by statute to be a fixture. Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. James, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 550.

In Mississippi, it is made personalty. Const. of Mississippi (1890), § 185.

See RAILROAD SECURITIES, where the statutes on the subject are collected; also Jones on Railroad Securities, § 150, et seq.

1. See FREIGHT, vol. 8, pp. 906-925; TICKETS AND FARES; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 209; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 620, et seq. See also infra this title, Legal Status; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Maryland, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 456, note in L. ed.

2. Business Affected with a Public Interest.—The principle that a State may regulate the conduct of any business "affected with a public interest" was announced in Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, and though at first opposed is now established beyond controversy. See POLICE POWER, vol. 18, p. 739, and cases; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.), p. 738, where are enumerated the various classes of business which are included; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 621; People v. Budd, 117 N. Y. 1; 24 Am. L. Rev. 908; Carton v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 59 Iowa 148; 44 Am. Rep. 676; Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. v. Taylor Co., 52 Wis. 77; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 532; Sloan v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 61 Mo. 24; Nelson v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 26 Vt. 717.

That railroads come within the term "business affected with a public interest" is settled by the "Granger Cases." Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Cutts, 94 U. S. 155-164, 183-187; Peik v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 94 U. S. 164. Compare Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Sessions, 28 Fed. Rep. 594.

The fact that the income of such railroads had been pledged as security for the payment of the obligations incurred upon the faith of the charter in no wise affects the right of the State to regulate their charges. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Iowa, 94 U. S. 155; Peik v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 94 U. S. 164-176.

In People v. Boston etc. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 569, the court by Earl, J., said: "Railroad corporations hold their property and exercise their functions for the public benefit, and they are therefore subject to legislative control. The legislature which has created them may regulate the way in which they shall transact their business, the price which they shall charge for the transportation of freight and passengers, the speed at which they may run their trains, and the way in which they may cross or run upon highways or turnpikes used for public travel. It may make all such regulations as are appropriate to protect the lives of persons carried upon railroads or passing upon highways crossed by railroads. All this is within the legislative power, although the power to alter and amend the charters of such corporations has not been reserved." See also Fitchburgh etc. R. Co. v. Grand Junction R. etc. Co., 4 Allen (Mass.) 198.

The time and manner in which a railroad company will carry persons and property, and the price to be paid therefor are subject to legislative regulation, but in the absence of such regulation it owes only such duties to the public, or to individuals, associations, or corporations as the common law, or some custom having the force of law, has established. Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Denver etc. R. Co., 110 U. S. 667; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 57. See also Stone v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 U. S. 307; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 577.

1. Is an Exercise of Police Power.—The right of every State to control or regulate railroads within its borders is a necessary accompaniment of the duty imposed upon it to provide for the general welfare of its citizens. It is a part of the power of police regulation which is inherent in every government, and is bounded only by the limitations provided in the State and Federal constitutions.¹

2. Regulation of Freight Charges and Passenger Rates.—See FREIGHT, vol. 8, pp. 906-925; TICKETS AND FARES.

3. Railroad Commissions.—See RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

4. As to Speed of Trains.—A State legislature has an undoubted right to provide that railway trains shall not exceed a certain rate of speed at particular places, e. g., at crossings, in passing Interstate Consolidation.—Certain railroad companies of Wisconsin were consolidated with others of Illinois on terms which, in effect, required that the consolidated company should, when operating in Wisconsin, be subject to its laws. Held, that Wisconsin could legislate for the company, in that State precisely as it could have legislated for its own original companies if no consolidation had taken place. Peik v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 94 U. S. 164; CORPORATIONS, vol. 3, p. 272.

In Case of Leases.—A corporation of one State, operating a road in another State as lessee, subjects itself as to that road to such local legislation as would have been applicable to the lessor had no such lease been made. Stone v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 U. S. 347; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 577.

1. Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Mower, 16 Kan. 573; POLICE POWER, vol. 18, p. 739; Tiedeman's Lim. of Police Power, pp. 593-602; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 707-716; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Jacksonville, 67 Ill. 37; 16 Am. Rep. 611; Thorpe v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 27 Vt. 140; 62 Am. Dec. 625; Boston etc. R. Co. v. County Com'rs, 79 Me. 386; Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. Southwest Pa. R. Co., 77 Pa. St. 186; 1 Rorer on Railroads, p. 557.

A charter granted to a railroad corporation by a territorial legislature does not confer nor secure rights beyond the reach of the police power of the State. The chartered rights of a corporation are not more sacred than the individual's rights of person and property, and all must give way to any legitimate exercise of the police power of the State. Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Mower, 16 Kan. 573; Sloan v. Pacific R. Co., 61 Mo. 24; 21 Am. Rep. 397.

Police Regulations Apply Both to Existing Corporations and those Subsequently Created.—Portland etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 65 Me. 122; Wilder v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 65 Me. 332; 20 Am. Rep. 698; New Albany etc. R. Co. v. Tilton, 12 Ind. 3, 10; Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Kercheval, 16 Ind. 84; Western Union R. Co. v. Fulton, 64 Ill. 271; Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Blackman, 63 Ill. 117; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Cole, 29 Ohio St. 126; Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. Southwest Pa. R. Co., 77 Pa. St. 173; Bulkley v. New York etc. R. Co., 27 Conn. 479; Rodemacher v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 297; 20 Am. Rep. 592; Sawyer v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 105 Mass. 196 (fencing statute); Galena etc. R. Co. v. Loomis, 13 Ill. 548; Jeffersonville R. Co. v. Gabbert, 25 Ind. 431; Suydam v. Moore, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 358. Unless, of course, the terms of the statute provide otherwise. See Stearns v. Old Colony etc. R. Co., 1 Allen (Mass.) 493; Baxter v. Boston etc. R. Co., 102 Mass. 383. Compare Wellcome v. Leeds, 51 Me. 313.

See also Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Rowland, 70 Tex. 298; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286, where it is held that a statute requiring farm crossings to be constructed is unconstitutional so far as it applies to companies which had secured a right of way before its passage.

Must Be Police Regulations in Fact.—The exercise of a State's power in this regard must be strictly limited to police regulations in fact. Essential rights and privileges cannot be impaired under pretense of regulation. Sloan v. Pacific R. Co., 61 Mo. 24; People v. Jackson etc. Co., 9 Mich. 285; Hegeman v. Western R. Co., 13 N. Y. 9.

through towns or cities, etc. Such regulations are not an infringement of the charter rights of companies, nor do they violate any constitutional provision.¹

5. As to Crossings, Signals, etc.—A State legislature may also make all necessary provisions as to the crossings of railroads over public highways or over other railroads; such, for example, as prescribing how and in what cases crossings shall be built,² the

1. The charter privilege of a railroad company to fix the rate of speed of its trains, is, like the business of an individual, subordinate to the police laws of the State. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. State, 51 Miss. 137; Merz v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 88 Mo. 677; Haas v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 41 Wis. 44; Horn v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 38 Wis. 463; People v. Boston etc. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 569; Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Buffalo, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 209; 2 Dillon's Mun. Corp., § 713; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 710; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Haggerty, 67 Ill. 113; Rockford etc. R. Co. v. Hillmer, 72 Ill. 235; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. People, 120 Ill. 667 (any person injured may recover the penalty); Whitson v. Franklin, 34 Ind. 393; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Lewis, 79 Pa. St. 33; Clark v. Boston etc. R. Co., 64 N. H. 323; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 548 (regulations may apply to roads extending beyond State limits); Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Reidy, 66 Ill. 43.

In State v. New Jersey R. etc. Co., 29 N. J. L. 170, the right was recognized but held not to apply to a particular case.

Within certain limits a municipal corporation has the same right. 2 Dillon's Mun. Corp., § 713; 2 Redf. on Ry's 577-8; Gratiot v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 16 S. W. Rep. 384; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Deacon, 63 Ill. 91.

The Georgia statute regulating the speed of trains at public crossings does not apply to cases in which the train is started at or upon the crossing. Harris v. Central R. Co., 78 Ga. 525.

A city ordinance forbidding the running of trains at a greater speed than ten miles an hour within the city limits does not license trains to run at this rate. The trains must conform their rate of speed to the safety of the public. Wabash R. Co. v. Henks, 91 Ill. 406.

Effect of a Violation of Such Statute.—In some jurisdictions a violation of a statute regulating the speed of trains is considered to constitute negligence per se so that the plaintiff need only prove damage in order to recover. South Ala. R. Co. v. Donovan, 84 Ala. 141; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 151; Keim v. Union R. etc. Co., 90 Mo. 314; Karle v. Kansas City R. Co., 55 Mo. 476; Winstanley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 72 Wis. 375; Enders v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. (Supreme Ct.), 2 N. Y. Supp. 719; Correll v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 38 Iowa 120; Dodge v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 34 Iowa 276; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Toulme, 59 Miss. 284. See also Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Reidy, 66 Ill. 43.

The error in such doctrines is adverted to in NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, pp. 420, 421.

But contributory negligence is a defense even when an unlawful rate of speed is proven. Strong v. Canton etc. R. Co. (Miss. 1888), 3 So. Rep. 46; Blanchard v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 126 Ill. 416; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 319.

In other jurisdictions such violation is made merely some evidence of negligence. Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Deacon, 63 Ill. 91; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Engle, 58 Ill. 381; Clark v. Boston etc. R. Co., 64 N. H. 323; Archer v. New York etc. R. Co., 106 N. Y. 589; Wheeler v. New York etc. R. Co., 38 Fed. Rep. 15.

And this is the more correct doctrine. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, pp. 420, 421.

In Mississippi it is held that § 1047 (Code 1880), prohibiting the running of railroad trains through incorporated cities and towns at a greater rate of speed than six miles per hour, and making the railroad company liable for any damage or injury which may be sustained by any one from such trains, while running at a greater speed than six miles per hour, through any such incorporated city or town, applies to injuries done to real estate, such as injury to a house by vibrations, as well as to personal property. Porterfield v. Bond, 38 Fed. Rep. 391.

2. Portland etc. R. Co. v. Deering, 78 signals which shall be given upon approaching them,¹ and that

Me. 61; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 51; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 715; State v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 39 Minn. 219; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 250; Albany etc. R. Co. v. Brownell, 24 N. Y. 345; Pierce on Railroads 457; Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. Southwest Pa. R. Co., 77 Pa. St. 173.

Where commissioners attempt to regulate the mode in which the tracks of one road may cross those of another, the style and pattern of the crossing-frogs should be definitely fixed, or the report will be set aside. In re New York etc. R. Co., 35 Hun (N. Y.) 232.

Where railroad commissioners are empowered, when public safety requires an alteration of any highway crossed at grade by a railroad, to order such alterations as they shall deem best, they may join two converging highways so as to make a single crossing, although the distance by one highway is increased thirty rods, and by the other fifteen. Suffield v. New Haven etc. Co., 53 Conn. 367.

Power of State to Authorize Crossings to be Made.—Railroad corporations accept their charters and franchises subject to the power of the State to authorize the construction of other railroads across their tracks whenever the public welfare may require. Neither the priority of one charter over the other, nor the prior location or construction of a railroad thereunder, affects this right. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604; 5 Cent. L. Jour. 492-3; In re Kerr, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 119; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 537; infra, this title, Railroads Crossing Each Other.

See also Missouri etc. R. Co. v. Texas etc. R. Co., 10 Fed. Rep. 497.

Compare Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Ellis, 70 Tex. 307; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 292.

A statute requiring railroad companies to erect farm crossings is not unconstitutional even as to companies chartered before the enactment of the statute. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Willenborg, 117 Ill. 203; 57 Am. Rep. 862; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 358.

An act providing that at railroad crossings the railroads crossing there should erect and maintain suitable depots and waiting rooms to accommodate passengers, is also a legitimate exercise of police power. Missouri v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 32 Fed. Rep. 722;

State v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 83 Mo. 144; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 133.

So also of a statute providing that the expense of maintaining so much of the highway as is within the limits of the right of way where the track is crossed at grade, shall be borne by the company. Boston etc. R. Co. v. County Com'rs, 79 Me. 386; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 271.

But a statute requiring the company to make a crossing outside of any inclosure, on demand of any two citizens, was held unconstitutional in Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Ellis, 70 Tex. 307; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 292.

Under the New York statute a commission appointed to ascertain and determine the points and manner of the crossing by one railroad of another, has no power to locate the crossing at any place other than that stated in the petition and order; nor to review any fact on which the order was based, nor to question the right of the petitioner to a crossing; nor has such commission power to regulate the rate of speed at which trains on the intersecting roads shall pass the crossing. Matter of Cent. R. Co. of L. I., 1 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 419.

1. Kaminitsky v. Northeastern R. Co., 25 S. Car. 53; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 67 Ind. 45; 33 Am. Rep. 73; Galena etc. R. Co. v. Loomis, 13 Ill. 548; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 714; Com. v. Eastern R. Co., 103 Mass. 254; 4 Am. Rep. 555.

An act which exempts a railroad corporation from the duty of ringing a bell or blowing a whistle may be repealed by another act, notwithstanding the repealing act is rejected by such company, so as to render the company liable for a breach of such duty. Galena etc. R. Co. v. Appleby, 28 Ill. 283.

The New York railroad act (1850) provided that a penalty should be inflicted for every failure by a railroad company to make certain specified signals. It was held that a company incurred the penalty as often as it crossed a public road, etc., without giving the required signal; and that the section applied as well to cases where the railroad crossed the highway by a bridge at a sufficient elevation to allow travel to pass beneath, as to the case of a crossing on a level. People v. New York Cent. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 199.

the omission to observe such provisions shall constitute negligence, etc.¹

6. As to Fencing Tracks.—See FENCES, vol. 7, pp. 906-939.

7. As to Formation of Pools.—See RAILROAD POOLS.

8. Miscellaneous Instances.—There are numerous other instances of the State regulation of railroads, which admit of no special classification.²

Where Two Railroads Cross.—A statute providing that where two railroads cross each other a watchman shall be kept, and other precautions taken, such as that trains shall come to a full stop before passing such crossing is valid. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. People, 29 Ill. App. 428.

1. The general rule is that the violation of such regulations does not necessarily make the company liable for injuries caused at the time; the defense of contributory negligence, or of the absence of proximity of cause is still available. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 421; CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 921; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 714, and cases cited; Jackson v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 25 Vt. 150; 60 Am. Dec. 246; Orcutt v. Pacific Coast R. Co., 85 Cal. 291.

But the legislature may exclude such defenses and impose an absolute liability for all injuries caused by a violation of the regulations. Quackenbush v. Wisconsin etc. R. Co., 62 Wis. 411; Kaminitzky v. Northeastern R. Co., 25 S. Car. 53; Cooley's Const. Lim. (6th ed.) 718; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512 (double damage act); FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906, 910, et seq.

An ordinance of Orleans requiring railroad companies to have watchmen with prescribed signals at all points where their tracks intersect streets on which street cars are running, and which imposes imprisonment on the person in charge of a train who crosses such street without being signaled as therein provided, is a valid exercise of the power conferred on the city by its charter to "authorize the use of the streets for horse or steam railroads, and to regulate the same." State v. Cozzens, 42 La. Ann.—, 8 So. Rep. 265.

2. Running Mixed Trains—Air Brakes.—An Arkansas statute provides that in making up mixed trains the baggage and freight cars shall be placed in front of the passenger coaches. Mansfield's

Dig. Arkansas, § 5477. Under this it was held that where it was permissible for the road to use mixed trains, the law would not require bell pulls and air brakes to be used on such trains, unless it was practicable to do so, and they were necessary to the security of the passengers. Arkansas etc. R. Co. v. Canman, 52 Ark. 517. See also How. Ann. Stat. (Michigan), § 3363; Public Acts (Michigan) 1889, p. 211, as to statutory provisions concerning air-brakes.

Delay in Transportation.—In the exercise of its general police power, the legislature can impose on railroads within the State a penalty for each day's delay to transport goods duly delivered to them for the purpose. Branch v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 77 N. Car. 347.

Keeping Ticket Office Open.—Tennessee Code, § 2359 makes it an indictable offense for a ticket agent not to keep the office open for an hour before the departure of a train. Held, that if the company has dispensed with the necessity for tickets on the particular train to which the indictment relates, this constitutes a defense. Brady v. State, 15 Lea (Tenn.) 628.

In the case of Bordeaux v. Erie R. Co., 8 Hun (N. Y.) 579, it is held that under the charter of the Erie Railway Company, that company is not bound to keep its ticket offices open at or for any particular time; and the fact that a passenger is unable to procure a ticket in consequence of the office being shut, does not entitle him to be carried to his place of destination, upon payment of the amount for which he could have procured a ticket at the office, if it had been open. It may well be doubted, however, whether this case states the true doctrine. See 16 Am. L. Rev. 818-827.

Killing Stock—Indictment of Conductor.—A statute providing that where stock is killed by an engine the conductor with certain other officers, including the engineer, shall be liable to indictment, and that the fact of kiling shall be prima facie evidence of their negligence in the trial on the indictment is unconstitutional and void, as lacking uniformity and equality, and as subverting the principle that innocence is to be presumed. State v. Divine, 98 N. Car. 778; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 574.

Stopping Trains at Stations.—A statute of Texas requiring a stoppage of five minutes at every way station to be made by every passenger train may be valid. Davidson v. State, 4 Tex. App. 545; 30 Am. Rep. 166; unless it plainly appear that the vested charter or other important rights of the railroad company were unduly prejudiced thereby. Galveston etc. R. Co. v. Le Gierse, 51 Tex. 201.

See also Davis v. State, 6 Tex. App. 166. Compare State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189, where a statute requiring trains to wait twenty minutes for each other at points where two roads crossed, was held unconstitutional.

Posting Schedules of Rates and Time Tables.—It is within the power of the legislature of a State to require that each railway company in the State shall in a certain month annually fix its rates for the transportation of passengers and of freights; and that a printed copy of such rates shall be posted at each station or depot of such road, and be kept there. Such a provision is not a regulation of interstate commerce but a proper exercise of police power. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fuller, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 560; affirming 31 Iowa 187.

Heating Cars.—Statutes providing the manner in which cars are to be heated exist in several States.

Laws of New York 1887, ch. 616, prohibit railroads doing business in the State from using a stove or furnace kept inside the car for heating their passenger cars. The act is intended to apply only to railroads more than fifty miles in length. It is held, however, that it applies to roads over that length though less than fifty miles are within the State. The fact that the road is only partly within the State does not affect the validity of the act. See People v. New York etc. R. Co. (Supreme Ct.), 5 N. Y. Supp. 945; People v. New York etc. R. Co., 55 Hun (N. Y.) 409.

A similar provision exists in Michigan. Act June 28, 1889; Pub. Acts 1889, p. 298, amending Pub. Acts 1887, p. 134, §§ 1-2. And in Massachusetts, Acts 1891, ch. 249, p. 127.

Where the directors of a railroad cause the cars to be heated contrary to the statute, they are subject to the penalty; but not merely because they are officers of the road; it must be shown that they personally participated in the offense. People v. Clark (Ct. of Oyer and Terminer), 14 N. Y. Supp. 642.

Lighting the Line of Railway.—A statute may be valid as a police regulation which requires railway companies to light such portions of their roadway as pass through a city or village. Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 32 Ohio St. 152.

And to light and heat its station houses. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Mayes (Tex. 1891), 15 S. W. Rep. 43.

Motive Power.—A statute giving a city corporation power to regulate the running of railroad cars within the corporate limits, authorizes the corporation to prohibit the propelling of the cars by steam through any part of the city. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. Buffalo, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 209.

Providing Separate Passenger Coaches.—In the case of Louisville etc. R. Co. v. State, 66 Miss. 662; affirmed 133 U. S. 587; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 36, the right of a State to provide that railroads within its borders shall provide separate accommodations for white and colored passengers, is upheld. So long as they do not interfere with interstate commerce such regulations are entirely within the police power of the States. See also Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 485.

Establishment of Stations and Depots.—(See STATIONS.) A statute requiring a railroad company to reopen and maintain a station on its road, which it has abandoned, is not in the nature of an amendment of the charter, requiring acceptance by the company before it can take effect, but is an exercise of the legislative authority to direct the management of the road, and is obligatory from time of enactment. State v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 43 Conn. 351.

A statute requiring railroad companies to erect and maintain depots and passenger stations where two railroads cross, cannot be considered as violating any constitutional provisions. It is a proper exercise of police power. State v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 83 Mo. 144; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 133. In a prosecution under this statute the defendant urged a defect of parties in that both railroad companies were not joined. But it was held that neither was released from liability by the failure of the other. Missouri v. Kansas City etc. R. Co., 32 Fed. Rep. 722. But the indictment must allege that both roads are carriers of passengers. State v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 83 Mo. 144; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 133.

Color-blind Conductors or Engineers.—An act authorizing an indictment against any railroad company employing a conductor or engineer without a certificate as to color-blindness is within the police power of the State and therefore not unconstitutional. Nashville etc. R. Co. v. State, 83 Ala. 71, aff'd 128 U. S. 96; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1. In the opinion of the Federal Supreme Court by Justice Field it was said that that portion of the act providing that the examinations should be made at the expense of the railroad companies seek to employ such persons was not a deprivation of property without due process of law within the meaning of the 14th Amendment, but was also a proper exercise of police power. But in the case of Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 85 Ala. 619; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 5, the Supreme Court of Alabama held that that portion of the statute relating to examiners' fees was unconstitutional.

The court declined to follow the decision of the Federal court on the ground that the question was not involved in that case, and that Justice Field's remarks were mere obiter dicta. See also Baldwin v. Kouns, 81 Ala. 272; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 347.

Other Qualifications of Railroad Employees.—The principle announced in the preceding paragraph is applicable to legislative acts in regard to other qualifications to be possessed by railroad employes. Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 425; McDonald v. State, 81 Ala. 279; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 420.

Changing Gauge of Road.—A company in which the State had a controlling interest, and which had the charter right to change the gauge of its track at will, leased its road. The lessees changed the gauge and were indicted for the violation of a statute prohibiting such change. It was held that the statute was unconstitutional as impairing the obligation of the charter. State v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 73 N. Car. 527, 21 Am. Rep. 473.

Right of Way Free of Combustible

Material.—A requirement that railroad corporations shall keep their roadway free of combustible material does not trench upon the charter rights of such companies, even though they are incorporated under act of Congress. Diamond v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 6 Mont. 580.

Imposing Liability for Fires.—A law making a railroad company liable for fires caused by its engines when there is no negligence on the part of the injured party cannot be assailed as unconstitutional on the ground that it denies to such corporations the equal protection of the laws, or that it takes their property without due process of law, or that it impairs their charter rights of using fire, steam, and locomotive engines. Grissell v. Housatonic etc. R. Co., 54 Conn. 447; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 349; Rodemacher v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 41 Iowa 297. See also FIRES BY RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1.

Damages and Penalties.—A State may provide for penalties in the nature of damages where injuries are occasioned by the negligence of the railroad company. Thus a statute in Missouri providing that where the negligence of the company is established, damages double the value of the actual injury sustained may be recovered, is upheld as valid and constitutional. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 557; Hudson v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 53 Mo. 525; Fickle v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 54 Mo. 219; Daniels v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 62 Mo. 43; Carroll v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 88 Mo. 239; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 268.

The statute of Kansas (Laws 1874, ch. 97, § 2) allowing "a reasonable attorney's fee" to the plaintiff in case of a recovery, for the prosecution of his suit against a railroad corporation for the value of stock killed or injured, is constitutional. Such provision is in the nature of a penalty, and is not beyond the power of the legislature. Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Mower, 16 Kan. 563. See also Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Yanz, 16 Kan. 583.

Section 2899 of the Code of Alabama, (1876,) provided that "when the death of any minor child is caused by the wrongful act or omission of any officer or agent of an incorporated company or private association of persons, the father of such child, or if the father be not living, the mother, may maintain an action against such corporation or private

9. Limitations: Effect of Charter as a Contract, etc.—The most prominent limitation to State control of railroads is found in the well settled principle that the charter of a private corporation is a contract and as such its obligation cannot be impaired by State legislation.¹ The contract exists not only between the corporation and the State but also between the several members of the corporation.² This principle has been successfully invoked to protect the corporation from additional burdens and restrictions in many cases.³ And while the right to alter, amend, or repeal association of persons, for such wrongful act or omission, and may recover such damages as the jury may assess." It was held that this created a new cause of action, was highly penal in its terms, and was therefore to be strictly construed. It was held also that the section violated the State Constitution (art. 14, § 12), providing that "all corporations shall have a right to sue, and shall be subject to be sued in all courts in like cases as natural persons," and was therefore void. The opinion was also expressed that the said section was a violation of the 14th Amendment, providing that no State shall deny any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Smith v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 75 Ala. 449; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 157. See also San Matteo v. Southern Pacific R. Co., 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Strander v. West Virginia, 100 U. S. 303.

Other Instances.—The Illinois act of 1855, making railroad companies liable for all expenses of a coroner and his inquest, and the burial of all persons who may die on its cars, or who may be killed by collision or other accident occurring to such cars, or otherwise, is unconstitutional and void, so far as it attempts to make such companies liable in cases where they have violated no law, or have been guilty of no negligence. Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Lackey, 78 Ill. 55.

1. Charter As a Contract.—See FRANCHISES, vol. 8, p. 620, et seq.; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 207; Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. (U.S.) 518; Pierce on Railroads 448; Georgia R. etc. Co. v. Smith, 128 U. S. 174; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 511.

2. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 27 Miss. 517; 1 Rorer on Railroads 16, 17; State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 205; Zabriskie v. Hackensack etc. R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 178; 90 Am. Dec. 617; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Steiner, 61 Ala. 459. The reservation of right to alter, modify or repeal a charter is a reservation made by the State for its own benefit and is not intended to affect or change the rights of corporators as between each other. Zabriskie v. Hackensack etc. R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 178; 90 Am. Dec. 617; Black v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 24 N. J. Eq. 455, reversing 22 N. J. Eq. 130.

Owing to the principle stated in the text a legislature has no right to confer authority upon the stockholders of a corporation owning more than one-half the company's stock to accept of amendments to the charter under which they act. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 27 Miss. 517.

3. Cases in Which Railroad Corporations Have Been Protected from Adverse Legislation by Their Charter.—A North Carolina statute provided that all dividends declared by any corporation which should not be claimed within five years, by persons entitled thereto, should be devoted to a public use. It was held that this was a violation of the charter contract. University v. North Carolina R. Co., 76 N. Car. 103; 22 Am. Rep. 671.

Where a corporation is granted the right to build a bridge across a navigable stream, a State cannot by subsequent legislation impose on the corporation an obligation to pay damages which could not have been enforced under the original grant. Bailey v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 4 Harr. (Del.) 389; 44 Am. Dec. 593.

A new constitution of Pennsylvania provided a system of cumulative voting in cases of election of corporate officers, etc. This was held not to apply to corporations created before the adoption of the constitution. Charters of private corporations remained unchanged until the corporations holding them entered into some new contract with the State, either expressly or by implication. Hays v. Com. 82 Pa. St. 518; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Langdon, a charter is now almost invariably reserved to the State, it is still maintained that vested rights cannot be interfered with under color of an amendment or repeal.¹ The constitutional provisions concerning the exclusive power of Congress over interstate 92 Pa. St. 21; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 21.

A law undertaking to impose upon stockholders without their assent, individual liabilities not imposed by their charters, or by the laws under which they had been organized, is invalid as being an impairment of the charter contract. Ireland v. Palestine etc. Turnpike Co., 19 Ohio St. 369. In such case, however, the law may become valid by the assent of the stockholders. Zabriskie v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 23 How. (U. S.) 381.

An act compelling a railroad to stop its trains at a certain point to wait for other trains, etc., is an impairment of the obligation of the charter contract where only public convenience is concerned. State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189.

An exemption, by charter, of the capital stock from taxation, is a contract, and a State cannot impose such taxes unless the right was reserved, or was afterwards properly acquired. Com. v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 81 Va. 355; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 482; Tennessee v. Whitworth, 22 Fed. Rep. 81; aff'd 117 U. S. 129; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 205 (case of perpetual exemption); Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Gaines, 97 U. S. 697.

Compare Little v. Bowers, 46 N. J. L. 300; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 405.

Other cases may be seen in Zabriskie v. Hackensack etc. R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 193; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Carland, 5 Mont. 146; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 164 (charter impaired by tax on right of way. Such tax is unconstitutional); State v. Weldon, 47 N. J. L. 59; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 134; Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Shimmell, 6 Mont. 161; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Georgia R. etc. Co. v. Smith, 128 U. S. 174; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 511; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. People, 105 Ill. 657; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 156.

Liability to New Duties.—Railroad corporations, however, when brought into existence, except so far as is otherwise provided in their charters, become liable to perform all duties to the public which may be required of private persons, to the extent to which they are capable of their performance.

Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Bloomington, 76 Ill. 447. See also Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Willenborg, 117 Ill. 203; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 358.

The legislature, in creating a railroad corporation and during its existence, has the undoubted right to increase or lessen the liability of the company in regard to injuries to stock committed upon its road by the company or its agents. O'Bannon v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 8 Bush (Ky.) 348.

1. Reservation of Right to Amend or Repeal Cannot Affect Vested Rights.—In the case of Zabriskie v. Hackensack etc. R. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. 178; 90 Am. Dec. 617, the doctrine was clearly laid down that the power to alter or modify is limited to the powers and franchises granted by the charter. It does not authorize the legislature to change the object of the incorporation or to substitute another for it. An alteration or modification is necessarily of the grant or thing to be altered or modified; it cannot be effected by substituting a different thing. See also Pierce on Railroads 459 and cases cited; Miller v. New York etc. R. Co., 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 513; Shields v. Ohio, 95 U. S. 324; People v. O'Brien, 111 N. Y. 46; FRANCHISES, vol. 8, pp. 627-634; Sage v. Dillard, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 357.

In Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 748, the court by Waite, C. J., said: "All agree that it (i. e., this reserved power) cannot be used to take away property already acquired, or to deprive the corporation of the fruits, actually reduced to possession, of contracts lawfully made."

Therefore the Alabama act of March 8, 1876, repealing the provisions of the act of Dec. 29, 1868, giving to railroad companies the power to acquire and hold lands granted to aid in the construction of the roads, could not take away the vested right to acquire and hold such property, which existed in companies organized under the act of 1868 before its repeal. Georgia Pac. R. Co. v. Wilks, 86 Ala. 478; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 665.

Rights of Mortgage.—A mortgage of a railroad and its franchises, made by commerce and forbidding any State to deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, and other guaranties, furnish additional limitations to a State's control over railroads within her borders.¹

permission of the legislature, does not confer on the mortgagee any greater rights than the mortgagor had, nor affect the power of the legislature to alter the franchises. Attorney Gen'l v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 35 Wis. 425.

1. See generally CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, vol. 3, pp. 702-726; POLICE POWER, vol. 18, p. 761; Const. U. S., art. 1, § 8, par. 3; Amd'ts, art. 14, § 1; INTERSTATE COMMERCE, vol. 11, p. 539, et seq.; Gulf etc. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404; State v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 40 Minn. 267; Stanley v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 100 Mo. 435; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 328 (act requiring railroads to furnish double-deck cars for sheep—interstate commerce.)

The power of the State remains, however, unlimited by the commerce clause as to matters entirely within its borders; and transportation of property from one point to another in the State does not become interstate commerce by reason of the mere fact that in the course of such transportation the property is carried out of the State. Com. v. Lehigh Val. R. Co., 129 Pa. St. 308.

See also as to regulation of passenger trains passing from one point in the State to another, even though the carrier's lines run through more than one State, Louisville etc. R. Co. v. State, 66 Miss. 662; 133 U. S. 587; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 36; Providence Coal Co. v. Providence etc. R. Co., 15 R. I. 303 (act prohibiting discrimination); Stanley v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 100 Mo. 435; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 328.

A Texas statute imposing a penalty upon railway companies for refusing to deliver goods upon the payment of charges as shown in the bill of lading was held not to be a regulation of interstate commerce, even as applied to goods shipped from a point without the State. Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Dwyer, 75 Tex. 572; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 503. (The opinion in this case, by Gaines, J., contains a thorough review of the authorities.)

A railroad which "has become a link in a through line of road, over which as part of its business freight and passengers are carried into and out of a State," is engaged in interstate commerce, and as such Congress has exclusive power over it. Norfolk etc. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 136 U. S. 114 reversing 114 Pa. St. 256.

A statute rendering a railroad company liable for all cattle killed by them, at a valuation to be conclusively fixed by appraisers, is unconstitutional as denying the right of trial by jury. Graves v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 5 Mont. 556; 51 Am. Rep. 81. See also Biedenberg v. Montana Union R. Co., 8 Mont. 271; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 275.

See also in this immediate connection Baird v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 41 Fed. Rep. 592; Wigton v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 8 Pa. Co. Ct. Rep. 191; Stanley v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 100 Mo. 435; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 328; McCall v. California, 136 U. S. 104; Bain v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 105 N. Car. 363.

State Cannot Impose an Absolute Liability.—A State legislature has no authority to pass a statute imposing an absolute liability upon railroad companies for all injuries to animals, caused by the operation of the railroad irrespective of whether or not there was negligence. Such a statute would be a deprivation of property without due process of law. Zeigler v. South & North Ala. R. Co., 58 Ala. 594; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Lyon, 62 Ala. 71; Pierce on Railroads 463; Biedenberg v. Montana Union R. Co., 8 Mont. 271; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 275; Oregon R. & M. Co. v. Smalley (Wash.) 23 Pac. Rep. 1008; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 550.

But a statute which imposes an absolute liability and contains a proviso that it shall not apply to such companies as fence their tracks properly, is upheld in Kansas by a long line of decisions. See Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Mower, 16 Kan. 583, where all the cases are cited; Hopkins v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 18 Kan. 462; FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906, 910. And the same is true in other States. See opinion of Brewer, J., in Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Mower, 16 Kan. 573; FENCES, vol. 7, pp. 906, 910, et seq.

XII. FEDERAL CONTROL OF RAILROADS.—Except under the power granted it to regulate interstate commerce, the Federal government has no authority to control or regulate railroads within the States.¹ To this rule there are apparent exceptions in the case of the Pacific roads, which were constructed through the Territories and by Congressional aid.² Even in these cases, however,

And railroad companies may, by statute, be made liable for double the actual damage. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Humes, 115 U. S. 512; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 557; 52 Am. Rep. 369.

1. See POLICE POWER, vol. 18, p. 739, CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, vol. 3, p. 701; INTERSTATE COMMERCE, vol. 11, pp. 551, 557, 560; Cooley's Const. Lim. (4th ed.) 578, 580*.

The regulation and control of railroads is an exercise of police power, which, it is conceded, belongs solely to the several States. See POLICE POWER, vol. 18, p. 745, and cases cited. Toledo etc R. Co. v. Jacksonville, 67 Ill. 37; 16 Am. Rep. 611; Thorpe v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 27 Vt. 140; 62 Am. Dec. 625; Com. v. Alger, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 84.

2. Congressional Power Over Pacific Railroads.—In 1862 while the civil war was in progress and a war with England seemed not improbable, Congress, alarmed for the safety of the Pacific possessions, passed an act (12 Stat. at L. 489) providing for the construction of a railroad to connect the extreme Western portion of the country with the East, and incorporating the Union Pacific Railroad Company to accomplish that object. The history of the enterprise, the causes leading to it, and the doubts expressed at the time as to the right of Congress to undertake such a measure are referred to by Justice Davis in U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 91 U. S. 72. The act was entitled "An act to aid in the construction of a railroad from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean, and to secure to the government the use of the same for postal, military and other purposes." 12 Stat. at L. 489. Its principal provisions may be found set forth in U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 91 U. S. 72; U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 402. See also Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 99 U. S. 700.

The Union Pacific Railway Company is therefore a creation of the Federal government, and subject to have its charter altered or repealed by it whenever it may seem necessary for the public welfare. Hence Congress has peculiar powers in regard to this company. The government sustains two distinct relations to it, viz: 1. It is its creator and therefore has in its sovereign and legislative capacity, a very great authority over it. 2. It is its creditor for many millions, and possesses a lien on the road and all its appurtenances. See U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 98 U. S. 569.

The Texas Pacific railway company is also a corporation created by the United States and occupying a relation very similar to that of the Union Pacific. See Union Pac. R. Co. v. Myers, 115 U. S. 1.

The several State railway corporations incorporated into the Pacific railroad system by the act of Congress of July 1, 1862, chartering the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and which were authorized to construct branches, and receive aid from the United States, are subject to the terms and conditions imposed by the act. Western Union Teleg. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 418.

For various cases concerning Congressional supervision of these roads see U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 91 U. S. 72 (payment of railroad bonds at "maturity"); Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 99 U. S. 402 (company bound to pay 5 per cent. of its net earnings towards payment of debts); U. S. v. Central Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 449 (same); U. S. v. Sioux City etc. R. Co., 99 U. S. 491 (payment on first mortgage bonds); U. S. v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 455 (lien of U. S. bonds on 5 per cent. of earnings); U. S. v. Denver Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 460 (same). See generally, NATIONAL CORPORATIONS, vol. 16, p. 216.

Rendering Services to the Federal Government.—An act making a grant of land to a railroad provided that the road should remain a public highway for the use of the government free from all toll or other charges of transportation. It was held that gave the government no right to use the rolling stock of the road free of charge for the

the power of police regulation over roads within a State belongs exclusively to that State.¹

XIII. LEASES OF RAILROADS—1. Authority to Lease.—A railroad transportation of its troops. Lake Superior etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 93 U. S. 443.

By the act of 1862 assistance was granted to various roads and stipulations were made concerning services to be rendered to the government in return. The Denver Pacific Railway Company was one of these, and was held bound by the stipulations in the act of 1862 and those acts passed supplementary to it. U. S. v. Denver Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 460.

The provisions of the act of 1862 concerning the carriage of mails constituted a contract not to be impaired by subsequent legislation. Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 104 U. S. 662. See also as to reduction of rates for carrying the mails by act of 1876, Chicago etc. R. Co. v. U. S., 104 U. S. 687.

Act of 1866 providing against higher charges for transportation of mails, of troops, etc., was held not to affect the stipulations contained in the act of 1862, as applied to a Union Pacific railroad bridge. Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 117 U. S. 355; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 396. See also MAIL, vol. 13, p. 1203-4.

Sinking Fund Cases.—The Union Pacific company contracted with the United States government to pay both principal and interest when the principal should fall due, unless the debt were sooner discharged by the application of one-half the compensation for transportation and other services rendered to the government, and the five per cent. of net earnings as specified in the charter (U. S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 91 U. S. 72). In 1878 Congress passed an act requiring the company to set aside a portion of its current income as a sinking fund to meet this and other mortgage debts when they should mature. It was held that this act was not unconstitutional, that it did not deprive the Union Pacific railway company of property without due process of law or in any way interfere with the company's vested rights. It was held also that the fact that the Secretary of the Treasury was made the sinking fund agent and the Treasury of the United States the depository, or that the investment was to be made in public funds of the United States, did not make the deposit a payment of the debt due the United States. Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 99 U. S. 700, U. S. v. Central Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 449. See also Gratz v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 41 Pa. St. 447. Compare Tennessee Bond Cases, 114 U. S. 698.

Within these provisions the "earnings" of the road included all the receipts arising from the company's operations as a railroad company, but not those from the public lands granted, nor fictitious receipts for the transportation of its own property. "Net earnings," within the meaning of the law, are ascertained by deducting from the gross earnings all the ordinary expenses of organization and of operating the road, and expenditures made bona fide in improvements, and paid out of earnings, and not by the issue of bonds or stock; but not deducting interest paid on any of the bonded debt of the company. Union Pac. R. Co. v. U. S., 99 U. S. 402; U. S. v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 455.

See also in this connection, U. S. v. Sioux City etc. R. Co., 99 U. S. 491; U. S. v. Denver Pac. R. Co., 99 U. S. 460; Denver etc. R. Co. v. Ailing, 99 U. S. 463.

Grants of Land.—As to grants of land to railroads, from the Federal government, see GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 46-51; PUBLIC LANDS.

1. Passenger Cases, 7 How. (U. S.) 282; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27; Wilmer v. New Jersey R. etc. Co. (U. S. Rep.), 16 Law ed. 799; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fuller, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 560; Stone v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 116 U. S. 307, 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 577; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Iowa, 94 U. S. 155.

The charter of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company obtained from the general government, does not exempt its right of way from the operation of the laws of the State of Minnesota, and forbid a railroad company organized under the general law of the State to exercise the right of eminent domain in order to cross its track. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. St. Paul etc. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 302. Compare Union Pac. R. Co. v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 452.

company is, as has already been seen, a quasi public corporation¹ and under peculiar obligations, therefore it cannot make any contract, executed or otherwise, which will disable it from performing its public functions.² For this reason it cannot, in the absence of express authority, lease to another corporation its road, franchises, and equipments,³ or take from another company a lease

1. Infra, this title, Legal Status of Railroads and Railroad Corporations.

2. Infra, this title, Power to Contract; Thomas v. West Jersey R. Co., 101 U. S. 71; Washington etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 450; Central etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 68 Tex. 49; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 50; International etc. R. Co. v. Moody, 71 Tex. 614; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 607; Palmer v. Utah etc. R. Co. (Idaho 1888), 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 443, 445, note; Harmon v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 28 S. Car. 401; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 445, note.

In the case of Harmon v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 28 S. Car. 401, the court by McIver, J., said: "When a railroad company accepts a charter, it assumes the performance of all duties to the public which are imposed upon it by the charter or by the general laws of the State, and it cannot be permitted to escape from the obligations it has imposed upon it by transferring its chartered rights and privileges, either to an individual or to another corporation. A corporation must of necessity always act through individuals; and whether such individuals are called its officers or agents, or its lessees, cannot affect the question of its liability to perform the obligations which it has incurred in consideration of the grant of its chartered rights and privileges. . . . If it were otherwise, a railroad company, by leasing its road to irresponsible persons, might enjoy all the benefits conferred by its charter and practically leave the public generally, as well as individuals, without any of the protection, which the obligation imposed by its charter, as well as the general law of the State, were designed to afford." The same reasoning is used by Redfield, C. J., in Nelson v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 26 Vt. 717.

3. Thomas v. West Jersey R. Co., 101 U. S. 71 (such a lease would be a violation of the corporation's contract with the State); Pennsylvania R. Co. v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 118 U. S. 293; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 58; York etc. Line R. Co. v. Winans, 17 How. (U.

S.) 30; Oregon etc. R. Co. v. Oregonian R. Co., 130 U. S. 1; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 176; Pullan v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 4 Biss. (U. S.) 35; Atlantic etc. R. Co. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 1 Fed. Rep. 745; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Allegheny Co., 63 Pa. St. 126; Stewart's Appeal, 56 Pa. St. 413; Middlesex R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 115 Mass. 347; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Grayson, 88 Ala. 572; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 681; Com. v. Smith, 10 Allen (Mass.) 448; Tippecanoe Co. v. Lafayette etc. R. Co., 50 Ind. 85; Black v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 24 N. J. Eq. 455; Abbott v. Johnstown etc. Horse R. Co., 80 N. Y. 27; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 541; Troy etc. R. Co. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 86 N. Y. 107; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 409; Woodruff v. Erie R. Co., 93 N. Y. 609; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 501, 512, note; Troy etc. R. Co. v. Kerr, 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 581; International etc. R. Co. v. Underwood, 67 Tex. 589; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 570; Mills v. Central R. Co., 41 N. J. Eq. 1; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 47; State v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 24 Neb. 143; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 388, note; Beeman v. Rufford, 6 Eng. L. & Eq. 106; Great Northern R. Co. v. Eastern Counties R. Co., 12 Eng. L. & Eq. 224. See also Hays v. Ottawa etc. R. Co., 61 Ill. 422. Compare Bards-town etc. R. Co. v. Metcalfe, 4 Metc. (Ky.) 199; Shepley v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 55 Me. 395.

Where express authority exists there can be, of course, no objection to the validity of such a lease. Vermont etc. R. Co. v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 34 Vt. 1; Day v. Ogdensburg etc. R. Co., 107 N. Y. 129; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 102; Central etc. R. Co. v. Macon, 43 Ga. 605; Gratz v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 41 Pa. St. 447; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Catawissa R. Co., 53 Pa. St. 20.

In one case a general authority to purchase lands was construed to authorize the purchase of a railroad. Branch v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 3 Wood (U. S.) 481.

A Minnesota statute authorizes the leasing of railroads, but it is held that of the latter's railroad property.¹ Nor can a receiver lease a railroad, which he is operating, without authority.² And even where a State has conferred authority upon a railroad corporation to make a lease of its property the authority is confined to the property within the State.³ The consent of the stockholders is an essential to the validity of a lease.⁴

2. Effect of Lease.—Upon the execution of the lease the lessee becomes bound by all the prohibitions and limitations contained in the charter of the lessor and assumes its rights, franchises, and obligations.⁵ Whether the lessee assumes contractual liabilities, under it the lease can only be to a company of that State. Freeman v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 28 Minn. 413; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 410. So of a Georgia statute. Upson County R. Co. v. Sharman, 37 Ga. 644.

1. Oregon R. etc. Co. v. Oregonian R. Co., 130 U. S. 1; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 176; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 118 U. S. 290; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 58; Thomas v. West Jersey etc. R. Co., 101 U. S. 71.

2. State v. McMinnville etc. R. Co., 6 Lea (Tenn.) 369; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 95; Middleton v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. 306; Gilbert v. Washington City etc. R. Co., 33 Gratt. (Va.) 586; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 473; RECEIVERS.

3. Briscoe v. Southern Kan. R. Co., 40 Fed. Rep. 273; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 599.

4. Consent of Stockholders.—Peters v. Lincoln etc. R. Co., 12 Fed. Rep. 513; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597 (assent must be given at stockholders' meeting); Peters v. Lincoln etc. R. Co., 2 McCrary (U. S.) 275 (same); Metropolitan El. R. Co. v. Manhattan El. R. Co., 11 Daly (N. Y.) 373; 14 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 103; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1 (consent of directors and stockholders necessary); Mills v. Central R. Co., 41 N. J. Eq. 1; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 47 (majority of stockholders cannot lease against will of minority); Farmers' L. & T. Co. v. St. Joseph etc. R. Co., 1 McCrary (U. S.) 247; Humphreys v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 307; Boston etc. R. Co. v. Salem etc. R. Co., 2 Gray (Mass.) 1; Phillips v. Eastern R. Co., 138 Mass. 122; STOCKHOLDERS.

Compare Beveridge v. New York El. R. Co., 112 N. Y. 1; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 109.

In one case there was a lease of the road, and nineteen years afterward a suit was brought to set it aside, on the ground that it was made without the consent of the stockholders. It was held that this requirement of consent was a personal privilege which the stockholders had waived by long acquiescence. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 33 Fed. Rep. 440.

Assent in Writing.—Voting by written ballots upon a written proposition for the lease of a road is not "an assent in writing" within the meaning of a statute authorizing leases only where so assented to. Humphreys v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 307. But if the president signs a certificate that a majority have assented, it is sufficient. Humphreys v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 307.

5. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Sly, 65 Pa. St. 205; State v. Central Iowa R. Co., 71 Iowa 410 (leasing company bound to operate the road along such places as had extended aid to the original company); In re New York etc. Co., 49 N. Y. 414; South Carolina R. Co. v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 7 S. Car. 410.

See also Ogdensburg etc. R. Co. v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.) 712.

Hence it is bound to obey all statutory requirements as to signals, etc. Linfield v. Old Colony etc. R. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 562; 57 Am. Dec. 124.

It must assume all other duties, such, for example, as maintaining fences, cattle guards, etc. McCall v. Chamberlain, 13 Wis. 637; Cook v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 36 Wis. 45; Curry v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 43 Wis. 665.

Where a corporation in consideration of municipal aid, agreed to and did construct a railroad to a certain city and afterwards leased its road to another corporation which changed the location of the line, it was held that the lessor was not discharged from its corporate obligation to operate the road as agreed on, and this notwithstanding a State statute (Iowa Code, § 1300) proand to what extent, must depend upon the language and character of the lease.¹ But it is certain that it does not assume the franchises subject to existing liabilities of the lessor for injuries occurring prior to the lease, unless there is an express provision therefor.²

viding that any corporation operating the railway of another under lease should, in all respects, be as liable as though such railway belonged to it. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Crane, 113 U. S. 424; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 600.

Where the lease is unlawful and without authority the lessor is released from none of his obligations. Ottawa etc. R. Co. v. Black, 79 Ill. 262.

Two Roads United Under a Lease.—

When two railroads are united under a lease specifying the duties and liabilities of each, neither is restricted in any particular not included in their contract with each other; each may obtain new legislative grants, and avail itself of additional powers in any way it may find advantageous to itself, provided these new operations are kept so distinct as not to interfere with the due operation of their agreement with each other.

Such lease between the roads must be construed with reference to the objects proposed by the existing charters of each at the time the lease was made, and its construction or operation cannot be affected by any change of the plans or objects of the corporation beyond the existing scope of their chartered powers at the time of the making of such lease.

Such roads may, as between themselves, vary the terms of their contract with each other, and may consent to a different appropriation of the funds, profits, or dividends, from that provided for in the original contract; but stockholders in either road who have not thus assented, may, in equity, hold both corporations to perform their original contract, and apply their funds and profits in the way originally provided for, so far as relates to themselves. March v. Eastern R. Co., 43 N. H. 515. See also March v. Eastern R. Co., 40 N. H. 548; 77 Am. Dec. 732.

1. A lease which transfers to the lessee all the lessor's contracts does not render the lessor liable for goods delivered to the lessee under a contract between the owner of such goods and the lessor. Pittsburg etc. R. Co. v. Horbaugh, 4 Brewst. (Pa.) 115.

See also Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Keokuk etc. Bridge Co., 131 U. S. 371; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 213, where the lease of a road and a contract by the lessor for the use of a bridge were held to be independent contracts.

Liability of Lessee for Lessor's Debt.

—A railroad company in debt cannot transfer its entire property by lease, so as to prevent the application of it at its full value, to the satisfaction of the debts of the company, and when such transfer is made a court of equity may decree the payment of a judgment debt of the lessor by the lessee. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Third Nat. Bank, 26 Fed. Rep. 820; 134 U. S. 276; Central R. Co. v. Pettus, 113 U. S. 116; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 688.

Rent.—Where one company leases the property of another, agreeing to pay as part of the rent interest on certain mortgage bonds, non-payment of the rent and interest being a cause of forfeiture, receivers of the lessee company, appointed by the court to preserve its system intact for the benefit of the company and its creditors, are liable for the rent and interest accruing during the term of their receivership. Brown v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 444.

In an action by a railroad to recover for the use of its tracks, where there was no definite agreement as to the amount to be paid, the amount paid it by other roads, which in fact owned it, does not furnish the measure of damages, and, in the absence of proof that the use was worth more than had been paid, plaintiff cannot recover. Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 127 U. S. 200.

Expense of Receivership.—When a receiver is appointed for a railroad company for the benefit of such company and its creditors, no part of the expenses of the receivership are chargeable against the property of another railroad company leased by the insolvent company—the receivership being for the benefit of the lessor or its creditors. Brown v. Toledo etc. R. Co., 35 Fed. Rep. 444.

2. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Kain, 35 Ind. 291.

The franchise to exercise the right of eminent domain does not, upon the execution of a lease, pass to the lessee, but remains in the lessor as if the lease had never been executed.¹

3. Relative Liability of Lessor and Lessee.—In all cases of negligent or other tortious injury, the lessor and the lessee of a railroad are equally liable, and the injured party may recover from either.² This is true where the injury results from a failure to

1. Mayor etc. of Worcester v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 109 Mass. 103 (lease for 100 years); Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 113 Ill. 156; Englewood etc. R. Co. v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 117 Ill. 611 (lessor reserved the "general control, management, and supervision of the main line of the track," etc.); Deitrichs v. Lincoln etc. R. Co., 13 Neb. 361 (proceedings by lessee in name of lessor); Gottschalk v. Lincoln etc. R. Co., 14 Neb. 389; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 118; Kip v. New York etc. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 227.

2. Liability of Lessor and Lessee.—The statement of the text is rather general, but the details of the subject will appear in this note. The law as to the relative liability of the lessor and the lessee is somewhat involved, and there is much conflict of authority, but by searching out the ground upon which this liability rests it seems that proper conclusions may be reached.

Joint Liability.—In several jurisdictions it is provided by statute that the lessor and the lessee shall be liable jointly and severally for all injuries resulting from negligent operation or management of the road. See Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Leviston, 97 Ind. 488; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 633; Stephens v. Davenport etc. R. Co., 36 Iowa 327; Clary v. Iowa Midland R. Co., 37 Iowa 344; Davis v. Providence etc. R. Co., 121 Mass. 134.

And in all the cases holding the lessor liable there is nothing to exclude the idea that the lessee might also be held liable. So of cases where the lessee is held liable. See Davis v. Providence etc. R. Co., 121 Mass. 134; McCluer v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 13 Gray (Mass.) 124; 74 Am. Dec. 624.

A railroad company which allows another corporation to run trains over its road, is jointly liable with such corporation for injuries caused by the negligent management of the trains. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Ellett, 132 Ill. 654.

Where a railroad company leased its road to another company, but, prior thereto, the lessor had raised its grade wrongfully, and laid additional tracks, and the lessee took possession and continued in the use of the road so constructed, both are jointly liable for a permanent injury to property. Railroad Co. v. Hambleton, 40 Ohio St. 496; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 126.

Liability of Lessor.—The liability of the lessor for negligence or other tortious injuries rests upon the following grounds:

1. Since a railroad company in the absence of special authority cannot make a lease of its road and franchises, many cases arise in which the lease was unauthorized and unlawful, and in such cases, the lease can clearly have no effect whatever to release the lessor from liability. Ricketts v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 33 W. Va. 433; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42; Ricketts v. Birmingham St. R. Co., 85 Ala. 600; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 12; Briscoe v. Southern Kan. R. Co., 40 Fed. Rep. 273; Nugent v. Boston etc. R. Co., 80 Me. 62; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 52; Lakin v. Willamette Valley etc. R. Co., 13 Oregon 436; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611; Ottawa etc. R. Co. v. Black, 79 Ill. 262; Abbott v. Johnstown etc. Horse R. Co., 80 N. Y. 27; 36 Am. Rep. 572.

But in East Line etc. R. Co. v. Culbertson, 72 Tex. 375; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 225, it is held that the lessor is not liable for the death of a conductor of a train resulting from the incompetency of the engineer or the imperfection of the engine where the road is operated by a lessee.

2. The lessor, in consideration of the grant by its charter of extraordinary rights and privileges, has assumed a quasi public character, and becomes subject to unusual obligations towards the public, and public policy requires that it should not be allowed to release itself therefrom by transferring its rights and franchises to a lessee, without express legislative consent. Wabash etc. R. Co. v. Peyton, 106 Ill. 534; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Lakin v. Willamette Valley etc. R. Co., 13 Oregon 436; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611; Central etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 68 Tex. 49; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 50; Norwich etc. R. Co. v. Worcester, 147 Mass. 518; 36 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 447; Ingersoll v. Stockbridge etc. R. Co., 8 Allen (Mass.) 438; Freeman v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 28 Minn. 443; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 410; Brown v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 27 Mo. App. 394; Singleton v. Southwestern R. Co., 70 Ga. 464; 48 Am. Rep. 574; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 226; Harmon v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 28 S. Car. 401; Breslin v. Somerville Horse R. Co., 145 Mass. 64; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 406; Langley v. Boston etc. R. Co., 10 Gray (Mass.) 103; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Dunbar, 20 Ill. 623; Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Lane, 83 Ill. 448; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Balsley, 18 Ill. App. 79; Nelson v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 26 Vt. 717; 62 Am. Dec. 631; Bower v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 42 Iowa 546; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Curl, 28 Kan. 622; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 458; Washington etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 445; Great Northern R. Co. v. Eastern etc. R. Co., 12 Eng. L. & Eq. 224.

In Washington etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 445, a case which has been cited with approval in numerous cases, the court by Davis, J., said: "It is an accepted doctrine in this country that a railroad corporation cannot escape the performance of any duty or obligation imposed by its charter or the general laws of the State by a voluntary surrender of its road to lessees. Redfield's Law of Railways (5th ed.), p. 616. The operation of the road by the lessees does not change the relations of the original company to the public."

In Pierce on Railroads, p. 283, similar language is used: "The company cannot, in the absence of special statutory authority and exemption, divest itself of responsibility for the torts of persons operating its road, by transferring its corporate powers or leasing the road to them—it cannot by its own act absolve itself from its public obligations without the consent of the legislature." See also Wood's Ry. Law, p. 486, note; Rorer on Railroads, pp. 241, 603.

The principle laid down by these authorities just cited is not to be construed to make every lease invalid. There are many cases in which the lease was authorized or was ratified by the legislature, and though valid and binding was held ineffectual to release the lessor from the liability which public policy enforces. Breslin v. Somerville R. Co., 145 Mass. 64; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 410, note; Quested v. Newburyport etc. R. Co., 127 Mass. 204; Nugent v. Boston etc. R. Co., 80 Me. 62; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 52; Central etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 68 Tex. 49; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 50; Chollette v. Omaha etc. R. Co., 26 Neb. 159; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 16; Balsley v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 119 Ill. 68; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 497; Stearns v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 46 Me. 95; Singleton v. Southwestern R. Co., 70 Ga. 464; 48 Am. Rep. 574; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 226; Whitney v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 44 Me. 362; Brown v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 27 Mo. App. 394; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Campbell, 86 Ill. 443.

A corporation owning a railroad can never be released from liability for injuries resulting from the operation of it, except by specific statutory exemption. Balsley v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 119 Ill. 68; 59 Am. Rep. 784; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 497; Wabash etc. R. Co. v. Peyton, 106 Ill. 534; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

3. The nature of the lease and the character of the whole transaction place the parties to some extent in the relation of principal and agent, the lessor being the principal. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Balsley, 18 Ill. App. 79; Bay City etc. R. Co. v. Austin, 21 Mich. 390; Balsley v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 119 Ill. 68; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 497; Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Lane, 83 Ill. 448; Ottawa etc. R. Co. v. Black, 79 Ill. 262; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Whipple, 22 Ill. 105 (corporators liable for trespass of the lessees, or of the contractors); Chicago etc. R. Co. v. McCarthy, 20 Ill. 385; Clement v. Canfield, 28 Vt. 302.

In the case of Nelson v. Vermont etc. R. Co., 26 Vt. 717; 62 Am. Dec. 614, the court by Redfield, C. J., said: "The lessors must at all events be held responsible for just what they expected the lessees to do, and probably for all which they do do as their general agents. For the public can only look to that corporation to whom they have delegated this portion of public service. Certainly they are not bound to look beyond them, although they doubtless may do so."

Where the lease is unauthorized and therefore of no effect whatever, the lessees can be regarded in no other light than that they are merely the agents of the pretended lessor. Ottawa etc. R. Co. v. Black, 79 Ill. 262.

4. In some instances there is a specific statutory provision that the lessor shall not be exempt from liability. Fort Wayne etc. R. Co. v. Hinebaugh, 43 Ind. 354; Quested v. Newburyport etc. R. Co., 127 Mass. 204; Stearns v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 46 Me. 95 (fire communicated from lessee's engine); Brown v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 27 Mo. App. 394; Ingersoll v. Stockbridge etc. R. Co., 8 Allen (Mass.) 438.

Statutory provisions that lessees shall be held liable afford a cumulative remedy merely, and do not affect the lessor's liability. Bower v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 42 Iowa 546.

Authorities Contra.—In Pierce on Railroads, p. 283, it is said: "A lease of a railroad under due authority of law effects a transfer of rights and liabilities in its management so that the corporation owning the road is discharged from responsibility for the lessee's torts; but the corporation will remain liable if it continues, notwithstanding the lease, to operate the railroad, or allows it to be operated in its corporate name, or fails to require other companies using the track to take proper precautions where it has the power to require them." And this has sometimes been cited in support of the proposition that the lessor is not liable for the torts of the lessee. See Virginia Midland R. Co. v. Washington, 86 Va. 629; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 693; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Watts, 63 Tex. 549; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 277.

In Patterson's Ry. Acc. Law, §§ 130, 131, it is said: "On the other hand, where a railway under due authority of law has leased its line to another railway, the lessor railway is not liable for torts committed by the lessee railway in the operation of the line." But the first statement of Mr. Pierce is much modified by his own additions, and that of Mr. Patterson is clearly opposed to the great weight of authority as will be seen from the cases cited in the foregoing.

Liability of Lessee.—The grounds upon which the liability of the lessee is to be based are these:

1. In case of personal injury to its passengers or of loss or delay of freight, or of any breach of its general duty as carrier, the lessee is liable to the injured party because of the contractual relation which exists between them. Mahoney v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 63 Me. 68; Murch v. Concord R. Co., 29 N. H. 9; 61 Am. Dec. 631; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Anderson, 94 Pa. St. 351; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 407; Patterson v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 54 Mich. 91; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 130; Wabash etc. R. Co. v. Peyton, 106 Ill. 534; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; McCluer v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 13 Gray (Mass.) 124; 74 Am. Dec. 624; Feital v. Middlesex R. Co., 109 Mass. 398; 12 Am. Rep. 720; Burroughs v. Norwich etc. R. Co., 100 Mass. 26.

2. In most cases the lessee has the exclusive control of all matters connected with the operation of the road, such, for example, as the management of trains, the selection of all servants and agents, the arrangement of timetables, etc., and it is, or ought to be fully informed of the condition of the track, bridges, engines, cars, etc., and of the competency and faithfulness of its employes; concerning all of which the lessor must necessarily be less informed. Pierce v. Concord R. Co., 51 N. H. 590 (lessee a "proprietor" of the road); Hall v. Brown, 54 N. H. 495; Ditchett v. Spuyten Duyvil etc. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 425; reversing 5 Hun (N. Y.) 165; International etc. R. Co. v. Dunham, 68 Tex. 231; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 530; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Curl, 28 Kan. 622; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 458; Dickson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 71 Mo. 575; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 539 (lessee held liable for a nuisance erected by lessor); Davis v. Providence etc. R. Co., 121 Mass. 134; Sprague v. Smth, 29 Vt. 421; 70 Am. Dec. 424; Linfield v. Old Colony R. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 562.

In the case of Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421; 70 Am. Dec. 424, the court by Redfield, C. J., said: "It is well settled in practice and by repeated decisions that the lessees of railroads are liable to the same extent as the lessors would have been, while they continue to operate the road. Indeed, there can be no question, we think, that a mere intruder into the franchises of a railway corporation, should he continue to use it for his own benefit, would be liable to passengers and to the owners of freight who should employ him, to the build and maintain proper fences along the track as well as where it results from the negligent management of trains, etc.¹ But in some jurisdictions, this doctrine has been modified and restricted same extent precisely as the company itself while continuing the same business. Any other view of the liability of such intruder would be to allow him to allege his own wrong in his defense, and that would show no reason why the defendants (the lessees) are not liable to the same extent as the company would have been, and upon similar grounds to those upon which lessees or any others exercising the franchises of the company for the time must be—that is, that they are the ostensible parties who appear to the public to be exercising the franchises of the company."

3. The lessee, having assumed all the rights and privileges belonging to the lessor, must also assume with them its duties and the consequent liability for a breach of them. Atlanta etc. R. Co. v. Ray, 70 Ga. 674; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 281; McMillan v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 16 Mich. 79; Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421; 70 Am. Dec. 424; Cook v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 36 Wis. 46; Haff v. Minneapolis etc. R. Co., 4 McCrary (U. S.) 622; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Morrow, 32 Kan. 217; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 630; Pierce on Railroads, p. 284.

In some other States there are statutory provisions that the lessee shall be liable for all injuries caused by its negligence in the operation of the road. Stewart v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Iowa 282; Stephens v. Davenport etc. R. Co., 36 Iowa 327; Davis v. Providence etc. R. Co., 121 Mass. 134.

4. The liability of the lessee rests also upon the general principle that every person must answer for the consequences of his own wrongdoing, regardless of the liability of others for the same acts. Hall v. Brown, 54 N. H. 495; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Rumbold, 40 Ill. 143; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386.

The lessee's liability is in no wise affected by the fact that the lease was without authority, and therefore unlawful. McCluer v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 13 Gray (Mass.) 124; 74 Am. Dec. 624; Feital v. Middlesex R. Co., 109 Mass. 398; 12 Am. Rep. 720; Ricketts v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 33 W. Va. 433; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42.

1. Failure to Maintain Fences—Liability of Lessor.—It being a part of the duty of a railroad corporation to fence its track, it is liable for injuries resulting in failure to perform its duty. Bay City etc. R. Co. v. Austin, 21 Mich. 390; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Curl, 28 Kan. 622; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 458; East St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Gerber, 82 Ill. 632; Whitney v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 44 Me. 362; Fontaine etc. R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 54 Cal. 645; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 159.

Liability of Lessee.—Either by statute or judicial construction, the lessee is also made liable for injuries resulting from a failure to keep up proper fences. The ground of such liability seems to be that the lessee is guilty of negligence in using a road not properly fenced. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Kanouse, 39 Ill. 272; Ditchett v. Spuyten Duyvil etc. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 425; reversing 5 Hun (N. Y.) 165; Tracy v. Troy etc. R. Co., 55 Barb. (N. Y.) 529; aff'd 38 N. Y. 433; Birchfield v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 589 (liability provided for by statute in New York); Cook v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 36 Wis. 45; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Morrow, 32 Kan. 217; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 630; Clement v. Canfield, 28 Vt. 302. See also 2 Shearm. & Redf. on Neg. (4th ed.), § 435; FENCES, vol. 7, p. 908.

Joint Liability.—Other cases establish the joint and several liability of the lessor and lessee for injuries caused from improper fences. Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Rumbold, 40 Ill. 143; East St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Gerber, 82 Ill. 632; Clary v. Iowa Midland R. Co., 37 Iowa 344; Downing v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 43 Iowa 96.

In Indiana the rule by statute is that if at the time of stock killed owing to defect in the fences, the road is operated by the lessee in the name of the company by whom it is owned, both lessee and owners are liable; if it is operated in the lessee's own name, the lessee is the responsible party. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Bolner, 57 Ind. 572; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Hannon, 60 Ind. 417; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Bunnell, 61 Ind. 183.

in its application to particular cases.¹ And in no case can the lessor be held liable for an injury which is purely the result of a breach by the lessee of his own contractual duty as carrier.²

XIV. RAILROADS AS COMMON CARRIERS.—That railroads are common carriers, possessed of all the rights, and subject to all the duties and obligations of such carriers, is well established.³ What are these rights, duties and obligations has been discussed elsewhere.⁴

1. Rights, Duties and Liabilities as Carriers of Goods.—See CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 771.

2. As Carriers of Passengers.—(See also CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738)—a. EXPULSION OF PASSENGERS—(1) Right to Expel.—A railroad company may eject from its accommodations all persons who refuse compliance with its reasonable

1. Thus some courts have sought to hold the lessor responsible for negligence in cases where injury results from a defective construction of the road-bed or equipments, even though in the possession and control of the lessee; and to hold the lessee alone liable for negligence growing out of the mismanagement of trains by its servants. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Curl, 28 Kan. 622; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 458.

In Larkin v. Willamette etc. R. Co., 13 Oregon 436; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611, it is said that where one railroad company, under authority of law, leases its road to another company, it is not responsible for the faults committed by such other company in the running of its trains or in management of the road. See also Ditchett v. Spuyten Duyvil etc. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 425; Langley v. Boston etc. R. Co., 10 Gray (Mass.) 103.

2. Lessee Liable Alone for Breach of His Own Contractual Duty.—Mahoney v. Atlantic etc. R. Co., 63 Me. 68; Murch v. Concord R. Co., 29 N. H. 35; 61 Am. Dec. 631; Pierce v. Concord R. Co., 51 N. H. 593; Patterson v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 54 Mich. 91; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 130; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Anderson, 94 Pa. St. 351; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 407; Singleton v. Southwestern R. Co., 70 Ga. 464; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 226; 48 Am. Rep. 574.

A contrary doctrine is held in Langley v. Boston etc. R. Co., 10 Gray (Mass.) 103, but in that case the lease was wholly unauthorized. The decision is explained in McClure v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 13 Gray (Mass.)

124, where it is distinctly held that while under the decision referred to a lessor under an unauthorized lease is liable for the loss of goods received by the lessee, yet the lessee cannot release himself from liability in such a case by asserting that the lease is void. In this case a portion of one road was leased to another connecting with it.

3. See CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 781-782, 784 and cases cited. See also Avinger v. South Carolina R. Co., 29 S. Car. 265; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 519; Johnson v. Pensacola etc. R. Co., 16 Fla. 623; 26 Am. Rep. 731; Schofield v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 43 Ohio St. 571; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 612; Schloss v. Wood, 11 Colo. 287; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 492, note; Ex parte Benson, 18 S. Car. 42; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Thompson, 19 Ill. 578. This is specifically provided in Const. of Mississippi (1890), § 184.

There may, of course, be exceptions in peculiar cases; and whether or not a particular railroad is a carrier in a certain case is a mixed question of law and fact. See Elkins v. Boston etc. R. Co., 23 N. H. 275; Avinger v. South Carolina R. Co., 29 S. Car. 265; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 519; Piedmont Mfg. Co. v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 19 S. Car. 353; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 194; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 784; QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT.

4. See CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 771; CARRIERS OF STOCK, vol. 3, p. 1; FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 900; MAIL, vol. 13, p. 1201; INTERSTATE COMMERCE, vol. 11, p. 539; STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU; SLEEPING-CAR COM- regulations or whose presence is attended with danger or great inconvenience to the other passengers.¹ So that it is the right and in many cases the duty of the officers or agents of the company to expel all persons who are drunk² or disorderly³ or who are afflicted with a dangerous disease.⁴

The most frequent cases of expulsion are those arising from a refusal to pay proper fares. Since the company has, within certain limits, the right to prescribe the conditions upon which it will carry passengers, a person who declines to observe such condi-panies; BILL OF LADING, vol. 2, p. 223; TICKETS AND FARES.

1. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 53 Miss. 201; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Flagg, 43 Ill. 364; infra, this title, Power to Make Reasonable Rules and Regulations; Peck v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 587 (refusal to comply with regulations setting apart a separate car for ladies); 1 Redfield on Ry's 91, 92.

The right to expel passengers exists, because in the great majority of cases which arise it is the only means of enforcing the regulations the company is authorized to make.

As to expulsion from stations or depot grounds, see STATIONS.

2. Intoxicated Persons. — McClelland v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 94 Ind. 276; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 260; Lemont v. Washington etc. R. Co., 1 Mackey (D. C.) 180; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 263; Haley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 21 Iowa 15; Railway Co. v. Valley, 32 Ohio St. 345; Vinton v. Middlesex R. Co., 11 Allen (Mass.) 304; Murphey v. Union R. Co., 118 Mass. 228; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. McDonald, 68 Ind. 316; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 81 Ky. 624; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 390.

But slight intoxication, such as does not seriously affect the conduct of the passenger will not justify his expulsion, or even a refusal to carry him. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Vandyne, 57 Ind. 576.

For cases in which a sick passenger has been expelled because the conductor supposed him to be drunk when he was not, see Conolly v. Crescent City R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 57; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 117; Lemont v. Washington etc. R. Co., 1 Mackey (D. C.) 180; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 263.

3. Disorderly Passengers. — Murphy v. Western etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 637; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 258; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 53 Miss. 201; 24 Am. Rep. 689; Peavey

v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 81 Ga. 485; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 114; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gauts, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290; Com. v. Kennedy, 136 Mass. 152; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 383; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 68 Ill. 499 (profane language, etc.); Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Larkin, 47 Md. 155; People v. Caryl, 3 Park. Cr. Rep. (N. Y.) 326.

The general and accepted rule is that a railroad company may refuse to carry those whose ostensible business might tend to injure their line, e. g., one fleeing from justice; one going upon the train to assault a passenger, commit larceny or robbery, or for interfering with the proper regulations of the company, or committing any crime; or a person infected with contagious diseases, to the danger of other passengers. It is not bound to carry persons who travel for the purpose of gambling. But if its agents have ignorantly sold a ticket to a gambler, the conductor, before expelling him from the train, should tender a return of the fare paid. Thurston v. Union Pac. R. Co., 4 Dill (U. S.) 321.

In Chicago City R. Co. v. Pelletier (Ill. 1890), 24 N. E. Rep. 770, it is said that a passenger cannot be ejected from a street car for using vulgar and indecent language unless he uses it in a tone sufficiently loud to annoy and disturb the other passengers.

It is the duty of the company to eject such disorderly passengers, and a failure to do so will render it liable to a passenger injured or insulted by them. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 53 Miss. 200; 24 Am. Rep. 689; King v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 22 Fed. Rep. 413; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 386.

4. Paddock v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 841; Thurston v. Union Pac. R. Co., 4 Dill. (U. S.) 321; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Weber, 33 Kan. 443; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 418; 52 Am. Rep. 543.

tions can claim no right to be carried, and the conductor in charge of the train may expel him if he persists in his refusal.¹ He must be allowed a reasonable opportunity to pay the fares demanded or to produce his ticket,² but after his persistent

1. Expulsion for Non-Payment of Fare—Refusal to Deliver up Tickets, etc.

—Wyman v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 34 Minn. 210; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 402; Swan v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 132 Mass. 116; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 327; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Wright, 68 Ind. 586; 34 Am. Rep. 277; Shelton v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 29 Ohio St. 214; Crawford v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 26 Ohio St. 580; Hill v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 63 N. Y. 101; Falkner v. Ohio etc. R. Co., 55 Ind. 369; Lillis v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 64 Mo. 464; 27 Am. Rep. 255; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Nelson, 59 Ill. 110; Elmore v. Sands, 54 N. Y. 512; 13 Am. Rep. 617; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Benson, 85 Tenn. 627; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 112.

A person without a ticket who refuses to pay the extra fare may be ejected, as well as one who refuses to pay at all. Swan v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 132 Mass. 116; 42 Am. Rep. 432; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 327; State v. Goold, 53 Me. 279.

For the details of the character of such regulations and for the doctrine as to the reasonableness of any regulations concerning fares and tickets, see TICKETS AND FARES where the subject is dealt with.

See also note to Swann v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 132 Mass. 116; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 327, 332.

The case of Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Dewin, 86 Ill. 296, was an action by D, a child twenty-seven months old, for being expelled from a railway train in the night. There was evidence that D's father offered the conductor only two tickets for himself, wife, and six children; that the conductor offered to take the older three children at half fare, which was more liberal than the rules allowed, but the parents refused; that the conductor informed them that the children must get off, unless the three half fares were paid; that at the next station the whole family left the train, the conductor making a loud, but not indecent answer to the mother and using no force; that the night was not stormy, and fifteen minutes after the train left, the family reached a house where they staid over night. It was held that there was no ground for either actual or vindictive damages.

In the case of Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Hoeflich, 62 Md. 300; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 373, it appeared that a young woman was seated in a train in the same seat with her sister, a girl of eleven years. Upon the conductor asking the young woman for tickets, she produced two, one for herself and one for her father, who was in another part of the train. She had, however, no ticket for the little girl, and refused to pay any fare for her, although several times requested to do so. She admitted in answer to the conductor's questions that the little girl was with her. At the next station the conductor ejected both the young woman and the girl. It was held that if the jury believed that the conductor could reasonably infer from the circumstances that the plaintiff's younger sister was under her charge, and that therefore she was responsible for her presence in the car and for her fare, he was justified in expelling her as well as her younger sister.

2. Clark v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 91 N. Car. 506; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 366; International etc. R. Co. v. Wilkes, 68 Tex. 617; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 331; Hayes v. New York etc. R. Co. (N.Y. 1884), 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 363; South Carolina R. Co. v. Nix, 68 Ga. 572; Maples v. New York etc. R. Co., 38 Conn. 557; 9 Am. Rep. 434; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Fleming, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 128; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 347; Curl v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Iowa 417.

There are some cases, however, which hold that upon tender of the proper fare being made the passenger should be allowed to remain on the train, but in these cases the refusal to pay fare was not fractious and they depended, too, upon peculiar circumstances. See O'Brien v. New York Cent. R. Co., 80 N. Y. 236; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 259; Garrett v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 8 Lea (Tenn.) 438; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 416; Nelson v. Long Island R. Co., 7 Hun (N. Y.) 140.

refusal he cannot claim the right to be carried by virtue of a tender made while he is being expelled or immediately after.¹

And where a passenger purchases a ticket at the point where he was ejected he may be excluded from the train unless he pays the fare from the station at which he first got on. Stone v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 47 Iowa 82; 29 Am. Rep. 458.

Reasonable Opportunity to Secure Tickets.—In order to justify an expulsion because of the non-payment of the additional fare charged when passenger had no ticket, the company must have afforded reasonable opportunity for the passenger to provide himself with a ticket. Du Laurans v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 15 Minn. 29; 2 Am. Rep. 102; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. McClanahan, 66 Tex. 530; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 82; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Hinsdale, 38 Kan. 507; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 256; Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Fox (Tex. 1887), 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 543; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, 67 Ill. 312; Evans v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 56 Ala. 246; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Myrtle, 51 Ind. 566.

What is such reasonable opportunity to purchase tickets must depend upon circumstances. See Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 77 Ind. 507; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 467; Everett v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 69 Iowa 15; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 98; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. South, 43 Ill. 176; Swan v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 132 Mass. 116; 42 Am. Rep. 432; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 327. In these two last cases it was held that a reasonable time meant up to the time fixed by the published rules of the company and not up to the time of the actual departure of the train.

In Everett v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 69 Iowa 15; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 98, it was held that it was not essential that the office be kept open until the last moment. But in cases where the statute required that the ticket office should be kept open "at least one hour prior to the departure of each passenger train from such station," the actual departure of the train is meant. Porter v. New York Cent. R. Co., 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 353; Nellis v. New York etc. R. Co., 30 N. Y. 505.

And in Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Dwelle, 44 Kan. 394; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 402, it is said that keeping the office open thirty minutes before the schedule time for departure was not sufficient; it must be kept open long enough before the actual departure of the train, whether delayed or not, for passengers to get their tickets conveniently.

1. Passenger Expelled Cannot Re-enter Upon Tender of Fare.—State v. Campbell, 32 N. J. L. 309; O'Brien v. Boston etc. R. Co., 15 Gray (Mass.) 20; Swan v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 132 Mass. 116; 42 Am. Rep. 432; Hibbard v. New York etc. R. Co., 15 N. Y. 455; Pease v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 101 N. Y. 367; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 185; People v. Jillson, 3 Park. Cr. Rep. (N. Y.) 234; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 180; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 374; Hoffbauer v. Delhi etc. R. Co., 52 Iowa 342; 35 Am. Rep. 278; Railroad Co. v. Skillman, 39 Ohio St. 444; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 31; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Dwelle, 44 Kan. 394; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 402. In this last case an attempt was made to create an exception to the rule by showing that the passenger refused to pay extra fare not with an intent to annoy the conductor or defraud the company, but solely because he thought he had a right to travel without paying extra fare. But the court held that in such cases the intent is immaterial and that it will afford no ground for a denial of the right to eject. The same view is taken in Stone v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 47 Iowa 82; 29 Am. Rep. 458; Marshall v. Boston etc. R. Co., 145 Mass. 164; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 18.

In Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 180; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 374, the court was of the opinion that the strict rule should be confined to cases of willful violation of contract.

Where a passenger tenders money for his fare to a certain station which is less than that prescribed, saying he will pay no more, and the conductor retains a sum sufficient to carry the passenger to the next station, the passenger has the right on reaching such station to continue his journey upon offering the proper fare, and he cannot rightfully be put off the train. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Bryan, 90 Ill. 126.

Third Person Offering to Pay Fare.—The case of Garrett v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 8 Lea (Tenn.) 438; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 416, furnishes a very just exception to the general rule. The

(2) Manner and Place of Expulsion.—Although the relation of carrier and passenger does not exist in many of the cases arising in this connection, yet the railroad company always owes a certain measure of duty to the ejected person, and is bound to exercise its right to eject in a lawful and proper manner and with due regard to the safety of the ejected.¹ No more force may be used plaintiff in the case, an old and feeble man, tendered for his fare a tax certificate of greater money value than the usual fare. The conductor declined to receive it and proceeded to eject him; while doing so, a passenger offered to pay his fare; the conductor declined to receive this also, and ejected the plaintiff. It was held that in such a case the ejection was justified by no rule of law or of public policy. See also Clark v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 91 N. Car. 506; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 366; Dietrich v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 71 Pa. St. 432.

The proper course to be pursued by a passenger in such cases is to accede to the conductor's demand, since his right to recover of the company is as full and complete as if he had been ejected. It is his duty to pay the fare demanded, and if the company fails to make reparation, he has an appropriate remedy. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Griffin, 68 Ill. 499; Hall v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 57; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 348; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Connell, 112 Ill. 295; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 339.

Reason of the Rule.—In O'Brien v. Boston etc. R. Co., 15 Gray (Mass.) 23, the court by Bigelow, J., said: "The right to refuse to transport the plaintiff further and to eject him from the train would be an idle and useless exercise of legal authority if the party, who had hitherto refused to perform the contract by paying his fare when duly demanded, could immediately re-enter the cars and claim the fulfillment of the original contract by the defendant."

In Railroad Co. v. Skillman, 39 Ohio St. 444; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 31, the court, by Upson, J., said: "To concede that privilege (i. e., to re-enter the cars) to a person who has willfully violated the obligations of the implied contract under which he was allowed to enter the cars, would enable him to attempt the perpetration of a fraud at the least possible risk of loss or inconvenience to himself, and the greatest annoyance and inconvenience to the railroad company and the passengers on its trains."

In Hibbard v. New York etc. R. Co., 15 N. Y. 55, the court by Brown, J., said: "If one passenger may, at his pleasure, condemn the regulations of the company and put the conductors at defiance, all may; and such a result would put it out of its power to protect itself from injury and to fulfill its duties to those who committed themselves to its charge."

1. The relation of carrier and passenger does not exist where proper fares have not been paid or a ticket or pass exhibited after demand by the conductor. See CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 744; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Price, 96 Pa. St. 256; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 234; Gardner v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 51 Conn. 143; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 170; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290. And it seems that the relation, when begun, ceases upon the passenger's so conducting himself as to violate the rules of the company and subject his fellow passengers to inconvenience or to danger, since he has forfeited his right to be carried. Peavey v. Georgia R. etc. Co., 81 Ga. 485; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 114; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 53 Miss. 201; 24 Am. Rep. 689; Com. v. Kennedy, 136 Mass. 152; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 383.

But in all cases the railroad company owes the ejected party a measure of duty. Columbus etc. R. Co. v. Powell, 40 Ind. 37; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 416-417; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Toomey, 91 Pa. St. 256; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 61.

And a failure to exercise proper care in the expulsion renders it liable for all injuries the proximate consequence of such negligence. Healey v. City Passenger R. Co., 28 Ohio St. 23; New York etc. R. Co. v. Haring, 47 N. J. L. 137; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 436; Bass v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 42 Wis. 654; Clark v. New York etc. R. Co., 40 than is actually necessary;¹ the train must be at a full stop,² and the circumstances of time, place, and the physical condition of the ejected are to be considered.³

In many jurisdictions it is required that the ejection shall take place only at a station or usual stopping place for trains on that road. But this requirement is not universal and is modified and restricted in its application to particular cases.⁴

Hun (N. Y.) 605; Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. Phillips, 64 Miss. 693; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Hoefflich, 62 Md. 300; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 373; Georgia R. Co. v. Homer, 73 Ga. 251; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 186.

See also NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386.

1. Amount of Force to be Used.—All unnecessary force is negligence or willful tort and recovery may be had for injuries the proximate result thereof. New York etc. R. Co. v. Haring, 47 N. J. L. 137; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 436; Jardine v. Cornell, 50 N. J. L. 485; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 437; Sanford v. Eighth Ave. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 343; 80 Am. Dec. 286; State v. Ross, 26 N. J. L. 224; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Bills, 118 Ind. 221; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 121, 126, note; Wright v. California Cent. R. Co., 78 Cal. 360; Brown v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 66 Mo. 588; Thorpe v. New York etc. R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.) 70; Johnson v. Concord R. Co., 46 N. H. 213.

Proof that the conductor ordered the plaintiff to get off and accompanied the order with such a show of force sufficient to impress him with the belief that it would be employed, thereby compelling him to jump from the car, is equivalent to proof of the employment of actual force. Kline v. Central Pac. R. Co., 39 Cal. 587.

Resistance by Passenger.—The doctrine of the New York cases is that a passenger lawfully upon a train has the right to resist any attempt to remove him therefrom; and if in consequence of his resistance extraordinary force is used to remove him, and he is injured thereby he may recover. He has also the right, even where the conductor is justified in ejecting him, to resist being put off in a dangerous manner. English v. Delaware etc. Co., 66 N. Y. 454; 23 Am. Rep. 69; Sanford v. Eighth Ave. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 343; 80 Am. Dec. 286 (cases of refusal to pay fare).

2. Train Must Be at Full Stop.—

Holmes v. Wakefield, 12 Allen (Mass.) 580; Sanford v. Eighth Ave. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 343; 80 Am. Dec. 286; Kansas City R. Co. v. Kelly, 36 Kan. 655; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 281; State v. Kinney, 34 Minn. 311.

3. Railway Co. v. Valley, 32 Ohio 345.

Thus in Conolly v. Crescent City R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 57; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 117, a passenger was stricken with apoplexy while riding on a street car, and the driver thinking he was drunk, removed him and left him lying on the edge of the sidewalk. The passenger was perfectly helpless, and it was a cold rainy day. It was held that, admitting the right of the company to expel such passenger because of the inconvenience he occasioned to the other passengers, yet it must do so with due regard to his safety, and was liable for his death caused by the improper manner of expulsion.

So also in Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 81 Ky. 624; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 390, the same principle was emphasized. And it was held that if the passenger were drunk, he was not to be put off in such place as would on account of his condition endanger his life or his health. See also Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Weber, 33 Kan. 543; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 418.

And the principle of the text is recognized in other cases. See Paddock v. Atchison etc. R. Co., 37 Fed. Rep. 841 (removal of passengers suffering from infectious disease); Hall v. South Carolina R. Co., 28 S. Car. 261; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 311.

Convenience of Ejected.—In ejecting a trespasser the company is not bound to have any regard to his convenience; that is not to be considered. Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290.

4. At Usual Stopping Place.—This requirement exists by statute in several States. See Stephen v. Smith, 29 Vt. 160; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whittemore, 43 Ill. 420; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Sutton, 42 Ill. 438; Hobbs v. Texas

The conductor, being the officer or agent charged with the enforcement of the regulations concerning the expulsion of passengers, it follows that in every case in which the right to eject exists, the company is liable for all the wrongful acts of the conductor, malicious or otherwise, in effecting the expulsion.¹

etc. R. Co., 49 Ark. 357; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 268; Baldwin v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 64 N. H. 596; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 126.

The California Civ. Code, § 487, requires that the expulsion shall take place at a usual stopping place or near a dwelling-house. See Wright v. California Cent. R. Co., 78 Cal. 360.

Distinction Between Trespassers and Others.—Under such statutes a distinction has been made between persons who are properly on the train and those who are mere trespassers, so that while a person rightfully on the train may be ejected only at a regular station or usual stopping place, a trespasser may be ejected anywhere except at a place known to be dangerous. Hardenbergh v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 39 Minn. 3; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 359 (refusal to pay constitutes one a trespasser); Maples v. New York etc. R. Co., 38 Conn. 557; 9 Am. Rep. 434 (trespassers may be ejected at any convenient place); Kent v. Mason, 1 Ill. App. 466; Wynan v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 34 Minn. 210; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 405; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 200; Hobbs v. Texas etc. R. Co., 49 Ark. 357; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 268; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Hinsdale, 38 Kan. 507; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 256 (failure to secure ticket for freight train); Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whittemore, 43 Ill. 420 (distinction made between refusal to surrender ticket and refusal to pay fare). See also infra, this title, Liability for Injuries to Trespassers.

The question as to whether one is or is not a trespasser is one for the jury. Arnold v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 115 Pa. St. 135; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 189.

Where No Statute Exists.—Where no statute exists concerning the place of ejection it seems that it may be at any place not dangerous to the ejected party. Great Western etc. R. Co. v. Miller, 19 Mich. 305; Jeffersonville R. Co. v. Rogers, 28 Ind. 1; Railroad Co. v. Skillman, 39 Ohio St. 444; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 31; Haley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 21 Iowa 15; Brown v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 51 Iowa 235; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Wright, 68 Ind. 586.

Thus in Jeffersonville R. Co. v. Rogers, 28 Ind. 1, the court by Frayer, J., said: "The passenger who refuses to pay fare is from that moment an intruder and wrongfully on the train. He has no lawful right to be carried gratis to the next station. This is too plain to admit of debate."

In the absence of statutory provision a station is not an improper place to eject a passenger, even though there be no hotel there. Hall v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 57; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 348. But this rule might be otherwise in extreme cases, such, for example, as where a sick passenger is expelled.

Definition of "Regular Station"—Usual Stopping Place.—In Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Lattimer, 128 Ill. 163, it was held that the term "regular station" as used in the statute relating to the expulsion of passengers, means a place where passenger trains usually stop for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers, and not merely a town or village in which a depot is located.

In Texas etc. R. Co. v. Casey, 52 Tex. 112, the term "usual stopping place" was held to mean either a regular station or any other place which a railroad company expressly by public notice or otherwise, or impliedly by user for such purpose, had designated as a proper place for passengers to get on or off its trains. A place at which a train is stopped for wood or water only is not such a place.

1. Company Liable for Wrongful Acts of Its Conductor.—Great Western R. Co. v. Miller, 19 Mich. 305; Kline v. Central Pac. R. Co., 37 Cal. 400; Terre Haute etc. R. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 47 Ind. 79; Rounds v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 3 Hun (N. Y.) 329; 64 N. Y. 129; Hamilton v. Third Ave. R. Co., 13 Abb. Pr. (N. S. (N. Y.)) 318; 44 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 294; Holmes v. Wakefield, 12 Allen (Mass.) 580; Ramsden v. Boston etc. R. Co., 104 Mass. 117; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Vandiver, 42 Pa. St. 365 and cases cited; Seymour v. Green-

(3) Damages for Wrongful Expulsion.—The expulsion may be wrongful in itself, or wrongful in its execution, or both. In the first case, that is where the company has no right to expel the passenger, the elements which may be considered in estimating damages are the humiliation and insult¹ occasioned to the wood, L. J. 30 Exch. 189, 327; Milwaukee etc. R. Co. v. Finney, 10 Wis. 388 (contract and tort); Healy v. City Passenger R. Co., 28 Ohio St. 23; Columbus etc. R. Co. v. Powell, 40 Ind. 37; Hoffman v. New York Cent. R. Co., 87 N. Y. 25; 41 Am. Rep. 337, 340, note; Higgins v. Watervliet etc. Co., 46 N. Y. 23; 7 Am. Rep. 293; Sanford v. Eighth Ave. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 343; 80 Am. Dec. 282; CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 753.

This is but one of the many applications of the familiar rule that a principal is liable for all the acts of his agent, acting within the scope of his employment. See AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 419; Evans on Agency (2nd Eng. ed.), p. 567-8; Wharton on Agency, § 474, et seq.; McManus v. Cricket, 1 East 106; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 804, 821, et seq.; Howe v. Newmarch, 12 Allen (Mass.) 49; note to Allegheny Valley R. Co. v. McLain, 91 Pa. St. 442; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 466.

Courts will take cognizance of the duties of conductors as pointed out by statute. Travers v. Kansas Pac. R. Co., 63 Mo. 421.

Even Where the ejection is not authorized and the conductor acted contrary to orders, the company is liable if there was any discretionary power vested in the conductor. Moore v. Fitchburg etc. R. Co., 4 Gray (Mass.) 465; Bayley v. Manchester etc. R. Co., L. R., 7 C. P. 415; 3 Moak's Rep. 308; 8 C. P. 148; 4 Moak's Rep. 384; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Bryan, 90 Ill. 126 (passenger lawfully on train ejected by conductor; company held liable for assault and battery); Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Derby, 14 How. (U. S.) 468; Heenrich v. Pullman Palace Car Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 100; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 379; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 821, et seq.

Compare Pennsylvania Co. v. Toomey, 91 Pa. St. 256; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 461.

It is almost invariably the case that a conductor is vested with discretionary power in the management of the train. Thus in a leading case, Great Western R. Co. v. Miller, 19

Mich. 305, the court by Campbell, J., said: "There is  no authority which would exempt them (i. e., the railroad company) from some amount of responsibility for any wrongful expulsion of a passenger by a conductor. He represents them in the whole management of his train and the power to do any serious mischief is chiefly derived from their vesting him with the control of this large agency. He occupies the same position as the master of a ship and his action . . . must be regarded as done in the line of his employment." See also Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Rice, 38 Kan. 398; 34 Am. Eng. R. Cas. 316.

No matter what the circumstances may have been, the company is liable for the wrong done, if it in any way sanctions or ratifies such wrong. MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 826.

And the fact that the wrongdoer was promoted or retained in the company's service is strong evidence of its ratification and sanction. Perkins v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 55 Mo. 201; Bass v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 42 Wis. 654; 24 Am. Rep. 437; Goddard v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 57 Me. 202; 2 Am. Rep. 39.

Contra, Edelmunn v. St. Louis Tr. Co., 3 Mo. App. 504.

But the retention of a porter after he had been criminally convicted of assault is said not to constitute a ratification in a particular case. Williams v. Pullman Car Co., 40 La. Ann. 87; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 407.

1. Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Dean, 43 Ark. 529; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 279; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Chisholm, 79 Ill. 584; Murphy v. Western etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 637; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 258 (colored man expelled from car set apart for white people); International etc. R. Co. v. Smith (Tex. 1886), 1 S. W. Rep. 565; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 148; Lake Erie etc. R. Co. v. Fix, 88 Ind. 381; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 109; Georgia R. Co. v. Horner, 73 Ga. 251; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 186 (good or bad faith of conductor may be considered); Carsten v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 44 Minn. 454; 44 passenger, his pecuniary loss,¹ and the inconvenience and bodily harm suffered.²

In the second case, no damages can be recovered except such Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 392; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 55 Ill. 185; 8 Am. Rep. 641; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Holdridge, 118 Ind. 281; Wilsey v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 83 Ky. 511; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 513; DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 42; 3 Sutherland on Dam. 712.

In the case of McKinley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 44 Iowa 314; 24 Am. Rep. 748, it was said: "A careful examination of the authorities will disclose the fact that the weight of the adjudged cases is in favor of the proposition that mental anguish arising from the nature and character of the assault is an element of compensatory damages."

So also in Taber v. Hutson, 5 Ind. 322, the court, while holding that only compensatory damages were recoverable by the plaintiff, said: "He was not, it is true, confined to the proof of actual pecuniary loss; the jury might have taken into consideration every circumstance of the act which injuriously affected the plaintiff, not only in his property, but in his person, his peace of mind—in short, his individual happiness." S. P. in Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Spicker, 105 Pa. St. 142; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 672.

So that a passenger is entitled to more than nominal damages where he incurred no pecuniary loss, but suffered indignity. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Chisholm, 79 Ill. 584. In Toledo etc. R. Co. v. McDonough, 53 Ind. 289, the plaintiff suffered no bodily injury, no pecuniary loss and no inconvenience, yet it was held that $400 was not excessive, the insult and indignity being considered.

But where a passenger's cause of action is not a tort but a breach of the contract to carry, he cannot show that he was ejected with insult or abuse, or that the conductor was intoxicated. Stone v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 47 Iowa 82; 29 Am. Rep. 458.

1. Pecuniary Loss.—It has never been doubted that in such cases a person may recover damages sufficient to compensate him for pecuniary loss, the proximate consequence of the expulsion. The term "pecuniary loss" includes expenses incurred, loss of time, etc. Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Dean, 43 Ark. 529; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 279; Pennsylvania

R. Co. v. Spicker, 105 Pa. St. 142; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 672; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Rice, 38 Kan. 398; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 316.

But the loss of a job of work occasioned by the plaintiff's delay at the station where he was expelled, and where he remained a week for want of money, has been held too remote to be considered as an element of damage. Carsten v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 44 Minn. 454; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 392.

2. Inconvenience and Bodily Harm.—Inconvenience and annoyance caused by an unlawful expulsion are proper elements of damage. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Williams, 55 Ill. 185; 8 Am. Rep. 641 (vexation); Carsten v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 44 Minn. 454; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 392 ("annoyance").

Bodily harm suffered in consequence of the expulsion is to be considered just as in all other cases of personal injury. See DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 41-42.

The liability for a violent ejection of a passenger is not diminished by the fact that he was at the time suffering from a disease which aggravated the injuries sustained, or rendered them more difficult of cure. Brown v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 66 Mo. 588.

In the case of International etc. R. Co. v. Smith (Tex. 1886), 1 S. W. Rep. 565; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 148, a lady passenger, on the wrong train by a mistake of the company's agent, and who refused to pay fare for being carried further after the mistake was discovered, was held to be entitled to recover damages for being ejected. It was held also that a verdict for $8,000 damages for personal injuries received, and fright and mental anguish suffered by the passenger, who with two infant children was expelled from the train on a dark night at a lonely place, not a regular station, and, being afraid to seek shelter there among negroes, walked back several miles to a station, through swamps and over a high railroad bridge, and was compelled to engage for a guide a negro who insulted her—was not excessive.

as would be recoverable in an ordinary action for negligent injury.¹

Where the expulsion in any case is accompanied with undue violence or abuse, exemplary damages may be awarded.²

b. LIABILITY FOR LOSS OF BAGGAGE—(See also BAGGAGE, vol. 1, pp. 1042, et seq.; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, pp. 771, et seq.; SLEEPING CARS).—Exactly what is to be included within the term "baggage" has already been stated.³

1. That is, where the company has the right to expel a passenger but does so at such a time or place or under such circumstances that he receives bodily injury as a proximate consequence, he is entitled to recover damages just as in other cases of personal injury. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Sullivan, 81 Ky. 624; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 390; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Weber, 33 Kan. 543; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 418; Conolly v. Crescent City R. Co., 41 La. Ann. 57; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 117; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Sutton, 53 Ill. 397 (ejecting sick passenger); DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 40, et seq.; DEATH, vol. 5, p. 128.

No damages are recoverable if the right to eject exists and it is properly exercised. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Pierce, 47 Mich. 277; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 340.

2. Exemplary Damages.—See generally EXEMPLARY DAMAGES, vol. 7, p. 448, et seq.

Whatever may be the merits of the view entertained by eminent text writers that exemplary damages should never in any case be allowed, there is certainly a multitude of cases of high authority in which such damages have been permitted. And there is scarcely any question now that if in the expulsion of a passenger willful or malicious violence is used, exemplary damages may be awarded. See City etc. R. Co. v. Brauss, 70 Ga. 368; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 324; Western etc. R. Co. v. Turner, 72 Ga. 292; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 455; Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Rosenzweig, 113 Pa. St. 519; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 489; Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Rice, 38 Kan. 398; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 316; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Bryan, 90 Ill. 126; Hicks v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 68 Mo. 329; Bass v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 42 Wis. 654; 24 Am. Rep. 437; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Flagg, 43 Ill. 364 (ejecting passenger at place not a station); Texas etc. R. Co. v. Casey, 52 Tex. 112; Brown v. Memphis etc. R.

Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 51 (good faith of company and its agent may go in mitigation of damages); Wabash etc. R. Co. v. Rector, 104 Ill. 296.

A railroad company is never liable in exemplary damages for the act of a conductor who unlawfully ejects a passenger from its cars, unless the plaintiff would have been entitled to recover such damages had the action been against the conductor himself. Townsend v. N. Y. Cent. R. Co., 56 N. Y. 295; 15 Am. Rep. 419; Garrett v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 8 Lea (Tenn.) 438; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 416.

And any liability of a railroad company to exemplary damages for wrongful acts of its agents must be limited to cases where there has been negligence on the part of the company, in selecting or instructing the agent, or where the wrongful act has been ratified. Hays v. Houston etc. R. Co., 46 Tex. 272; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 53 Miss. 200; 24 Am. Rep. 689; Toledo etc. R. Co. v. Patterson, 63 Ill. 304; Du Laurus v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 15 Minn. 29.

Excessive Damages.—If the amount of damages is not such as to indicate that the jury were influenced by passion or prejudice a verdict will not be set aside as giving excessive damages. See DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 54.

3. Definition of "Baggage".—In the article BAGGAGE, vol. 1, p. 1042, numerous instances are given of what the term has been held to include.

See also Mauritz v. New York etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 765; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286 (where the general rule is stated); Staub v. Kendrick, 121 Ind. 226; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 652 (salesman's illustrated catalogue carried for personal use, held to be baggage); Metz v. California Southern R. Co., 85 Cal. 329; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 433 (ladies' jewelry in man's trunk—owner not entitled to recovery, carrier being ignorant of such facts); Pfister v. Central Pac. R. Co., 70 Cal. 169; 27

The purchase of a ticket completes the contract of carriage between the carrier and its passenger, a part of which contract is to carry the latter's baggage.¹ And in carrying the baggage of its passenger, a railroad acts in the capacity of a common carrier, and is therefore liable as an insurer.² But this extends only so far as to include such property delivered to the carrier as is

Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 246 (money intended for investment not baggage); Texas etc. R. Co. v. Capps (Tex., 1884), 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 118 (samples as baggage); Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Morrison, 34 Kan. 502 (mechanics' tools as baggage); Blumenthal v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 79 Me. 550; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 247 (merchandise not baggage); Carlson v. Oceanic S. Nav. Co., 109 N. Y. 359; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 215 (jewelry—notice to carrier); New York Cent. etc. R. Co. v. Fraloff, 100 U. S. 24 (275 yards of laces, value $10,000—held to be baggage); Mississippi Cent. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 41 Miss. 671; Thompson on Carriers of Passengers, p. 510 et seq.; 2 Rorer, on Railroads, p. 988; 3 Wood's Ry. Law, p. 1512-1516; 2 Redfield on Ry's (6th ed.), p. 58, et seq. Whether any particular property is "baggage" is a mixed question of law and fact. Thompson on Carriers of Passengers, p. 510; New York Cent. etc. R. Co. v. Fraloff, 100 U. S. 24. See also QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT; Brock v. Gale, 14 Fla. 523.

Property of Other Persons.—Ordinarily a passenger cannot include in his baggage the effects of other persons. If he does so a railroad company will not be responsible for loss or injury. First National Bank v. Marietta etc. R. Co., 20 Ohio St. 260; Weed v. Saratoga etc. R. Co., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 534; Dexter v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 42 N. Y. 326; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Boyce, 73 Ill. 510; Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 41 Miss. 671; Dunlap v. International Steamboat Co., 98 Mass. 371; Becher v. Great Eastern R. Co., L. R., 5 Q. B. 241.

But members of the same family traveling together may carry each other's effects. Dexter v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 42 N. Y. 326; Curtis v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 74 N. Y. 116.

"Luggage."—The term luggage is one used in some jurisdictions—its meaning is exactly the same as baggage. Its use obtains in England and in California and in possibly other jurisdictions. See Pfister v. Central Pac. R.

Co., 70 Cal. 169; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 246.

1. Isaacson v. New York Cent. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 278; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 188; Mississippi Cent. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 41 Miss. 671; Smith v. Boston etc. R. Co., 44 N. H. 325; Smith v. Boston etc. R. Co., 44 N. H. 330; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fahey, 52 Ill. 81; Angell on Carriers, §§ 107, 116; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Brewer, 20 Kan. 669; Glasco v. New York Cent. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 557.

Compare Wilson v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 56 Me. 60; 57 Me. 138, where baggage forwarded after passenger had passed over the connecting line was charged for as freight. See also Elkins v. Boston etc. R. Co., 23 N. H. 287.

A statute which provides a penalty in case a railroad company refuses to carry baggage does not preclude an injured party from his remedy by an action for damages. Norfolk etc. R. Co. v. Irvine, 84 Va. 553.

The carrier's liability for baggage lost by its negligence is not affected by the mere fact that the owner traveled on a free pass. McGill v. Rowland, 3 Pa. St. 451; 45 Am. Dec. 654; Malone v. Boston etc. R. Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 588; Rice v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 22 Ill. App. 643.

2. Carrier Liable as Insurer of Baggage.—Camden etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 611; 28 Am. Dec. 488; Merrill v. Grinnell, 30 N. Y. 594; Isaacson v. New York etc. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 278; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 138; Montgomery etc. R. Co. v. Culver, 75 Ala. 587; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 411; Davis v. Michigan Southern etc. R. Co., 22 Ill. 278; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 41 Ala. 486; 94 Am. Dec. 607; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Troustine, 64 Miss. 834; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 99; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Katzenberger, 16 Lea (Tenn.) 380; Hollister v. Nowlen, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 234; Shaw v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 40 Minn. 144 (company held liable as insurer—not warehouseman, where baggage was stored for company's convenience); actually baggage; the carrier has a right to limit the amount which it will carry as baggage;¹ and if by means of fraud or misrep-

Cohen v. Southeastern R. Co., 2 Exch. Div. 253; 20 Moak's Rep. 524; Thompson on Carriers of Pass., p. 489; 2 Redfield on Ry's (6th ed.), § 171 (where it is said that this is an elementary principle of the law); 2 Rorer on Railroads, 991.

See also Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Carrow, 73 Ill. 348, where the distinction is drawn between the liability of carriers of goods and carriers of passengers.

In 2 Kent's Com. (13th ed.) p. 601, it is said, "the custody of baggage is an accessory to the principal contract; and the modern doctrine and the tendency of the modern cases seem to be to place coach proprietors, in respect to baggage, upon the ordinary footing of common carriers." See also Orange Co. Bank v. Brown, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 85; Brooke v. Pickwick, 4 Bing. 218; 13 E. C. L. 404.

But a railroad company is not liable for lost baggage, unless it is shown to have been in its possession, or that it has contracted in some way to transport it; and voluntary assistance by the agents of the company in looking for the baggage, or an offer by way of gratuity, to pay on account of it, will not render the company liable. Michigan etc. R. Co. v. Meyers, 21 Ill. 627.

The proprietors of a line of stages contracted with a railroad company to convey its passengers from one terminus of the road to various points, upon through tickets issued by the company at the other terminus of the road. It was held that the proprietors of the stage line were the agents of the railroad company, so as to make the latter liable for baggage lost on the stage line. Wilson v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 21 Gratt. (Va.) 654.

When Liability Attaches.—The liability of the carrier attaches as soon as baggage is received for transportation, even though the owner has not paid his fare. Logan v. Pontchartrain R. Co., 11 Rob. (La.) 24; 43 Am. Dec. 199; Woods v. Devin, 13 Ill. 747; 56 Am. Dec. 483; Dibble v. Brown, 12 Ga. 217; 56 Am. Dec. 460; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Tronstine, 64 Miss. 834; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 99; Shaw v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 40 Minn. 144.

Tender or Demand.—A tender of lost baggage more than a year after demand was made for it will not relieve the carrier from liability. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Warren (Wyoming Ter. 1885), 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 302.

In Garvey v. Camden etc. R. Co., 1 Hilt. (N. Y.) 280, it is said that proof of delivery of trunk to carriers and of loss makes out a prima facie case; there need be no demand made for it.

Authority of Baggage-master.—In the absence of special authority to do so, a baggage master has no power to bind his company by a contract to carry baggage beyond its terminus, or by fixing a special or unusual mode of delivery. Isaacson v. New York Cent. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 278; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 188. See also Jordan v. Fall River R. Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 69.

A passenger has a right to regard the man who handles and takes charge of baggage on the arrival of the train at a station, as the authorized agent of the company on whose road he is traveling, and notice to such persons as to the destination of the baggage is notice to the company. Ouimit v. Henshaw, 35 Vt. 605; 84 Am. Dec. 646. And if such agent checks the baggage over the wrong route and it is injured the company is liable as an insurer. Estee v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., (Supreme Ct.), 7 N. Y. Supp. 863.

1. It is a reasonable regulation that no goods, merchandise, or other similar property will be carried on passenger cars except what is actually baggage. Norfolk etc. R. Co. v. Irvine, 85 Va. 217; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 27; Doyle v. Kiser, 6 Ind. 242; Collins v. Boston etc. R. Co., 10 Cush. (Mass.) 506; Merrill v. Grinnell, 30 N. Y. 594; Hawkins v. Hoffman, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 586; 41 Am. Dec. 767; Blumenthal v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 79 Me. 350; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 247; Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Carrow, 73 Ill. 348.

In the case of Norfolk etc. R. Co. v. Irvine, 84 Va. 553, it was held that a railroad company may properly require a peddler to make affidavit as to the contents of his trunk, and if he refuses to do so may decline to carry it. The court by Lacy, J., said: "The company cannot be required to transport merchandise or other freight not baggage on its passenger trains which have not been equipped for such use; and the plaintiff having exacted such service of sensation it is induced to receive more for carriage, it is liable for such excess only as an ordinary bailee for hire.¹ If, however, it receives for transportation as baggage any trunk or similar receptacle with a knowledge of its contents, it is liable for the full value of the property if it is lost.²

As to the right of a carrier to limit its liability, the rule is this: it may legally contract for exemption from the liability imposed by the common law by which it becomes an insurer, but on grounds of public policy it cannot be allowed to contract for its exemption from liability for damages occasioned by the negligence or willful default of itself or of its servants.³ In order for these trains as a traveling merchant, if he had ceased such employment and business it was a simple and easy act for him to so certify. A carrier of passengers is only required to carry baggage under a certain weight, and may by law, or otherwise, restrict the amount to be carried for one passenger so the limit does not rest below that fixed by the statute, and may also refuse to carry anything as luggage except the passengers' ordinary luggage." Phelps v. London etc. R. Co., 19 C. B., N. S. 321; 115 E. C. L. 321; Norfolk etc. R. Co. v. Irvine, 85 Va. 217; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 227.

In Mississippi Cent. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 41 Miss. 671, the court by Peyton, J., said: "The implied undertaking of the proprietors of stage-coaches, railroads, and steamboats to carry in safety the baggage of passengers, is not unlimited, and cannot be extended beyond ordinary baggage, which consists of such articles of necessity or convenience as are usually carried by passengers for their personal use, comfort, and convenience; and not merchandise or other valuables, although carried in trunks of passengers, which are not designed for any such purposes." Angell on Carriers 115; Story on Bailments § 449.

1. Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Marcus, 38 Ill. 219; Michigan Southern etc. R. Co. v. Oehm, 56 Ill. 293; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Shea, 66 Ill. 471; Del Valle v. Steamboat Richmond, 27 La. Ann. 90.

In other cases the carrier is held liable only as a bailee without hire. Smith v. Boston etc. R. Co., 44 N. H. 325; Stimpson v. Connecticut River R. Co., 98 Mass. 83.

The carrier is not bound to inquire as to the contents of a passenger's trunk, but has a right to rely upon the representation arising by implication that it contains nothing more than baggage. Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Carrow, 73 Ill. 348; Merchants' Despatch Transp. Co. v. Bolles, 80 Ill. 473.

2. Central Trust Co. v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 32 Fed. Rep. 566; 38 Fed. Rep. 63; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 592; Com. v. Connecticut River R. Co., 15 Gray (Mass.) 447 (company held liable to penalty for refusal to carry even when its agent who received the baggage for transportation had no authority to do so); Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Conklin, 32 Kan. 55; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 116.

If a carrier has reasonable ground for refusing to receive and carry persons or property applying, he is bound to make the objection at the time the application is made. If, without making objection, he receives the persons or property for transportation, his liability is the same as though no ground for refusal existed. Hannibal R. Co. v. Swift, 12 Wall. (U. S.) 262.

Evidence that a passenger delivered to the baggage-master a package of merchandise, and received a check for it on showing his ticket, that the baggage-master knew it was merchandise, and that other passengers had similar packages, will not warrant a finding that the corporation agreed to transport the merchandise, or become liable for it as a common carrier, in the absence of evidence of an agreement that it should be carried as freight, or that the baggage-master had authority to bind the corporation to carry merchandise as personal baggage. Blumantle v. Fitchburg R. Co., 127 Mass. 322. Compare Minter v. Pacific R. Co., 41 Mo. 503, where the company was held liable though its baggage-master had been expressly instructed not to receive such baggage.

3. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 41 Ala. 486; 94 Am. Dec. 607; Camden etc. R. Co. v. Burke, 13 Wend. (N. Y.)

such a limitation to be of any force, it must be by special and express contract; a general notice is not sufficient.¹

In no case is a railroad company to be held liable where baggage is not intrusted to its keeping, but is retained by the passenger, except where the loss is occasioned by its own negligence.²

611; 28 Am. Dec. 488; Swindler v. Hilliard, 2 Rich. (S. Car.) 286; Sager v. Portsmouth etc. R. Co., 31 Me. 228; 50 Am. Dec. 659; Bingham v. Rogers, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 495; 40 Am. Dec. 581.

The status of railroad companies as quasi public institutions and the uniform policy of the law forbid that they should be allowed in any case to exempt themselves from liability for the consequences of their own negligence or wrongdoing. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 41 Ala. 486; 94 Am. Dec. 607; Cincinnati etc. R. Co. v. Pontius, 19 Ohio St. 221; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 811, et seq.; Thompson on Carriers of Pass. 471-525; infra, this title, Legal Status of Railroads.

1. Mauritz v. New York etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 765; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286; Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Rodebaugh, 38 Kan. 45; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 219; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 Ohio St. 647; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 246; Malone v. Boston etc. R. Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 388; Anderson v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 17 Ont. Rep. 747; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 624; Hollister v. Nowlen, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 234; 72 Am. Dec. 455. In all of these cases there was printed on the ticket, a stipulation that the railroad company's liability for lost baggage should not exceed a certain amount, and in each of them it was held that the contract did not bind the passenger, unless it was brought to his notice, and that there was no presumption that he had seen or assented to the contract, merely because he had bought the ticket. See also TICKETS AND FARES, where the subject of ticket contracts is examined. Compare Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Schwarzenberger, 45 Pa. St. 208.

But where a passenger signs a ticket which contains a limitation, a limitation contained therein is valid against him, even though he did not read it. Bate v. Canadian Pac. R. Co., 15 Ont. App. 388; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 208. There must be a plain and distinct proposal. Camden etc. R. Co. v. Baldauf, 16 Pa. St. 67 (where it was held to be no proposal if purchaser could not understand English); Cressin v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 11 Phila. (Pa.) 597; 32 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 363; Steers v. Liverpool etc. Co., 57 N. Y. 1; Mauritz v. New York etc. R. Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 765; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286 (purchaser unable to read—held that no contract for limitation arose).

There Must be an Acceptance.—Applying for a pass and actually using it after attention was called to its terms is an assent. Perkins v. New York Cent. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 196.

So also assent is implied from the taking and constant use of a commutation ticket. Cresson v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 11 Phila. (Pa.) 597; 32 Leg. Int. 363; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 80; 42 Am. Rep. 668; Bland v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 55 Cal. 570; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 285; 36 Am. Rep. 50; Hoffbauer v. Delhi etc. R. Co., 52 Iowa 342; 35 Am. Rep. 278. Compare Malone v. Boston etc. R. Co., 12 Gray (Mass.) 388. See TICKETS AND FARES.

2. Not Liable for Baggage Unless Intrusted to Its Keeping.—Henderson v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 430; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 397; aff'd 123 U. S. 61; Williams v. Keokuk etc. Packet Co., 3 Cent. L. J. 400; Gleason v. Goodrich Transp. Co., 32 Wis. 85; Kingsley v. Lake Shore etc. R. Co., 19 Alb. L. J. 113; Tower v. Utica etc. R. Co., 7 Ill. (N. Y.) 47 (passenger's overcoat left by him on the seat); Weeks v. New York etc. R. Co., 72 N. Y. 50; Abbott v. Bradstreet, 55 Me. 530; Clark v. Burns, 118 Mass. 275; Del Valle v. Steamboat Richmond, 27 La. Ann. 90; American Steamship Co. v. Bryan, 83 Pa. St. 446; Talley v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 6 C. P. 44; Bergheim v. Great Eastern R. Co., L. R., 3 Ch. Div. 221; 30 Moak's Rep. 117; Sewall v. Allen, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 335; Great Western R. Co. v. Bunch, L. R., 13 App. Cas. 31; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 224. In all these cases, the property of the passenger was stolen from him while it was in his custody.

It is the duty of a railroad company, not only to transport baggage, but to store it after its arrival at its destination, and hold it ready for delivery until it is called for by the owner, and its liability as a common carrier continues until the owner has had a reasonable time to call for it; after the lapse of such time it remains liable only as a warehouseman.¹ Where the baggage is stored at

But in order to relieve the company from liability, it must distinctly appear that the passenger had assumed the custody of the article in question. Le Conte v. London etc. R. Co., L. R., 1 Q. B. 54; Macklin v. New Jersey Steamboat Co., 7 Abb. Pr., N. S. (N. Y.) 229; Gore v. Norwich etc. Transp. Co., 2 Daly (N. Y.) 254.

Traveling Bag Dropped Out of Window.—In the case of Henderson v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 20 Fed. Rep. 430; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 397, aff'd 123 U. S. 61; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 95, it was held that a railroad company is not responsible for the loss of a bag containing money and jewelry carried in the hand of a passenger, and accidentally dropped by her through an open window of the car, although upon notice of the loss it refuses to stop the train short of the usual station, in order to enable her to recover it.

1. Duty as Carrier or Warehouseman.—Curis v. Avon etc. R. Co., 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 148; Roth v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548; Mattison v. New York etc. R. Co., 57 N. Y. 552; Cary v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 35; Mote v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Iowa 22; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fairclough, 52 Ill. 106; Quimit v. Henshaw, 35 Vt. 605; 84 Am. Dec. 646; Ross v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 4 Mo. App. 583; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Mahan, 8 Bush (Ky.) 184; Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Morrison, 34 Kan. 502; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 481 (failure to deliver trunk when called for). Patscheider v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 3 Exch. Div. 153; 31 Moak's Rep. 165; Hutchins on Carriers, § 212.

In the first case, the passenger was unable from lameness to take away his baggage on arriving at his destination, and he made an arrangement with the baggage-master to retain it until he could send for it. The company's liability as a common carrier was held to continue, until the baggage was so sent for. Curis v. Avon etc. R. Co., 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 148.

Compare Vineburg v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 13 Ont. App. 93; 27 Am. &

Eng. R. Cas. 271, where it was held that a company was liable only as a warehouseman where passenger failed to call for his baggage immediately on arriving at his destination, but sent for it next morning. Compare also Dimming v. New York etc. R. Co., 49 N. Y. 546 (delay in removing baggage caused by negligence of company's servants).

In Illinois the carrier's liability as insurer does not cease until the baggage is safely stored. Bartholomew v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 53 Ill. 227; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fairclough, 52 Ill. 106; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Boyce, 73 Ill. 510.

As to what is the liability of a warehouseman, see WAREHOUSEMEN.

What is Reasonable Time.—What is a reasonable time for the removal of baggage and when it has elapsed are mixed questions of law and fact to be decided by the jury, upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Mote v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 27 Iowa 22; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Mahan, 8 Bush (Ky.) 184.

Reasonable time for the removal of baggage is not necessarily the same as that for the removal of freight, being usually much shorter. Hutch. on Carr. § 708; Roth v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548.

Depending as it does upon the circumstances of each particular case, no fixed rule can be laid down. Instances of what has been held reasonable time may be seen in Roth v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 34 N. Y. 548; Jones v. Norwich etc. Transp. Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 193; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Boyce, 73 Ill. 510; 24 Am. Rep. 268 (reasonable time not extended by reason of passenger's illness); Jacobs v. Tutt, 33 Fed. Rep. 412; Quimit v. Henshaw, 35 Vt. 605; 84 Am. Dec. 646.

Baggage Delivered with Instructions to Forward.—In the case of Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Troustine, 64 Miss. 834; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 99, a party delivered baggage at a railroad station with instructions to the baggage-master to ship it to a specified place on the next day unless directed to the contrary. No subsequent directions were given. It was an intermediate station, to be sent forward on a connecting road, the liability of the company is that of a common carrier, not of a warehouseman.¹

A check which is delivered upon the receipt of baggage by the company is of no importance as constituting a contract between the owner of the baggage and the company; it is mere prima facie evidence that the company has the baggage.²

The old rule of evidence that a party whose baggage was lost constituted an exception to the rule disqualifying as witnesses those interested in the suit is no longer of any force, in view of the general removal by statute of the disqualification on the ground of interest.³

In computing the damages the market value of the articles lost is a proper measure of compensation.⁴

held that it was the duty of the company to ship it on not receiving further directions, and that from that time it held the baggage for immediate shipment, and its liability as carrier attached. Citing 2 Redfield on Rys. 46-49; Hutch. on Carriers, § 63.

1. Ouimit v. Henshaw, 35 Vt. 605; 84 Am. Dec. 646.

Baggage Stored for Passenger's Convenience.—But where for the passenger's convenience, his baggage is stored at a station while he stops over, the carrier's liability is that of a warehouseman, and he is not liable for loss by fire not caused by his negligence. Laffray v. Grummond, 74 Mich. 186; 37 Am. and Eng. R. Cas. 235; Rock Island etc. R. Co. v. Fairclough, 52 Ill. 106; Holger v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Wis. 100; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 308; Clark v. Eastern R. Co., 139 Mass. 423; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 307.

So where a passenger, on arriving at his destination, takes his baggage into his own exclusive possession, but afterwards, for his own convenience, hands it to the baggage-master to keep for him, the railroad company is liable only as a gratuitous bailee. Minor v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 19 Wis. 40; Mulligan v. Northern Pac. R. Co. (Dakota 1886); 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 33; Texas etc. R. Co. v. Capps (Texas, 1884); 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 118.

2. Effect of Check.—Hickox v. Naugatuck R. Co., 31 Conn. 281; Davis v. Michigan Southern R. Co., 22 Ill. 278; Illinois Central R. Co. v. Copeland, 24 Ill. 332 (and that the check-holder owns the baggage); Dill v. South Carolina R. Co., 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 158 ("it stands in the place of a bill of lading"); Isaac- son v. New York etc. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 278; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 188; Davis v. Cayuga etc. R. Co., 10 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 330; Denver etc. R. Co. v. Roberts, 6 Colo. 333; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 627; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Brewer, 20 Kan. 669; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Weaver, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 38; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 218; Alebeck v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 39 Minn. 424.

See also Anderson v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 65 Iowa 131; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 377, where a check was issued to two persons jointly, who sued jointly.

3. Competency of Witnesses.—See WITNESSES; 1 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 348; Wharton on Ev. § 419; Harlow v. Fitchburgh etc. R. Co., 8 Gray (Mass.) 237; Davis v. Michigan Southern etc. R. Co., 22 Ill. 278.

Evidence.—Testimony by a custom-house inspector as to the value of personal baggage usually carried by emigrants is admissible to prove value of certain baggage that was lost. Carlson v. Oceanic S. Navigation Co., 109 N. Y. 359; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 215.

In an action for the loss of baggage, declarations of the company's servant that he could not find it are admissible in evidence. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 Ohio St. 647; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 246. See also Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Troustine, 64 Miss. 834; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 99.

4. Damages.—Texas etc. R. Co. v. Ferguson (Tex. 1882), 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 395; Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Warren (Wyoming Ter. 1885), 6 Pac. Rep. 724; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 302; DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 31; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 905, et seq.

In another case it is said that where

Where the passenger has a through ticket for passage over several connecting lines and baggage is checked from the initial station through to his destination, the question of liability for its loss becomes more complicated. There is no doubt that each company is liable if it can be shown that the loss occurred on its own line.¹ It is equally certain that if the several connecting lines are united continuous lines and parts of one system, each is responsible for the loss, since the whole constitute but one line, and are each the agents or partners of the others.² Where the connecting lines are distinct and independent the better rule seems to be that a carrier checking baggage through is not liable for a loss occurring beyond its own line in the absence of an express contract;³ there is only a burden of proof upon him to show there is no proof as to the value of the contents of the lost trunk, or of what they consisted, the jury may give damages proportioned to the value of the articles which they, in their judgment, think the trunk did and might fairly contain. Dill v. South Carolina R. Co., 7 Rich. (S. Car.) 158; 62 Am. Dec. 497.

Damages cannot be recovered for expense incurred in making search for lost baggage. Texas etc. R. Co. v. Ferguson (Texas, 1882), 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 395.

Exemplary damages may be awarded where the passenger's baggage was wrongfully carried beyond the station at which he desired it to be delivered to him, if the injury be committed willfully or with such negligence as indicates a wanton disregard of the rights of others. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Lyon, 123 Pa. St. 140; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 231.

Delay of Baggage—Measure of Damages.—In a suit against a railroad for damages and expenses incurred by delay of baggage, it is competent to show the damages sustained by reason of being compelled to buy clothes to supply the place of those delayed in their delivery by the company; also in waiting for the arrival of the goods. The difference in the value of the goods when they were delivered, and when they should have been delivered, forms no measure of damages. International etc. R. Co. v. Phillips, 63 Tex. 590.

1. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Fahey, 52 Ill. 81; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Roach, 35 Kan. 740; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 257.

In McCormick v. Hudson River R. Co., 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 181, the last of several connecting lines was held liable for the loss of baggage, since it was shown that the baggage had been safely delivered to it.

In Lin v. Terre Haute etc. R. Co., 10 Mo. App. 125, it was held that evidence that when delivered by the last carrier baggage was broken open and part of its contents missing is prima facie evidence that the loss occurred through the negligence or fraud of the last carrier.

2. Joint Liability.—Barter v. Wheeler, 49 N. H. 9; Texas etc. R. Co. v. Ferguson (Tex. 1882), 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 395; Texas etc. R. Co. v. Fort (Tex. 1882), 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 392; Hart v. Rensselaer etc. R. Co., 8 N. Y. 37; Peterson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 80 Iowa 92.

2 Redfield on Rys. (6th ed.), § 171, par. 2.

3. Connecting but Independent Lines.—The rule of the text seems to be supported by principle as well as authority. The undertaking on the part of the initial carrier is to transport the passenger and his baggage safely along its line and to deliver the latter to the connecting line in good order. And unless a special contract or undertaking to do more can be proven there can exist no liability on such carrier's part for losses beyond its own line. Central Trust Co. v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 31 Fed. Rep. 247; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 103; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Connell, 112 Ill. 295; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 339; Felder v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 21 S. Car. 35; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 264 (sale of through ticket no evidence of a joint liability between the roads); Isaacson v. New York Cent. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 297; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 188; Milnor v. New York etc. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 363; 5 Am. Ry. Rep. 381; delivery in good order to its connecting line.¹ This rule, however, is not universally accepted, and, it must be conceded, there is much conflict of authority in the various jurisdictions.²

2 Rorer on Railroads 997; TICKETS AND FARES; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 859, et seq.

This rule is particularly true when the initial carrier expressly stipulates that it acts only as the agent of connecting roads. Pennsylvania Cent. R. Co. v. Schwarzenberger, 45 Pa. St. 208; Fowles v. Great Western R. Co., 7 Exch. 699.

1. Montgomery etc. R. Co. v. Culver, 75 Ala. 587; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 411; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 41 Ala. 486; 94 Am. Dec. 607.

Must Deliver to Connecting Carrier.

—In checking baggage through it is a part of the contract that the carrier will deliver the baggage to the connecting line in safe condition; if it deliver it to the right line its responsibility is terminated; if it does not, but there is a misdelivery, it remains liable as an insurer. Isaacson v. New York Cent. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 278; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 188; Johnson v. New York Cent. R. Co., 33 N. Y. 610; Condict v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 54 N. Y. 500.

The proprietors of a railroad, who receive passengers and commence their carriage at the station of another road, are bound to have a servant there to take charge of the baggage, until it is placed in their cars; and if it is the custom of the baggage-master of the station, in the absence of such servant, to receive and take charge of baggage in his stead, the proprietors will be responsible for baggage so delivered to him. Jordan v. Fall River R. Co., 5 Cush. (Mass.) 69.

2. Kansas.—In Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Roach, 35 Kan. 740; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 257, the rule previously stated in the text is qualified, and it is said that the sale of a through ticket for a single fare, together with the checking of the baggage through, is evidence of an undertaking by the initial carrier to carry the whole distance, and in the absence of any evidence as to limitation of its liability, it becomes liable for all losses of baggage wherever occurring. Any company, however, on whose line the loss can be shown to have occurred can be held liable.

Tennessee.—The view of the Kansas case just cited is also that taken in Tennessee. Louisville etc. R. Co. v.

Weaver, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 38; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 48; Furstenheim v. Memphis etc. R. Co., 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 238; 19 Am. Ry. Rep. 409. In this latter case the plaintiff bought a through ticket from the Pennsylvania railroad at New York, to Memphis, and had his baggage checked through. It was held in a suit against the last connecting line that there was no privity of contract between it and the road selling the ticket and therefore it was not responsible for the loss.

See also East Tenn. etc. R. Co. v. Montgomery, 44 Ga. 278.

Ohio.—The courts of Ohio take the same view as those of Kansas and Tennessee, and hold that the collection of fare for the entire route and the checking of the baggage through is evidence of an undertaking to carry the baggage safely throughout the entire route. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Campbell, 36 Ohio St. 647; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 246.

Wisconsin.—In Candee v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 21 Wis. 582, the court inclined to the opinion now held by the Kansas and Tennessee courts, but the point was not adjudicated.

In this case the plaintiff had a through ticket to New York with the option of going via A or P. He had his baggage checked via A, but before reaching A he had it rechecked via P. It was held that the railroad company entered into no new contract by rechecking the trunk, but was merely acting in pursuance of the original agreement.

Georgia.—In Georgia the rule is laid down that where the passenger has a through ticket, with a coupon for each road, and his baggage is checked through, he can hold the last line responsible. It is said that this line may reimburse itself from that one of the links of the combination whose fault or negligence lost the baggage. Wolff v. Central R. Co., 68 Ga. 653; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 441; Savannah etc. R. Co. v. McIntosh, 73 Ga. 532; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 269.

In the case of Hawley v. Screven, 62 Ga. 347, it was held that the initial carrier was responsible for the loss of baggage, even though it proved delivery to the next connecting line.

XV. LIABILITY FOR THE CREATION OR MAINTENANCE OF NUISANCES

—1. Generally.—Aside from the law relating to nuisances by railroads, as already presented, there is little to be said in this connection.¹ The general principles which determine what constitutes a nuisance, and the remedy applicable, apply here as well as in other cases.²

1. Cross - References.—See NUISANCES, vol. 16, p. 922, et seq.

Indictment of railroad corporations for erecting or maintaining nuisances is treated in CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 267; infra, this title, Liability to Indictment.

Nuisances by railroad companies in the occupation or obstruction of highways is treated in HIGHWAYS, vol. 9, p. 408; STREETS.

2. What Constitutes a Nuisance.—As sufficient definitions have already been given, it may be enough to present mere instances here. The following have been held to constitute a nuisance:

The keeping of the iron rails of a railroad six or eight inches above the level of a highway at the public crossing. Paducah etc. R. Co. v. Com., 80 Ky. 147.

Workshops causing noise and smoke, thereby injuring church property adjacent. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church, 108 U. S. 317; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 15; First Baptist Church v. Schenectady etc. R. Co., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 79; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Angel, 41 N. J. Eq. 316; 56 Am. Rep. 1.

A bridge causing overflow is a continuing nuisance. Omaha etc. R. Co. v. Standen, 22 Neb. 343; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 179.

The crossing of a turnpike by trains at a rate of from 15 to 20 miles an hour without warnings or signals. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Com., 80 Ky. 143; 44 Am. Rep. 468.

Also a bridge over a navigable stream which interferes with navigation. Any party whose boat is stopped by such bridge has a cause of action. Little Rock R. Co. v. Brooks, 39 Ark. 403; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 152.

A damming or partial damming of a creek in certain cases. Union Trust Co. v. Cuppy, 26 Kan. 574; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 162.

Engine-house near dwelling, so used as to practically deprive the occupant of the use of his house as a residence. Cogswell v. New York etc. R. Co., 103 N. Y. 10; 56 Am. Rep. 6, note; 27 Am.

& Eng. R. Cas. 376 (injunction granted).

Steam-engine used to work cable for propelling street cars under license from municipality, causing noise, smoke, and jarring of adjacent buildings. Tuebner v. California Street R. Co., 66 Cal. 171; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 147.

A heap of refuse on land near highway, liable to frighten horses. Brown v. Eastern etc. R. Co., 22 Q. B. Div. 391; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558. Or a hand-car left on track, so loaded as to frighten horses. Cincinnati R. Co. v. Com., 80 Ky. 139.

A grade crossing in a particular case. Appeal of New York etc. R. Co., 58 Conn. 532; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 109.

Allowing cars to remain on the track in a street, whereby ingress and egress of abutting landowner is obstructed. Frankle v. Jackson, 30 Fed. Rep. 398; Angel v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 38 N. J. Eq. 58. Compare Lakkie v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 44 Minn. 438.

A railroad company which habitually runs its trains without giving reasonable and proper signals at crossings is indictable for nuisance, irrespective of whether any express law prescribed the duty of giving signals. The obligation to give reasonable signals is implied by law wherever a person assumes to conduct a highly dangerous operation or business. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Com., 13 Bush (Ky.) 388; 26 Am. Rep. 205.

And in general, all those impediments and obstructions to the free use of roads and streets which are not absolutely necessary to the making and using of the railroad are nuisances, whether the obstruction be expressly prohibited or not, and whether the company be expressly required to construct another road or not. Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Adams, 3 Head (Tenn.) 596.

In a suit to enjoin the building of a track across a street, plaintiff showed that he owned improved property on one of the streets where he lived and did business as a retail merchant; that the street on both sides of the proposed crossing was populous, filled with stores, shops, boarding houses, residences, etc.; that the proposed track would divert travel from it, thereby decreasing the value of his property, and taking away some of his trade. It was held a sufficient showing of special injury to entitle the plaintiff to an injunction. Glaessner v. Anheuser-Busch Brew. Assoc., 100 Mo. 508. Compare Fogg v. Nevada etc. R. Co., 20 Nev. 429.

In Streets and Highways.—The occupation of a street or highway by a railroad without authority of law is a continuing nuisance. Denver etc. R. Co. v. Denver City R. Co., 2 Colo. 673; Cain v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 54 Iowa 255; Kavanaugh v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 78 Ga. 271; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 267; Fanning v. Osborne, 102 N. Y. 441; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 252; Uline v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 101 N. Y. 98; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 3. And even when authority has been granted to occupy the street, any obstruction beyond what is absolutely necessary, is a nuisance. Harmon v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 87 Tenn. 614; Pennsylvania etc. R. Co. v. Angel, 41 N. J. Eq. 316; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 559; Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Adams, 3 Head (Tenn.) 596.

Where a track is laid in a highway for passenger purposes, the use of it for the operation of freight cars is a public nuisance. McCartney v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ill. 611; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 326.

The carrying along the highway of freight cars loaded with offensive matter, constitutes a private nuisance to any who suffer thereby. Neitzey v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 5 Mackey (D. C.) 34; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 553.

It is held in several cases that a railroad track in a street is not necessarily a public nuisance per se. Nor can it be said as a matter of law that it is an obstruction, but that the fact that it is a nuisance must be proven. Wabash etc. R. Co. v. People, 12 Ill. App. 448; State v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 86 Ind. 114; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286; Com. v. Wilkes Barre etc. R. Co., 127 Pa. St. 278.

So where a company has acquired the right to run through a city street, the laying of a second track is not necessarily a nuisance; the circumstances of the case and the actual hindrance must be considered. Davis v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 46 Iowa 389.

For non-compliance with the requirement that a railroad company shall make and maintain proper approaches to a bridge made to carry the highway over the tracks an indictment for nuisance will lie. People v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 74 N. Y. 302. See also Springfield v. Connecticut River R. Co., 4 Cush. (Mass.) 63.

Other cases of nuisance may be seen in Central R. Co. v. English, 73 Ga. 366; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 530 (pond of water); Wayland v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 75 Mo. 548; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 543; Drake v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Iowa 302; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 45; Neitzey v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 5 Mackey (D. C.) 34; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 553; Porterfield v. Bond, 38 Fed. Rep. 391; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 48 (unlawful rate of speed).

What Are Not Nuisances.—Barb wire fence is not a nuisance, and company is not liable for the death of a colt caused by the animal's running against it. Hillyard v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 8 Ont. Rep. 583; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 154.

Nor are sheds when built in conformity to ordinance of town. Laviosa v. Chicago etc. R. Co. (La. 1881), 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 128.

Where the railroad crosses a highway below grade, the construction of a bridge of less width than the highway is not, per se, a nuisance. People v. New York etc., 89 N. Y. 266; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 230.

Nuisance Created by Company's Servants.—A railroad company is not responsible for the acts of its employes in creating a nuisance by using a culvert under the railroad near the residence of the plaintiff for the purposes of a privy. Hopkins v. Western Pac. R. Co., 50 Cal. 190.

Authority of Municipal Corporations.—As to the authority of a municipal corporation to declare certain acts or structures a nuisance, and to abate the same, see MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS, vol. 15, pp. 1178-1186; State v. Heidenhain (La. 1890), 7 So. Rep. 621; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 287; Mayor etc. v. Georgia R. Co., 72 Ga. 800; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 477.

Measure of Damages.—The measure of damages is the impairment of the property affected by the nuisance during its continuance. The difference in market value, it is said, cannot be considered. Harmon v. Louisville etc.

2. Effect of Legislative Grant as Affecting Liability.—A company authorized by legislative grant to build and operate a railroad, is thereby relieved from liability for many of the consequences attending the construction and operation of the road, which, in the absence of such grant, would be actionable. The railroad is raised to the dignity of a public use, and the advantages secured to the general public are presumed to compensate for the inconveniences suffered.¹ Therefore, so long as it keeps within the scope of the power granted, a railroad company is completely protected from civil or criminal liability for nuisances arising as a natural and necessary result of the construction and operation of its road.² It is often said that the legislature can in no case

R. Co., 87 Tenn. 614. It must be confined to the time during which the nuisance continued. Quinn v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Iowa 510; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 63. It is a question for the jury. Tuebner v. California St. R. Co., 66 Cal. 171; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 147. See also DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 38; NUISANCE, vol. 16, p. 984, et seq.

Where the action is brought for deterioration in the value of real estate, from a nuisance of a permanent character, all damages for past and future injury to the property may be recovered in one suit; and one recovering such damages will be barred as to all future actions for the same cause. Authorities cited: Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Loeb, 118 Ill. 203; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 415.

Where railroad shops near a church are declared a nuisance, damages are not to be confined to the depreciation in the value of the church property, but extend to the inconvenience and discomfort caused to the congregation assembled. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church, 108 U. S. 317; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 317.

1. Uline v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 101 N. Y. 96; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 3; Clark v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 36 Mo. 202; People v. Law, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; Rex v. Pease, 4 B. & Ad. 30; 24 E. C. L. 17 (Parke, J.); Rex v. Russell, 6 B. & C. 566; 13 E. C. L. 254.

See also BRIDGES, vol. 2, p. 550; FIRES BY RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 547; WATER AND WATER COURSES; NUISANCE, vol. 16, p. 1000.

"There is nothing unreasonable or inconsistent in supposing that the legislature intended that the part of the public using the highway should sus-tain some inconvenience for the sake of the greater good to be obtained by another part of the public in the more speedy traveling along the new road." Parke, J., in Rex v. Pease, 4 B. & Ad. 30; 24 E. R. L. 17.

But where there is no legislative authority to build or operate the road, it is a continuing actionable nuisance. Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. McGehee, 41 Ark. 202; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 82; Denver etc. R. Co. v. Denver City R. Co., 2 Colo. 673.

2. State v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 86 Ind. 114; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286; Hatch v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 28 Vt. 142; Randall v. Jacksonville etc. R. Co., 19 Fla. 409; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 184; Laviosa v. Chicago etc. R. Co. (La. 1881), 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 128; Chope v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 37 Mich. 195; 26 Am. Rep. 512; London etc. R. Co. v. Truman, L. R., 11 App. Cas. 45; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 116 (maintaining cattle yards not enjoined when on land acquired by statute for that purpose); Randall v. Pacific R. Co., 65 Mo. 325; State v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 86 Ind. 114; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 286; Rogers v. Kennebec etc. R. Co., 35 Me. 319; Uline v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 101 N. Y. 98; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 3 (leading case); Billinger v. New York Cent. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 43; Conklin v. New York etc. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 107; People v. Law, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 94; Eaton v. Boston etc. R. Co., 51 N. H. 504; 12 Am. Rep. 147; Com. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Adams, 3 Head (Tenn.) 596; FIRES BY RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1; NUISANCE, vol. 16, p. 1000.

Compare First Baptist Church v. Schenectady etc. R. Co., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 79.

authorize a private nuisance; but this principle, even if correct, cannot be held to deny the right of the legislature to relieve a company from liability for what would otherwise be a public nuisance.¹

A work authorized by law cannot be a nuisance; the term "public nuisance" applies only to something occasioned by acts done in violation of law. Danville etc. R. Co. v. Com., 73 Pa. St. 29; Hinchman v. Patterson Horse R. Co., 17 N. J. Eq. 75; 82 Am. Dec. 252.

Thus where the use of steam engines to draw cars over a street railroad is expressly authorized by an act of the legislature, and by the ordinances of the city council, such use cannot be abated as a public nuisance, even though it tends to the immediate annoyance of the citizens in general. Vason v. South Carolina R. Co., 42 Ga. 631; Hill v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 38 La. Ann. 599.

A railroad track laid upon a street of a city by authority of law, properly constructed and operated in a skillful and careful manner, is not in law a nuisance. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Loeb, 118 Ill. 203; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 415. See also HIGHWAYS, vol. 9, p. 408, et seq.

If a railroad is not built or operated negligently, and the charter authorizes the laying of tracks on a street, the soot, obstructions, jarring, danger, etc., do not constitute a nuisance. The burden of proof of such negligence is upon the party complaining. Randle v. Pacific R. Co., 65 Mo. 325; Parrot v. Cincinnati etc. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 624.

A railroad company, having the right to use streets in a town, cannot be charged with maintaining a public nuisance, where the obstruction caused by their tracks, switches, cars, etc., is no greater than is required by a reasonable use. State v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 86 Ind. 114.

But where a railroad company is authorized to construct its road across any stream of water in such a way as not to impair its usefulness, it is liable for damages caused by the overflow of the stream, owing to the peculiar construction of the bridge. Brown v. Cayuga etc. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 486; Lawrence v. Great Northern River Co., 16 Ad. & El. 643; 71 E. C. L. 643; 20 L. J., Q. B. 293; 6 Ry. Cas. 656.

And the maintenance of a street or other railway by an individual or association of individuals, without legislative authority, is a public nuisance, subjecting the persons to indictment, and also to a private action in favor of any person sustaining special injury. Fanning v. Osborne, 102 N. Y. 441; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 252; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. McGehee, 41 Ark. 202; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 82.

Reason of the Rule.—Private persons have in many cases no action for annoyances attending the construction and operation of a railroad, for the reason that they suffer no special injury, but only one in common with the rest of the public. See Winterbottom v. Lord Derby, L. R., 2 Eq. 316; Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 425; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Philadelphia, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 358; NUISANCE, vol. 16, p. 971. To those persons who suffer by reason of the railroad passing through their land, compensation for such inconveniences is supposed to have been made when the land was first taken, and therefore they have no right of further recovery. Clark v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 36 Mo. 202; EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 547; Porterfield v. Bond, 38 Fed. Rep. 391; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 48 (does not include, however, damages arising from unlawful use). There can be no indictment against the railroad in the cases under consideration, for the State certainly cannot punish one criminally for doing an act which it has itself authorized. Stoughton v. State, 5 Wis. 291; Danville etc. R. Co. v. Com., 73 Pa. St. 29.

Therefore the only case in which an action for nuisance could lie is where a private individual has suffered special damage; and even in such a case it seems that the weight of authority is against his right to recover, where the railroad is built by authority of law, and the inconvenience is one necessarily attending its operation. See the cases cited in the first part of this note. See also NUISANCE, vol. 16, p. 1003.

1. That a legislature can in no case license or legalize a private nuisance or deprive the injured person of his right

This rule as to relief from liability, conferring powers so plainly in derogation of common right, is to be strictly construed, and cannot be allowed to extend so far as to exempt companies from liability for unnecessary or unauthorized nuisances.¹ Every annoyance arising from the existence of the road which would otherwise be a nuisance is actionable as such unless it be an absolutely necessary accompaniment to the proper operation of the road.²

to recover is asserted in Lexington etc. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.) 301; 33 Am. Dec. 507.

But admitting this to be true within a certain limit, it is too well settled to be successfully controverted that an act done under authority of law if done in a proper manner and within the scope of the authority granted, will not subject the actor to liability for the consequences, unless damages are specially provided for as compensation; the only ground of liability in such cases is a failure to use proper care and skill in the execution of what is authorized. Selden v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 29 N. Y. 642; Bellinger v. New York Cent. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 42; Radcliff v. Mayor etc. of Brooklyn, 4 N. Y. 195; 53 Am. Dec. 357; Lawrence v. Great Northern R. Co., 16 Ad. & El. N. S. 643; 71 E. C. L. 643; Conklin v. New York etc. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 112; Danville etc. R. Co. v. Com., 73 Pa. St. 29; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Loeb, 119 Ill. 203; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 415.

See also Wood on Nuisances, §§ 753, et seq.; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 212.

1. Richardson v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 25 Vt. 465; 60 Am. Dec. 283; Reg. v. Bradford Nav. Co., 6 B. & S. 631; 118 E. C. L. 628; Biscoe v. Great Eastern R. Co., L. R., 16 Eq. Cas. 640; Harmon v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 87 Tenn. 614; NUISANCE, vol. 16, p. 1001.

Thus where a railroad authorized by its charter to be made at one place is made at another, it is a mere nuisance on every highway it touches in its illegal course. Com. v. Erie etc. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339.

The statutory sanction which will justify an injury to private property must be express or must be given by clear and unmistakable implication from the powers expressly conferred, so that it can be fairly said that the legislature contemplated the doing of the very act which occasioned the injury.

Cogswell v. New York etc. R. Co., 103 N. Y. 10; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 376; 57 Am. Rep. 701.

In the case of Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church, 108 U. S. 317; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 15, an act of Congress had authorized a railroad company to bring its tracks within the limits of the city of Washington and to construct such works as were necessary and expedient for the completion and maintenance of its road. It was held that whatever might be the extent of the authority conferred, it was accompanied by the implied qualification that the works should not be so placed as by their use to unreasonably interfere with and disturb the peaceful and comfortable enjoyment of others in their property. And therefore when the company under such act had constructed workshops immediately adjoining a church building, and in the necessary use of these shops, created much noise, smoke, soot, etc., whereby the worshippers in the church were greatly discommoded and the usefulness of the church greatly impaired, the authority granted constituted no defense, and the company was liable for the injuries resulting even from a proper conduct of such workshops. See also First Baptist Church v. Schenectady etc. R. Co., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 79. Compare First Baptist Church v. Utica etc. R. Co., 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 313.

General authority to run the road through a street does not give the right to use such street as a terminal point. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Angel, 41 N. J. Eq. 316; 56 Am. Rep. 1 (as a freight yard). Neitzey v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 5 Mackey (D. C.) 34; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 553.

2. Thus while the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles is necessary to some extent and therefore authorized, the authority will not justify constant ringing and blowing, which is more than what is necessary for public safety, and is greatly to the annoyance of peo-

XVI. LIABILITY TO INDICTMENT—(See also CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, pp. 267-272).—The most frequent instances of the indictment of railroad companies are for maintaining a public nuisance, or under a statute providing for liability in cases where persons are injured or killed owing to the negligence of the company. The form and accuracy of the indictment does not differ from that required in ordinary criminal cases.¹

ple dwelling near the road. First Baptist Church v. Schenectady etc. R. Co., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 79.

Noise, smoke, etc., are unavoidable accompaniments to the operation of a railroad, but the duty lies upon the railroad company to make use of all devices practicable in order to lessen the annoyance as much as possible. Mumford v. Oxford etc. R. Co., 1 H. & N. 34; Burton v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 4 Harr. (Del.) 252; 1 Wood's Ry. Law, § 213.

So also the company must provide the best machinery and devices known to prevent the escape of fire from their engines. Bedford v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 46 Mo. 456; Gandy v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 30 Iowa 420; FIRES BY RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1, et seq.

In the case of Louisville etc. R. Co. v. State, 3 Head (Tenn.) 524, it is said: "Undoubtedly, so long as the company keeps within its charter, it is not liable for a nuisance permissible under that charter. The work must be constructed without inconvenience to the public; but if it cannot be done without some inconvenience, it must be done with the least possible inconvenience."

1. Form of Indictment.—Indictment must state facts constituting the offense; it cannot be aided by intendment. State v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Iowa 508; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 170; Palatka etc. R. Co. v. State, 23 Fla. 546; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 191 (crossing highway outside authorized route); INDICTMENT, vol. 10, p. 666.

In Savannah etc. R. Co. v. State, 23 Fla. 579; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 182, it is said that an allegation that the highway was "unnecessarily and unreasonably obstructed," omitting to say "willfully" was insufficient. But in another case it is held that an averment that "the same was willfully and knowingly" done was surplusage and entirely unnecessary. State v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 24 W. Va. 809; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 429. In the first case, however, it was provided by statute that the common law usage be altered.

See generally Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 133 Mass. 383; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 297; Texas etc. R. Co. v. State, 41 Ark. 488; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 626.

For Negligently Causing Death.—Statutes exist in several of the States providing for the indictment of a railroad company for the death of a person caused by its negligence. Thus, in Maine, there is a statute providing that any railroad company by whose negligence or that of its servants the life of any person, exercising due care and diligence, is lost shall forfeit not less than $500 nor more than $5,000, to be recovered by indictment found within one year.

These statutes are designed to create a civil and not a criminal liability; they are intended as a substitute for Lord Campbell's act, and therefore the same rules of evidence and the same principles of law are to be applied in the trial under the indictment as in analogous civil actions for damages. State v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 58 Me. 176; State v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 77 Me. 490; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 216 (prosecution cannot be permitted to enter a nolle prosequi during the trial); State v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 52 N. H. 528.

Therefore the burden of proof is upon the party prosecuting to show that the deceased person was free from all contributory negligence; the amount of the forfeiture between the minimum and maximum sums is to be assessed by the jury. State v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 76 Me. 357; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 312. It must be against the corporation and not the individuals composing it; in one case it was said that it should also show that there is a surviving relative of the deceased entitled to the fine. State v. Gilmore, 24 N. H. 461; Boston etc. R. Co. v. State, 32 N. H. 215; Com. v. Eastern R. Co., 5 Gray (Mass.) 473.

The remedy by indictment is said to

The subject of the indictment of railroad and other corporations for maintaining nuisances has already received attention in another article. In the note will be found a presentation of later authorities.¹

be limited to cases where the injured person dies immediately, and is never applicable to employes of the road. State v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 60 Me. 290.

The form of the indictment, however, is to be governed by principles of the criminal law. State v. Manchester etc. R. Co., 52 N. H. 528; State v. Wentworth, 37 N. H. 196.

It need not set out the names of the servants or agents of the corporation who are guilty of the negligence, nor the manner of such negligence. Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 11 Cush. (Mass.) 512. Nor need it negative the existence of circumstances which under a proviso in the statute would exonerate the defendant from liability. Com. v. Fitchburg R. Co., 10 Allen (Mass.) 189.

A memorandum indorsed on a season ticket relieving the company from liability is no defense to an indictment. Com. v. Vermont etc. Co., 108 Mass. 7.

In the case of Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 129 Mass. 500; 37 Am. Rep. 382; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 457, it was held that the person had ceased to be a passenger by leaving the train while in motion, and therefore no indictment could be sustained against the company for his death.

The Massachusetts statute has been changed several times. See for various decisions, Com. v. Fitchburg, 120 Mass. 372; Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 133 Mass. 383; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 297; Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 11 Cush. (Mass.) 512; Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co., 126 Mass. 61; Com. v. Brockton St. R. Co., 143 Mass. 501.

Later statutes have provided an additional remedy in the form of an action against the company by the deceased's next of kin as in other States. A special remedy is also provided where a servant of the company is killed. See Massachusetts Pub. Sts. ch. 112, § 212; Massachusetts Stats. 1883, ch. 243; Daley v. Boston etc. R. Co., 147 Mass. 101; 33 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 298.

In Other Cases.—Missouri Rev. Stat. § 197 amended by Laws 1881, p. 77, require all railroad companies to erect depots where their roads cross other railroads, and provides a penalty for failure to do so. Under this the indictment must allege that both the connecting roads were carriers of passengers. State v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 83 Mo. 144; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 133.

An indictment of a railroad company under New Hampshire Gen. Laws, ch. 163, § 2, for not affording reasonable transportation facilities, need not allege that the acts were unlawful, nor that the merchandise was the property of the person trying to transport it. State v. Concord R. Co., 59 N. H. 85.

Under U. S. Rev. St., § 4386, et seq., fixing a penalty for the offense of confining animals in transit in cars for more than twenty-eight consecutive hours without unloading them for five hours for rest, water and food, a railroad company, one of several companies owning connecting lines, is liable only for a default occurring upon its own line, except that the time for which the animals had been confined when delivered to the company which it is sought to charge with the penalty must be counted against such company as part of the twenty-eight consecutive hours. U. S. v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 18 Fed. Rep. 480.

As to indictments for a violation of Sunday laws, see SUNDAY; Com. v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 80 Ky. 291; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 216; State v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 15 W. Va. 362; 36 Am. Rep. 803.

1. See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 269-272. Indictment lies against a railroad company for establishing and maintaining a nuisance. Northern Cent. R. Co. v. Com., 90 Pa. St. 300; 5 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 318.

An instruction that if a bridge obstructed or hindered enjoyment of the public in the highway it was a nuisance was held error in People v. New York etc. R. Co., 89 N. Y. 266; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 230. See also Palatka etc. R. Co. v. State, 23 Fla. 546; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 191.

The indictment must aver that the acts of obstruction were not committed in the course of the construction of the road, or that they were so committed and not afterward repaired. State v.

XVII. CRIMES AGAINST RAILROADS.—There are various statutes intended to prevent the commission of criminal offenses against railroad companies, whereby the lives of passengers and employes would be threatened; such are statutes against the wrecking of trains, the using of railroad signals in order to deceive those in charge of the train, etc.¹

Chicago etc. R. Co., 63 Iowa 508; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 170.

On the trial of an indictment for obstructing the highway the defendant may show that the railroad is in possession of and run by another company. State v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 24 W. Va. 809; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 429. Statutes providing for an indictment for obstructing a "highway, tramway or street" do not apply to the obstruction of a private way. Com. v. Boston etc. R. Co. 135 Mass. 550.

A railroad company is liable to indictment for a failure to keep a crossing or a bridge in repair. Paducah etc. R. Co. v. Com., 80 Ky. 147; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 318; Reg. v. Birmingham etc. R. Co., 9 C. & P. 469; 38 E. C. L. 187; New York etc. R. Co. v. State, 50 N. J. L. 303; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 186.

Or for any nonfeasance misdemeanor. Texas etc. R. Co. v. State, 41 Ark. 483; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 626.

If a railway company lays its track upon the highway, it becomes bound to the public that the highway shall be put in as good repair as it was before; and for a failure to do this it may be indicted. Gear v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 43 Iowa 83.

It is no defense to an indictment for occupying a highway with cars more than five minutes, that the employes were specially instructed not to permit such occupation; that reasonable care was used in the selection of the employes; that the occupation was without intent to obstruct and could not be avoided, and that reasonable diligence was used to remove the obstruction. Com. v. New York etc. R. Co., 112 Mass. 412.

1. Wrecking Trains—Placing Obstructions on Track.—Independently of the criminal liability at common law for endangering life by obstructing the railway track in order to wreck a train, it is made a crime by statute in most of the States to wreck or attempt to wreck a train in any way. For the character of these statutes in the various States, the codes must be consulted.

If a party willfully and maliciously places an obstruction on the track so that life is endangered, it is no defense that he intended other mischief (i. e., to stop the train and claim a reward), and that he did not intend to endanger life. State v. Beckman, 57 N. H. 174; Crawford v. State, 15 Lea (Tenn.) 343; 54 Am. Rep. 423. No specific intent to endanger need be shown. Clifton v. State, 73 Ala. 473; People v. Adams, 16 Hun (N. Y.) 549. In this last case the party got upon an engine on a side track, ran it off ten miles, and then back westward on a track used only for trains going eastward.

Nor an intent to injure any particular person. Com. v. Bakeman, 105 Mass. 53.

So also one who willfully puts an obstruction on the track endangering the safety of passengers is guilty, even though no engine or train be stopped or impeded. State v. Kilty, 28 Minn. 421; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 153.

To warrant a conviction under the Texas statute, the evidence must show that the obstruction might have endangered human life. Bullion v. State, 7 Tex. App. 462.

Where, for the purpose of securing evidence against the accused, a detective employed by the railroad company places an obstruction on its track, not intending to cause any damage to trains, the defendant is not guilty, even though he is present and advises and encourages the act, believing that it is done with a criminal intent. State v. Douglass (Kan. 1891), 26 Pac. Rep. 476.

Under 3 & 4 Vict., ch. 97, § 15, it is a crime to place an obstruction upon a railway track, even though the road has not yet been opened up for traffic. Reg. v. Bradford, 8 Cox C. C. 309.

In Reg. v. Upton, 5 Cox C. C. 298, it is held that the mischievous placing of an obstruction on a track by boys was sufficient to justify the finding that it was done maliciously.

In another case the defendants, two boys, went upon the premises of a railway company and played with a heavy cart, which was near the railway. It ran down an embankment by its own impetus and obstructed the railway. The boys made no attempt to remove it. It was held that the first act being a trespass, and therefore unlawful, the boys might properly be convicted of obstructing a railway. Reg. v. Monaghan, 11 Cox C. C. 608. See also Roberts v. Preston, 9 C. B., N. S. 206; 99 E. C. L. 208 (placing rubbish on track).

Under the Indiana statute, it is said that it is not necessary that the indictment allege that the obstruction was such as would endanger the passage of trains or throw the engines or cars from the track. Riley v. State, 95 Ind. 446. See also Coghill v. State, 37 Ind. 117.

Under the Texas statute (Penal Code of Texas, art. 678), an indictment following the language of the statute and charging that the defendant did willfully place an obstruction upon the track of a railroad, "whereby the lives of persons were endangered," is sufficient without specifying the persons whose lives were endangered. Barton v. State, 28 Tex. App. 482; Com. v. Hicks, 7 Allen (Mass.) 573. See also, as to form of indictment, State v. Wentworth, 37 N. H. 196; Com. v. Bakeman, 105 Mass. 53.

In the same case, testimony was admitted to show that the defendant placed another obstruction on the track three-fourths of a mile from the one charged in the indictment, and very soon after the first. It was held that though they were separate and distinct offenses, yet being contemporaneous, the commission of the second was admissible to show the motive and intent of the first, and also as a part of the res gestæ. Barton v. State, 28 Tex. App. 483.

The Georgia act (October 12, 1885), making it a criminal offense to wreck railroad trains, applies to all railroads, whether duly chartered as such or not, and therefore includes street railways. Hodge v. State, 82 Ga. 643; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 520; Price v. State, 74 Ga. 378.

The Tennessee criminal statute relating to obstructions whereby cars, etc., are thrown off the track, does not mention hand-cars. It therefore does not apply to the placing of an obstruction on a track which throws off a hand-car. Harris v. State, 14 Lea (Tenn.) 485. See also Crawford v. State, 15 Lea (Tenn.) 343; 54 Am. Rep. 423.

A breach of the contract by which the railroad company secured the right of way over certain lands does not justify the land-owner in placing obstructions on the track where it crosses his land. State v. Hessenkamp, 17 Iowa 25.

Removing Rails, Sleepers, etc.—Section 476 of the Minnesota Penal Code provides that "a person who displaces, removes, injures, or destroys a rail, sleeper, switch, bridge, viaduct, culvert, embankment, or structure, or any part thereof, attached or appertaining to, or connected with a railway, whether operated by steam or by horses . . . is punishable, etc." It was held that this did not apply to such a structure as a fence, it not constituting any part of the railroad proper. State v. Walsh, 43 Minn. 444; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 623.

Selling Tickets.—In State v. Fry, 81 Ind. 7; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 340, it was held that a person could not be indicted for selling half fare or excursion tickets without license, under 1 Rev. Stat. (Indiana) 1876, p. 259, regulating the issuing of tickets.

Shooting or Throwing at Cars.—A North Carolina statute provides a penalty by fine or imprisonment for throwing or shooting at or into any railroad car, locomotive, or train, etc. In State v. Boyd, 86 N. Car. 634; 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 155, an indictment under this statute was held insufficient, because it failed to charge that the offense was committed while the train was in motion or stopped for a temporary purpose. See also State v. Hinson, 82 N. Car. 597.

Making Use of Signals Without Authority.—Where a person improperly went upon a railway, and stood up, signaling the train to stop by holding up his hands, it was held that this was an obstruction of a railway engine within the meaning of 24 & 25 Vict., ch 97; Reg. v. Hardy, 11 Cox C. C. 656.

Alterations of the signals by a drunken man, so as to cause a train to stop, is also an obstruction. Reg. v. Hadfield, 11 Cox C. C. 574, L. R., 1 Cr. Cas. Res. 253.

Generally.—Alabama Code (1876), § 4239, provides a punishment in the case of "any person who wantonly or ma-

XVIII. LIABILITY FOR TORTS.¹—Almost every matter which should belong under this heading has received treatment in other articles.

1. For Negligent Injury Generally.—See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16 p. 386, et seq.; CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS, vol. 2, p. 738; CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 15; COMPARATIVE NEGLIGENCE, vol. 3, p. 367.

2. Liability for Injuries to Servants and Employees.—See FELLOW SERVANTS, vol. 7, pp. 821, et seq.; MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, pp. 842, et seq.

3. Liability for Fires Caused by Operation of Road.²—See FIRES BY OPERATION OF RAILWAYS, vol. 8, p. 1, et seq.

4. Liability for Injuries Caused from Failure to Fence Track.—See FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906, et seq.

liciously injures any railroad in this State . . . or places any obstruction or impediment thereon, or salts stock thereon." It is held that this creates three distinct offenses. Clifton v. State, 73 Ala. 473.

Michigan Gen. Ry. Acts (1873), art. 4, § 12, provides against willful acts endangering the lives of railway employes or travelers. It is held that the offense of shooting at a brakeman is cognizable under the general criminal law and not under this act. People v. Dunkel, 39 Mich. 255.

1. In case of injuries to passengers the liability of the company is not a contractual one only. The contract of carriage creates the relation of passenger and carrier and the high and special duties accompanying that relation. For an injury received resulting from a failure to carry safely, the passenger may sue in tort for a breach of the carrier's duty though that duty was created by contract. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 424; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Kemp, 61 Md. 619; 48 Am. Rep. 134; 18 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 220, note; Ansell v. Waterhouse, 6 M. & S. 385; Angell on Carriers, § 422; Heim v. McCaughan, 32 Miss. 17; Frink v. Potter, 17 Ill. 406; Green v. Morris etc. R. Co., 24 N. J. L. 486.

The character of the action as to whether ex contractu or ex delicto must be determined by the nature of the grievance rather than the form of the declaration; and in suits against common carriers for a breach of their public duty to put passengers off at the proper station, the courts are inclined to consider the action as founded in tort unless it clearly appear otherwise. New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Hearst, 36 Miss. 660; 74 Am. Dec. 785; Cregin v. Brooklyn etc. R. Co., 75 N. Y. 192.

Conflict of Laws.—Where a statute declares that persons shall be liable for negligence notwithstanding the death of the injured person, and a subsequent provision confers the right of action only upon the personal representatives of the deceased, the right to bring the action is not merely part of the remedy and governed by the lex fori, but is part of the right conferred by the statute and is governed by the law of the State in which the statute has been enacted. Usher v. West Jersey R. Co., 126 Pa. St. 206; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 508.

See generally as to questions of conflict of laws in actions against railroad companies for torts committed by them, CONFLICT OF LAWS, vol. 3, p. 521; DEATH, vol. 5, p. 127; New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Wallace, 50 Miss. 250; O'Reilly v. New York etc. R. Co., 16 R. I. 388; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 50; Laird v. Connecticut etc. R. Co., 62 N. H. 254; 43 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 63; Usher v. West Jersey R. Co., 126 Pa. St. 206; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 508, 514, note 7, where the subject is examined in length.

2. In this connection two or three exceptional cases may be noticed. In the case of Metallic Compression Co. v. Fitchburg R. Co., 109 Mass. 277, a fire company, in order to obtain the only available supply of water to throw upon a building, which was on fire, laid its hose across a railroad track. It appeared that the application of the water diminished the fire, and would probably

5. Liability for Injuries at Crossings.—See CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 906, et seq.

6. Liability for Wrongful Acts or Defaults of Its Servants.—See MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 17, pp. 805-815.

7. Liability Where One Company Uses the Track of Another.—The liability in such cases must depend upon the peculiar circumstances of each separate case.¹ A company which allows another railway company to use its tracks must be liable for all injuries occurring from its own negligence in the care of its road-bed and tracks, and for injuries to its own passengers, even when the result of the negligence of the other company.² And a company run-have extinguished it had not the servants of the railroad company run a train over the hose and severed it, thereby cutting off the supply of water. Those in charge of the train had abundant notice that the hose was on the track, and might have stopped the train; evidence showed that the railroad company were negligent in other respects also. It was held that the severing of the hose was the proximate cause of the destruction of the building, and the railroad company, having been negligent, was liable for the damage caused; and that the firemen in laying the hose across the track were merely in the exercise of a common law right, which permits a temporary appropriation of private property for public exigencies. See also Hyde Park v. Gay, 120 Mass. 589; Atchison v. New Castle etc. R. Co., L. R., 6 Ex. 404; Pierce on Railroads, p. 267.

But in another case, Mott v. Hudson River R. Co., 1 Robt. (N. Y.) 585; 8 Bosw. (N. Y.) 345, on a somewhat similar state of facts, the company was held not liable, the court maintaining that the damages caused by the spreading of a fire in consequence of the company's negligently injuring a hose actually in use in extinguishing it, whereby the only available supply of water for this purpose was cut off, were too remote to sustain an action.

1. A Tennessee case states the doctrine that if a train of cars of one railroad company, running on the road of another company, be under the exclusive control of the servants of the latter, the latter is liable for all damages occurring through negligence. But if the servants of both parties jointly control the train, both companies are liable. Nashville etc. R. Co. v. Carroll, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 347.

A similar view is taken in Harper v. Newport News etc. R. Co. (Ky. 1890), 14 S. W. Rep. 346.

2. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Barrow, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 90 (injury to one of its own passengers); Delaware etc. R. Co. v. Salmon, 39 N. J. L. 299; 23 Am. Rep. 214; Mason etc. R. Co. v. Mayes, 49 Ga. 355; 15 Am. Rep. 678; Fort Wayne etc. R. Co. v. Hinebaugh, 43 Ind. 354 (stock-killing case); Ricketts v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co., 33 W. Va. 433; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42; Stetler v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 49 Wis. 609; Lakin v. Willamette Valley etc. R. Co., 13 Oregon 436; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 611; Peoria etc. R. Co. v. Lane, 83 Ill. 448; Parker v. Rensselaer etc. R. Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 315 (owner of road alone liable for defect in roadway).

Compare Harper v. Newport News etc. R. Co. (Ky. 1890), 14 S. W. Rep. 396; Murch v. Concord R. Co., 29 N. H. 35; 61 Am. Dec. 631.

A company is liable for an injury to a passenger upon its line caused by the careless management of a switch, under the control of another company, whereby the two roads are connected. McElroy v. Nashua etc. R. Co., 4 Cush. (Mass.) 400.

Injuries to Servants.—A company leasing its road pursuant to a statutory authority, which does not contain any provision releasing it from the performance of its duties to the public, is liable for personal injuries sustained by the brakeman of the third company, rightfully upon the road, caused by defects in the construction of a station. Nugent v. Boston etc. R. Co., 80 Me. 62; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 52.

But in another case, it is held that an engineer receiving an injury while in the discharge of his duties by colning its trains over the track of another is liable certainly for all the injuries occasioned by its own negligence.¹

8. Where Road Is Operated by Trustees or Receiver.—Trustees operating a road for the benefit of bondholders are personally liable to owners of freight and to passengers to the same extent as if they were the owners of the road.² And they are equally liable for all other injuries resulting from the negligent management and operation of the road.³

lision with a train of another company using that part of the road under a lease from his employer, caused by the negligence of the employes of the lessee company in running a train in violation of the rules of the lessor, cannot recover of his employer if he had knowledge of the agreement with the lessee, such an accident being one of the ordinary perils of the service, and not attributable to the employer's negligence. Clark v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 92 Ill. 43. Compare East Line etc. R. Co. v. Culberson, 72 Tex. 375; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 225.

1. No company can claim release from liability for injuries clearly the proximate result of its own negligence merely because it was at the time using the track of another. Fletcher v. Boston etc. R. Co., 1 Allen (Mass.) 9; 79 Am. Dec. 695; Murch v. Concord R. Co., 29 N. H. 9; 61 Am. Dec. 631 (leading case); Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Kanouse, 39 Ill. 272; 89 Am. Dec. 307; Mills v. Orange etc. R. Co., 1 McArthur (D. C.) 285; Hanover R. Co. v. Coyle, 55 Pa. St. 396; Webb v. Portland etc. R. Co., 37 Me. 117; Mulherrin v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 81 Pa. St. 366; Burchfield v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 589; Eaton v. Boston etc. R. Co., 11 Allen (Mass.) 500.

A railroad company running its trains over the track of another must observe the same precautions for the safety of the public at a crossing as are required of the company running the road. Webb v. Portland etc. R. Co., 37 Me. 117.

If an injury occurs owing to a defect in a car the company using it at the time cannot escape liability by alleging that it belonged to another company. Jetter v. New York etc. R. Co., 2 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 458; Fletcher v. Boston etc. R. Co., 1 Allen (Mass.) 9; 79 Am. Dec. 695.

But a railroad company running its trains over the track of another road, and selling to passengers tickets over both roads, is not liable to such passengers for injuries happening to them while on such other road, through the negligence of the managers of such road or their servants, and without any neglect on the part of itself or its agents. Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421; 70 Am. Dec. 424.

This rule is laid down in Redf. on Railways, p. 303, as follows: "The rule of law in regard to passenger carriers who run over other roads than their own seems now to be pretty well established that the first company is responsible for the entire route, and must take the risk of the negligence of the employes of other companies." Approved in Stettler v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 46 Wis. 497, where a company was held liable for an injury resulting from a defect in a track which did not belong to it.

In Stephens v. Davenport etc. R. Co., 36 Iowa 327, the rule is said to be that where two railroad companies operate trains on the same line, each is liable for the stock injured or killed by its trains by reason of the road being unfenced, and not for that injured by the trains of the other.

A carrier of passengers in his own cars over connecting lines is liable to its passengers as a carrier over the whole route. Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421; 70 Am. Dec. 424.

2. Sprague v. Smith, 29 Vt. 421; 70 Am. Dec. 424; Barter v. Wheeler, 49 N. H. 9; Rogers v. Wheeler, 2 Lans. (N. Y.) 486; 43 N. Y. 598; 52 N. Y. 262; Lamphear v. Buckingham, 33 Conn. 237.

3. Daniels v. Hart, 118 Mass. 543 (fire communicated from engine); Bal-lou v. Farnum, 9 Allen (Mass.) 47 (injury to servant); Farrell v. Union Trust Co., 77 Mo. 475; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 552 (by statute); Stratton v. European etc. R. Co., 76 Me. 269; 17 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 269 (trustee liable to extent of funds received by him); Union Trust Co. v. Cuppy, 26 Kan.

A receiver is regarded as a quasi public officer, and is not personally liable for injuries occurring during his official management of the road,¹ though it is usual to allow him to be sued by leave of court and the damages to be paid out of the funds of the company in his hands.²

The surrender of its control over its road in such cases being involuntary and compulsory, the company ceases to be liable after the management has passed out of its hands,³ unless it allows the road to be operated in its own name or retains partial control of it.⁴

9. Liability for Injuries to Trespassers—a. WHO ARE TRESPASSERS.—In this connection, every person who enters upon the property of a railroad company, either its track, or its cars or engines, without due license or authority, is, so long as he remains there, to be regarded as a trespasser.⁵ License to enter 754; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 562 (trustee liable only as agent—company liable as principal); Grand Tower Mfg. etc. Co. v. Ullman, 89 Ill. 244 (same); Jones v. Seligman, 81 N. Y. 191; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 236.

See also Smith v. Eastern R. Co., 124 Mass. 154.

1. Barton v. Barbour, 104 U. S. 126; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Melendy v. Barbour, 78 Va. 544; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 622; Ryan v. Hays, 62 Tex. 42; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 501; RECEIVERS, where the whole subject is treated.

Compare Blumenthal v. Brainerd, 38 Vt. 402; Newell v. Smith, 49 Vt. 255.

Assignee in Bankruptcy.—An assignee appointed in bankruptcy proceedings is not an agent of the railroad company and is not personally liable for injuries committed in the operation of the road. Metz v. Buffalo etc. R. Co., 58 N. Y. 61; 17 Am. Rep. 201; Cardot v. Barney, 63 N. Y. 281.

2. Pierce on Railroads, p. 285; Klein v. Jewett, 26 N. J. Eq. 474; Murphy v. Holbrook, 20 Ohio St. 137; RECEIVERS.

3. Central etc. R. Co. v. Morris, 68 Tex. 49; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 50; State v. Consolidated etc. R. Co., 67 Me. 479.

In two cases, however, it is said that trustees are merely agents of the company, and it is liable therefore as principal for injuries committed in the operation of the road. Grand Tower Mfg. etc. Co. v. Ullman, 89 Ill. 244; Union Trust Co. v. Cuppy, 26 Kan. 754; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 562.

But a railroad company cannot shift its responsibilities or relieve itself from liability for its wrongdoing by a voluntary surrender of the possession and control of its road by a trust deed. Nagler v. Alexandria etc. R. Co., 83 Va. 707; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 401; Acker v. Alexandria etc. R. Co., 84 Va. 648.

Railroad Property Subject to Public Trust.—A railroad company, having appropriated private property and constructed its road, its capital stock, franchises and other property, stands charged primarily with a public trust. Gates v. Boston etc. R. Co., 53 Conn. 333; 24 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 143. See also Taylor v. South etc. Ala. R. Co., 13 Fed. Rep. 152; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 602.

4. Washington etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 Wall. (U. S.) 445.

Liability of Consolidated Company.—Where two or more railroad companies are consolidated so as to form one corporation, this new corporation assumes all liabilities for the wrongful acts of the old companies. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Moffit, 75 Ill. 524; Coggin v. Central R. Co., 62 Ga. 685; CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 272, n.

5. Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Schmidding, 101 Pa. St. 258; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 548 (loiterer at station platform there for his own amusement); Leary v. Cleveland etc. R. Co., 78 Ind. 323; 3 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 498 (person seeking shelter from a storm in one of the company's buildings); Biddle v. Hesstonville etc. R. Co., 112 Pa. St. 551; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 208 (child riding on platform of street car without paying fare); Mitchel v. Philadelphia etc.

upon the premises of a railroad may be express or implied, and is implied in frequent cases; as, for example, where there is an express or implied invitation;¹ where a railroad crosses a high-

R. Co., 132 Pa. St. 226; Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Bingham, 29 Ohio St. 364 (loiterer at station); Pennsylvania etc. R. Co. v. McMullen, 132 Pa. St. 107; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 505 (boy of ten years of age a trespasser so that he could not recover even though incapable of contributory negligence); Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Hurt (Ky. 1890), 13 S. W. Rep. 275.

A former employé of the company is charged with notice of its regulation forbidding riding in the engine, and if he rides there even at the engineer's invitation he is a trespasser. Virginia etc. R. Co. v. Roach, 83 Va. 375; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 271.

Persons on a train who have paid either no fare or insufficient fare, are trespassers. Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Gants, 38 Kan. 608; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 290. See also infra, this title, Expulsion of Passengers.

But a passenger has a right to refuse to surrender his ticket or to pay his fare until he has been given a seat, and he does not become a trespasser by non-payment of fare in such a case. Hardenburgh v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 39 Minn. 3; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 359. And one is not a trespasser who is on the wrong train, owing to a mistake by the company's agent, and who refuses to pay fare for being carried further when mistake is discovered. International etc. R. Co. v. Smith (Tex. 1886), 1 S. W. Rep. 565; 27 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 148.

A person getting on the wrong train in willful violation of the rules of the company is a mere trespasser. Lake Shore etc. R. Co. v. Rosenzweig, 113 Pa. St. 519; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 489.

One accepting and using a free pass in violation of law does not thereby become a trespasser. Buffalo etc. R. Co. v. O'Hara (Pa. 1882), 9 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 317.

A child of such tender years as to be incapable of negligence is not to be considered a trespasser. Battisill v. Humphrey, 64 Mich. 494; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 597. Contra, Pennsylvania R. Co. v. McMullen, 132 Pa. St. 107; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 505.

Persons on a train with consent of company's agent in charge thereof are not trespassers. Rosenbaum v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 38 Minn. 173; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 275; Gradin v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 30 Minn. 217; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 644.

If, however, the agent granting the permission has no authority to do so, such permission does not remove the party from his status as a trespasser. Reary v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 40 La. Ann. 32; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 277; Virginia etc. R. Co. v. Roach, 83 Va. 375; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 231.

The conductor of an accommodation train, at the request of a brakeman, permitted a lad of fifteen to ride free daily on the train to sell newspapers. Under the company's rules this was beyond the scope of the conductor's authority. After this practice had continued five or six months, the boy was killed in an accident to the train, caused by the alleged negligence of the company. In an action by the boy's mother to recover damages, it was held that under the evidence the boy was neither a passenger nor an employé, but was a mere trespasser, to whom the company owed no duty, and the plaintiff could not recover. Duff v. Allegheny Valley R. Co., 91 Pa. St. 458; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

Exception.—There may be an exception to the general rule in some cases. Thus a child going upon the track in order to save younger children is not a trespasser. Spooner v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 115 N. Y. 22; 39 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 599.

1. Persons who come upon the station premises to take passage on the train, or to meet a friend expected to arrive on one of the trains, or to see him depart, are there by the implied invitation of the company and are not trespassers. McKone v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 51 Mich. 601; 47 Am. Rep. 596; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 29; Texas etc. R. Co. v. Best, 66 Tex. 116; Hamilton v. Texas etc. R. Co., 64 Tex. 251; 53 Am. Rep. 756; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 336; Illinois etc. R. Co. v. Hammer, 72 Ill. 347. See also NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 412-414; STATIONS.

A person in the caboose of a freight train, treating for passage is, as to injuries committed against him by conductor, not a trespasser, and his case way¹ or a private way;² or where for many years the company has acquiesced in a certain use of a portion of its track.³

b. DUTY OWING TO THEM.—Properly speaking there is no positive duty owing from a railroad company to a trespasser on its track; it is not a part of its duty in exercising ordinary care in the operation of its road to provide against the possibility that trespassers may be on its track, and the extent of its duty is to stands within the reason of authorities in reference to like injuries done to passengers. Western etc. R. Co. v. Turner, 72 Ga. 292; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 455.

One who accompanies a car-load of live stock, under contract with the company, though not strictly a passenger, is not a trespasser. Lawson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 64 Wis. 447; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 249.

If a company permits passengers to take trains at a place which is not a station, a person taking the train at such place is not a trespasser; and when he has reached in safety the inside of one of the passenger coaches he is then, if he was not before, a passenger. Dewire v. Boston etc. R. Co., 148 Mass. 343; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 57.

1. See CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 909; infra, this title, Highway Crossings; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Walker, 113 Ind. 196; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 121; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Troutman (Pa.), 11 W. N. Cas. 453; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 117.

See also Stewart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (Ind. 1883), 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 679; Kilby v. Southern Minnesota R. Co., 28 Minn. 98; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 264; Berry v. Northeastern R. Co., 72 Ga. 137; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 575.

Party walking in a street where track is laid is not necessarily a trespasser, and if his foot is caught in the track and he is run over he is entitled to recover, upon proof of the company's failure to use due care. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Phillips, 112 Ind. 59; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 432.

2. Murphy v. Boston etc. R. Co., 133 Mass. 121; 14 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 675; Canada Southern R. Co. v. Cluise, 13 Sup. Ct. Can. 139; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 296; Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Kregels, 32 Kan. 608; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 241; Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Troutman (Pa.), 11 W. N. Cas. 453; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 117.

Compare Cedar Rapids etc. R. Co. v. Raymond, 37 Minn. 204; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 345.

3. License Implied from Acquiescence.—Philadelphia etc. R. Co. v. Troutman, 11 W. N. C. (Pa.) 453; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 117; Virginia Midland R. Co. v. White, 84 Va. 498; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 22; Davis v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 58 Wis. 646; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 424 (use for twenty years); Hooker v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 76 Wis. 542; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 498; Troy v. Cape Fear R. Co., 99 N. Car. 298; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 13 (use of trestle by public).

But in order to constitute an implied license in such cases, the use must be a reasonable one, and must be long continued. The mere fact that persons have frequently trespassed upon the track, and that the company took no steps to stop them, does not amount to a license. Central R. Co. v. Brinsan, 70 Ga. 207; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42; Palmer v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ind. 250; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 364; McLaren v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 83 Ind. 319; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 217; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. State, 62 Md. 479; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 83; Carrington v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 88 Ala. 472; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 546; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Womack, 84 Ala. 149; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 308 (custom to cross track by foot-path one hundred yards from place of accident not admissible to prove license).

Where a railroad company has for years without objection permitted the public to cross its tracks at a certain point not in itself a public crossing, those crossing there are not trespassers, and it is bound to exercise due care to prevent injury to them from the operation of its trains. Taylor v. Delaware etc. Canal Co., 113 Pa. St. 162; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 656; Western etc. R. Co. v. Meigs, 74 Ga. 857; Byrne v. New York Cent. R. Co., 104 N. Y. 362; 58 Am. Rep. 512; Kelly v.

refrain from willful or deliberate injury.¹ Except at crossings it has the right to an exclusive use of its track and premises, and is

Southern Minnesota R. Co., 28 Minn. 98.

1. This is the doctrine which seems to be supported by the great weight of authority. Johnson v. Boston etc. R. Co., 125 Mass. 75; Morrissey v. Eastern R. Co., 126 Mass. 377; Wright v. Boston etc. R. Co., 142 Mass. 296; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 652; Terre Haute etc. R. Co. v. Graham, 95 Ind. 286; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 77; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Hedges, 105 Ind. 398; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 550; Palmer v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ind. 250; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 364; Henry v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 76 Mo. 288; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 136; Dahlstrom v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 96 Mo. 99; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 387; Barker v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 98 Mo. 50; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 292; Cauley v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 95 Pa. St. 398; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 4; Central R. Co. v. Brinson, 70 Ga. 207; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. State, 62 Md. 479; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 83; Spicer v. Chesapeake etc. R. Co. (W. Va.), 12 S. E. Rep. 553; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 28 (no recovery by trespasser except where negligence of company is "wanton" or "gross"); Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Howard, 82 Ky. 212; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 98.

In some jurisdictions the English rule is adopted, i. e., that the company is not liable to trespassers, except where the injury was willful, or where, after becoming aware of the party's danger, reasonable care was not exercised to prevent injury. Central R. Co. v. Brinson, 70 Ga. 207; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 42; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Monday, 49 Ark. 257; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 424; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Freeman, 36 Ark. 41; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 608; Burnett v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 16 Neb. 332; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 25; McAllister v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 64 Iowa 395; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 103; Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Whipple, 39 Kan. 531; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 320 (child of nine years discovered on the track—duty of company); Shackleford v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 84 Ky. 433; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 591; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Black, 89 Ala. 313; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 38 (duty of company begins when trespasser is first discovered and it is known that he is ignorant of the approaching danger).

But in other jurisdictions the doctrine stated in the text is disapproved, and it is held no error to refuse to charge that the company is under no obligations to take precautions against possible injuries to trespassers, and that a man who walks upon a railroad track, except at a crossing, does so at his peril. Carter v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 19 S. Car. 20; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 414; Houston etc. R. Co. v. Simpkins, 54 Tex. 615; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 11; East Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Humphreys, 12 Lea (Tenn.) 200; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 472; East Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Fain, 12 Lea (Tenn.) 35; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 102.

The injury must be willful in order to render the company liable, and proof of mere "recklessness," "wantonness," or "gross negligence" cannot be substituted so as to render the company liable, if the conduct of the company's agents is not shown by the evidence to have amounted to a willful wrong. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Hedges, 105 Ind. 398; 25 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 550; Terre Haute etc. R. Co. v. Graham, 95 Ind. 286; 12 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 82. In the latter case this immediate subject is discussed at length in the opinion of Zollars, J.

Compare Kansas Pac. R. Co. v. Whipple, 39 Kan. 537; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 328.

This whole subject is but an application of the law of contributory negligence, and the denial of the right of recovery to one who trespasses upon the track is based upon his contributory negligence. Therefore, except in those States in which the doctrine of comparative negligence prevails, the trespasser's contributory negligence in being on the track will bar his recovery in the absence of proof that the injury was willful. See CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 15, et seq.

Applying this rule, the contributory negligence of a party in going upon a track in front of an approaching train will bar his recovery, even though at the time the train is running at an unlawful rate of speed. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Stroud, 64 Miss. 784; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 443; Bell v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 72 Mo. 50; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 580; Central R. etc. Co. v.

entitled to assume that they are clear;¹ it is not bound to anticipate that persons will be on them, or to make provision for the safety of such persons.²

Where persons have long been accustomed to use the track at certain places the company is charged with notice of such usage and owes the duty to keep a careful lookout at such places, even though the parties so using the track do so without authority and are really trespassers.³

Smith, 78 Ga. 694; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1.

In the case of Bergman v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 88 Mo. 678; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 588, a party, though guilty of negligence in going upon the track, was allowed to recover; but his right was based upon the rule already noticed, that the servants of the company, after having become aware of his danger, failed to exercise ordinary care to prevent the injury.

In Snyder v. Natchez etc. R. Co., 42 La. Ann. 302; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 278, the rule is laid down that the duty of a carrier to provide against injuries to strangers, while not requiring the same care and diligence as in the case of passengers, is governed by the general principle of law, that every one is obliged upon considerations of humanity and justice to conform his conduct to the rights of others, and in the prosecution of his lawful business, to use every reasonable precaution to avoid their injury. And in no case has the company a right to inflict wanton injury upon a naked trespasser on its property.

1. Right to Exclusive Use of Track.—Omaha etc. R. Co. v. Martin, 14 Neb. 295; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 236; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Monday, 49 Ark. 257; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 324; Isabel v. Hannibal etc. T. Co., 60 Mo. 475; Yarnell v. St. Louis etc. T. Co., 75 Mo. 575; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 726; Cauley v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 95 Pa. St. 398; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 4 (the company has a right of way and it is exclusive at all times and for all purposes); Mason v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 27 Kan. 83; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1; Jackson v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 25 Vt. 150; Jersey City etc. R. Co. v. Jersey City etc. R. Co., 20 N. J. Eq. 61 (right as against other companies).

2. Duty to Keep a Lookout.—A railroad company is not bound to keep a lookout for trespassers. Terre Haute etc. R. Co. v. Graham, 95 Ind. 286; 12

Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 77; McAllister v. Burlington etc. R. Co., 64 Iowa 395; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 108; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Stroud, 64 Miss. 784; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 443; Yarnell v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 75 Mo. 575; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 726; Cauley v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 95 Pa. St. 398; 2 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 4; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Greene (Ky. 1884), 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 95.

Compare Houston etc. R. Co. v. Symkins, 54 Tex. 615; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 11.

In some States, however, it is required by statute that a lookout shall be kept. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Robertson, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 276; East Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. White, 5 Lea (Tenn.) 540; 8 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 65; Moran v. Nashville etc. R. Co., 58 Tenn. 879.

Engineer is not bound to expect that helpless infants will be on the track, without sufficient knowledge or ability to escape when warned of danger. Chrystal v. Troy etc. R. Co., 105 N. Y. 164; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 411.

3. Tomeley v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 53 Wis. 626; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 562; Whalen v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 75 Wis. 654; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 558; Johnson v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 49 Wis. 529; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 155; Davis v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 58 Wis. 646; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 524; Needham v. San Francisco etc. R. Co., 37 Cal. 409; Conley v. Cincinnati etc. Co. (Ky.), 12 S. W. Rep. 764; 41 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 537; Frick v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 5 Mo. App. 435 (train running through city streets); Cheney v. New York Cent. R. Co., 16 Hun (N. Y.) 415; Palmer v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 112 Ind. 250; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 250; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Crosnoc, 72 Tex. 79; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 313; Western etc. R. Co. v. Meigs, 74 Ga. 857; Southerland v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 106 N. Car. 101. See also Taylor v. Delaware etc. R. Co., 113 Pa. St. 162; 28 Am. &

10. Stock-killing Cases.—A railroad company is not, in the absence of a statutory requirement, bound to fence its roadway,¹ and in those jurisdictions where no such requirement exists, the liability of a company for injuries to stock must be determined by the general rules of the law of negligence.² In many States, how-

Eng. R. Cas. 656; Western etc. R. Co. v. Meigs, 74 Ga. 857; Byrne v. New York Cent. R. Co., 104 N. Y. 362; 58 Am. Rep. 512.

Compare Mason v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 27 Kan. 83; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 1 (custom to use trestle bridge); Connyers v. Sioux City etc. R. Co., 78 Iowa 410.

In a New York case it is said that although a company, by permitting people repeatedly to cross its tracks at a point where there is no public right of passage, has given an implied license so to do, it owes no duty of active vigilance to those crossing to guard them from accident. The company is not restricted by the license in the use of its track; nor will a departure in some degree or particular by its employes from the ordinary course of procedure make it liable for an injury resulting therefrom, unless the doing of an act is shown which might reasonably be expected to cause injury to a person lawfully on the track under the license; the licensees acting under it take the risks incident to the business. Sutton v. New York etc. R. Co., 66 N. Y. 243.

Presumption that Trespasser Will Leave Track When Warned.—Employes operating a train may not commit a willful injury, but they have a right to assume that a person on the track will exercise the common instinct of self-preservation, and leave the track in time to avoid danger. Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Stroud, 64 Miss. 784; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 443; Bell v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 72 Mo. 50; 4 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 580; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Black, 89 Ala. 313; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 38; Nichols v. Louisville etc. R. Co. (Ky. 1888), 6 S. W. Rep. 339; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 37; Ohio etc. R. Co. v. Walker, 113 Ind. 196; 32 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 121; International etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 62 Tex. 252; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 21; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Monday, 49 Ark. 257; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 424.

They are not charged with knowledge of the trespasser's infirmity, such as deafness, unless it can be shown that it had been previously brought to their notice. Nichols v. Louisville etc. R. Co. (Ky. 1888), 6 S. W. Rep. 339; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 37; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Cooper (Ky. 1882), 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 5; Frazer v. South etc. R. Co., 81 Ala. 185; 28 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 565; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Black, 89 Ala. 313; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 38; International etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 62 Tex. 252; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 21; Artusy v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 73 Tex. 191; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 288; Kennedy v. Denver etc. R. Co., 10 Colo. 493; 34 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 40.

The same presumption does not apply in the case of cattle, horses, or similar animals. Carlton v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 104 N. Car. 365; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 178; Snowden v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 95 N. Car. 93; Dennis v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 116 Ind. 42; 35 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 141.

Ringin Bell, Blowing Whistle, etc.—The duty to sound signals at crossings and whenever persons or cattle are on the track ahead is generally provided by statute. A failure to perform this duty is evidence of negligence, though not conclusive. This is but a case for the application of the doctrine of negligence, for which see NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386, et seq.; CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 921, et seq.

1. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Walbrink, 47 Ark. 330; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 604; Ward v. Paducah etc. R. Co., 4 Fed. Rep. 862; 1 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 620 (ordinary fence laws do not apply to railroad companies); Boston etc. R. Co. v. Briggs, 132 Mass. 24; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 541; Clark v. Ohio River R. Co. (W. Va. 1890), 12 S. E. Rep. 505; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 475; Williams v. New Albany etc. R. Co., 5 Ind. 111; FENCES, vol. 7, p. 906.

2. The plaintiff must show that the company owed the duty to exercise ordinary care to prevent the injury, and that it failed to exercise such care which failure was the proximate cause of the injury complained of. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 387, et seq. See also CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 15, et seq.; Lafayette etc. R. Co. v.

Shriner, 6 Ind. 141; Kuch v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 Ind. 32.

Liability Where Owner Is Required to Keep His Stock Inclosed.—In those jurisdictions in which the common law obligation of owners to keep their stock within inclosures survives, the owner is guilty of contributory negligence which will bar his recovery, if he allows them to stray upon the railroad track where they are injured. Munger v. Tonawanda R. Co., 4 N. Y. 349; Clark v. Syracuse etc. R. Co., 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 112; Halloran v. New York etc. R. Co., 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 257; New York etc. R. Co. v. Skinner, 19 Pa. St. 298; North Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Rehman, 49 Pa. St. 101; reversing 5 Phila. (Pa.) 450; Vandegrift v. Rediker, 22 N. J. L. 185; Price v. New Jersey R. Co., 32 N. J. L. 19; Tower v. Providence etc. R. Co., 2 R. I. 404; Maynard v. Boston etc. R. Co., 115 Mass. 458; Darling v. Boston etc. R. Co., 121 Mass. 118; Moses v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 18 Oregon 385; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 555 (the rule is laid down in this case, though it does not apply in Oregon); Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Ballard, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 177; Pierce on Railroads 402 and authorities cited; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Lambson, 12 Md. 257; Jackson v. Rutland etc. R. Co., 25 Vt. 150; Woolson v. Northern R. Co., 19 N. H. 267; FENCES, vol. 7, p. 890, 922, et seq.; note in 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 173, 178.

So that the company is liable only for willful injuries. Pierce on Railroads, p. 402; Great Western R. Co. v. Thomson, 17 Ill. 131; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Patchin, 16 Ill. 198; Logansport etc. R. Co. v. Caldwell, 38 Ill. 280; Williams v. New Albany etc. R. Co., 5 Ind. 111; Lafayette etc. R. Co. v. Shriner, 6 Ind. 141; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Ballard, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 177; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Milton, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 81; Obannon v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 8 Bush (Ky.) 351; Price v. New Jersey etc. R. Co., 31 N. J. L. 229; Drake v. Philadelphia etc. R. Co., 51 Pa. St. 240; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Lamburn, 12 Md. 257; McDonnell v. Pittsfield etc. R. Co., 115 Mass. 564; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Dunham, 68 Tex. 231; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 530; International etc. R. Co. v. Locke, 64 Tex. 151; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 226 (liable only for gross negligence where stock law exists).

Compare Kentucky Cent. R. Co. v. Lebus, 14 Bush (Ky.) 518.

But there are some cases which hold that the existence of a stock law requiring owners to keep their stock inclosed has no effect upon the rule that the company is liable if it failed to use ordinary care to discover the stock when on the track and to prevent injury. Jayner v. South Carolina R. Co., 26 S. Car. 49; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 258; Jones v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 20 S. Car. 249; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 459; Roberts v. Richmond etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 560; 20 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 473; Farmer v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 88 N. Car. 564; 30 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 481. See also Alabama etc. R. Co. v. McAlpine, 71 Ala. 545; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 544.

Liability Where No Such Requirement Exists.—But in a number of States the common-law rule as to inclosure of stock does not exist, and in such cases the owner is not guilty of any negligence in allowing his cattle to stray, and the railroad company is bound to exercise ordinary care in order to prevent injury to them when they come upon the track. Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Finley, 37 Ark. 562; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 469; Waters v. Moss, 12 Cal. 535; Laws v. North Carolina R. Co., 7 Jones (N. Car.) 468; Washington v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 190; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 749; Watier v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 31 Minn. 91; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 582; Alger v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 10 Iowa 268; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Shaft, 33 Kan. 521; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 529; Alabama etc. R. Co. v. McAlpine, 71 Ala. 545; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 544; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Jones, 59 Miss. 565; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 450; Donovan v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 89 Mo. 147; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 588; Savannah etc. R. Co. v. Geiger, 21 Fla. 669; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 274; Williams v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 3 Dak. 168; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 421; Central R. Co. v. Hamilton, 71 Ga. 461; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 207; Western Maryland R. Co. v. Carter, 59 Md. 306; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 573; Jones v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 20 S. Car. 249; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 459; Simkins v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 20 S. Car. 258; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 467; FENCES, vol. 7, p. 890, 922, et seq.; note in 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 173-178.

In these States the company is therefore liable for all injuries to stock caused by the operation of its trains which by the exercise of ordinary care it might have prevented. The right to the exclusive use of its track does not avail to exempt it from liability for negligence. Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. Patton, 31 Miss. 156; Mississippi etc. R. Co. v. Miller, 41 Miss. 45 (test of ordinary care in such cases); Raiford v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 43 Miss. 233 (burden upon owner to prove negligence of the company); New Orleans etc. R. Co. v. Field, 46 Miss. 573; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Hudson, 50 Miss. 572; Natchez etc. R. Co. v. McNeil, 61 Miss. 434; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 518; Nashville etc. R. Co. v. Conans, 45 Ala. 437; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Malone, 46 Ala. 391; South etc. Ala. R. Co. v. Hagood, 53 Ala. 647; South etc. Ala. R. Co. v. Brown, 53 Ala. 651 (presentment of claims to special agent, under Alabama Rev. Code § 1402); McAlpine v. Alabama etc. R. Co., 75 Ala. 113; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 602; Murray v. South Carolina R. Co. 10 Rich. (S. Car.) 227; Danner v. South Carolina R. Co., 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 329 (burden upon owner to show negligence; if killing was willful on part of engineer, or accidental without negligence, no action will lie); Zeigler v. North Eastern R. Co., 7 S. Car. 402 (omission to slacken speed at highway negligence, per se); Brothers v. Railroad Co., 5 S. Car. 55; Molair v. Port Royal etc. R. Co., 31 S. Car. 510; 38 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 110; Clark v. Western etc. R. Co., 1 Wins. (N. Car.) No 1, 109; Montgomery v. Wilmington etc. R. Co. 6 Jones (N. Car.) 464; Aycock v. Railroad Co., 6 Jones (N. Car.) 231; Garris v. Portsmouth etc. R. Co., 2 Ired. (N. Car.) 324; Pippin v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 75 N. Car. 54; Winston v. Raleigh etc. R. Co., 90 N. Car. 66; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 566; Houston etc. R. Co. v. Terry, 42 Tex. 451; Betlegi v. Houston etc. R. Co., 26 Tex. 604; Kuch v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 Md. 32; Baltimore etc. R. Co. v. Mulligan, 45 Md. 486; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Finley, 37 Ark. 502; 11 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 469; Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Holland, 40 Ark. 336; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 479 (ordinary care defined); Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Henson, 39 Ark. 413; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 440; Savannah etc. R. Co. v. Geiger, 21 Fla. 669; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 274.

See also Williams v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 2 Mich. 259; Richmond v. Sacramento etc. R. Co., 18 Cal. 351; Knight v. New Orleans etc. R. Co., 15

La. Ann. 105 (peculiar liability of New Orleans etc. R. Co.); Isbell v. New York etc. R. Co., 27 Conn. 393; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Cuffman, 28 Ill. 513.

Duty to Keep a Lookout.—In some jurisdictions it is the rule by statute or otherwise that the duty of the engineer is not limited to exercising due care after he perceives animals ahead, but he is bound also to keep a lookout so as to see them in time to avoid injury. Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Powers, 73 Ala. 244; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 502; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Caldwell, 83 Ala. 196 (a watchful lookout must be steadily maintained); Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Gedney, 44 Kan. 329; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 492; Carlton v. Wilmington etc. R. Co., 104 N. Car. 365; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 178; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Robertson, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 276 (Tennessee Code, § 1166); Washington v. Baltimore etc. C. Co., 17 W. Va. 190; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 149; Denver etc. R. Co. v. Henderson, 10 Colo. 1; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 559; Vicksburg etc. R. Co. v. Hart, 61 Miss. 468; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 521.

This duty to keep a lookout is met if the engineer bestows on the service that watchfulness which his other duties would allow a prudent person to give it. Alabama etc. R. Co. v. Powers, 73 Ala. 244; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 502; East Tennessee etc. R. Co. v. Bayliss, 75 Ala. 466; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 596.

The requirement of § 1166 of Code of Tennessee that "every railroad company shall keep the engineer, fireman, or some other person upon the locomotive always upon the lookout ahead," etc., makes it the duty of all engaged in running the train, in whatever department employed, to give the entire energies of their bodies and minds to bring into requisition all of the means at their command to stop the train and prevent the accident. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Conner, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 19; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 860.

A different rule prevails in Arkansas, and it is held that there is no duty on the part of the company to keep a lookout from the engine. Kansas City etc. R. Co. v. Kirksey, 48 Ark. 366; Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Kerr, 52 Ark. 162; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 172. In the latter case, the case of Memphis etc. R. Co. v. Sanders, 43 Ark. 225; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 497, in so far as it intimates, a different doctrine is disapproved. See also Locke v. First Div. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 15 Minn. 350.

Duty to Stop Train.—The duty to stop the train exists only when the engineer either discovers, or ought to have discovered, the animal in dangerous proximity to the track and under circumstances indicating that either it would move on the track or else be injured if it remained stationary. Western R. Co. v. Listruck, 85 Ala. 352; Western R. Co. v. Layams, 80 Ala. 453; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 177, note; Hannibal etc. R. Co. v. Young, 79 Mo. 336; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 512; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Ganote (Ky. 1883), 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 519; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Mariott (Ky. 1884), 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 509 (safety of passengers a paramount consideration); Little Rock etc. R. Co. v. Holland, 40 Ark. 336; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 479; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Reidmond, 11 Lea (Tenn.) 205; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 675; Wilson v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 90 N. Car. 69; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 453.

Injuries Not Caused by Actual Collision.—There is no liability on the part of a railroad company for injuries to animals not caused by actual collision. Schertz v. Indianapolis etc. R. Co., 107 Ill. 577; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 523; Pennsylvania Co. v. Dunlap, 112 Ind. 93; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 512; Croy v. Louisville etc. R. Co., 97 Ind. 126; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 608; Holder v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 11 Lea (Tenn.) 176; 13 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 567, 570, note. Thus, where a colt escaped on the track and fell through a bridge the company is not liable for the injury. Knight v. New York etc. R. Co., 99 N. Y. 25; 23 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 188, 190, note; Burlington etc. R. Co. v. Shumaker, 18 Neb. 369; 22 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 565. So where an animal was frightened by a train and ran on the track and was injured on the trestle without being touched by the train, the company is not liable. International etc. R. Co. v. Hughes, 68 Tex. 290; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 569; Seibert v. Missouri etc. R. Co., 72 Mo. 565; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 583 (animal killed in attempt to extricate it from the trestle). But where the company has failed to comply with the statutory requirement to fence, the fact that the train did not strike a horse which was injured by running in front of the train on to the bridge, does not relieve the company from liability. Liston v.

Central Iowa R. Co., 70 Iowa 714; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 593.

Presumption Arising from Fact of Injury.—In some States a presumption of negligence on the part of the railroad company arises from the mere fact of injury. Danner's Case, 4 Rich. (S. Car.) 329; Jones v. Columbia etc. R. Co., 20 S. Car. 249; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 459; White v. Concord etc. R. Co., 30 N. H. 207; Smith v. Eastern R. Co., 35 N. H. 357.

In other States it is provided by statute that such presumption shall exist. Wilson v. Norfolk etc. R. Co., 90 N. Car. 69; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 453; Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Trotter, 60 Miss. 442; Columbus etc. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 78 Ga. 646; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 92; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 451; Huber v. Chicago etc. R. Co. (Dak.), 43 N. W. Rep. 819; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 108; Randall v. Richmond etc. R. Co. (N. Car. 1890), 12 S. E. Rep. 605; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 507; Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Kelsey, 89 Ala. 287; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 284.

But properly there is no such presumption, and the burden of proof is upon the plaintiff to show a wrongful killing. See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 448; CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 91; CROSSINGS, vol. 4, p. 540; Cleveland etc. R. Co. v. Crawford, 24 Ohio St. 631; 15 Am. Rep. 633; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Betts, 10 Colo. 431; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 563; Lyndsay v. Connecticut R. Co., 27 Vt. 643; Burlington etc. R. Co. v. Wendt, 12 Neb. 76; 6 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 584; Savannah etc. R. Co. v. Geiger, 71 Fla. 669; 29 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 274; McKissock v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 73 Mo. 456; 7 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 590; Schneir v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 40 Iowa 337.

In St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Hagan, 42 Ark. 122; 19 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 446, it is said that no presumption arises when cattle are found wounded near the track; but if it be proved that the wounding was done by a train, a presumption of negligence arises.

Dogs.—The case of Jemison v. South Western R. Co., 75 Ga. 444, was an action to recover damages for the death of a dog run over by a train. It was held that a dog was not property, either at common law or under the statutes of the State, except in a qualified sense, and that no action could be maintained for its death unless the killing was wanton and malicious.

ever, statutes exist which require that all railroad tracks shall be fenced, and in these States the common-law rule is substituted in a great measure by the provisions of these statutes, making the maintenance of lawful fences the criterion by which to determine whether or not the railroad company is liable.¹

11. Measure of Damages.—General rules as to the measure of damages, in case of injury resulting from the negligence of a railroad company have already been set forth. Nothing more than a modification of one of these rules where the injury results in death need be mentioned here.²

XIX. MORTGAGES, BONDS, AND DEBENTURES.—See RAILROAD SECURITIES.

XX. MUNICIPAL SUBSCRIPTIONS.—See MUNICIPAL SECURITIES, vol. 18, pp. 1204, et seq.

XXI. RECEIVERS.—See RECEIVERS.

XXII. INJUNCTION AGAINST RAILROADS.—See INJUNCTIONS, vol. 10, p. 969.

XXIII. MANDAMUS.—See MANDAMUS, vol. 14, p. 158.

XXIV. TAXATION OF RAILROADS.—See TAXATION.

XXV. STATIONS.—See STATIONS.

XXVI. TICKETS AND FARES.—See TICKETS AND FARES.

In Jones v. Bard, 40 Fed. Rep. 281; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 191, recovery was denied in a similar case, but on the ground that there was no negligence, though the court maintained that more was to be expected of a dog in getting out of the way of danger than of ordinary cattle.

In St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Hanks, 78 Tex. 300; 45 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 521, it is held that the failure of an engineer to use ordinary care to prevent injury after he has seen the dog will render the company liable.

Value of Cases.—Many of the cases cited in this section are no longer of value in the State in which they were rendered because of later statutory provisions. They are still valuable, however, as showing the common-law rule on the subject.

1. See FENCES, vol. 7, p. 917, where the whole subject is discussed. See also Pierce on Railroads, p. 401, et seq.; 3 Wood's Ry. Law, p. 1543, et seq.; Rorer on Railroads, p. 614, et seq.; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 420.

A clause giving to a railroad company the fee simple in their track, with the sub-use and occupation of the same, also providing that no person or body corporate or politic shall interfere therewith, etc., or do anything "to detract from or affect the profits of said corporation," will not exempt the company from the operation of statutes, rendering railroad corporations liable for cattle killed by them, owing to a failure to fence, even though such statutes were passed subsequent to the act of incorporation. Indianapolis etc. R. Co. v. Kercheval, 16 Ind. 84.

2. The rule as to the measure of damages is stated in DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 40; DEATH, vol. 5, p. 128, 129; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 476. See also 3 Suth. on Dam., p. 282; Sedgewick on Dam. (8th ed.), § 573.

One of the rules there stated is that where injury results in death, the measure of damages is compensation for the pecuniary loss to the survivors from the death of the deceased; and numerous cases are cited in support of the statement. But all the cases were under statutes which provided specifically that the jury should consider only the pecuniary loss.

In some jurisdictions, however, it is provided that such damages shall be recovered, not to exceed a certain sum, as the jury may deem "fair and just," no limitation to pecuniary loss being made. Under such statutes, it is uniformly held that the jury is not to be confined to a consideration of the pecuniary loss caused by the death of the deceased person. Thus, where a plaintiff's child was killed, it was held that the jury might consider as an element of damage, the loss of society and the comfort which the parents might have taken in rearing their child. Hyde v. Union Pac. R. Co. (Utah, 1891), 26 Pac. Rep. 979. See also Watly v. Mobile etc. R. Co. (now, 1891, pending in Supreme Court of Mississippi).

So also it is held that in an action by a wife for damages for the death of her husband, the jury may take into consideration the relation existing between the plaintiff and deceased at the time of death, and the injury sustained by her in the loss of his society. Beeson v. Green Mountain Gold Min. Co., 57 Cal. 20; Nehrbas v. Central Pac. R. Co., 62 Cal. 336; Munro v. Pacific Coast Dred. Co., 84 Cal. 515; 18 Am. St. Rep. 248; Howard Co. v. Legg, 93 Ind. 530.

It is also held that under such a statute, punitive or exemplary damages may be recovered. Matthews v. Warner, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 570; 26 Am. Rep. 396. In this case, after quoting the English statute and those of several of the States, the court by Christian, J., said: "We are bound to presume that the legislature which enacted this law was familiar with the English statute, and those of the other States of the Union, and of the American and English decisions under them. And it is a most significant fact that with the English and American statutes before them, and familiar with the decisions under them, the legislature, after following the English statute and the New York statute up to the point where the measure of damages in the one case is declared to be 'proportioned to the injury,' and in the other, 'with reference to the pecuniary injuries resulting from such death,' at that point discarded these terms, and in lieu thereof adopted the language, 'such damages as to the jury may seem fair and just.' It is impossible to conceive that the omission of such language, and the adoption of other terms meaning the very reverse could have been accidental. We must conclude that it was done with a design, and that design plainly, by all the recognized rules of construction, was to declare that in an action for the death of a party caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default of any person or corporation, such damages may be recovered 'as to the jury may seem fair and just.'"

"I think it manifest that the legislature intended, as in Kentucky, Iowa, Connecticut and California (which States are exceptions to the English statute) to allow the jury in such cases to award remunerative and exemplary damages."

As to Connecticut rule, see Murphy v. New Haven etc. R. Co., 29 Conn. 499.

In Iowa, however, the rule is that the jury must be confined to a consideration of the pecuniary damages. Donaldson v. Mississippi etc. R. Co., 18 Iowa 290; 87 Am. Dec. 391; Rose v. Des Moines Valley R. Co., 39 Iowa 246. Whether the decision was made in pursuance of a special statutory provision does not appear in the case. In Sherman v. Western Stage Co., 34 Iowa 515, the question as to whether exemplary damages could be allowed in an action for death was left quære.

But in no case can damages be allowed for mental pain and suffering. Webb v. Denver etc. R. Co. (Utah, 1890), 24 Pac. Rep. 616; 44 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 683; Blake v. Midland R. Co., 18 Q. B. 83, 83 E. C. L. 93; Howard Co. v. Legg, 93 Ind. 532; Munro v. Pacific Coast Dred. etc. Co., 84 Cal. 515; 18 Am. St. Rep. 248.

And the right to recover punitive damages in any case ceases with the death of the wrongdoer. Hewlett v. George, 68 Miss. 703; Sheik v. Hobson, 64 Iowa 146.

In Missouri, under § 2123 of the Rev. St., providing that damages may be recovered not exceeding $5,000 as the jury "may deem fair and just with reference to the necessary injury resulting from such death to the surviving parties, who may be entitled to sue, and also having regard to the mitigating or aggravating circumstances attending such wrongful act, neglect or default," it is held that exemplary damages are recoverable. Gray v. McDonald (Mo. 1891), 16 S. W. Rep. 398; Parsons v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 94 Mo. 286; Nichols v. Winfrey, 79 Mo. 544; Smith v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 92 Mo. 360. The case of Porter v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., 71 Mo. 66, in so far as it asserted a different doctrine, was disapproved. But under this statute, in an action by a father for the death of a son no damages can be allowed, either as a solatium to the father for his mental agony and distress, or for the loss of his son's society. Parsons v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 94 Mo.

300; Schaub v. Hannibal etc. R. Co., (Mo. 1891), 16 S. W. Rep. 924 (action by widow for husband's death).

Rev. Stat. of Missouri, §§ 4426-27, make a similar provision to that above cited, where an employé sues. As to proper instructions in such a case, see McGowan v. St. Louis Ore etc. Co. (Mo. 1891), 16 S. W. Rep. 236; Fugler v. Pophe, 43 Mo. App. 44.

In Texas exemplary damages are recoverable when the death was occasioned by the "willful act or gross negligence" of the company or its officers. International etc. R. Co. v. McDonald, 75 Tex. 41; 42 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 211; Houston etc. R. Co. v. Baker, 57 Tex. 419; 11 Am. & Eng. Cas. 667. In this latter case it is held that under the statute a father cannot recover exemplary damages for the death of his son, he not being an "heir of the body."

So in Kentucky, when death results from the "willful neglect" of the company, exemplary damages are recoverable. Louisville etc. R. Co. v. Brooks, 83 Ky. 137.

Cons. Sts. of Canada, ch. 7, § 3 provide that "the judge or jury may give such damages as they think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death." It is held that although on the death of a wife, the husband cannot recover damages of a sentimental character, yet the loss of household services accustomed to be performed by the wife is a substantial loss for which damages may be recovered, as so also is the loss to the children of the care and moral training of their mother. St. Lawrence etc. R. Co. v. Lett, 11 Sup. Ct. (Can.), 422; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 454; affirming 11 Ont. App. 1; 21 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 165. The doctrine of Tilley v. Hudson River R. Co., 24 N. Y. 474, was quoted and approved.

"Pecuniary" to be Liberally Construed.—In West Virginia where the statute limits the amount to be recovered to "pecuniary loss" it is held proper to instruct the jury, where the action is for a father's death, that "in estimating the pecuniary injury they may take into consideration the nurture, instruction, and physical, moral, and intellectual training which the children would have received from their father." Searle v. Kanawha etc. R. Co., 32 W. Va. 370; 37 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 184; Stoher v. St. Louis etc. R. Co., 91 Mo. 509; 31 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 229.

Other cases sustain the same view.

Tilley v. Hudson River R. Co., 29 N. Y. 285; Tilley v. Hudson River R. Co., 24 N. Y. 471; Dwinney v. Wheeling etc. R. Co., 27 W. Va. 57.

Compare Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Pounds, 11 Lea (Tenn.) 127; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 510; Nashville etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 475; 15 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 469.

The word "pecuniary" in relation to the subject under consideration is to receive a liberal construction. Vicksburg v. McLain, 67 Miss. 4. See also Watty v. Mobile etc. R. Co. (Miss. 1891—now pending) and the cases just cited.

Plaintiff's Inheritance as Affecting Damages.—In estimating damages the jury cannot take into consideration the fact that the plaintiff, by the death of deceased, has come into the possession of large property. Terry v. Jewett, 78 N. Y. 346, affirming 17 Hun (N. Y.) 395.

Consult in this connection Bevens v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 58 Iowa 150; 10 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 658, where evidence as to the amount of property owned by the deceased was admitted. "The real question," it was said, "in this case, is what was the value of the deceased's life to his estate?"

See also remarks of Bramwell, B., in Bradburn v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 10 Exch., 1; 11 Moak's Rep. 330.

Insurance as Affecting Damages.—The liability of the railroad company and the measure of damages entitled to be recovered where a party suffers injury from the negligence of such company are not affected in any way by the payment of any sum on account of the injury, by a life or accident insurance company, and evidence as to such insurance is therefore inadmissible. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Thompson, 56 Ill. 138; Kellogg v. New York Cent. R. Co., 79 N. Y. 72; North Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Kirk, 90 Pa. St. 20; Clark v. Inhabitants etc., 2 B. & C. 254; 92 E. C. L. 118; Bradburn v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 10 Exch. 1; 11 Moak's Rep. 330; Mason v. Sainsbury, 3 Doug. 61; 26 E. C. L. 36; Harding v. Townshend, 43 Vt. 534; 5 Am. Rep. 304; Carroll v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 88 Mo. 239; 26 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 268. A contract of life insurance is a mere contract to pay a certain sum of money upon the death of a person in consideration of the due payment of certain annual premiums during his life. It is not a contract of indemnity. Dalby v. India etc. L. Assur. Co., 15 C. B. 365; 8 E. C. L. 364. It is a

RAIN-WATER.—See SURFACE-WATER.

RAINY DAYS.—See LAY DAYS, vol. 12, p. 974, n.

RAISE.—See note 1. (See also INTENT, vol. 11, p. 370.)

RANK.—Rank is often used to express something different from office. It then becomes a designation or title of honor, dignity, or distinction conferred upon an officer in order to fix his relative position with reference to other officers in matters of "quid pro quo, larger if he gets it, on the chance that he will never get it at all." Bradburn v. Great Western R. Co., L. R., 10 Exch. 1; 11 Moak's Rep. 231.

See also Yates v. Whyte, 4 Bing. N. C. 272; Monticello v. Mollison, 17 How. (U. S.) 152; Hayward v. Cain, 105 Mass. 213; Clark v. Wilson, 103 Mass. 219; 4 Am. Rep. 532; Althorf v. Wolfe, 22 N. Y. 355; Drinkwater v. Dinsmore, 80 N. Y. 390; 36 Am. Rep. 624, reversing 16 Hun (N. Y.) 250.

The only case in which the doctrine here laid down has ever been denied is that of Hicks v. Newport etc. R. Co., 116 E. C. L. 401, note, in which Lord Campbell instructed the jury that if there was an insurance by some company on the life of the injured person and the parties suing were entitled to receive the amount of the policy, there ought to be a deduction from the aggregate amount of damages of the sum so received from the insurance company. See this case commented upon in Harding v. Towshend, 43 Vt. 541.

As to the right of an insurance company to maintain an action for damages against a railroad company whose negligence caused the death of one of its policy holders, see NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 470; Mobile L. Ins. Co. v. Brame, 95 U. S. 754; Randall v. Cochran, 1 Ves. Sr. 198.

Authorities on Railroads—Acknowledgment.—For much valuable assistance in the preparation of this article acknowledgment is made to Pierce on Railroads (edition of 1881); Wood's Railway Law; Rorer on Railroads; Redfield on Railways; Beach on Railways; Digest of Am. & Eng. R. Cas., vol. 1 (1890), vol. 2 (1891).

Special acknowledgment is due to the very valuable notes in the American and English Railroad Cases.

General reference may be made to other works treating the various branches of Railroad Law; for example, Thompson on Carriers; Wheeler on Carriers; Shearman and Redfield on Negligence; Patterson's Railway Accident Law; Lacey's Railway Digest (2 vols.); Digest of Am. & Eng. R. Cas. (2 vols.); Beach's Railway Digest (Annual).

Annotated reported cases may be found in Am. & Eng. R. Cas. (Northport, N. Y.); Am. & Eng. R. & Corp. Rep. (Chicago); American Railway Reports (New York).

1. Raise Equivalent to Collect.—See INTENT, vol. 11, p. 370.

In an Act Granting a Lottery.—The act was as follows: "A lottery is hereby granted, etc., to raise the sum of," etc. It was held that the word as here used, meant to "create or produce a fund," and the word "raised" as used in the same act was held to mean "actually produced and realized in cash" ready to be paid into the treasury of the State, and not a sum of money ineffectually attempted to be raised. Opinion of the Justices, 7 Me. 502.

Authority to Raise Money.—An authority given to a municipal corporation to "raise" money for prosecuting and defending suits only authorizes the raising of money by taxation, and not by borrowing. Wells v. Salina, 119 N. Y. 280, 29 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 101.

Raise a Child.—A testator devised the control, benefit, and proceeds of his real estate to his widow "to help her raise and school all" his children. It was held that when the children attained the age of twenty-one years they had been "raised" within the meaning of the will. Shoemaker v. Stobaugh, 59 Ind. 598.

Raise Revenue.—To bring revenue together; to collect revenue, not necessarily to increase the amount. This is the meaning in the declaration that a bill "to raise revenue" shall originate in the popular house. Anderson's L. Dict., citing Perry Co. v. Selma etc. R. Co., 58 Ala. 546.

privilege, precedence, and sometimes of command, or by which to determine his pay and emoluments.¹

RANSOM.—A ransom is only a redemption for money or other consideration of that which is taken in war.²

RAPE.

- | | |
|---|---|
| I. Definition, 946. II. Person Who May Commit the Crime, 947. III. Principals and Accessories, 948. IV. Person on Whom the Crime May be Committed, 948. 1. In General, 948. 2. Carnal Abuse of Children, 948. V. The Carnal Knowledge Necessary, 949. VI. The Force Used, 950. VII. Resistance and Consent, 951. VIII. Indictment, 953. 1. Joinder of Parties, 953. 2. Joinder of Counts, 954. 3. Descriptive Allegations, 955. 4. Charging the Offense, 956. | 5. Conclusion, 958. IX. Evidence, 958. 1. Prosecutrix, 958. (a) As a Witness, 958. (b) When an Infant, 958. (c) Her Complaint at the Time, 959. (d) Her Cross-Examination, 961. (e) Her Character, 961. 2. Previous Conduct of the Accused, 963. 3. Various Matters of Evidence, 963. X. Instructions, 967. XI. Verdict, 968. XII. Assault with Intent to Commit Rape, 968. XIII. The Civil Action, 969. |
|---|---|

I. DEFINITION.—Rape is the carnal knowledge of a woman by a man, forcibly and unlawfully against her will;³ or, more accurately, “where she does not consent,” instead of “against her will,” following the words of the statute of West-

Raised Checks.—See CHECKS, vol. 3, p. 225.

1. Wood v. U. S., 15 Ct. of Cl. 159.
2. Havelock v. Rockwood, 8 T. R. 277.

A ransom is not, strictly speaking, a re-purchase of the captured property. It is rather the re-purchase of the actual right of the captors at the time, be it what it may; or, more properly, it is a relinquishment of all the interest and benefit which the captors might acquire or consummate in the property by the regular adjudication of a prize tribunal, whether it be an interest in rem, or mere title to expenses. Maisonnaire v. Keating, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 325.

A Ransom Bill is a contract for payment of ransom of a captured vessel, with stipulations of safe conduct, if she pursue a certain course and arrive at a certain time. If found out of time and course the safe conduct is void. Bouvier's L. Dict., citing Wheaton's Int. Law 107.

The cognizance of ransom bills belongs exclusively to admiralty, but an action on a bill of exchange given as collateral security for the payment of a ransom bill may be maintained in a court of common law. Maisonnaire v. Keating, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 325. The payment of a ransom bill cannot be enforced in England during the war by an action on the contract, but can in this country. Bouvier's L. Dict., citing 1 Kent's Com. 104, 105; Maisonnaire v. Keating, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 325.

An ally is bound by the ransom bill of a co-belligerent. Miller v. Ship Resolution, 2 Dall. (U. S.) 15.

3. Croghan v. State, 22 Wis. 445; People v. Lynch, 29 Mich. 284; Don Moran v. People, 25 Mich. 359; 12 Am. Rep. 283; Charles v. State, 11 Ark. 409; Cato v. State, 9 Fla. 182; State v. Pickett, 11 Nev. 257; 21 Am. Rep. 754; Bouv. L. Dict., 1 East P. C. 434; 1 Hawk. P. C. (Curw. ed.) 122, § 2; 1 Russ. Crimes (3d Eng. ed.), p. 675.

Rape is the carnal knowledge of minster 2, defining the offense. The crime may be committed when, strictly speaking, the woman exhibits no will at all, as when drugged or non compos mentis; and it may be committed where the act is not strictly against her will but is effected without a conscious and proper consent, as by fear or fraud.¹

II. THE PERSON WHO MAY COMMIT THE CRIME.—Rape may be committed only where there is a physical capacity in the direct perpetrator.²

It is said that infants under the age of fourteen years cannot commit the crime of rape; and that no evidence is admissible to the contrary, if he be under that age, even though it could be shown as matter of fact that he had the requisite capacity. Such is the English doctrine.³

In the United States, however, some courts have held that the presumption of incapacity is not conclusive but rebuttable.⁴ Nor can a boy under the age of fourteen be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape.⁵

any woman above the age of ten years against her will, and of a woman-child under the age of ten years with or against her will. 1 Hale P. C. 628.

1. See 2 Bish. Crim. Law, § 1115. The two definitions may be reconciled by holding that "against her will" is equivalent to "without her consent," as was done in Com. v. Burke, 105 Mass. 376; 7 Am. Rep. 531. The later English authorities sustain the position that it is the ravishment of a woman without her consent, which constitutes the crime rather than that it was against her will. Reg. v. Fletcher, 8 Cox C. C. 131; Reg. v. Camplin, 1 Cox C. C. 220; Reg. v. Ryan, 2 M. C. C. 15.

2. Nugent v. State, 18 Ala. 521. This definition has been adopted in Bishop Cr. Law, § 1116. And see Hiltabiddle v. State, 35 Ohio St. 52; 35 Am. Rep. 592.

But impotence is no defense in a prosecution for assault for intent to commit rape where there is no proof that defendant knew that he was impotent. Territory v. Keyes, 5 Dak. 244.

3. State v. Sam, 1 Wins. No. 1 (N. Car.) 300; Reg. v. Phillips, 8 C. & P. 736; 34 E. C. L. 610; Reg. v. Jordan, 9 C. & P. 118; 38 E. C. L. 63; Reg. v. Brimilow, 9 C. & P. 336; 38 E. C. L. 158; Rex v. Groombridge, 7 C. & P. 782; 32 E. C. L. 641; Williams v. State, 20 Fla. 777.

4. The common-law presumption that a boy under fourteen is incapable of committing rape is liable to be overcome by clear proof of maturity. But the question of capacity is not to be left to the jury on very slight evidence tending to show maturity. People v. Randolph, 2 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 174.

Williams v. State, 14 Ohio 222; 45 Am. Rep. 536; Wagoner v. State, 5 Lea (Tenn.) 352; Heilman v. Com., 84 Ky. 457.

A jury may be instructed to draw inferences as to the age of the prisoner from his personal appearance. State v. McNair, 93 N. Car. 628.

The common-law presumption does not obtain in Louisiana. State v. Jones, 39 La. Ann. 935.

5. State v. Sam, 1 Wins. No. 1 (N. Car.) 300; Rex v. Eldershaw, 3. C. & P. 396; 14 E. C. L. 367; Reg. v. Phillips, 8 C. & P. 736; 34 E. C. L. 610; Williams v. State, 14 Ohio 222; 45 Am. Dec. 536; State v. Handy, 4 Har. (Del.) 566.

In Com. v. Green, 2 Pick. (Mass.) 380, it was held otherwise on the ground that the rules established were in favorem vitæ and should not be extended to assaults. In this case, however, Parker, C. J., dissented, and the decision is opposed to the weight of authority.

In People v. Randolph, 2 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 174, it was held that he cannot be convicted of an assault to commit rape unless the common law presumption as to physical incapacity is overcome by evidence.

III. PRINCIPALS AND ACCESSORIES.—One not technically capable of rape may become guilty by aiding and abetting another who is. All persons who are present, aiding and assisting in the commission of the crime, are principals in the second degree, whether men or women, and may be indicted and punished to the same extent as the principal perpetrator of the crime.¹

IV. THE PERSON ON WHOM THE CRIME MAY BE COMMITTED—1. In General.—The crime may be committed upon any female, of whatever character, mental capacity, or age, if without her consent.²

2. Carnal Abuse of Children.—But a child under ten years of age is conclusively presumed incapable of giving her consent,³ and carnal knowledge of such a child is felony. Carnal knowledge of

1. Kessler v. Com. 12 Bush (Ky.) 18; Reg. v. Crisham, C. & M. 187; 41 E. C. L. 106; Rex v. Folkes, 1 Mov. C. C. 354; Rex v. Gray, 7 Car. & P. 164; 32 E. C. L. 480.

Defendant and three others forcibly separated prosecutrix from her escort, with whom she was walking, and the others ravished her. Defendant admitted that he put his hand on the escort's shoulder, and suggested that he take his girl and go home, and that he knew the intention of the others, but denied taking any further part in the separation, and alleged that he then left. Held, that as defendant was present aiding and assisting, his conviction was warranted, though he did not have intercourse with prosecutrix. People v. Batterson, 50 Hun (N. Y.) 44.

A, who wanted a divorce from his wife, offered B money to be caught in the act of adultery with her. A and his brother concealed themselves while B made the effort. The woman would not consent, whereupon B, A and his brother looking on, committed rape upon her. Held, that A was guilty of rape. People v. Chapman, 62 Mich. 280.

2. Wright v. State, 4 Humph. (Tenn.) 193. That she was a lewd woman or a common prostitute makes no difference. One may be guilty of rape on a woman who offered to permit the intercourse for ten cents. State v. Long, 93 N. Car. 542.

The fact that the female was not a virgin was said in Higgins v. People, 1 Hun (N. Y.) 307, not to lessen nor mitigate the offense.

3. Coates v. State, 50 Ark. 330; Williams v. State, 47 Miss. 609; Dawson v. State, 29 Ark. 116; Fizell v. State, 25 Wis. 364; State v. Dancy, 83 N. Car.

608; People v. McDonald, 9 Mich. 150; Mayo v. State, 7 Tex. App. 342.

Under the Louisiana Code, intercourse with a female under twelve is rape. State v. Tiltman, 30 La. Ann. 1249; 31 Am. Rep. 236.

Act Nebraska 1887, fixes the age of consent for a female child at fifteen years, and in effect declares that she is incapable of consenting to sexual intercourse; and that such intercourse with her, when under that age, by a person over eighteen years of age, even with her consent, will constitute rape. State v. Wright, 25 Neb. 38.

Two Ohio cases, however, hold that evidence is admissible to show that the child understood the nature of the act, or had such knowledge as females at the age of ten usually have, and a bare preponderance only is required. O'Meara v. State, 17 Ohio St. 515; Moore v. State, 17 Ohio St. 521.

On the other hand, a female who is over ten years of age, but is a child yet in physical and mental development, may properly, according to a decision under the Texas Code be presumed incapable of consent. Anschilds v. State, 6 Tex. App. 524. See also Joiner v. State, 62 Ga. 560.

A child under ten years of age cannot legally consent to a rape upon her, but she may consent to the attempt to commit it; and such an attempt, with her consent, would not be an assault. Reg. v. Cockburn, 3 Cox C. C. 543.

But on an indictment for attempting to have carnal knowledge of a girl under ten years, being a misdemeanor, consent by the girl is no defense and is immaterial. Reg. v. Beale, 14 W. R. 57; 10 Cox C. C. 157.

In a trial for rape on a child between thirteen and fourteen years of age, a child between the ages of ten and twelve with her consent is a misdemeanor by statute in England and in most of the States.¹ It is not essential to a conviction that the accused should have known that the girl was under age, and even though she consents, at the same time saying she is over age, the accused may be guilty of the crime.²

V. THE CARNAL KNOWLEDGE NECESSARY.—Actual carnal knowledge must be shown either by direct or indirect evidence.³ Neither in England nor in the United States is it essential, at the present day, to prove emission.⁴ If the fact of penetration is proved, it where the evidence shows that defendants did have intercourse with her, and compelled her to submit to their embraces, though she was shown to be a depraved girl, a refusal to instruct the jury after the testimony of the State had closed, to find defendants not guilty, is not error. Pugh v. Com. (Ky. 1888), 7 S. W. Rep. 541.

1. Attempting to carnally know and abuse a girl between the ages of ten and twelve is not an assault, if the girl consents to all that is done, but is a misdemeanor. The person making such attempt with the consent of the girl is not indictable for an assault, but is indictable for the misdemeanor of attempting to commit the misdemeanor of carnally knowing and abusing her. Reg. v. Martin, 9 C. & P. 213; 38 E. C. L. 85.

An indecent assault committed upon a girl between the ages of ten and twelve, with her consent, is not indictable. Reg. v. Johnson, L. & C. 632; 10 Cox C. C. 114.

On an indictment for the carnal knowledge of a girl above ten years of age and under twelve, and also for an assault, held, on the latter count, that although consent would be a defense, consent extorted by terror, or induced by the influence of a person in whose power she feels herself, is not really such consent as will have that effect. Reg. v. Woodhurst, 12 Cox C. C. 443; and in Reg. v. Day, 9 C. & P. 722, 38 E. C. L. 306, it was held that although consent on the part of the girl would put an end to the charge of assault, yet that there was a great difference between consent and submission, and that, although in the case of an adult, submitting quietly to an outrage of this kind would go far to show consent, yet that, in the case of a child, the jury should consider whether the submission of the child was voluntary on her part, or was the result of fear under the circumstances in which she was placed.

If on a trial for misdemeanor in carnally abusing a girl between the ages of ten and twelve, it appears that, in addition, the elements of rape were present, the prisoner will not be acquitted of the lighter offense. Reg. v. Neale, 1 C. & R. 591; 47 E. C. L. 590.

The statutory provision of Connecticut for the punishment of carnal knowledge of children under ten does not do away with the common-law crime of rape committed on a child under ten. State v. Worden, 46 Conn. 349; 33 Am. Rep. 27.

Subsequent Acts.—On an indictment for rape on a child under ten, evidence was admitted of subsequent perpetrations of the same offense on different days previously to complaint to the mother, it appearing that the prisoner had threatened the child on the first occasion, it was held that, virtually, it was in such a case all one continuous offense. Reg. v. Rearden, 4 F. & F. 76.

It is now rape under the New York statute for a man to have sexual intercourse with a female not his wife under the age of sixteen years. People v. Connor, 31 N. Y. St. Rep. 162. Compare People v. Maxon, 32 N. Y. St. Rep. 131.

See further as to the carnal knowledge of children and of girls under the age of consent, the statutes of the various States.

2. Lawrence v. Com., 30 Gratt. (Va.) 845; Givens v. Com., 29 Gratt. (Va.) 830; State v. Hatfield, 75 Iowa 592.

3. Wesley v. State, 65 Ga. 731; Hartke v. State, 67 Wis. 552; Word v. State, 12 Tex. App. 174; Davies v. State, 43 Tex. 189.

4. Rex v. Jennings, 4 C. & P. 249; 19 E. C. L. 368; Rex v. Reek-spear, 1 M. C. C. 342; Pennsylvania v. Sullivan, Add. (Pa.) 143; Waller v. State, 40 Ala. 325; Osgood v. State, 64 is enough,¹ and evidence of the least penetration is sufficient.²

VI. THE FORCE USED.—Without force, actual or constructive, there can be no rape.³ It must be shown that the prisoner intended to gratify his passion at all events and notwithstanding the utmost resistance on the part of the woman.⁴ The force used must be sufficient to accomplish his purpose,⁵ but need not be such as to create a reasonable apprehension of death. If the woman submits from terror or the dread of greater violence caused by threats, the intimidation becomes equivalent to force.⁶ Accomplishing intercourse by fraud without intending to use force does not constitute rape unless it be shown that the accused intended to use force if the fraud failed.⁷

Wis. 472; Comstock v. State, 14 Neb. 205; People v. Crowley, 105 N. Y. 234; 24 & 25 Vict. ch. 100, § 63; 9 Geo. IV., ch. 31, § 18.

1. Reg. v. Allen, 9 C. & P. 31; 38 E. C. L. 24.

2. State v. Le Blanc, 1 Treadw. Const. (S. Car.) 354; State v. Hargrave, 65 N. Car. 466; State v. Burton, 1 Houst. Crim. C. (Del.) 363; State v. Shields, 45 Conn. 256; Bean v. People, 124 Ill. 576; Taylor v. State, 111 Ind. 279; State v. Hodges, Phil. (N. Car.) 231; Reg. v. Hughes, 9 C. & P. 752; 38 E. C. L. 320; Reg. v. Russen, 1 East P. C. 430; Reg. v. Jordan, 9 C. & P. 118; 38 E. C. L. 63.

If, on the trial of an indictment for carnally knowing and abusing a female child under ten, the jury is satisfied that at any time any part of the virile member of the prisoner was within the labia of the pudenda, no matter how little, this is sufficient to constitute a penetration, and the jury ought to convict. Reg. v. Lines, 1 C. & K. 393; 47 E. C. L. 393.

The extent of the penetration is immaterial. People v. Crowley, 102 N. Y. 234.

Though it is not necessary, in order to complete the offense of rape, that the hymen should be ruptured, provided that it is clearly proved that there was penetration, yet where that which is so very near to the entrance has not been ruptured, it is very difficult to come to the conclusion that there has been penetration so as to sustain the charge. Reg. v. McRue, 8 C. & P. 641; 34 E. C. L. 562.

The proof of penetration may be indirect. Brauer v. State, 25 Wis. 413.

3. McNair v. State, 53 Ala. 453; Osgood v. State, 64 Wis. 472; State v. Murphy, 6 Ala. 765; 41 Am. Dec. 79.

It is not the persistence with which the prisoner intended to prosecute his design but the force actually used, that is an element in the crime. Dauson v. State, 29 Ark. 116.

The jury must be satisfied that the accused intended to have intercourse by force, and not merely to tempt to consent. Garrison v. People, 6 Neb. 274.

4. Rex v. Lloyd, 7 C. & P. 318; 32 E. C. L. 523; Reg. v. Wright, 4 F. & F. 667; Mahoney v. People, 43 Mich. 39; State v. Hagerman, 47 Iowa 151; Taylor v. State, 50 Ga. 79. Where, in determining the question of intent, the jury was allowed to consider the fact that the prisoner desisted and fled when the woman cried out.

5. Com. v. McDonald, 110 Mass. 405; Waller v. State, 40 Ala. 325.

6. Reg. v. Rudland, 4 F. & F. 495; Pleasant v. State, 13 Ark. 360; Turner v. People, 33 Mich. 363; Huston v. People, 121 Ill. 497; Bass v. State, 16 Tex. App. 62; State v. Ward, 73 Iowa 532.

7. Walter v. People, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 144; Lewis v. State, 30 Ala. 54; Myatt v. State, 2 Swan (Tenn.) 394; and see Reg. v. Stanton, 1 C. & K. 415; 47 E. C. L. 414, where, on an indictment for an assault with intent to commit a rape, the prosecutrix stated, that the defendant, her medical man, being in her bedroom, directed her to lean forward on a bed, that he might apply an injection; she did so, and the injection having been applied, she found the defendant was proceeding to have connection with her, upon which she instantly raised herself, and ran out of the room. She stated that

VII. RESISTANCE AND CONSENT.—There can be no rape of a female within the age of consent, where there is consent, no matter how reluctantly it be given.¹ The connection must be against her will, and there must be the utmost reluctance and resistance, or her will must be overcome by fear and terror so extreme as to preclude resistance.² The resistance must depend in amount on surrounding circumstances, and on the relative physical strength of the parties.³

There is no arbitrary rule of law that a woman must employ in resistance the utmost physical force and display the utmost reluctance of which she is capable.⁴

Non-resistance to connection, permitted under a misapprehension induced by the conduct of the man, by a woman conscious and capable of consenting, amounts to consent, though unintentional.⁵

But a connection with a woman while asleep,⁶ unconscious,⁷ or the defendant had penetrated her person a little. Held, that, if it had appeared that the defendant had intended to have had a connection with the prosecutrix by force, the complete offense of rape would, upon this evidence have been proved, but that the thus getting possession of the person of the woman by surprise, was not an assault with intent to commit a rape, but was an assault.

1. Reg. v. Jones, 4 L. T., N. S. 154; Pollard v. State, 2 Iowa 567; Territory v. Potter, 1 Arizona 421; State v. Burgdorf, 53 Mo. 65; Whittaker v. State, 50 Wis. 518; 36 Am. Rep. 856; Brown v. People, 36 Mich. 203.

2. Strang v. People, 24 Mich. 1; Don Moran v. People, 25 Mich. 356; State v. Ruth, 21 Kan. 583; Wright v. State, 4 Humph. (Tenn.) 194; People v. Clemons, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 580; State v. Ward, 73 Iowa 532.

3. Jenkins v. State, 1 Tex. App. 346; Bean v. People, 124 Ill. 576; People v. Crego, 70 Mich. 319; State v. Knapp, 45 N. H. 148; Nugent v. State, 18 Ala. 521.

4. Com. v. McDonald, 110 Mass. 405; State v. Shields, 45 Conn. 256.

Compare the following cases, where it appears that, at the time of the offense, the prosecutrix was conscious, in the possession of her natural mental and physical powers, was not overawed by the number of assailants nor terrified by threats of death, nor in such place and position as to make resistance useless, she must resist until exhausted or overpowered. People v. Dohring, 59 N. Y. 374; 17 Am. Rep. 349; Oleson v. State, 11 Neb. 276; 38 Am. Rep. 366;

People v. Mayes, 66 Cal. 597; 56 Am. Rep. 126; Mathews v. State, 11 Neb. 330; People v. Morrison, 1 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 625.

5. Reg. v. Barrow, 11 Cox C. C. 191. A woman, with her baby in her arms, was lying in bed between sleeping and waking, and her husband was asleep beside her. She was completely awakened by a man having connection with her, and pushing the baby aside. Almost directly she was completely awakened she found that the man was not her husband, and awoke her husband. Held, that a conviction for a rape upon these facts could not be sustained.

Reg. v. Clarke, 6 Cox C. C. 412; Reg. v. Sweeney, 8 Cox C. C. 223; Reg. v. Williams, 8 C. & P. 286; 34 E. C. L. 392; Reg. v. Saunders, 8 C. & P. 265; 34 E. C. L. 383; Rex v. Jackson, R. & R., C. C. 487; Lewis v. State, 30 Ala. 54; Wyatt v. State, 2 Swan (Tenn.) 394.

Obtaining intercourse with a weak-minded woman by fraud consisting of a fictitious marriage, is not rape. Bloodworth v. State, 6 Baxt. (Tenn.) 614; 32 Am. Rep. 546.

So as to consent obtained by promises. Clark v. State, 30 Tex. 448.

Under the Texas statute, rape by fraud is not shown by a mere attempt to have connection with a sleeping married woman. There must be an active stratagem inducing her to believe the offender to be her husband. King v. State, 22 Tex. App. 650.

6. Reg. v. Mayers, 12 Co. C. C. 311.

7. Com. v. Burke, 105 Mass. 376; 7 Am. Rep. 531.

insensible from intoxication¹ is rape; for the capacity to consent is wanting, and there is no necessity that the act should be positively against the woman's will, absence of consent being sufficient;² so where there is idiocy or imbecility of such a degree as to prevent capacity for assent or dissent.³ Where a woman gives her consent through representations that the intercourse is a part of medical treatment, the offense is not rape, but assault.⁴ On the other hand, where the connection is under pretense of performing a surgical operation to which the prosecutrix has given her consent, she consenting to one thing and he doing another by fraud, there may be rape.⁵

1. Reg. v. Camplin, 1 C. & K. 746; 47 E. C. L. 746. But in New York having carnal connection, forcibly, with a woman intoxicated to the point of insensibility, is not a rape but is merely a crime under § 23 of the act respecting offenses against the person (2 New York Rev. Stat. 663, § 23).

And a person cannot properly be convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape when the circumstances of the assault were such that a violation of the person actually accomplished would not have been a rape. People v. Quin, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 128.

2. Reg. v. Fletcher, 8 Cox C. C. 131; Reg. v. Hallett, 9 C. & P. 748; 38 E. C. L. 318; Osgood v. State, 64 Wis. 472; State v. Shields, 45 Conn. 256; Com. v. Burke, 105 Mass. 376; 7 Am. Rep. 531.

3. Reg. v. Barratt, 12 Cox C. C. 498; State v. Tarr, 28 Iowa 397; State v. Atherton, 50 Iowa 189; 32 Am. Rep. 134; Reg. v. Fletcher, 8 Cox C. C. 131. But the mere fact of connection with an idiot girl capable of recognizing and describing the prisoner, but incapable, so far as her idiocy rendered her so, of expressing dissent or consent, and therefore without her consent, is not sufficient evidence of the commission of a rape upon her to be left to a jury. Reg. v. Fletcher, 14 W. R. 764; 10 Cox C. C. 248.

The cases of Reg. v. Fletcher, 8 Cox C. C. 131; and of Reg. v. Fletcher, 10 Cox C. C. 248; 1 L. R. C. C. 39, are not adverse to one another. The principle is properly laid down in the first case, and the second case was only a decision to the effect that there was not that requisite testimony of want of assent to justify leaving the case to the jury. Reg. v. Barrett, 12 Cox C. C. 498.

In decisions made under the Texas code, imbecility has been held not to be presumption of want of consent. See Baldwin v. State, 15 Tex. App. 275; Rodriguez v. State, 20 Tex. App. 542.

See also McQuirk v. State (Ala.), 4 So. Rep. 775; People v. Cornwell, 13 Mich. 327, where it was held that the crime of rape was not committed where a man had intercourse with a woman of good size and strength and of mature age, who was shown to be in a state of dementia not idiotic but approaching to it, and no circumstances of fraud or force were shown.

4. Reg. v. Case, 5 Cox C. C. 222; Don Moran v. People, 25 Mich. 356; 12 Am. Rep. 283. See also Walter v. People, 80 Barb. (N. Y.) 144.

5. Reg. v. Flattery, 13 Cox C. C. 388; Pomeroy v. State, 94 Ind. 96; 48 Am. Rep. 146.

Mere verbal objections unaccompanied by any outcry or actual resistance are not enough to make the acts of the accused rape or an attempt to commit rape. Reynolds v. People, 41 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 279; Lawson v. State, 17 Tex. App. 292. So where besides lack of outcry no complaint was made within a reasonable time, and before instituting criminal proceedings the prosecutrix had brought suit for seduction under promise of marriage. Eyler v. State, 71 Ind. 49. So where there was another person in the room who could have heard had there been resistance or outcry. Pollard v. State, 2 Iowa 567. So where the prosecutrix, a girl of fourteen, weighed thirty-five pounds more than the accused and admitted that she made neither outcry nor resistance. Brown v. Com., 82 Va. 653. See also Barney v. People, 22 Ill. 160. But see Bailey v. Com., 82 Va. 107, where the defendant had intercourse with a fourteen-year old step-daughter in her bed in a room where three younger children were sleeping; she

VIII. INDICTMENT—1. Joinder of Parties.—Two or more may be indicted jointly as principals for the commission of rape,¹ for one may be present, aiding and abetting others, which, in the law of rape, constitutes him a principal.²

A count charging A as a principal in the first degree and B as a principal in the second degree may be joined with another count charging B as principal in the first degree and A as principal in the second degree.³

told him not to get into the bed and threatened to tell her mother, but made no outcry, and no complaint for six days. It was held that under the circumstances, a conviction of rape must be sustained; and where a father has established a kind of reign of terror in his family, and his daughter, under the influence of dread and terror, remains passive while he has connection with her, he may be found guilty of rape. Reg. v. Jones, 4 L. T., N. S. 154. Where there was evidence tending to show consent of the prosecutrix, and also that she withdrew such consent before the act was consummated, a conviction will not be disturbed. State v. McCaffeny, 63 Iowa 479.

The facts that the female made no violent outcry, that her garments were uninjured, are strong, but not conclusive, evidence to rebut the charge of the commission of a rape upon her, and are to be weighed by the jury in connection with her age, and the other circumstances of the case. State v. Cross, 12 Iowa 66; 79 Am. Dec. 519.

In the case of a very young child, to wit fifteen years old, there may be a conviction, although she made no opposition at all, as submission does not necessarily imply consent. State v. Cross, 12 Iowa 66.

Consent cannot be inferred from the fact that the clothes of the prosecutrix were not soiled, and that she was not hurt, nor can consent to the act with a negro defendant be inferred from the fact that the prosecutrix has lived and associated with negroes. Barnett v. State, 83 Ala. 40.

The fact that the victim made no outcry is of weight even though the relation between the parties and the friendly and ignorant condition of the sufferer accounts for the silence. State v. Cone, 1 Jones (N. Car.) 18.

When the testimony of the prosecutrix is that the parties were in her room engaged in conversation, when she was surprised and suddenly overcome, and her mouth stopped, and that she became unconscious, and received grievous injuries, of which she soon after complained to her sister, the explanation of why no outcry was made after she became conscious is for the jury, and the judgment will not be set aside for refusal to grant a new trial on defendant's motion, though he says the prosecutrix was not unconscious. State v. Reid, 39 Minn. 277.

How far the fact that the prosecutrix made no outcry, although she knew there were neighbors within hearing, nor showed any marks of violence, may be considered in favor of the accused. See Crockett v. State, 49 Ga. 185.

1. Dennis v. State, 5 Ark. 230.

2. State v. Comstock, 46 Iowa 265. A person aiding may be charged as an accessory according to the fact, or as a principal in the first degree, as he is in law. Reg. v. Crishan, Cor. & M. 187; Reg. v. Folkes, 1 M. C. C. 354.

Evidence may be given of several rapes on the same woman, at the same time, by the prisoner and other men, each assisting the other in turn, without putting the prosecutrix to elect on which count to proceed. Reg. v. Folkes, 1 M. C. C. 354.

3. Rex v. Gray, 7 C. & P. 164; 32 E. C. L. 480.

An indictment charged H with rape, and W with aiding and abetting in the rape. The jury found H and W guilty of misdemeanor; H of attempting to commit a rape, and W of aiding H in the attempt. It was contended that this verdict amounted to an acquittal of W, as the case did not fall within 14 & 15 Vict., ch. 100, § 9, by which a person indicted for a crime may be found guilty of an attempt to commit the crime. The objection was overruled. Held, that the conviction ought to be affirmed. Reg. v. Hapgood, 1 L. R., C. C. 221; 18 W. R. 356.

2. Joinder of Counts.—A count in an indictment charging rape may be joined with others charging an assault with intent to commit rape, or a simple assault and battery—the lesser offense being merged in the greater.¹

On an indictment for rape, the prosecutor will not be compelled to elect between counts for rape and assault with intent to commit rape, or simple assault and battery; but as the indictment charges one substantive offense, rape, the defendant may be placed on trial for that crime without taking out of the case the minor offense necessarily included in a charge of rape.²

So also, a count for an attempt to commit rape may be joined to one for the carnal knowledge of a child, and the prisoner, though acquitted of the latter, may be convicted of the assault.³

1. State v. Sutton, 4 Gill (Md.) 494; People v. Tyler, 35 Cal. 553; Prindle v. People, 42 Ill. 217; State v. Johnson, 30 N. J. L. 185; Cook v. State, 24 N. J. L. 843; Stevens v. State 66 Md. 202; Campbell v. People, 34 Mich. 351; Stephen v. State, 11 Ga. 225; Richardson v. State, 54 Ala. 158; Richie v. State, 58 Md. 355; People v. Draper, 28 Hun (N. Y.) 1; Com. v. Thompson, 116 Mass. 346; Com. v. Cooper, 15 Mass. 187. But see Com. v. Roby, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 496, 507.

Under the Iowa Code, the prisoner cannot be convicted of an assault and battery on an indictment for assault with intent to commit rape, unless there be an averment that the attempt was accompanied by actual violence. State v. McAvoy, 73 Iowa 557.

For cases under the Texas statute which specifies three modes of committing the offense—namely, force, threats, and fraud, see Williams v. State, 1 Tex. App. 90; 28 Am. Rep. 399; Cornelius v. State, 13 Tex. App. 349; Sharp v. State, 15 Tex. App. 171; Bass v. State, 16 Tex. App. 62; Lawson v. State, 17 Tex. App. 293.

Under the Indiana statute defining rape to be either the unlawful carnal knowledge of a woman against her will, or 2nd, carnal knowledge of a female child under twelve years of age, a charge of assault and battery with intent to commit rape of one class cannot be sustained by evidence showing an assault with intent to commit rape of the other class. Greer v. State, 50 Ind. 267; 19 Am. Rep. 709.

So, in Alabama, rape and carnal knowledge of an infant under ten years of age are not identical, and an indictment for rape is not sustained when it is proved that the victim is under ten, unless there is also proof of force sufficient to constitute rape proper. Vassar v. State, 55 Ala. 264.

So also in Mississippi. See Bonner v. State, 65 Miss. 293. See also Howard v. State, 11 Ohio St. 328.

On an indictment for rape the defendant cannot be convicted of adultery. State v. Hooks, 69 Wis. 182; nor of fornication. State v. Shear, 51 Wis. 460; Speer v. State, 60 Ga. 381; Com. v. Murphy, 2 Allen (Mass.) 163.

But under the Massachusetts statute he may be convicted of incest, if the jury find the criminal connection, but that it was not by force and not against the consent of the female. Com. v. Goodhue, 2 Met. (Mass.) 193.

An indictment charging defendant with forcibly and unlawfully breaking into and entering a dwelling house at night "with intent then and there to commit the crime of rape," does not charge a burglary, as it lacks an allegation of burglarious intent; nor an assault with intent to commit rape, as it fails to set forth the essential ingredients of that offense. State v. Williams, 41 Tex. 98; State v. Ryan, 15 Oregon 572.

2. Mills v. State, 52 Ind. 87; People v. Satterlee, 5 Hun (N. Y.) 167.

On an indictment joining a count for an assault with intent to commit rape on A B, with one charging an assault of the same nature on C D on a different day, the prosecutor may give evidence of both assaults. Reg. v. Davies, 5 Cox C. C. 328.

3. Reg. v. Rylands, 11 Cox C. C. 101; Reg. v. Folkes, 2 M. & Rob. 460.

Conviction of Attempt or Assault on Indictment for Rape, etc.—By 14 & 15 Vict. ch. 100, § 9, upon an indictment for a rape, a prisoner may be convicted

It is not ground for acquittal on an indictment for an assault with intent to commit rape, that the evidence amounts to proof of rape.¹

3. Descriptive Allegations.—An indictment for rape is not defective for omission to charge that the offense was committed by a male, or that the prisoner was over fourteen;² or that the female assaulted was of the human species;³ or that the complainant was not the wife of the defendant;⁴ or that the crime was committed on a female, where the indictment gives a woman's name and uses the pronouns "she" and "her" in speaking of the person on whom the rape was committed;⁵

of an attempt to commit the same, and will be liable to the same consequences as if charged and convicted of the attempt. Therefore, where an indictment charged the defendant with an assault and an intent to abuse and carnally know a female child, it was held that he might be convicted of an assault to abuse her simply, as the averment of such intention is divisible. Rex v. Dawson, 3 Stark. 62.

An indictment contained one count, charging that the prisoner in and upon a girl between the ages of ten and twelve "unlawfully did make an assault and her did then unlawfully and carnally know and abuse against the form of the statute." The offense of carnally knowing and abusing was disproved, but there was evidence of an indecent assault, which was left to the jury, who found the prisoner guilty of a common assault. Held, that the indictment charged an assault as a distinct and separable offense, and that the conviction was good. Reg. v. Guthrie, 1 L. R., C. C. 241; 18 W. R. 792.

When a man is indicted under 38 & 39 Vict., ch. 94, § 3, for rape upon a child under twelve years of age, he cannot, upon that indictment, be found guilty of an assault, indecent or otherwise. Reg. v. Catherall, 13 Cox C. C. 109.

1. State v. Vadnais, 21 Minn. 382.

In England, before 14 & 15 Vict., ch. 10, § 12, a defendant would be acquitted on an indictment for an assault with intent to ravish, if the evidence amounted to proof of an actual rape. Rex v. Harmwood, 1 East P. C. 411; and on an indictment for the misdemeanor of carnally knowing a girl between the ages of ten and twelve the prisoner must be acquitted on proof that the girl is under ten. Reg. v. Shott, 3 C. & K. 206.

2. Cornelius v. State, 13 Tex. App. 349; Word v. State, 12 Tex. App. 174; Davis v. State, 42 Tex. 226; People v. Ah Yek, 29 Cal. 575; Com. v. Scannel, 11. Cush. (Mass.) 547.

3. State v. Tom, 2 Jones (N. Car.) 414; Anderson v. State, 34 Ark. 257.

4. Com. v. Scammel, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 547; Com. v. Fogerty, 8 Gray (Mass.) 489; 69 Am. Dec. 264; People v. Estrada, 53 Cal. 600.

5. Taylor v. Com., 20 Gratt. (Va.) 825; State v. Warner, 74 Mo. 83; State v. Hussey, 7 Iowa 409; State v. Hammond, 77 Mo. 157; State v. Farmer, 4 Ired. (N. Car.) 8, 224; Hill v. State, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 317.

An indictment describing a woman as a female is good. State v. Myers, 84 Ala. 11; Gibson v. State, 17 Tex. App. 574; Com. v. Bennet, 2 Va. Cas. 235.

Owing to the fact that the statute provides a severer penalty when the crime is committed upon a daughter or sister of the perpetrator in Ohio, it is necessary to state that the woman or female child upon whom the rape is charged to have been committed is not the daughter or sister of the accused, and an indictment against H and R, charging them jointly with having carnal knowledge of U, forcibly and against her will, the said U "not being the daughter or sister of them, the said H and R," is not a sufficient negative averment; for, notwithstanding such averment, the said U may be the daughter or sister of H or R. Howard v. State, 11 Ohio St. 328. Compare Williams v. State, Wright (Ohio) 42.

In indictments under the Virginia statutes against rape, which enacted a punishment against free persons different from that of slaves, it was adjudged not necessary to allege that a prisoner nor is it necessary to state that she was over the age of consent.¹

The unnecessary averment if inserted need not be proved.² When the act is committed upon an infant under the age of consent, she must be described as such.³ But where her age is not alleged, a conviction may be had, if rape with force and against the consent of the child be alleged and proved.⁴

It need not be alleged that the offense was committed at any particular place in the county.⁵

4. Charging the Offense.—In every written legal accusation of the crime of rape, it must be laid down as a felony, by the use of the word "feloniously."⁶ The omission of the word "unlaw-was a white person. Young v. Com., 2 Va. Cas. 328.

An information for rape which charged that the offense was committed by "Louis Girous" upon the person of "Sarah Tougaw" is supported by an affidavit charging that it was committed by "Lewis Geraux" upon one "Sarah F. Tugaw." Girous v. State, 29 Ind. 93.

1. Com. v. England, 4 Gray (Mass.) 7; O'Meara v. State, 17 Ohio St. 515; State v. Farmer, 4 Ired. (N. Car.) 224; State v. Storkey, 63 N. Car. 7; Hill v. State, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 317; State v. Gaul, 50 Conn. 578.

2. Mobley v. State, 46 Miss. 501.

3. O'Rourke v. State, 8 Tex. App. 70; State v. Terry, 4 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 152; McClure v. State, 116 Ind. 169; State v. Johnson, 100 N. Car. 494.

An indictment for the abuse of a female child, which avers that the defendant at a certain time and place did assault "one B C, a female child under the age of ten years," and "her the said B C, then and there" did abuse, is not fatally defective, by reason of omitting the words "she then and there being" or other like words, after the first mention of the name of the child; nor by omitting to repeat her age after the second mention of her name. Com. v. Sullivan, 6 Gray (Mass.) 477.

But compare Nugent v. State, 19 Ala. 540. An allegation that the child is "under ten years of age, to wit, etc.," giving the age is good, and when the evidence shows a variance, though not that the child is over ten, the superfluous allegation will not be fatal. People v. Mills, 17 Cal. 276.

Where in an indictment for the carnal abuse of an infant, a second count omitted the words of description "an infant above the age of ten, and under the age of twelve" it was held that they could not be imported into the second count from the first, by the use of "the said" etc., and merely repeating the girl's name. Reg. v. Martin, 9 C. & P. 215; 38 E. C. L. 87.

Where it is immaterial whether the child is under or over ten years of age, and the proof shows that she is older, an allegation that she was under ten will not render this indictment defective. Nicholas v. State, 23 Tex. App. 317. But see State v. Erickson, 45 Wis. 86, where an indictment charged that the prisoner with force and against her will ravished and cruelly knew a child under the age of ten. The verdict found the defendant guilty of rape on the child "being of the age of over ten years." The higher court held that the indictment charged sufficiently an abuse of a child and that the allegation of force was surplusage, and being surplusage would not sustain a conviction of rape with force. The rule that the accused may be convicted of a lower crime when charged with a greater applies only when the proof necessary to convict of the greater is sufficient to prove the less.

4. Rex v. Wedge, 5 C. & P. 298; 24 E. C. L. 329; Rex v. Martin, 9 C. & P. 215; 38 E. C. L. 87; Rex v. Nicholls, 15 Cox C. C. 476; Rex v. Dicken, 14 Cox C. C. 8; Com. v. Sugland, 4 Gray (Mass.) 7; State v. Gaul, 50 Conn. 579; O'Meara v. State, 17 Ohio St. 515; State v. Storkey, 63 N. Car. 7; State v. Staton, 88 N. Car. 654; Vassar v. State, 55 Ala. 264.

5. O'Connell v. State, 6 Minn. 279; People v. Mills, 17 Cal. 276.

6. Mears v. Com., 2 Grant. Cas. (Pa.) 385; Hays v. State, 57 Miss. 783. But in Massachusetts, in an indictment for rape it is no longer necessary fully" in an indictment does not render it fatally defective, provided the description is in accordance with the common law definition of the offense.¹ The word ravish is necessary in charging the offense in an indictment for rape, and its omission will even after conviction be ground for reversal.² The word rape is unnecessary where other sufficiently descriptive words are used,³ and is an insufficient substitute in their absence.

In some of the States the words "forcibly and against the will" are indispensable,⁴ except when charging the offense upon a child under the age of consent.⁵ The words "and consent" need not be added to "against her will," as the former expression includes the latter.⁶ The allegation is sufficiently full without specifying further the manner in which connection was had or the means employed.⁷ An allegation that the act was committed by force and violence and against the will and consent of the female, is equivalent to an allegation that she resisted or was prevented from resisting.⁸ The word "violently," however, may be substituted for "forcibly."⁹ The word "ravish" is equivalent to "forcibly and against the will."¹⁰ The omission of the word "did" before "ravish, etc.," does not render an indictment fatally defective.¹¹ There need not be an express allegation of an assault.¹² In charging an assault with intent to commit rape the use of the word "intention" instead of "intent" is not to aver that the act was committed "with force and arms" or "feloniously." Com. v. Scammel, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 547.

1. Weinzorpfli v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 186.

2. Gogleman v. People, 3 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 15; Christian v. Com., 23 Gratt. (Va.) 954; Davis v. State, 42 Tex. 226.

3. People v. McDonald, 9 Mich. 150; State v. Hart, 33 Kan. 218.

4. State v. Jim, 1 Dev. (N. Car.) 142; State v. Black, 63 Me. 210. Compare Elschlep v. State, 11 Tex. App. 301. In Alabama, the words "against her will" are not indispensable.

5. State v. Smith, Phil. (N. Car.) 302; Davis v. State, 42 Tex. 226; People v. Mills, 17 Cal. 276.

6. State v. Gaul, 50 Conn. 578.

7. McMath v. State, 55 Ga. 303; Cooper v. State, 22 Tex. App. 419; Territory v. Keyes, 5 Dak. 244.

Under California Pen. Code, § 261, defining rape as an act of sexual intercourse with a female, not the wife of the perpetrator, under the following circumstances: With a child of tender years; with a lunatic or insane woman; by intimidation; by the administration of intoxicating or narcotic substances, etc.—the information need only charge that the crime was committed by force, violence, and against the will of the prosecuting witness, without setting out under which of the above circumstances it was accomplished. People v. Snyder, 75 Cal. 323.

8. People v. Pacheco, 70 Cal. 473.

9. State v. Williams, 32 La. Ann. 335; 36 Am. Rep. 272; disapproving State v. Blake, 39 Me. 322; Walling v. State, 7 Tex. App. 625; State v. Johnson, 67 N. Car. 55; Gutienez v. State, 44 Tex. 587. See also State v. Daly, 16 Oregon 240, where it is held that violently meets the requirements of the statutory words "assault with intent to commit rape."

10. Williams v. State, 1 Tex. App. 90; 28 Am. Rep. 399; Gibson v. State, 17 Tex. App. 574; Hannan v. Com., 12 S. & R. (Pa.) 69.

11. Whitney v. State, 35 Ind. 503.

12. O'Connell v. State, 6 Minn. 279.

A was convicted on an indictment, which charged that he "in and upon E F," "feloniously and violently did make (omitting the words 'an assault,')" and her, then and there, and against her will, violently and feloniously did ravish and carnally know—held, that the omission of the words, fatal;¹ but it is otherwise as to the use of "attempt." An indictment is sufficient, which alleges carnal knowledge of a child, under a statute providing for that offense without adding "abuse" also.²

5. Conclusion.—The indictment need not conclude in the form of the statute, as rape is a common-law offense.³

IX. EVIDENCE—1. The Prosecutrix—a. AS A WITNESS.—The ravished female is a competent witness, even to the extent of testifying against her husband, where he is indicted as an accessory.⁴ Yet, her testimony must be scrutinized with caution, and its credibility determined by the jury in the light of the corroborating circumstances.⁵

Where the defendant denies the crime, the woman's testimony must be corroborated,⁶ though, if her testimony is fairly corroborated as to material facts and circumstances, the fact of the rape need not be proved by other witnesses.⁷

The prisoner may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape without the testimony of the party injured.⁸

b. WHEN AN INFANT.—One may be convicted of rape upon the unsupported evidence of an infant under years of discretion, if the jury is satisfied that the evidence is such as to leave no reasonable doubt of guilt.⁹ It is not necessary that her testimony be confirmed by an examination of her person at the time, or by medical testimony.¹⁰

The infant witness must be sworn, even though under seven years of age.¹¹ If too young to know the nature of an oath, her evidence cannot be received.¹²

"an assault," was no ground for arresting the judgment. Reg. v. Allen, 9 C. & P. 521; 38 E. C. L. 206.

1. State v. Tom, 2 Jones (N. Car.) 414. Compare State v. Martin, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 329.

2. Reg. v. Holland, 10 Cox C. C. 478.

A count in an indictment charging that a defendant did attempt to assault a girl by soliciting and inducing her to place herself in an indecent attitude, he doing the like, is bad. Rex v. Butler, 6 C. & P. 368.

3. O'Connell v. State, 6 Minn. 279.

For a contrary doctrine in North Carolina, see State v. Dick, 2 Murph. (N. Car.) 338; State v. Storkey, 63 N. Car. 7.

4. Rex v. Castlereagle, 1 St. Trials, 387; 1 Hob. P. C. 629.

The prosecutrix, however, cannot testify that the accused attempted to ravish her, but did not accomplish his purpose, as that is a conclusion of law. Scott v. State, 48 Ala. 420.

5. People v. Hulse, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 309; Innis v. State, 42 Ga. 473.

6. Mathews v. State, 19 Neb. 330.

Contra, even though the woman be of ill fame. Boddie v. State, 52 Ala. 395; Barnett v. State, 83 Ala. 40.

7. Fager v. State, 22 Neb. 332.

8. People v. Bates, 2 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 27.

9. Anonymous, 1 Russ. C. & M. 932; Territory v. Keyes, 5 Dak. 244.

But as to cases where the testimony is open to suspicion, and numerous improbabilities exist, see Gazley v. State, 17 Tex. App. 267; Montresser v. State, 19 Tex. App. 281.

Defendant was charged with committing rape upon a girl eleven years old. She swore to the fact. Held, that the jury were justified in disregarding her testimony, and finding defendant guilty of an assault with intent to rape, and that the prisoner had no cause for complaint. Jones v. State, 68 Ga. 760.

10. State v. Sattin, 29 Conn. 389.

11. Rex v. Brasier, 1 East P. C. 443; McMath v. State, 55 Ga. 303.

12. Reg. v. Cockburn, 3 Cox. C. C. 543.

In a case of carnally knowing and Family discussion as to the birthday and acts done on that day are admissible to show the age of an infant prosecutrix;¹ also the opinion of medical experts;² so also the mother's evidence, though on cross-examination her knowledge seems by no means clear.³ But a register of the child's baptism, and a statement of her father that he left home a week before the recorded date of that baptism, and, returning on that day, found this child and was told that it was born the day before, are not sufficient.⁴

C. HER COMPLAINT AT THE TIME.—For the purpose of corroborating her testimony on the trial, the fact, that the prosecutrix made a complaint immediately after the occurrence, is admissible in evidence, although it is hearsay;⁵ also when, where and to whom it was made,⁶ but not as substantive testimony to prove the commission of the offense.⁷ But it is not permitted to state the name of the person whom she charged with the crime, or the abusing a girl under ten years old, it appeared, on an application on the part of the prosecution to postpone the trial, that the girl was only six years old, and, by reason of her age, quite incompetent to take an oath. Held, that the trial ought not to be postponed in order that the child might be instructed as to the nature of an oath; but that there might be cases of children of more matured intellect, e. g., of ten or twelve years old, who might be from neglected education incapable of being sworn, in which such a postponement might be proper.

Where in such a case the child, from her tender age, was incompetent to be sworn, the judge would not receive evidence of what the child stated to her mother shortly after the alleged offense took place, nor allow the mother to prove that the child mentioned to her the name of any particular person. Reg. v. Williams, 7 C. & P. 320; 32 E. C. L. 524; Reg. v. Nicholas, 2 C. & K. 246; 61 E. C. L. 245.

1. Reg. v. Hughes, 2 Cox C. C. 226.

2. State v. Smith, Phil. (N. Car.) 302.

3. Reg. v. Nicholls, 10 Cox C. C. 476.

4. Rex v. Wedge, 5 C. & P. 298; 24 E. C. L. 329.

5. Lacy v. State, 45 Ala. 80; Smith v. State, 47 Ala. 540; Rex v. Clarke, 2 Stark. 241; 3 E. C. L. 339; Phillips v. State, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 246; 49 Am. Dec. 709; State v. Niles, 47 Vt. 82. Compare State v. Peter, 14 La. Ann. 527.

Such evidence is admissible, although the prosecutrix did not testify until after such corroborative testimony had been given. State v. Mitchell, 68 Iowa 116; or even though, the witness is allowed to give the name of the accused (where objection was not raised on that ground). Burt v. State, 23 Ohio St. 394.

6. Thompson v. State, 38 Ind. 39. On the direct examination, the practice has been merely to ask whether she made complaint that such an outrage had been committed upon her and to receive in answer only a simple yes or no; this statement is only corroborative of her testimony, and is not evidence of the fact upon which the jury can find the prisoner guilty; when she is not a witness in the case it is wholly inadmissible. But as to the last statement, see Reg. v. Megson, 9 C. & P. 420; 38 E. C. L. 173.

7. Johnson v. State, 17 Ohio 593; Laughlin v. State, 18 Ohio 99; McCombs v. State, 8 Ohio St. 643; People v. McGee, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 19.

The rule is the same although it appear that the prosecutrix is incompetent to testify on account of immature age, idiocy or other mental defect.

Where the injured person is of sufficient age and of competent though weak understanding, but is unable to talk, and can communicate and receive ideas only through signs, she may yet be sworn as a witness, and examined through the medium of a person who can understand her, who is sworn to interpret between her and the court and jury. People v. McGee, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 19.

The statements of an infant to her mother immediately after the commission of the crime are admissible as part particulars as narrated by her.¹ But the particulars of the complaint are admissible on cross-examination, and to confirm the testimony of the prosecutrix after it has been impeached.²

of the res gesta. McMath v. State, 55 Ga. 303.

1. Reg. v. Osborne, Car. & M. 622; 41 E. C. L. 338; Reg. v. Walker, 2 M. & Rob. 212; Thompson v. State, 38 Ind. 39; Stephen v. State, 11 Ga. 225; State v. Shettleworth, 18 Minn. 209; State v. Richards, 33 Iowa 420; State v. Mitchell, 68 Iowa 116; State v. Clark, 69 Iowa 294; Oleson v. State, 11 Neb. 276; 38 Am. Rep. 366; Reg. v. Mercer, 6 Jur. 243; Parker v. State, 67 Md. 329; People v. Mayes, 66 Cal. 597; 56 Am. Rep. 126; State v. Robertson, 38 La. Ann. 618; 58 Am. Rep. 201; People v. Clemmons, 37 Hun (N. Y.) 580; Pefferling v. State, 40 Tex. 486; Holst v. State, 23 Tex. App. 1; 59 Am. Rep. 770; People v. Tierney, 67 Cal. 54; State v. Campbell, 20 Nev. 122; Baccio v. People, 41 N. Y. 265. The same restrictions must be enforced even where the party ravished has died before the trial. Reg. v. Megson, 9 C. & P. 420; 38 E. C. L. 173.

Contra, not only what the prosecutrix said immediately after the occasion, but what was said in answer to her, is evidence. Reg. v. Eyre, 2 F. & F. 579. But this case is meagerly reported, and no author is given. See 1 Russ. on Crimes 924, note (f).

But compare the decisions in Michigan which base the admission of such evidence on the principle of res gesta. People v. Brown, 53 Mich. 531; People v. Gage, 622 Mich. 371; People v. Glover, 71 Mich. 303. See also Johnson v. State, 17 Ohio 593; Laughlin v. State, 18 Ohio 99; McCombs v. State, 8 Ohio St. 643; State v. De Wolf, 8 Conn. 93; State v. Kinney, 44 Conn. 153; State v. Byrne, 47 Conn. 465.

2. State v. Clark, 69 Iowa 294; State v. Richards, 33 Iowa 420; State v. Jones, 61 Mo. 232; Barnett v. State, 83 Ala. 40; State v. De Wolf, 8 Conn. 93; 20 Am. Dec. 90; followed in State v. Kinney, 44 Conn. 153; State v. Byrne, 47 Conn. 465; State v. Freeman, 100 N. Car. 429, 921; Scott v. State, 48 Ala. 420.

Where prosecutrix is cross-examined as to the particulars of her complaint and persons present at the time are examined by the defense for the purpose of impeaching her, the prosecution may examine other persons in reference to said particulars who were present when she complained of the injury. Griffin v. State, 76 Ala. 29.

Further Corroboration.—Evidence may be introduced showing violent conduct of the prisoner in the presence of the prosecutrix immediately after consummating the rape upon her. Conkey v. People, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 418; the condition of the woman's undergarments the day after the rape. Grimmett v. State, 22 Tex. App. 36; 58 Am. Rep. 630; bruises found on her person two or three weeks after the offense. State v. McLaughlin, 44 Iowa 82.

A physician's testimony as to her condition ten days after the offense. Myers v. State, 84 Ala. 11; her husband's testimony as to bruises on her person, and the condition of her clothing and the bed. Hannon v. State, 70 Wis. 448.

On a trial for a rape, the prosecutrix, a servant, stated that she made almost immediate complaint to her mistress, and that on the next day a washerwoman washed her clothes, on which was blood. Neither the mistress nor the washerwoman was under recognizance to give evidence, nor were their names on the back of the indictment, but they were at the assizes attending as witnesses for the prisoner. The judge directed that both the mistress and the washerwoman should be called by the counsel for the prosecution, but allowed the counsel for the prosecution every latitude in their examination. Reg. v. Stroner, 1 C. & K. 650; 47 E. C. L. 650.

Corroboration by an examination of the woman's person by a medical expert is not necessary, nor does her refusal to submit to such examination discredit her testimony. Barnett v. State, 83 Ala. 40.

It is proper to allow the husband of the prosecutrix to testify as to her complaint, and as to marks of violence on her person. Hanna v. State, 70 Wis. 448; and it is not error, where, when she complained to her husband and others, her husband only was put on the stand. Woodin v. People, 1 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 464.

The husband's statements made in the woman's presence on the day of the offense are admissible to corrob-

Although it is material to show that the complaint was made while the injury was still recent, yet the lapse of time between the commission of the injury and the making of the complaint is not the test of the admissibility of such evidence, but is only matter to be considered by the jury in weighing the evidence.¹ To ask the prosecutrix, "Was it done with or without your consent?" is not improper as being impertinent and leading.²

d. HER CROSS-EXAMINATION.—It is proper to ask her whether the treatment complained of was with her consent or against her will;³ or whether she told the priest or any one else of the outrage.⁴ But she need not be compelled to repeat verbatim the vulgar language used by the accused at the time of the assault when another witness has testified concerning it;⁵ when the testimony of the prosecutrix is uncorroborated, a wide latitude should be allowed in cross-examination.⁶

e. HER CHARACTER.⁷—The general reputation of the female for chastity may be shown by the defense not in justification, but on the issue as to the probability of her consent.⁸ The evidence rate her testimony. Conkey v. People, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 418.

Statements as to her injuries made by the prosecutrix to a physician two days after the offense are admissible, though public complaint was delayed until the next day. State v. Reid, 39 Minn. 277.

But the following evidence is not admissible: That the child of the prosecutrix resembles the defendant. State v. Danforth, 48 Iowa 43; 30 Am. Rep. 387. Acts and declarations of the husband of the woman on whom the offense is alleged to have been committed, McCombs v. State, 8 Ohio St. 643; testimony of a physician as to the effect of indecent liberties on the mind of a female, People v. Royal, 53 Cal. 62; declarations of the girl during travail as to the paternity of her child, especially if she is a witness, State v. Hussey, 7 Iowa 409; that the prosecutrix some days after the outrage threatened to commit suicide, People v. Batterson, 50 Hun (N. Y.) 44.

1. State v. Niles, 47 Vt. 82; State v. Byrne, 47 Conn. 465, following State v. DeWolf, 8 Conn. 93; 20 Am. Dec. 90; State v. Peter, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 19; Higgins v. People, 58 N. Y. 377; State v. Marshall, Phil. (N. Car.) 49; State v. Cross, 12 Iowa 66; 79 Am. Dec. 519; People v. Brown, 53 Mich. 531; People v. Gage, 62 Mich. 271; People v. Glover, 71 Mich. 303; Mail- let v. People, 42 Mich. 262; State v. Reid, 39 Minn. 277.

But a woman's disclosure first made eleven months afterward is inadmissible, a delay caused by threats at confession of the defendant, who was a priest, being inexcusable. People v. O'Sullivan, 104 N. Y. 481; 58 Am. Rep. 530. See also Topolanck v. State, 40 Tex. 160.

Compare State v. Wilson, 91 Mo. 410.

It is competent for the prosecutrix to state that she made complaints to her mother a week or ten days after the offense, and that she thus delayed making complaint for the reason that her parents were out of health and she feared the effect upon them. State v. Knapp, 45 N. H. 148.

2. Coates v. State, 2 Tex. App. 16.

3. Woodin v. People, 1 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 464.

4. Maillet v. People, 42 Mich. 262.

5. State v. Hatfield, 72 Mo. 518.

6. Rogers v. People, 34 Mich. 345.

7. See also CHASTITY, vol. 3, p. 758.

8. Favors v. State, 20 Tex. App. 155; O'Blens v. State, 47 N. J. L. 279; State v. Danill, 87 N. Car. 507.

Evidence to establish her good character cannot be introduced until it has been attacked by the defense. People v. Hulse, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 309. Compare People v. Tyler, 36 Cal. 522; Turney v. State, 8 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 104.

Evidence that the complainant is a woman of drunken and dissipated must be confined to her general reputation and to acts of illicit intercourse with the defendant only previous to the time of the offense.¹ Evidence as to her reputation must be confined to what is generally said of her by those among whom she dwells or with whom she is chiefly conversant.² According to the weight of authority, her character cannot be shown by proof of particular acts of unchastity with third persons.³ The prosecutrix may be asked on cross-examination whether, previously to the commission of the alleged offense, the accused had not had intercourse with her by her own consent.⁴ According to the weight of authority, the prosecutrix is not bound on cross-examination to answer questions as to acts of unchastity committed with persons other than the defendant.⁵

habits, sleeping in hall-ways, and accustomed to go in at two or three o'clock in the morning, is admissible to show general immoral character; and it is also proper to admit evidence to contradict the testimony of the prosecutrix to the effect that she did not go with a man to a lumber yard, and afterward accompany him to a liquor shop, and solicit him to have intercourse with her. Brennan v. People, 7 Hun (N. Y.) 171.

Evidence may be adduced by the prisoner to show the general light character of the prosecutrix, and of her being a street-walker. Reg. v. Clay, 5 Cox C. C. 146.

1. Wilson v. State, 17 Tex. App. 525; State v. Ward, 73 Iowa 532.

2. Conkey v. People, 1 Abb. App. Dec. (N. Y.) 418.

3. McQuerk v. State, 84 Ala. 435; State v. Campbell, 29 Nev. 122; Shartzer v. State, 63 Md. 149; 52 Am. Rep. 501; CHASTITY, vol. 3, p. 158, et seq.

But see Shirwin v. People, 69 Ill. 55, where it was held that evidence as to particular acts of unchastity with third parties is admissible where the chief evidence for the prosecution was that of a physician to the effect that the woman had lost the physical evidence of virginity, in order to rebut the inference that the accused occasioned the loss. The complainant swore that she was unconscious and did not know whether the accused had intercourse with her at the time or not.

4. Reg. v. Martin, 6 C. & P. 562; 25 E. C. L. 544.

5. Rex v. Hodgson, R. & R. C. C. 211. See also, CHASTITY, vol. 3, p. 159, n.; State v. Turner, 1 Houst. Crim. C. (Del.) 76. Compare People v. McLean, 71 Mich. 309. American authorities in favor of the view stated in the text are: Pleasant v. State, 15 Ark. 524; State v. Knapp, 45 N. H. 148; Com. v. Regan, 105 Mass. 593; State v. Turner, 1 Hous. C. C. (Del.) 76; Richie v. State, 58 Ind. 355; State v. Vadnais, 21 Minn. 382; McCombs v. State, 8 Ohio St. 642.

It is not allowable on cross-examination to ask the prosecutrix if she had not been, before, a person of unchaste character. Fry v. Com., 82 Va. 334.

To the contrary see Titus v. State, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 132; People v. Benson, 6 Cal. 221; 65 Am. Dec. 506; State v. Reed, 39 Vt. 417; State v. Johnson, 28 Vt. 512.

A prosecutrix, on a charge of rape, having, on cross-examination, said that she had herself been charged with stealing money, and on that occasion had accounted to a police constable for the possession of the money by stating that it was given her for not complaining of a person who had insulted her by solicitations against her chastity, but denied that she had said the money was given her for having connection with him, it was held that the prisoner could not call the constable as a witness to contradict the prosecutrix by proving that she had said so. Reg. v. Dean, 6 Cox C. C. 13.

The prosecutrix may be asked, on cross-examination, whether she had not allowed another man than the prisoner to take liberties with her, in the interval between the commission of the alleged offense and the first complaint of it. Reg. v. Mercer, 6 Jur. 243.

On a trial for rape, the defendant may ask the prosecutrix, with a view of attacking her credibility, whether she had not been delivered of a bastard child, and whether she had not

2. Previous Conduct of the Accused.—Evidence as to improper acts and solicitations by the accused at other times is admissible, for the purpose of showing motive.¹

But evidence that the accused, five years previous to the commission of the offense, boasted of the possession of an aphrodisiac drug,² or that he had made declarations as to misconduct with females other than the prosecutrix,³ is not admissible, nor that, at various times he had beaten and harshly treated the prosecutrix who was living with his family.⁴

3. Various Matters of Evidence.—Evidence of condonation of the crime by the woman ravished is not admissible;⁵ nor of convichad sexual intercourse with other men, and if refused, it is error, and the error will not be cured by defendant's showing that she had been delivered of a bastard child, and that her character for chastity was bad. State v. Murray, 63 N. Car. 31.

Compare State v. Freeman, 100 N. Car. 429, where it was held that such refusal is not reversible error when it is rendered harmless through the placing of the same facts in evidence by the prosecution afterward.

A question asked the prosecuting witness on cross-examination, whether she had not voluntarily submitted to sexual intercourse a short time before the alleged rape, with one of defendants, who, according to her testimony, had participated in the rape, is relevant, as bearing upon her credit, and does not tend to criminate her; and a refusal to compel her to answer is error, though the indictment had been not pros. as to such defendant, and the fact had been testified to by him. Bedgood v. State, 115 Ind. 275.

A being indicted for committing a rape upon B, it was held, that evidence showing bad character on the part of B's parents was inadmissible. State v. Anderson, 19 Mo. 241.

In an action of trespass, for breaking and entering the plaintiff's house, with intent to ravish the plaintiff's wife, evidence that she was a woman of lewd and abandoned character is inadmissible. Davenport v. Russell, 5 Day (Conn.) 143.

In a prosecution for rape of a girl under fourteen years of age, the age of consent under the Michigan act of 1887, where the State attempted to show that she had thereby contracted venereal disease, evidence offered by defendant of the character of the girl for chastity, and of specific acts of lewdness with small boys nine months before, was properly rejected, as the girl was too young to consent, and the evidence did not tend to disprove the fact that the disease was contracted as stated. People v. Glover, 71 Mich. 303.

Evidence that the prosecutrix was in the habit of following him about the house is admissible to establish the inference that the prosecutrix permitted the accused to have voluntary intercourse with her, and a remark of the court in excluding such evidence "that even if she did follow him it would not show that she wanted a rape committed on her," is improper. Sherwin v. People, 69 Ill. 55.

In a trial for rape, the defendant may show, as bearing on the character of the prosecutrix, that on the same day, a short time before the alleged rape, the prosecutrix said to one who had seen her in questionable relations with the defendant a few moments before, "that she had had sexual intercourse with the defendant, and would have it again, and did not care what other people might say." State v. Cook, 65 Iowa 560.

Defendant, in a prosecution for rape, has a right to show that his previous relations with complainant were of a friendly character, even though the testimony has no tendency to show that they were improper or that her general character or reputation was bad. Hall v. People, 47 Mich. 636.

1. Taylor v. State, 22 Tex. App. 529; State v. Knapp, 45 N. H. 148; People v. Manahan, 32 Cal. 68; People v. O'Sullivan, 104 N. Y. 481; 58 Am. Rep. 530; contra Rex v. Lloyd, 7 C. & P. 218; 32 E. C. L. 523. Compare Hardtke v. State, 67 Wis. 552.

2. Tomlin v. State, 25 Tex. App. 676.

3. People v. Bowen, 46 Cal. 654.

4. People v. Tyler, 36 Cal. 522.

5. Com. v. Slattery, 147 Mass. 423.

tion before a justice of the same assault as that charged in the indictment;¹ nor that the prosecutrix knew the bad character of the accused;² nor that a brother of the prosecutrix had soon after the alleged offense nominated the defendant for leader of the village band;³ nor as to the consent of an infant prosecutrix.⁴ But the accused may produce evidence, on laying the proper foundation, that the prosecutrix had declared that he was not guilty, and that the prosecution was carried on to extort money from him or his friends.⁵ And he may put in evidence letters showing a conspiracy to make a false charge against him, although the prosecutrix is not proved to have received the letters or to have had any knowledge of their contents.⁶

When evidence is produced as to the good character of the accused, the witness may be asked by the State as to whether a certain lewd woman did not live in the house of the accused for some time;⁷ or as to the reputation of the defendant for selling liquor without a license.⁸

Where the prisoner himself is sworn and testifies in his own behalf, a record of his conviction of larceny is admissible as affecting his credit.⁹ But he cannot be compelled to state on cross-examination that he had visited houses of ill-fame and had connection with the inmates.¹⁰

Where, on examination before a justice of the peace, the prosecutrix testified that the rape was committed in a certain field, and, in the circuit court, testified that it was in a barn, evidence may be introduced by the defense to show the motive for changing the place of the alleged crime.¹¹

It is error, on cross-examination of the magistrate before whom the prosecutrix shortly after the alleged outrage made complaint, to exclude his testimony that the prosecutrix had been informed that the act of sexual intercourse which constituted the alleged crime had been witnessed by other persons.¹²

1. People v. Saunders, 4 Park. Cr. (N. Y.) 196.

2. State v. Porter, 57 Iowa 691.

3. Bean v. People, 124 Ill. 576.

4. Territory v. Keyes, 5 Dak. 244.

5. Shirwin v. People, 69 Ill. 55.

6. Reg. v. McGavaran, 6 Cox C. C.

64.

7. State v. Jerome, 53 Conn. 265.

8. State v. Knapp, 45 N. H. 148.

9. People v. Satterlee, 5 Hun (N. Y.)

167.

10. Gifford v. People, 87 Ill. 210.

11. Bessitt v. State, 101 Ind. 85.

12. McFarland v. State, 24 Ohio St.

329.

Evidence Sufficient to Sustain a Conviction.—Evidence that the accused overtook the prosecutrix on the highway, threw her down, and had a forcible connection is sufficient. Johnson v. State, 26 Tex. App. 399.

ble connection is sufficient. Johnson v. State, 26 Tex. App. 399.

Where the defense of alibi was set up, the evidence showed that the crime was committed between 8:30 and 10 P. M. Defendant was a watchman employed in a building about a block from the place of the crime, and testified that he left the building about 8 o'clock, and was away one and one-half or two hours. Only one of the persons in whose company defendant claimed to have been during that time was produced, and she stated that she was with him about eight minutes, but was indefinite as to the time of night. At no time was defendant more than four blocks from the place of the crime. On preliminary examination he testified that he was away from the building about three-quarters of an hour. Prosecutrix positively identified the accused. The corpus delicti having been clearly proved, held that the jury's finding of defendant's guilt would not be disturbed. Ackerson v. People, 124 Ill. 563.

So where the rape was alleged to have been committed on prosecutrix in her father's garden, in a village, in view of many houses, and not very distant from the house, prosecutrix testified that, while she was leaning against a fence, defendant suddenly, and unseen by her, approached her from the other side of the fence, climbed over, seized her, declared he would have the best of her, dragged her a distance, threw her to the ground, and ravished her; that she resisted and cried out loud all the time. Her father, who was then sick in bed, testified that prosecutrix came into the house sobbing, and made complaint; and her brother testified to the same effect, and that her hair was all down, and the back of her clothes dirty, and that, while witness was going home, he had seen the defendant near the place of the alleged crime after its accomplishment. Held, that though there was an air of improbability about the evidence, a conviction would not be disturbed, the credit of witnesses being for the jury. Bean v. People, 124 Ill. 575.

But a conviction cannot be supported where it appears that the woman went with the defendant to a room in the hotel at night; that she did not scream; that she told contradictory stories as to being married to the accused, etc. Dickey v. State, 21 Tex. App. 340.

Nor will a conviction be sustained on the uncorroborated testimony of the prosecutrix that three men broke into a room where she was sleeping with another person, took her out, carried her two miles on horseback, to a place where she was outraged, and then carried her back, it also being shown that she was unchaste. People v. Ardaga, 51 Cal. 371; nor on the testimony of a witness who lived in rooms below the girl who was beneath the age of consent, that the witness heard the sound of bed springs while the accused and the girl were upstairs with the door locked, the girl denying the fact of the intercourse. State v. Crawford, 39 Kan. 257.

Evidence that the woman was knocked down by the accused, who got on the ground by her, began to uncover her person, struck her in the face, pinched her limbs above the knees so that they were discolored, etc., and that on the complainant crying out he ran away, will support a conviction for assault with intent to commit rape. Com. v. Thompson, 116 Mass. 346.

But evidence of an unwarranted liberty with the person of a female, however gross, in the absence of circumstances showing an attempt to commit rape by force, threats or fraud, will not support a conviction. Thompson v. State, 43 Tex. 483. And a conviction of an assault, etc., must be set aside when supported only by evidence that the defendant gave the girl wine and persuaded her to accompany him to a hotel where they occupied a room together during the night, but did not have connection, and the prisoner made no indecent proposals. Jacques v. People, 66 Ill. 84.

The evidence must be closely and carefully criticised and a conviction can be had only when after such scrutiny the jury have no reasonable doubt of the prisoner's guilt. Anderson v. State, 41 Wis. 430.

For a conviction sustained by circumstantial evidence as to the identity of the prisoner, see Bill v. State, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 155.

If the evidence leave in it great doubt whether a rape was in fact committed, a conviction cannot stand. Brown v. State, 76 Ga. 623. See also Pless v. State, 23 Tex. App. 73.

Evidence.—In a case of rape against five, the prosecutrix, when before the grand jury, did not know the names of the different prisoners, but could identify the persons. Held, that the grand jury might call in another witness, who was before the examining magistrate, and there saw the prisoners, and let the prosecutrix describe the different prisoners, and the other witness give their names; and that, if the prisoners could not be identified by this mode, they might be brought before the grand jury. Reg. v. Jenkins, 1 C. & K. 536; 47 E. C. L. 534.

On trial for rape, the chief question was as to the identity of the prisoner. The female was examined, and swore positively that the prisoner was the person who committed the outrage upon her, but she declined giving a description of him at the time of the outrage. The commonwealth then introduced a witness to prove the particulars of the description of the person who committed the outrage, as to him, by the female on the morning after the rape was committed, and before she had seen the prisoner, in corroboration or proof of the causa scientiæ of the female witness. Held, that such proof was inadmissible. Brogy v. Com., 10 Gratt. (Va.) 722.

The mere fact that, in an action for rape, the district attorney pointed out defendant before prosecutrix recognized him is held not sufficient ground for reversal. State v. Blunt, 59 Iowa 468.

Admissions by Accused.—The prisoner was convicted of a rape upon the prosecutrix, who was an apparent idiot. She proved the act done, and said that it was wrong, but that she said nothing to the prisoner, and that she did not do anything to him, and that "she did not like to hurt nobody." The constable told the prisoner that he was charged with committing a rape upon the prosecutrix and against her will. The prisoner, in answer to that, said: "Yes, I did; and I am very sorry for it." Held, that there was evidence to sustain the conviction. Reg. v. Pressy, 10 Cox. C. C. 635.

A statement of the defendant to the district attorney at the time of the preliminary examination that he wanted the prosecution stopped; that he did not hurt the girl much; that he would give the attorney $8 or $10, and that the girl would get over it again," does not amount to a confession of the crime of rape or of anything more than an assault. Hardtke v. State, 67 Wis. 552.

It may be shown on a trial for rape that the defendant offered the mother of the girl alleged to have been violated $5 to stop the prosecution, and the defendant may show that the mother who was a witness upon the trial, agreed to drop the prosecution in consideration of the payment of the $5. McMath v. State, 55 Ga. 303.

Depositions.—If it is proved on the part of the prosecutrix that the party alleged to have been ravished has been kept out of the way by the prisoners, the judge will allow her deposition before the magistrate to be given in evidence. Where the deposition of the prosecutrix taken before the magistrate was not proved, and she was not at the trial, evidence of complaints made by her recently after the outrage was rejected; no such evidence is receivable as confirmatory evidence only. Reg. v. Guttridges, 9 C. & P. 471; 38 E. C. L. 188.

On an indictment for rape, the deposition of the injured party (who had died meantime), made before a justice on applying for the warrant, and in the absence of the prisoner, is not admissible evidence against him. State v. Hill, 2 Hill (S. Car.) 608; 27 Am. Dec. 406.

The prisoner was taken before a mayor, charged with rape; the prosecutrix was sworn, and her statement taken down by the mayor, who asked her some further questions, the answers to which were taken down, and the prisoner was discharged. That which was taken down by the mayor was not read over to the prosecutrix, neither was it signed by her or by the mayor. The prisoner was afterwards committed for trial by other magistrates. Held, that at the trial the prisoner's counsel might cross-examine the prosecutrix as to what she said before the mayor, without producing that which was taken down on that examination. Reg. v. Griffiths, 9 C. & P. 746; 38 E. C. L. 188.

A writing subscribed by a witness, drawn up by one who is a justice of the peace, and an attorney, purporting to be a complaint to grand jurors, charging the defendant with an attempt to commit a rape upon her, is not admissible for the purpose of impeaching her testimony, in a public prosecution for another offense, but relating to the same transaction. Fowler v. State, 5 Day (Conn.) 81.

In an indictment for a rape, the deposition of a girl taken before the committing magistrate, and signed by him, may, after her death, be read in evidence at the trial of the prisoner, although it was not signed by her, and she was under 12 years of age, provided she was sworn, and appeared competent to take an oath; and all the facts necessary to complete the crime may be collected from her testimony so given in evidence. Rex v. Flemming, 2 Leach C. C. 854; 1 East P. C. 440.

Veneral Disease.—Where it is claimed that the female in consequence of the alleged ravishment became inoculated with a venereal disease, testimony by physicians as to the result of their examination of the accused made by his consent fifteen days after the rape, after informing him that they were

X. INSTRUCTIONS.—The court must instruct the jury as to what constitutes the offense of rape.¹ The rule requiring the court to instruct as to a lesser degree of the crime charged, if the evidence is not conclusive as to the defendant's guilt of the higher crime, does not apply in a case of rape, of which offense there are no degrees.²

It is error on the part of the court to fail to give explicit instructions as to the meaning of the terms, "force and threats," where the indictment charges a rape committed by those means.³

An instruction as to the presumption against the prosecutrix if she fails to resist or cry out "unless there was good legal excuse," without stating what constitutes legal excuse, is bad.⁴

An instruction is bad which characterizes a voluntary statement by the accused that he had intercourse with the prosecutrix the night before the alleged rape, as a confession.⁵ Where the prisoner admits as a witness the fact of the sexual intercourse, he cannot complain if the court assumes the fact in charging the jury.⁶

The court, in telling the jury that the woman must resist by all means in her power, need not particularize as to the means of resistance.⁷

An instruction is bad which does not sufficiently impress the jury that the use of force is essential to constitute the offense.⁸

The words "carnal knowledge" in an instruction are sufficiently definite without going into the details of the act.⁹

Where there is evidence to show that the story of the prosecutrix is a pure fabrication, it is error for the judge to ignore this in his charge to the jury, and proceed on the assumption that the defense is lack of sufficient resistance on the part of the girl.¹⁰ sent by the prosecuting attorney, is admissible; where the defendant denies the rape, and that he had at the time any venereal disease he may be cross-examined as to his physical condition with reference to such disease and as to why he used certain bottles of medicine in jail shortly after his arrest. People v. Glover, 71 Mich. 303.

Where such a claim is made, it is proper to inquire on cross-examination whether, prior to that time, the girl had suffered from any private disease. State v. Otey, 7 Kan. 69.

When an attempt to carnally know a child is testified to by her, and she is shown to be bruised and infected with venereal disease, proof of sexual intercourse between her and other persons before or near the time of the commission of the alleged offense may be introduced to weaken the force of the circumstances corroborating her testimony. Nugent v. State, 18 Ala. 521.

Map of the Place.—In a prosecution for rape a plan of the interior of the house where the crime was said to have been committed, made without any personal examination or survey by the draughtsman, but sworn to be correct by one of the occupants of the premises, was introduced by the State in explanation of their oral testimony, but it did not go to the jury in the jury room. Held, that there was nothing objectionable in this use of the plan. State v. Jerome, 33 Conn. 265.

1. Fulcher v. State, 41 Tex. 233.
2. State v. Johnson, 91 Mo. 439.
3. Jones v. State, 10 Tex. App. 552.
4. Austine v. People, 110 Ill. 248.
5. Hogan v. State, 46 Miss. 274.
6. Anderson v. State, 104 Ind. 467.
7. Anderson v. State, 104 Ind. 467.
8. Cato v. State, 9 Fla. 163.
9. Burk v. State, 8 Tex. App. 336.
10. People v. Evans, 72 Mich. 367.

An instruction is erroneous which, while charging that the defendant may be found guilty of an assault with intent to commit rape, if there is a reasonable doubt as to his guilt of the higher crime, does not also charge that he may be found guilty of a simple assault in case there is doubt as to his being guilty of an assault with intent, etc.¹

XI. VERDICT.—As to the verdict nothing especial need be said in this connection, the general rules of law governing verdicts in criminal cases being applicable.²

XII. ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO COMMIT RAPE.³—An attempt to commit rape is an ineffectual offer by force to have carnal connection.⁴

1. State v. Vinsant, 49 Iowa 241.

Other cases where the principles of law governing instructions to juries are applied in rape trials are Jenkins v. State, 1 Tex. App. 346; Taylor v. State, 24 Tex. App. 299; People v. Bates, 70 Mich. 234; Leoni v. State, 44 Ala. 110; Convers v. State, 47 Wis. 523; State v. Freeman, 100 N. Car. 429; State v. Hatfield, 75 Iowa 592; Hannon v. State, 70 Wis. 448; Bean v. People, 124 Ill. 576; People v. Crego, 70 Mich. 319.

2. Verdict.—A first count charged an assault with intent to ravish; the second, a common assault. The record went on to state that the jury found the defendant guilty of the misdemeanor and offense in the indictment specified, in manner and form as by the indictment is alleged against him, and the judgment was, imprisonment and hard labor. Held, that the word "misdemeanor" was nomen collectivum, and that the finding of the jury was in effect, that the defendant was guilty of the whole matter charged, and that the judgment was therefore warranted by the verdict. Rex v. Powell, 2 B. & Ad. 75; 22 E. C. L. 26.

Three boys, under fourteen years of age, were indicted for assaulting a girl nine years of age. It was proved that each of the boys had had connection with her. The jury returned as their verdict, "that the prisoners were guilty, the child being an assenting party, but that, from her tender years, she did not know what she was about." Held, upon this finding, a verdict of acquittal must be entered. Reg. v. Read, 2 C. & K. 957; 61 E. C. L. 956; 1 Den. C. C. 377; 3 Cox C. C. 266.

Where one count charged rape, and another assault with intent, etc., a verdict that the defendant "is guilty as charged in the indictment," and that he

"for his offense aforesaid shall suffer death by hanging," held, to be valid. Kelly v. State, 7 Baxt. (Tenn.) 84.

On an indictment for rape, a verdict finding the accused not guilty of the crime charged, but "guilty of an attempt to commit rape," will not support a conviction for "an assault with intent to commit rape," under 74 Ohio Laws 245, § 14, Boynton, J., dissenting. Fox v. State, 34 Ohio St. 377.

3. See ASSAULT, vol. 1, p. 805.

4. Kelly v. Com., 1 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 484.

A man's chasing a woman who is alone in a private place does not necessarily raise an inference of an intent to rape. State v. Donovan, 61 Iowa 369. But contra, State v. Neely, 44 N. Car. 425; 21 Am. Rep. 496; Lewis v. State, 35 Ala. 380.

Evidence that defendant entered the room of the prosecutrix, and called her by her given name, and when she screamed fled, is insufficient to support a conviction for an assault with intent to rape. Carroll v. State, 24 Tex. App. 366.

To make a burglarious entering of a house an attempt to commit rape, the intent must be shown to have existed at the moment of entering. Kelly v. Com., 1 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 484.

When a man burglariously entered a room, where a young lady was sleeping, and grasped her ankle, without any attempt at explanation, when she screamed—held, that this was some evidence of an attempt to commit a rape, and must be submitted to the jury. State v. Boon, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 244; 57 Am. Dec. 555.

Where the evidence went to prove that defendant, a hack driver, received prosecutrix in his hack at a ball for the purpose of conveying her to her home,

An indictment for an intent to commit rape may be sustained by proof of a rape.¹

An indictment for an assault with intent to commit rape which omits the word "feloniously" is bad.²

Evidence of the general bad reputation of the prosecutrix for chastity is admissible upon the question of consent, in an indictment for an assault for taking indecent liberties.³

The rule that the proof must show the utmost resistance relates to rape only and not to a charge of assault with intent, etc.⁴

An assault upon a woman with desire to have connection with her, but not with intent to force her to it against her consent, is not an assault with intent to commit rape, but an aggravated assault.⁵ Where one indicted for rape fails of conviction by reason of proof of the woman's consent, if it also appears that he used such force as to evince an intention to commit rape, he may be convicted of an assault with intent to commit rape.⁶

XIII. THE CIVIL ACTION.—The woman ravished may maintain a civil action for the injury; and an averment "that the defendant made an indecent assault upon the plaintiff and then and there debauched and carnally knew her" is a sufficient allegation in such action.⁷

RASURE.—See ALTERATION OF INSTRUMENTS, vol. I, p. 497.

in a distant part of the city, and that, before reaching her destination, he entered the hack without her consent, and made an indecent assault on her, held, that it was for the jury to determine the intent of such assault. State v. Daly, 16 Oregon 240.

1. State v. Shepard, 7 Conn. 54; Mears v. Com., 2 Grant (Pa.) 384.

2. State v. Scott, 72 N. Car. 461.

3. Com. v. Kendall, 113 Mass. 210.

4. State v. Montgomery, 63 Mo. 301.

Under the Texas Code, rape, assault with intent to commit rape, and an attempt to commit rape are three distinct offenses. Melton v. State, 24 Tex. App. 284; Melton v. State, 24 Tex. App. 284.

A conviction for an assault with intent to commit rape will not be set aside, as unsupported by the evidence, where the woman assaulted and her companion identify defendant as the perpetrator; defendant's mother and other members of the family testify that defendant was in bed before the time of the assault, and other witnesses testify that they saw defendant after the time of the assault. State v. Hatfield, 75 Iowa 592.

Iowa Code, § 4560, providing that a conviction for rape cannot be had on the uncorroborated testimony of the person injured, does not apply to an assault with intent to commit rape. State v. Hatfield, 75 Iowa 592.

To constitute an assault upon a female child under ten years of age, with the intent to carnally know her, an offense under Iowa Code, § 3873—the defendant need not know she was under ten; that she was so is sufficient. State v. Newton, 44 Iowa 45.

5. Outlaw v. State, 35 Tex. 481.

In Virginia, upon an indictment against a free negro, under the act of 1822-3, ch. 34, § 3, it was found that the defendant, not intending to have carnal knowledge of the woman by force, but intending to have such knowledge of her while she was asleep, got into bed with her, and pulled up her night garment, which waked her, using no force. Held, that this was not an attempt to ravish, within the meaning of the statute. Field's Case, 4 Leigh (Va.) 648.

But compare Dibrell v. State, 3 Tex. App. 456.

6. State v. Atherton, 50 Iowa 189; 32 Am. Rep. 134.

7. Koenig v. Nott, 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 323. See also 2 New York Rev. Stat. 563.

RATE.—A public valuation or assessment of every man's estate, or the ascertaining how much tax every one should pay. The term "rate" may apply either to the percentage of taxation or to the valuation of property.¹

RATIFICATION.—(See also AGENCY, vol. 1, p. 429).—Ratification is an agreement to adopt an act performed by another for us, and is either express or implied.² The term is used, as applying to the unauthorized contracts of one acting as an agent or representative of another, to contracts made during infancy, to treaties and to the amendment of written constitutions, in the sense of "confirmation," "adoption" and "affirmation."³ It is said, however, that "ratification" applies properly only to agency,⁴ and that its only synonym is the term "adoption."⁵

RAVINE.—See note 6.

READ.—See note 7.

1. Attorney-Gen'l v. Eau Claire, 37 Wis. 426; State v. Utter, 34 N. J. L. 494; Coventry Co. v. Assessors, 16 R. I. 240; Bouv. Law Dict. See also TAXATION.

Ratable estate, within the meaning of a tax law, is taxable estate. Marshfield v. Middlesex, 55 Vt. 545.

Ratable property means property in its quality and nature capable of being rated; that is, appraised, assessed. Reg. v. Overseers, 10 B. & S. 323; Coventry Co. v. Assessors, 16 R. I. 240. See also TAXATION.

2. Bouv. L. Dict., followed in Halton v. Steward, 2 Lea (Tenn.) 235.

Ratification by One, Upon Attaining His Majority, of his Promises, etc., Made During Infancy.—See INFANTS, vol. 10, p. 644.

Master's Ratification of Servant's Tortious Acts.—See MASTER AND SERVANT, vol. 14, p. 826.

Ratification of the Contract of a Married Woman.—See MARRIED WOMEN, vol. 14, p. 619.

Ratification of a Treaty.—See INTERNATIONAL LAW, vol. 11, p. 445; TREATIES.

A Partner's Ratification of the Acts of His Co-partner.—See PARTNERSHIP, vol. 17, p. 498.

Ratification of the Acts of Officers of a Corporation.—See CORPORATIONS, vol. 4, p. 228; OFFICERS AND AGENTS OF PRIVATE CORPORATIONS, vol. 17, p. 162.

Ratification of the Acts of Public Officers.—See PUBLIC OFFICERS.

3. Pearsoll v. Chapin, 44 Pa. St. 9; Art. "Ratification," 19 Cent. L. J. 482.

4. Clough v. Clough, 73 Me. 487; 40 Am. Rep. 386.

5. In Ellison v. Jackson Water Co., 12 Cal. 542, the court by Field, J., said: "The terms 'adopted' and 'ratified' are properly applicable only to contracts made by a party acting, or assuming to act, for another. . . . To adoption and ratification there must be some relation, actual or assumed, of principal and agent." See also Art. "Ratification," 19 Cent. L. J. 482.

6. An Iowa statute authorizes county judges to cause the erection of bridges over any "streams" in their counties, when they shall deem it necessary, the cost not to exceed $500. A judge contracted for the erection of a bridge over a "ravine," and, upon the question of whether this contract was within the authority given by the statute, the court defined "stream," as used in this connection, to mean simply "water;" and ravine to mean "a long, deep and narrow hollow, worn by a stream or torrent of water; a long, deep and narrow hollow or pass through the mountains. Hence the presence of water, at least occasionally, is almost inseparable from the idea of a ravine." And it was held, in accordance with these definitions, that the judge had authority, under the statute, to contract for such a bridge. Long v. Boone Co., 36 Iowa 60.

7. Read and Write.—The Criminal Code of Texas disqualifies for jury service any one who cannot "read and write." In Wright v. State, 12 Tex. App. 167, it was held that the words "read and write" employed in the statute must READY.—See note 1.

REAL.—See note 2.

REAL ACTIONS are such as are brought for the specific recovery of a freehold estate in lands, without regard to any damages for the wrongful detention.³

They are distributed into two classes, droitural and possessory—droitural when they are based upon the right of property, and possessory when based upon the right of possession.⁴

The possessory actions are the writ of forcible or unlawful entry, or unlawful detainer,⁵ the writ of entry,⁶ and the writ of assize.⁷

The several actions called droitural, are the writ of quod ei be held to mean an ability to read and write in the English language, and the qualification of being able to read and write the German language would not remove the objection or qualify the juror."

1. Ready Money.—(See also CASH, vol. 3, p. 31; MONEY IN HAND, vol. 15, p. 710.) A bequest of "ready money" will include cash at the testator's bank, whether a balance on current account, or a deposit, or a sum withdrawable after notice. Parker v. Marchant, 12 L. J. Ch. 385; Langdale v. Whitfield, 27 L. J. Ch. 797; Taylor v. Taylor, 1 Jur. 401; Tallent v. Scott, 68 W. N. 236; Stein v. Ritherdend, 68 W. N. 65. But the words have been held not to include unreceived dividends on stock. May v. Graves, 18 L. J. Ch. 401. But it has been said that this last case cannot be reconciled with Parker v. Marchant, 12 L. J. Ch. 385, nor with Fryer v. Ranken, 9 L. J. Ch. 337; Stewart, V. C., in Cook v. Wagster, 23 L. J. Ch. 496. And see also upon this question Smith v. Butler, 9 Ir. Eq. Rep. 398; Bevan v. Bevan, L. R., 5 Ir. 57; Vaisey v. Reynolds, 6 L. J. Ch. O. S. 172; Smith v. Butler, 3 J. & L. 565; Knight v. Knight, 30 L. J. Ch. 644.

Ready and Willing.—The words "ready and willing" imply not only the disposition, but the capacity to do an act. De Medina v. Norman, 9 M. & W. 827.

"I cannot conceive any circumstance more indicative of want of readiness than incapacity." Bosanquet, J., in Lawrence v. Knowles, 5 Bing. N. Cas. 399, 35 E. C. L. 150.

2. Real Danger.—Upon a trial for murder the court instructed the jury as follows: "It would be immaterial whether the danger was real, provided the defendant acted upon the real appearance of danger." This instruction was objected to by counsel for defendant, as limiting and abridging "the right of the defendant to act upon real appearances of danger, and omits reasonable appearances of danger." The appellate court by Hurt, J., said: "Danger, with reference to whether the appearance of it is 'real' or 'reasonable,' takes its classification under the one or the other, according as whether the manifestations are positive, threatening, and eminent, or are merely such as reasonably create alarm or apprehension for one's safety. 'Real' danger is a danger such as is manifest to the physical senses; 'reasonable' danger, as the very force of the term imports, is something to be judged of by an exercise of reason and judgment. It is manifest from the facts in evidence that whatever danger there was to the appellant, if any at all, was 'real,' and hence the court discharged its duty when it instructed the jury upon that character of danger, it not being bound to instruct upon another form of danger which the facts not only did not present, but absolutely precluded." Allen v. State, 24 Tex. App. 216.

3. 4 Min. Inst. 339; Bouv. L. Dict.; Hall v. Decker, 48 Me. 255, quoting Stevens' Pl. 3.

4. Bouv. L. Dict.; 4 Min. Inst. p. 340, et seq.

5. Forcible and Unlawful Entry, etc.—See FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER, vol. 8, p. 101.

6. Writ of Entry.—See ENTRY, WRIT OF, vol. 6, p. 651.

7. Writ of Assize.—See ASSIZE, vol. 1, p. 881.

*deformceat*¹ the writ of right of dower,² the writ of formcedon,³ and the writ of right.⁴

Several of these actions are now obsolete, and the common law, as regards those yet in practice, has been much modified by statute, as may be seen by an examination of the citations in the notes.

In the Code States, real actions are generally abolished, and one form of action, called a civil action, is substituted.⁵

1. Writ of Quod Ei Deformceat.—The name of a writ given by the Stat. Westm. 2, 13 Edw. 1, ch. 4, to a tenant for life who has lost the right of possession, by a recovery had against him through his default or non-appearance in a possessory action. The writ is also applicable to a tenant in tail. Though the writ may exist theoretically in some of the States, it is practically obsolete. 4 Min. Inst. 342, 469; Bouv. L. Dict.

2. Writ of Right of Dower.—See also DOWER, vol. 5, p. 925.

"The writ of right of dower is employed to recover a widow's dower, whereof she is deformed, where a part of her dower in the same tract has been already assigned to her. (3 Bl. Com. 183.) As this action, although demanding only a life estate, is said to be of the same nature as the 'grand writ of right' (3 Bl. Com. 183), it may perhaps be considered as abolished along with the latter writ in Virginia (V. C. 1873, ch. 131, § 38). The conjecture, however, is not likely to be brought to judicial arbitrament, this remedy for the recovery of a widow's dower having been for more than a century superseded in practice, as well in England as with us, by a bill in chancery. (1 Stor. Eq., §§ 624, et seq.) This jurisdiction of the court of chancery to assign dower, originated in the various embarrassments which often obstructed a widow's recovery of her dower in a court of law, in consequence of her ignorance of the state of her husband's title to the lands of which he was seised (the title-papers being in England in the hands of the heir, or of the devisee or trustee), and also in consequence of the difficulty of ascertaining the comparative value of the husband's different tracts, etc.; but the ultimate result is, that the courts of equity now entertain a general concurrent jurisdiction with courts of law, in the assignment of dower, in all cases where the legal title of the husband is not disputed; but if the title is disputed, it is first required to be established by an issue at law or otherwise. (1 Stor. Eq., § 624.) And this intervention of the courts of equity has received with us the direct sanction of the legislature (V. C. 1873, ch. 106, § 10); which has, moreover, allowed the widow to recover her dower, and damages for its being withheld, by such remedy at law as would lie on behalf of a tenant for life having a right of entry. (V. C. 1873, ch. 106, § 10.) As, for example, by ejectment, in which provision is made for the assignment of dower by commissioners appointed for the purpose. (V. C. 1873, ch. 131, §§ 29, 6, 7, et seq..)" 4 Min. Inst. 343.

3. Formcedon.—A writ which lay for a person who, being interested in an estate tail, was liable to be defeated of his right by a discontinuance of the estate. And. L. Dict. Now entirely obsolete.

"The writ of formcedon is a droital action, adapted to recover real property in pursuance of a gift in tail (per formam doni), where by the wrongful alienation in fee-simple, of the tenant in tail, the estate-tail is discontinued, and the remainder or reversion, or the interest of the issue in tail, is turned into a mere right. If the writ of formcedon is prosecuted by the issue in tail, it is denominated formcedon in descender; and if by him in remainder, or in reversion, it is styled formcedon in remainder, or formcedon in reverter. (3 Bl. Com. 191-2)." 4 Min. Insts. 344.

4. Writ of Right.—The writ of right was the remedy appropriate to the case where a party claimed the specific recovery of corporeal hereditaments in fee-simple; founding his title on the right of property or mere right arising either from his own seisin, or the seisin of his ancestor or predecessor. Steph. Pl. (3 Am. ed.) p. 43. The writ of right is employed to recover not an estate for life like a writ of quod ei deformceat nor an estate tail like a writ of formcedon, but an estate in fee-simple, where the right of possession is barred by a recovery on the merits in a possessory action or by the lapse of time. 4 Min. Inst. (2d ed.) 344.

5. Ejectment, vol. 6, p. 200.

REAL COVENANTS.—(See also COVENANT, vol. 4, p. 463; DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 1; DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 423; ESTOPPEL, vol. 7, p. 1; EVICTION, vol. 7, p. 36; IMPLIED COVENANTS, vol. 9, p. 960; INCUMBRANCES, vol. 10, p. 361; LANDLORD AND TENANT, vol. 12, p. 658; LEASE, vol. 12, p. 974; WARRANTY.)

- | | |
|---|---|
| I. Definition, 973.
 II. Kinds of Real Covenants, 974.
 1. Covenants as to the Use of Real Estate, 974.
 2. Covenants for Title, 974.
 a. Covenant for Seisin, 976.
 b. Covenant for Good Right to Convey, 981.
 c. Covenant Against Incumbrances, 982.
 d. Covenant for Quiet Enjoyment, 982.
 e. Covenant for Further Assurance, 984. |  f. Covenant of Warranty, 985.
 3. Covenants between Landlord and Tenant, 997.
 III. Running with the Land, 997.
 IV. Release of Real Covenants, 1009.
 V. Limitation of Real Covenants, 1010.
 VI. Parties Liable Upon Real Covenants, 1011.
 VII. Notice to Defend Title, 1012.
 VIII. Measure of Damages for Breach, 1014.
 IX. Operation of Real Covenants by Way of Estoppel, 1020. |
|---|---|

I. DEFINITION.¹

1. A real covenant is, "that whereby a man doth bind himself to pass a real thing, as lands or tenements, . . . or when it doth run in the realty so with the land that he that hath the one hath or is subject to the other." Shep. Touch., ch. 7, p. 161.

"Covenants real are those which have for their object something annexed to, or inherent in or connected with land or other real property." Cruise Real Prop., tit. 32, ch. 26, § 23.

See also Fitzherbert Nat. Brev. 145; 2 Bl. Comm. 304.

In Platt on Covenants, 60-62, Cruise's definition is regarded as inadequate and that of Sheppard approved, and the latter has generally been adopted.

It may be suggested, however, that the distinctive nature of a real covenant is that its burden or benefit is attached primarily to real estate, so that it affects persons only by reason of their sustaining certain definite relations to such real estate, as owners, lessees, etc., and that Sheppard's statement that a real covenant runs with the land describes a consequence of the nature of such a covenant rather than that nature itself. The definition in the text is submitted as an attempt to bring into prominence the nature of a real covenant, as distinguished from one that is merely personal.

In England the Conveyancing Act of 1881, 44 & 45 Vict. 41, provides, in effect, that every covenant or provision in a lease having reference to the subject-matter thereof shall run with the land, and also that all other covenants relating to land shall run with the land benefited. This is regarded as depriving real covenants of "any title to form a separate class." Hamilton, Covenants, Preface.

It is almost superfluous to state that where the act covenanted for or against is that of one or more particular persons it cannot possibly be regarded as real covenant in the sense of binding any land, although during the period when it could be performed, it might, if so expressed, be a real covenant as regards the land benefited. Thus a covenant by a grantor of real estate for himself, his heirs and assigns, that he will not erect on an adjoining lot, owned by him, any building which shall be regarded as a nuisance, is a covenant to be performed or broken by him alone; and as no breach could possibly occur except during his ownership, when that is at an end the covenant expires, and never could bind the land. The words "his heirs and assigns" are in such a case mere surplusage. Clark v. Devoe, 124 N. Y. 120.

Contracts as Covenants.—Though, strictly, every covenant should be by instrument under seal, yet in equity a simple contract in regard to land which has been partially performed will be

A real covenant¹ is one where either the liability imposed by it or the right to take advantage of it exists by reason either of the ownership of an estate or interest in real property,² corporeal or incorporeal, or of an undertaking to grant such estate or interest.³

II. KINDS OF REAL COVENANTS—1. Covenants as to the Use of Real Estate.—These include covenants to build, where such covenant is connected with the grant, building restrictions, covenants in regard to party walls, or to the use to be made of premises granted or other premises whose use affects the value of those granted, covenants to pay rent, etc.⁴

2. Covenants for Title.—These are agreements, either express or implied from the language used, in regard to the title to the real treated as a covenant, and run with the land as such. Rome etc. R. Co. v. Ontario Southern R. Co., 16 Hun (N. Y.) 445.

Acceptance Equivalent to a Covenant.—A grantee's acceptance of a deed containing a covenant or stipulation on his part, makes it binding on him without his signature. Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 35 N. Y. 206; Atlantic Dock Co. v. Leavitt, 54 N. Y. 35; 13 Am. Rep. 556; Wales v. Sherwood, 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 413. See DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 423.

1. Real covenants may be either "express" or "implied." As to the latter, see IMPLIED COVENANTS, vol. 9, p. 960.

Although an express covenant is most clearly denoted by the words "covenant and agree," no precise form of words is essential. Shep. Touch. 162; Rigby v. Great Western R. Co., 14 M. & W. 811. It is necessary to distinguish carefully between covenants, the breach of which can be measured in damages and conditions subsequent, where a breach divests the estate. See CONDITION, vol. 3, p. 422.

Conditions not being favored in law, the fact that a deed used the words "upon the express condition," or other equivalent language, is not conclusive of an intention to create an estate upon condition, and if the context and surrounding circumstances indicate that a covenant was intended, the deed will be so construed whatever the language used. Avery v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 106 N. Y. 142; Post v. Weil, 115 N. Y. 361; Clement v. Burtis, 121 N. Y. 708.

A habendum, that the land is to be used for certain purposes only is not equivalent to a covenant not to use it for other purposes. Chautauqua Assembly v. Alling, 42 Hun (N. Y.) 582; Burgman v. Noyes, 6 Wis. 1.

A fortiori, it is not a covenant to erect the buildings necessary for such purposes. Madore's Appeal, 129 Pa. St. 15.

2. A real covenant must affect the nature, quality, value or mode of enjoyment of real estate, independently of collateral circumstances. Mayor of Congleton v. Pattison, 10 East 130.

It is not enough that a covenant should merely concern real estate in order to render it a real covenant. Thus a proviso in a deed that if the grantee should ever sell any of the property, it should be sold to the grantor at the original price, is, if a covenant at all, a purely personal one by the grantee, and has no vitality after his death. Maynard v. Polhemus, 74 Cal. 141.

The benefit of such a covenant would pass to the covenantee's representatives at his death. Thus an agreement to take back the land and repay the purchase money at any time within a year from the conveyance if the purchaser should be dissatisfied, may be enforced by the purchaser's representatives. Fuller v. Dempster (Pa. 1887), 11 Atl. Rep. 670. But that is entirely different from running with the land.

In further illustration of this point, see infra, this title, Running with the Land.

3. As in the case of covenants for title where no valid title passes, see infra, this title, Covenant for Seisin, Covenant of Warranty.

4. These are sufficiently illustrated infra, this title, Running with the Land.

estate intended to be conveyed by the instrument containing the agreements.¹ An agreement for the mortgage or conveyance of real estate contemplates a mortgage or conveyance with such covenants as are usual in the State where the property lies.² In America, an agreement to convey by "warranty deed," or other equivalent language, usually means that the deed shall contain a covenant of warranty against the acts or claims of all persons.³ A fiduciary grantor, having himself no interest in the property conveyed, but merely a naked legal title, is required to covenant only that he has done nothing to incumber the estate.⁴ A power

1. Rise of Covenants for Title.—These are the modern substitute for the incident of feudal tenure, known as warranty (itself a real covenant in the strictest sense), by which, in return for the homage of the vassal, the lord was bound to protect him in the enjoyment of the fief, and if the title were in dispute, to establish its validity, or else furnish another fief of equal value. When deeds came to be used to authenticate conveyances, the same warranty was either expressed by the word warrantizo or implied from the word of feoffment, dedi, but when, after the passage of the Statute of Uses, feoffments were replaced by a deed of bargain and sale or lease and release, warranty disappeared along with livery of seisin, of which it had hitherto been an invariable consequence, and at least as early as Elizabeth its place was taken by certain covenants to the effect that the grantor was lawfully seized of the property and could lawfully convey it. The covenants now actually in use, however, except the American covenant of warranty, were introduced about the time of the Restoration. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), ch. 1.

2. Sugden, Vend. (14th ed.) 615; Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 108.

Under What Circumstances Used.—There are six covenants for title known to the law. They are the covenants for seisin, for right to convey, against incumbrances, for quiet enjoyment, for further assurance, and of warranty, the last being expressly American. The covenant of non-claim sometimes used in the New England States is practically the same as the covenant of warranty. They may all be used in the case of sales in fee simple and mortgages, while in ordinary leases the covenant for quiet enjoyment alone is customary, and on the assignment or transfer of leasehold interest there is added to this a covenant that the lease is a valid and subsisting one, which amounts to a covenant for seisin and for right to convey. Marriages and family settlements sometimes contain covenants similar to those used in the case of sales. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), §§ 20-23.

The question of the particular covenant applicable to each form of conveyance is now regulated to a great extent by the statutes establishing implied covenants. See IMPLIED COVENANTS, vol. 9, p. 960.

3. Clark v. Redinan, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 379; Linn v. Barkey, 7 Ind. 70; Fleming v. Harrison, 2 Bibb (Ky.) 171; 4 Am. Dec. 691; Vanada v. Hopkins, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 293; 19 Am. Dec. 92; Hedges v. Kerr, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 528; Andrews v. Word, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 520; Dwight v. Cutler, 3 Mich. 519; 64 Am. Dec. 566; Faircloth v. Isler, 75 N. Car. 551; Rucker v. Lowther, 6 Leigh (Va.) 259; Hoback v. Kilgore, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 442.

In Pennsylvania a deed of special warranty against the acts of the vendor and those claiming under him only is required. Withers v. Baird, 7 Watts (Pa.) 229; 32 Am. Dec. 754; Espy v. Anderson, 14 Pa. St. 312; Cadwalader v. Tryon, 37 Pa. St. 322; Lloyd v. Farrell, 48 Pa. St. 78; 86 Am. Dec. 563. But no suspicion of the title arises from the use of general covenants. Cresson v. Miller, 2 Watts (Pa.) 276; Forster v. Gillam, 13 Pa. St. 343.

In England it has long been settled that a person can demand of a vendor covenants against his own acts only. Browning v. Wright, 2 B. & P. 23.

The increasing use of implied covenants practically regulates this matter also in most States. See IMPLIED COVENANTS, vol. 9, p. 960.

4. Staines v. Morris, 1 Ves. & B. 10; White v. Foljambe, 11 Ves. 345; Wilkins v. Fry, 1 Mer. 244; Worley v.

of attorney to convey implies a power to make covenants which bind the principal as grantor.¹ No covenants for title can be required (nor implied from the grants) of ministerial grantors²—e. g., sheriffs, marshals, etc.—nor of the State.³ Covenants for title are always deemed to have been intended to cover known defects in the title, unless these are expressly excepted.⁴

a. THE COVENANT FOR SEISIN, i. e., that the grantor is lawfully seised of the premises to be conveyed. In England and, for the most part, the United States, the word "seisin" is used in this connection as equivalent to "title"⁵ and the covenant has Frampton, 5 Hare 560; Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236; 52 Am. Dec. 399; Redwine v. Brown, 10 Ga. 311; Aven v. Beckom, 11 Ga. 1; Chastain v. Staley, 23 Ga. 26; Brackenridge v. Dawson, 7 Ind. 387; Dwinel v. Veazie, 36 Me. 509; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 201; Hodges v. Saunders, 17 Pick. (Mass.) 476; Barnard v. Duncan, 38 Mo. 181; Eunis v. Leach, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 416; Shontz v. Brown, 27 Pa. St. 134; Grantland v. Wight, 5 Munf. (Va.) 295; Allen v. Winston, 1 Rand. (Va.) 71; Goddin v. Vaughn, 14 Gratt. (Va.) 102; Fleming v. Holt, 12 W. Va. 143. But if a fiduciary makes covenants of greater scope, though in his capacity as fiduciary, he is personally liable. Cradock v. Stewart, 6 Ala. 77; Barnett v. Hughey (Ark. 1891), 15 S. W. Rep. 464; Coe v. Talcott, 5 Day (Conn.) 92; Mitchell v. Hazen, 4 Conn. 495; 10 Am. Dec. 169; Belden v. Seymour, 8 Conn. 24; 21 Am. Dec. 661; Sterling v. Peet, 14 Conn. 245; Aven v. Beckom, 11 Ga. 1; Mason v. Caldwell, 10 Ill. 196; 48 Am. Dec. 330; Foster v. Young, 35 Iowa 27; Klopp v. Moore, 6 Kan. 30; Graves v. Mattingly, 6 Bush (Ky.) 361; Stinchfield v. Little, 1 Me. 231; 10 Am. Dec. 65; Thacher v. Dinsmore, 5 Mass. 299; 4 Am. Dec. 61; Forster v. Fuller, 6 Mass. 56; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 162; Whiting v. Dewey, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 433; Donahue v. Emery, 9 Met. (Mass.) 66; Mellen v. Boorman, 13 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 100; Magee v. Mellon, 23 Miss. 586; Murphy v. Price, 48 Mo. 247; Holyoke v. Clark, 54 N. H. 578; Godley v. Taylor, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 178; Welsh v. Davis, 3 S. Car. 110; 16 Am. Rep. 690; Taylor v. Harrison, 47 Tex. 454; 26 Am. Rep. 304; Duvall v. Craig, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 56; Taylor v. Davis, 110 U. S. 330.

The fiduciary can, however, expressly limit his liability to his fiduciary capacity. Nicholas v. Jones, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 385; Maniffee v. Morrison, 1 Dana (Ky.) 208; Glenn v. Allison, 58 Md. 527; Day v. Brown, 2 Ohio 345; Thayer v. Wendell, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 37. He cannot under ordinary circumstances bind the estate. Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236; 52 Am. Dec. 399; Clark v. Whitehead, 47 Ga. 521; Shacklett v. Rawson, 54 Ga. 350; Klopp v. Moore, 6 Kan. 30; Mason v. Ham, 36 Me. 573; Osborne v. McMillan, 5 Jones (N. Car.) 109; Lockwood v. Gilson, 12 Ohio St. 52; Shontz v. Brown, 27 Pa. St. 134; Mabie v. Matterson, 17 Wis. 11.

1. Vanada v. Hopkins, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 293; 19 Am. Dec. 92; Hedges v. Kerr, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 528; Ward v. Bartholomew, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 410; Bronson v. Coffin, 118 Mass. 161; 11 Am. Rep. 335; Hunter v. Jameson, 6 Ired. (N. Car.) 252; Peters v. Farnsworth, 15 Vt. 155; 40 Am. Dec. 671; Rucker v. Lowther, 6 Leigh (Va.) 259; LeRoy v. Beard, 8 How. (U. S.) 451; Laggart v. Stanbery, 2 McLean (U. S.) 543.

2. Corbitt v. Dawkins, 54 Ala. 282; London v. Robertson, 5 Blackf. (Ill.) 276; Doe v. Lewis, 4 Gray (Mass.) 473; Stephens v. Ells, 65 Mo. 456; Wilson v. Cochran, 14 N. H. 397; Friedly v. Scheetz, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 156; 11 Am. Dec. 691; Rogers v. Horn, 6 Rich. (S. Car.) 361; Mitchell v. Pinckney, 13 S. Car. 203; Gibson v. Mussey, 11 Vt. 212.

3. Com. v. Andri, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 224; State v. Crutchfield, 3 Head (Tenn.) 113.

4. Miller v. Desverges, 75 Ga. 407; Flynn v. White Breast Coal etc. Co., 72 Iowa 738; Barlow v. Delaney, 40 Fed. Rep. 97.

See INCUMBRANCES, vol. 10, p. 361.

5. I. e., practically the juris et seisinæ conjunctio of the common law, and hence this covenant is regarded as a covenant for the title as distinguished from the covenant for quiet enjoyment, which purports to assure the pos-

therefore been defined as "an assurance to the purchaser that the grantor has the very estate in quantity and quality which he purports to convey;"¹ but in Maine and Massachusetts,² and, with session. Cooke v. Fowns, 1 Keb. 95; Gregory v. Mayo, 3 Keb. 755; Howell v. Richards, 11 East 641; Young v. Raincock, 7 C. B. 310.

In this sense the covenant for seisin implies a good right to convey and may be said to include a covenant to that effect. Nervin v. Munns, 3 Lev. 46; Browning v. Wright, 2 B. & P. 13. But the converse is not true, and the covenants, though sometimes said to be synonymous (as in Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 433), are not so in all respects.

1. Per Lord Ellenborough, Howell v. Richards, 11 East 641.

In other words the covenant for seisin, unless expressly qualified, means that the grantor is seised of an indefeasible estate. Lockwood v. Sturdevant, 6 Conn. 385; Comstock v. Comstock, 23 Conn. 343; Clapp v. Herdmann, 25 Ill. App. 509; Martin v. Baker, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 232; Brandt v. Foster, 5 Iowa 535; Fitzhugh v. Croghan, 2 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 430; 19 Am. Dec. 139; Real v. Hollister, 20 Neb. 112; Parker v. Brown, 15 N. H. 186; Greenby v. Wilcocks, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; Morris v. Phelps, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 49; 4 Am. Dec. 323; Abbott v. Allen, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 248; Fitch v. Baldwin, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 161; McCart v. Leggett, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 134; Mott v. Palmer, 1 N. Y. 564; Coit v. McReynolds, 2 Robt. (N. Y.) 655; Pringle v. Witten, 1 Bay (S. Car.) 256; 1 Am. Dec. 612; Woods v. North, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 309; 44 Am. Dec. 312; Kincaid v. Brittain, 5 Sneed (Tenn.) 119; Recohs v. Younglove, 8 Baxt. (Tenn.) 385; Hastings v. Webber, 2 Vt. 407; Catlin v. Hurlburt, 3 Vt. 407; Richardson v. Dorr, 5 Vt. 21; Mills v. Catlin, 22 Vt. 106; Thomas v. Perry, Pet. (C. C.) 57; Pollard v. Dwight, 4 Cranch (U. S.) 430.

2. Doctrine of "Actual Seisin." — This doctrine was apparently first announced in 1807 in Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 433. The defendant, holding by a tax-title afterwards turning out to be invalid, conveyed with covenants, but there was no evidence of ouster or other actual damage to the plaintiff having as yet resulted from the failure of the title. Defendant's counsel claimed that nominal damages only could be recovered, and also that the defendant should not be compelled to prove his title, which was prima facie a good one, until the plaintiff showed that his possession had been disturbed or threatened on account of an older title. The court by Parsons, C. J., decided against this, saying: "The defendant to maintain the issues on his part, was obliged to prove his seisin when the deed was executed. But," he added, going on to state a doctrine which does not seem to have been advanced up to that time, "it was not necessary to show an indefeasible title. A seisin in fact was sufficient, whether he gained it by his own disseisin or whether it was under a disseisor. If at the time he executed the deed he had the exclusive possession of the premises claiming the same in fee simple by a title adverse to the owner, he was seised in fee and had a right to convey. If Weare Drake [the constable who executed the tax-deed] had no authority to convey the premises to the defendant, yet if in fact he entered under color, though not by virtue of that deed, and acquired a seisin by disseisin by ousting the former owner, he has not broken these covenants."

The same doctrine was applied the next year in Bearce v. Jackson, 4 Mass. 408, the grantor having entered upon the lands, claiming to hold them by a grant from the commonwealth. The court by Parsons, C. J., said: "It is very clear that the defendant's intestate [the grantor] being in possession, claiming a fee simple in the land, was able to convey. So the covenant of seisin was not broken." The doctrine has been adhered to in Massachusetts, Chapel v. Bull, 17 Mass. 219; Wait v. Maxwell, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 217; 16 Am. Dec. 391; Cornell v. Jackson, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 509; Raymond v. Raymond, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 134; Follett v. Grant, 5 Allen (Mass.) 175; Kirkendall v. Mitchell, 3 McLean (U. S.) 144; and followed in Maine, Fairbrother v. Griffin, 10 Me. 91; Cushman v. Blanchard, 2 Me. 268; 11 Am. Dec. 76; Wheeler v. Hatch, 12 Me. 389; Boothby v. Hathaway, 20 Me. 255; Baxter v. Brad- certain qualifications, in Ohio,¹ "seisin" is used in the older and narrower sense of "possession," and bare actual possession under color of title² fulfills the covenant,³ as well as that for a good bury, 20 Me. 260; 37 Am. Dec. 49; Wilson v. Widenham, 51 Me. 567; Montgomery v. Reed, 69 Me. 510.

The doctrine of "actual seisin" was adhered to in New Hampshire in Willard v. Twitchell, 1 N. H. 178, and Breck v. Young, 11 N. H. 491; but discarded in Parker v. Brown, 15 N. H. 186, the court by Parker, C. J., saying: "After contracting that they are the lawful owners of the premises, the grantor's covenant that they are lawfully seised in their own right in fee simple. This engagement is certainly not satisfied in any just sense by evidence that the grantors are unlawfully seised, in their own wrong, or of no fee simple except such as is claimed wrongfully, and in disseisin of the true owner. This may be a good seisin against all but the true owner, but is not a seisin in the parties' own right in fee. The grantee who takes such a covenant for his security has a right to understand that his grantor transmits to him some seisin other than one which will make him liable to the rightful action of a third person the moment he enters upon his deed."

In Illinois the Massachusetts doctrine (as also that prevailing in Ohio, see next note, no distinction being taken between the two) was approved in Watts v. Parker, 27 Ill. 228, though the case did not admit of its application; but in the much later case of Clapp v. Herdman, 25 Ill. App. 509, it was explicitly held that an indefeasible estate alone fulfilled the covenant for seisin, no mention being made of Watts v. Parker.

1. In Ohio, actual seisin fulfills these covenants at the time that they are made, and if this seisin ripens into a good title by lapse of time the covenants are held not to have been broken; but if the seisin of the grantee or of those claiming under him fail at any time, actually or constructively, then and not till then there is a breach of the covenants.

In Nebraska the Ohio doctrine was followed in Scott v. Twiss, 4 Neb. 133, but discarded, without notice of that case, in Real v. Hollister, 20 Neb. 112.

2. The covenantor must at least claim to have the lawful title. Wheeler v. Hatch, 12 Me. 389.

3. Origin of the Doctrine.—The origin of the doctrine of actual seisin cannot be stated with absolute certainty. In Wilcox's Note to Foote v. Burnet, 10 Ohio 327, it is said that "the rule seems in some measure to have grown out of the hardship, real or apparent, of permitting the grantee to recover back the consideration, money and interest, while he or his assignee is enjoying a possession that in lapse of time may ripen into a perfect title," but in point of fact this is not permitted even where the covenant is held to have been broken. See infra, this title, Measure of Damages.

The doctrine cannot be explained by the fact that "seisin" is here used in the sense of "possession," which might in time ripen into a valid title, for the same construction is put upon the covenant for good right to convey, which is not necessarily based upon possession. See, infra, this title, Covenant for Good Right to Convey.

The best and in all probability the true explanation is that suggested by Hutchinson, C. J., in Catlin v. Hurlburt, 3 Vt. 407, and elaborated by Mr. Rawle (Covenants, 5th ed., §§ 47-54), that the doctrine sprang from that of adverse possession as connected with the champerty acts. The "Pretended Title Act," 32 Hen. VIII. ch. 9, § 2 (A. D. 1540), prohibited the bargain, sale or transfer of any premises of which the party had not been in possession or received the rents and profits for a year previously, under a penalty, imposed upon a purchaser who bought knowingly, as well the seller, of the forfeiture of the value of the premises. This statute has been re-enacted in some of our States, either literally or with modifications; in others (including Massachusetts, see Brinley v. Whiting, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 348, and formerly Maine, see Buck v. Babcock, 36 Me. 491) the prohibition of champerty was regarded as part of the common law of the State, while in still others it is not prohibited in any way. See CHAMPERTY, vol. 3, pp. 68, 80. In the two former classes of States it results that a conveyance right to convey, unless an indefeasible estate be expressly assured.¹

Understood in the broader sense, the covenant is broken if no such land exists as that purported to be conveyed,² or if the grantor has no title to the premises³ or to some part of them,⁴ or if he has only an estate tail,⁵ or an estate in common when an entire estate is covenanted for,⁶ or if partition has been made when an undivided portion of the premises is covenanted for,⁷ or if an estate for life,⁸ or (under certain circumstances) for years,⁹ be outstanding, or if other parties have rights (other than easements) in the premises or in any part thereof.¹⁰ The covenant also of real estate of which there is an adverse possession is of itself champerty and an offense. The courts of Maine and Massachusetts, which first held the doctrine of actual seisin, seem to have regarded the covenants for seisin and of good right to convey as assurances to the purchaser that there was no such adverse possession of the land as would bring upon him the penalties of champerty, and, should this be untrue, to furnish him with a recompense. The transfer of an actual seisin fulfilled the covenant within the spirit of the champerty acts, and also showed that the vendor had, in the same sense, a good right to convey the premises. If the purchaser bought with such knowledge of the state of the title as to bring the case within the champerty acts, of course the covenants would be of no avail to him. Under the doctrine of actual seisin, understood with reference to the champerty acts, moreover, it is immaterial whether the adverse possession was recent, or had ripened into a perfect title under the limitation acts. The existence of such a possession is a breach of the covenants.

1. Prescott v. Freeman, 4 Mass. 631; 3 Am. Dec. 249; Smith v. Strong, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 132; Raymond v. Raymond, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 134.

2. Bacon v. Lincoln, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 212; 1 Am. Rep. 765; Basford v. Pearson, 9 Allen (Mass.) 389; 85 Am. Dec. 764.

3. Clapp v. Herdman, 25 Ill. App. 509; Montgomery v. Reed, 69 Me. 510, where the covenantor had not even "actual seisin."

It has been held that as the recording of a tax deed vests constructive possession, the covenant for seisin of vacant land is broken by the recording, subsequently to the conveyance, of such a deed issued to a third party on a certificate of a tax sale made prior to the conveyance. Daggett v. Reas (Wis. 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 137.

But a third party's claim of title to the premises, unless valid, does not affect the covenant, and no money paid to extinguish a void title, by a coveantee holding the true title, is recoverable. Sample v. Whorton, 68 Wis. 626.

4. As where the grantor had previously conveyed the fee of a strip of ground, and not merely a right of way to a railroad company. Messer v. Oestreich, 52 Wis. 684.

5. Comstock v. Comstock, 23 Conn. 352.

6. The breach in such a case is not total, but as to a part of the estate proportioned to the interest of the other tenant in common besides the covenantor. Downer v. Smith, 38 Vt. 464.

7. Morrison v. McArthur, 43 Me. 567.

8. Frazer v. Peoria Co., 74 Ill. 282; Wilder v. Ireland, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 85; Mills v. Catlin, 22 Vt. 106.

9. I. e., such a term of years as practically affects the quantity and quality of the estate covenanted to be conveyed. Van Wagner v. Van Nostrand, 19 Iowa 422. Usually, however, the existence of a term is no breach, and the rent is apportioned at the time of the conveyance. Lindley v. Dakin, 13 Ind. 389; Page v. Lashley, 15 Ind. 152; Kellum v. Berkshire, L. Ins. Co., 101 Ind. 455.

10. Thus a breach results from the paramount right of a third party to divert a spring. Clark v. Conroe, 38 Vt. 471; Lamb v. Danforth, 59 Me. 322; or to prevent water from being dammed up to the height permitted by the deed. Traster v. Snelson, 29 extends to all such things as should properly be appurtenant to the land and pass by a conveyance of it;¹ but it is not broken by the existence of such easements or incumbrances as do not affect the seisin.²

It has been held that where the title transferred is not actually invalid, but defeasible merely,³ the covenant is not broken, but this is very questionable.⁴ If the covenantee himself hold the true title at the time of the conveyance, the breach of covenant for seisin confers no right of action.⁵

The existence of an adverse possession, other than such as has ripened into a valid title under the limitation acts,⁶ is held in England not to affect the covenant,⁷ but this is not so certain in the United States.⁸

Ind. 96; Walker v. Wilson, 13 Wis. 522; Hall v. Gale, 14 Wis. 55; 20 Wis. 293; or even when the deed is silent as to the right to dam up. Adams v. Conover, 87 N. Y. 422.

1. As where the right to remove buildings or fixtures is vested in other parties. Van Wagner v. Van Nosstrand, 19 Iowa 427; Powers v. Dennison, 30 Vt. 752. But no breach results from a conveyance without mention of the buildings on the land, when such buildings are partly on adjoining property and other parties have a right to move that portion of them which is so situated. Burke v. Nichols, 2 Keyes (N. Y.) 671.

2. Thus an unauthorized removal of fixtures by a tenant is of course no breach of the covenant (Loughran v. Ross, 45 N. Y. 792; 6 Am. Rep. 173) as the existence of a highway over part of the land does not interfere with the ownership of the soil. (2 Co. Inst. 705; Goodtitle v. Alker, 1 Burr. 133; Peck v. Smith, 1 Conn. 147; 6 Am. Dec. 216; Cortelyou v. Van Brundt, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 357; 3 Am. Dec. 439; Jackson v. Hathaway, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 449; 8 Am. Dec. 263; Lewis v. Jones, 1 Pa. St. 336; 44 Am. Dec. 138) it is no breach of this covenant. Moore v. Johnston, 87 Ala. 220; Vaughn v. Stuzaker, 16 Ind. 340; Whitbeck v. Cook, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 483; 8 Am. Dec. 272.

But in a deed for land bounded by a certain street, the words "said street forever to be and remain free and open as a public street" may perhaps be regarded as a covenant for seisin. McDonald v. McElroy, 7 Pac. Coast L. J. 343.

The same is true of a judgment or a right of dower in the lifetime of the husband, as they do not divest the grantor's technical seisin. Fitzhugh v. Croghan, 2 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 429; 19 Am. Dec. 139; Sedgwick v. Hollenback, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 380; Tuite v. Miller, 10 Ohio 382; Massey v. Craine, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 489; Lewis v. Lewis, 5 Rich. (S. Car.) 12.

And though a mortgage purports to pass the legal bill, it is now almost universally regarded as merely a security for the debt, so that it does not affect the seisin, unless the mortgagee has actually entered. Reasoner v. Edmundson, 5 Ind. 393.

3. As where one of the parties to the deed was a minor. Van Nosstrand v. Wright, Hill & D. Supp. (N. Y.) 260. See Bool v. Mix, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 132; 31 Am. Dec. 285. This would certainly be a breach of the covenant for good right to convey. Nash v. Ashton, T. Jones 195.

Where a sheriff's vendee conveyed, and subsequently the judgment was opened and the sale set aside, this was held not to be a breach. Coit v. McReynolds, 2 Robt. (N. Y.) 658.

4. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 61.

5. Beebe v. Swartwout, 8 Ill. 180; Horrigan v. Rice, 39 Minn. 49; Fitch v. Baldwin, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 161.

6. As to this, see Wilson v. Forbes, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 30.

7. Doe v. Hull, 2 D. & R. 38; Cully v. Doe, 11 A. & E. 1008; Doe v. Martyn, 8 B. & C. 497; Jewitt v. Weare, 3 Price 575; but as to the last case see Sugd. Vend. (14th ed.) 601; Dart. Vend. (5th ed.) 583.

8. In Thomas v. Perry, Pet (C. C.) 52, and Fitzhugh v. Croghan, 2 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 430, 19 Am. Dec. 139.

In assigning a breach of this covenant or of that for good right to convey, in common law pleading, it is enough to negative the words of the covenant generally,¹ and it is unnecessary in the declaration to aver an eviction or to lay any special damage,² nor at any stage of the proceedings to set out the particulars of the paramount title.³ The burden of proof is in the first instance upon the defendant.⁴ But under the modern codes of practice, there being no replication, the complaint, or statement of claim, must set out the defects in the title with sufficient particularity to allow a defense to be framed, and the burden of proof is on the plaintiff.⁵

b. THE COVENANT FOR GOOD RIGHT TO CONVEY.—This has sometimes been said to be synonymous with the covenant for seisin,⁶ but although seisin implies a right to convey⁷ the converse is not true,⁸ as is seen in the case of a conveyance in execution of a power.⁹ As already stated, the meaning of this the courts were of opinion that possession was essential to the performance of the covenant.

3. Abbott v. Allen, 14 Johns. (N.Y.) 248.

1. Bradshaw's Case, 9 Rep. 60. The action was on a covenant for good right to convey, contained in a lease, and it was held that the lessor naturally knew what his own estate was better than the lessee could be expected to do. This was followed in Glinister v. Audley, T. Ray, 14, though there, the conveyance being of a freehold, it was argued that the grantee held all the deeds, and must therefore be presumed to know the title. The rule has been uniformly adhered to since. Muscot v. Ballet, Cro. Jac. 369; 2 Saund. 181 b, n. 10; Floom v. Beard, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 76; Traster v. Snelson, 29 Ind. 96; Slocum v. Haun, 36 Iowa 138; Blanchard v. Hoxie, 34 Me. 376; Marslow v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 432; 3 Am. Dec. 61; Wait v. Maxwell, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 88; 19 Am. Dec. 391; Bacon v. Lincoln, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 212; 1 Am. Rep. 765; Lot v. Thomas, 2 N. J. L. 386; Abbott v. Allen, 14 Johns. (N.Y.) 248; Rickert v. Snyder, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 421; Bender v. Fromberger, 4 Dall. (Pa.) 436; Clarke v. McAnulty, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 372; Mackey v. Collins, 2 Nott & M. (S. Car.) 186; 10 Am. Dec. 586; Pollard v. Dwight, 4 Cranch (U. S.) 430; Duvall v. Craig, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 62, n.

4. Baker v. Hunt, 40 Ill. 266; 89 Am. Dec. 346; Swafford v. Whipple, 3 Greene (Iowa) 264; 54 Am. Dec. 498; Schofield v. Iowa Homestead Co., 32 Iowa 321; 7 Am. Rep. 197; Blackshire v. Iowa Homestead Co., 39 Iowa 624; Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 437; 3 Am. Dec. 61; Bircher v. Watkins, 13 Mo. 521; Cockrell v. Procter, 65 Mo. 41; Abbott v. Alled, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 253; Potter v. Kitchen, 5 Bosw. (N. Y.) 566; Mecklen v. Blake, 16 Wis. 102; 82 Am. Dec. 707; Beckmann v. Henn, 17 Wis. 412.

5. Ingalls v. Eaton, 25 Mich. 32; Peck v. Houghtaling, 35 Mich. 127; Woolley v. Newcombe, 87 N. Y. 605.

6. Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 438; 3 Am. Dec. 61; Slater v. Rawson, 1 Met. (Mass.) 456; Raymond v. Raymond, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 134; Millard v. Twitchell, 1 N. H. 178.

7. Fitzhugh v. Croghan, 2 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 429; 19 Am. Dec. 139.

8. Except in the case of a minor, whose conveyance is always subject to disaffirmance by him after attaining his majority. Nash v. Ashton, Skinner 42; T. Jones 195.

9. General Finance Co. v. Liberator Building Soc., L. R., 10 Ch. Div. 23.

The covenant is to be understood according to the natural meaning of the words, as in regard to the right to the premises, the jus, as distinguished from the seisina. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.) § 68.

9. Until rather lately it was usual

There would seem to have been some State statutes to the contrary. See Wilford v. Rose, 2 Root (Conn.) 14; Robinson v. Neil, 3 Ohio 525.

2. Bird v. Smith, 8 Ark. 368; Abbot v. Allen, 14 Johns. (N.Y.) 248.

covenant is affected in a few States by the doctrine of "actual seisin,"¹ and it is governed by the same rules as the covenant for seisin in regard to the breach, the pleading and the measure of damages.

c. THE COVENANT AGAINST INCUMBRANCES.²

d. THE COVENANT FOR QUIET ENJOYMENT.³—This has been defined as "an assurance against disturbance consequent upon a defective title."⁴ When restricted to disturbances by the grantor or lessor himself and those claiming by title from him, it covers the case of disturbance by an appointee,⁵ mortgagee,⁶ or lessee⁷ of the covenantor, or by his widow under her dower rights,⁸ but does not include a disturbance resulting from a claim against him,⁹ or from such constitutional or legal conditions affecting the in England, to save the expense of having in future to levy a fine to bar dower, to convey property to such uses as the purchaser should appoint, and in default of appointment to the use of him and his heirs. A conveyance by the purchaser, being made by virtue of the power only, was properly accompanied by the covenant for right to convey, and not by that for seisin. Sugd. Vend. (14th ed.) 573. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 66.

1. Supra, this title, Covenant for Seisin.

2. See INCUMBRANCES, vol. 10, p. 361.

3. In England this is known as "the sweeping covenant," but in America that term is more applicable to the covenant of warranty. In England, too, the covenant for quiet enjoyment is very often directly joined to that against incumbrances, the latter following the former and being expressed in the words "and that i. e. the quiet enjoyment, free and clear of all incumbrances." The two covenants must then be construed in connection with each other. Platt, Covenants 331.

A similar arrangement of the covenants is seen in Hall v. Dean, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 105; but in America that against incumbrances usually precedes that for quiet enjoyment. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 21, n. 3.

The covenant for quiet enjoyment is usually the only covenant for title inserted in a lease (see LEASE, vol. 12, p. 974), and, in Pennsylvania and perhaps elsewhere, in ground rent deeds. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 91.

4. Howell v. Richards, 11 East 641. As was said in the case of a lease, "the covenant only means that the tenant shall not be evicted or disturbed by good title in the possession of the demised premises or some part thereof." Moore v. Weber, 71 Pa. St. 429.

It is clearly a covenant in futuro, and hence where a tenant for life conveys in fee with this covenant it is not broken till eviction by the remainderman after the termination of the life estate. Wilder v. Ireland, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 88; Parker v. Richardson, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 452.

5. Thus where there was a power to lease and to appoint a remainder, and a lease not warranted by the power was made, and the lease was evicted by the remainderman, the latter was held to be one claiming under the lessor, so that the covenant was broken. Hurd v. Fletcher, 1 Doug. 43.

So, under somewhat similar circumstances, it was held that a remainderman in tail claimed under his father, the tenant for life, who had been himself the settlor, and that the latter's covenant was broken. Evans v. Vaughan, 4 B. & C. 261.

And in general it may be said that any appointee claims "by, from, or under," the person appointing, within the meaning of this covenant. Calvert v. Sebright, 15 Beav. 156.

6. Carpenter v. Parker, 3 C. B. N. S. 206. It is otherwise, of course, if the mortgage has been made by a prior owner. Tooker v. Grotenkemper, 1 Cin. Sup. Ct. (Ohio) 88.

7. Sanderson v. Mayor of Berwick, L. R., 13 Q. B. D. 547. In this case the disturbance was the flooding of a tenant's farm by reason of the defective construction of a drain used, by virtue of his lease, by the tenant of an adjoining farm owned by the same lessor.

8. Anonymous, Godb. 333; Shep. Touch. 171.

9. If a lessee or vendee be com-enjoyment of property as may from time to time be established.¹ If the "acts and means" of the grantor or others be covenanted against, the breach must arise from something actually done by the person whose acts are covenanted against,² and a similarly strict construction is put upon the words "neglect or default."³

An eviction is necessary to a breach of this covenant,⁴ but the law as to what constitutes an eviction, as also in regard to pleading and evidence in actions upon it, is the same as in the case of the covenant of warranty.

pelled to pay taxes, due by the lessor or vendor before the lease or conveyance was made, or due by any prior owner, this is not a breach of the covenant when restricted. Stanley v. Hayes, 3 A. & E., N. S. 105; West v. Spaulding, 11 Met. (Mass.) 556.

In Ireland v. Bircham, 2 Scott 207, a sub-tenant had been evicted on account of non-payment of rent by his covenantor, the original lessee, but the question of whether this was a disturbance "by, from, or under him" was not decided.

1. Barns v. Wilson, 116 Pa. St. 303. The adjoining owner had pulled down the party wall rendering the lessee's premises temporarily uninhabitable. It was contended that the injury was from a paramount title, i. e., from the exercise of the adjoining owner's right, subject to which the covenantor owned the wall which was part and parcel of the demised premises. The court, by Clark, J., said: "The right arises out of a provision of the law, to which all owners of real property in Philadelphia are subject, and in reference to which all conveyances of land, whether in fee or for years, must be supposed to have been made and accepted. These provisions are not defects in title; they are simply the legal conditions which affect the owner's enjoyment of his own property."

2. The eviction of a sub-tenant by the original lessor, on account of the violation of the original lease by the uses to which the sub-tenant put the property is not produced by anything proceeding from the sub-tenant's covenantor. Spencer v. Marriott, 1 B. & C. 457; Dennett v. Atherton, L. R., 7 Q. B. 316; Bellamy v. Barnes, 44 U. C., Q. B. 315; and see Thackeray v. Wood, 5 B. & S. 325; affirmed 6 B. & S. 766.

Where the words used were "means, title, or procurement," they were held in an old case to include a disturbance by any person by force of any title acquired by means of the covenantor. Butler v. Swinerton, 2 Rolle 286; Palmer 339; Cro. Jac. 657.

3. Thus where the lease was made by a tenant for life and remainderman in tail, and both died, and the next remainderman evicted the lessee, it was held that the eviction, being by title paramount, could not be brought within the covenant except by averring that the covenantors could have suffered a common recovery and neglected to do so. Woodhouse v. Jenkins, 9 Bing. 431. See also Blatchford v. Mayor of Plymouth, 3 Bing. N. Cas. 691; Anderson v. Oppenheimer, L. R., 5 Q. B. D. 602.

In Jones v. Hawkins, 3 T. L. Rep. 59, there was a covenant "against any let, suit, trouble, denial, interruption, or molestation by or from" the lessor, his superior lessor, or any person claiming by, from, or under him, etc. The head lease expiring, the sub-tenant was allowed to recover the sums paid as premium for a new lease and under the agreement for repairs required therein by the superior lessor.

In Howes v. Brushfield, 3 East 491, it was held to be the default of a covenantor that quit rents were in arrear when the conveyance was made, even though they might have accrued before his ownership of the premises. This decision has been seriously criticised. Sugd. Vend. (14th ed.) 602; Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 94.

4. "Hence a covenant for the quiet enjoyment of certain lots and all the appurtenances is not broken by the covenantor's plotting an extension of the street, on which the lots front, through adjoining lots, and giving that portion of the street another name; nor by his inducing the purchasers of lots across the street to so place their houses that the outbuildings were opposite the lots sold to the covenantee. Molitor v. Sheldon, 37 Kan. 246.

c. THE COVENANT FOR FURTHER ASSURANCE.—This is a covenant to do such further acts for the purpose of perfecting the covenantee's title as the latter may reasonably require,¹ and it is not broken until such a request is made and refused.² The acts required must be necessary,³ practicable,⁴ and lawful,⁵ and the request must not be unreasonably delayed.⁶ They must also depend upon the scope of the other covenants in the deed,⁷ and

A covenant for quiet enjoyment, in a lease of part of a house, is not broken by the landlord's letting out the floor above for use as a dancing room. The dancing is at most merely a nuisance. Jenkins v. Jackson, L. R., 40 Ch. D. 71.

Where part of a building is leased, no use which the landlord may make of the rest of the building can be a breach of this covenant unless such use unfits the portion leased for the uses for which it was known to him to be leased. Robinson v. Kilvert, L. R., 41 Ch. D. 71.

1. E. g., to levy a fine, or to discharge a judgment or other incumbrance. King v. Jones, 5 Taunt. 418.

A covenant that if the grantor should obtain title from the United States, he would convey the same with warranty, is a covenant for further assurance, under which the covenantor could be compelled to convey his after-acquired title. Lamb v. Burbank, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 227.

This covenant is but infrequently used in the United States, though its importance is testified to in Cochran v. Pascault, 54 Md. 16.

In England, the usual mode of requiring is for the purchaser to submit to the grantor a draft of the intended assurance, with an opinion of counsel as to its necessity and propriety, and a tender of the vendor's necessary costs. Dart. Vend., (6th. ed.) 888; Sugd. Vend. (14th ed.) 614.

There seems to have been some uncertainty in former times as to whether the purchaser could have the advice of counsel in drafting the assurance, if the covenant were silent as to this, or whether he could draft it himself if the covenant provided for counsel. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 99 n. 1.

2. In equity, a neglect to perform this covenant is equivalent to a default, and hence the bringing of suit is a sufficient request for performance. Fields v. Squires, Dendy (U. S.) 388.

3. Waou v. Bickford, 7 Price 550.

Hence the title must be shown to be imperfect. Gwynn v. Thomas, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 420; Kramer v. Ricke, 70 Iowa 535. The latter was a case of an agreement "to clear title," apparently equivalent to a covenant for further assurance.

In England, a duplicate of the deed to the covenantee is sometimes required under this covenant. Trapper v. Allington, 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 166.

But a new deed of covenant to produce title deeds is outside the scope of a covenant for further assurance. Fain v. Ayers, 2 Sim. & Stu. 533.

4. Pet. & Cally's Case, 1 Leon. 304; Anonymous, Moore 124.

It was formerly held that a covenant—or could, as a matter of course, be required to levy a fine, and that if his wife refused to join, he could be imprisoned till she consented. Boulney v. Curteys, Cro. Jac. 251; Middlenore v. Goodale, Cro. Cas. 503; Hall v. Hardy, 3 P. Wms. 189. But this was long ago doubted, and is wholly repugnant to modern ideas. Outram v. Round, 4 Vin. Abr., Baron & Feme, H b, pt., 4; Emery v. Wase, 8 Ves. 505; 2 Story's Eq. (13th ed.), §§ 731–735.

5. Heath v. Crealock, L. R., 10 Ch. App. 31, per Lord Cairns.

6. Nash v. Ashton, T. Jones 195; Skim, 42.

7. I. e., if they are general, extending to all paramount titles and incumbrances, then this covenant will be construed as general also; but if they are limited to defects of title or incumbrances created by the vendor, then the covenant is so likewise. This is clear from the fact that the purpose of this covenant is to enable a grantee to call upon his grantor to remedy defects in the title or remove incumbrances, the existence of which defects or incumbrances has been covenanted against.

The statement in 2 Sugd. Vend. (14th ed.) 612, that "if the title prove bad and the defect can be supplied by the vendor," the covenant for further on the nature of the estate conveyed.¹ Performance in accordance with the spirit of the covenant will be enforced, and cannot be escaped by technicalities.² A deed executed in pursuance of this covenant need not itself contain covenants for title, unless this be expressly covenanted for.³

In actions at law, a breach may be assigned in the words of the covenant,⁴ but the pleadings must show what assurance is required and that the plaintiff is entitled to it.⁵

f. THE COVENANT OF WARRANTY.—The covenant (unknown in England)⁶ that the grantor and his heirs will "warrant and forever defend"⁷ the premises conveyed, though held in some States assurance may be resorted to, must be understood as referring to cases where this covenant stands alone or where the other covenants are limited. See Rawle Covenants (5th. ed.), § 104.

Thus in Armstrong v. Darby, 26 Mo. 517, it was held that the implied covenant against incumbrances being restricted to those done or suffered by the grantor, he could not, under the implied covenant for further assurance be required to discharge a mortgage created by his grantor.

1. If the estate or interest conveyed be limited, then, though the covenants be general, their operation is necessarily restricted, and the covenant for further assurance cannot require the conveyance of a greater estate. Thus a tenant in tail who mortgaged all the property to which he was entitled "in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy, or otherwise howsoever," with a covenant for further assurance, could not be compelled to execute a disentailing deed. Davis v. Tollemache, 2 Jur., N. S. 1181. See also Taylor v. Dabar, 1 Ch. Cas. 274; Smith v. Baker, 1 Y. & C. Ch. 222.

2. Bankes v. Small, L. R., 36 Ch. D. 716.

In Zabriskie v. Baudendistel, (N.J. 1890), 20 Atl. Rep. 163, it was intimated that on proceedings to foreclose a purchase-money mortgage given by the covenantee, he might file a cross-bill for specific performance of the covenant for further assurance, so as to determine the validity of taxes and assessments levied prior to the conveyance, and that, if valid, their payment would be made a condition of the foreclosure.

3. "Where the conveyance is really a further assurance, the purchaser must be supposed to have already obtained all such covenants for title as he was entitled to." Sugd., Vend. (14th ed.) 615.

This differs from the case of an agreement to convey "by reasonable assurance," which would now be held to mean a deed with the usual covenants. It was formerly held, however, that such "assurance" might be without covenants, and even without a seal. Shep. Touch. 168; Coles v. Kinder, Cro. Jac. 571; Wye's Case, 2 Leon. 130; Pudsey v. Newsam, Yelv. 44; Lassels v. Catterton, 1 Mod. 67.

4. Blicke v. Dymoke, 2 Bing. 105.

5. Wara v. Bickford, 7 Price 550; 9 Price 43; Gwynn v. Thomas, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 420; Miller v. Parsons, 9 Johns. (N.Y.) 336.

6. Almost the only instance of a covenant of warranty to be found in the English reports is in Williamson v. Codrington, 1 Ves. Sr. 511, where the deed was executed in Barbadoes.

The American colonies having been settled when the modern covenants for title were in their infancy, and there being no Sir Orlando Bridgman in America, the use of covenants here was more influenced by the old doctrine of warranty, both as to their scope and the names given to them, than was the case in England.

7. What Does Not Constitute.—A habendum, that the premises are to be held "as a good and indefeasible estate in fee simple," is not a covenant of warranty. Wheeler v. Wayne Co., 132 Ill. 599.

Nor can a warranty be gathered from a recital of the incidents leading to the previous conveyance of the property to the grantor, such conveyance being stated as made in consideration of the discontinuance of a suit to annul the prior legal title and other good and valid considerations. Clark v. Post, 113 N. Y. 17.

to contain within itself all the other covenants for title,¹ may be regarded for most purposes as a covenant for quiet enjoyment.² It may be either general, i. e., extending to the claims of all persons whomsoever, or special, i. e., restricted to the acts of the grantor and those claiming under him, or of any other person particularly named.³ Even when general, this covenant and that for quiet enjoyment are not broken by tortious disturbances,⁴

Covenant of Non-claim.—In the New England States what is practically the covenant of warranty is sometimes found under another form and name, the covenant being that the persons covenanted against shall not "have, claim, challenge, or demand any estate, right or title to" the premises conveyed, but "of and from all such claims and demands shall be utterly barred and forever excluded by virtue of" the covenant. This is less used now than formerly. See Fairbanks v. Williamson, 7 Me. 99; Trull v. Eastman, 3 Met. (Mass.) 121; 37 Am. Dec. 126; Newcomb v. Presbrey, 8 Met. (Mass.) 406; Lothrop v. Snell, 11 Cush. (Mass.) 453; Porter v. Sullivan, 7 Gray (Mass.) 441; Gibbs v. Thayer, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 33; Kimball v. Blaisdell, 5 N. H. 533; 22 Am. Dec. 476; Everts v. Brown, 1 D. Chip. (Vt.) 99.

1. The statutory warranty for a deed in fee (Miller's Rev. Code Iowa 1888, § 1970, p. 732) is so construed in Iowa. Funk v. Cresswell, 5 Iowa 62; Van Wagner v. Van Nostrand, 19 Iowa 422.

In South Carolina the form of a covenant of general warranty, contained in the short form of a deed of lease and release provided by the statute of Dec. 12, 1795 (5 Stats. 256), has received the same construction. Jeter v. Glenn, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 374; Evans v. McLucas, 12 S. Car. 62.

Even in many States where this view has never been taken, the covenant of warranty is the only one used in deeds of conveyance in fee simple.

2. Caldwell v. Kirkpatrick, 6 Ala. 62; 41 Am. Dec. 36; Athens v. Nale, 25 Ill. 178; Bostwick v. Williams, 36 Ill. 70; 85 Am. Dec. 385; Emerson v. Proprietors, 1 Mass. 464; 2 Am. Dec. 34; Reed v. Hatch, 55 N. H. 336; Fowler v. Poling, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 303; 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 196; Stewart v. West, 14 Pa. St. 336. See Rawle Covenants (5th ed.), § 114.

3. For the validity of such a covenant, see Barlow v. Delaney, 40 Fed. Rep. 97.

If the covenant be general, except as to certain persons named, this exception will be strictly construed. Woodroff v. Greenwood, Cro. Eliz. 518.

4. Hayes v. Bickerstaff, Vaugh. 118. A lease of a portion of a long term of years had been made with a general covenant for quiet enjoyment, and the reversion in the term had been assigned to a third person, who evicted the tenant, although the latter had attorned to him. On action brought by the tenant against his lessor, it was held that the covenant, however generally expressed, must be understood as applying merely to the acts of those claiming by title, because (1) the grantor does not expressly covenant tortious acts of strangers; (2) he could not reasonably be required to do so, as he could neither foresee nor prevent them; (3) the covenantee has his legal remedy against the wrong-doer; (4) he does not need a remedy against the covenantor also; (5) such a remedy would enable him to injure his covenantor by procuring a stranger to make a tortious disturbance; and (6) the express words of the covenant were that the covenantee should lawfully enjoy the premises without let or hindrance.

This was in accord with the oldest authorities. "If one lease for years and covenant to warrant the land, and the lessee be ousted by wrong, he shall not have covenant; otherwise if it be by elder title." Brooke's Ab. Guaranties, pt. 1; Y. B., 26 Hen. VIII, 71; Y. B. 22 Hen. VI, (Pasch.), 26. Later cases had thrown doubt on this doctrine. See Mountford v. Catesby, 3 Dyer 52, and cases there cited. But the doctrine is now established. Tisdale v. Essex, Hob. 34; Wotten v. Hele, 2 Saund. 178, n.; Nokes v. James, Cro. Eliz. 675; Lewis v. Smith, 9 M. G. & S. 610; Hoppes v. Cheek, 21 Ark. 585; Playter v. Cunningham, 21 Cal. 232; Branger v. Manceit, 30 Cal. 624; Davis v. Smith, 5 Ga. 274; 47 Am. Dec. 279; Beebe v. Swartwout, 8 Ill. 180; Gazzolo v. Chambers, 73 Ill. 75; Avery v. Dough- unless so expressed,¹ but even when special they cover the tortious acts² (other than mere trespasses)³ of the covenantor himself, or the tortious acts of any other person specially named,⁴ or of persons acting under their directions.⁵ A general warranty is not broken by the exercise of the State's right of eminent domain or other lawful acts of sovereignty.⁶ A disturbance of the title or erty, 102 Ind. 443; 52 Am. Rep. 680; Bartlett v. Farrington, 120 Mass. 284; Kimball v. Grand Lodge, 131 Mass. 59; Surget v. Arighi, 11 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 96; Greenby v. Wilcocks, 2 Johns. (N.Y.) 1; Folliard v. Wallace, 2 Johns. (N.Y.) 402; Kelly v. Dutch Church, 2 Hill (N.Y.) 111; Gardner v. Keteltas, 3 Hill (N.Y.) 330; 38 Am. Dec. 637; Meeks v. Bowerman, 1 Daly (N.Y.) 100; Butterworth v. Volkening, 4 Thomp. & C. (N.Y.) 650; Johnson v. Oppenheimer, 34 N.Y. Super. Ct. 416; Coddington v. Dunham, 35 N.Y. Super. Ct. 412; Wilder v. Ireland, 8 Jones (N.Car.) 88; Brick v. Coster, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 499; Spear v. Allison, 20 Pa. St. 200; Schuylkill R. Co. v. Schmoele, 57 Pa. St. 273; Moore v. Weber, 71 Pa. St. 327; Rantin v. Robertson, 2 Strobb. (S.Car.) 366; Gleason v. Smith, 41 Vt. 293; Underwood v. Birchard, 47 Vt. 305; Yancey v. Lewis, 4 Hen. & M. (Va.) 395; McInnis v. Lyman, 62 Wis. 191; Noonan v. Lee, 2 Black (U.S.) 507; Andrus v. St. Louis Smelting etc. Co., 130 U. S. 643.

1. E.g., where the words are "against all claiming or pretending to claim." Chaplain v. Southgate, 10 Mod. 383.

2. Cave v. Brookesby, W. Jones 360; Andrews' Case, Cro. Eliz. 214; Cones v. ———, Cro. Eliz. 544; Crosse v. Young, 2 Show. 425; Lloyd v. Tomkies, 1 T. R. 671; Wotton v. Hele, 2 Saund. 180, n.; Seaman's Case, 1 Leon. 157; Levitzky v. Canning, 33 Cal. 308; O'Keefe v. Kennedy, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 325; Sedgwick v. Hollenback, 7 Johns. (N.Y.) 376; Mayor etc. of N.Y. v. Mabie, 13 N.Y. 156; 64 Am. Dec. 538; Platt, Covenants 318.

3. Even the acts of the covenantor himself must apparently be done under assumption of right to constitute a breach of covenant. Crosse v. Young, 2 Show. 425; Lloyd v. Tomkies, 1 T. R. 671; Seddon v. Senate, 13 East 72; Wotton v. Hele, 2 Saund. 180, n.; Avery v. Dougherty, 102 Ind. 443; 52 Am. Rep. 680; O'Keefe v. Kennedy, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 325; Sherman v. Williams, 113 Mass. 481; 18 Am. Rep. 522;

Sedgwick v. Hollenback, 7 Johns. (N.Y.) 376; Levy v. Band, 1 E. D. Smith (N.Y.) 169; Mayor etc. of N.Y. v. Mabie, 13 N.Y. 151; 64 Am. Dec. 538.

A fortiori, a mere interruption of the use and enjoyment of the premises, consequent upon repairs being made by the landlord to other parts of the building, without an actual entry upon the demised premises, or any actual or constructive eviction of the tenant, is no breach of the covenant. Doupe v. Genin, 1 Sweeney (N.Y.) 25.

4. Thus, in Nash v. Palmer, 5 M. & S. 374, Lord Ellenborough, after stating that a general covenant did not apply to tortious acts, added: "It is, however, different where an individual is named, for there the covenantor is presumed to know the person against whose acts he is presumed to covenant, and may reasonably be expected to stipulate against any disturbance from him, whether from lawful title or otherwise."

To the same effect, Foster v. Mapes, Cro. Eliz. 212; Fowle v. Welsh, 1 B. & C. 29; Patton v. Kennedy, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 389; 10 Am. Dec. 744; Pence v. Duval, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 48.

5. Seaman's Case, 1 Leon. 157.

Disturbance by a mob, due to their exasperation at the covenantor is not within the covenant; it is not, even constructively, his act. Jones v. Morley, 21 La. Ann. 404; Surget v. Arighi, 11 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 96.

6. Stephenson v. Loehr, 57 Ill. 509; Kuhn v. Freeman, 15 Kan. 426; Ellis v. Welch, 6 Mass. 246; 4 Am. Dec. 122; Brimmer v. Boston, 102 Mass. 19; Boston etc. Steamboat Co. v. Munson, 117 Mass. 34; Cooper v. Bloodgood, 32 N. J. Eq. 209; Folts v. Huntley, 7 Wend. (N.Y.) 210; Frost v. Earnest, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 86; Dobbins v. Brown, 12 Pa. St. 75; Bailey v. Miltenberger, 31 Pa. St. 37; Schuylkill R. Co. v. Schmoele, 57 Pa. St. 273; Dyer v. Wightman, 66 Pa. St. 427.

In Osborne v. Nicholson, 13 Wall. (U.S.) 655, the court, by Swayne, J., said: "All contracts are inherently possession of the land by a suit in equity is a breach of the covenant.¹

It has been held in a few States that if the covenantee fails to put his deed or mortgage on record, and a subsequent conveyance is made by the covenantor to a third party and recorded, or the premises are sold under a judgment against the covenantor, the latter is liable upon his covenant of warranty.²

subject to the paramount power of the sovereign, and the exercise of such power is never understood to involve their violation, and is not within that provision of the national constitution which forbids a State to pass laws impairing their obligation. The power acts upon the property which is the subject of the contract, and not upon the contract itself."

A fortiori, the existence of a public easement in the land at the time of the conveyance, and the fact that at and before that time the State or a municipal corporation had perpetually enjoined the owners of the premises from building a wharf thereon below high-water mark, without a license, is no breach of the covenant of warranty. Barre v. Fleming, 29 W. Va. 314.

The act of a sovereign de facto is equally outside the scope of the covenant. If the sovereignty be eventually recognized as de jure also, the act is an act of sovereignty, and lawful; otherwise, it is merely tortious. Dudley v. Folliott, 3 T. R. 584; Watkins v. De Lancey, 4 Doug. 354.

1. Calthorp v. Heyton, 2 Mod. 54; Hunt v. Danvers, T. Ray. 370; Trust Co. v. Covert, 30 U. C., Q. B. 239; 39 U. C., Q. B. 327.

But there is no breach if only a particular mode of enjoyment of the land be interfered with. Morgan v. Hunt, 2 Vent. 213; Dennett v. Atherton, L. R., 7 Q. B. 326.

2. This seems to have been first held in 1835 in Curtis v. Deering, 12 Me. 499, where the covenant was contained in an unrecorded mortgage, of which the subsequent conveyance made no mention. The reason given was that, as between the mortgage and the deed, the title dated from the time of the registry only, and that, therefore, the latter was the elder title, thus bringing the case within the rule that the covenant extended to older and better titles only. It was also laid down that the execution of the deed making no mention of the mortgage, was a disseisin, an unlawful act, "although it might have been lawful, if it had not affected his interests," which would seem to mean, if the mortgage had been recorded. This case was cited with approval in Maeder v. Carondelet, 26 Mo. 112, and followed in Lukens v. Nicholson, 4 Phila. (Pa.) 22 (A. D. 1860), where a ground-rent had been assigned by a deed, which the assignee did not record, and subsequently mortgaged by the assignor.

It was also held in Clark v. O'Neal, 13 La. Ann. 381, that, because under the Louisiana Code, art. 2442 [2417] a defect of registering the sale of an immovable could not be pleaded between the parties to the sale, their heirs or assigns, though an unregistered sale was void as against creditors, therefore where the sale of a tract of land had not been registered, and the land had subsequently been sold for the vendor's debt, this did not relieve her of her obligation to warrant the title; and this doctrine was recently approved in Boyer v. Amet, 41 La. Ann. 721.

In Wade v. Comstock, 11 Ohio St. 71, however, where the land conveyed was subsequently taken in execution and sold as the covenantor's property, the covenantee having failed to record his deed, the covenant of warranty was held not to have been broken, and the doctrine of Curtis v. Deering, 12 Me. 499, disapproved, though of course it was admitted that in that case the defendant was liable, but not upon the covenant.

In Scott v. Scott, 70 Pa. St. 244, the instrument containing the covenant sued on was held to be a will, but apart from this the court by Sharswood, J., said: "No authority has been or can be cited to support the position that a deed or will subsequently made by a grantor is itself a breach of the covenant of warranty contained in his conveyance, more especially when such deed or will is a lawful act.

The doctrine of Curtis v. Deering,

This covenant and that for quiet enjoyment cannot be broken without an eviction.¹ To constitute a sufficient "actual eviction"

12 Me. 499, is regarded as unreasonable by Mr. Rawle (Covenants, 5th ed., p. 168, n. 5). The rule that, in an action on the covenant for quiet enjoyment or of warranty, the plaintiff must state in his declaration that the person evicting had a better title before or at the time of the date of the grant to the plaintiff, is well settled. Kirby v. Hansaker, Cro. Jac. 315; Wotton v. Hele, 2 Saund. 177, n. 10; Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 433; 3 Am. Dec. 61; Ellis v. Welch, 6 Mass. 246; 4 Am. Dec. 121 (relying, however, upon a miscitation of Grenelife v. W—, 1 Dy. 42 a, the word "against" being interpolated and changing the sense); Folliard v. Wallace, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 395; Grannis v. Clark, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 36; Kelly v. Dutch Church, 2 Hill. (N. Y.) 105. The application of this rule in Curtis v. Deering, 12 Me. 499, is unnatural and forced, for though as between the mortgagee and the vendee the latter's title was, under the registry acts, the elder, it was not so as between the former and his covenantor. Besides, there is nothing extraordinary in a mortgagor's conveyance of the equity of redemption without recital of the mortgage, and although, if a vendor or mortgagor of real estate take advantage of the fact that the deed or mortgage was not recorded in order to effect a subsequent sale or mortgage, and take away the rights of the first vendee or mortgagee in the property, the latter would have a right of action, it is hard to see how the latter's own neglect would enlarge the scope of the covenant made to him. In fact the observation of the judges in Grenelife v. W—, 1 Dy. 42 a, would seem applicable in such a case, viz, that the "plaintiff in this action is the cause of the breach of the condition, whereof he shall not himself take advantage, so as to give himself an action by his own act."

In Brown v. Allen, 57 Hun (N. Y.) 219, the fact that the covenantees had not recorded their deed was immaterial, as at the time of the sale to them the premises were subject to the lien of taxes previously assessed, by virtue of which a paramount title was acquired at a subsequent tax sale.

1. Hence a covenant of warranty cannot be treated as a covenant against existing incumbrances. Grist v. Hodges, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 198; Findlay v. Toncray, 2 Rob. (Va.) 379; Marbury v. Thornton, 82 Va. 702.

Where the covenantee gave a purchase money mortgage, which the covenantor proceeded to foreclose, it was held that taxes and assessments due prior to the sale could not be set off as breaches of the covenants for quiet enjoyment and of warranty, although the covenantor had been notified to pay them, and by reason of his failure to do so the premises had been sold and bid in by the city, there having been no disturbance of the covenantee's possession, nor any suit as yet brought against the covenantee by the city. Zabriskie v. Baudendistel (N. J. 1890), 20 Atl. Rep. 163.

In Blevins v. Smith (Mo. 1891), 16 S. W. Rep. 213, an inchoate right of dower was held to be a breach of what the reported opinion states as a "covenant of warranty." As the case relied upon in support of this decision (Walker v. Deaver, 79 Mo. 664) held such a right to be a breach of the implied covenant against incumbrances, it is probable that the words "covenant of warranty" were not used in a technical sense, but as equivalent to "covenants in a warranty deed" or words to that effect.

An exception to the general rule of the necessity of eviction sometimes occurs where, as in the marshaling or administration of assets, a court of equity has all the parties before it and can adjust all conflicting claims. See Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), ch. 9, 14, 15.

In Stewart v. West, 14 Pa. St. 336, the court by Gibson, C. J., drew a distinction between the covenant for quiet enjoyment and that of warranty, viz, "that the former is broken by the very commencement of an action on the better title," but the cases do not seem to warrant a distinction on this ground. What is essential to the breach of both these covenants is the hostile assertion of an adverse title (infra, this title, p. 990, note 2), and such assertion is necessarily involved in the bringing of any well founded action.

Where, as is usual in England, the covenant against incumbrances is so connected with that for quiet enjoyment that the enjoyment is to be free for this purpose the adverse title must be actually paramount at the time of the conveyance,¹ and it must be hostilely asserted,² from whatever disturbance may be occasioned by the existence of any incumbrance, the existence of an incumbrance is itself a breach of the latter covenant, and the covenantee may bring an action for the breach, on paying off the incumbrance, without waiting to be evicted. Hall v. Dean, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 105.

Rule When Covenant of Warranty Includes Other Covenants.—In Moore v. Lanham, 3 Hill (S. Car.) 304, is a dictum: to the effect that in that State the existence of a paramount title was a breach of the covenant of warranty, so that, without eviction, the covenantee could either sue on the covenant or avail himself of it as a defense in an action for the purchase money. The cases cited in support of this dictum do not seem to justify it, except, perhaps, as to the use of the covenant as a defense. The position taken by the courts of South Carolina is better stated in Jeter v. Glenn, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 374, and Evans v. McLucas, 12 S. Car. 62, where it is laid down that under the statute of December 12, 1795 (5 Stats. 256) the usual form of a covenant of general warranty, as contained in the short form of a deed of lease and release provided by that statute, must be understood as containing in itself the five other covenants, so that whatever would constitute a breach of any one of these, would be ground for an action upon the covenant in that form of deed.

The same rule holds in Iowa, where the form of warranty for a deed in fee (Miller's Rev. Code, 1888, § 1970, p. 732) is held to include the usual covenants. Funk v. Cresswell, 5 Iowa 91; Van Wagner v. Van Nostrand, 19 Iowa 42.

Covenant of Non-claim.—In Cole v. Lee, 30 Me. 392, where the covenant was one of non-claim (supra, this title, p. 985 n. 7) and the premises proved to be bound by a mortgage, it was laid down that the covenantee "was not bound to wait, till measures should be taken to deprive him of possession, when his remedy upon the defendant might be fruitless," but, that, on the contrary, he could buy in the incumbrance and recover the amount paid therefor in an action on the covenant. The court further said that he could pursue the same course

"under a deed containing the common covenant of warranty against incumbrances," by which is apparently meant something more than a mere covenant of warranty, probably something analogous to the covenant for quiet enjoyment free of incumbrances referred to supra, this title, Covenant for Quiet Enjoyment.

For what constitutes actual and constructive eviction, see EVICTIION.

1. An adverse possession which, though wrongful at the time of the conveyance, ripens into a perfect title under the statutes of limitation, does not cause a breach of those covenants, for the covenantee has his own laches to blame. Beebe v. Swartwout, 8 Ill. 183; Moore v. Vail, 17 Ill. 185; Jenkins v. Hopkins, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 350; Rindskopf v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 49; Phelps v. Sawyer, 1 Ark. (Vt.) 157.

2. Axtel v. Chase, 83 Ind. 546; Wilson v. Irish, 62 Iowa 260; Shelton v. Pease, 10 Mo. 482; Snyder v. Jennings, 15 Neb. 372; Real v. Hollister, 20 Neb. 112; Anderson v. Buchanan, 20 Neb. 272; Hunt v. Amidon, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 349, 40 Am. Dec. 283; Fowler v. Poling, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 168; Dickinson v. Voorhees, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 357; Brown v. Dickerson, 12 Pa. St. 372; Knepper v. Kurtz, 58 Pa. St. 480; Jones v. Richmond, (Va. 1891), 13 S. E. Rep. 414; Morgan v. Henderson, 2 Wash. Ter. 367.

Thus in Patton v. McFarlane, 3 P. & W. (Pa.) 419, the purchase money never having been paid to the commonwealth, the covenantee voluntarily paid it, though no claim had been made, and it was held that he could not recover on his covenant of warranty, as his possession had never been disturbed or threatened.

McCoy v. Lord, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 18, is even a stronger case. Part of the land conveyed had been sold for taxes prior to the conveyance, and was redeemed by the covenantees, without any request from the covenantor, on the last day allowed for redemption. It was held that the covenant for quiet enjoyment was not broken, as there had been no eviction, and that, as there was no covenant against incumbrances, the plaintiffs had no right to pay the taxes and charges voluntarily, and recover from the defendant the amount paid.

but it is not essential that a judgment be recovered in favor of it,¹ nor that there be any physical expulsion of the covenantee, who may, at his discretion, either surrender the premises² or

Had they desired to be able to do so, they should have provided for this by appropriate covenants.

In Louisiana a hostile assertion of an adverse title is apparently not essential to an eviction, and hence, "if a perfect title exist in some third person, whereby it is rendered legally certain that the vendor had not title," this is sufficient ground for an "action of warranty," McDonald v. Vaughan, 14 La. Ann. 727; Robbins v. Martin, 43 (La. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 108.

An action of trespass by a prior lessee against a subsequent lessee, though not brought till after the expiration of the prior lease, has been held in California to be such a hostile assertion of title as to amount to an eviction, and to entitle the subsequent lessee to an action on his covenant for quiet enjoyment. McAlester v. Landers, 70 Cal. 79.

1. Even in the case of constructive eviction, it is held that the paramount title which is bought in, need not have been established by a judgment or decree. Amos v. Cosby, 74 Ga. 793; Royer v. Foster, 62 Iowa 321; Walker v. Deaver, 79 Mo. 664; Kramer v. Carter, 136 Mass. 504; Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74; Turner v. Goodrich, 26 Vt. 709; Pitkin v. Leavitt, 13 Vt. 379.

2. Thus in Hamilton v. Cutts, 4 Mass. 350, 3 Am. Dec. 222, the title failed as to part of the land, which was entered and taken possession of by the real owner with the consent of the plaintiff, who withdrew therefrom, and was allowed to recover on the breach of covenant. The court, by Parsons, C. J., said: "It is contended that here there was no legal evidence of an ouster; because the dispossession took place with the consent of the tenant in possession. It is true that if the tenant consents to an unlawful ouster, he cannot afterwards be entitled to a remedy for such ouster. But an ouster may be lawful, and in that case the tenant may yield to a dispossession without losing his remedy on the covenant of warranty."

There is no necessity for him to involve himself in a lawsuit to defend himself against a title which he is satisfied must ultimately prevail."

As was said by Gibson, J., in Clarke

v. McAnulty, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 372, "the law does not require the idle and expensive ceremony of being turned out by legal process, where the result would be inevitable."

The validity of such ouster in pais is now well established. Sterling v. Peet, 14 Conn. 254; McDowell v. Hunter, Dudley (Ga.) 4; Leary v. Durham, 4 Ga. 606; Thomas v. Stickle, 32 Iowa 71; Woodward v. Allan, 3 Dana (Ky.) 164; Hanson v. Buckner, 4 Dana (Ky.) 254; 29 Am. Dec. 401; Slater v. Rawson, 1 Met. (Mass.) 455; Merritt v. Morse, 108 Mass. 275; Lambert v. Estes, 99 Mo. 604; Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74; Stone v. Hooker, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 154; Fowler v. Poling, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 165; Greenvault v. Davis, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 643; Blydenburgh v. Cotheal, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 196; Wood v. Fornecrook, 3 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 303; Cowdrey v. Coit, 44 N. Y. 382; Home L. Ins. Co. v. Sherman, 46 N. Y. 370; Patton v. McFarlane, 3 P. & W. (Pa.) 419; Poyntell v. Spencer, 6 Pa. St. 254; Knepper v. Kurtz, 58 Pa. St. 480; Friss v. Harshea, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 50; Callis v. Cogbill, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 137; Westrope v. Chambers, 51 Tex. 178; Haffery v. Birchett, 11 Leigh (Va.) 88.

Of course the surrender must be made to the rightful owner, not to the covenantor. Axtel v. Chase, 83 Ind. 546.

In New York the earliest cases lay stress on the necessity of an actual eviction or disturbance of possession (Waldron v. M'Carty, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 471; Kortz v. Carpenter, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 120; Kent v. Welch, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 258; 5 Am. Dec. 266; Vanderkarr v. Vanderkarr, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 122; Kerr v. Shaw, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 236); but their doctrine has certainly been modified by the later cases cited supra in this note.

In Nebraska it was at first held in Real v. Hollister, 17 Neb. 661, that where the covenantee's title had been annulled by a decree in equity, and a recovery had been had against him in ejectment, proof of his actual eviction from the land was not essential to his recovery on the covenant of warranty, but on a rehearing (Real v. Hollister, 20 Neb. 112) the contrary was held, use the other alternative of buying in,¹ and thereby acquiring, (or and it was laid down that the covenantee must allege and prove that he has been actually turned out of the premises by legal process based upon a title or some right existing in another at the date of the covenant, or that such outstanding title having been asserted he has yielded to it and surrendered the possession thereto; and further that he was prohibited "from suing on the covenants of his deed while he continues to enjoy the possession obtained under it." While this decision definitely limits the application of the rule of Hamilton v. Cutts, 4 Mass. 350, by excluding all cases where possession is retained under the deed containing the covenants sued upon, yet it does not necessarily apply to cases where the covenantee buys in the paramount title, his possession then being no longer under his original deed. But as to this see Anderson v. Buchanan, 20 Neb. 272, in next note.

In Hodges v. Latham, 98 N. Car. 239, the plaintiff had not himself surrendered the premises, but during his absence he "had lost possession," yielding, apparently, without eviction by process of law. The court below entered a non-suit, but the supreme court granted a new trial.

Rights Under "Occupying Claimants' Acts."—The statutes of some States provide that after a judgment against an occupying claimant, the successful plaintiff may either convey the land to the former on payment of its value without the improvements, or he may take the land on paying for the improvements. Either course is held equivalent to an eviction of the occupying claimant, entitling him to an action on his covenant of warranty. Ogden v. Ball, 40 Minn. 94; King v. Meek, 6 Mont. 172; King v. Kerr, 5 Ohio 154; 22 Am. Dec. 777, explained in Johnson v. Nyce, 17 Ohio 66; 49 Am. Dec. 444.

1. Thus where a grantee with covenants for quiet enjoyment and of warranty was threatened with a suit for possession under a mortgage prior to his conveyance, it was held that there was "nothing to distinguish this case from that of Hamilton v. Cutts, 4 Mass. 350 (where the covenantee had surrendered possession; see previous note) but a point of form which does not affect the merits of the question. The plaintiff has been disturbed in the enjoyment of his possession, and he has been compelled to purchase in another title for his own security, which we think very clearly has been a lawful interruption and a breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment." Sprague v. Baker, 17 Mass. 590.

So in Whitney v. Dinsmore, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 124, under a similar state of facts the court said: "The premises were offered for sale at public auction, and if the plaintiff had not become a purchaser he had a right to presume that he would be dispossessed by the purchaser, and he was justified in acting upon that presumption, and the defendant could not be thereby injured; for undoubtedly if the plaintiff had not become a purchaser he would have been evicted if he had refused to yield possession, and in such case the defendant would be responsible for the costs of suit in the action against the plaintiff, as well as for the value of the land, if duly notified of the pendency of the action."

In New York, although the doctrine of the necessity of actual eviction as laid down in Waldron v. M'Carty, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 471 (where the covenantee had bought in the premises at a foreclosure sale under a mortgage prior to his conveyance), was modified by later decisions so as to allow a breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment or of warranty to result from the covenantee's surrender of possession, yet a loss of possession, whether by ouster or surrender, seemed for a long time to be regarded as essential (see New York cases in last notes). It is to be observed that in Hunt v. Amidon, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 345, 40 Am. Dec. 283, the action brought by the covenantee's vendee, who had bought the property in at a foreclosure sale, was not upon the covenant for quiet enjoyment, but an assumpsit for money paid to the covenantee's use; while in Cowdrey v. Coit, 44 N. Y. 382, although the grantee bid the property in at the sale, he did not consummate his purchase, but sold his bid to another, surrendered to him, and recovered on the strength of such surrender.

In Petrie v. Folz, 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 223, however, in an action on the covenant of warranty by a covenantee who had satisfied a judgment in ejectment which had been recovered against her, the superior court of the City of New take a lease under¹) the paramount title (which latter course is considered a "constructive eviction"); but he pursues either course at his own risk,² except when he does so in consequence

York, by Sedgwick, C. J., went even beyond what the facts of the case required in support of the plaintiff's position, and said: "There was no actual eviction, there being no actual disturbance of possession. If, however, to maintain her possession, it was necessary to get the outstanding title, and she was obliged to buy it in, she could recover from the covenantor the amount she was obliged to pay, if she could also prove that the outstanding title was valid and could be enforced by ejectment."

This last New York case certainly lays down the doctrine now supported by a decided preponderance of authority. Depuy v. Roebuck, 7 Ala. 488; Gunter v. Williams, 40 Ala. 561; Collier v. Cowger, 52 Ark. 322; McGary v. Hastings, 39 Cal. 360; 2 Am. Rep. 456; Harding v. Larkin, 41 Ill. 422; McConnell v. Downs, 48 Ill. 271; Claycombe v. Munger, 51 Ill. 374; Crance v. Collierbaugh, 47 Ind. 256; Mooney v. Burchard, 84 Ind. 285; Eversole v. Early, 80 Iowa 601; Nolan v. Feltman, 12 Bush (Ky.) 119; Donnell v. Thompson, 10 Me. 170; Kelly v. Low, 18 Me. 244; Cole v. Lee, 30 Me. 392; White v. Whitney, 3 Met. (Mass.) 81; Bemis v. Smith, 10 Met. (Mass.) 194; Estabrook v. Smith, 6 Gray (Mass.) 572; 66 Am. Dec. 445; Furnas v. Durgin, 119 Mass. 500; 20 Am. Dec. 341; Ogden v. Ball, 40 Minn. 94; Morgan v. Hannibal etc. R. R. Co., 63 Mo. 129; Stewart v. Drake, 9 N. J. L. 139; Lane v. Fury, 31 Ohio St. 574; Tuite v. Miller (Ohio), 5 West. L. Jour. 416; Skinner v. Baughman, 12 Pa. St. 106; Brown v. Dickerson, 12 Pa. St. 372; Haffey v. Birchetts, 11 Leigh (Va.) 88.

The cases of Hannah v. Henderson, 4 Ind. 174; Reasoner v. Edmundson, 5 Ind. 393, and Mason v. Cooksey, 51 Ind. 519, are not in conflict with this doctrine, as in none of them had the plaintiff purchased the paramount title.

In Mississippi, constructive eviction of this sort is not held to sustain an action of the covenant of warranty. Dyer v. Britton, 53 Miss. 270; but the grantee who buys in a paramount title may sue the covenantor in assumpsit for money paid to his use. Kirkpatrick v. Miller, 50 Miss. 521.

In Nebraska, it has been held in Anderson v. Buchanan, 20 Neb. 272, that a grantee who compromises an action brought against him by the claimant of a paramount title cannot recover on his covenant for quiet enjoyment the amount paid to compromise the action. Whether he could have recovered had he brought in the paramount title after a judgment against him, in a suit of which his grantor had been notified, was not decided, but perhaps the language in Real v. Hollister, 20 Neb. 112, was intended to forbid recovery even in such a case.

The cases of Van Meter v. Griffith, 4 Dana (Ky.) 92, and Morgan v. Boone, 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 297; 16 Am. Dec. 153, which hold that the covenantee who buys in the paramount title cannot sue on the covenant, but only as for money paid to the covenantor's use, rest upon a misconception of the measure of damages in such cases of constructive eviction, and cannot be regarded as authorities against the doctrine stated in the text. See Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.) § 147.

1. Mr. Rawle (Covenants, 5th ed., § 145) considers that the constructive eviction is as complete when the covenantee remains in possession by taking a lease under the paramount title as when he buys it in, and as all connection with his former title is as thoroughly dissolved if he take such a lease as if he were actually evicted, the view is a reasonable one. It must be observed, however, that the case cited in support of this view was one in which the change of title was not relied upon as an eviction, and in which the court said that in case of a breach of the covenant of warranty the covenantee "must actually go out of possession," though this latter doctrine was afterwards abandoned in Pennsylvania. See cases cited in last note.

2. Hence if the covenantee yield to or purchase the paramount title, he must assume the burden of proof in any proceeding against his covenantor, setting up in his pleadings and sustaining by evidence the validity of the adverse title. Moore v. Vail, 17 Ill. 190; Thomas v. Stickle, 32 Iowa 76; Richards v. Iowa Homestead Co., 44 of a judgment or decree against him in a suit of which his covenantor has been duly notified.¹

"Constructive eviction" also arises when the purchaser is unable to obtain possession by reason of a paramount title;² or, if the land be unoccupied and remain so after the purchase, when the paramount title is hostilely asserted in some public manner, so as to disturb the constructive possession. A sale of the Iowa 304; 24 Am. Rep. 745; Cassidy's Succession, 40 La. Ann. 827; Hamilton v. Cutts, 4 Mass. 350; 3 Am. Dec. 222; George v. Putney, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 355; Witty v. Hightower, 12 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 481; Lambert v. Estes, 99 Mo. 604; Snyder v. Jennings, 15 Neb. 372; Stone v. Hooker, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 157; Greenvault v. Davis, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 643; Beyer v. Schultze, 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 212; Callis v. Coghill, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 137; Peck v. Hensley, 20 Tex. 678; Westrope v. Chambers, 51 Tex. 178.

Where the covenantor held by a tax-title, and the owner of the fee-simple title brought suit to have the tax-deed canceled, and obtained a decree in his favor conditioned on his repaying to the covenantor, within a certain time, the amount paid out by him in taxes on the property, in default of which the tax-title was to be quieted, it was held, in a subsequent action on the covenant, by one claiming under the covenantee, and who had bought in the fee simple title, that this was not a paramount title (the money not having yet been paid as decreed) and that the plaintiff could not recover. Eversole v. Early, 80 Iowa 601.

1. See infra, this title, Notice to Defend Title.

2. Thus in the leading case of Cloake v. Hooper, Freem. 122, the declaration in an action on a covenant for quiet enjoyment stated that the lands had belonged to the king, whose patentee held them at the time of the conveyance to the plaintiff. On demurrer because the plaintiff did not allege an entry, and therefore could not have been disturbed, the court said: "The declaration is good enough; for having set forth a title in the patentee of the king, the plaintiff shall not be enforced to enter and subject himself to an action by a tortious act."

Similarly in Ludwell v. Newman, 6 T. R. 458, where the declaration stated that the plaintiff who held a lease for years, had never been in possession, the tenant having refused to attorn to him, and having defeated him in an ejectment, on account of a prior lease from the defendant, and it was pleaded that the plaintiff might have entered and enjoyed, it was held upon demurrer that the covenant for quiet enjoyment meant a legal entry and enjoyment without the permission of any other person, which entry and enjoyment were prevented by the prior lease granted. See also Hawkes v. Orton, 5 A. & E. 367.

In America the decisions were at first the other way, to the effect that if the covenantee had never had possession, no action would lie on the covenant for quiet enjoyment. Kortz v. Carpenter, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 120; St. John v. Palmer, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 601; Day v. Chism, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 452. Apparently the only authority for this view was the dictum in Holder v. Taylor, Hob. 12, that although in the case of an implied covenant for power to lease it was unreasonable to make the lessee enter upon the land, if in the possession of another, and so commit a trespass, yet "if it were an express covenant for quiet enjoying, then perhaps it were otherwise."

In Grist v. Hodges, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 200, however, the decision was in accordance with the English doctrine above stated, and for the same reasons. The court by Ruffin, J., said: "The existence of a better title, with an actual possession under it in another, is of itself a breach of the covenant [of warranty]. It is manifestly just that it should be so considered; for otherwise the covenantee would have no redress but by making himself a trespasser by an actual entry, which the law requires of nobody, or by bringing an unnecessary suit, for the event of that suit proves nothing in the action on the covenant." This doctrine is now thoroughly established in America, the possession by a third party under a paramount title is itself the most complete assertion of that premises does not constitute such an assertion of title,¹ unless made by the original vendor under a title subsequently acquired,² or by a State,³ or in the course of adverse legal proceedings,⁴ or perhaps any public sale by order of court.⁵

title, and such possession at the time the conveyance (which, under the Statute of Uses, itself confers possession) is executed, is regarded as amounting to an eviction eo instanti. Caldwell v. Kirkpatrick, 6 Ala. 60; 41 Am. Dec. 36; Banks v. Whitehead, 7 Ala. 83; Playter v. Cunningham, 21 Cal. 229; Moore v. Vail, 17 Ill. 185; Small v. Reeves, 14 Ind. 164; Cummins v. Kennedy, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 123; 14 Am. Dec. 45; Barnett v. Montgomery, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 323; Curtis v. Deering, 12 Me. 501; Blanchard v. Blanchard, 48 Me. 174; Matteson v. Vaughn, 38 Mich. 373; Fritz v. Pusey, 31 Minn. 368; Dennis v. Heath, 11 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 206; 49 Am. Dec. 51; Witty v. Hightower, 12 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 478; Green v. Irving, 54 Miss. 450; Murphy v. Price, 48 Mo. 250; Blondeau v. Sheridan, 81 Mo. 545; Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74; Chandler v. Brown, 59 N. H. 370; Miller v. Halsey, 14 N. J. L. 48; Gardner v. Keteltas, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 330; 38 Am. Dec. 637; Rea v. Minkler, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 196; Shattuck v. Lamb, 65 N. Y. 499; Mills v. Rice, 3 Neb. 76; Wilder v. Ireland, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 87; Randolph v. Meeks, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 58; Phelps v. Sawyer, 1 Aik. (Vt.) 158; Park v. Bates, 12 Vt. 381; University of Vt. v. Joslyn, 21 Vt. 52; Clark v. Conroe, 38 Vt. 475; Russ v. Steele, 40 Vt. 315; Sheffey v. Gardiner, 79 Va. 313; Rex v. Creel, 22 W. Va. 373; Moreland v. Metz, 24 W. Va. 119; 49 Am. Rep. 246.

A misdescription, whereby the deed purports to convey more than the grantor really has, may occasion such a constructive eviction as to be a breach of the covenant of warranty; e. g., where the premises were described as bounded by a line through the center of a wall which was, in point of fact entirely upon the adjoining property. Cecconi v. Rodden, 147 Mass. 164.

1. Matteson v. Vaughn, 38 Mich. 373; Green v. Irving, 54 Miss. 450; Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74.

2. In such case the covenantor would not be allowed to say that there had been no hostile assertion of the true title, because his act would amount to a disaffirmance and annulment of the only title the vendee had." Green v. Irving, 54 Miss. 450.

3. "A sale by the State must be regarded as a hostile assertion against all possession of its lands, because ordinarily it is the only way in which the State can make it. Its impersonal character renders it impossible for the State to make demand of possession, nor could it be surrendered to it save by leaving the land unoccupied . . . In making a sale, the State declares in the most authentic and public manner that it claims title and by the act conveys it to a person other than the one in possession. Green v. Irving, 54 Miss. 450.

In Brown v. Allen, 57 Hun (N. Y.) 219, the appropriation by the forest commission of unoccupied land, which had been sold for taxes and bought in by the State, to be held as part of the "forest preserve," under an act of the legislature, was held to be a constructive eviction and to entitle the party thereby evicted to proceed on his covenant.

4. Thus where a vacant lot, subject to a mortgage, was sold by the mortgagor, and the mortgagee foreclosed by proceedings to which the vendees were made parties, obtained a decree of sale and delivery of possession, and bought the property in at the master's sale, this was held, in an action on the covenant, to be an eviction. St. John v. Palmer, 5 Hill (N. Y.) 599.

In Wood v. Forncrook, 3 N. Y. Super. Ct. 303, however, a foreclosure sale of wild land was held not to constitute an eviction.

5. Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74, which sustained the right of a grantee to sue on his covenant after buying in the premises was a case involving unoccupied land, and the sale was a public one, made by the administrator of the true owner under order of court. No distinction was taken between such a case and that of the purchase of an outstanding title by one who was actually, and not merely constructively, in possession of the land, and it would seem that the public character of the

The covenant of warranty is also regarded as broken by the loss of any incorporeal right annexed or incident to the land conveyed.¹

In actions upon the covenants for quiet enjoyment and of general warranty² the burden of proof is upon the plaintiff,³ and hence it is not enough to negative the words of the covenant, but the breach must be set forth particularly,⁴ with an averment that the disturbance was under a lawful title existing before and at the time of the conveyance to the covenantee,⁵ but the title need not itself be set forth.⁶ sale was necessary in order to give it the effect of a constructive eviction.

1. Thus where a furnace and grist-mill near a canal were leased with a covenant of general warranty, and the agents of the commonwealth cut off the water supply, it was held that, under the circumstances, this constituted a breach of the covenant. Peters v. Grubb, 21 Pa. St. 455.

So if the description of the land conveyed is such as to import a warranty that the streets which bound the land exist, a failure to open them is a breach of the covenant. Trutt v. Spotts, 87 Pa. St. 339.

So as to the breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment by the interruption of a way. Andrews v. Paradise, 8 Mod. 318; Morris v. Edgington, 3 Taunt. 24.

So as to other rights, West v. Stewart, 7 Pa. St. 123; Wilson v. Cochran, 46 Pa. St. 233; Adams v. Conover, 87 N. Y. 422; Parker v. Fairbanks, 1 Russ. & Ches. 215.

There are a few cases in which the contrary has been held.

Thus in Connecticut the diversion under paramount title, of a stream of water flowing through the land conveyed was held not to constitute a breach of the covenant of warranty contained in the deed for the land. Mitchell v. Warner, 5 Conn. 497. And in Pennsylvania the taking of land by the commonwealth for a canal, under a prior grant from the covenantor with release of damages, has been held not to be a breach of the covenant of warranty of the lots through which the canal was laid out. Dobbins v. Brown, 12 Pa. St. 75. In this case, had the commonwealth taken the land by eminent domain, the decision would have been manifestly correct, but the injury to the covenantee arose from the fact that the land was taken under the release, as a private citizen might have taken it.

2. In the case of a breach of the covenant of special warranty it is sufficient to allege any entry by the covenantor or other person specially named, or any of their heirs, executors or other persons claiming under them as the case may be, without showing the entry to be lawful or setting forth the title to enter. Fitz. Nat. Brev. 342 k; Forté v. Vines, 2 Rol. 21; Core's Case, Cro. El. 544; Penning v. Plat, Cro. Jac. 383; Lloyd v. Tomkies, 1 T. R. 671.

The particular act, constituting the breach of covenant, must, however, be shown. Anonymous, Comb. 228; Frances' Case, 8 Co. 91 a, b.

3. The burden of proof may, of course, be shifted, as by a plea that the paramount title was not outstanding, but in the defendant himself and properly conveyed to the plaintiff. Owen v. Thomas, 33 Ill. 320.

4. Blanchard v. Hoxie, 34 Me. 378; Wait v. Maxwell, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 87; 16 Am. Dec. 391; Mills v. Rice, 3 Neb. 76; Morgan v. Henderson, 2 Wash. Ter. 367.

5. Kirby v. Hansaker, Cro. Jac. 315; Skinner v. Kilbys, 1 Snow. 70; Jordan v. Twells, Cas. temp. Hard. 171; Hays v. Bickerstaff, Vaugh. 118; Wotton v. Hele, 2 Saund. 181 & n.; Norman v. Foster, 1 Mod. 101; Crisfield v. Storr, 36 Md. 129; 11 Am. Rep. 480; Peck v. Houghtaling, 35 Mich. 127; Kelly v. Dutch Church, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 105; Frost v. Earnest, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 86; Naglee v. Ingersoll, 7 Pa. St. 205; Knapp v. Marlboro, 34 Vt. 235. Otherwise, as shown by these cases, there would be nothing to show that the eviction was not a mere trespass or under an unsubstantial claim of title.

6. Proctor v. Newton, 2 Lev. 37; Buckley v. Williams, 3 Lev. 345; Jor-

3. Covenants Between Landlord and Tenant.¹

III. RUNNING WITH THE LAND.—Until breach,² every real covenant runs with the land, i. e., either the liability imposed by it or the right to take advantage of it passes to any transferee of the land, or of that interest therein to which the covenant relates, by virtue of the transfer, and though such covenant be not mentioned in the instrument of transfer.³ Real covenants run, with incorporeal hereditaments in the same manner as with the land itself.⁴

To constitute a real covenant, its capacity to run with the land must be manifested either by the fact that it concerns a thing in esse parcel of the real estate granted or demised, or by the fact that the assignees are expressly referred to in the covenant.⁵

dan v. Twells, Cas. temp. Hard. 171; Foster v. Pierson, 4 T. R. 617; Hodgson v. East India Co., 8 T. R. 278; Evans v. Vaughan, 4 B. & C. 261; Dexter v. Manley, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 14.

1. As to these, see LEASE, vol. 12, p. 974.

2. After breach a covenant is a mere claim, a chose in action incapable of transmission or descent, and to be sued upon by the executor or administrator if the breach occurred in the covenantee's lifetime. Com. Dig. Covt. B. 1; Lucy v. Lexington, 2 Lev. 26; Morley v. Polhill, 2 Vent. 56; Smith v. Simonds, Comb. 64; Raymond v. Fitch, 2 C. M. & R. 588; Ricketts v. Weaver, 12 M. & W. 718; Young v. Raincock, 7 C. B. 310.

3. Hence "real covenants" and "covenants running with the land" are practically interchangeable terms, and Sheppard's definition of a real covenant is that it so runs.

A covenant, being a chose in action, was, at common law, incapable of assignment, and the capacity of certain covenants to run with the land is an exception to the common law rule. Rawle Covenant, (5th ed.), § 203. This exception is necessarily confined to cases where the rights or liabilities under the covenant are practically part and parcel of the estate in the land, i. e., to real covenants.

Covenants Running with the Reversion.—At common law, covenants did not run with the reversion. Thursby v. Plant, 1 Wms. Saund. 240, n. 3, and n. o.

But this was changed by statute 32 Hen. VIII, ch. 34 in the case "covenants which touch or concern the thing demised," but not collateral covenants. Spencer's Case, 5 Coke 16.

Temporary Covenants.—A temporary covenant may run with the land as well as a permanent one. Where a grantee covenanted for himself, his heirs and assigns, to keep a fence in repair, until a new fence should be built upon the true line this covenant was held so to run. Hartung v. Witte, 59 Wis. 285.

4. Bally v. Wells, 3 Wils. 26; Earle of Egremont v. Keene, 2 Jones (Ir.) 307; Martyn v. Williams, 1 H. & N. 817; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. O'Baugh, 49 Ark. 418; Howard Co. v. Water Lot Co., 53 Ga. 689; Fitch v. Johnson, 104 Ill. 111; Hazlett v. Sinclair, 76 Ind. 488; Morse v. Aldrich, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 449; Van Rensselaer v. Smith, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 147; Willard v. Tillman, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 274; Van Rensselaer v. Read, 26 N. Y. 558; Carr v. Lowry, 27 Pa. St. 257; Scott v. Lunt, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 596.

In Wheelock v. Thayer, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 68, it was held that a covenant concerning a privilege of drawing water from a pond "could not run with the land, for no land was granted, and to make a covenant run with the land it is not sufficient that it is of and concerning land;" but this was stated with some doubt and was not the only ground of the decision. To the same effect, Mitchell v. Warner, 5 Conn. 497.

5. Spencer's Case, 5 Coke 16; 1 Sm. Lead. Cas. (9th Am. ed.) 174; Bally v. Wells, 3 Wils. 28; Mayor of Congleton v. Pattison, 10 East 135; Easterly v. Sampson, 6 Bing. 652; Jourdain v. Wilson, 9 B. & Ald. 266; Sharp v. Waterhouse, 7 E. & B. 823; Thompson v. Rose, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 269; Tallman v. Coffin, 4 N. Y. 134; Easter v. Little Miami R. Co., 14 Ohio St. 48; Hartung v. Witte, 59 Wis. 285;

Covenants which confer a benefit upon the land, i. e., those made with the owner of the land to which they relate, run with the land, and may be sued upon by any transferee of the estate held by the original covenantee,¹ whether such covenants be made by the person conveying the land to the covenantee or by a stranger,² but the right of action passes from the original covenantee only by the conveyance of some estate to which the covenant is incident.³ Hence if no estate really passes to him by the

and see Cook v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 36 Wis. 45.

Thus where the owner of oil lands, to whom they had been released by the lessees, covenanted for himself to pay and deliver to the lessees a sixth-part of the oil produced during the unexpired term of the leases, it was held that the covenant did not concern any "thing in esse, parcel of the demise" or "annexed and appurtenant" thereto, so as to bring it within the first part of the rule in Spencer's Case, and that the grantor having covenanted for himself only, the covenant could not run with the land. Newburg Petroleum Co. v. Weare, 44 Ohio St. 604.

And where the covenant was that when any portion of the land adjoining the right of way granted should be inclosed and used for pasturage the railroad company should fence the right of way, and the grantor's assigns were not mentioned, this was held not to run with the land. Gulf etc. R. Co. v. Smith, 72 Tex. 122.

But where the covenant to build such a fence is expressly stated to bind the covenantor, his heirs and assigns, it runs with the land. Bronson v. Coffin, 108 Mass. 175; 11 Am. Rep. 335. See further the cases cited in the following notes.

1. Thus a covenant in a deed of a right of way, that the grantee shall make the water run in a particular way and place, passes to a purchaser of the property through which the right of way lies. Peden v. Chicago etc. R. Co., 73 Iowa 328, 78 Iowa 131.

So of a stipulation that the grantee shall maintain fences along the right of way. Kentucky Cent. Co. v. Kenney, 82 Ky. 154.

So of a covenant to build the track above the overflow of a river. St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. O'Baugh, 49 Ark. 418.

So of a covenant to build and forever maintain a siding from the railroad to a mill on the grantor's land. Lydick

v. Baltimore etc. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 427; S. P. Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N. J. Eq. 489.

So of a covenant in a conveyance of land to a railroad company, to maintain all switch connections "heretofore existing" between the railroad and the grantor's land, and to operate them free of charge, the language used clearly referring to a perpetual maintenance and operation though the words "heirs and assigns" were not employed. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co. v. Reno, 22 Ill. App. 470; aff'd. 123 Ill. 273.

A covenant by the grantor of a mill, that he has a right to maintain the dam at the height at which it stood at the time of the grant, runs with the land, the right being part of the grant. But this does not prevent the defense, as against subsequent grantees, that the original grantees fraudulently destroyed the marks of the height at the time of the grant, and raised the dam without any right to do so. Scott v. Stetler, (Ind. 1891), 27 N. E. Rep. 721.

A covenant by the grantor, to leave an open space between the river and the street on which the lots conveyed front, runs with the land. Delogny v. Mercer (La. 1891), 8 So. Rep. 903.

2. The Prior's Case, cited in Spencer's Case, 5 Co. 16; Co. Litt. 384 b; Sharp v. Waterhouse, 7 E. & B. 823; Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N. J. Eq. 489.

The usual covenants for title belong, of course, to the class of covenants which confer a benefit, but as to how far they run with the land see infra, this title, p. 1006.

3. In former times, when conveyances were made by livery of seisin, an actual estate was transferred by right or wrong to the feoffee in all cases, and might pass from him to any subsequent assignee. Dickson v. Desire, 23 Mo. 157. In such a case there could be no question but that all warranties and covenants made by the original feoffor passed with the conveyance, whether the title were valid or not. See 1 Sm. L. Cas. (8th Am. ed.), 201.

The modern form of deed, however, can pass no greater estate than the grantor has, and it is important to ascertain what will constitute a sufficient estate to carry the covenants with it as incidental to the conveyance.

Where the doctrine of "actual seisin" prevails (supra this title, Covenant for Seisin), a conveyance by one in possession under claim of title passes an estate, and hence such a conveyance suffices to make the covenants run with the land. Slater v. Rawson, 1 Met. (Mass.) 450; Wilson v. Widenham, 51 Me. 566.

And, even apart from this doctrine, it was held in Beddoe v. Wadsworth, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 120, and has since been maintained both in New York and other States, that if the grantor be in full possession of the premises under claim of title, and by his deed transfers that possession to his grantee, the latter takes a sufficient estate to carry with it the benefit of those covenants for title which run with the land, so that they will pass to his assignee. Dickson v. Desire, 23 Mo. 151; Fowler v. Poling, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 166 (overruling, 2 Barb. (N. Y.) 306); Lewis v. Cook, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 194; Dickinson v. Hoomes, 8 Gratt. (Va.) 353; Fields v. Squires, Deady (U. S.) 389.

In Wead v. Larkin, 54 Ill. 489, and Tillotson v. Prichard, 60 Vt. 94, it was held that where vacant land was conveyed, and the grantee took possession, the same result followed, and the assignee could sue on the covenants. In the latter case the court, by Taft, J., said: "Tillotson and Dame took actual possession of the premises under their deed from Prichard. The covenant of warranty was of force in their hands by privity of contract, and when they sold the land, having taken possession of it under their deed, the covenant attached to the land and passed with it to the grantee."

The doctrine that where possession is acquired under a grant it carries the covenants with it, is not only necessary to the utility of covenants for title, but is founded on a true principle. Possession is "an imperfect degree of title," "an inchoate ownership or estate," "which may ripen into a fee by neglect of the real owner." Besides, as far as the covenants of warranty and for quiet enjoyment are concerned, they are not broken until the possession is disturbed. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 233.

In England, in reliance on what was supposed to be decided in Noke v. Awder, Cro. Eliz. 373, it was held for a long time that possession alone did not suffice to make the covenants in a conveyance of an invalid title run with the land (Andrew v. Pearce, 4 B. & P. 162), but in Cuthbertson v. Irving, 4 Hurl. & N. 755, it was held that the decision in Noke v. Awder turned upon the insufficiency of the breach of covenant as pleaded, so that that case is not to be regarded as an authority against the efficacy of possession to pass the covenants.

Where a chattel interest passes, this is sufficient to enable covenants to run with the land. Williams v. Burrell, 1 C. B. 401.

In England, the transfer of an equity of redemption was held insufficient to carry covenants with it. Mayor of Carlisle v. Blamire, 8 East 487; Pargeter v. Harris, 7 A. & E., N. S. 709; Thornton v. Court, 3 De G. M. & G. 293; and see McGoodwin v. Stephenson, 11 B. Mon. (Ky.) 22.

But the status of a mortgagor has been changed by the judicature act of 1873, 36 & 37 Vict., ch. 66.

In America the rule has been almost uniformly the other way. Brown v. Metz, 33 Ill. 339; 85 Am. Dec. 277; Harper v. Perry, 28 Iowa, 58; Devin v. Hendershott, 32 Iowa, 192; Rose v. Schaffner, 50 Iowa 483; Wilson v. Widenham, 51 Me. 566; White v. Whitney, 3 Met. (Mass.) 81; Ely v. Hergesell, 46 Mich. 325; Davidson v. Cox, 11 Neb. 250; Andrews v. Wolcott, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 21; Wright v. Sperry, 21 Wis. 334.

At common law covenants did not run with an estate claimed only by estoppel. Noke v. Awder, Cro. Eliz. 436; Lyn v. Wyn, Bridg. 122, 131; Whitton v. Peacock, 2 Bing. N. Cas. 411; except where the estoppel worked an actual transfer of the estate. Webb v. Austin, 7 M. & G. 700; Sturgeon v. Wingfield, 13 M. & W. 224.

And they do so run where the estoppel results from a lease. Cuthbertson v. Irving, 4 H. & N. 742; and see LEASE vol. 12, p. 974.

In Willard v. Tillman, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 276, it was held that a covenant for the payment of rent will run with a bare assignment of the rent, severed from the reversion, but the propriety deed conveying the covenants, no subsequent conveyance by him can transfer them to his assignee.¹

Covenants which impose a burden on the land, i. e., those made by the owner of the land to which they relate, run with the land only where a privity of estate exists between the parties to the covenant in regard to the land so burdened; which privity may result either from a relation of tenure between them² or from the possession, by the covenantee, of an easement or other interest in the land, partaking of the nature of real estate and capable of being granted,³ to which interest or estate of this decision is questioned in 1 Sm. Lead. Cas. (8th Am. ed.) 209.

1. Noke v. Awder, Cro. Eliz. 436; Andrews v. Pierce, 4 B. & P. 162; Mayor of Carlisle v. Blamire, 8 East 487; Nesbit v. Montgomery, 1 Tay. 84; Pargeter v. Harris, A. & E., N. S. 708; Whitton v. Peacock, 2 Bing. N. Cas. 411; Green v. James, 6 M. & W. 654; Martin v. Gordon, 24 Ga. 533; Allen v. Wooley, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 148; Bartholomew v. Candee, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 167; Wheelock v. Thayer, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 68; Slater v. Rawson, 1 Met. (Mass.) 450; Nesbit v. Brown, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 30; Randolph v. Kinney, 3 Rand. (Va.) 396; Beardsley v. Knight, 4 Vt. 471.

But in such a case the assignee has a remedy in equity. Nesbit v. Brown, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 30; Dickinson v. Hoome, 8 Gratt. (Va.) 353.

2. Spencer's Case, 5 Coke 16, Sampson v. Easterly, 9 B. & C. 505; 6 Bing. 644; Dunbar v. Jumper, 2 Yeates (Pa.) 74; Ingersoll v. Sergeant, 1 Whart. (Pa.) 337. See LEASE, vol. 12, p. 974.

3. It is not easy to formulate any exact rule as to what covenants can permanently impose a burden on land. In England it is now well settled that one who takes land with notice, whether actual or constructive, of a restrictive covenant, is bound by it. Clements v. Welles, L. R., 1 Eq. 200; Wilson v. Hart, L. R., 1 Ch. App. 463. Yet owing to the absence of any system of registration of deeds, mortgages, or other instruments affecting real estate, there is a very natural tendency to restrict these covenants to such matters as a purchaser might reasonably be expected to inquire into; whereas in the United States, while no covenant, unless contained in a "common lease," would affect a subsequent purchaser without notice, if it were not so recorded as to bring it in "the line of title," i. e., to turn up on the usual examination of the records, yet a purchaser would have notice, actual or constructive, of every properly recorded covenant, and hence the reason for the narrow range allowed to covenants in England does not exist. It is probable, therefore, that the English and American courts may differ in their application of the general principles which are recognized equally by both, and that some covenants at least which run with the land in America would not be permitted to do so in England, and that the English cases do not furnish infallible precedents for adaptation to American conditions.

Two general principles seem to be well established: first, that a covenant cannot run with land as a burden unless the covenantee has an estate or interest in the land bound, capable of transfer; and second that a covenant, which is merely in restraint of trade, or partakes of that character, does not grant such an estate or interest as is required to support a real covenant.

The leading modern case is Keppell v. Bailey, 2 Myl. & K. 517. The owners of the Beaufort Iron Works covenanted with the Trevil railroad company that they and their assigns would procure all the limestone used in their works from the Trevil quarry, and carry it and the product of their works over the railroad, paying a certain toll; and in reliance upon this covenant the road was constructed. The assignees of the works afterwards constructed another road to other quarries, and an injunction was applied for by the railroad company, but refused. Brougham, Ld. Chan., said: "There are certain known incidents to property and its enjoyment; among others, certain burdens wherewith it may be affected, or rights which may be created and enjoyed over it by parties other than the owner, all which incidents are recognized by the law. . . . But it must not therefore be supposed that incidents of a novel kind can be devised and attached to property, at the fancy or caprice of any owner.

. . . . There can be no harm in allowing the fullest latitude to men in finding themselves and their representatives, that is, their assets real and personal, to answer in damages for breach of their obligations; . . . but great detriment would arise and much confusion of rights, if parties were allowed to invent new modes of holding and enjoying real property, and to impress upon their lands and tenements a peculiar character, which should follow them into all hands, however remote." Only a privity of estate between the parties could in any case be held to support a real covenant, and in this case there was no privity whatever and the covenant was unquestionably personal.

In the American notes to Spencer's Case, 1 Sm. Lead. Cas. (8th Am. ed.), 198, it is suggested that "The covenant in Keppel v. Bailey (2 M. & K. 517), failed to run with the land, not so much because it imposed a burden, or from the want of privity of estate, as because the rights and restrictions which is imposed on the one hand or conferred on the other, went beyond the limits of any estate or interest in land known to the law, or which it will permit to be invested with the capacity for assignment or transfer, and sound policy will not allow an end to be attained by a covenant, which cannot be directly affected by a grant. Had the covenantors in that case agreed, not that they and those who lived after them on the same tract of land, should use a particular way and no other, but that a railway might be laid out across the land by the covenantees, the agreement would in all probability have been held to run with the land and be capable of passing, by descent or transfer in equity, if not at law. Every covenant in a grant which qualifies or enlarges its extent and operation enters into and forms part of estate or right granted, and should consequently accompany it into the hands of every one to whom it may subsequently be transferred."

Where a landowner for a valuable consideration granted an oil transportation company and their assigns the exclusive right of way and privilege to construct and maintain one or more pipe lines through and under his land, this ran with the land so far as the right of way was concerned, but the exclusive privilege did not run with the land. West Virginia Transp. Co. v. Ohio River Pipe Line Co., 22 W. Va. 626; 46 Am. Rep. 527.

A similar decision in regard to an exclusive right of way of a railroad was made in Kettle River R. Co. v. Eastern R. Co., 41 Minn. 461.

This doctrine is enlarged upon in Norcross v. James, 140 Mass. 193. Where the grantor of a quarry covenanted "for myself, my heirs, executors and administrators . . . with the said [grantee], his heirs and assigns, that I will not open or work any quarry or quarries on my farm or premises" adjoining the quarry granted, and a bill to enforce this covenant having been filed by the assignee of the quarry against the assignee of the adjoining premises, it was held that it could not be maintained. The court, by HOLMES, J., said, after reviewing the authorities: "The covenant under consideration falls outside the limits of this rule (of Spencer's Case and those following it), even in the narrower form. In what way does it extend to the support of the plaintiff's quarry? It does not make the use or occupation of it more convenient. It does not in any way affect the use or occupation; it simply tends indirectly to increase its value, by excluding a competitor from the market for its products. If it be asked what is the difference in principle between an easement to have land unbuilt upon, such as was recognized in Brooks v. Reynolds, 106 Mass. 311, and an easement to have a quarry left unopened, the answer is, that, whether a difference of degree or of kind, the distinction is plain between a grant or covenant that looks to direct physical advantage in the occupation of the dominant estate, such as light and air, and one which only concerns it in the indirect way which we have mentioned. The scope of the covenant and the circumstances show that it is not directed to the quiet enjoyment of the dominant land.

"Again, this covenant illustrates the further meaning of the rule against unusual incidents. If it is of a nature to be attached to land, as the plaintiff contends, it creates an easement of monopoly—an easement not to be competed with—and in that interest alone a right to prohibit an owner from exercising the usual incidents of property. It is true that a man could accomplish the same results by buying the whole land, and regulating production. But it does not follow, because you can do a thing in one way, that you can do it in all; and we think that if this covenant were regarded as one which bound all subsequent owners of the land to keep its products out of commerce, there would be much greater difficulty in sustaining its validity than if it should be treated as merely personal in its burden."

Hence a covenant in a deed that the grantee shall, in consideration of the conveyance, support the grantor or some other person, is a purely personal covenant. Martin v. Martin, 44 Kan. 295; Harkins v. Doran (Pa. 1888), 15 Atl. Rep. 928; Bresnahan v. Bresnahan, 46 Wis. 385; Divan v. Loomis, 68 Wis. 150. But see Goudy v. Goudy, Wright (Ohio) 410.

The right to have such a conveyance rescinded in equity on account of a breach of the covenant is based on the failure of consideration only, not on any effect of the covenant to bind the land. See Bogle v. Bogle, 41 Wis. 209.

Similarly a covenant to pay, as part of the consideration for a grant of real estate, certain judgments recovered against the grantor, is a personal covenant merely, and does not run with the land. Wells v. Benton, 108 Ind. 585.

A contract to furnish water to the owner of certain land and his successors, though expressly declared by the instrument itself to be a real covenant, has been held not to be so, though, under California Civ. Code, § 2884, it gave rise to a lien on the land. Fresno Canal etc. Co. v. Rowell, 80 Cal. 114; Fresno Canal etc. Co. v. Dunbar, 80 Cal. 530.

A mutual covenant by several owners of mills to erect and use wheels of a certain construction and limited power, does not run with the land of any of them, because there is no privity of estate between them. Hurd v. Curtis, 19 Pick. (Mass.) 457.

An agreement by the owner of land through which a levee has been built, to maintain his part and to release the water company from liability for damages from high water, does not run with the land as the company have no estate or interest therein, and hence a judicial sale of their property does not operate as an assignment of the agreement. Indianapolis Water Co. v. Nulte, 126 Ind. 373. See also Thomas v. Haywood, L. R., 4 Ex. 311; Taylor v. Owen, 2 Blackf. (Ind.) 301; Glenn v. Canby, 24 Md. 127; Brewer v. Mar- shall, 19 N. J. Eq. 537; 97 Am. Dec. 679; Nesbit v. Nesbit, Cam. & N. (N. Car.) 324; Nesbit v. Brown, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 30; Morse v. Garner, 1 Strobh. (S. Car.) 514; 47 Am. Dec. 565.

Building Restrictions.—These, and agreements as to the use of property, may, if properly expressed, be servitudes or incumbrances on the property bound, and easements appurtenant to the property benefited, running with the land in both cases.

Thus a covenant in a deed of real estate, that no improvement inferior to certain specified requirements shall be built on certain other lots retained by the grantors, if expressed to bind their heirs and assigns, is binding on those lots. Halle v. Newbold, 69 Md. 265.

So of a restrictive covenant (expressed in words of condition), that no part of the land or buildings conveyed shall ever be used as a tavern. Clement v. Burtis, 121 N. Y. 708.

A change in the conditions of a neighborhood, making it unprofitable to use the property except in violation of such restrictions, does not affect the binding character of such a covenant. Amerman v. Deane, 57 N. Y. Super. Ct. 175.

So a provision in a deed for a lot of ground and a right of way, that the lane is not to be incumbered or built upon by either party, is a covenant with both parties, running with the land and the fact that certain owners of the premises for which the right of way was reserved may have violated the covenant does not relieve their successors from keeping it. Dexter v. Beard, 53 Hun (N. Y.) 638.

A restrictive covenant, not to erect any building or carry on any trade or business which may be dangerous, injurious, or offensive to the neighboring inhabitants, runs with the land and is broken by the maintaining a hospital where cases of contagious disease may exist. Tod-Heatly v. Benham, L. R., 40 Ch. D. 80; Gilford v. Babies' Hospital, 21 Abb., N. Cts. (N. Y.) 159.

Restrictive covenants have been held to bind the lands retained by the covenantor, when sold to other parties, even though the deeds to such parties do not themselves contain any restrictive covenants. Nottingham Patent Brick etc. Co. v. Butler, L. R., 15 Q. B. Div. 261; 16 Q. B. D. 778.

And the benefit of such covenants has also been held to pass to a purchaser of the land benefited, even though his own deed contains no such restrictive covenant. Collins v. Castle, L. R., 36 Ch. Div. 243.

Where the owner of land, bound by a building-restriction covenant, mortgages a part without imposing any express restriction, and the premises are sold on foreclosure, he cannot himself, in behalf of his remaining property, enforce the covenant against the purchasers, though they bought with notice. King v. Dickeson, L. R., 40 Ch. D. 596.

If a sale by auction of property described as "business premises" be made without notice of restrictive covenants as to the business to be carried on, the bidder cannot be required to accept the property. In re Davis v. Cavey, L. R., 40 Ch. D. 601.

The same doctrine was applied to contracts of sale in Nottingham Patent Brick etc. Co. v. Butler, L. R., 16 Q. B. D. 778; In re Ebsworth, L. R., 42 Ch. D. 23; Mackenzie v. Childers, L. R., 43 Ch. D. 265.

But if the purchaser obtains substantially what he bargained for, the contract will be enforced, notwithstanding a restrictive covenant. In re Fawcett & Holmes, L. R., 42 Ch. D. 150.

Where the covenant was "not to use, exercise, carry on, or permit, or suffer [the premises] to be occupied by any person who shall carry on a noisome or offensive trade," it was held that specific performance of the latter part could not be enforced. The premises having been sublet, with a similar covenant, the under-tenant exhibited two lions and a black man on the premises, and an injunction was granted against both tenant and sub-tenant on the ground of the use of the word "suffer," and that the tenant, having the power to restrain the under-tenant and not having done so, had broken the covenant. On appeal, however, the injunction was dismissed as against the tenant, because he could not be enjoined for failing to bring an injunction against the under-tenant. Hall v. Erwin, L. R., 37 Ch. D. 74.

Effect of Restriction Without Express Covenant.—Even where building restrictions are not the subject of what can strictly be called a covenant, compliance with them may be enforced in equity in order to carry out the full intent of the original conveyance. Duke of Bedford v. Trustees of British Museum, 2 My. & K. 552; Renals v. Cowlishaw, L. R., 9 Ch. D.

125; 11 Ch. D. 886; Spicer v. Martin, L. R., 14 App. Cas. 23.

In Mackenzie v. Childers, L. R., 43 Ch. Div. 265, an estate was laid out in building lots, and the deed executed by the vendors and each of the purchasers of the lots sold contained a recital that it was intended that all future purchasers of lots should execute the deed and be bound by its stipulations, and it was expressed in the same deed that each purchaser covenanted with the vendors and the other purchasers to conform to certain building restrictions, but there was no express covenant to the like effect by the vendors. After some years the portion of the estate remaining unsold was put up for sale in lots other than those originally laid out, and under conditions not in accord with the stipulations of the deed. An injunction from selling except upon the stipulations of the deed was granted, on the ground that the deed operated as a covenant by the vendors not to authorize the use of any unsold lots in a manner inconsistent with the deed, and that, even were this otherwise, the vendors were bound by a contract implied from the whole transaction, restricting them from dealing with the land in violation of the original building scheme.

Party Walls.—A recorded agreement between owners of adjacent lots that a party wall should be erected by one of them creates a mutual or cross-easement in favor of each in the lot of the other, and hence a covenant that if one of the parties, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns should at any time make use of the wall, he or they should pay to the other party one-half the cost of the wall, runs with the former's land because it concerns the easement in that land acquired by the owner of the adjacent property in the shape of the right to erect and use the party wall. Conduitt v. Ross, 102 Ind. 166; Savage v. Mason, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 500; Keteltas v. Penfold, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 122; Guentzer v. Juch, 51 Hun (N. Y.) 397. (In this case the agreement was expressly stated to be a covenant running with the land.)

In Bloch v. Isham, 28 Ind. 37, and Conduitt v. Ross, 102 Ind. 166, the right to receive payment for a party-wall when used was held to be personal only, the agreement being for payment to the covenantee, without mention of his assigns, but the contrary seems to have been held in Burlock v. Peck, 2 Duer (N. Y.) 90. In Weyman v.

of the covenantee the covenant must itself have some relation.¹

Ringold, 1 Bradf. (N. Y.) 52, the assigns were mentioned, but the covenant was held to run with the land in any event. Nalle v. Paggi (Tex. 1888), 9 S. W. Rep. 205, involved a parol promise only, incapable of running with the land.

Thus a covenant by a grantor to maintain a sufficient line fence between the premises granted and adjoining property of his own, imposed an easement in favor of the grantee upon such adjoining property, and ran with the land. Hazlett v. Sinclair, 76 Ind. 489.

Streets and Ways.—A description of land conveyed, as "bounded by a way or street now staked out," is a covenant to open the street, binding subsequent purchasers from the grantor. Thomas v. Pool, 7 Gray (Mass.) 83.

Where a wagon road is forever excepted from a grant, this imposes a servitude on the land through which it passes, in favor of adjoining land, and is regarded as a real covenant, running with the land, that such road shall always remain open. Gibson v. Porter, (Ky. 1891), 15 S. W. Rep. 871.

A covenant in a deed, that the amount of the consideration money for a strip of land adjoining the lot conveyed should go to the grantee in the deed whenever such strip should be condemned in order to widen a street, has been held to run with the lot conveyed, the grantee having also the use of the strip for street purposes. Cincinnati v. Springer (Ohio), 23 Wkly. Law Bul. 250.

Water Rights.—Where a riparian owner contributed so much of his lands, dam, ditch, etc., as was necessary for the erection and enjoyment of a new water privilege, to be owned jointly by himself and two others, his covenant for himself, his heirs and assigns to keep in repair and to rebuild, if necessary, the dam and ditch at his and their sole expense, runs with the land as it is connected with the subject of the grant (i. e., the interest in the lands, dam, etc., essential to the enjoyment of the water privilege) and enters into its value. Nye v. Hoyle, 120 N. Y. 195.

To the same effect, Wooliscroft v. Norton, 15 Wis. 198.

And where land was conveyed upon condition that one-nineteenth part of the expense of repairing a certain dam and canal should be a permanent charge upon it, and the grantee covenanted to the same effect, such covenant was held to run with the land. Howard Mfg. Co. v. Water Lot Co., 53 Ga. 689.

Rights of Way, etc.—The various covenants made by railroad companies, in regard to the use of land or rights of way granted to them, run not only with the land, if any, which they benefit, but also with the land or incorporeal real estate upon which their burden is imposed.

Of such sort are covenants to erect buildings on the land conveyed; to permit the grantor to cultivate so much of the ground covered by the right of way as is not used by the grantee; to prohibit the sale of liquor on the premises; to establish a flag-station on the land, and to stop trains there. These bind the successor of the railroad company making it. Gilmer v. Mobile etc. R. Co., 79 Ala. 569; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Gilmer, 85 Ala. 422; 58 Am. Rep. 623.

So of a covenant to keep the right of way fenced, or to maintain a ditch along it. Midland R. Co. v. Fisher, 125 Ind. 19; Poage v. Wabash etc. R. Co., 24 Mo. App. 199.

This is true even though the language used is not that of a covenant by the grantee, but of a stipulation by the grantor, provided an intention to charge the land be shown. Kentucky Cent. R. Co. v. Kenney, 82 Ky. 154.

A condition in a deed of land to be used as a railroad station, that an opening should always be maintained into the land conveyed, for the convenient access of passengers and baggage, opposite a certain hotel, is a covenant running with the land conveyed. Avery v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 106 N. Y. 142. But the performance of such a covenant does not require the permanent maintenance of the same opening, and the company can impose reasonable regulations on the use of the way reserved, this being provided in the deed. Avery v. New York Cent. etc. R. Co., 121 N. Y. 31.

1. Wells v. Benton, 108 Ind. 585.

One entitled to the benefit of covenants running with the land can sue simultaneously all his covenantors, mediate and immediate,¹ but, as he can have but one satisfaction of his claim, a covenantor may plead a judgment recovered against and paid by him in bar of an action by a subsequent covenantor who has himself also paid a judgment recovered against him on a covenant for the same matter, even if the latter judgment be for a larger amount.² One who has parted with all his interest in the land, however, cannot sue any of his covenantors unless a judgment has been paid by him for a breach for which they are also liable on their covenants.³

If the land with which covenants run be divided, the owners of the different portions may sue separately on the covenants, the benefit being apportioned;⁴ and the same rule holds as to the liability of the assignees of part interest in a lease.⁵

1. King v. Kerr, 5 Ohio 154; 22 Am. Dec. 777; Foot v. Burnet, 10 Ohio 317.

2. Wilson v. Taylor, 9 Ohio St. 595; 75 Am. Dec. 488.

3. Booth v. Starr, 1 Conn. 244; 6 Am. Dec. 233, and Withy v. Mumford, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 137, where it was held, in opposition to the prior case of Kane v. Sanger, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 89, that though the right of action of an intermediate covenantee existed independently of his liability to subsequent purchasers, yet the former could not be enforced till the latter had been established, and further that a purchaser's acceptance of covenants from his own vendor did not affect his rights against prior covenantors.

These cases have been followed in Redwine v. Brown, 10 Ga. 311; Thompson v. Shattuck, 2 Met. (Mass.) 615; Wheeler v. Sohler, 3 Cush. Mass. 222; Chase v. Weston, 12 N. H. 413; Suydam v. Jones, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 184; 25 Am. Dec. 552; Baxter v. Ryerss, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 283; Herrin v. McIntyre, 1 Hawks (N. Car.) 410; Markland v. Crump, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 94; 27 Am. Dec. 230; Wilson v. Taylor, 9 Ohio St. 595; 75 Am. Dec. 488; De Chaumont v. Forsythe, 2 P. & W. (Pa.) 507; Jones v. Richmond (Va. 1891), 13 S. E. Rep. 414; Williams v. Wetherbee, 1 Aik. (Vt.) 239.

An action by an intermediate covenantee who has not himself paid a judgment cannot be brought even for the benefit of his grantee. Fairbrother v. Griffin, 10 Me. 91.

4. Sugd. Vend. (14th ed.) 486; Twynam v. Pickard, 2 B. & Ald. 105; Schofield v. Iowa Homestead Co., 32 Iowa 317; 7 Am. Rep. 197; Dougherty v. Duvall, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 58; White v. Whitney, 3 Met. (Mass.) 87; Hunt v. Amidon, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 345; 40 Am. Dec. 283; Van Horne v. Crain, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 455; Astor v. Miller, 2 Paige (N. Y.) 68; McClure v. Gamble, 27 Pa. St. 288; Dickenson v. Hoomes, 8 Gratt. (Va.) 353; Fields v. Squires, Deady (U. S.) 366.

The different owners may, however, join in one action. Paul v. Witman, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 409.

Where the estate is divided, as where a term of years is carved out of it, it was held in West London R. Co. v. London etc. R. Co., 11 C. B. 354, to be unsettled whether an assignee of the estate for a term of years could sue on a covenant running with the land or not. Where the division is into an estate for life with remainder in fee, and the breach affects the whole inheritance, it would seem that in England the owner of each portion can sue. Noble v. Cass, 2 Sim. 343. But the contrary was held in McClure v. Gamble, 27 Pa. St. 288.

In Badeley v. Vigurs, 4 E. & B. 81, it was held that the owners of the reversion of two-thirds of an estate could sue for their proportionate share of the damage caused by a breach of covenant, the other third having coalesced with a part interest in an existing term of years.

5. Hare v. Cator, Cowp. 766; Stevenson v. Lambard, 2 East 575;

In England, all covenants for title are regarded as covenants in futuro, not finally broken until a substantial breach occurs;¹ whereas in most of the United States the covenants for seisin and for right to convey are held to be in præsenti merely—covenants that a particular state of facts exists at the time they are made—and hence broken then, if broken at all.² This doctrine Merceron v. Dowson, 5 B. & C. 479; Curtis v. Spitty, 1 Bing. N. Cas. 756.

1. Lougher v. Williams, 2 Lev. 92; Sachervell v. Froggatt, 2 Saund. 367; Kingdom v. Nottle, 1 M. & S. 355; King v. Jones, 5 Taunt. 418. The latter case involved a covenant for further assurance, but practically the same question was presented, the technical breach and the real damage not occurring simultaneously.

These cases have been followed in Platt v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 11 Ont. 246.

The various reasons suggested as a basis for the English doctrine are discussed in Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), §§ 202-204, 207-209. It is enough to state here that it is the only doctrine which carries out the object which the covenants were intended to fulfill, and that the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, 44 and 45 Vict., ch. 14, which introduced short forms of deeds with implied covenants for title, provided that the latter should run with the land under all circumstances.

2. Covenants Broken as Soon as Made.—

The leading case on the doctrine stated in the text is Greenby v. Wilcocks, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 1, decided in 1806. The defendant had conveyed land with covenants for seisin, for good right to convey, and of warranty, to one under whom the plaintiff claimed by mesne conveyances, and the latter, being evicted by title paramount, sued in covenant. The declaration was defective as to the covenant of warranty, the eviction not being alleged to be under lawful title (see supra, this title, Covenant of Warranty); and as to the other covenants, the majority held that, the declaration having averred that there was a total defect of title when the deed was made, these covenants were then broken, and incapable of assignment by the covenantee, there being no difference after the breach between them and ordinary choses in action.

In Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 433, 3 Am. Dec. 61, also the court by Parsons C. J., said: "When the breaches assigned to the first and third covenants [for seisin and for right to convey] are found for the plaintiff, it then appears that those covenants were broken as soon as the deed was executed; that no estate or interest passed by the conveyance; and that the plaintiff's entry, although under color of it, was tortious, and a trespass or disseisin to the owner. Hence it is clear that an action for the breach of these covenants cannot be maintained by an assignee of the purchaser, because no estate passed, to which these covenants could be annexed, and because, being in fact broken before any assignment could be made, they were choses in action and not assignable."

The doctrine laid down in these cases has been generally followed in the United States. Logan v. Moulder, 1 Ark. 313; 33 Am. Dec. 338; Ross v. Turner, 7 Ark. 132; 44 Am. Dec. 531; Pate v. Mitchell, 23 Ark. 590; 79 Am. Dec. 114; Hendricks v. Keesse, 32 Ark. 714; Lawrence v. Montgomery, 37 Cal. 188; Salmon v. Vallejo, 41 Cal. 481; Mitchell v. Warner, 5 Conn. 497; Davis v. Lyman, 6 Conn. 249; Hartford etc. Ore Co. v. Miller, 41 Conn. 112; Brady v. Spurck, 27 Ill. 482; Jones v. Warner, 81 Ill. 343; Dale v. Shively, 8 Kan. 276; Scoffins v. Grandstaff, 12 Kan. 467; South v. Hoy, 3 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 94; Rice v. Spottswood, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 40; 17 Am. Dec. 115; Pence v. Duvall, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 48; Bickford v. Page, 2 Mass. 455; Prescott v. Trueman, 4 Mass. 627; 3 Am. Dec. 249; Wheelock v. Thayer, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 68; Thayer v. Clemence, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 490; Clark v. Swift, 3 Met. (Mass.) 390; Smith v. Lloyd, 29 Mich. 382; Sherwood v. Landon, 57 Mich. 219; Chapman v. Kimball, 7 Neb. 399; Davidson v. Cox, 10 Neb. 150; Real v. Hollister, 20 Neb. 112; Parker v. Brown, 15 N. H. 176; Morrison v. Underwood, 20 N. H. 369; Smith v. Jeffs, 44 N. H. 482; Dickey v. Weston, 61 N. H. 23; Lot v. Thomas, 2 N. J. L. 386; Chapman v. Holmes, 10 N. J. L. 20; Garrison v. Sanford, 12 N. J. L. 261; Carter v. Denman, 23 N. J. L.

does not prevail in Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin,¹ 260; Hamilton v. Wilson, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 72; 4 Am. Dec. 253; Townsend v. Morris, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 123; Beddoe v. Wadsworth, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 120; M'Carty v. Leggett, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 134; Blydenburgh v. Cotheal, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 197; Coit v. McReynolds, 2 Robt. (N. Y.) 655; Mygatt v. Coe, 124 N. Y. 212; Wilson v. Forbes, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 30; Grist v. Hodges, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 200; Kenney v. Norton, 10 Heisk. (Tenn.) 384; Westrope v. Chambers, 51 Tex. 178; Williams v. Wetherbee, 1 Aik. (Vt.) 233; Garfield v. Williams, 2 Vt. 327; Pierce v. Johnson, 4 Vt. 253; Richardson v. Dorr, 5 Vt. 9; Potter v. Taylor, 6 Vt. 676; Clement v. Bank of Rutland, 61 Vt. 298.

This doctrine, which worked great hardship in many cases, was adhered to in obedience to what was supposed to be the common law rule as enforced in Lucy v. Levington, 2 Lev. 26; 1 Vent. 175; 2 Keb. 831; and Lewes v. Ridge, Cro. Eliz. 863. But as pointed out by Mr. Rawle (Covenants, 5th ed., § 205), these two cases merely decided that covenants when broken ceased to run with the land.

In California (Dering's Civ. Code, §§ 1460-1463) and North Dakota (Comp. Laws, §§ 3344-6) it is provided by statute that "every covenant . . . which is made for the direct benefit of the property, or some part of it then in existence," runs with the land; and this section is further stated to include "covenants of warranty, for quiet enjoyment, and for further assurances, and for the payment of rent and taxes or assessments." As the covenant for seisin is not mentioned it has been held to be broken as soon as made. Bowne v. Wolcott (N. Dak. 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 426. In California, as already stated, this is the rule irrespective of the statute.

The doctrine of covenants "broken as soon as made" involves some practical difficulties in the enforcement of the liability on such covenants. They clearly do not come within the general rule, stated supra in the text, p. 1005, that one who has parted with all his interest cannot sue unless he has himself paid a judgment on account of the breach, as that rule applies only to covenants running with the land.

In Davis v. Lyman, 6 Conn. 249, one who had parted with all his interest was allowed substantial damages on the covenant against incumbrances, though he had paid nothing in extinguishment of the incumbrance; and in Cornell v. Jackson, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 506, a similar recovery was had upon a covenant for seisin. In Wyman v. Ballard, 12 Mass. 304, nominal damages only were allowed on a covenant against incumbrances, both because the covenantee had as yet paid nothing on account of the incumbrance and because the covenantor would be still liable to the ultimate grantee on the covenant of warranty, which did run with the land.

This doctrine has sometimes been applied to other covenants. Thus it was said in Salmon v. Vallejo, 41 Cal. 481, that a covenant that the tract conveyed included a specified quantity of land was of that sort, because the land "either did or did not contain the stipulated quantity, and the fact could not be changed by anything which subsequently transpired . . . If the deficiency could not be ascertained except by an official survey under the degree of confirmation, that fact might possibly prevent the Statute of Limitations from running . . . but the nature of the covenant remains the same."

Where the doctrine of "covenants broken as soon as made" prevails, these covenants are sometimes said to be not real, but personal. This is not accurate. A real covenant is such on account of the relation of the parties to the land which it concerns; the fact that after breach it ceases to run with the land does not take away its character as a real covenant; and the time when the breach occurs is immaterial. Kellogg v. Malin, 62 Mo. 429; Lot v. Thomas, 2 N. J. L. 297; Carter v. Denman, 23 N. J. L. 260; Pittsburg v. Mitchell, 5 Wis. 17.

1. Martin v. Baker, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 232; Coleman v. Lyman, 42 Ind. 289; Wilson v. Peelle, 78 Ind. 384; Wright v. Nipple, 92 Ind. 310 (Bottomf v. Smith, 7 Ind. 673, and Bethell v. Bethell, 54 Ind. 428; 23 Am. Rep. 650, are not really in conflict with these cases, and must be distinguished); Schofield v. Iowa Homestead Co., 32 Iowa 317; 7 Am. Rep. 197; Knadler v. Sharp, 36 Iowa 232; Boon v. McHenry, 55 Iowa nor practically in Minnesota,¹ while it has been set aside by statute in Colorado and Maine,² and indirectly in Minnesota and Ohio.³ In many States the same doctrine has been also applied to covenants against incumbrances,⁴ but is not as generally accepted

202; Dickson v. Desire, 23 Mo. 162; Magwire v. Riffin, 44 Mo. 512; Allen v. Kennedy, 91 Mo. 324; Walker v. Deaver, 5 Mo. App. 147; White v. Stevens, 13 Mo. App. 240; Hall v. Scott Co., 2 McCrary (U. S.) 356; Schnelle Lumber Co. v. Barlow, 34 Fed. Rep. 853; Backus v. McCoy, 3 Ohio 216; 17 Am. Dec. 585; Foot v. Barnett, 10 Ohio 327; Devore v. Sunderland, 17 Ohio 60; Stites v. Hobbs, 2 Disney (Ohio) 573; Mecklem v. Blake, 22 Wis. 495; 82 Am. Dec. 707 (overruling Pittsburg v. Mitchell, 5 Wis. 17); Eaton v. Lyman, 24 Wis. 438; 26 Wis. 61; 28 Wis. 324; 30 Wis. 41; 33 Wis. 34.

In Chambers v. Smith, 23 Mo. 179, it was held that if there be a total defect of title, and no possession accompanies the deed, the covenant for seisin is broken as soon as made, but not if the title be defeasible merely, "an estate in fact although not in law," and the grantee takes possession. This was followed in Bethell v. Bethell, 54 Ind. 428; 23 Am. Rep. 650, on the ground of lex loci contractus.

1. In Minnesota all choses in action in the nature of property may be assigned. Hence a conveyance is held to pass the right of action on a covenant for seisin, though broken as soon as made, to an assignee of the grantee, and such assignment being always implied, unless a contrary intention appear. Kimball v. Bryant, 25 Minn. 496. If there be no conveyance, the right of action passes to the covenantor's personal representatives at his death. Lowry v. Tilly, 31 Minn. 509.

2. Colorado Rev. Stats. 1883, § 207; Maine Rev. Stats. 1884, ch. 82, § 15. See Wilson v. Widenham, 51 Me. 566; Littlefield v. Pinkham, 72 Me. 369. In Hacker v. Storer, 8 Me. 228, and Heath v. Whidden, 24 Me. 383, the covenant for seisin had been held to be broken as soon as made.

3. In Ohio a purchaser of real estate is entitled to sue upon a covenant for seisin given to any predecessor in the chain of title, under the provision in the code requiring actions to be brought in the name of the real party in interest. Hall v. Plaine, 14 Ohio St. 417.

4. See the cases (other than those of Illinois, New York and Vermont) cited supra in regard to the covenant for seisin, to which list may be added Tuffs v. Adams, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 549; Whitney v. Dinsmore, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 128; Osborne v. Atkins, 6 Gray (Mass.) 424; (in Stinson v. Sumner, 9 Mass. 143, and some other early cases, the ruling was the other way;) Davenport v. Davenport, 52 Mich. 587.

In Clark v. Swift, 3 Met. (Mass.) 390, the court by Wilde, J., said obiter that a covenant against incumbrances was assignable as a chose in action, and could be sued upon by an assignee in the name of his covenantor unless all right of action were barred by the Statute of Limitations. Mr. Rawle suggests, however (Covenants, 5th ed., § 227), that the damage not having been incurred by the assignor, could not be properly set forth as required in pleading on this covenant.

In Post v. Campau, 42 Mich. 97, Cooley, J., suggested a distinction between such an incumbrance as an easement, which immediately affects the title and causes a present damage, and an incumbrance of the nature of a money charge, stating that in the former case the covenant against incumbrances did not run with the land, while in the latter case it "must attach itself to the title conveyed and accompany it, not only for the protection of the covenantor, but for the protection of any of his assigns whom the incumbrance may eventually damnify." The decision actually reached was that the covenant before the court was not the ordinary covenant against incumbrances, but (being made so the grantee, his heirs and assigns, to the effect that the grantors had not done etc. any act etc. "whereby the premises hereby granted or any part thereof is, are, or shall or may be charged or encumbered in title or estate or otherwise") "looks to the future and promises indemnity for damages that may at any time in the future result from the breach."

In Post v. Jillette, 9 Biss. (U. S.) 296, it was held in the circuit court for Northern Illinois that a covenant against incumbrances did not run with as in the case of the covenant for seisin.¹ In the case of the other covenants the doctrine is necessarily inapplicable.²

IV. RELEASE OF REAL COVENANTS.—The covenantor may, at any time before breach, be released by the covenantee or his assignee from liability on the covenant, which release, if properly made, will be valid against assignees.³ But one who has parted with the land as a burden, i. e. that where the covenant occurred in a mortgage it did not bind the assignee of the equity of redemption. As the estate taken by this assignee was already bound by the incumbrance, and the mortgagee was not called upon to pay it off in the first instance, the decision may have been a fair one, but it seems to rest on the doctrine that the covenant against incumbrances is broken as soon as made, which doctrine does not prevail in Illinois. See next note.

1. Covenants against incumbrances have been held to run with the land in Richard v. Bent, 59 Ill. 38; 14 Am. Rep. 1; Knadler v. Sharp, 36 Iowa 232; Footo v. Burnet, 10 Ohio 332; M'Crady v. Brisbane, 1 Nott & M. (S. Car.) 104; 9 Am. Dec. 676; Cole v. Kimball, 52 Va. 639.

In New York it is held to do so under New York Rev. Code, § 449, providing for the bringing of all actions in the name of the real party in interest. Colby v. Osgood, 29 Barb. (N. Y.) 339; Roberts v. Levy, 3 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 311; Ernst v. Parsons, 54 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 163; Andrews v. Appel, 22 Hun (N. Y.) 429.

In Georgia (Rev. Stats. 1882, § 2702), covenants against incumbrances run with the land by statute.

In one sense the covenant against incumbrances may truly be said to be broken as soon as made, for the very existence of an incumbrance is a breach (INCUMBRANCES, vol. 10, p. 361; Rawle, Covenants, 5th ed., § 77); but until actual loss, eviction, or its equivalent, occurs, only nominal damages are recoverable, and the covenant is therefore reasonably held to run with the land. Dickson v. Desire, 23 Mo. 163; Walker v. Deaver, 79 Mo. 675; Taylor v. Priest, 21 Mo. App. 685.

2. Butler v. Barnes (Conn. 1891), 21 Atl. Rep. 41; Fairbrother v. Griffin, 10 Me. 91; Wyman v. Ballard, 12 Mass. 304; Flaniken v. Neal, 67 Tex. 629; Williams v. Wetherbee, 1 Aik. (Vt.) 233; Tillotson v. Prichard, 60 Vt. 94.

One who takes a deed without covenants can sue on the covenant of warranty in the deed to his grantor. Thomas v. Bland (Ky.), 14 S. W. Rep. 955.

These covenants pass with the estate in cases of involuntary alienation, as by a sheriff's sale. Redwine v. Brown, 10 Ga. 311; White v. Whitney, 3 Met. (Mass.) 81; White v. Presly, 54 Miss. 313; Fletcher v. Chamberlin, 61 N. H. 438; Carter v. Denman, 23 N. J. L. 270; Town v. Needham, 3 Paige (N. Y.) 546; Lewis v. Cook, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 196; Markland v. Crump, 1 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 94; 27 Am. Dec. 230; M'Crady v. Brisbane, 1 Nott & M. (S. Car.) 104; 9 Am. Dec. 676.

3. White v. Furtzwangler, 81 Ga. 66.

In England such release can only be effected by an instrument of equal solemnity with that creating it, on the principle of quo modo ligatur eodem modo dissolvitur. Rogers v. Payne, 2 Wils. 376; Kaye v. Waghorne, 1 Taunt. 428; Cordwint v. Hunt, 8 Taunt. 596; Harris v. Goodwind, 2 M. & G. 405; West v. Blakeway, 2 M. & G. 729; May v. Taylor, 6 M. & G. 262, n. (a).

But in America it is held that though the covenant itself cannot be dissolved by matter in pais or by parol the rights under it can be released or varied by these means. Jenks v. Robertson, 2 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 255; affd. 58 N. Y. 621. Hence another deed between the parties, though not a technical release of covenants in a former deed, may operate as such. Drury v. Tremont Imp. Co., 13 Allen (Mass.) 168.

Hence where notes and a mortgage were given in payment for a conveyance, with covenant of warranty, of land bound by the lien of a judgment, and the notes and mortgage were afterward surrendered and cancelled, on the covenantee's assuming the judgment, this was held to operate as a release of the covenant pro tanto, the covenantee's assignee having notice of the transaction. Hardin v. Clark (S. Car. 1890), 11 S. E. Rep. 304.

Where the grantee in a deed cove-all his interest in the land cannot make such a release as against his own grantee or those claiming under him.¹ If the identical estate conveyed by a covenantor reverts in him, this operates to extinguish his covenants.²

As a real covenant ceases to run with the land after breach, it follows that the release of a covenant which is held to be broken as soon as made, must bind all assignees even without notice.³

V. LIMITATION OF REAL COVENANTS.—Where the first of several distinct covenants contained in the same instrument, and having the same object, is restricted, the restriction is held to apply to all.⁴ But where the first covenant is general it is not limited by a subsequent restricted covenant,⁵ unless an intention to restrain nanted to pay the incumbrances on the premises conveyed, and afterward united with his grantor in a quit-claim deed to a third person, with a condition for the payment of incumbrances by him, the first grantee was released from his covenant. Duraherr v. Rau (Supreme Ct.), 15 N. Y. Supp. 344.

A covenant of warranty or against incumbrances may be released pro tanto by a parol agreement of the covenantee to discharge a particular incumbrance. Bolles v. Beach, 22 N. J. L. 680; 53 Am. Dec. 263.

1. The vested rights of an owner of property, under a covenant against certain erections by his neighbor, cannot be waived or impaired by the acts of their common grantor. Dubois v. Darling, 44 N. Y. Super. Ct. 436.

In America a release of covenants must be recorded in order to bind subsequent purchasers without notice. Field v. Snell, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 50; Susquehanna Coal Co. v. Quick, 61 Pa. St. 339. Article in 11 Am. L. Reg. 265, 266.

There is a dictum to the contrary in Littlefield v. Getchell, 32 Me. 392.

A subsequent purchaser is not affected by secret equities between the parties to a covenant running with the land. Illinois Land etc. Co. v. Bonner, 91 Ill. 114; Sage v. Jones, 47 Ind. 122; Hunt v. Orwig, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 84; 66 Am. Dec. 144; Brown v. Staples, 28 Me. 497; 48 Am. Dec. 504; Alexander v. Schreiber, 13 Mo. 271; Suydam v. Jones, 10 Wend. (N.Y.) 180; 25 Am. Dec. 552; Greenvault v. Davis, 4 Hill (N.Y.) 643; Kellogg v. Wood, 4 Paige (N.Y.) 616.

2. Brown v. Metz, 33 Ill. 339; 85 Am. Dec. 277; Silverman v. Loomis, 104 Ill. 137; Birney v. Haun, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 322; 13 Am. Dec. 167; Hobbs v. King, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 139.

3. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 228.

4. In such a case the covenantor is held to have clearly indicated in the first covenant an intention to restrict his liability in regard to the matter to which the covenants refer and that he cannot have intended in the subsequent covenants to establish an unrestricted liability. Browning v. Wright, 2 B. & P. 13; Food v. Wilson, 8 Taunt. 543; Stennard v. Forbes, 6 Ad. & E. 572; Nind v. Marshall, 1 Brod. & Bing. 319; Davis v. Lyman, 6 Conn. 252; Whallon v. Kauffman, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 98; Bricker v. Bricker, 11 Ohio St. 240.

But if the covenants be not so connected together as to necessarily refer to the same general object, as where one covenant refers to seisin exclusively, and another only to quiet enjoyment or incumbrances, the restriction of the first has no effect on those that follow it. Howell v. Richards, 11 East 633; Young v. Raincock, 7 C. B. 310; Duvall v. Craig, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 45.

Thus where, on the assignment of a lease, the assignee covenanted to pay the original lessors the rent reserved as long as he should be in possession, and to indemnify the assignor as to such rent, the assignee was held bound by the covenant of indemnity after he had himself assigned the lease and had ceased to be in possession. Crossfield v. Morrison, 7 C. B. 286.

Where a mortgage was excepted from the covenant against incumbrances in a deed, but not from the covenant of warranty, the effect of the exception was confined to the former covenant only. Estabrook v. Smith, 6 Gray (Mass.) 572; 66 Am. Dec. 445. But see Jackson v. Hoffman, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 271; Bricker v. Bricker, 11 Ohio St. 240.

5. Gainsford v. Griffith, 1 Saund. 58;

it be clearly indicated by the language used, or by the inconsistent nature of the covenants unless restricted,¹ nor does such general covenant enlarge the subsequent covenant.²

Where the objects of the various covenants are not the same, even though they concern the same land, they do not restrict each other's operation.³

The operation of a general covenant is always restricted to the estate or interest intended to be conveyed.⁴

VI. PARTIES LIABLE UPON REAL COVENANTS.—An action at law on a real covenant is local, and must be brought in a court having jurisdiction over the land with which the covenant runs,⁵ except where the distinction between local and transitory actions has been modified by statute.⁶ The liability upon an express covenant (as also the benefit of it) is joint or several according as the language used may indicate.⁷

Smith v. Compton, 3 B. & Ad. 189; Morrison v. Morrison, 38 Iowa 73; Phelps v. Decker, 10 Mass. 267; Cornell v. Jackson, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 506; Attorney Gen'l v. Parmort, 5 Paige (N. Y.) 620; Bender v. Fromberger, 4 Dall. (Pa.) 440; Peters v. Grubb, 21 Pa. St. 460; Rowe v. Heath, 23 Tex. 619.

1. Dunn v. Dunn, 3 Colo. 510; Cole v. Hawes, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 203.

2. Sugd. Vendors (14th ed.) 605, where four propositions in regard to the effect of general and limited covenants upon each other, when contained in the same instrument, are laid down as deduced from the authorities.

3. Hughes v. Bennet, Cro. Car. 495; Kean v. Strong, 9 Ir. L. 74.

4. Clairickard v. Sidney, Hob. 273; Delmer v. McCabe, 14 Ir. L. (N. S.) 377; Corbin v. Healy, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 514; Knickerbocker v. Killmore, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 106.

If the grant be of a life estate a covenant of warranty to the grantee and his heirs is restricted to the life estate. Adams v. Ross, 30 N. J. L. 505; 82 Am. Dec. 237; Roberts v. Forsythe, 3 Dev. (N. Car.) 26; Snell v. Young, 3 Ired. (N. Car.) 379.

Where a conveyance is expressed to be of the grantor's right, title and interest only, or other restrictive language is used, less restricted or general covenants for title apply only to the right or estate conveyed and cannot enlarge it. Kimball v. Semple, 25 Cal. 440; McNear v. McComber, 18 Iowa 14; Young v. Clippinger, 14 Kan. 148; Ballard v. Child, 46 Me. 153; Bates v. Foster, 59 Me. 158; 8 Am. Rep. 406; Hard v. Cushing, 7 Pick.

(Mass.) 169; Blanchard v. Brooks, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 47; Allen v. Holton, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 458; Sweet v. Brown, 12 Met. (Mass.) 175; 45 Am. Dec. 243; Stockwell v. Couillard, 129 Mass. 231; Wynn v. Harman, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 157; Hull v. Hull (W. Va. 1891), 13 S. E. Rep. 49.

But in Lull v. Stone, 37 Ill. 224, it was observed obiter that this doctrine would render the covenants deceptive and valueless. But where an intention to convey the land may be gathered from the deed, a further reference to the grantor's right, title and interest as being intended to be conveyed, is held not to restrict the covenants. Hubbard v. Apthorp, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 419; Mills v. Catlin, 22 Vt. 98. See also Whiting v. Dewey, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 434.

And where a quit-claim deed contained a covenant for further assurance when the grantor should obtain title from the United States, this was given its full effect. Hope v. Stone, 10 Minn. 141.

5. Birney v. Haim, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 262; Lienon v. Ellis, 6 Mass. 331; Clark v. Scudder, 6 Gray (Mass.) 122; White v. Sanborn, 6 N. H. 220. See ACTIONS, vol. 1, p. 184 f.

6. Oliver v. Loye, 59 Miss. 320; 21 Am. Law Register 600, with note.

7. Where an obligation is created by two or more, it is usually presumed to be joint. Shep. Touch. 375; Bardill v. Trustees of Schools, 4 Ill. App. 94; Carleton v. Tyler, 16 Me. 392; Comings v. Little, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 266; Donahoe v. Emery, 9 Metc. (Mass.) 67; Fields v. Squires, Deady (U. S.) 366.

The right of covenantees to sue

The character of an implied covenant in this respect depends upon the interest granted.¹

In America the authorities differ as to the effect of a discharge in bankruptcy upon covenants, no substantial breach of which has yet occurred.² The liability of an heir upon his ancestor's covenants is the same as that upon other special contracts, and both heir and devisee are affected as to such covenants by the statutes making real estate liable for a decedent's debts.³ The liability of an executor or administrator, to the extent of the assets in his hands, is the same whether the covenants are broken before or after the decedent's death.⁴ The assignee of a reversion after a leasehold estate is liable upon his assignor's covenants.⁵ For the liabilities of married women, see MARRIED WOMEN.⁶

VII. NOTICE TO DEFEND TITLE.—If the covenantor, or other person bound by any of the covenants for title, be notified, by the person entitled to their benefit, that suit has been brought on a paramount title, and be required to defend such suit, he cannot afterwards, if suit be brought against him on the covenants, dispute the validity of the paramount title,⁷ except in cases of severally depends on their interest, but they must sue jointly if they can. James v. Emery, 8 Taunt. 245; Poole v. Hill, 6 M. & W. 835; Harrold v. Whitaker, 11 Ad. & E. (N. S.) 161; Sharp v. Conkling, 16 Vt. 355.

1. Coleman v. Sherwin, 1 Show. 79; 1 Salk. 137.

2. On the one hand it has been held that the object of the bankruptcy law was to bar all claims, even if contingent. Bates v. West, 19 Ill. 135; Bailey v. Moore, 21 Ill. 169; Jemison v. Blowers, 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 686; and see the dictum in Shelton v. Pease, 10 Mo. 473, as to a covenant against incumbrances.

On the other hand, it has been held that a discharge in bankruptcy cannot affect a claim which may not actually arise till long afterwards. Bennett v. Bartlett, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 225; Bush v. Cooper, 26 Miss. 599; 59 Am. Dec. 270 (affd. 18 How. (U. S.) 82); Burrus v. Wilkinson, 31 Miss. 537; Magwire v. Riggan, 44 Mo. 514.

3. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 309-311.

4. Hence damages accruing both before and after the covenantor's death can be recovered in the same action against his executor or administrator. Hovey v. Newton, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 421.

5. Thursby v. Plant, 1 Wms. Saund. 237 and notes.

6. Vol. 14, p. 589.

7. Graham v. Tankersley, 15 Ala. 634; Boyd v. Whitfield, 19 Ark. 469; Hinds v. Allen, 34 Conn. 195; Wimberly v. Collier, 32 Ga. 13; Morgan v. Muldoon, 82 Ind. 347; Bever v. North, 107 Ind. 544; Booker v. Bell, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 173; Prewitt v. Kenton, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 282; Cox v. Strode, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 4; 5 Am. Dec. 603; Jones v. Waggoner, 7 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 144; Williamson v. Williamson, 71 Me. 442; Hamilton v. Cutts, 4 Mass. 353; 3 Am. Dec. 222; Merritt v. Morse, 108 Mass. 270; Mason v. Kellogg, 38 Mich. 132; Cummings v. Harrison, 57 Miss. 275; St. Louis v. Bissell, 46 Mo. 157; Chapman v. Holmes, 10 N. J. L. 20; Morris v. Rowan, 17 N. J. L. 307; Cooper v. Watson, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 205; Miner v. Clark, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 427; Kelly v. Dutch Church, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 105; Adams v. Conover, 22 Hun (N. Y.) 424; Dalton v. Bowker, 8 Nev. 190; King v. Kerr, 5 Ohio 158; 29 Am. Dec. 777; Smith v. Dixon, 27 Ohio St. 471; Bender v. Fromberger, 4 Dall (Pa.) 436; Swenk v. Stout, 2 Yeates (Pa.) 470; Leather v. Poultney, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 356; Collingwood v. Irwin, 3 Watts (Pa.) 310; Ives v. Niles, 5 Watts (Pa.) 323; Paul v. Wittman, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 409; Terry v. Drabenstadt, 68 Pa. St. 400; Wilson v. McElwee, 1 Strobb. (S. Car.) 65; Davis v. Wilbourne, 1 Hill (S. Car.) 28; 26 Am. Dec. 154; Middleton v. Thompson, 1 Spears. (S. Car.) 67;

Williams v. Burg, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 455; Williams v. Wetherbee, 2 Aik. (Vt.) 337; Park v. Bates, 12 Vt. 381; Pitkin v. Leavitt, 13 Vt. 279; Brown v. Taylor, 13 Vt. 631; Turner v. Goodrich, 26 Vt. 708; Swasey v. Brooks, 30 Vt. 692; Wendel v. North, 24 Wis. 223; Somers v. Schmidt, 24 Wis. 419; 1 Am. Rep. 191; Eaton v. Lyman, 24 Wis. 438.

The notice being for the covenantee's benefit, the covenantor has no right to insist on being made a party to the adverse suit. Boyle v. Edwards, 114 Mass. 373; Linderman v. Berg, 12 Pa. St. 301. But if he be notified, and neglect or refuse to become a party to the suit, then the judgment will be conclusive against him, and it is immaterial whether valid defences might have been made or not, since he did not choose to make them. Elliott v. Sanfley (Ky. 1889), 11 S. W. Rep. 200; Chamberlain v. Preble, 11 Allen (Mass.) 370; Jackson v. Marsh, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 44.

Where notice was given to the covenantor's agent, who persuaded the defendant to discharge his counsel and retain another, and who practically carried on and controlled the litigation, the covenantor, though not made a party, was held bound by the result of the suit and responsible for the manner in which it was conducted. Bellows v. Litchfield (Iowa 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 1062.

In North Carolina notice does not preclude the covenantor from disputing the validity of the paramount title, he being apparently regarded not being properly a party to the adverse suit. Martin v. Cowles, 2 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 101; Wilder v. Ireland, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 88.

Even where notice is duly given, the covenantee must show, besides the fact of eviction, that the title under which the adverse judgment was obtained was not one derived subsequent to the execution of the deed to himself. Booker v. Bell, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 173; Adams v. Conover, 22 Hun (N. Y.) 424; Wilson v. McElwee, 1 Strobh. (S. Car.) 66; Pitkin v. Leavitt, 13 Vt. 384; Swasey v. Brooks, 30 Vt. 692.

Notice Not Essential.—The giving of such notice, though a practice as old as the covenants themselves, and adopted in analogy to the ancient practice of vouching to warranty, is not, as that practice was, essential to the success of the covenantee in his subsequent action. Duffield v. Scott, 3 T. R. 370; Smith v. Compton, 3 B. & Ad. 408; Claycomb v. Munger, 51 Ill. 378; Rhode v. Green, 26 Ind. 83; King v. Kerr, 5 Ohio 158; 22 Am. Dec. 777.

Without such notice, although the record of the adverse proceeding may perhaps be evidence of eviction, yet by the weight of authority it is not even prima facie evidence, as against the covenantor, that the eviction was by title paramount. The reason is found in the familiar principle that a man ought not to be bound by a judgment pronounced in a proceeding to which he is not, actually or constructively, a party. King v. Norman, 4 C. B. 883; Graham v. Tankersley, 15 Ala. 634; Clements v. Collins, 59 Ga. 124; Sisk v. Woodruff, 15 Ill. 15; Rhode v. Green, 26 Ind. 83; Walton v. Cox, 67 Ind. 164; Booker v. Bell, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 175; Prewitt v. Kenton, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 282; Devour v. Johnson, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 410; Cox v. Strode, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 4; 5 Am. Dec. 603; Hanson v. Buckner, 4 Dana (Ky.) 254; 29 Am. Dec. 401; Ryerson v. Chapman, 66 Me. 557; Fields v. Hunter, 8 Mo. 128; Wilder v. Ireland, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 87; Stevens v. Jack, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 403.

The record of the judgment has been held to be not even evidence of an eviction unless accompanied by proof of an actual or constructive change of possession. McDowell v. Hunter, Dudley (Ga.) 4; Hoy v. Taliaferro, 8 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 741; Dennis v. Heath, 11 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 218; 49 Am. Dec. 51; Webb v. Alexander, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 286; Miller v. Avery, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 582; Paul v. Witman, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 407; Feriss v. Harshea, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 55.

The view that such record is evidence of an eviction is, however, taken in some States. Rhode v. Green, 26 Ind. 83; Booker v. Bell, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 173; Hanson v. Buckner, 4 Dana (Ky.) 254; 29 Am. Dec. 401.

The evidence of the execution of the writ of possession may, of course, appear upon the record of this adverse suit, in which case no other evidence would be needed. Sisk v. Woodruff, 15 Ill. 15; Fields v. Hunter, 8 Mo. 128.

For notice in connection with the measure of damages, see infra, this title, Measure of Damages for Breach.

negligence, fraud or collusion¹ on the part of the defendant in the prior suit. In some States notice of a suit brought by the covenantee himself to obtain possession has a like effect.² Such notice must be timely, unequivocal, certain, and explicit,³ but the rule as to whether or not it should be in writing differs in different States.⁴

VIII. MEASURE OF DAMAGES FOR BREACH.—As a general rule the measure of damages for breach of the covenants for seisin, for right to convey, for quiet enjoyment, and of warranty is the value of the land when the covenant sued on⁵ was made (which value is estimated by the consideration money named in the deed), with interest, but without any allowance for a rise or fall in value since the sale, or for improvements made,⁶ except where

1. McConnell v. Downs, 48 Ill. 271; Willson v. McElwee, 1 Strobb. (S. Car.) 66.

2. Gragg v. Richardson, 25 Ga. 570; White v. Williams, 13 Tex. 258; Pitkin v. Leavitt, 13 Vt. 379; Brown v. Taylor, 13 Vt. 637; 37 Am. Rep. 618.

In Ferrell v. Alder, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 44, it was held a covenantor was not bound by notice in such a proceeding.

In Louisiana, the Code, art. 2495, provides for notice in such cases.

3. The covenantee must do more than merely notify his covenantor; the latter must be required to defend the title. Boyd v. Whitfield, 19 Ark. 470; Collins v. Baker, 6 Mo. App. 588; Paul v. Witman, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 410. And he must be given sufficient time in which to prepare to do so. Somers v. Schmidt, 24 Wis. 421; 1 Am. Rep. 191.

Unless the covenantor be a party to the record of the adverse suit, his reception of the notice is a question of fact. Collingwood v. Irwin, 3 Watts (Pa.) 310.

But unless the defendant disputes the propriety of the notice given or the fact of its having been served upon him, it will be treated as proper and as having been actually served. Cook v. Curtis, 68 Mich. 671.

4. Notice in writing was required in Mason v. Kellogg, 38 Mich. 132; Dalton v. Bowker, 8 Nev. 200. And the propriety of such notice, in view of the fact that if the covenantor died after receiving the notice, his representatives would be bound by it, was pointed out in Somers v. Schmidt, 24 Wis. 417.

Verbal notice was held sufficient in Cummings v. Harrison, 57 Miss. 275; Miner v. Clark, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 427.

5. The purchase money which measures the value is always that received by the covenantor who made the covenant sued upon, not the money paid by the plaintiff if there have been mesne conveyances, whether the latter amount be less or greater than the former. Brooks v. Black, 68 Miss. 161.

6. The leading American cases are Staats v. Ten Eyck, 3 Cal. (N. Y.) 111, which decided that a subsequent rise in value could not be allowed to increase the damages. Bender v. Fromberger, 4 Dall. (Pa.) 442, where a similar decision was made as to improvements; and Pitcher v. Livingston, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; 4 Am. Dec. 229, where the rule was laid down as to both points. The reason for this doctrine is obvious. What the parties had in view when the covenants were made was the land and its price at that time, and the operation of the contract is properly confined to its subject-matter.

These cases have been followed in Logan v. Moulder, 1 Ark. 323; 33 Am. Dec. 338; Carvill v. Jacks, 43 Ark. 439; Barnett v. Hughey (Ark.), 15 S. W. Rep. 464; McGary v. Hastings, 39 Cal. 360; 2 Am. Rep. 456; Weber v. Anderson, 73 Ill. 439; Frazer v. Peoria Co., 74 Ill. 282; Reese v. McQuilkin, 7 Ind. 450; Lacey v. Marnan, 37 Ind. 168; Stewart v. Noble, 1 Greene (Iowa) 28; Swafford v. Whipple, 3 Greene (Iowa) 264; 54 Am. Dec. 498; Wilhelm v. Fimple, 31 Iowa 137; 7 Am. Rep. 117; Jones v. Sharp, 72 Iowa 237; Stebbins v. Wolf, 33 Kan. 765; Cummins v. Kennedy, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 118; 14 Am. Dec. 45; Cox v. Strode, 2 Bibb (Ky.) 279; 5 Am. Dec. 603; Booker v. Bell, 3 Bibb (Ky.) 175; Hanson v. Buckner, 4 Dana (Ky.) 253; 29 Am. Dec. 401; the covenants are in a lease,¹ and where the improvements form a part of the consideration itself.² In a few States this rule is established by statute.³ Where the covenant is broken as to a part of the land only, or the land has been divided, and suit is brought by the owner of a part of the original grant, damages are recoverable in proportionate measure.⁴ If the covenantee has in point of fact lost less than the consideration money and interest, his recovery is limited to the amount of

Pence v. Duvall, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 49; Boyer v. Amet, 41 La. Ann. 721; Crisfield v. Storr, 36 Md. 129; 11 Am. Rep. 480; Cook v. Curtis, 68 Mich. 611; Brooks v. Black, 68 Miss. 161; Tapley v. Lebeaume, 1 Mo. 550; Martin v. Long, 3 Mo. 391; Dickson v. Desire, 23 Mo. 166; Long v. Matthews, 23 Mo. 437; Taylor v. Holter, 1 Mont. 688; Dalton v. Bowker, 3 Nev. 190; Hoffman v. Bosch, 18 Nev. 360; Willson v. Willson, 25 N. H. 236; Foster v. Thompson, 41 N. H. 379; Stewart v. Drake, 9 N. J. L. 142; Holmes v. Sinnickson, 14 N. J. L. 313; Morris v. Rowan, 17 N. J. L. 304; Bennett v. Jenkins, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 50; Kelly v. Dutch Church, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 116; Kinney v. Watts, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 38; Peters v. McKeon, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 550; Bowne v. Wolcott, (N. Dak. 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 426; Phillips v. Smith, 1 Car. Law Repos. (N. Car.) 475; 6 Am. Dec. 542; Wilson v. Forbes, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 30; Williams v. Beeman, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 483; Nesbit v. Brown, 1 Dev. Eq. (N. Car.) 30; West v. West, 76 N. Car. 45; Bacchus v. McCoy, 3 Ohio 211; 17 Am. Dec. 585; King v. Kerr, 5 Ohio 154; 22 Am. Dec. 777; Foote v. Burnet, 10 Ohio 317; Clark v. Parr, 14 Ohio 118; 45 Am. Dec. 529; Wade v. Comstock, 11 Ohio St. 71; Vail v. Junction R. Co., 1 Cin. Sup. Ct. (Ohio) 573; King v. Pyle, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 166; McClowry v. Croghan, 1 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 307; Brown v. Dickerson, 12 Pa. St. 372; Weiting v. Nissley, 13 Pa. St. 355; McClure v. Gamble, 27 Pa. St. 288; Cox v. Henry, 32 Pa. St. 12; Hood's Appeal (Pa. 1886), 7 Atl. Rep. 137; Furman v. Elmore, 2 Nott. & M. (S. Car.) 189 n.; Henning v. Withers, 3 Brev. (S. Car.) 458; Wallace v. Talbot, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 468; Ware v. Weatherall, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 413; Earle v. Middleton, Cheves (S. Car.) 127; Pearson v. Davis, 1 McMull. (S. Car.) 37; Elliott v. Thompson, 4 Humph. (Tenn.) 101; 40 Am. Dec. 630; Shaw v. Wilkins, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 647; 49

Am. Dec. 692; Aiken v. Suttle, 4 Lea (Tenn.) 134; Moses v. Wallace, 7 Lea (Tenn.) 413; Mette v. Dow, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 93; Simpson v. Belvin, 37 Tex. 674; Nelson v. Matthews, 2 Hen. & M. (Va.) 164; 3 Am. Dec. 620; Stout v. Jackson, 2 Rand (Va.) 132; Threlkeld v. Fitzhugh, 2 Leigh (Va.) 451; Jackson v. Turner, 5 Leigh (Va.) 119; Haffey v. Birchetts, 11 Leigh (Va.) 188; Click v. Green, 77 Va. 827; Moreland v. Metz, 24 W. Va. 119; 49 Am. Rep. 246; Butcher v. Peterson, 26 W. Va. 447; 53 Am. Rep. 89; Blossom v. Knox, 3 Chand. (Wis.) 295; Lawton v. Howe, 14 Wis. 241; Messer v. Oestreich, 52 Wis. 684; McInnis v. Lyman, 62 Wis. 191; Conrad v. Trustees etc., 64 Wis. 258; Hopkins v. Lee, 6 Wheat. (U. S.) 118; Patrick v. Leach, 1 McCrary (U. S.) 250.

Taxes paid by the covenantee are not recoverable. Daggett v. Reas (Wis. 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 127.

1. Here the measure of damages is the value of the unexpired term to the lessee, together with the costs of the action of ejectment and the mesne profits recovered therein. Williams v. Burrell, 1 C. B. 402; Lock v. Furze, 19 C. B., N. S. 96; L. R., 1 C. P. 441; Rolph v. Crouch, L. R., 3 Ex. 44; Dexter v. Manley, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 14.

The value of the term here taken, is the value over and above the rent reserved. Mack v. Patchin, 42 N. Y. 167; 1 Am. Rep. 506.

In Lanigan v. Kille, 97 Pa. St. 120; 39 Am. Rep. 797, no allowance was made for improvements, though their loss was very serious.

2. See Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 170.

3. California, Code 1885, § 3304; Georgia, Rev. Code, § 2948; North Dakota, Comp. Laws, § 4854.

4. Breach as to Part of Land.—Here the damages must be assessed according to a valuation of the price of the part as to which title has failed, and the proportion which it bears to the injury sustained.¹ The recital of the consideration is not conclusive as to the amount,² and where no amount is named, the price of the whole estate conveyed. Rolph v. Crouch, L. R., 3 Ex. 44; Major v. Dunnivant, 25 Ill. 256; Wadhams v. Innes, 4 Ill. App. 642; McNear v. McComber, 18 Iowa 12; Mischke v. Baughn, 52 Iowa 528; Blanchard v. Hoxie, 34 Me. 376; Blanchard v. Blanchard, 48 Me. 177; Leland v. Stone, 10 Mass. 463; Cornell v. Jackson, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 510; Partridge v. Hatch, 18 N. H. 494; Winnepiseogee Paper Co. v. Eaton, 65 N. H. 13; Morris v. Phelps, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 49; 4 Am. Dec. 323; Giles v. Dugro, 1 Duer (N. Y.) 331; Hunt v. Raplee, 44 Hun (N. Y.) 149; Hymes v. Van Cleef, (Supreme Ct.), 15 N. Y. Supp. 341; Dickens v. Sheppard, 3 Murph. (N. Car.) 526; Lee v. Dean, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 316; Beaupland v. McKeen, 28 Pa. St. 134; 70 Am. Dec. 115; Wallace v. Talbot, 1 McCord (S. Car.) 467; Raines v. Calloway, 27 Tex. 685; Beverley v. Lawson, 3 Munf. (Va.) 317; Butcher v. Peterson, 26 W. Va. 447; 53 Am. Rep. 89; Griffin v. Reynolds, 17 How. (U. S.) 611.

Or if the premises were sold at a gross price of so much per acre, then that amount will be allowed for each acre lost, with interest. Flynn v. White Breast Coal etc. Co., 72 Iowa 738; Nelson v. Matthews, 2 Hen. & M. (Va.) 164; 3 Am. Dec. 620.

But if the land is not of equal value all over, though sold at a uniform rate per acre, then the proportion of price recoverable for the land lost must be determined from the actual proportionate value of such land. Semple v. Wharton, 68 Wis. 626.

Where no evidence is given of the value or price of that part of the land as to which the title has failed, nominal damages only can be recovered. Lawless v. Evans (Tex. 1889), 14 S.W. Rep. 1017.

If the plaintiff owns only a portion of the land as to which the covenant is broken, his right to recover his proportionate share of the consideration originally received by the defendant is not affected by the fact that the rights of action of the owners of other parts of the land against the defendant may have been barred by the Statute of Limitations. Whitzman v. Hirsh, 87 Tenn. 513.

1. Caswell v. Wendall, 4 Mass. 108;

Spring v. Chase, 22 Me. 502; 39 Am. Dec. 595; Tanner v. Livingston, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 82; Farmers' Bank v. Glenn, 68 N. Car. 35.

Hence if the plaintiff has bought in the paramount title, he can recover only the sum paid to secure it, and that only if it do not exceed in amount the original purchase money and interest. Anderson v. Knox, 2 Ala. 156; Doremus v. Bond, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 368; Brandt v. Foster, 5 Iowa 290; Kimball v. Bryant, 25 Mo. 496; Petrie v. Folz, 54 N. Y. Super. Ct. 225; Loomis v. Bedel, 11 N. H. 74.

If he has agreed to pay a certain sum for the paramount title, that sum is recoverable as if had to be actually paid. Hooper v. Sac Co. Bank, 72 Iowa 280.

Cases may arise where the covenantee, though evicted, sustains no real damage. Thus where he had had the use of the land for two years, and was repaid by the evictor all taxes paid by the covenantor (which exceeded the purchase money of the land) as well as by himself, no damages were held to be recoverable, but the covenantee was not required to account to the covenantor for the money received from the evictor. Danforth v. Smith, 41 Kan. 146.

2. Parol evidence is admissible to show that the consideration was greater than that expressed. Belden v. Seymour, 8 Conn. 304; 21 Am. Dec. 661; Dexter v. Manley, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 26; Guinotte v. Chouteau, 34 Mo. 154.

Or that it was less. Martin v. Gordon, 24 Ga. 535; Fields v. Willingham, 49 Ga. 344; Swafford v. Whipple, 3 Greene (Iowa) 267; 54 Am. Dec. 498; Williamson v. Test, 24 Iowa 139; Blood v. Wilkins, 43 Iowa 567; Wachendorf v. Lancaster, 66 Iowa 458; Harlow v. Thomas, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 70; Cook v. Curtis, 68 Mich. 611; Moore v. McKee, 5 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 238; Morse v. Shattuck, 4 N. H. 229; 17 Am. Dec. 419; Bingham v. Weiderwax, 1 N. Y. 514; Vail v. Junction R. Co., 1 Cin. Super. Ct. (Ohio) 571; Cox v. Henry, 32 Pa. St. 19; Patrick v. Leach, 1 McCrary (U. S.) 250; but see Yelton v. Hawkins, 2 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 2.

Or that no consideration was paid for the part as to which title failed, it having been included in the deed by measure of damages must be obtained from other evidence as to the value of the land.¹

In Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, and Vermont the value of the land at the time of eviction is recoverable in an action for breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment or for that of warranty.²

The interest allowed as above stated, over and above that which has accrued since eviction or surrender,³ is intended to counterbalance the amount paid or payable by the plaintiff to the real owner as mesne profits.⁴ Costs incurred in defending mistake. Leland v. Stone, 10 Mass. 463; Barus v. Learned, 5 N. H. 264; Nutting v. Herbert, 35 N. H. 127.

But where a trustee was held personally liable on his covenants, he was not allowed to show that the consideration was not, wholly or in part, received by him or for his use. Bloom v. Wolfe, 50 Iowa 286.

Where payments have been made under an antecedent contract in pursuance of which the deed was executed, the grantee is not concluded by the amount of consideration recited in the deed, but may recover the actual consideration including previous payments of principal and interest under such contract. Devine v. Lewis, 38 Minn. 24.

And where a note was given for part of the purchase money, the interest paid on such note is recoverable as part of the consideration. Bellows v. Litchfield (Iowa 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 1062.

1. Smith v. Strong, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 128.

The same rule holds where matters in which other parties were concerned enter into the consideration. Byrnes v. Rich, 5 Gray (Mass.) 518.

Where the defendant received part of the consideration only, it was held that the plaintiff could recover, at his election, either that part or the value of the land when conveyed. Staples v. Dean, 114 Mass. 125.

Rule as to Exchanges.—In such cases, there being no consideration money, the measure of damages is the value, at the time of the exchange, of the land conveyed by the covenantor, with interest, and if the parties agreed on any value at that time, this may be deemed the true value. White v. Street, 67 Tex. 177.

2. These States follow the prevailing doctrine as to the covenants for seisin and for right to convey. Mitchell v.

Hazen, 4 Conn. 495; 10 Am. Dec. 169; Hartford etc. Ore Co. v. Miller, 41 Conn. 112; Stubbs v. Page, 2 Me. 278; Montgomery v. Reed, 69 Me. 510; Marston v. Hobbs, 2 Mass. 433; 3 Am. Dec. 61; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 221; Nichols v. Walter, 8 Mass. 243; Smith v. Strong, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 128.

But in the case of the other covenants, their courts hold that there should be compensation for improvements, apparently as a matter of public policy. Horsford v. Wright, Kirby (Conn.) 3; 1 Am. Dec. 8; Sterling v. Peet, 14 Conn. 245; Cushman v. Blanchard, 2 Me. 268; 21 Am. Dec. 76; Swett v. Patrick, 12 Me. 1; Hardy v. Nelson, 27 Me. 525; Gore v. Brazier, 3 Mass. 523; 3 Am. Dec. 182; Caswell v. Wendell, 4 Mass. 108; Bigelow v. Jones, 4 Mass. 512; Norton v. Babcock, 2 Met. (Mass.) 516; White v. Whitney, 3 Met. (Mass.) 89; Cecconi v. Rodden, 147 Mass. 64; Drury v. Shumway, 1 D. Chip. (Vt.) 111; Park v. Bates, 12 Vt. 387.

For a criticism of this view, see Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), §§ 165-167.

3. The amount of interest recoverable since the use of the land was lost depends on the Statutes of Limitation. Six years' interest only is allowed in Wisconsin. Messer v. Oestreich, 52 Wis. 684; Daggett v. Reas (Wis. 1891), 48 N. W. Rep. 127.

4. There can be no doubt of the plaintiff's right to recover interest for such time as he has been held liable to the real owner for mesne profits. Devine v. Lewis, 38 Minn. 24; Brooks v. Black, 68 Miss. 161; Brown v. Hearon, 66 Tex. 63.

The general rule is, that there can be recovery of interest further back than the eviction or surrender, unless mesne profits have been recovered. Collier v. Cowger, 52 Ark. 322; Burton v. Reeds, 20 Ind. 91; Kyle v. Fauntleroy, an action of ejectment are also recoverable,¹ and so in some States are counsel fees and other expenses of suit.²

9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 620; White v. Tucker, 52 Miss. 145; Hutchins v. Rountree, 77 Mo. 500; Staats v. Ten Eyck, 3 Cal. (N. Y.) 111; Guthrie v. Pugsley, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 126; Williams v. Beeman, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) 483; Patterson v. Stewart, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 527; 40 Am. Dec. 586; Wacker v. Straub, 88 Pa. St. 32; McGuffey v. Humes, 85 Tenn. 26; Flint v. Steadman, 36 Vt. 210; Rich v. Johnson, 1 Chand. (Wis.) 19; 52 Am. Dec. 144.

Hence, where no claim appears to be made for mesne profits, interest is recoverable from the date of eviction or surrender only. Lambert v. Estes, 99 Mo. 604.

And where the period for which mesne profits are recoverable is restricted by the Statute of Limitations, interest is not recoverable for any longer period. Lawless v. Collier, 19 Mo. 486; Ela v. Card, 2 N. H. 175; 9 Am. Dec. 46; Caulkins v. Harris, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 324; Bennet v. Jenkins, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 50; Clark v. Parr, 14 Ohio 118; 45 Am. Dec. 529.

In the absence of evidence showing that interest ought to be recovered from the date of eviction only, a judgment for interest from the date of the purchase will not be reversed. Reese v. McQuilkin, 7 Ind. 450.

It has been held that the plaintiff can recover interest wherever he may be compelled to account for mesne profits, though he has not actually done so. Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 222; Foster v. Thompson, 41 N. H. 373.

1. The taxed costs of an action of ejectment are usually allowed as damages for breach of covenant, even though the covenantor has not had notice of the ejectment. Cox v. Strode, 2 Bibb (Ky.) 273; 5 Am. Dec. 603; Barnett v. Montgomery, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 332; Kyle v. Fauntleroy, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 622; Robertson v. Lemon, 2 Bush (Ky.) 302; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 162; Leffingwell v. Elliott, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 457; 19 Am. Dec. 343; Stewart v. Drake, 9 N. J. L. 141; Holmes v. Sinnickson, 15 N. J. L. 313; Morris v. Rowan, 17 N. J. L. 306; Pitcher v. Livingston, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; 4 Am. Dec. 229; Waldo v. Long, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 174; Bennett v. Jenkins, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 51; Richert v. Snyder, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 423;

Pitkin v. Leavitt, 13 Vt. 379; Keeler v. Wood, 30 Vt. 242.

In England, the same rule prevails, although as the costs include attorney's fees, they are much higher. Smith v. Compton, 3 B. & Ad. 189; Rolph v. Crouch, L. R., 3 Ex. 44. So in Ontario Trust etc. Co. v. Covert, 39 U. C., Q. B. 327.

In Swett v. Patrick, 12 Me. 10, the recovery of costs seems to have been thought dependent on the giving of notice.

In Terry v. Drabenstadt, 68 Pa. St. 400, the plaintiff was not allowed to recover costs on the ground that the covenantor having been notified and failed to appear, they had incurred on the former's responsibility. The costs recoverable are those of actions of ejectment only, not those incurred in defending an action for mesne profits. Staats v. Ten Eyck, 3 Cal. (N. Y.) 111.

2. Counsel fees and other necessary expenses incurred in the ejectment suit are, in some States, not recoverable as damages, because fixed by no certain standard. Gragg v. Richardson, 25 Ga. 566; Brooks v. Black, 68 Miss. 161; Jeter v. Glenn, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) 380; Williams v. Burg, 9 Lea (Tenn.) 455; Turner v. Miller, 42 Tex. 418; 19 Am. Rep. 47.

In some cases this rule has been applied as to fees and expenses incurred after the covenantor had assumed the defense. Wimberly v. Collier, 32 Ga. 13; Kennison v. Taylor, 18 N. H. 220.

In Swartz v. Ballou, 47 Iowa 188; 29 Am. Rep. 470, it was held that only reasonable counsel fees, which the plaintiff had actually paid or was under obligation to pay, could be recovered.

In Dale v. Shively, 8 Kan. 276, it was said that costs and counsel fees only could be recovered.

Counsel fees and expenses have in some cases been refused unless the covenantor had notice of the ejectment. Yokum v. Thomas, 15 Iowa 69; Crisfield v. Storr, 36 Md. 129; 11 Am. Rep. 480; Hood's Appeal (Pa. 1889), 7 Atl. Rep. 137.

In other cases they have been allowed because notice had been given. Harding v. Larkin, 41 Ill. 420; McKee v. Bain, 11 Kan. 569;

Where the covenants for seisin and for right to convey are held to be broken as soon as made, the right of action upon them accrues at once, if at all, and the better rule would seem to be that but nominal damages only are recoverable, if no actual loss has been sustained,¹ and such recovery is no bar to a subsequent action for substantial damages for breach of the covenant, for quiet enjoyment or of warranty.² If there be a partial breach only, as where the grantor has an estate less than a fee in the entire premises granted, then substantial damages may be recovered for the title lost, over and above the value of that actually acquired.³

Where the title covenanted for is a tax title, and the covenantee subsequently buys in the paramount title, taxes paid by the covenantor cannot be set off.⁴

The remedy on the covenant for further assurance is usually in equity, and apparently only nominal damages can be recovered unless substantial loss has actually resulted from the breach.⁵ As to the covenant against incumbrances, see INCUM-

Williamson v. Williamson, 71 Me. 442; Haynes v. Stevens, 11 N. H. 28; Kingsbury v. Smith, 13 N. H. 125; Winnepiseogee Paper Co. v. Eaton, 65 N. H. 13; (where interest on such expenses was allowed); Lane v. Fury, 32 Ohio St. 574; Rowe v. Heath, 23 Tex. 620.

In other cases they have been allowed without regard to notice. Robertson v. Lemon, 2 Bush (Ky.) 303; Ryerson v. Chapman, 66 Me. 557; Sumner v. Williams, 8 Mass. 162; Drew v. Towle, 30 N. H. 531; 64 Am. Dec. 309; Rickert v. Snyder, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 416; McAlpin v. Woodruff, 11 Ohio 130; Pitkin v. Leavitt, 13 Vt. 279; Turner v. Goodrich, 26 Vt. 709; Keeler v. Wood, 30 Vt. 242. So in Holmes v. Sinnickson, 15 N. J. L. 313, as to "counsel fees taxed in the fee bill."

If the plaintiff has himself prosecuted a suit to obtain the possession covenanted for but never given, he can apparently recover his costs and counsel fees as part of the damages for breach of covenant. Dale v. Shively, 8 Kan. 276.

But he cannot recover expenses incurred in an action brought by him to set aside a tax sale, he not having notified his grantor, and the tax title having never been actually established. Winnepiseogee Paper Co. v. Marsh, 64 N. H. 531.

Covenants to indemnify from all loss, damage, etc., consequent on a defective title cover all damages. See Robinson v. Bakewell, 25 Pa. St. 426; Cox v. Henry, 32 Pa. St. 21; Anderson v. Washabaugh, 43 Pa. St. 115.

1. Ogden v. Ball, 38 Minn. 237. In Dickey v. Weston, 61 N. H. 23, it was said that the assessment of damages would be deferred until actual loss was sustained.

2. Ogden v. Ball, 40 Minn. 94.

3. Tierney v. Whiting, 2 Colo. 620; Lockwood v. Sturdevant, 6 Conn. 373; Hubbard v. Norton, 10 Conn. 435; Phillips v. Reichert, 17 Ind. 120; 79 Am. Dec. 463; Hoot v. Spade, 20 Ind. 326; Wright v. Nipple, 92 Ind. 310; Dale v. Shively, 8 Kan. 276; Blanchard v. Hoxie, 34 Me. 376; Morrison v. McArthur, 43 Me. 567; Bryan v. Smallwood, 4 Har. & M. (Md.) 483; Lucas v. Wilcox, 135 Mass. 77; Ela v. Card, 2 N. H. 175; 9 Am. Dec. 46; Guthrie v. Pugsley, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 126; Rickert v. Snyder, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 416; Tanner v. Livingston, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 83; Furniss v. Ferguson, 15 N. Y. 443; Adams v. Conover, 22 Hun (N. Y.) 424; Nyce v. Obertz, 17 Ohio 76; Recohs v. Younglove, 8 Baxt. (Tenn.) 385; Mills v. Catlin, 22 Vt. 98.

4. The covenantor acquires no interest in the land by the payment of such taxes, and while he might in equity recover the amount paid from the then owner of the land, he has no such equity as against his covenantee. Hooper v. Sac Co. Bank, 72 Iowa 280; Pierce v. Herrold, 75 Iowa 504.

5. Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 194.

BRANCES.¹ The damages on all other covenants are measured by the pecuniary loss sustained.²

IX. OPERATION OF REAL COVENANTS BY WAY OF ESTOPPEL.—It is familiar doctrine that if a man undertakes to convey or mortgage premises to which his title is invalid or imperfect, and afterwards acquires a good title, he is so far estopped by his former act that the purchaser or mortgagee has an equitable right to have such after acquired estate conveyed or mortgaged to him, as the case may be.³ If the original conveyance or mortgage contain covenants for title, these operate (by way, it is usually said, of avoiding the circuitry of action which would result, were the vendor required to eject the vendee before the latter could call for a conveyance) as a personal rebutter on the grantor and his heirs preventing them from setting up the after acquired title,⁴ and the covenants may also be regarded as equivalent to a recital or averment of title, estopping the grantor from denying the

1. Vol. 10, p. 361.

2. Clark v. Zeigler, 79 Ala. 350; 85 Ala. 154; Stoudenmire v. De Bardeleben, 85 Ala. 85; Mobile etc. R. Co. v. Gilmer, 85 Ala. 422; Bronson v. Coffin, 108 Mass. 175; 11 Am. Rep. 335; Watterson v. Alleghany Val. R. Co., 74 Pa. St. 208.

But where no evidence was given as to the actual damage sustained or that the plaintiff wished or had wished to sell her property, it was held error to charge that she was entitled to recover the difference in value of her house as it was effected by the erection of the tenement house (which was the breach of covenant) and the value it would have possessed if the defendant's lot had remained vacant. Amerman v. Deane, 57 N. Y. Super. Ct. 175.

See DAMAGES, vol. 5, p. 1.

3. Wright v. Wright, 1 Ves. Sr. 409; Massie v. Sebastian, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 433; McWilliams v. Nisly, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 515; 7 Am. Rep. 654; Root v. Crock, 7 Pa. St. 380.

Thus in Heath v. Crealock, L. R., 18 Eq. 215; affirmed 10 Ch. App. 30, where a mortgagor sold part of the mortgage premises without notice of mortgage and subsequently obtained a reconveyance from the mortgagees, Bacon, V. C., said: "If (the mortgagor) having sold and conveyed to the defendants, the purchasers, without a title, had afterwards obtained a perfect title, then, as between him and them, his subsequent title would no doubt have fed the estoppel, and would entitle them to have their originally defective title made perfect by him. But the principle of estoppel applies only between parties and privies, and if the estate supposed to be acquired by the mortgagor under the reconveyance is destroyed by the cancellation of that conveyance, and before any estate can have passed from him to them, there can exist no food for the supposed estoppel, and the purchasers are reduced to the position in which they would have been if no reconveyance had been executed." It was held, accordingly, that no new conveyance to the purchasers having been made since the reconveyance, their equity was insufficient to prevent a decree that the reconveyance be canceled on account of fraud.

4. Reese v. Smith, 12 Mo. 351; Potter v. Potter, 1 R. I. 43; Henderson v. Overton, 2 Yerg. (Tenn.) 394; 24 Am. Dec. 492; Lewis v. Baird, 3 McLean (U. S.) 80; French v. Spencer, 21 How. (U. S.) 240.

Such rebutter will affect a third party, claiming by purchase from the covenantor, if the condition of the latter's title at the time of the purchase was such as to affect the former with notice of the covenantee's rights. Chew v. Barnet, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 389.

And one who conveys land to a railroad company who has mortgaged, with covenants, all the property then held by it or afterwards to be acquired, cannot set up his vendor's lien as against the lien of the mortgage. Pierce v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 24 Wis. 551; 1 Am. Rep. 203.

intention to pass the title covenanted for.¹ Apparently, however, the estoppel created by the deed or mortgage is the same, even if there be no covenants, provided the intention of the instrument is made sufficiently clear by other means.²

In the United States, however, though not in England,³ a doctrine has grown up which gives another and much greater effect to the estoppel than that just referred to, provided the original deed or mortgage contain certain covenants for title, in which case the after acquired estate⁴ is held to inure, by virtue of the covenants,⁵ to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, or to the mortgagee

1. Goodson v. Beacham, 24 Ga. 150.

2. In Taylor v. Debar, 1 Ch. Cas. 274; 2 Ch. Cas. 212, and Noel v. Bewley, 3 Sim. 103, the defective conveyances contained covenants for further assurance, but in the latter case Shadwell, V. C., said: "I do not place much reliance upon the covenant for further assurance; because I take the law to be this: that if a person has conveyed a defective title, and he afterwards acquires a good title, this court will make that good title available to make the conveyance effectual."

In Smith v. Baker, 1 Y. & Col. Ch. 223, there had been also covenants for seisin and for good right to convey, and the equitable interest of the grantees under the defective conveyance, was upheld without any mention of these covenants.

In Heath v. Crealock (see preced'g note), the operation of an estoppel is described, but without reference to the covenants, which were merely referred to by the court in denying that they gave the purchasers any rights whatever as against the mortgagees.

So in America the same estoppel has been held to result from any deed purporting to convey an estate of a particular description or quality, "although it may not contain any covenants of title in the technical sense of the term." Van Rensselaer v. Kearney, 11 How. (U. S.) 297.

So also Stoddard v. Chambers, 2 How. (U. S.) 316; Landes v. Brant, 10 How. (U. S.) 348; Clark v. Baker, 14 Cal. 612; 76 Am. Dec. 449; Nixon v. Carco, 28 Miss. 426.

3. General Finance Co. v. Liberator Bldg. Soc., L. R., 10 Ch. Div. 15; Heath v. Crealock, L. R., 21 Eq. 218; affd. 10 Ch. App. 30; Loyd v. Loyd, 4 Dr. & War. 369; Right v. Bucknell, 2 B. & Ad. 273 (denying the authority of Bensley v. Burdon, 2 Sim. & S. 524, which gave greater effect to the estoppel.

4. This must be an estate in the same right as that in which the conveyance was made. Hence where one conveys in his own right, and afterwards acquires title in trust, express or implied, there is no estoppel. Kelley v. Jenness, 50 Me. 455; 79 Am. Dec. 623.

Hence where the after acquired title was subject to the paramount equitable title of a third party, the latter was not affected by any estoppel resulting from the covenants in the conveyance made by the holder of the legal title before he acquired the same. Buckingham v. Hanna, 2 Ohio St. 551.

5. Hence if there be no covenants, as in a mere release, or none which give rise to an estoppel, there is no estoppel. Shumaker v. Johnson, 35 Ind. 33; Nicholson v. Caress, 45 Ind. 479; Doane v. Wilcutt, 5 Gray (Mass.) 328; 66 Am. Dec. 369; Kimball v. Blaisdell, 5 N. H. 533; 22 Am. Dec. 476; Jackson v. Wright, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 193; Jackson v. Hubble, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 613. Except that the grantor cannot deny or contradict any fact alleged in his conveyance. Pike v. Galvin, 29 Me. 183.

The same rule holds where any claims are excepted from a covenant. Thus where claims under a first mortgage are expressly excepted from the covenant of warranty in a second mortgage, and the title reverts in the mortgagor after a sale under the first mortgage, there is no estoppel in favor of the second mortgagee. Huzzey v. Hefernan, 143 Mass. 232.

It must be admitted that many of the cases which sustain the doctrine of an estoppel that actually passes the after acquired estate do not, if carefully examined, rest so much on the necessity of avoiding circuitry of action and givas the case may be, by direct operation of law, with the same effect, to all intents and purposes, as if such estate had originally passed by the deed or mortgage.¹ Such estoppel should not, ing to the covenantee immediately and to the fullest extent the relief which his covenants would entitle him to demand, as on the necessity of giving effect to the intention of the parties, of which intention the covenants are important but not indispensable evidence. Thus an estoppel is held to operate against several classes of persons who are not personally liable on the covenants at all. See infra, this title, pp. 1025, 1026, n. 5, 1-5. The logical result of this reasoning is that if an estate can actually pass by the operation of an estoppel which the law raises in order to carry out the intention of the parties, it is immaterial whether this intention be evidenced by covenants for title or not. Hence in McGill v. Jordan, 4 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 420, where it was held that a covenant of special warranty sufficed to pass the after acquired estate, as against one claiming under the covenantor, the court by Butler, J., said: "The fair result of the more recent cases would seem to be that whenever the terms of the deed, or of the covenants it contains, show that it was meant to convey an absolute and indefeasible title, and not merely the interest which the grantor had at the time, it will pass every estate and interest which may vest in him subsequently, whether the warranty be general or, special, or though it may contain no warranty at all. . . . That the warranty is special is not important."

Statutory Estoppel.—Of late years, however, it has come to pass that, by the statutes of many States, if a deed purporting to convey an estate in fee simple (or even, in some States, a less estate) be made by one who has not the estate which he undertakes to convey, and he afterwards acquire such estate, it immediately passes to the grantee as if it had been in the grantor at the time of the conveyance, while in other States (e. g., Georgia) the grantor is merely estopped from claiming adversely to his deed. This statutory estoppel must, of course, in the conveyances where it is made applicable, take the place of the estoppel referred to in the text, which is raised from the covenants, by construction of law, but the former is something wholly apart from the subject of the present article.

1. Tillotson v. Kennedy, 5 Ala. 413; 39 Am. Dec. 330; Bean v. Welsh, 17 Ala. 772; Blakeslee v. Mobile L. Ins. Co., 57 Ala. 205; Watkins v. Wassell, 15 Ark. 73; Sherwood v. Barlow, 19 Conn. 476; DeWolf v. Haydn, 24 Ill. 525; King v. Gilson, 32 Ill. 348; 83 Am. Dec. 269; Hitchcock v. Fortier, 65 Ill. 239; Pratt v. Pratt, 96 Ill. 184; Hoppin v. Hoppin, 96 Ill. 265; Hannah v. Collins, 94 Ind. 201; Logan v. Moore, 7 Dana (Ky.) 76; Read v. Fogg, 60 Me. 479; Funk v. Newcomer, 10 Md. 316; Wade v. Lindsay, 6 Met. (Mass.) 413; Gibbs v. Thayer, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 30; Farnum v. Peterson, 111 Mass. 148; Lee v. Clary, 38 Mich. 223; Hooper v. Henry, 31 Minn. 264; Thorndike v. Norris, 24 N. H. 454; Jewell v. Porter, 31 N. H. 30; Hayes v. Tabor, 41 N. H. 521; Gough v. Bell, 21 N. J. L. 156; Brundred v. Walker, 12 N. J. Eq. 140; Vreeland v. Blanvelt, 23 N. J. Eq. 483; Kellogg v. Wood, 4 Paige (N. Y.) 578; Mickles v. Dillayo, 15 Hun (N. Y.) 206; Bell v. Adams, 81 N. Car. 118; Patterson v. Pease, 5 Ohio 190; Scott v. Douglass, 7 Ohio 227; Barton v. Morris, 15 Ohio 408; Pollock v. Speidel, 27 Ohio St. 86; Broadwell v. Phillips, 30 Ohio St. 255; Hart v. Gregg, 32 Ohio St. 502; Taggart v. Risley, 3 Oregon 306; 4 Oregon 235; Wilson v. McEwan, 7 Oregon 87; Potter v. Potter, 1 R. I. 44; Bailey v. Hoppin, 12 R. I. 560; Wingo v. Parker, 19 S. Car. 9; Robertson v. Gaines, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 383; Coal Creek Min. etc. Co. v. Ross, 12 Lea (Tenn.) 1; Ackerman v. Smiley, 37 Tex. 211; Cross v. Martin, 46 Vt. 14; Goodenough v. Fellows, 53 Vt. 102; Raines v. Walker, 77 Va. 92; Mann v. Young, 1 Wash. Ter. 454; Mitchell v. Petty, 2 W. Va. 470; 98 Am. Dec. 777; Pierce v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 24 Wis. 553; 1 Am. Rep. 203; Wilsner v. Zaun, 39 Wis. 188.

What Covenants Work an Estoppel—General Warranty.—In most States the covenant of general warranty is held not only to estop the grantor and his heirs from setting up an after acquired title but also actually to transfer the estate subsequently acquired, as if it had passed by the deed in the first instance. Kennedy v. McCartney, 4 Port. (Ala.) 141; Hoyt v. Dimon, 5 Day (Conn.) 479; Dudley v. Cadwell, 19 Conn. 226;

Ragg v. Cook, 9 Ill. 348; Jones v. King, 25 Ill. 334; Gochenour v. Mowry, 33 Ill. 333; Thomas v. Stickle, 32 Iowa 72; Massie v. Sebastian, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 436; Logan v. Steele, 4 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 433; Dickerson v. Talbot, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 49; Lawry v. Williams, 13 Me. 281; Baxter v. Bradbury, 20 Me. 260; 37 Am. Dec. 49; Pike v. Galvin, 29 Me. 183; Williams v. Thurlow, 31 Me. 395; Somes v. Skinner, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 52; Comstock v. Smith, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 116; 23 Am. Dec. 670; Ruggles v. Barton, 13 Gray (Mass.) 506; Knight v. Thayer, 125 Mass. 25; Huzzey v. Heffernan, 143 Mass. 232; Thorndike v. Norris, 24 N. H. 454; Jewell v. Porter, 31 N. H. 39; Kimball v. Blaisdell, 5 N. H. 533; 22 Am. Dec. 476; Wark v. Willard, 13 N. H. 389; Kimball v. Schoff, 40 N. H. 190; Moore v. Rake, 26 N. J. L. 574; Jackson v. Wright, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 193; Jackson v. Winslow, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 18; Jackson v. Bradford, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 622; Sparrow v. Kingman, 1 N. Y. 246; Rathbun v. Rathbun, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 107; Bank of Utica v. Mersereau, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 567; 49 Am. Dec. 189; Wellborn v. Finley, 7 Jones (N. Car.) 238; Brown v. McCormick, 6 Watts (Pa.) 60; 31 Am. Dec. 450; Davis v. Keller, 5 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 434; Harrison v. Boring, 44 Tex. 255; Middlebury College v. Cheney, 1 Vt. 349; Blake v. Tucker, 12 Vt. 44.

A special warranty is held to have the same effect as to this as a general warranty. Kimball v. Blaisdell, 5 N. H. 533; 22 Am. Dec. 476.

Special Warranty.—Where the conveyance is by way of release or quitclaim, or merely of the "right, title, and interest" of the grantor, it is clear that a covenant of special warranty will work no estoppel as regards an after acquired title, for such covenant concerns only the title the grantor then had, which alone was intended to pass by the deed. Tillotson v. Kennedy, 5 Ala. 413; 39 Am. Dec. 330; Loomis v. Pingree, 43 Me. 299, 313; Comstock v. Smith, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 116; Trull v. Eastman, 3 Met. (Mass.) 121; Chauvin v. Wagner, 18 Mo. 553; Bell v. Twilight, 26 N. H. 401; Western Min. etc. Co. v. Peytona Cannel Coal Co., 8 W. Va. 450; Lamb v. Kamm, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 238.

But if the deed purports to convey the premises described, and not merely the grantor's interest therein, then, although there be no general warranty against claims of third parties, it may be argued that the retention of an after acquired title by the grantor would be inconsistent with his covenant of special warranty against the claims of himself, or others claiming under him, to the premises intended to be conveyed, and that in such a case a covenant of special warranty ought to work an estoppel. Such appears to be the decision in Kimball v. Blaisdell, 5 N. H. 533, 22 Am. Dec. 476.

If the covenant of warranty be against the claims of a particular person only, the covenantor is not estopped from setting up a title afterwards acquired from any other source. Quirey v. Baker, 37 Cal. 471.

And if the claim of a particular person be excepted from the covenant of warranty, the covenantor is not estopped from setting up a title afterwards acquired from such person or others claiming under him. Fields v. Squires, Deady (U. S.) 380; Lamb v. Wakefield, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 251.

Further Assurance.—In Bennett v. Waller, 23 Ill. 97, and Pierce v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 24 Wis. 543, 1 Am. Rep. 203, the same effect was given to a covenant for further assurance, but in Hope v. Stone, 10 Minn. 141, and Chauvin v. Wagner, 18 Mo. 531, it was held to create an equitable right only.

Seisin, Right to Convey, Quiet Enjoyment.—It has been held that the covenants for seisin, right to convey, and quiet enjoyment give rise to no estoppel. Allen v. Sayward, 5 Me. 227; 17 Am. Dec. 221; Doane v. Willcutt, 5 Gray (Mass.) 333.

But in Wightman v. Reynolds, 24 Miss. 675, covenants for good right to convey and for quiet enjoyment were held to pass an after acquired title.

And in Irvine v. Irvine, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 618, where the subsequent confirmation by patent, of the title originally conveyed, inured to the grantee's benefit, the court by Strong, J., said obiter: "It is a general rule that when one makes a deed of land, covenanting therein that he is the owner, and subsequently acquires an outstanding and adverse title, his new acquisition inures to the benefit of the grantee, on the principle of estoppel. As the deed to the plaintiff in this case contained an assertion that he was well seised in fee, and had good right to sell and convey in fee, it would not be difficult, were it necessary, to show that in taking the however, be allowed to affect the rights of subsequent purchasers or mortgagees for value of the after acquired estate, who have no notice of the prior conveyance or mortgage patent he was in law acting for the grantee."

In Ontario, the covenant for seisin is held to work an estoppel merely as to an after acquired title. Doe v. Myer, 2 U. Can., Q. B. 424; Doe v. Webster, 2 U. Can., Q. B. 224; McLain v. Laidlaw, 2 U. Can., Q. B. 222; Trust Co. v. Ruttan, 1 Duval 564.

Non-claim.—In Maine the covenant of non-claim is held to create no estoppel. Pike v. Galvin, 29 Me. 185; Loomis v. Pingree, 43 Me. 314; Harriman v. Gray, 49 Me. 538. Even when joined with a covenant against incumbrances. Sweetser v. Dowell, 33 Me. 452; Partridge v. Patten, 33 Me. 483; 54 Am. Dec. 633.

But in Massachusetts it does not differ as to this from a covenant of warranty. Trull v. Eastman, 3 Met. (Mass.) 121; 37 Am. Dec. 126; Miller v. Ewing, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 34.

Other Covenants.—A covenant that "any further or additional title" shall inure to the grantee, passes the after acquired title. Phelps v. Kellogg, 15 Ill. 132.

The covenant of an heir-at-law, being sole devisee, that the property shall pass as if by intestacy, has been held to vest the title in the heirs generally. Bean v. Walsh, 17 Ala. 771.

In Wright v. Shumway, 1 Biss. (U.S.) 23, an agreement (in a deed for a pre-emption right) to mortgage the premises when title was obtained, was held to create an equitable lien.

Estoppel by Implied Covenants.—The statutory covenants implied in Illinois are held to pass an after acquired title. D'Wolf v. Haydn, 24 Ill. 525; King v. Gilson, 32 Ill. 352; 83 Am. Dec. 269; Pratt v. Pratt, 96 Ga. 184.

But in Missouri they do not have this effect. Chauvin v. Wagner, 18 Mo. 531. A fortiori when the right, title, and interest only is conveyed. Gibson v. Chouteau, 39 Mo. 566; Butcher v. Rogers, 60 Mo. 138.

Where a widow, falsely claiming to be the guardian of her minor children and authorized to sell their interest (a remainder after her life estate) in certain property, sold the same by virtue of her own right and as a guardian, the statutory covenants did not estop the children, but they were liable thereon to the extent of the property inherited from her. Foote v. Clark, 102 Mo. 394.

1. Ordinarily, the absence of record notice of the prior conveyance or mortgage will prevent its operation by way of estoppel, as against third parties. It is universally admitted that a purchaser is not required to search the record for conveyance by his vendor before the latter's title began, but a strict application of the doctrine of estoppel as stated in the text would necessitate a search against every prior owner of the premises, for an indefinite period before he took title, if reasonable certainty as to the state of the title is to be attained. Such a search is practically an impossibility, and will not be required. Hence it is held that the record of a conveyance or mortgage made before the grantor or mortgagor had a valid title to the premises is not constructive notice to a purchaser or mortgagee of the after acquired estate. Dodd v. Williams, 3 Mo. App. 278.

The same doctrine holds in favor of a purchaser at a sheriff's sale of the after acquired estate under a judgment. Calder v. Chapman, 52 Pa. St. 359; 91 Am. Dec. 163. In this case, it must be observed, the defendants seem to have relied on an estoppel resulting from a mortgage of the premises, and not an estoppel by force of the covenants therein.

A fortiori this doctrine holds where the defective deed or mortgage has not even been recorded. Burke v. Beveridge, 15 Minn. 206; Smith v. Williams, 44 Mich. 240, dictum of Cooley, C. J.

In Potts v. Dowdall, 3 Houst. (Del.) 369; 11 Am. Rep. 757, a purchaser of an invalid title was in possession, and this fact was held to be actual notice of the conveyance to him, sufficient to make the estoppel effectual against a purchaser of the after acquired estate.

It is contended by Mr. Rawle (Covenants, 5th ed., § 261) that the transference of estates by estoppel, whether by virtue of the covenants or under the statutes referred to supra, p. 1021, n. 5, tends to make titles less secure than they should be, and that no purchaser or mortgagee should be bound by a

This extreme doctrine of estoppel results in preventing the covenantee from proceeding on his covenants,¹ unless he has been actually evicted,² or has never been given possession,³ but it is not held to force him to take the property volens volens.⁴

An after acquired estate will not inure to the benefit of the original grantee or mortgagee when the latter has no right of action on the covenants;⁵ except in the case of covenants by persons state of facts not appearing of record in his line of title, notice from possession being often inadequate especially as against mortgagees.

If title by estoppel be allowed to prevail over title by matter of record, then "it necessarily tends to give to a vendee who has been careless enough to buy what the grantor has not got to sell, a preference over subsequent purchasers who have expended their money, in good faith and without being guilty of negligence." Note to Duchess of Kingston's Case, 2 Sm. Lead. Cas. (8th Am. ed.) 848.

In Way v. Arnold, 18 Ga. 181, the court said: "We are strongly inclined to the opinion that our registry acts, under the modern form of conveyancing, are a virtual repeal of the doctrine of estoppel," but this extreme doctrine of estoppel never seems to have been held in Georgia. O'Bannon v. Paramour, 24 Ga. 493, does not state that the title passed by estoppel.

1. Hence if the grantor has acquired title subsequently to his grant, even after suit brought, nominal damages only can be recovered in an action on the covenants; and even though the action be on the covenant for seisin, which does not operate by way of estoppel, and the estoppel result from the covenant of warranty. King v. Gilson, 32 Ill. 348; 83 Am. Dec. 269; Baxter v. Bradbury, 20 Me. 260; 37 Am. Dec. 49; Cornell v. Jackson, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 506; Reese v. Smith, 12 Mo. 344; M'Carty v. Leggett, 3 Hill (N. Y.) 134; Knowles v. Kennedy, 82 Pa. St. 445.

2. Burton v. Reed, 20 Ind. 87; Blanchard v. Ellis, 1 Gray (Mass.) 195; 61 Am. Dec. 417; Tucker v. Clarke, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 96; Bingham v. Weiderwax, 1 N. Y. 513.

3. Noonan v. Ilsley, 21 Wis. 139.

4. On the theory that this estoppel is designed to prevent circuity of action and to avoid the necessity of requiring an actual new conveyance to the covenantee, it follows that as his right to call for a conveyance is purely equitable, and equity would not require him to take the estate in case it had depreciated in value since the original grant was made (in which case he might prefer to recover full damages on the covenants), so the estoppel itself should not be allowed to operate to the covenantee's disadvantage against his will. Tucker v. Clarke, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 96; Woods v. North, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 310; 44 Am. Dec. 312.

It should not be overlooked, however, that if the theory of avoiding circuity of action be given up, and the estoppel be based on the intention of the parties, which is the latest view (see supra, this title, p. 1021, note 5,) then, as the intention was to convey the estate granted at the time of the grant, this intention must be carried out as of that time, whether the property has actually depreciated in value since that time or not.

5. Thus if right of action on the covenants never existed, or has been released or extinguished, or has otherwise ceased, it has been held that there will be no estoppel. Smiley v. Fries, 104 Ill. 416; Goodell v. Bennett, 22 Wis. 565.

Similarly, if the covenant be made to assure a grant of "the right, title, and interest" of the grantor merely, and not of the land itself or any particular estate therein. Gee v. Moore, 14 Cal. 474; Kimball v. Semple, 25 Cal. 452; Holbrook v. Debo, 99 Ill. 372; Shumaker v. Johnson, 35 Ind. 33; Locke v. White, 89 Ind. 492; Derby v. Jones, 27 Me. 361; Coe v. Persons Unknown, 43 Me. 436; Blanchard v. Brooks, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 67; Comstock v. Smith, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 116; 23 Am. Dec. 670; Wright v. Shaw, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 56; Miller v. Ewing, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 34; Hoxie v. Finney, 16 Gray (Mass.) 332; Sanford v. Sanford, 135 Mass. 314; Hope v. Stone, 10 Minn. 149; Bogy v. Shoat, 13 Mo. 365; Valle v. Clemens, 18 Mo. 486; Hall v. Chaffee, 14 N. H. 215; Adams v. Ross, adjudged bankrupts before they acquire the title,¹ and (in a few States) by married women,² as also where the after acquired title has been assigned,³ and apparently where all right of action on the covenants is barred by the Statute of Limitations.⁴ These exceptions seem to indicate that this extreme doctrine of estoppel is not really based on the avoidance of circuity of action.⁵

30 N. J. L. 509; 82 Am. Dec. 237 (reversing 28 N. J. L. 160); White v. Brockaw, 14 Ohio St. 339; Wynn v. Harman, 5 Gratt. (Va.) 162; Lewis v. Baird, 3 McLean (U. S.) 78; Hanrick v. Patrick, 119 U. S. 156.

So in the case of express or implied exceptions from the grant. Gill v. Grand Tower Min. etc. Co., 92 Ill. 249; Brigham v. Smith, 4 Gray (Mass.) 297.

So where the deed is defectively executed. Kercheval v. Triplett, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 494; Connor v. McMurray, 2 Allen (Mass.) 204; Patterson v. Pease, 5 Ohio 191; Wallace v. Miner, 6 Ohio 370.

So where the after acquired title be founded on a disseisin of the covenantee or those claiming under him followed by adverse possession until the Statute of Limitations has run. Franklin v. Dorland, 28 Cal. 180; 87 Am. Dec. 111; Hines v. Robinson, 57 Me. 330; 99 Am. Dec. 772; Stearns v. Hendersass, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 497; 57 Am. Dec. 65; Tilton v. Emery, 17 N. H. 536; Sherman v. Kane, 46 N. Y. Super. Ct. 310; Johnson v. Farlow, 13 Ired. (N. Car.) 84; Reynolds v. Cathens, 5 Jones (N. Car.) 437.

1. A discharge in bankruptcy does not prevent a covenant made before bankruptcy from operating by way of estoppel upon a title acquired afterwards. Stewart v. Anderson, 10 Ala. 504; Dorsey v. Gassaway, 2 Harr. & J. (Md.) 411; 3 Am. Dec. 557; Chamberlain v. Meeder, 16 N. H. 384; Gregory v. Peoples, 80 Va. 355.

In Bush v. Person, 18 How. (U. S.) 82 (affirming 26 Miss. 599), it was laid down by Curtis, J., that this estoppel operates by virtue of the agreement to convey, and that the covenant is not necessary to support it.

2. In Fowler v. Shearer, 7 Mass. 21 and Colcord v. Swan, 7 Mass. 291, it was stated obiter that if a married woman join with her husband in the covenants for title in a conveyance of her own property (as distinguished from cases where she joins merely to bar her dower), she will be estopped from setting up an after acquired title. Though approved (also obiter) in Nash v. Spofford, 10 Met. (Mass.) 192; 43 Am. Dec. 425, and Doane v. Willcutt, 5 Gray (Mass.) 332; 66 Am. Dec. 369, the correctness of this doctrine was disputed in Wight v. Shaw, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 65, and denied in Knight v. Thayer, 125 Mass. 25, though the last case held that there was such an estoppel because married women had been made liable on their contracts by statute.

Fowler v. Shearer, 7 Mass. 21, and Colcord v. Swan, 7 Mass. 291, have, however, been cited as authority in a few cases in other States, and the decisions in King v. Rea, 56 Ind. 1; Beal v. Beall, 79 Ind. 280, and Hill v. West, 8 Ohio 222; 31 Am. Dec. 442, uphold the doctrine. See also Fletcher v. Coleman, 2 Head (Tenn.) 384.

The contrary view, that where a married woman is not liable on her covenants she cannot be estopped by them, seems, however, to prevail. Barker v. Circle, 60 Mo. 263; Wadleigh v. Glines, 6 N. H. 18; 23 Am. Dec. 705; Den v. Demarest, 21 N. J. L. 525; Jackson v. Vanderheyden, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 167; 8 Am. Dec. 378; Martin v. Dwelly, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 14; 21 Am. Dec. 245; Carpenter v. Schermerhorn, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 314; Dominick v. Michael, 4 Sandf. (N. Y.) 424; Grout v. Townsend, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 557; Edwards v. Davenport, 4 McCrary (U. S.) 34. See also Gonzales v. Hukil, 49 Ala. 260; 20 Am. Rep. 282.

In some States this matter is regulated by statute. See, in general, title MARRIED WOMEN, vol. 14, p. 589.

3. Powers v. Patten, 71 Me. 583; Knight v. Thayer, 125 Mass. 25; Tefft v. Munson, 57 N. Y. 97; Brown v. McCormick, 6 Watts (Pa.) 60; 31 Am. Dec. 450. But see supra, p. 1024, note 1, as to the necessity of notice to assignees.

4. Cole v. Raymond, 9 Gray (Mass.) 217.

5. See Bush v. Person, 18 How. (U. S.) 82. The basis of the doctrine is

The doctrine of estoppel by covenants is sometimes applied in confirmation of a grant in other cases than those of an after-acquired title.¹

REAL EFFECTS.—See EFFECTS, vol. 6, p. 174.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS.—See BROKERS, vol. 2, p. 592.

REALIZE.—See note 2.

discussed at length in Rawle, Covenants (5th ed.), § 254.

1. Where the covenants referred to more land than was covered by the words of the grant, the grantor has been held to be estopped from denying an intention to pass the quantity covenanted for. Long Island R. Co. v. Conklin, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 381; Kilmer v. Wilson, 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 88; Tyson v. Passmore, 2 Pa. St. 122; 44 Am. Dec. 181; Steiner v. Baughman, 12 Pa. St. 106.

And where a deed contained no words of grant whatever, the covenants were held to estop the party making it from denying that a grant was intended. Brown v. Manter, 21 N. H. 528; 53 Am. Dec. 223.

The same result followed as to a grant in fee where the word "heirs" was omitted from the habendum, but contained in the covenant of special warranty. Shaw v. Galbraith, 7 Pa. St. 111.

It was held in Foss v. Strachn, 42 N. H. 40, and Strachn v. Foss, 42 N. H. 43, that where a homestead had been mortgaged with covenants of warranty, though for a debt existing before the homestead right accrued, by one who had minor children, he and his children were, during his lifetime, estopped from claiming against the mortgage. In Doyle v. Coburn, 6 Allen (Mass.) 71, the mortgage was absolutely void, because executed by the husband alone, and hence the question of estoppel did not properly arise.

Where a State granted land with covenants of warranty to an alien, his heirs and assigns, it was held that "this deed must operate as a rebutter, as it would if an individual was the grantor; and with more reason, because the commonwealth is not liable to an action." Com. v. Andre, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 224.

Authorities.—Rawle, Covenants for Title (5th ed.), 1887; Platt, Covenants (Am. ed.), 1834; Hamilton, Covenants, 1888; Sugden (St. Leonards), Vendors and Purchasers, 14th ed. (2d Am. ed.), 1873; Dart, Vendors and Purchasers (6th ed.), 1888; Notes to Spencer's Case, 1 Smith's Leading Cases, 8th Am. ed. (Hare & Wallace's Notes), 1885, 9th Am. ed. 1888.

2. Realize; Realized.—An article of association of a building and investment society provided that "no dividend shall be payable except out of the realized profits arising from the business of the company." Upon the interpretation of the word "realize" as here used, the court by Kay, J., said: "'Realized,' must have its ordinary commercial meaning, which, if not equivalent to 'reduced to actual cash in hand,' must at least be 'rendered tangible for the purpose of division.' The article is in a negative form. It is a prohibition against payment and against the payment of dividends except out of realized profits arising from the business of the company. The precise thing intended to be prohibited is the payment of dividends in respect of 'estimated' profits as distinguished from 'realized.' The meaning of the word in this article is the direct converse of the word 'estimated.'" In re Oxford Ben. etc. Soc., L. R., 35 Ch. D. 502; 17 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 179.

A purchaser of land agreed to pay the vendor a percentage in case he "realized" a specified sum of money for the land upon a future sale. It was held that the purchaser became bound to pay the percentage the moment a responsible person, in good faith, offered that amount for the land. Lorillard v. Silver, 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 132.

Where the plaintiff was to be paid "out of the first money and government scrip realized" by the defendant from the sale of certain lands, an executory contract for the sale of such lands does not make the defendant liable upon his contract. Stanford v. Greene Co., 18 Iowa 218.

The payee of a draft assigned it to one who gave his promissory note;

REAL PROPERTY.¹—(See also CONVERSION, vol. 4, p. 104; CROPS, vol. 4, p. 887; EASEMENTS, vol. 6, p. 139; ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 875; FIXTURES, vol. 8, p. 41; FRAUDS, STATUTE OF, vol. 8, p. 657; INCORPoreal HEREDITAMENTS, vol. 10, p. 352; LANDLORD AND TENANT, vol. 12, p. 658, and various other specific references in the following analysis.)

- I. Definition—Real Things, 1029.
- II. Rights in Real Things, 1035.
 1. Tenures (or Modes of Exercising Rights in Real Things), 1035.
 2. Rights in Real Things Treated in Regard to the Quantity of Estates (See ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 875; LANDLORD AND TENANT, vol. 12, p. 658).
 3. Real Rights Treated with Reference to their Qualification, 1043.
 - a. Qualifications Relating to Quantity of Estate, 1043.
 - (1) Conditions at Common Law, 1043.
 - (2) Limitations at Common Law, 1047.
 - (3) Limitations Under the Statutes of Uses and Wills—Common Law Rules of Limitation, 1056.
 - b. Qualifications Relating to the Right of Enjoyment, 1056.
 - (1) Uses, 1056.
 - (a) Definition, 1056.
 - (b) Importance in Modern Law, 1057.
 - (c) Origin, 1057.
 - (d) Development and Incidents Before the Statute of Uses, 1058.
 - (e) Statute of Uses, 1060.
 - (aa) Aim and Purpose, 1060.
 - (bb) Effect of Statute, 1066.
 - (cc) Modes of Conveyancing Under the Statute, 1068.
 - (2) Trusts (See TRUSTS), 1069.
 4. Real Rights Treated with Reference to the Time of Their Enjoyment, 1069.
 - a. Estates in Possession (See REMAINDERS; REVERSIONS), 1069.
 - b. Estates in Expectancy (See REMAINDERS; REVERSIONS), 1069.
 5. Real Rights Treated with Reference to the Number and Connection of Their Owners, 1069.
 - a. Estates in Severalty (See ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 875), 1069.
 - b. Estates with a Plurality of Tenants, 1069.
 - (1) Joint Tenancy (See JOINT TENANTS AND TENANTS IN COMMON, vol. 11, p. 146), 1069.
 - (2) Tenancy in Common (See JOINT TENANTS AND TENANTS IN COMMON, vol. 11, p. 146), 1070.
 - (3) Tenancy in Coparcenary (See COPARCENARY, vol. 4, p. 146), 1070.
 6. Real Rights Treated with Reference to the Manner of Acquisition; or Title, 1070.
 - a. Nature of Title (See TITLE), 1070.
 - b. Title by Descent (See STATUTES OF DISTRIBUTION), 1070.

the payee agreeing to release the assignee from paying the note in case he should be unable to "collect or realize" on the draft. The assignee afterwards became indebted to the drawer. Held, that until a suit should be brought by the drawer, enabling the assignee to set off the draft against the debt, it could not be predicated that the assignee had been able to "realize" on the draft by means of the indebtedness. Hall v. Henderson, 84 Ill. 611.

1. Scope of Article.—It appears expedient to explain briefly, in advance, the scope of the article which falls under the title Real Property.

The purpose has, in the main, been twofold:

1. To present an outline of the divisions into which a discussion of the law of real property naturally falls,—an outline at once logical in plan, and of practical use with reference to the arrangement of this work, in which special branches of the law of real property are treated under numerous separate titles.

- c. Title by Purchase Other than Alienation, 1070.
- (1) Title by Escheat (See ESCHEAT, vol. 6, p. 854), 1070.
 - (2) Title by Occupancy (See ABANDONMENT, vol. 1, p. 1; TITLE), 1070.
 - (3) Title by Adverse Possession (See ADVERSE POSSESSION, vol. 1, p. 225), 1070.
 - (4) Title by Estoppel (See ESTOPPEL, vol. 7, p. 1), 1070.
 - (5) Title by Prescription (See PRESCRIPTION), 1070.
 - (6) Title by Forfeiture (See FORFEITURE, vol. 8, p. 443), 1070.
 - (7) Title by Accretion (See ACCRETION, vol. 1, p. 136), 1070.
- d. Title by Alienation Inter Vivos, or Title by Grant, 1070.
- (1) Title by Public Grant (See GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 43), 1070.
 - (2) Title by Office Grant (See GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 43), 1070.
- (3) Title by Private Grant (See DEDICATION, vol. 5, p. 395), 1070.
- (a) Persons Capable of Making and Receiving Grants (See GRANTOR AND GRANTEE, vol. 9, p. 19), 1070.
 - (b) Modes of Conveyance, 1070.
 - (aa) In General, 1070.
 - (bb) Bargain and Sale, 1074.
 - (cc) Lease and Release — Quit Claim, 1075.
 - (dd) Statutory Modes of Conveyance, 1075.
 - (ee) General Requirements — Seal, 1076.
 - (c) Deeds (See DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 423; ESCROW, vol. 6, p. 857; LEASE, vol. 12, p. 974; RE-LEASE), 1076.
 - (e) Title by Devise (See LEGACIES AND DEVISES, vol. 13, p. 7; WILLS), 1076.

I. DEFINITION—REAL THINGS.—Are such as can be comprehended under the terms lands, tenements, and hereditaments; an accurate definition is: such things as are held in frank tenement or descend to the heir.¹

2. To discuss, in addition to the precise subject of Real Property, or real things in the strict sense, those sections of the law of real property whose special importance lies in their introductory and expository relation to the whole system, the particular branches of which under the titles by which they are commonly associated in the mind of the practitioner, are treated in their respective alphabetical positions in the various branches of this work.

The introductory sections which are included in this article are the subjects of Tenures; of Conditions and Limitations, and of Uses.

Finally, as being naturally appended to the subject of Uses, there is added a review of Modes of Conveyancing in use in the United States.

In the preparation of the outline, the plan of Professor Minor (Institutes of the Common and Statute Law, vol. 2) has been consulted more particularly than that of any other authority.

1. The term "lands, tenements and hereditaments" is a series of names of which each succeeding one is broader than the preceding; yet the last is not inclusive even of the first.

The first and second seem to be most closely connected.

The plan of the phrase apparently is: that the first gives the physical object which lies at the foundation of all real property, all the rights in which, however, are not included in real property; the second term mentions the class of things by a name which refers not to their physical nature, but to the peculiar manner in which they are held, viz.: tenements; the term being, however, not coincident with the first, but (1) inclusive of "lands" in so far as the interests therein are "real property" and (2) larger than "lands," including certain other rights capable of tenure, such as offices.

Finally "hereditaments" is the largest term of all. Yet it does not include all the former, since there are certain estates in tenements which are, in their nature, not capable of inheritance, such as an estate for life, yet have all the incidents of real property.

In this country, both by statute and common law, the term "real estate" is generally used for the phrase "lands, tenements and hereditaments."¹

Hereditaments alone would not, therefore, cover the ground. But all estates which constitute real property beside hereditaments are of freehold.

Hence one arrives naturally at the definition of real things, viz.: things which are held in frank tenement, or descend to the heir. See, generally Challis, R. P. 36; 2 Bl. Com. 17; Washb. R. P. *2.

1. The term "estate" is here used in a sense other than the technically correct one, which is a denomination of the measure of interest. In some of the States, the terms "land" and "real estate" are said to include lands, tenements, and hereditaments and all rights thereto or interests therein. See Mass. Gen. Sts., ch. 3, § 70; Iowa Code, subd. 8, § 45. In others, the term "real estate" includes chattels real. Mo. Rev. Sts., ch. 32, par. 49. See Boone's Real Property, § 1.

In New York, 1 R. S. 750, § 10, the terms "real estate" and "lands" are coextensive in meaning with lands, tenements and hereditaments. See Pelletreau v. Smith, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 494. See Code Civ. Proc., § 3343, subd. 6; Penal Code, § 718, subd. 14. See Wright v. Douglass, 2 N. Y. 376; Floyd v. Carew, 88 N. Y., 560; distinguished in Riker v. Cromwell, 113 N. Y. 127. See Merry v. Hallett, 2 Conn. 497.

It must be noted that in many statutes the term is used for special purposes, or couched in a phraseology such as to limit its meaning. Thus, as to the meaning of the term, in 2 R. S. (N. Y.) 194, § 170, which allows an infant "seized of any real estate, or entitled to any terms for years in any land" to apply for sale or disposition thereof, see Jenkins v. Fahey, 73 N. Y., 361, where it was held to include every remainder that is vested in fee.

The term as used in regard to "Descent" is but an elaboration of the common-law definition, with a special clause of exclusive reference to estate descendible. 1 R. S. 754, § 27. See also L. 1843, § 5.

In the act relating to "Recording Deeds" the term is coextensive in meaning with lands, tenements and hereditaments, and embraces all chattels real, except leases for a term not exceeding three years. 1 R. S. 762, §

36. See Weaver v. Edwards, 39 Hun (N. Y.) 233.

It is also important to distinguish the term real estate as used in the statute regulating the assessment of taxes.

This statute declares that the term "land," as therein used, shall be construed to include the land itself; all buildings and other articles erected upon or affixed to the same; all trees and underwood growing thereon, and all mines, quarries, fossils in and under the same, except mines belonging to the State. The terms "land" and "real estate," wherever they occur in this chapter, shall be construed as having the same meaning as the term land as defined.

In Burrill v. Mayor etc., 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 552, it was held that incorporeal hereditaments are not land within the meaning of the statute. The court added: "We are obliged to decide that all incorporeal hereditaments whatever are, by a singular omission in the statute, exempt from contributing their just proportion to the public burdens."

As used in L. (N. Y.) 1843, ch. 87, confirming titles of aliens, "real estate" comprehends equitable as well as legal estate. L. (N. Y.) 1843, p. 63, ch. 87, § 5.

In general, when applied to an interest in lands, or other real property, the term includes all estates, or interests in such real property, which are held for life or some greater estate, but does not embrace terms for years and other chattel interests in land. Westervelt v. People, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 416; aff'd 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 673. See Jackson v. Parker, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 73, 81; Jackson v. Catlin, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 248.

By the Civil Code of California, § 657, property is either (1) real or immovable; or (2) personal or movable.

Section 658. Real or immovable property consists of: (1) land; (2) that which is affixed to land; (3) that which is incidental or appurtenant to land; (4) that which is immovable by law.

Section 659. Land is the solid material of the earth, whatever may be the ingredients of which it is composed; whether soil, rock, or other substances.

Section 660. A thing is deemed to be affixed to land when it is attached to it by roots, as in the case of trees, vines or shrubs; or imbedded in it, as in the case of walls; or permanently resting upon it, as in the case of buildings; or permanently attached to what is thus permanent, as by means of cement, plaster, nails, bolts, or screws.

Section 662. A thing is deemed to be incidental or appurtenant to land when it is by right used with the land for its benefit; as in the case of a way, or water-course, or of a passage for air, light, or heat from or across the land of another.

Section 663. Every kind of property that is not real or personal.

Railroad Erections.—Under Maine Rev. Stat., ch. 6, § 4, regulating the taxation of railroad corporations, "the track of the road and the land on which it is constructed shall not, for the purposes of taxation, be deemed real estate." In P. S. & P. R. Co. v. Saco, it was held that "this immunity was limited to the franchise, or right of way over the strip of land prescribed in the charter of the corporation, and to the track of the railroad constructed thereon, and does not include the depots, engine-houses, turn-tables, car-houses, and other buildings or erections." See also Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 563; Phila. & Wjl. R. R. v. Maryland, 10 How. (U. S.) 393.

In Melhop v. Meinhart, 70 Iowa 685, it was held that a leasehold interest in land is real estate within the meaning of § 45, par. 8 of the Code of Iowa. See for construction of mortgagee as an owner of real estate under Rev. (Iowa), of 1860, §§ 1314-31, Severin v. Cole, 38 Iowa 463. See also White v. Butt, 32 Iowa 335.

It has been held that under the tax laws of Ohio of 1876, where, in consideration of a gross sum in advance, an estate for years renewable forever is granted in realty, it is real and not personal property. Cincinnati College v. Yeatman, 30 Ohio St. 276.

In Governor and Co. of the Chelsea Water Works v. Bowley, 17 Q. B. 358, the court discussing the right of a company to lay pipes in the streets, roads, etc., as taxable property, said: "The right in question, where exercised, appears to us to be in the nature of an easement and neither land nor hereditament, . . . the mere power to lay the pipes in land cannot be considered land or hereditaments." But this decision seems to have had special reference to the Land Tax Act, 38 Geo. III., ch. 3, which, in speaking of lands and hereditaments, contemplated "property to be let by a landlord to a tenant, and property, the land tax of which might be redeemed." Its scope was "to throw the tax as a charge upon the landlord," the tenant, having paid the tax, being authorized to deduct it out of the rent. The decision in regard to the interest of the company in the land was based on the fact that they were not tenants of the land, and that there was no rent from which they could deduct the amount of the assessment when they had paid it.

Lord Campbell further says: "Land . . . has various meanings; it may . . . mean the ground on which the chattel is deposited in the exercise of an easement, although in other acts of Parliament, it means a legal interest in the soil." The latter meaning was construed by the court to hold for this case. See Rex v. Corporation of Bath, 14 East (Eng.) 609; Rex v. Brighton Gas Light Co., 5 B. & C. (Eng.) 466; Rex v. Chelsea Water Works Co., 5 B. & Ad. (Eng.) 156. See especially Rex v. Shrewsbury, 3 B. & Ad. 216, holding directly contra.

In General.—In Wall v. Fairley, 77 N. Car. 105, it was held in regard to the term "real property," that while it may include equitable as well as legal estates, although they are such as cannot be sold under execution, it cannot be construed to cover land in which the party never had any estate or right, and as to which his creditors have only a right in equity to follow a personal fund which has been converted into land.

It was decided in Bowman v. People, 82 Ill. 246, that the interest which a purchaser of land at a sheriff's sale acquires in the land before the expiration of the period for redemption, does not come within the term "real estate." It is neither a legal nor an equitable estate in the land but a mere inceptive interest which, being contingent, may never become a title. It is a bid for the land, which may or may not become an interest in the soil.

English Authorities.—For a definition of "real estate," see Butler v. Butler, 54 L. J. Ch. 197; 28 Ch. D. 66. See Williams R. F., Introd. For the inclusion in a devise of "real estate," of leaseholds, by the force of the context or circumstances, see Swift v. Swift, 29 L. J. Ch. 121; 1 D. G. F. & J. 160; Gully v. Davis, 39 L. J. Ch. 684; L. R., 10 Eq. 562; Moase v. White, 3 Ch. D. 763; Re Davison, 32 L. J. 273; 58 L. T. 304.

In Atcherley v. Vernon, 10 Mod.

It will be noticed that the terms "lands," "tenements" and "hereditaments" are not exclusive of each other, as has been explained in the note; yet it will be convenient to treat of real things categorically under these heads.¹

Land is the surface of the earth, whatever is attached to it by nature or by the hand of man, and all that is contained within it or below it.²

Hereditaments are all things which may descend to the heir at the death of the owner. Hereditaments are commonly divided 518, it was held such a general devise included real estate contracted to be purchased by the testator, but not actually conveyed to him. But it will not include purchase money of property sold by the testator which he has not conveyed. See Knollys v. Shepherd, 1 Jac. & W. 499. Otherwise where the sale is demanded after his death under an option given in his lifetime. Drant v. Vanse, 11 L. J. Ch. 170. See also Re Staines, 55 L. J. Ch. 913; Morgan v. Crawshaw, L. R., 5 H. L. 304.

1. It would seem that to attempt an accurate generic description of the class of things which fall under the term real property, were an impracticable if not an impossible task. Even under the old English statutes the term was used with a varying meaning. To-day the term "real estate" not only applies to a different class of things in wills and in other instruments, but it has a special definition in each statutory enactment.

For such particular uses of the term, reference must be made to the special branches of the law, and to special statutes. See LEGACIES AND DEVISES, vol. 13, p. 7; CONVERSION, vol. 4, p. 104; SHARES; STATUTE OF FRAUDS; STATUTE OF DISTRIBUTION.

In general the term "personalty" has a wider meaning in the United States than in England, including shares of stock in railroad and canal companies and other evidences of value, not possessing intrinsic worth; per Darlington, Personal Property, p. 2. See Ang. & A. Corp., § 557; 2 Kent Com. 340. n.; Somerby v. Buntin, 118 Mass. 285. See SHARES.

2. See LAND, vol. 12, p. 655. See Washburn on Real Property, p. 2. See also Co. Litt. 4 a to 6 a. "Land includes whatever is parcel of the terrestrial globe or is temporarily affixed to any such parcel."

The old maxim was "Cujus est solum, cjus est usque ad cælum." See 2 Blackstone's Com. 17-19.

It is to be remembered that this definition of land and fixtures relates only to the things out of which real rights or estates may spring. The meaning of land as an estate is not here referred to.

There must be carefully distinguished land as the physical object, and land as the peculiar kind of property. Thus, the definition of land in the first sense includes many subjects of personal property, such as when there is an estate for years in land. So as regards fixtures, the definition describes only the physical requirements of that which may become real property according to the intention of the person who implants it.

For a definition of fixtures in the strict sense of real property, see FIXTURES, vol. 8, p. 41. See also the Introductory Chapter in Washburn on Real Property.

Quidquid plantatur in solo, solo cedit, is therefore not strictly true so far as the property in fixtures is concerned. It seems that things implanted by a person other than the owner of the soil will remain personalty where such was the agreement, express or implied, with the owner. See Washb. Real Prop., pp. 2-6. See Mathes v. Dobshuetz, 72 Ill. 438; 1 Hill Real Prop. 1, 5.

It is easy to distinguish three meanings of the word land: 1st, the meaning of the definition given in the text; 2d, land in its fullest possible signification as a class of objects, as derivable from the context of a will (see Challis on Real Property, p. 36; Westfalling v. Westfalling, 3 Atk. 460; Haslewood v. Cope, 3 P. Williams, 322); 3d, land as an estate in real things. See Washb. on Real Property, p. 2. See Johnson v. Richardson, 33 Miss. 462, according to which land when used to describe the quantity of into corporeal and incorporeal hereditaments. Corporeal hereditaments include land and such estates in land as are conveyed by livery of seisin.¹

Tenements properly means all things that can be held in tenure at the common law. It is a larger term than "lands," including, besides lands and rights issuing out of or concerning land, offices.² The conception of offices as tenements exists no longer in the American law, and need not be discussed.³

the estate is understood to denote a freehold estate.

1. See Land, supra. Mr. Challis (Real Property, p. 41) says: "The phrase includes only lands regarded as a physical object, and legal estates of inheritance in possession."

See HEREDITAMENTS, vol. 9, p. 359; INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS, vol. 10, p. 352; EASEMENTS, vol. 6, p. 139; HEIR-LOOMS, vol. 9, p. 357.

In Redburn v. Jervis, 3 Beav. 450, it was decided that a perpetual annuity granted to one and his heirs was personalty, although descendible to the heirs—as termed by Lord Hardwicke, a personal inheritance—on the authority of the Earl of Stafford v. Buckley, 2 Ves. Sr. 171, and Aubin v. Daly, 4 B. & Ald. 59.

2. See Co. Litt. 6 a, "Wherein a man hath any frank tenement and whereof he is seised ut de libero tenemento." See Challis on Real Property, p. 37. See infra, this article, Tenures, II, 1.

"The meaning," says Mr. Challis, p. 37, in regard to this sentence of Lord Coke's, "which the word actually bears is wider than that strictly contained in this definition (Co. Litt. 19 b; 20 a). The definition would strictly include only lands, such incorporeal hereditaments (seignories, peerages and dignities held by grand serjeanty) as are undoubtedly subjects of common-law tenure, advowsons in gross (Co. Litt. 85a.) and perhaps chief rents. But the word 'tenement' is in practice, with less obvious propriety, extended to include all rents-charge, commons in gross, estovers and other profits a prendre, owing to their close connection with land; also offices annexed to or exercisable within or over any lands or tenements, as the office of steward or bailiff of a manor, or ranger of a forest. It was also extended to include tithes in the hands of lay impropriators. See Rex v. Shingle, 1 Eag. & Y. 738; 1 Stra. 100. Rex v. Ellis, 3 Eag. & Y.

776; 3 Price 323; though by the common law these could not be in the hands of a lay person. (Sherwood v. Winchcomb, Cro. Eliz. 293, and Wright v. Wright, 2 Rep. 43; Serj. Moore's Rep. 425.) And it is the general rule that all hereditaments which savor of the land or realty are so far accounted tenements in law as to be entailable by virtue of the statute De Donis. It is material to observe that a thing may be a tenement for one purpose and not a tenement for another purpose; for example, a rent-charge is undoubtedly a tenement for the purpose of entail, but is not a tenement for the purposes of escheat."

The term has lost all its practical value to-day, except to denote the class of objects which may be (1) the subject of entail and (2) of escheat. The statute De Donis creating estates-tail refers only to tenements.

So escheat was exclusively an incident of tenure. The corresponding right of the Crown in personalty was prerogative, not seignorial. See Commonwealth v. Blanton's Ex'rs, 1 B. Mon. (Ky.) 397; Burgess v. Wheaton, 1 Eden 259.

Escheat therefore did not relate to hereditaments which were not the object of tenure, such as a rent-charge, a right of common, an equity of redemption. See Whart. L. Lex. See 2 Bl. Com. 84.

In the United States estates-tail have been abolished in most of the States. See ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 879. See also ESCHEAT, vol. 6, p. 855.

3. See INCORPOREAL HEREDITAMENTS, vol. 10, p. 357. See also PUBLIC OFFICERS.

It is even doubtful whether there can be any proprietary interest whatever in public offices in the United States.

As to the common law view, see Bac. Abr. Offices, 76: "if an office be granted to a man to have and enjoy so long as he shall behave himself well in it, the grantee has an estate of freehold in the office; for since nothing but his misbehavior can determine his interest, no man can prefix a shorter time than his life; since it must be his own act (which the law does not presume to foresee) which only can make it a state of shorter continuance than his life. So if the office be granted to a man quamdiu se bene gesserit tantum, the estate will not be less for the word tantum; for the grant is of equal extent with the former and his misbehavior in each case determines his interest." Co. Litt. 42; Roll. Abr. 844; Show. Parl. Cases 161.

There is no doubt that after services have been rendered under a law which fixed the rate of compensation, there arises an implied contract to pay for those services at that rate, whose obligation is enforceable by legal remedies. See Butler v. Pennsylvania, by Daniel, J., 10 How. (U. S.) 402.

The prevalent view of officers seems to be that of public agents as to whose continuance in office there can be no obligation on the part of the State. Per Sandford, J., 2 Sandf. (N.Y.) 255. And according to Wyandotte v. Drennen, 46 Mich. 478, the term, the mode of appointment and the compensation may be altered at pleasure, and the latter may be even taken away without abolishing the office. See Cooley Const. Lim. 331, note, with cases.

See also Attorney-General v. Hawkins, 44 Ohio St. 98; State v. Prince, 45 Wis. 610; Keenan v. Perry, 24 Tex. 253; State v. Doherty, 25 La. Ann. 119; Taft v. Adams, 3 Gray (Mass.) 126; Ex parte Wiley, 54 Ala. 226; State v. Frazier, 48 Ga. 137; Patten v. Vaughn, 39 Ark. 211.

In Donohue v. County of Will, 100 Ill. 94, it was said: "It is impossible to conceive how, under our form of government, a person can own or have a title to a governmental office." But see for a view more in the line of common law, State v. Pritchard, 36 N. J. L. 101; Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 632; Commonwealth v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 28; Dullam v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392; King v. Hunter, 65 N. C. 603.

In Dullam v. Willson, 53 Mich. 392, in which the opinion was concurred in by the whole Supreme Court of Michigan, including Cooley, J., the same protection is given to rights in an office, in cases of removal, as is given by the constitution to rights of property. There must be charges specifying the particulars in which the officer is subjected to removal, and the officer is entitled to know the particular act or neglected duty or corrupt conduct or other act relied upon as constituting malfeasance or misfeasance in office, and he is entitled to a reasonable notice of the time and place, when and where an opportunity will be given for the hearing, and he has a right to produce proof upon such hearing. Further, the facts must be determined by some tribunal invested with judicial power, although such judicial power may exist in an executive officer; and it seems that no court can review the legal discretion of any body that is not a court. Many cases are reviewed and discussed in the opinions of this case, of which the following are the most important and support the decision: Ramshay's Case, 18 Ad. & El., N. S. 190; Williams v. Baggott, 3 B. & C. 786; Queen v. The Archbishop of Canterbury, 1 El. & El. 545; Capel v. Child, 2 Cr. & J. 558; Willard's Appeal, 4 R. I. 601; Commonwealth v. Slifer, 25 Pa. St. 23.

In Meade v. Deputy Marshal, 1 Brock. (U. S.) 324, Chief Justice Marshall said: "This is a matter of justice which courts are never at liberty to dispense with unless under the mandate of positive law, that no person shall be condemned unheard or without an opportunity of being heard."

In Page v. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 672, it was said by Marshall, C. J., in deciding upon the validity of a removal of the Secretary of State or Governor: "We shall not argue to prove that in a government of laws a conviction whereby an individual may be deprived of valuable rights and interests, and may, moreover, be seriously affected in his good name and standing, implies a charge and trial and judgment and the opportunity of defense and proof."

The same view is taken in a lengthy learned review of the question of the removal from office, mainly with reference to the common law in quest of office, in State v. Pritchard, 36 N. J. Law 101. [Throughout the opinion the court seem to assume the common law estate in offices to be unchanged.]

See, however, Donahue v. County of Nill, 100 Ill. 94.

In King v. Hunter, 65 N. Car. 603 6 Am. Rep. 754, the court held that "nothing is better settled than that an office is property;" that the contract between officer and State "cannot be abrogated or impaired except by the

II. RIGHTS IN REAL THINGS—1. Tenures (or Modes of Exercising Rights in Real Things).—The question what systems of land tenure are in force in the United States, is one of practical importance, entirely distinct from such problems as that of the origin of property, which may be relegated to pure jurisprudence. This importance has little or no reference to tenure as such, or to its immediate incidents. It arises from the fact that a system of tenure must afford the theory on which the law of real property was developed, to which recourse must be had in any new question where decisions do not apply.¹

Conflicting theories as to the origin of law in the North American Colonies have been entertained,² but whatever be the true one, it is well settled that, speaking broadly, the law of England, consent of both parties." See, however, State v. Gales, 77 N. Car. 283.

But the U. S. Supreme Court in Butler v. Pennsylvania, 10 How. (U. S.) 402, has probably settled decisively the question whether there can be a contract between the State and its officer within the meaning of the prohibition of the United States Constitution against the impairment of the obligation of a contract. The court speak of the danger of arraignment of the control of States over officers and subordinates in the regulation of their internal and exclusive policy, and over the modes and extent in which that policy should be varied to meet the exigencies of their peculiar condition; that such an abuse would prevent all action in the State government or refer the modes and details of their action to the tribunals and authorities of the Federal government. The court affirm the decisions in the case of People v. Morris, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 325; Commonwealth v. Bacon, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 322; Commonwealth v. Mann, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 418; Barker v. Pittsburgh, 4 Barr. (Pa.) 51.

But the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, while admitting the authority of a legislature to shorten the term of officers, expressly deny such authority to cities and towns, except in cases of misbehavior. See Chase v. Lowell, 7 Gray (Mass.) 33, where it was held "the election or appointment for a definite time of a city officer or agent entitled to pay for his services (when no law prescribes a different time for duration of the office or agency), and an acceptance by him of such office or appointment constitutes, in our judgment, a contract between the city and him which cannot be dissolved or changed by the mere mode or act of the State." See contra, Primm v. City of Carondelet, 23 Mo. 22.

1. In the following cases the question of tenure was deemed germane to the decision: U. S. v. Repentigny, 5 Wall. 211; Cornell v. Lamb, 2 Cowen (N. Y.) 652; Matthews v. Ward, 10 Gill & J. (Md.) 443; Barker v. Dayton, 28 Wis. 367; Wallace v. Harmstad, 1 Wh. (Pa.) 337.

In his work on the Rule against Perpetuities Professor Gray is compelled, in a preliminary investigation into future interests as affected by the Statute Quia Emptores to inquire "how far tenure exists in the United States?" Gray's Rule against Perp., §§ 22, et seq.

2. The first, the conquest theory, as it may be called, is that, as the colonization of the country was effected by conquest, the law of the conquered community remains in force until superseded by the conqueror. If this be true, then over such portions of this country as were conquered from the Indians, Indian law would remain in force until superseded by British law specifically imposed; and the same conclusion, mutatis mutandis, would be reached as to the Dutch law in the colonies conquered from the Dutch, the Spanish law in the colonies conquered from Spain, the French laws in the colonies ceded by France. That this is the case with the colonies conquered from the Indians is maintained in 1 Black. Com. 107; 1 Steph. Com. (8th ed.) 104. But to this may be replied, as is said by Marshall, C. J., the Indians did not possess a distinct national existence, nor did they have a system of law which could be made the basis of the law of any civilized people. There is a good deal to sustain this theory in the history of

as it existed at the time of the colonial settlements, is the basis of the law of all the States, with the single exception of Louisiana.¹

Louisiana, where the Roman Law remains as the basis, while so much of the English law as is in force has been imposed distinctly by statute. But the theory does not hold good with respect to California and Texas, in which the Spanish law—or Roman law, on which the Spanish rests—has left no traces except in its relation to land titles prior to the separation from Mexico. Similar questions arise in respect to New York and the settlements on the Delaware, which were conquered by the English from the Dutch—the Dutch, as to the Delaware settlements, having dispossessed the Swedes. Wharton's Comm. on Law, § 64. That the English took New York as a conquest from the Dutch is maintained by Judge Tucker (Tucker's Black. 1, 382, note), by eminent colonial counsel consulted on this point (Smith's Hist. of New York 248), and by Lord Mansfield. Hall v. Campbell, Cowp. 211. See also 21 Albany Law Journal 9. It has been held by the N. Y. court of appeals that the Dutch were during their occupancy the political sovereigns of New York. Dunham v. Williams, 37 N. Y. 251. See also argument of counsel in Jackson v. Gilchrist, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 89. On the other hand, Chancellor Walworth expressly claims that the English title to New York is that of discoverers, bringing with them their own law. Canal Appraisers v. People, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 570.

The second theory is that of discovery, it being held that the first discoverers of an uncivilized country bring to it their own common law. That the English were the first discoverers of the Atlantic seaboard is maintained as a matter of fact, and from this flows the conclusion that, if this theory be correct, they planted there the English common law. The difficulty as to this theory is that it rests on an arbitrary assumption. If the first discoverer of the New World stamped on it the jurisprudence of his country, that jurisprudence was certainly not the common law of England. If the first settlers on the Mississippi Valley gave to that valley their jurisprudence, then to the Roman, and not to the English common law must we look for the basis of our system. Nor, even assuming that Englishmen were the first discoverers, did England exercise over her North American colonies that care which the planting of a systematic jurisprudence assumes. The New England colonists came to escape, not to extend English laws in the character they then assumed. The Pennsylvania colonists were most of them exiles for conscience' sake. It is true that with the more southern colonies the case was different. Wharton's Comm. on Law, § 64.

The third theory is that of popular adoption, it being assumed by this theory that the inhabitants of each province evolve a common law in harmony with their traditions and habits, and in submission to their conscience and sense of need. The process has been sometimes conducted on principles now difficult to discover. Thus the statute of 43 Eliz., ch. 4 (the statute of Charitable Uses), was held not to be in force in New York. Jackson v. Hammond, 2 Caines Cases in Error (N. Y.) 337; Bascom v. Albertson, 34 N. Y. 584. And so in New Jersey, Norris v. Thompson, 19 N. J. Eq. 307, 575; while in North Carolina, Massachusetts and Kentucky it was held to be in force. Burbank v. Whitney, 41 Mass. 146; Griffin v. Graham, 1 Hawk. (N. C.) 96; Gas v. Wilhite, 2 Dana (Ky.) 170. The process of acceptance or rejection, both as to the common law and English statutes, was one applied by the community itself, impelled by local necessity and local sense of right. For a full consideration of these three theories, see Wharton's Comm. on Law, § 25 and § 64; also 1 Story Const., §§ 158. See Walker's Am. Law, § 48; U. S. v. Warrall, 2 Dall. (Pa.) 384; Vankess v. Packard, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 137; Wheaton v. Peters, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 591.

1. The Plymouth colonists, before landing, agreed to adopt the English common law for their government, subject to such modifications as their circumstances required. Elliot's Debates, i, 24. The first constitution of New York after the Revolution prescribed that "such part of the common law of England and of the statute law of England and Great Britain . . . which did form the law of such colony on the nineteenth day of April, 1775, shall continue to be the law of the State." In Virginia the first legislative assembly resolved to adhere to the "customs of England as nearly as the capacity of the country would admit." Chalmer's Annals 245. This was the general system along the Atlantic seaboard. The English common law was accepted as the basis, but it was adapted to the needs of the community by popular spontaneous action. "The common law of England is not to be taken, in all respects, to be that of America. Our ancestors brought with them its general principles, and claimed it as their birthright; but they brought with them and adopted only that portion which was applicable to their condition." Story, J., in Van Ness v. Packard, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 144. Chief Justice Story says: "The universal principle (and the practice has confirmed it) has been that the common law is our birthright and inheritance, and that our ancestors brought hither with them upon their emigration all of it which was applicable to their situation. The whole structure of our present jurisprudence stands upon the original foundations of the common law." 1 Story Const., § 160. For the views of English and American statesmen on this subject, see Works of Franklin, by Sparks, iv, 271. See also in general Duponceau on the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States; Rawle on the Constitution, ch. 30; North American Review for July, 1825; 2 Wilson's Law Lect. 48 to 55; Chisolm v. Georgia, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 435; Town of Pawlett v. Clark, 9 Cranch (U. S.) 292; Wheaton v. Peters, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 541; Cathcart v. Robinson, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 196; Comm. v. Lodge, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 579; Pemle v. Clifford, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 31; Baker v. Mattocks, Quincy (Mass.) 72; Swift v. Lourey, 5 Ind. 196.

It follows, therefore, that the system of land tenure in the several States, with the exception of Louisiana, is the same, unless its character has since been totally changed, as was that of England in the early part of the seventeenth century.¹ There is no question that the land tenure of England at that period is with perfect propriety described as feudal,² although in very many and material points it differed from strict feudalism.³

1. When it is said that we have in this country adopted the common law of England, it is not meant that we have imitated any mere formal rules, or any written code, or the verbiage in which the common law is expressed. It is the unwritten law of England which we have adopted rather as a system of legal logic than as a code of rules.

Of the unconscious change of substance under unchanged forms, the commission to revise the civil code of Pennsylvania say in their second report, presented in 1832: "The changing relations, customs, and intelligence of communities exert an irresistible force in operating a change upon the laws; the change, therefore, is in the substance—the names and theories remain by force equivalent to the force of language."

2. "The laws and usages which govern the tenure of land in England are, as a whole, unique. Our land system is commonly called feudal, sometimes by persons who use the word as a disparaging epithet without any clear notion of what it means. This is not in itself wrong, but it conveys a most imperfect notion of the number and variety of the influences that have made our land laws what they are. The statement and the belief implied in it are so inadequate as to be misleading. Almost every possible kind of ownership, and almost every possible relation of owners and occupiers of land to the State and to one another have existed in England, and left a more or less conspicuous mark in the composite structure of the English law of real property." Pollock's The Land Laws 1. "The main body of the technical expressions of the law, and of the technical habit of thought which they preserve, is derived from feudalism; but this feudalism has been deeply modified by circumstances peculiar to England." Id. 2.

3. Original formative elements of the most diverse character had left their impression; legislation, custom and judicial decision had all contributed to further modify it.

"The English law of land is of a mixed origin. The customs of the early Teutonic invaders; the inevitable effect of conquest and settlement of the land on a large scale; the gradual and what

It is, therefore, clear that the original land tenure in the United States was feudal. Whether tenure is the same to-day must be determined by discovering whether separation from the mother country, or legislation, or both have effected an entire change in our theory of land-holding. And here it must be remembered that almost limitless changes of particular features of the law of real property may be made without abolishing the feudal system as its basis. As in England, the incidents may be varied or abrogated, and yet the theory of tenure remains the basis of the law.

The cardinal principle of the feud is that all title to land is derived, mediately or immediately, from the king, as the lord paramount. It is clear that the effect of the Revolution was to transfer this dignity from the king to the people of the respective States in their collective capacity. No change whatever was may be called the natural growth of feudal ideas; the effect of the Norman Conquest in developing these ideas into a system of law and imparting doctrines unknown before; the subsequent influence of the Roman and Canon law, all these are elements of which account must be taken in attempting to trace the growth of the law of land." Digby Hist. Law. Real Prop., § 1.

So complete was the change that the system no longer continued to subserve even one of the purposes for which it was established. Conditions were so different that its use as a military system was obsolete, and the incidental benefits to the lord were likewise obsolete or directly abolished.

The tenant's lands are held of the crown, or perhaps of some other superior who himself holds of the crown. His predecessors before the commonwealth time owed rent or services, or both, and were subject to a variety of occasional dues and payments, some of them of a vexatious kind. They were bound to follow the king or other overlord to the wars, and bring with them a specified armed force, or pay for the maintenance of its equivalent. The feudal dues and services have been abolished; but ancient money rents, now reduced to a nominal amount by the changes that have taken place in the standard of the coinage and the value of the precious metals, often survive to this day. Some ancient rents are not in money, but in kind. The city of London still pays to the crown certain horseshoes and nails as the rent of a piece of land in the parish of St. Clement Danes, once granted by the king to a farrier, and a fagot as the rent of some waste lands in Shropshire. The remnant of feudal relations to a superior is at this day no burden to the English landowner and at most only adds a picturesque circumstance to his title. Perhaps the lord of an estate is lord in a strict legal sense—that is, lord of a manor. In this capacity he is a kind of small sovereign prince, possessed of his own courts, and doing justice according to his own procedure and customs. But his powers and jurisdiction are shriveled by the changes and chances of centuries into nothingness, and only the names of them remain. In the voluminous settlement which confers title to these lands on him and his issue, the manorial franchises are enumerated in a roll of strange looking terms, many of which are now obscure even to the lawyer, unless he is also a historical student. As for the lord himself, he neither knows the words nor their meaning unless he happens to be a scholar and an antiquarian. Nor is he concerned to know them for any purpose of business. The ancient franchises and profits are obsolete, and have been so for many generations. The manorial courts exist in form, and their records are kept in the ancient fashion. But the fine by which a thief, caught within the boundaries, redeemed his life is no longer a source of revenue to the manor, neither does the lordship of "view of frank pledge and all that to view of frank pledge doth belong" convey any sensible increase to the wealth or the dignity of the modern landowner. To be lord of a manor is to be the lord of a secular ruin, in which he that knows the secrets of the crabbed spell-book effected in the mode of tenure of land. The State became lord paramount.¹

Since, then, the Revolution produced no change in tenure, the remaining question is the effect of subsequent legislation in the various States. It is clear that in those in which there has been no legislative action on the subject, feudal tenure still obtains. In sixteen States there are legislative or constitutional provisions relating to land tenure.² In the remaining States may call up the ghosts of a vanished order of the world. Pollock's The Land Laws, 7, 10.

1. United States v. Repentigny, 5 Wallace (U. S.) 267. "The States, by the Declaration of Independence, threw off the allegiance of the crown, and stood in its place, or perhaps, we ought to say, reassumed the original sovereignty always inherent in the people of any kingdom or state. Is it to be doubted that while the republic existed in England de facto the tenure of all land was of the commonwealth? And it would have continued if the monarchy had not been restored. The revolution of 1688 transferred the chief lordship from the Stuarts to the Prince and Princess of Orange, and ultimately to the House of Brunswick. In like manner operated the American Revolution." Lectures Introductory to the Study of the Law, Sharswood, p. 212. The relative position of a civil government to its citizens, that of protection on the one hand and of dependence on the other—necessarily involves the idea of allegiance and service to the State, as a condition to the use and enjoyment of the land within its boundaries. Hence some mode of tenure is incident to every government; and the highest estate which a man can have in land has direct reference to his duty to the State. He holds of the State, to which he owes fealty and service, and if he fails in his allegiance to her, or dies without heirs upon whom this duty may devolve, the tenure is at an end, his land returns to the common stock from which he had it, and vests again in the prince, or other representative of state sovereignty, whoever it may be, who is thence called in common-law language, the lord paramount. Taylor's Landlord and Tenant, § 1. According to the doctrine of our law, all private title to land within the United States, is derived ultimately from grants of the State, or the general government, or royal grants made prior to the Revolution. Fletcher

v. Peck, 6 Cranch (U. S.) 87; Jackson v. Waters, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 365. Land was held of the crown in colonial times, and it does not seem that so fundamental an alteration in the theory of property as the abolition of tenure would be worked by a change of political sovereignty. Tenure still obtains between a tenant for life or years and the reversioner; and so in like manner, it is conceived, a tenant in fee simple holds of the chief lord, that is, of the State. Gray on Perp., § 22; Hoffman's Legal Outlines 593; 2 Bl. Comm. (Sharswood's ed.) 77, note. But see 1 Washb. Real Prop. 39-42; 2 Bl. Comm. (Cooley ed.), note.

2. California.—Tenure seems not to exist. Civil Code, § 762.

Connecticut.—"Every proprietor in fee simple of lands has an absolute and direct dominion and property in the same." Statute of October 1793. See statute 1821, tit. 56, ch. 1, § 1, note; Rev. Stats., tit. 48, ch. 6, pt. 1, § 1.

Georgia.—"The tenure by which all realty is held in this State is under the State as original owner." Rev. Code of 1873, § 2221.

Illinois was one of the States formed from the Northwest Territory, and the law on tenures is the same as that of Indiana.

Indiana.—This is one of several States formed out of the Northwest Territory, which was ceded to the United States government in 1784, by Virginia. This was subsequent to the Virginia statute, so that in this State there was originally no tenure. In 1795 the territorial government passed an act declaring that the common law of England and all acts of Parliament of a general nature made in aid of the common law prior to 4 Jac. 1, "and also the several laws in force in this territory" should be in full force. 1 Chase Stat. 190, 191. If this act was valid, then tenure was thereby re-established in the Northwest Territory. It has been doubted, however, whether it was within the power of the territorial government. 1 Chase. Stat. 190, note; Thompson v. Gibson, 2 Ohio 439; Helfenstein v. Garrard, 7 Ohio, pt. 1, 275; Carroll v. Olmstead, 16 Ohio 260.

Kentucky was a part of Virginia originally, and was set off in 1791. This was subsequent to the Virginia statute on the subject, and therefore that statute was carried with it as part of the law of the State. The revised statutes of 1851 (p. 127) repealed all general statutes of England, Virginia and Kentucky. It would seem this repealed the Virginia abolishing statute, and thereby revived the law as it stood before the passage of the Virginia act.

Maryland.—There has been legislation on the question of tenure, but in Matthews v. Ward, 10 Gill & Johns. (Md.), 443, 451, it is said that after the Revolution, "lands became allodial, subject to no tenure." No other case, either in Maryland or elsewhere, supports this view of the effect of the Revolution, and we have already seen, supra, that the Revolution did not alter tenure.

Michigan was one of the States formed from the Northwest Territory, and the law on tenures is the same as that of Indiana.

Minnesota.—The constitution of 1857 declares that all land shall be allodial. Art. 1, § 15.

New Jersey.—The act of Feb. 18, 1795 provides that the purchaser of lands shall hold them of the chief lord, if there be any, of the fee. It also enacts that all tenures are turned into free and common socage, but that this shall not take away "any rents certain, or other services incident or belonging to tenure in common socage, due or to grow due to this State, or any mean lord, or other private person, or the fealty and distresses incident thereunto;" and that the tenure of all grants made by the State shall be "allodial and not feudal," and in "free and pure allodium only." Rev. Stat. 1877, pp. 165, 166.

New York.—"All lands within this State are declared to be allodial, so that, subject to the liability to escheat, the entire and absolute property is vested in the owners, according to the nature of their respective estates; and all feudal tenures of every description, with all their incidents, are abolished." Rev. Stats., pt. 2, ch. 1, tit. 1, § 3. This statute had been preceded by the statute of Feb. 20, 1787, which was identical with the New Jersey statute cited above.

Ohio was one of the States formed from the Northwest Territory. For the legislation on tenure prior to the separation see Indiana. After it was created a State, the legislature passed a statute repealing the act of the territorial government, and then re-enacting it. 1 Chase. Stat. 512; but the next year, Jan. 2, 1806, an act was passed repealing so much of the last act as declared that the common law and English statutes should be in force. 1 Chase, Stat. 528. It would seem, therefore, that the law of Ohio was relegated to its condition before the territorial act of 1795, and that there is no tenure in that State. Gray on Perp., page 15.

Pennsylvania.—The province of Pennsylvania was granted to William Penn by King Charles II, in 1661, in free and common socage. The charter provided in the seventeenth section that the statute Quia Emptores should not be in force in the province. After the Revolution the General Assembly, in 1779, passed an act divesting all right of the Penn family to the unsold soil of the State, and appropriating to the Penns one hundred and thirty thousand pounds in consideration of their expectations. 1 Smith's Laws 480. The Penns accepted the consideration, thus making valid an act of questionable justice. This act simply resulted in vesting the State with all the feudal rights of the Penn family, but in no manner affected tenure. In 1781 an act was passed establishing a land office. 1 Smith's Laws 529. After providing in the tenth section for the form of patent by deed-poll, for lands granted by the commonwealth, "to have and to hold" (here inserting the tenure and reservation) it then enacts that "all and every the lands granted in pursuance of the act shall be free and clear of all reservations and restrictions as to mines, royalties, quit rents, or otherwise, so that the owners thereof, respectively, shall be entitled to hold the same in absolute and unconditional property, to all intents and purposes whatsoever." As to the effect of these acts on tenure there has been much discussion. In Wallace v. Harmstad, 8 Wright (Pa.) 492, Chief Justice Woodward positively decided that Pennsylvania titles are allodial. This case, as likewise Arrison v. Harmstad, 2 Barr (Pa.) 191, and Wallace v. Harmstad, 3 Harris (Pa.) 462, arose from the following circumstances: In 1838 Arrison conveyed severally to four brothers Harmstad four lots of ground in Philadelphia. When the deeds came to be executed one of the brothers Harmstad discovered unfilled blanks in all of the deeds, and upon inquiry was told by the magistrate before whom the acknowledgments were to be taken, that it meant that there was no limit to the time within which the rents could be extinguished. This was in accordance with the understanding. The deeds were executed and delivered. The Harmstads took their original deeds and Arrison took the four counterparts. Arrison's agent afterwards procured from the Harmstads their four deeds for the alleged purpose of recording. While in the possession of Arrison's agent, the blanks were filled in with the words "within ten years from the date thereof." The deeds were then recorded by Arrison's agent, and the recorder's receipt given to the Harmstads. On getting the deeds from the recorder's office, the Harmstads discovered the insertions in the deeds and refused to pay the rent reserved. In 1844 an action of debt was brought by Arrison against Oliver Harmstad, which was decided against the plaintiff because of the alteration in the deed. Arrison v. Harmstad, 2 Barr (Pa.) 191. In 1850 Wallace, an innocent grantee of Arrison, brought an action of covenant to recover rent against Joseph Harmstad, and it also was decided against the plaintiff for the same reason. Wallace v. Harmstad, 3 Harris (Pa.) 462. Subsequently Wallace distrained for rent on the premises of Edwin Harmstad, who brought an action of replevin. The case was decided by the Supreme Court in 1863. Counsel for Wallace contended, inter alia, "that a ground rent reserved in a deed by a grantor is an estate which vests in him the instant the fee simple in the land vests in the grantee; that that estate is a rent service; and continues to exist, though the instrument creating it be destroyed; and that a right of distress is one of the necessary legal incidents of the estate." In delivering the opinion, the court said: "I see no way of solving this question except by determining whether our Pennsylvania titles are feudal or allodial." The chief justice, as a negative to the theory that titles in Pennsylvania are feudal, quotes from Wright's Tenures 35, as follows: "Fealty, the essential feudal bond, is so necessary to the very notion of a feud, that it is a downright contradiction to suppose the most improper feud to subsist without it." After stating that the question is narrowed down to whether fealty is any part of Pennsylvania land tenure, he erroneously states fealty to be what was the ceremony of homage, and concludes that fealty does not subsist in Pennsylvania because no such ceremony ever took place in the State. He then sets forth that the Revolution, the divesting act and the act establishing a land office emancipated every acre of soil in the State from feudal tenure. As to the case under consideration, he says: "Here was a conveyance in fee simple of an allodial estate, without any reversion remaining in the grantor, and therefore all his remedies for rent rest on the contract," and consequently the case was decided against Wallace because of the fraudulent alteration. This opinion has been severely criticised, the most prominent authority against it being the late Chief Justice Sharswood of Pennsylvania. See Sharswood's Lectures Introductory to the Study of the Law, 179, et seq. The opinion was rested mainly on the fact that the ceremony which the court supposed to be fealty, never took place in the State. Since the court confounded fealty with homage, this reason falls to the ground. Besides, the question of tenure was not necessary to the decision of the case, the better opinion being that the fraudulent alteration in the deeds was of itself ample ground for deciding as the court did, regardless of tenure. The court in this case approved also of the decision rendered many years before in the great case of Ingersoll v. Sergeant, 1 Whart. (Pa.) 337, which decided that a ground rent in Pennsylvania was a rent service, and not a rent charge, because the statute of Quia Emptores was not in force there. To speak of rent service, or the statute of Quia Emptores where there is no tenure is an absurdity. Rent service and the statute Quia Emptores necessarily imply tenure. They are meaningless terms without it. See Cadwalader on Ground Rents, ch. 1; Gray on Perp., § 26. For these reasons Wallace v. Harmstad is now considered of little weight; in fact it is unintelligible. There has been some suggestion that in Pennsylvania some titles are feudal and others allodial. Jackson and Gross on Landlord and Tenant, page 11. This there has been no legislation affecting the theory of tenure. Leaving out of consideration Louisiana, in which a modified Roman law prevails, the result may be summarised as follows: Tenure is abolished and all land made allodial in California, Connecticut, Minnesota, Ohio, New York, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. In New Jersey part of the land is allodial and part feudal; all land granted by the State being allodial. In Illinois, Indiana and Michigan the question is doubtful, depending upon the validity of a territorial statute. In Pennsylvania the better opinion is that tenure exists, though there is a case in which the Supreme Court of that State professed to decide otherwise.¹ In all the other States tenure undoubtedly exists.

It may, therefore, be safely asserted that the feudal system of tenure is the basis of the law of real property in every State except nine.² Of these Louisiana has the system of the Roman law.

The greatest uncertainty exists as to the effect of the statutes declaring tenure to be allodial in California, Connecticut, Ohio, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and New Jersey. The most authoritative and best grounded opinion seems to be that despite the statutory abrogation of feudal tenure the feudal system must remain the basis of the law of real property in the absence of any other basis.³

opinion has but slight support, however. The Divesting Act, of itself, produced no change in tenure. If it operated in conjunction with the Land Office Act, it could only be on titles which originated under and subsequent to that act; and the logical conclusion would be, that one-half of the lands in the State would be feudal and the other half allodial. "It would require something more than argumentative inference from general legislative language to warrant a doctrine which would lead to such results." Sharswood's Lectures Introductory to the Study of the Law, page 189.

South Carolina.—The only tenure of lands was declared to be that of free and common socage by the act of 12 Dec. 1712, § 5; Grimké's Laws, 99; Rev. Stat. 1873, p. 416.

West Virginia.—This State was separated from Virginia in 1862, and carried with it the law of Virginia. Tenure there never existed in this State.

Virginia.—Tenures were abolished by the statute of 1779, ch. 13. See 10 Hen. St. 50, 64, 65; 2 Minor Inst. 71; 1 Lomax's Dig. 539.

Wisconsin.—Was one of the States formed from the Northwest Territory.

The constitution of 1848, art. 1, § 14, provides that all lands shall be allodial. For prior legislation see Indiana.

1. Wallace v. Harmstad, 8 Wright (Pa.) 492.

2. For a discussion of the question in these and other States, see the second preceding note.

3. In all these States the original basis was feudal tenure; the theory of real property owed its development to the feudal system in the hands of judges trained in that system, familiar with its mode of reasoning, unconsciously influenced by feudal notions. It would certainly not be a tenable position to assume that real property law in those States was relegated to practical anarchy; that nothing of scientific system remained, and that the whole law of land had been created anew subsequent to the abolition of tenure. But unless such is the case, it is evident that what of systematic law on the subject exists must be based upon feudal theories. There was nothing else upon which it could be based. Even if the law were to be assumed as a new creation, dating from the legislative change to allodial holding, yet the result must still be the same. A system of law on any subject

It would seem, therefore, that with the exception of Louisiana the theoretical basis of the system of land holding is feudal.¹

3. Real Rights Treated with Reference to their Qualification—

a. QUALIFICATIONS RELATING TO QUANTITY OF ESTATE—(1) Conditions at Common Law.—Conditions may be annexed to estates in such a way as to create or enlarge them. These will be found treated elsewhere.² It is here proposed to discuss only conditions in so far as they may defeat existing estates. A condition may be annexed to an estate bounded by appropriate words of limitation (such as "in fee," "for life," or "for years"), with the result that, on its breach, the estate is liable to be defeated. The characteristic feature of such a condition is that it shall be no part of the limitation, but external to it, though in develops in accordance with the customs, habits and prior notions implanted in the community. But the people in all these States were, by long association and habit, accustomed to a system of land-holding which we have seen was in its main features feudal.

1. All our legal nomenclature, our system of conveyancing, our law as to rights of owners of different estates, rules as to future interests, perpetuities, in fact, the entire theory of landed property is explainable on no other theory than that of feudal tenure.

"Allodial land" often means land held of no one. 2 Bl. Comm. 45 note. 47-105; Wright, Tenures 146, 147; Gilbert, Tenures (4th ed.) 352, Watkins' note 5; Somner, Gavelkind, 109, 111, 126. But the expression is also employed to mean land which, though held of a lord, is not subject to any services. "Erat alodium prædium non modo ab omni præstatione liberum sed a quolibet servitio reali et personali immune, licet illius possessor dominum agnosceret, a quo illud tenebat in feudum honoratum." Ducange, Glos. Aloidis; Spelm., Glos. Aloarius, sub fine. See Co. Lit. 1b, 5a, 65a, Hargrave's note; Allen, Prerog. 196; Digby, Hist. Law Real Prop., ch. I, § 1, §§ 2-4.

The feudal system is the keynote of our jurisprudence. It is, as was said by Binney, by "beginning with the fundamental law of estates and tenures, and pursuing the derivative branches in logical succession, and the collateral subjects in due order, that the student acquires a knowledge of principles that rule in all departments of the science, and learns to feel as much as to know what is in harmony with the system and what is not." Leaders of the old Bar, page 50. See REMAINDERS.

2. See also for this division of conditions precedent and subsequent, and for a discussion of implied and express conditions, and other incidents of estates upon condition, ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 900-905. See also, as to precedent and subsequent conditions, Cooley's Bl. Com., bk. 2, 154, note 4, citing 4 Kent Com. 125; Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 555; Burnett v. Strong, 26 Miss. 116; Finlay v. King's Lessee, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 346; Taylor v. Mason, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 325; Ward v. New England Screw Co., 1 Cliff. (U. S.) 555; Notham v. East India Co., 1 T. R. 638, 645.

The validity of a condition annexed to a conveyance in fee was upheld in a decision in Van Rensselaer v. Ball, 19 N. Y. 100, which was well grounded in authorities, distinguishing De Peyster v. Michael, 6 N. Y. 467. See Litt., § 325, where he says of an estate on condition that it "is as if a man by deed indented enfeoffs another in fee-simple, reserving to him and his heirs, yearly, a certain rent payable at one feast or divers feasts, per annum, on condition that if the rent be behind, etc., that it shall be lawful for the feoffor and his heirs to enter, etc., and if it happen the rent to be behind by a week after any day of payment of it, or by a month after any day of payment of it, or by half a year, etc., that then it shall be lawful for the feoffor or his heirs to enter, etc. In these cases, if the rent be not paid at such time, or before such time limited and specified within the condition comprised in the indenture, then may the feoffor or his heirs enter into such lands or tenements, and them of his former estate, to have and hold, and the feoffee quite to oust thereof. And it is called an estate upon condition, because that the estate the same deed. The result is that upon the breach, the estate is not, ipso facto, determined. It can only be actually defeated by entry of the grantor or feoffor.¹ This right of entry is inalienable by a rule of common law. Hence no estate can be limited over on breach of a condition.²

of the feoffee is defeasible, if the condition be not performed." See Cruise's Dig., vol. 2, ch. 1, § 1, pl. 3, 9; 4 Kent's Com. 123.

Effect of Assignment of Mortgage Title.

—In Merritt v. Harris, 102 Mass. 326, where A granted land to B on condition subsequent, taking a mortgage for purchase money, then assigned to C "said mortgage deed, the real estate thereby conveyed, and the promissory note, debt and claim thereby secured," it was held that C took only a title in mortgage, which was subject to be defeated by mortgagor's breach of condition, the right of entry remaining in A. The principle of this case is rather the indestructibility than the inalienability of rights of entry, on the ground that the assignment of a mere mortgage title cannot have the effect of an absolute alienation in fee. See Hancock v. Carlton, 6 Gray (Mass.) 39; Richardson v. Cambridge, 2 Allen (Mass.) 118; Rice v. R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.) 141.

1. In Carter v. Branson, 79 Ind. 14, it was held that the grantor in a conveyance upon a condition subsequent, must have re-entered and had possession at the time of an alleged trespass upon the land, in order to be entitled to an action therefor; that the mere assertion of an ownership or control does not constitute a re-entry and recovery of possession for the purpose of an action. See Cross v. Carson, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 138; Barber v. Barber, 21 Ind. 468; Broker v. Scovey, 56 Ind. 588.

In Memphis & Charlestown R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412, it was held that in order to revest an estate forfeited for conditions broken, the grantor must make an entry or do some act equivalent thereto,—assert a conditional claim manifesting a determination to take advantage of the breach.

In Tallman v. Snow, 35 Me. 342, there was a condition in a deed conveying land with a right to immediate possession, that a third person be allowed to have the use and occupation of it for life, if he shall request it. This was held to be a condition subsequent; also that, in order to revest the estate in the grantor or those succeeding to his right, an entry was necessary, which was not dispensed with by R. S. (Me.), ch. 145, § 6.

In Williams v. Angell, 7 R. I. 145, it was held that where a life estate was liable to forfeiture for the non-payment of an annuity charged upon it, there must be an entry for condition broken, or claim, by the heirs, for the purpose of avoiding the life estate; that the breach of condition does not in itself destroy the life estate so as to cause the remainder over to fail for want of an estate of freehold to support it. See Washburn, Real Property, vol. 1, 451, citing Chalker v. Chalker, 1 Conn. 79; Sperry v. Sperry, 8 N. H. 477; Fonda v. Sage, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 109; Green v. Pettingill, 47 N. H. 375.

But in Cowell v. Col. Springs Co., 100 U. S. 55, upon breach of the condition, it was held that the grantor had a right to treat the estate as having reverted and bring ejectment of the premises without previous entry upon them or demand for their possession, such entry or demand being necessary under a statute of Colorado where the premises were situated.

So in Massachusetts, under Pub. Stat. (Mass.), ch. 173, § 3, whereby entry in case of an action to recover land forfeited is dispensed with by statute. See Austin v. Cambridgeport, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 215. See also Cornelius v. Ivins, 2 Dutch. (N. J.) 376; Ruch v. Rock Island, 97 U. S. 693.

In New York, see Bradt v. Church (1887), 110 N. Y. 537, and Martin v. Rector (1890), 118 N. Y. 893, with cases cited, for the construction of sections 1504 and 1505 of the Code of Civil Procedure, giving to "the grantor or lessor, or his heirs, devisee or assignee" an action to recover the property, where there is "a subsisting right by law to re-enter for the failure to pay rent," or where a right of entry is reserved "in default of a sufficiency of goods and chattels whereon to distrain for the satisfaction of rent due."

2. This inalienability of the right of entry is in harmony with the rule as stated by Mr. Challis (Real Prop. 63),

But under a well-established doctrine, equity will enforce a restriction on the use of land in the nature of an easement at the prayer of others than the original grantor or his heirs.¹

which forbids any one taking advantage of the breach of a condition, except the person who makes the condition or his privies in right and representation; "that is (1) the heirs, quoad estates descendible to them; (2) the executors or administrators, quoad estates transmissible to them, and (3) the successors of corporations sole (Preston, Shep. T. 149)." See Co. Litt. 214*b*. See Washburn, Real Property 451, who gives as the underlying principle, "that it required as solemn an act to defeat as to create an estate," citing, inter alia, 1 Prest. Est. 46, 48, 50; 2 Flint Real Prop. 231; Co. Litt. 201*a*, n. 84; Walker, Am. Law 207; Sperry v. Sperry, 8 N. H. 477; McKelway v. Seymour, 29 N. J. L. 321, 329; Com. Dig. O. 6. See 2 Bl. Com. 156, citing Cro. Eliz. 205; 1 Roll. Abr. 411. See Butler's note to Co. Litt. 201*a*.

The reason given by Coke against assignment of right of entry is that "under color thereof, pretended titles might be granted to great men, whereby the right might be trodden down and the weak oppressed, which the common law forbiddeth, as men to grant before they be in possession." Co. Litt. 325.

In the case of conditions implied, which are sometimes called conditions in law, the right of entry passed with the assignment of the estate. See Washb. R. P., vol. 1, 451, citing Co. Litt. 216; Sheppard, Touch. (fol. ed.) 441; 2 Crabb, Real Prop. 835. See Martin v. Strachan, 5 T. R. 107, n. In Nicoll v. N. Y. & Erie R. Co., 12 N. Y. 121, it was held that a grant to a railroad company of lands upon the express condition that the road be constructed by the company within the time prescribed by the act of incorporation, vested the fee of the lands in the railroad company at once, subject to being divested on a failure to perform the condition, by the entry of the grantor or his heirs; that, such right of entry is not an interest in land which may be assigned; and that where a breach of the condition by the company did not occur until after a conveyance of the land by the original grantor to a third person, the latter could not take advantage of the breach, and divest the title of the grantee on condition. See 4 Kent's Com. 130; Livingston v. Stickles, 8 Paige (N. Y.)

398. See also Vail v. Long Island R. Co., 106 N. Y. 283 (1887). See Norris v. Milner, 20 Ga. 563; Smith v. Brannan, 13 Cal. 107; Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468.

But in leases for life or years, and in grants in fee reserving rent, the right of entry has been made assignable by statute in New York and in several other States where the statute 32 Henry VIII, ch. 34, has been adopted. See N. Y. Co. Civ. Proc. 1504, 1505. See, as to construction of the sections of the code, Martin v. Rector, 118 N. Y. 483 (1890); Van Rensselaer v. Ball, 19 N. Y. 100; Nicholl v. New York & Erie R. Co., 12 N. Y. 131.

As to the inclusion of rights of entry for breach of condition in an estate in fee simple within the Wills Act (7 Wm. IV and 1 Victoria, ch. 26, § 2), see Challis on Real Property 176, 177.

As to the extinguishment of the right to enter after breach of condition, attached to particular estate, see Hooper v. Cumming, 45 Me. 359. See also Neederhill v. Sara. etc. W. R., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455. See Hamilton v. Elliott, 5 S. & R. 375.

See, however, McRissick v. Pickle, 16 Pa. St. 140; Southard v. Cent. R., 26 N. J. L. 1.

As to the right of the devisee of grant (or residuary devisee or his heir) where the conditional estate is created by devise in the same will, to enter and defeat the estate on condition, see the remark at the close of this note, on the construction of such devises on condition as devises on trust.

See infra, in the text under Limitations at Common Law, the distinction between Estates on Condition and Limitations. See also Avelyn v. Ward, 1 Ves. Sen. 420; Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. St. 335.

1. Thus where the owners of a piece of land laid it out into house lots, orally agreeing among themselves that they shall be occupied exclusively for dwelling houses, and accordingly gave deeds therefor upon condition that no buildings should be erected thereon except for dwelling houses only, it was held that one who took such a deed was bound in equity by the condition; and purchasers of others of the lots whose estates would be injured by his violation of the condition, might maintain a bill in equity, without joining their grantors as plaintiffs, against him and his tenant, to prevent the conversion of a dwelling-house upon his lot into a public eating-house. Parker v. Nightingale, 88 Mass. 341.

See Tulk v. Moxhay, 11 Beav. 571. See Bispham's Equity, §§ 263-463.

The ground of the right of plaintiffs in the Massachusetts case cited, to enforce the restriction, seems to have rested, in the mind of Bigelow, C. J., on the fact that "the purposes intended to be accomplished by the restrictions . . . was for the benefit and advantage of other owners of lots situated on the same street or court;" . . . that "it was not imposed by the original grantors for their own benefit or advantage, and cannot be considered as personal to them."

The court distinguished the case of Badger v. Boardman, 16 Gray (Mass.) See Story Eq. Pl., §§ 121, 126; Adair v. New River Co., 11 Ves. 429, 444; Gray v. Chaplin, 2 Sim. & Stu. 267; Whitney v. Union Ry., 11 Gray (Mass.) Mann v. Stephens, 15 Sim. 377; Patching v. Dubbins, Kay. 1; Coles v. Sims, 5 DeG. M. & G. 1; Piggott v. Stratton, DeG. F. & J., 33. See to the same effect Payson v. Burnham, 141 Mass. 547 (1886). See also Barrow v. Richard, 8 Paige (N. Y.) 351. See Vermont v. Proprietors, 2 Paine C. C. 545; 2 Crabb. R. P. 315. See also Gilbert v. Peteler, 38 N. Y. 165.

In McIlroy v. Morley, 40 Kan. 76, it was held that where a grantor conveys an estate upon a condition subsequent, and the condition is broken, the owner of adjacent property deriving his title from the same grantor on a subsequent deed, cannot claim a reverter or forfeiture of the estate described in the former one. He is not a party to the prior deed, and the conveyance to himself does not refer to the condition subsequent contained in said deed, nor is such adjacent owner entitled to take any advantage of the breach of any condition contained in such prior deed to which he is in no way a party. See Skinner v. Sheppard, 130 Mass. 180; Cooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359; Piper v. Railway Co., 14 Kan. 568. See also O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616.

Enforcement at Equity.—It is thoroughly settled, however, that equity will never lend its aid to enforce a forfeiture or a penalty, or divest an estate for a breach of a subsequent condition, even though upon the special ground of removing clouds. Memphis & Charleston R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412. See Cooley's Bl. Com. 2, 157, n. 9, citing Smith v. Jewett, 40 N. H. 530; Livingston v. Thompson, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 415; Wing v. Railey, 14 Mich. 83. See also Hagar v. Buck, 44 Vt. 285; Fitzhugh v. Maxwell, 34 Mich. 138; Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468; Palmer v. Ford, 70 Ill. 369; Orr v. Zimmerman, 63 Mo. 72.

As to the mode of creation of estates on condition and their construction; the nature of the condition (whether repugnant or illegal); their enforcement; as to waiver and release, and as to the interference of equity to enforce or prevent forfeiture; also as to the distinction between estates on condition and a gift on trust, see ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 900; as to the last point, see this note, infra. See also, as to construction, Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 82; Moore v. Pitts, 52 N. Y. 85; Board etc. v. Trustees, 63 Ill. 204; Marshall v. School, 28 Iowa 360; Skinner v. Sheppard, 130 Mass. 180; Fuller v. Arms, 45 Vt. 460.

In Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co., 100 U. S. 55, where land had been conveyed on a condition that intoxicating liquors should never be manufactured or sold on the premises, and that on breach of condition, the title should revert to the grantor, the condition was held not repugnant to the estate granted nor unlawful, nor against public policy. See Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N. Y. 442; O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616. See also Doe v. Keeling, 1 Maule & S. 95; Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 284.

Devises upon Trust.—In a note to section 282 of his work on Perpetuities, Mr. Gray shows how entries for breach of condition have become, when attached to an estate in fee, to some extent obsolete within the last two centuries, devises with a condition having, in almost every instance, been construed as a devise upon trust, in which, instead of the heir taking advantage of the condition broken, the cestui que trust can compel an observation of the trust by a suit in equity. "The only case," says Mr. Gray, "found in either the last or present century in England, where the heir has entered for a breach of condition attached to a fee simple, is Doe d. Gill v. Pierson, 6 East 173 (1805)." See Atwater v. Atwater, 18 Beav. 330; Sugden on Powers (1st ed.) 96. See Wright v. Wilkins, 2 B. & S. 252, 259, where, upon a devise, on

It must be remembered that the rights of entry, after breach of condition, are in no sense reversionary interests. They may be regarded as a remedy for breach of contract.¹ They are, therefore, in nowise affected by the statute Quia Emptores as are possibilities of reverter.²

(2) Limitations at Common Law.—Besides common or direct limitations by which estates are bounded and naturally determined (such as "for life," "pur autre vie," in "fee simple"), there may be special or collateral limitations,³ whose effect is, as condition that the devisee will pay certain legacies, it was held that the heir could not enter for breach of condition, but that the devisee took the land on trust. A. G. V. Wax Chandlers' Co., L. R. 16 H. L. I. See also A. G. v. South Molton, 14 Beav. 357; Merchant Taylor Co. v. A. G., L. R., 11 Eq. 35.

In United States see Stanley v. Bolt, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 119; Sohier v. Trinity Church, 109 Mass. 1; Episcopal City Mission v. Appleton, 117 Mass. 326; Ayling v. Kramer, 133 Mass. 12. See Fuller v. Arms, 45 Vt. 400. See also Mitchell v. Leavitt, 30 Conn. 587. And see Borrie v. Smith, 47 Mich. 130. But see Blanchard v. Detroit etc. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43; Underhill v. Saratoga, R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455; Aikins v. Albany etc. R. Co., 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 289; Douglass v. Hause, Ritch. Eq. Dec. 146, 152; and Van Rensselaer v. Ball, 19 N. Y. 100.

1. See Gray, Rule against Perpetuities, §§ 12, 30; Litt. §§ 325, 347; Co. Litt. 202; Doe d. Freeman v. Bateman, 2 B. & Ald. 168; Van Rensselaer v. Ball, 19 N. Y. 100; 2 Bl. Com. 154; Cruise's Dig. vol. 2, ch. 1, § 1, pl. 319; 4 Kent's Com. 123.

2. As to these see supra, under Tenures, this article, II, 1.

For a discussion of rights of entry as affected by the Rule against Perpetuities, see PERPETUITIES. See, in general, ESTATES ON CONDITION, vol. 6, p. 900. See also CONDITIONS, vol. 3, p. 422.

3. Nomenclature.—It is highly important that the conception of the determination of an estate by its own expiration, a conception strictly within the common law, should be clearly distinct, not only from another common-law conception, that of a destruction of the estate by the act of the grantor (which has been considered above under Conditions at Common Law), but likewise from a third conception impossible at common law, being directly contrary to its principles of limitation. This is the cutting off one estate by the arising of another, a class of disposition first permitted under the Statutes of Wills and of Uses. (See this article, Limitations Under the Statute of Uses and Wills.)

It seems best, therefore, to apply to the common-law limitation a name which is characteristic, and is different from the name given to the statutory interests—in accordance with what seems to be the better right of authorities on real property—of whom the most prominent are Preston, Fearn, Butler, Smith (on Executory Interests), Williams (on Settlements), Kent, Challis and Professor Gray. (Even with these the distinction is not always maintained between that which denotes the measure of the estate and the estate itself—the word "limitation" serving both uses. But the distinction is of slight importance, since no material confusion could result.)

The meaning of the terms, as used in the text, follows the definition of Mr. Preston:

"A direct limitation marks the duration of estate by the life of a person, by the continuance of heirs, by a space of precise and measured time; making the death of a person in the first example, the continuance of heirs in the second example, and the length of given space in the third example, the boundary of the estate or the period of duration."

"A collateral limitation, at the same time that it gives an interest which may (by possibility) have continuance for one of the times (marked out) in a direct limitation, may, on (the happening of) some event which it describes, put an end to the right of enjoyment during the continuance of that time." (1 Prest. Est. 42.)

And the term "special limitation" is used precisely in this sense of "collateral" limitation, in Smith on Executory Interests, p. 12.

opposed to conditions, to put an end to the estate ipso facto, on the happening of a certain event, or the expiration of a certain condition of things. Such limitations are in no proper sense conditions, although many writers have so classed them.¹ The distinction appears plainly here, that at common law an estate can be limited over after the termination of a prior estate by special limitation, provided such prior estate be not a fee.²

"A special limitation," says Mr. Smith, "is a qualification serving to mark out the bounds of an estate, so as to determine it ipso facto in a given event without action, entry or claim, before it would or might otherwise expire by force of, or according to, the general limitation."

Mr. Challis, quoting Preston's definitions with approval uses the term "determinable limitation." Challis, Real Property, 198, 199.

In a note under § 22 of his work "Restrictions on Alienation," Mr. Gray speaks of the confusion of usage as follows:

"The term 'conditional limitation' is used in two senses. In the sense in which it is generally employed by courts and writers, it is a generic term, comprising two species, (1) shifting uses, and (2) executory devises, and is a proviso cutting short an estate previously created and substituting another in its stead. It is very convenient to have such a common term for shifting uses and executory devises; but, unfortunately, some writers have confused legal nomenclature by attempting to use it in another sense. With them it means a proviso operating to determine an estate by intrinsic force, but not by itself substituting another. In a devise to A and his heirs, but if A died unmarried then to B and his heirs, the words in italics form a conditional limitation in the first sense, while in a devise to A, so long as he remains unmarried, the words in italics form a conditional limitation in the second sense. A proviso of this latter kind is generally called a special limitation. Among the treatises in which the term 'conditional limitation' is used in the first sense are, Fearne Cont. Rem. 14, 15; Butler, Notes to Fearne Cont. Rem. 381; Smith, Executory Interests. § 149; 3 Prest. Abs. 284; Williams on Settlements 21; 2 Cruise Dig. 315; 4 Kent. Com. 249, 250. See Gilbert Uses, (Sugd. ed.) 178 note. Those in which it is used in the second sense are, 1

Sand. Uses 150, 151; 1 Steph. Comm. (8th ed.) 295, note (k); 1 Leake, Land Law 216, note (a); Tud. L. C. on Real Prop. (3rd ed.) 347, 348."

To the latter list must be added the notes on Leading Cases in American Law on Real Property by Sharswood & Budd, vol. 1 pp. 186-190. See also In re Machee, 21 Ch. D. 842, in which there is no attempt at a separation of terms. See the following authorities and decisions, which are in harmony with the fore-quoted definitions: 2 Bl. Com. 155; Tho. Co., 2 vol. 120, 121; Shep. Touch. 121; Washburn Real Prop., vol. 1, 457-461 (where, however, the term "conditional limitation" is sometimes used in both senses); Miller v. Levi, 44 N. Y. 494; Pennoyer v. Brown, 13 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 82; Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 160; Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. 340; Fifty Associates v. Howland, 11 Met. (Mass.) 102; Att'y-Gen'l v. Merrimac Manufacturing Co., 80 Mass. 612; Owen v. Field, 102 Mass. 105; Brattle Sq. Ch. v. Grant, 3 Gray (Mass.) 147. See also Watkins, Conveyancing 204.

1. Littleton distinguishes between a condition in deed and a condition in law, of which the latter is equivalent to limitation, as above defined. See Litt. § 380; 1 Sand. Uses (5th ed.), vol. 1, p. 156. See also Plowd. 242. 2 Bl. Com. 155; and 1 Sand. Uses 150, 151; 1 Steph. Comm. (8th ed.) 295; n. k.; 1 Leake, Land Law 216, n. (a); Tud. L. C. on Real Prop. (3d ed.) 347, 348. See also Challis, Real Prop. 199.

2. Logically, it would be possible to treat limitations under the head of the Quantity of Estate. The fact, however, that special limitations may be annexed to any estate, suggests their treatment under Qualifications.

Remainder After Special Limitation.—

As special limitation may be annexed to any estate, whether for years, for life, or in fee, so a remainder may be limited after such special limitation in all except estates in fee, where it is forbidden by the force of the meaning

Since estates limited over after breach of condition were defeated by the entry of grantor, the rule of construction resulted that where there was an estate over after breach of condition, the condition was turned into a limitation.¹

Cases of common law limitation are infrequent in modern law. Fees determinable by limitation will be discussed below in a note of the terms "fee" and "remainder" at common law (see on this point, the note below on Determinable Fees). See Challis, Real Prop. 64, 65, and ch. 17, citing Co. Litt. 18a; Washburn, R. P., vol. 1, 458, citing 1 Prest. Est. 54; Fearn's Cont. Rem. 13 and n.; Brattle Sq. Church v. Grant, 69 Mass. 150, citing, 4 Kent Com. 10, note; Martin v. Strachan, 5 T. R. 107, note. 1 Jarman on Wills 792.

1. Distinction of Conditions and Limitations.—The line between conditions and limitations is one of the most delicate distinctions in the law. Blackstone's exposition is as follows:

"When an estate is so expressly confined and limited by the words of its creation that it cannot endure for any longer time than till the contingency happens upon which the estate is to fail, this is denominated a limitation; as when land is granted to a man, so long as he is parson of Dale, or while he continues unmarried, or until, out of the rents and profits, he shall have made five hundred pounds, and the like. In such case, the estate determines as soon as the contingency happens, and the next subsequent estate, which depends on such determination, becomes immediately vested, without any act to be done by him who is next in expectancy. But when an estate is, strictly speaking, on condition in deed (as if granted expressly upon condition to be void upon the payment of forty pounds by the grantor, etc.), the law permits it to endure beyond the time when such contingency happens, unless the grantor, his heirs or assigns, take advantage of the breach of the condition, and make either an entry or claim in order to avoid the estate." 2 Bl. Com. 155.

So, as to the effect of the words "until," "so long," "if," "whilst" and "during." See Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. 340, citing Smith on Exec'y Interest, 12; Tho. Coke, 2 vol. 120-121; Fearn on Rem. 12, 13, and note p. 10. See also Brattle Sq. Church v. Grant, 69 Mass. 149-150, citing; 1 Jarman on Wills 780; 4 Kent Comm. 197.

There is no doubt that whatever be the conjunction used, whether conditional or purely temporal, a provision for re-entry is an unfailing characteristic of an estate upon condition. This was held by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts in Attorney-General v. Merrimac Mfg. Co., 80 Mass. 612, where the court gave as the reason for this rule of construction that "the stipulation for a right to re-enter would be senseless if the deed were construed to create a limitation, because, the estate vesting upon the happening of the event, the right to enter would, of course, follow with all other rights of ownership." See Shep. Touch. 121, 122; Litt., §§ 329, 330; 4 Cruise Dig., tit. 32, ch. 25; 4 Kent's Com. (6th ed.) 125, 126. It was said by Lord Coke in Mary Partington's Case, 10 Coke 41, that if there be express words of condition annexed to the estate, it cannot be construed a limitation.

This rule of construction was denied by Lord Hale in Lady Ann Fry's Case, 1 Vent. 202, 203, to be law in all cases; likewise in Crabbe on Real Property, §§ 2135, 2136; 55 Law Library 524, where it is said that there was no other authority for the position. And the rule as given by Blackstone (2 Comm. 156) is: "Though strict words of condition be used, if, on breach of condition, the estate be limited over to a third person, it does not immediately revert to the grantor (as if the estate be limited to B on condition that within two years he intermarry with C, and, on failure, then to D and his heirs), this the law construes to be a limitation and not a condition; for if a condition, only A or his representatives would avoid the estate by entry, and so D's remainder might be defeated by their neglecting to enter; but when it is a limitation, the estate of B determines, that of C commences, and he may enter on the lands immediately without any act as entry or claim." See Miller v. Levi; 44 N. Y. 494, 495. See also Bennett v. Robinson, 10 Watts (Pa.) 348; Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 160.

In The Fifty Associates v. Howland, 52 Mass. 103, it was said: "This is a under Determinable Fees. In New York cases have occurred in which the question was whether a lease is determinable by a condition or limitation, as affecting the jurisdiction of justices.⁴

well founded exception to the general rule of construction as laid down by Lord Coke," citing 2 Wooddeson 143, 144; Bac. Ab. Conditions 2. See Washburn, Real Prop., vol. 1, 458, citing Vellock v. Hammond, Cro. Eliz. 204; 2 Flint Real Prop. 231; Brattle Sq. Church v. Grant, 3 Gray (Mass.) 142.

1. Condition in Lease.—In Miller v. Levi, 44 N. Y. 491, there was a lease which provided that the lessor might terminate it at the end of any year by giving sixty days' notice in case he should sell or desire to rebuild, said sale and notice terminating the lease. Under 2 Rev. Sts. 513, § 28, subdivision 21, in construction of the words "where such person (tenant or lessor of will, etc.) shall hold over and continue in possession of the demised premises after the expiration of his term without the permission of the landlord," it was held that immediately upon the sale and the notice thereof to the tenant, the limitation attached to the estate of the latter without further act on the part of the lessor; that there then arose a limitation of the term, to-wit, its expiration upon the time of the sale. That the act itself in the lease contemplated, to-wit, a sale without notice, created the expiration; that nothing further was necessary. The court distinguished the case of Beach v. Nixon, 9 N. Y. 335, holding that the breach of a condition that the lessee will not permit the premises to be used for a purpose deemed extra hazardous, and that in case of such use the lease shall cease and determine at the option of the lessor, and that he may thereupon recover immediate possession under the statute in question, is not such an expiration of the term as will authorize a summary proceeding. So in distinguishing Oakley v. Schoonmaker, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 226, the court said that a breach of an agreement to cut no wood or timber to be used for fencing and not to carry off any wood or timber, does not create such an expiration of the term as will authorize a summary proceeding under the statute.

The case of Miller v. Levi, 46 N. Y. 691, was itself distinguished in Pennoyer v. Brown, 13 Abb. N. C. (N. Y.) 82.

In The Fifty Associates v. Howland, 11 Met. (Mass.) 99, a lease for five years contained the proviso that if the lessee shall neglect to perform any of the stipulations of the covenant, the lessor might lawfully enter upon the premises and expel the lessee. When the lessee failed to pay rent according to covenant and the lessor entered for condition broken, it was held that the lessee's estate was not determined by his failure to pay rent, but by the lessor's entry. And further, that the lessor could not maintain an action against the lessee under the Rev. Sts. (Mass.), ch. 104, providing for recovery of possession of the demised premises in case a lessee held possession without right after determination of the lease, either by its own limitation or by notice to quit.

See the remarks in Bennett v. Robinson, 10 Watts (Pa.) 348, and in Ashley v. Warner, 11 Gray (Mass.) 43; in Sharswood & Budd's Notes on Leading Cases in the American Law of Real Property, vol. 1, pp. 189-190.

Condition in Easement.—In Owen v. Field, 102 Mass. 90, the owner of land on which were springs, conveyed to one K and his heirs "the whole use" of such springs and also the right of entry upon the land at all reasonable times for the purpose of construction and repairs, doing no unnecessary damage; and K covenanted to furnish the owner and his heirs a reasonable supply of water at his house "and if for any reason the water should not be delivered from the main pipe for the space of one whole year at one time, this indenture is to cease and therefore be void and of no effect." The court held that the indenture gave K no right in the soil of the owner's land, but only an easement, which was determined by its own limitation on K's ceasing for the space of more than a year to deliver water. The importance of the case lay in the question whether an entry was necessary on a breach of the agreement or whether, on determination of the easement by the limitation, the use and control of the springs would by their abandonment ipso facto go back to the owner of the soil.

Condition in Legislative Grant.—In Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 158, the

A characteristic distinction between estates on condition and estates with special limitation must be noticed. In estates on condition the contingency of their determination must not be repugnant to the quantity of estate, which must be clearly defined in proper words of direct limitation.¹ In estates with special limitation, where the contingency forms part of the whole limitation, there is no necessity for a separate direct or common limitation, nor can there be properly any incongruity between the common and special words of limitation. Both are construed as a whole to determine the quantity of estate. Thus, an estate to A and his heirs as long as B shall live, is a properly limited estate pur autre vie.²

The effect of the statute Quia Emptores on these common-law estates is most important, especially in the modern law of the United States. It has been seen how, in prohibiting subinfeudation, the statute forbade the conveyance of any estate in fee other than in fee simple where, on conveyance, the feoffee held of feoffor's lord in feoffor's place. Fees tail were specially excepted from the operation of the statute. Further, an estate in fee with right of entry for breach of condition was not affected by the statute, since the right remaining in the grantor was not reversionary, but purely remedial. But determinable or qualified fees, it is clear, were made impossible of creation by the statute.³ In those commonwealth of Massachusetts had granted a tract of land to B and F by name and to certain settlers named only in the habendum, each settler to have a one hundred-acre lot "on condition that each of the grantees aforesaid pay to said B and F five pounds in lawful money within one year from the time with interest to the payee;" "provided, nevertheless, if any settler or other grantee aforesaid shall neglect to pay his proportion of the sum or sums aforesaid, in that case the said B and F shall be entitled to hold the same in fee, which such negligent person might have held by complying with the condition aforesaid for his part." It was held that a title of any settler who failed to perform the condition within the year became vested ipso facto in fee in B and F, and was out of the reach of legislative control. The decision rested on the rule that "if a condition subsequent is followed by a limitation over in case the condition is not fulfilled or there is a breach of it, that is termed a conditional limitation." See Pells v. Brown, Croke, James 59.

1. As to illegality and impossibility of conditions, see ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 875. See for discussion of repugnant conditions, in Washb. on Real Prop- erty, vol. 1, p. 448. Among such conditions are restrictions on the free conveyance of an estate in fee, although a restriction confined to certain persons named is not invalid. See Atwater v. Atwater, 18 Beav. 330; Co. Litt. 223 a. See Anderson v. Cary, 36 Ohio St. 56. See Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N. Y. 442.

As to conditions not to use premises for the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, and as to conditions in restraint of marriage, see Washb. on Real Property, vol. 1, p. 448, notes 5 and 6.

2. The difference in this respect between conditions and limitations is that while in the former the repugnant condition becomes simply void, in limitations the original estate is cut down to a lesser one. Thus, in determinable fees, the collateral limitation must be by possibility such as may never happen; but if it is such as must, in the nature of things, happen sooner or later, the whole estate granted becomes either an estate for life or for years, depending on whether the happening of the event is fixed in point of time or not. See Challis on Real Property 197; 1 Prest. Estates 479; Litt., §§ 82, 740. See also Plowd. 342.

3. The question, what kind of tenure exists in the different States will be found discussed under the head of Tenures, supra, this article. This question is at the foundation of the subject of determinable fees.

States, however, where the statute is not in force, they may still be created.

The second point to be considered is whether the statute Quia Emptores is in force in those States in which feudal tenure still subsists. All this will be found discussed under the same head of Tenures. The reasoning is very clear that the statute had the effect of abolishing, as involved in any feudal relation remaining between the parties to a conveyance in fee, the possibility of reverter after a determinable fee, since it was expressly enacted that in the conveyance of a fee the grantee should hold of the grantor's lord. But this conclusion has been strikingly ignored by many writers and judges, so that such estates are commonly thought to exist in England as well as in the United States. For a thorough discussion of the subject and an analysis of the cases which might be thought to support determinable fees, see Gray on Perpetuities, §§ 31-42. See for the same conclusion 1 Sand. Uses (5th ed.) 208. See also Third Rep. Real Property Com., p. 36. See Leake Land Law 36, note d. See also Re Machu, 21 Chan. Div. 838, discussed in Gray, Restraints on Alienation, § 22, note.

By many writers, however, the question is not even mentioned. Thus, Mr. Challis, in his treatise on Real Property gives a prominent position to determinable fees, adding a list of examples which are, however, for the most part, supposititious illustrations. See Challis Real Property 201, 206. Despite the frequent mention of determinable fees in textbooks and in briefs of counsel and obiter dicta of judges, it is apparent from an analysis of all cases which might be thought to support the existence of such estates that with one exception there is no actual case supporting the legal creation of a determinable fee in English law, while, on the other hand, there is a decision which is founded directly on the invalidity of such determinable fees. See Christopher Corbett's Case, 2 Anderson 134.

In the United States qualified or determinable fees have been upheld more frequently, not only in those States in which there is no statute precluding their existence, but also in States in which tenure has been abolished, and in those in which the statute Quia Emptores is in force. See for a discussion of these cases Gray on Perpetuities, §§ 40-42, in which Mr. Gray concludes that the case of Leonard v. Burr, 18 N. Y. 96 "is the only weighty case reported on either side of the Atlantic since the passage of the statute of Quia Emptores in which the validity of the possibility of reverter has been clearly adjudicated." Many cases which on first sight appear to be determinable fees or have been so spoken of in the opinions, turn out to be examples of shifting uses or of resulting trusts. A reason why the distinction between possibilities of reverter and other determinable fees should be clearly distinguished from such shifting uses and resulting trusts is, as Mr. Gray observes (§ 41), that the latter are clearly subject to the operation of the Rule against Perpetuities, while as to the former there is much doubt.

The question of the application of the Rule to such interests has, owing to their absence, not been considered in England. The only ground against such application could be their origin in the common law, but since contingent remainders are commonly admitted both in England and the United States to be subject to the Rule (see PERPETUITIES), this argument would seem to fail. In the United States, however, where other future estates of a similar kind, such as rights of entry and resulting trusts have not been considered subject to the Rule, it is difficult to say how the courts will view the application of the Rule to possibilities of reverter.

The cases as given by Gray (Rule against Perpetuities, § 33) in which dicta occur, sustaining determinable fees, are: 7 Edward IV, 12a; Brian and Cawsen's Case, 2 Leon. 68, 69; 3 Leon 115, 117; Liford's Case, 11 Co. 46b, 49a; Pells v. Brown, Cro. Jac. 590, 593; Gardner v. Sheldon, Vaugh. 259; Ayers v. Falkland, 1 Ld. Raym. 325; Idle v. Cook, 1 P. Wms. 774; Lethieulier v. Tracey, 3 Atk. 774; Wellington v. Wellington, 1 W. Bl. 645.

In Pool v. Needham, Yely. 149, there would seem to have been a direct determination that such estates exist. The case was in ejectment, where the remainderman, after an estate in tail male in J, granted his remainder to the queen in fee as long as any issue male of J should live. J suffered a common recovery (under which the plaintiff claimed) and died without issue. The court held the grant of the remainder to the queen void because it could never come into possession; that therefore J's recovery barred the remainder. This was evidently on the ground that the queen took a fee simple determinable; although the same result might have been reached if it had been a fee simple absolute.

In this case it was held that if land be given to one and his heirs so long as J S has heirs of his body, the donee has a fee and can aliene notwithstanding there be a condition that he shall not aliene . . . and if land be given to one and his heirs so long as J S or his heirs may enjoy the manor of B, these words "so long" are utterly vain and idle and do not abridge the estate . . . and yet it is to be admitted that one may have an estate in fee determinable, but not by the act and consent of the parties without any entry for condition broken or title defeasible."

In the recent case of Collier v. Walters, L. R., 17 Eq. 252 (1873), the question was as to a devise to a trustee to hold during the life of A B, and also until the testator's debts and legacies were paid. It was said by the Master of the Rolls, Sir George Jessel, directly overruling a previous decision of Sir John Romilly, M. R., in a case arising under the same will (Collier v. M'Bean, L. R., Ch. 81), in reference to this decision: "His lordship having determined that, according to the true construction of the will, there was a determinable fee, neither of the counsel for the plaintiff will argue in support of that proposition at all. In fact, there is not any authority to be found for any such determinable fee. I have looked at an enormous number of cases to see if I could find such an estate, but I have been quite as unsuccessful as the counsel for the plaintiff. I think there is no such case to be found. I think therefore I may dismiss the interpretation of the will given by Lord Romilly as untenable."

Still more recent is a case whose importance on the question of determinable fees is greater than has been attributed to it. (See Challis, Real Property 207; Gray, Rule ag. Perp., § 36, n. 3.)

In re Machu, 21 Ch. Div. 838 (1882) involved the devise by testator of a freehold estate to the use of his daughter in fee "subject nevertheless to the proviso hereinafter contained for determining her estate." This proviso was that in case the daughter should at any time be declared bankrupt, then and thenceforth the devise thereinbefore made to her should be void, and the premises should thenceforth go, remain, and be to the use of her children. It was held that the devise did not operate as a limitation, and that the condition in the proviso was void for repugnancy, and accordingly the daughter was entitled to the property in an absolute estate in fee simple. The case has been considered as bearing only indirectly on the question, because the court expressed no more than a quære whether an estate in fee simple can be subject to a limitation. But it is clear that the ground of the construction of the condition was founded directly on the unwillingness of the court to find that there was a devise of a determinable fee.

In the case of Webb v. Grace, 2 Ph. 70, which was suggested to the court, the wording of the gift was precisely the same as in the case before the court, with the only difference that there was an estate for life instead of in fee. The court remarked that in that case there was undoubtedly a limitation, and that if the present devise had been for life, the proviso would have been good as a limitation. It would seem that the decision of the court construing the proviso as a condition, resulted directly from a view that limitations in estates in fee were invalid.

Cases in the United States which have been treated as determinable fees, but which are in reality either executory devises or resulting trusts, are among others a large class of grants of land for special uses; such as for school purposes, for public buildings, etc. See Board of Education of Van Wert v. The Inhabitants, 18 Ohio St. 221; Bolling v. Mayor, 8 Leigh (Va.) 224; State v. Brown, 3 Dutch. (N. J.) 13. See further Lee v. Shivers, 70 Ala. 288; Adams v. County of Logan, 11 Ill. 336; Armstrong v. Board of Commissioners, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 208; Broadway v. State, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 290; Connor v. Waring, 4 Gill (Md.) 394.

The last mentioned case, is discussed

The so-called "fee simple conditional," which the statute De Donis turned into a fee tail, is misleading in name. It is essentially a fee determinable by limitation, not an estate on condition. No entry is required by the reversioner to defeat the prior estate. There was, however, a conditional feature in the estate which justified the name. If issue of the prescribed kind was born, a tenant had the rights, for several purposes, of a tenant in fee simple, though if he failed to make use of these rights, the estate descended to the special heirs, and on their default reverted to the lord of the fee.¹

by Mr. Gray at some length. Rule against Perpetuities, §§ 37, 40.

See People v. White, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 26.

So in cases of dedication of streets, courts have spoken of determinable fees. See Helm v. Webster, 85 Ill. 116. But contra, see Pettingill v. Devin, 35 Iowa 344.

In Thayer v. McGee, 20 Mich. 195, the court expressed a quære, whether a fee vested in the county in trust, for the public uses of the dedication, might be held to be a base, limited or determinable fee, and whether after dedication, there remained any assignable interest.

Other cases which have occurred in the United States outside of Pennsylvania and South Carolina (where tenure exists and the statute Quia Emptores is not in force), in which determinable fees are approved, are: Jamaica Pond Aqueduct Co. v. Chandler, 9 Allen (Mass.) 159; Hooker v. Utica Turnpike Co., 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 371; Gillespie v. Broas, 23 Barb. (N. Y.) 370; State v. Brown, 3 Dutch. (N. J.) 13; Foy v. Mayor etc. of Baltimore, 4 Gill (Md.) 394. Where there was a trust for uses, with a provision over if the uses were not observed, there does not seem to be room for the construction of a determinable fee at common law. See Gray, Rule against Perp., § 40 (7).

In the case of Leonard v. Burr, 18 N. Y. 96, there was a devise to one of the use of land until Groversville was incorporated into a village and then to the trustees of said Groversville. The first was held to be a determinable fee; the devise over to the trustees, void under the Rule against Perpetuities. This decision was directly on the point, as the devise to the first taker was held to be determinable by its own limitation. The correct construction would seem to be of a devise in fee, subject to an executory devise void for remoteness. See Gray's Rule against Perpetuities, § 40.

1. Bl. Com. 110, 111; Plowd. 241; Co. Litt. 19. See Challis, Real Prop. 209-214.

As to the question in what States the statute De Donis is in force, see under Tenures, supra, this article. See ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 879. See Gray, Perpetuities, § 14.

If there was issue (and the condition thereby fulfilled) and no alienation, the issue take not an absolute estate, but subject to the same condition. Co. Litt. 19. See note, Jones v. Postell, Harp. (S. C. Law) 97.

Fees simple conditional exist in South Carolina. Jones v. Postell, Harp. (S. C.) 92. In this case arose the difficult question whether such estates could be devised. The court granted that a tenant in fee simple conditional might, after the existence of issue, aliene; but it held that a devise is not such an alienation within the meaning of the law; that if such an alienation does not take effect in the lifetime of the tenant, the estate must descend to the heirs of limitation per formam doni. The court was at a loss for any authorities in the common law, owing to the fact that in South Carolina, while the Statute of Wills was recognized (Act of 1734; P. L. 438), the Statute De Donis was never in force, a conjunction which never existed at the English law. The argument which the court adduced and on which the decision was founded was, that as between the rights of the issue on the death of the testator and those of the devisee (which rights would seem to devolve at the same instant), the question as to preference must be determined by the order in point of time in which the devise and the limitation over to the heirs were to take effect. And the principle invoked to determine this priority was that he shall take who derives his title from the highest source. This was in close analogy to the right of a joint tenant to defeat the jus accrescendi by alienation or forfeiture, but not by testament; since, as Littleton says: "No devise can take effect until after the death of the devisor, and all the land presently cometh by the law to his companion who surviveth," resting on the distinction of the words post mortem and per mortem. See Co. Litt. 180a. See notes under Jones v. Postell, Harp. L. (S. Car.) 62; Wright v. Herron, 5 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 441, and cases there cited. Also 6 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 406; Bruist v. Rores, 4 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 421; Bailey Eq. (S. Car.) 228; 2 Hill Ch. (S. Car.) 184, 244; 1 Hill Ch. (S. Car.) 268; 1 Brev. (S. Car.) 190, 331; 2 Bay (S. Car.) 397.

A fee with a special limitation is called a determinable (or qualified) fee.¹

In Pennsylvania and South Carolina there is no reason against the validity of determinable fees. See Scheetz v. Fitzwater, 5 Pa. St. 126; Penn. R. Co. v. Parke, 42 Pa. St. 31; Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. St. 335.

See also Union Canal Co. v. Young, 1 Whart. (Pa.) 410; Kerlin v. Campbell, 15 Pa. St. 500.

In the First Methodist Church v. Columbia Co., 103 Pa. St. 608, it was considered what words will create a "base or determinate fee." It was held that whenever words can be construed either as a condition, reservation, or a covenant, the tendency of the court is to construe them as one of the latter rather than as the former.

Where, then, A covenanted with B, C, and D, that he would, when required, convey to them a certain piece of land in fee simple, in trust for the sole use of a company, thereafter to be formed, for supplying a certain borough with water, and B, C and D covenanted that A should have a supply of water from the reservoir for his own use, it was held after the water company had abandoned the premises and conveyed the land to a religious corporation for church purposes, that the agreement between A and B, C and D did not constitute a "base fee determinate" on the cessation of the use of the premises for a reservoir, but that it passed as a fee simple. In Kirk v. King, 3 Pa. St. 436, an estate conveyed for an "English school-house," and no other purpose, was held to revert to the grantors after the school had been discontinued for seven years. See also Scheetz v. Fitzwater, 5 Pa. St. 126. See also Packard v. Ames, 16 Gray (Mass.) 327, and Labaree v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211.

1. The terms base, determinable, determinate, and qualified fees, are used with so little agreement and so much arbitrary discretion that it is impossible to find a name for the estate under consideration, which is sanctioned by common use. A division of qualifications in estates in fee is suggested by Mr. Challis, Real Property 197, as follows:

"1st. The succession of the heirs instead of enduring forever, may be liable to be cut short by the happening of a future event which limitation gives rise to a determinable fee.

"2. The heirs to whom the inheritance can descend may be restricted to the heirs of the body of a specified person (or persons), which limitation gives rise to a conditional fee at common law and to a fee tail under the statute De Donis.

"3. The heirs to whom the inheritance can descend may be restricted to a particular class, such as to a man and the heirs of any ancestor in the paternal line whose heir he is."

Of this division the first and second class are given names which seem reasonable and practicable and which are therefore used in the present article. "As to the third class, the existence of such estates is quite doubtful. (See Slake v. Hynes, L. R. (Ir.), 11 Eq. 417; 11 L. R. (Ir.) 284; 1 Prest. Estates 475; Litt. S. 354; Co. Litt. 13a; Challis, Real Property, ch. 19.) But the question as to their existence is sufficiently prominent to suggest the separate name of base fee.

The term "base fees" is also distinct from determinable fees (as they are here under discussion), in so far as there must be a remainder or reversion after them. Plowden's definition, as given by Challis (Plowd. 557, Challis, Real Property 264) is "a fee descendible to the heirs general, upon which subsists a remainder or reversion in fee simple. Here the descent to the heir general distinguishes it from a fee tail, where the descent is to the heirs of the body; and the existence in expectancy upon

(3) Limitations Under the Statutes of Uses and Wills—Common Law Rules of Limitation.—It is clear, that the utmost ingenuity of a common lawyer was as yet unable to compass certain kinds of limitations: First, he could not limit a fee to take effect in possession on a fee; secondly, he could not provide for any interval of time between the determination of one estate and the beginning of a second estate of freehold, because the common law forbade abeyance of the seisin and the creation of freehold estates in futuro; thirdly, he could not provide that the same contingency should cut short one estate and cause a second to begin in possession; in other words, he could not provide that a second estate should begin otherwise than after a natural determination of the prior estate. Under the Statutes of Uses and Wills all these limitations were made possible.¹ (See, for their treatment, REMAINDERS, REVERSIONS. See also PERPETUITIES.)

b. QUALIFICATIONS RELATING TO THE RIGHT OF ENJOYMENT—(1) Uses—(a) Definition.—A use in the strict sense of the of a remainder or reversion distinguishes it from the common-law fees." It is evident that such an estate could not be created by the intention of the parties. It is said to arise when a conveyance by tenant in tail operates as a discontinuance without destroying the right of the reversioner or remainderman to a formdon. See Gray, Rule against Perpetuities, § 35, note; 3 Co. Litt. 18a; Leake's Landlord 40, 319; Challis Real Property 164-272.

There would seem, therefore, to be sufficient ground for the use of the term "determinable fee," first by virtue of its etymological meaning, and secondly for the negative reason that all other terms are otherwise employed.

1. A clear and original exposition of the theory of common-law interests in land and of the rules of limitation governing their creation and transfer will be found in Mr. Challis' Law of Real Property. For purpose of research his work is invaluable; on questions of modern law, its assistance is much impaired by an attitude of championship of the common law as against modern law, and by a prejudice in favor of obsolete rules.

A presentation of future interests from a diametrically opposite point of view is given by Mr. Gray in his work on the Rule against Perpetuities, where, after a succinct and scholarly review of these common-law interests and of rules relating to them, the superseding of the latter by a practical rule, universal in its application, is clearly and vigorously shown.

Bearing in mind what has been said about the invalidity of determinable fees, and remembering also the effect of the Rule against Perpetuities, in limitations void for remoteness on preceding limitations, it is clear that interests in land may be created determinable in any manner except the two following: First, an estate in fee may not be qualified, except in Pennsylvania and South Carolina, by any special limitation. Secondly, an interest may not be limited to be determined by the arising of a future estate when the contingency upon which such future estate arises lies beyond the period of the Rule against Perpetuities. As to the latter see PERPETUITIES; Effect of Limitations Void for Remoteness on Subsequent and Preceding Limitations.

In § 66 of his work on Perpetuities Mr. Gray concludes in a summary, that there is no restraint on the creation of future estates in land, either by way of use or by will, other than the Rule against Perpetuities; but Mr. Gray seems here to overlook the argument which he himself has so ably put forth as to the validity of qualified or determinable fees, the effect of which is clearly to cause a second restraint upon the creation of future estates in land; i. e., of possibilities of reverter in those States in which qualified fees exist. See In re Machu, supra, 21 Ch. Div. 838.

early law,¹ is the right to the beneficial enjoyment of an interest as distinct from the legal estate.²

(b) Importance in Modern Law.—The importance of the consideration of uses at the present day lies in the fact that the modern law of conveyancing depends more closely on the nature and incidents of uses than on those of legal estates. When the former were by statute executed,—in other words, converted into legal estates, they did not lose their facility of transfer, unrestrained by the rule of feudal property. By their conversion into legal estates, the whole system under which they were developed not only lost none of its character, but gained a new prominence by becoming an integral part of the law of conveyancing. While, therefore, uses in their original purpose are obsolete, and in so far the doctrines upon which they are founded have lost their importance, they are yet indispensable as a foundation for most of the modes of transfer, a comprehension of which is impossible without a thorough understanding of the underlying principles.³

(c) Origin.—In uses and trusts⁴ is the first appearance in English law of the conception of a right founded on confidence. This conception was absolutely foreign, if not hostile to the feudal law of the land. Its growth was, therefore, not from the body of the law but purely as a graft thereon. It arose in the necessities as well as in the learning of the clergy,—in the former, owing to the restraint on the acquisition of land by religious corporations by the statutes of mortmain, in the latter by the revival of the institution of the fideicommissum. This was a device in the Roman law by which, where devises to certain persons or

1. The effect of the Statute of Uses in incorporating uses into the body of the law relating to alienation of property, was to create a second meaning of the term which is such a limitation of a future interest in land as is void at common law, but valid by the Statute of Uses.

2. Washburn's definition is, the right in one person called a cestui que use, to take the profits of land of which the owner has the legal title and possession together with the duty of defending the same and of making estates thereof according to the direction of said cestui que use. See Tud. L. Cas. 252; Chudleigh's Case, 1 Rep. 121; 2 Bl. Com. 330; Bac. L. Tracts 307, 150.

See Co. Litt. 273b. "A trust (in the sense of 'use') is a confidence reposed in some other, not issuing out of the land, but as a thing collateral, annexed in privity to the estate of the land, and to the person touching the land, for which cestui que trust has no remedy but by subpœna in chancery."

See Perry on Trusts, § 13; Wallace v. Wainwright, 87 Pa. St. 263; Chaffee v. Risk, 12 Harris (Pa.) 432.

Blackstone's definition is: "A confidence reposed in another who was tenant of the land or terre-tenant that he should dispose of the land according to the intention of cestui que use of him to whose use it was granted and suffer him to take the profits." See Plowd. 352.

3. In their original function as purely beneficial interests, uses are the foundation of the present law of trusts. This will be found treated under TRUSTS.

See the first note under the next subdivision, (c) Origin.

The process by which this conversion took place and the manner in which uses gave rise to forms of conveyance, will be treated below under (bb) Effect of the Statute.

4. The distinction between uses and trusts before the statute related simply to the duration of the beneficial interest and to the nature of this interest.

in a certain manner could not be effected by law, this was accomplished by a legal devise to one person burdened with a trust in behalf of the intended beneficiary.¹ As in Roman law, so in England, this beneficial right had no means of enforcement and depended purely on the confidence imposed upon the legal devisee or feoffee. As in the Roman law, a judicial office was in course of time created, with power to enforce this trust, that of the praetor fideicommissarius, so in England a certain officer, the chancellor, who was invariably a member of the clergy, was given exclusive jurisdiction over this class of rights and duties. The first judicial method for enforcing the trust was the subpoena by which the feoffee to uses could be compelled to account under oath.²

(d) Development and Incidents Before the Statute of Uses.—The fact that confidence was the source of the use as a right, is seen in the manner in which uses were enforced against persons other than the original trustee. At first even the heir took the legal estate free from the use, on the ground that there was no privity of person, in other words, no confidence between himself and cestui que use. Gradually privity of person was enlarged so as to include the heir, and finally any one who took the estate with notice of the use, even though he paid a consideration. But at all times privity of estate was necessary to enforce the trust, so that a disseisor or abator, or a tenant in dower, by curtesy or by electio besides the purchaser without notice and for valuable consideration, took free of the use, as the privity of estate had been destroyed.³

It was a part of the very purpose of uses and a necessary consequence of their external origin that they were not liable to the

Where the beneficial enjoyment was a permanent one without any qualification, it was called a use, and where it was temporary and complex it was called a trust. The distinction was the same as between simple and special trusts after the Statute of Uses. The distinction between "use" and "trust" before the Statute is of no weight; either term was used as the generic term; as such, uses included beneficial interests of all kinds. (See Hurst v. McNeill, 1 Wash. C. C. 70.) After the Statute, the term was abolished as a beneficial interest and the distinction was now between active and passive trusts, or simple and special trusts. See Washb. on Real Property, 95-96; 1 Cruise Dig. 246; Cornish Uses, 14; Tudd. Lead. Cas. 255; Sand. Uses 7; 1 Spence Eq. Jur. 448; 2 Bl. Com. 328. See also Challis Real Property, 311.

1. The earliest conveyances to the use of the clergy in evasion of the statutes of mortmain were simply "upon the faith that the feoffee should permit the ecclesiastical body intended to be benefitted, to enjoy the profits of the estate." Per Washb. Real Property 94. See 1 Spence Eq. Jur. 446.

2. It was invented by John de Waltham in 1380.

3. The vitality of this element of confidence is further shown in the prohibition of corporations from holding to uses, on the ground that they are incapable of confidence. See 2 Bl. 330; Bro. Abr. tit. Feoffm. al uses, 40; Bacon of Uses, 347.

And by reason of this same requirement of privity of person, "if the feoffee to uses died without heir or committed a forfeiture or married, neither the lord who entered for his escheat or forfeiture, nor the husband who retained the possession as tenant by the curtesy, nor to the wife to whom dower was burdens of feudal tenure. Nor could there be any estate of dower or curtesy in a use.¹

As regards descent, uses followed strictly the course of the legal estate, varying, therefore, with the different kinds of tenure.² The great value of uses lay in the extreme facility by which they could be created, and also transferred both inter vivos and by will. In a feoffment, a mere oral declaration of the use was sufficient; and since feoffments were originally not made in writing but only by livery, the whole conveyance could be made by parol. Herein must be noticed the distinction between a conveyance of the use by transmutation of the possession and without transmutation,—a distinction which under the Statute of Uses gave rise to two classes of conveyances. A use could be created by a simple declaration of the owner without more; but such a use could never be enforced without either a valuable consideration or a good consideration. It was early common for an owner in fee to enfeoff another to the feoffor's use. It is noteworthy how, under this system, there gradually arose a presumption in a feoffment opposite to the presumption of the common law, while in the latter a feoffment in itself presumed a consideration. In equity, where there was no consideration, a use to the feoffor was invariably presumed which was termed a resulting use, and this explains why conveyancers were careful to mention expressly the consideration and the use.³

It was part of the conception and purpose of the use that the intention of the beneficiary should govern the feoffee in the disposition of the use; and so in most definitions the term involves a duty of the feoffee that he shall make estates according to the direction of cestui que use. Hence there could be an alienation of the use by mere declaration either inter vivos or by devise; nor was any act of notoriety required either in the creation or the transfer of the use, although, of course, the legal estate could not pass without the concurrent act of the trustee. Any direction whether oral or in writing must be obeyed by the trustee; hence, during all the time before the Statute of Wills, when no estate of freehold in land could be devised, cestui que use could devise his interest without restraint: either in the nature of a direction to the trustee, as aforesaid, or in the execuassigned, were liable to perform the use." 2 Bl. 330; 1 Rep. 122.

1. This followed also from the requirement of privity of person and estate, for, says Blackstone, bk. 2, p. 331, "no trust was declared for their benefit (that of the husband or wife) at the original grant of the estate." And see 4 Rep. 1.

2. See 2 Bl. 330; 2 Roll. Abr. 780. For this Blackstone adduces the maxim aequitas sequitur legem: that equity cannot establish a different rule of property from that which the law has established.

The use of gavelkind lands descended according to the custom of gavelkind; and the use of borough-English according to the custom of borough-English; and so of copy-holds. See Challis Real Property, 310; 1 Prest. Estates, 448; Rob. Gav. 98, 99. See also Washb. R. P. 100; 1 Spence Eq. Jur. 454; 2 Bl. Com. 329.

3. See 2 Washburn, Real Prop. 100, 101.

tion of a power reserved to himself in the original conveyance to use.¹

For the same reason that uses followed the descent of legal estates, the same divisions of the quantity of interest existed in them as at law, so that a use could be for life, in tail or in fee.² Uses thus had the benefit of the certainty of common-law estates, without the restraint of the rules of limitations at law.

Uses might exist of personal property. But the purpose of their invention as well as their peculiar advantages referred solely to their application to real property, and caused them to be employed almost exclusively in relation to land. It must be remembered, too, that the Statute of Uses applied only to estates of which the feoffee to uses was seized; that therefore no use was executed except in estates of freehold. Therefore only so much of the early law of uses has any bearing upon modern conveying as related to freehold estates in realty. One of the few rules by which the creation of uses was restrained was that there must always be a seisin, or something corresponding to the seisin. Of such hereditaments, therefore, as lay purely in grant there could be no use since there could be no separation between possession and enjoyment.³

(e) Statute of Uses—(aa) AIM AND PURPORT.—The actual aim of the Statute of Uses has been much discussed without exact agreement;⁴ but whatever may have been the hidden aim, its purport, to gather from its own terms, was to restore notoriety in the transfer and ownership of land, and likewise to re-establish the

1. See Washb. Real Property, 99, 100; Cornish Uses, 19; 2 Bl. Com. 331; 1 Spence Eq. Jur. 454; Crabb Real Property, 1614-16; Cruise Dig. 3, 4; 2 Bl. Com. 329; Co. Litt. 271*b*, Butler's note, 231; 2 Bl. Com. 329; Crabb Real Property, 1616; Co. Litt. 112, 138; Co. Litt. 271*b*, Butler's note 231; Sir Edward Clere's Case, 6 Rep. 17*b*; Co. Litt. 112*a*, note 142; Tud. L. Cas. 268.

2. See Washburn Real Property, 105; 1 Spence, Eq. Jur., 455.

3. See 2 Bl. 330. "Nothing could be granted to a use whereof the use is inseparable from the possession; as annuities, ways commons and authorities, quae ipso usu consumuntur; or whereof the seisin could not be instantly given." See 1 Jon. 127; Cro. Eliz. 401.

See Washb. Real Property 98, where he says: "It was necessary, however, that the property conveyed should be in esse at the time and capable of having what answered to the seisin thereof given instantly and simultaneously with the creation of the use therefor. Though a man might convey lands to another and his heirs to the use of a third person for years, he could not so convey them if he had only a leasehold interest therein for years, since he had no seisin to part with upon which the use might depend. So for the same reason no one could raise the use in favor of another by a covenant to stand seized to use of lands of which he has no title or possession." See Crabb Real Property, §§ 1610, 1612; Yelverton v. Yelverton, Cro. Eliz. 401.

4. See 2 Washb. on Real Property 109. One statement of this aim is the entire abolition of uses. 1 Cruise Dig. 349; Gilbert's Uses 74; Chudleigh's Case, 1 Rep. 124; Co. Litt. 271; Butler's Notes 231, § 3. According to another writer it was to abolish the jurisdiction of the court of chancery over landed estates. See Williams' Real Prop. 133. See also Bacon Law Tracts 332; Gilbert's Uses (Sugden's ed.) 139, n.; Sand. Uses 86, 87.

incidents of legal estates which had been evaded under the doctrine of uses, such as dower, curtesy, escheat, and feudal burdens which have been since abolished.¹ It would seem from the preamble that it was the intention entirely to do away with trusts, uses, and confidences. The direct mode by which this was to come about was by what was called the execution of the use, immediately upon its creation; in other words, the union or fusion of the legal estate or seisin with the use. In order to this operation, certain elements must exist.

By way of preliminary it must be mentioned that while the property which may be held or conveyed to uses executed by the statute, embraces generally "every kind of real property"² whether in possession, reversion or remainder, as well incorporeal

1. The title of the statute is, "An act concerning uses and wills." The preamble recites that, by common law, lands, etc., are not devisable, and ought not to be transferred but by solemn livery, matter of record, etc., without covin. Yet by subtle inventions . . . they have been conveyed . . . by assurances craftily made and secret uses, interests, and trusts; and also by wills, sometimes by words, sometimes by writing, by reason of which heirs have been disinherited, lords have lost their wards, marriages, aids, etc.; persons purchasing lands could not know their title; husbands lost curtesy; widows dower; the king had lost the profits of attainder . . . to the utter subversion of the ancient common law of this realm. This, then . . . for the extirping and extinguishment of all such subtle practiced feoffments . . . to the intent that the king's highness, or any other of his subjects of this realm shall not in any wise hereafter by any means or inventions be deceived, damaged, or hurt by reason of such trusts, uses, or confidences . . . enacts that when any persons stand seised, or so happen to be seised of or in any honors, castles, manors, lands, tenements, rents, services, reversions, remainders, or other hereditaments, to the use, confidence, or trust of any other person . . . such person shall stand and be seised of such hereditaments to all intents and purposes in the law . . . of and in such like estates as they had or shall have in use trust, or confidence in the same; and that the estate, right, and possession of the person seised shall be deemed and adjudged to be in him or them of such use, confidence or trust after such quality, manner, form, and condition as they had before in or to the use . . . See summary of the act in 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 100; Challis on Real Prop. 313.

By the statute Henry VIII, ch. 10, it was enacted that "when any person shall be seised of lands, etc., to the use, confidence or trust of any other person or body politic, the person or corporation entitled to the use in fee simple, entail for life or years, or otherwise, shall, from thenceforth, stand and be seised or possessed of the lands, etc., of and in the like estates as they have in the use, trust, or confidence; and that the estate of the person so seised to uses shall be deemed to be in him or them that have the use in such quality, manner, form, and condition as they had before in the use."

2. It was owing to the term "seised" that the statute was early held to apply only to freeholds, copyholds and terms of years being excluded as well as personal chattels. In these, therefore, the use is not executed, but remains an equitable interest. See Warner v. Sprigg, 62 Md. 14.

To avoid confusion in discussing the property which may be held or conveyed to uses executed by the statute, it is most important to distinguish between the property or estate in the feoffor or in the feoffee to uses out of which the uses is raised, and, on the other hand, the property or estate in the cestui que use. Thus, while one who is seised in fee may bargain and sell land to another to his use for years, a lessee for years cannot bargain and sell his lease to the use of one for years. See Bac. Abr., tit. Uses and Trusts, F; Brownl. 40. See Ingerfield's Case, And. 294.

as corporeal,"¹ the property must be of such a kind that the seisin or possession can exist separate from the use, as otherwise there is lacking one of the two elements to be united by the statute.² Hence it is that annuities, ways and commons are not capable of a use, and finally it is this principle which is at the foundation of the doctrine that a use cannot be limited upon a use.³

The requisites for the operation of the statute are generally said to be a person seised to the use, a cestui que use, and a use in esse.⁴ Under the first the only exception which existed in England, that of corporations, has been abolished in the United States.⁵ It may be mentioned here that quite distinct from the use itself, it is necessary that there be a certain estate in the person seised to the use or in the feoffee to use. This followed from the legal requirement that when the seisin passed out of the grantor it should exist in some person in order to support all the uses declared. There was no limit to the kind of estate of which the use itself might consist; but this did not do away with the rule of law relating to the continuity of the passage of the seisin. Under this principle, it was first held necessary that the person seised to uses must have an estate in fee simple; but later this was cut down to a freehold estate. It is obvious that the estate in the person seised must be at least as large as the sum of the estates conveyed to use. The reason why freehold estates were requisite was because there could be no seisin in an estate less than freehold.⁶

Secondly, it is necessary that there should be a cestui que use and that he must be distinct from the feoffee to uses;⁷ but it is

1. See Washb. Real Property, bk. 2, 113.

2. See Bac. Abr., tit. Bargain and Sale, B; 2 Coke 35, 36, 54; Dyer 309; 2 Insts. 671; Poph. 76; Bac. Abr. Uses and Trusts, F; Brownl. 40.

3. See 2 Washb. Real Prop. 114; Bacon's Law Tracts 335; Gilbert's Uses (2d ed.) 194, n.; Gilbertson v. Richards, 5 H. & N. 453; Franciscus v. Reigart, 4 Watts (Pa.) 98, 118; Bac. Abr. Uses and Trusts, F; Lord Willoughby's Case, Sir William Jones 127.

Thus in an action on the case the plaintiff declared that the defendant, seised in fee of the lands over which there was a way, and of other lands by indenture of bargain and sale enrolled, conveyed his lands to J. S. in fee, with a way over his lands, and that J. S. leased the premises to the plaintiff, and that the defendant disturbed him. The court were all of opinion that, by this bargain and sale, the land only passed, and not a way over the same, because nothing but the use passed by the deed, and there cannot be the use of a thing which is not in esse, as a way, common, etc., newly created, and until they are created no use can be raised by bargain and sale, and, consequently, nothing passed by the indenture. Per Bac. Abr. Uses and Trusts, F.; Cro. Ja. 189, pl. 13; Bewdley v. Brookby, Jones 127 S. Car.

4. Minor's Institutes, vol. 2, 181; 2 Washb. Real Prop. 113; 1 Cruise Dig. 349; Tud. Leading Cas. 258; Crabbe Real Prop., § 1646; Witham v. Brooner, 63 Ill. 346.

5. See 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 113; United States v. Amedy, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 392; First Parish of Sutton v. Cole, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 240.

6. See 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 114; 1 Cruise Dig. 350; Bacon's Law Tracts 325; Tudor's Lead. Cas. 257; Warner v. Sprigg, 62 Md. 14; 1 Cruise Dig. 351; Jenkins v. Young, Cro. Car. 230; Sand. Uses 109; Crabbe Real Prop., § 1646; 1 Cruise Dig. 353; Tudor's Lead. Cases 259.

7. This separation of cestui que use from the person seised to uses may be not necessary that cestui que use be in existence at the time of the original conveyance.¹ Finally, there must be a use in esse, though this need not be in present possession.²

of great importance in determining whether a conveyance passes a title directly to cestui que use, or only an equitable interest by way of trust. For, as has been shown, where there is a use upon a use, the statute executes only the first, leaving the second use a purely equitable estate.

In Brown v. Benshaw, 57 Md. 67, there was a conveyance which the court held to be a bargain and sale, although, as was said in the opinion, the result would not have been different if the deed had been treated as a feoffment. Under the latter construction, it was decided that a conveyance by way of feoffment to A and his heirs, to the use of him and his heirs, to the use of another, will give A the legal estate, and this although by the terms of the Statute of Uses one person must be seized to the use of another in order to the execution of the use. See Doe v. Passingham, 6 B. & C. 305; Jackson v. Cary, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 302; note 2 by Sugden to Gilbert on Uses and Trusts, p. 359; Sammer's Case, 13 Co. Rep. 56.

In such case "it is not a use divided from the estate as where it is limited to a stranger, but the use and the estate go together." See Meredith v. Jones, Cro. Car. 244; Whetstone v. Bury, 2 P. Wm. 146. Construing (in the case supra, of Brown v. Benshaw, 57 Md. 67), the conveyance as a bargain and sale, the court held that the words "to his proper use and behoof" following the words of limitation to the grantee, have no particular meaning or effect in determining either the extent of the interest conveyed, or the nature and quality of the estate intended to be vested. See also Franciscus v. Reigart, 4 Watts (Pa.) 118; 2 Smith's Lead. Cas. (5th Am. ed.) 454; 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 151. On the other hand, in Hurst v. McNeil, 1 Wash. (C. C.) 70, it is held that in a lease and release to A and his heirs, to the use of A and his heirs, to the use of B and his heirs, this would not be a use upon a use, but the deed would operate like a feoffment to A to the use of B, where the statute executes the use in B. On the principle that where an estate can vest by common law and does not require the aid of the statute to execute the use, there is, therefore, no second use, and the statute executes the use in the second person named. See 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 150.

The rule is generally strict that wherever possible a conveyance will operate by common law. (Certain exceptions to this do not concern the point in issue as, where the interest of the feoffee to uses is less than the legal estate conveyed, or where part of a general settlement to uses is an interest possessed under the statute. See 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 117, and the cases cited there.) It has been held that where in a deed operating as a feoffment the words "to the use of" are added to the feoffee, followed by a second use, the phrase "to the use of the feoffee" is simply inoperative, conveyance to him passing by common law. See Warner v. Sprigg, 62 Md. 14; 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 148. See, however, Hurst v. McNeil, 1 Wash. 70; Doe v. Passingham, 6 Barn. & C. 305; Franciscus v. Reigart, 4 Watts (Pa.) 118. See also 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 151, n. 2, and cases cited. See also 2 Sm. Lead. Cas. 454.

1. There are not wanting decisions which hold that a bargain and sale to a person not in being is bad. The authorities to this doctrine are Mr. Sugden's Notes to Gilbert on Uses 398. See also Pl. 91; 2 Sand. on Uses (5th ed.) 62; 2 Sid. 158; Dillon v. Frane, Pop. 70. The question is thoroughly discussed by Mr. Gray in Rule against Perpetuities, §§ 61-66. Mr. Gray accounts for the origin of the doctrine on the ground that because in a covenant to stand seized no use can be raised to one who is not of kin or connected by marriage, so in a bargain and sale a money consideration cannot come from a stranger. He shows that a consideration paid by one person can raise a use, and even a future use, to another; therefore, also to a person not in being. He concludes that the true doctrine is that a bargain and sale to a person not in esse is good. See Ocheltree v. McClung, 7 W. Va. 232.

2. In Massachusetts, the doctrine is thoroughly established that a future freehold cannot be created by a bargain and sale. See Welch v. Foster, 12

A deed of bargain and sale will, therefore, strictly speaking, be incapable of transferring a contingent future interest.¹

Mass. 93; Wallis v. Wallis, 4 Mass. 135; Pray v. Pierce, 7 Mass. 381; Arthur v. Nichols, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 111; Hunt v. Hunt, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 374; Gale v. Coburn, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 396; Brewer v. Hardy, 22 Mass. 356. The ground of this doctrine is that a freehold to commence in futuro could only be conveyed in this way by making the bargainee hold to the use of another until the future freehold should vest, which would be impossible as a use upon a use. As has been clearly pointed out by authorities cited below, this view of the process of the raising of the use is incorrect, since the use in the future freehold arises not out of the estate of the bargainee but out of the original estate of the bargainor, which he retains until the future event. See Gray on Rule against Perpetuities, §§ 56, 57; Rogers v. Eagle Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 64; Bell v. Scammon, 15 N. H. 381; Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139; Jordan v. Stevens, 51 Me. 78; Brown v. Smith, 52 Me. 141; Savage v. Lee, 90 N. Car. 320; Parsons v. Mills, 2 Roll. Abr. 786; Gilbert Uses Sugden's ed. 163; 1 Washb. on Real Prop., 116.

It is, therefore, generally well settled that an estate of freehold in futuro may be created by a conveyance under the statute of uses. Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498; Rogers v. Eagle Fire Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 625. See Bell v. Scammon, 15 N. H. 381.

1. There are two aspects under which this rule appears. First, as to whether a conveyance by way of use will transfer interests that are merely contingent. Secondly, whether such a conveyance will operate, like a feoffment to destroy a contingent remainder, and thereby indirectly convey a larger estate than was in the bargainor. As to the first, there is no doubt that a conveyance under the Statute of Uses must be based upon possession, although this possession may be a possession in law and not actual. See Mason v. Smallwood, 4 Harr. & McH. (Md.) 484. See also 2 Insts. 672; 2 Rep. 24a, 54a; Co. Litt. 49a, 48b, 214a. See also Shepard's Touchstone 218; 1 Bacon's Abr. 274, 275. Any freehold in possession, reversion, or remainder upon an estate for life or years may undoubtedly be bargained and sold. 9 Viner's Abr. 448; Pl. 17; Pl. 19; Co. Litt. 15b; 1 Wood Conv.

715. Where, therefore, there is no vested interest in the bargainor, no estate can pass; but the modern view, which seems to be well established in the cases and grounded in justice, is that the contingent or after-acquired interest will pass by estoppel as a result of a conveyance under the Statute of Uses, if such was the intention of the parties.

The question arose in a recent case in New Jersey: Hannon v. Christopher, 34 N. J. Eq. 459. Here there was a devise to three persons, "to the survivor of them," and the heirs, or assigns of such survivors, which was held to create a joint estate for life in the three with contingent remainders in fee to the survivor. After the death of one of them, one of the survivors by deed of bargain and sale purported to convey to the other all his estate, right, title, and interest whatsoever under the will. The deed was without covenants. The court held that while there was no conveyance of the contingent estate, the grantee and his donee were estopped from asserting that the deed passed only a life estate. The question of estoppel in deeds will be found thoroughly discussed in the American notes to the Duchess of Kingston's Case, 2 Smith's Lead. Cases. The principle was stated in the case of Van Rensselaer v. Kearney, 11 How. (U. S.) 97, 191, by Nelson, J., of the Supreme Court of the U. S., as follows: "If the deed bears on its face evidence that the grantor intended to convey, and the grantee expected to become invested with the estate of a particular description or quality, and that the bargain proceeded upon that form between the parties, then, although it may not contain any covenants of title in its technical sense of the term, still, the legal operation and effect of the instrument will be as binding upon the grantor and those claiming under him in respect to the estate thus described as if a formal covenant to that effect had been inserted, at least, so far as to estop him from ever afterward denying that he was seised with the particular estate at the time of the conveyance." See also French v. Spencer, 21 How. (U. S.) 228; Jackson v. Waldron, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 178; Fitzhugh v. Tyler, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 559. As to the question whether where truth appeared upon the face of the instrument, there could be no estoppel, see 4 Com. Dig. 205, title, ESTOPPEL; Sinclair v. Jackson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 543; Pelletreau v. Jackson, 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 111; Jeffrey v. Buchnell, 2 Barn. & Ad. 278, cited in Hannon v. Christopher, 34 N. J. Eq. 459. See also Jolley v. Arbuthnot, 4 DeG. & J. 224.

In Morton v. Woods, L. R. 4 Q. B. 293, it was said that if there were any decisions or dicta which held that where the truth appears there can be no estoppel, the doctrine must now be considered overruled. In the above mentioned case of Hannon v. Christopher, 34 N. J. Eq. 449, the court adduced as second ground that where it distinctly appears from the face of the deed that it was intended to transfer any future interest which the grantor might acquire, equity will treat the deed as an executory agreement to convey, and compel the grantor to convey the subsequently acquired interest. See also 2 Smith's Lead. Cases, 641; 2 Story's Eq. Jur. 1040; McWilliams v. Nisly, 2 S. & R. (Pa.) 409.

As to the second aspect, it has been repeatedly said that conveyances operating under the Statute of Uses will not pass any greater estate than the grantor may lawfully convey. See 4 Kent's Com. 255; 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 151. See also Gilbert's Law of Uses (Sugden's ed.) 312; McInnes v. McCullough, Gilbert, 236; Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498; Den v. Crawford, 8 N. J. L. 90. By this is meant that a bargain and sale as distinct from a feoffment or other common law conveyance, if made by a tenant for life, cannot bar a contingent remainder, and thus indirectly convey a greater estate than was in the grantor. The question arose in the case of Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498, under a will in which testator gave his son the residue of his estate, to descend to the youngest son of said son, and from him to the oldest male heir of such youngest son, and in failure of such issue then to the heirs of the first devisee. This was held to give an estate for life to testator's son, and a contingent remainder for life to the said youngest son.

After the death of testator, his son, the first devisee, conveyed the premises by bargain and sale, and the question was as to the effect of this conveyance upon the contingent remainder to the youngest son under the will. The court held that while it was clear that such remainder would be destroyed by a feoffment or fine, conveyances which derive their operation from the Statute of Uses, as a bargain and sale, lease and release, and the like do not bar contingent remainders, for none of them pass any greater estate than the grantor may lawfully convey. Further, that "though to prevent a deed from failing of any effect, it may be regarded as a feoffment; yet it will not have that effect given to it to affect the estate of a third person. By such a deed nothing more is conveyed by a tenant for life than he may rightfully convey, that is, his own interest alone, and any contingent remainder remains unaffected by it." See 4 Kent's Com. 255, 235.

See Archer's Case, 1 Co. 66; Bowles', 11 Rep. 79.

In Denn v. Crawford, 8 N. J. L. 90, it was considered whether the language of the New Jersey Statute of Uses gave to a deed of bargain and sale equal efficacy as had a deed of feoffment at common law. By § 7 (Rev. Laws), the statute provides that: "Any particular person or persons to whom the use or uses of any tract or tracts of land within this province have been sold, given, limited, granted, or conveyed, by deed, grant, or any other legal conveyance whatsoever, or that shall hereafter be granted by any deed or conveyance whatsoever, such grantees, their heirs and assigns shall be deemed taken and estimated to be in full and ample possession of such lands, tenements, and hereditaments to all intents, instructions, and purposes as if such grantees, their heirs and assigns were possessed thereof by solemn livery of seisin and possession in usage or custom."

It was said by the court that the statute has no relation to the estate or quantity of interest which may be conveyed and was not designed in any degree to abridge or enlarge the interest intended to be passed to the grantee; that this action is on the possession only. To unite or transfer the possession to the use and to declare the nature and quality of such possession are its legitimate purposes, but as to quantity of interest or duration of the estate in the use conveyed, it has no concern. But finally, that a deed of bargain and sale, although purporting to convey an estate in fee simple, yet actually conveys nothing more than the estate of the bargainor, such an

(bb) EFFECT OF STATUTE.—There are two important features in the interpretation of the statute of uses which account for the fact that the result of the statute was widely different from that intended. Had the construction been a natural one, there is little reason to doubt that the effect would have been the abolition of uses, and a complete revival of common-law rules and limitations. These features are, first, the construction that a use upon a use could not be executed. The result of this was that the whole system of uses remained in full force, and the only difference in their creation was the addition of a short phrase to the conveyance.¹

The second was a construction based upon the wording of the statute in section one, which enacted, "that the estate, right, and possession of the person seised shall be deemed and adjudged to be in him or them that have such use, confidence or trust after such quality, manner, form, and condition as they had before in or to the use, etc." It must be remembered that before the statute, the rules of the limitation of estates at common law were never violated by the doctrine of uses, but expressly acknowledged in the very evasion.

When uses were transformed into legal estates, there would seem to be no reason why their devolution should not have followed common-law rules. But by the construction based upon the words italicized, all the rules of the creation and the transfer of equitable interests which had been developed under the system of uses were retained after the statute, and applied to legal estates.² A fee could therefore be conveyed in futuro without hindrance; and an estate in fee could be limited to be cut off by the arising of contingent estate.

The result was that an entirely new foundation for conveying legal estates was brought about, and that the principles and the modes of modern conveyancing had their source directly in this statute. It must be noted that this suspension of the rules of common law was in the nature of an exception, and that in all other respects they were in full force.

estate only as the bargainor might lawfully transfer, an estate commensurate with the estate of the bargainor at the execution of the deed. Hence, if a tenant for life make a deed of bargain and sale, though in language a fee simple, yet it destroys or disturbs no contingent estate which may be limited after the life of the bargainor and passes merely an estate for the life of the bargainor only. See Saund. USES, 231; 1 Bac. Ab. 274, tit. Bargain and Sale a.

1. See 2 Blackstone's Com. 335; Bacon's Uses 43; 1 Atkins 591; Challis on Real Prop. 311.

2. As explained by Lord Bacon, the effect of this phrase was, "that cestui que use shall be in possession of like estate as he hath in the use. The fiction quo modo is that the statute will have the possession of the cestui que use as a new body compounded of the matter and the form, and that the feoffee shall give matter and substance and the use will give form and quality." But it would certainly seem that the very opposite was the intention of the statute since the legal estate was itself mere form, and the purpose of the fusion would be to give this legal form to the use. See 2 Washb. Real Prop. 121; 1 Cruise Dig. 363; Castle v. Dodd. Cro. Jac. 201; Bacon Law Tracts 337, 340.

Thus, estates executed by the Statute of Uses could not be devised until the Statute of Wills, 32 Henry VIII, ch. 1, although uses were freely devisable before the Statute of Uses.¹ Further, estates created by the statute were vested with all the legal incidents of an estate, such as escheat, dower, curtesy, etc.²

The question of transmission of the seisin in contingent future uses was discussed with much subtlety, and various doctrines were propounded, the most important of which was that of the scintilla juris.³ All that is of importance to-day is that in whomsoever the seisin may exist, the use is transmitted by the statute if there be a person originally seised, a use in esse, and a cestui que use, whether in being or not. So a use may be limited to be cut off by the arising of a contingency, or a freehold may be limited by use to arise in futuro, or there may be an interval between the termination of one estate and the beginning of another. All these limitations are void at common law, and were introduced by the peculiar construction of the statute.

1. 2 Washb., Real Prop., 111; Bac. Law Tracts 344.

2. Washb. on Real Prop. 126. And the estate of a feoffee to use "being instantly taken out of him as soon as created is not subject to any of these legal incidents." Tudor's Lead. Cases 261; Sand. Uses 119. It has been frequently said that contingent remainders created by way of use or devise are subject to the rule of the common law which requires contingent remainders to be supported by a preceding particular estate of freehold. Without entering upon an extended discussion of this question, which is one of the profoundest in the law of real property, it is sufficient to say that there is no such restriction on the creation of contingent interests by use in modern law. The rule that in a conveyance or in a will so much of the estate or inheritance as is not disposed of results back to the grantor or his heirs, seems clearly to cover any need of a disposition of the inheritance sufficient to support a contingent interest. The strict position that the common-law rule applies to interests created by use is taken by Mr. Washburn, bk. 2, pp. 118, 125, 126, and generally in chapter 5.

But the more correct view seems to be that of Chancellor Kent in 4 Kent's Com. 257, where he says: "If a contingent remainder be created in conveyances by way of use, or in disposition by will, the inheritance in the meantime, if not otherwise disposed of, remains in the grantor or his heirs, or descends to the heirs of the testator to remain until the contingency happens. This general and equitable principle is one of acknowledged authority." See Sir Edward Clere's Case, 6 Co. 17b; Carter v. Barnadiston, 1 P. Wms. 516. The question is briefly treated by Mr. Gray in Rule against Perpetuities, §§ 58, 59, 60, in which he disposes of it as follows: "It is well settled that if a future limitation can be construed as a remainder, it must be so construed, and not as a springing use; but it is a very different thing to say that a good springing use must be construed into a bad remainder, because it is preceded by an estate which is insufficient to support a remainder. To construe a limitation as a remainder if it can be a remainder is one thing; but to insist upon construing it as a remainder, when it cannot be a remainder, seems the very wantonness of destruction. In fact, an estate after an estate for years, though commonly called a remainder, is not strictly so." He concludes that it has been repeatedly held that a future contingent devise after an estate for years is a good executory devise and not a bad remainder; that the question is uncertain as to estates arising under a deed, because of the absence of decisions. Finally, that the statement may be ventured that a contingent use is good although preceded by an estate for years. See Gore v. Gore, 2 P. Wms. 28; Haywood v. Stillingfleet, 1 Atk. 422; Harris v. Barnes, 4 Burr. 2157; Gilbert Uses (Sugden's ed.) 171.

3. This doctrine was attacked by Mr. Sugden. As has been shown, there

(cc) MODES OF CONVEYANCING UNDER THE STATUTE.—Instead, therefore, of restoring notoriety in the creation and transfer of estates there was now no bar to the secret conveyance of legal estates, except the rule of equity, which refused to raise a use against a grantor without a valuable consideration.¹ The most important instrument of conveyancing which resulted from the interpretation of the statute was the bargain and sale, by which upon the paying of a consideration a use immediately arose in favor of the purchaser which was executed by the statute.² When the

must be, by the statute, a person originally seized to the uses of at least an estate of freehold, through whom the uses are instantly executed into legal estates, whether in possession or in expectancy. Where there is a contingent use to a person not in being it must await his arrival before it can be executed; until then the use remains in the grantor, the legal estate or seisin being in the person seized to uses. See 2 Washburn Real Property 116; Chudleigh's Case, 1 Rep. 226; 2 Bl. Com. 336; Bac. Law Tracts 350; Ref. Prot. Dutch Ch. v. Veeder, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 494; Shapleigh v. Pilsbury, 1 Me. 271; Soule v. Cargill, 15 Me. 414; Ashurst v. Given, 5 W. & S. (Pa.) 323; Miller v. Chittenden, 2 Iowa 371.

But the case may arise of a series of limitations, one of which is a contingent use, and the others when executed exhaust the whole legal estate (or seisin). Such a case would be a conveyance to B in fee to the use of A for life, remainder to the use of A's first and second sons, unborn, for their respective lives successively, remainder to the use of B in fee simple. (See 2 Minor's Inst. 182.) The question then arises what legal estate will support such contingent use as the remainder to A's sons unborn. The doctrine of scintilla juris holds that there is a spark of right in the person originally seized to uses sufficient to support the contingent use when it arises, but this doctrine was defective in not passing the legal estate, and in complicating the title. Sugden's substitute was to hold that the other estates must open and let in the contingent use without any scintilla in the feeoffee, or person originally seized. As Prof. Minor expresses it, it is sufficient if at the time the estates were created there was a seisin to any one, sufficient to serve all the uses. See 2 Minor Inst. 182; 1 Sugden Pow. (3d Am. ed.) 83-100. See also Brent's Case, 3 Dyer 340a; Chudleigh's Case, 1 Co. 120.

The question becomes of practical importance in a case such as that of Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498, where a testator gave his son the residue of his estate, "to descend" to the youngest son of said son, and from him to the eldest male heir of such youngest son, and in failure of such issue then to the heirs of the first devisee. This was held to give an estate for life to testator's son and the contingent remainder for life to the said youngest son; it was held that even if by the rule in Shelley's Case, the first devisee by the union of the estate for life and of the remainder to his heirs in fee became the owner of the fee, yet the two limitations became united in him only until the intervening limitations became vested, and must then open to admit such limitations as they arose. See 4 Kent's Com. 210-214; Bowles' Case, 11 Rep. 79; Ballard v. Ballard, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 44.

1. See Challis, Real Prop. 337, 315; 2 Washb. Real Prop. 129; 4 Kent. Com. 493; Dead Springs v. Hanks, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 30; Sand. Uses 81; Jacksond. Houseman v. Sebring, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 515; 1 Cruise Dig. 107; Smith v. Risley, Cro. Car. 529; 3 Wood Com. 285. But see Martindale, Conveyancing 53, n. 1.

2. Bargain and sale is without doubt the commonest mode of conveyancing in use to-day in the United States. See 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 143, 154; Martindale on Conveyancing 53. The whole question of the mode of conveyancing in modern law will be treated below under the title, Modes of Conveyance.

In England, bargains and sales have become obsolete. This is due partly to the fact that they cannot be used other than for a direct conveyance by reason of the doctrine of a use upon a use and are impossible for purposes of settlement. They have been entirely superseded by statute of 27 Henry VIII, ch. 16, required that conveyance of land by bargain and sale must be in writing, indented and sealed, if of a freehold estate, a new form was developed in evasion of this requirement by the lease and release, by which it was possible to raise a use in another for the term of one year, when, by operation of the statute, the lessee was in of his term and could then by common law acquire the whole estate in fee by means of a release of the reversion.¹

Another mode of conveyancing which was used between relatives upon the consideration of blood or kinship, was a covenant to stand seised. It was essential that the covenant be a formal declaration of the intention, in view of the absence of a valuable consideration.²

In all these conveyances which have been so far mentioned there was no actual passage of the seisin. These modes were, therefore, called conveyances without transmutation of possession. Besides these, there was another class in which the legal estate was conveyed by common law to a feoffee to uses, whereupon by the statute the use became instantly executed. These were called conveyances with transmutation of possession. The most important of these are the feoffment to uses and the fine and recovery.³ In England, the statutory grant is now the universal method.⁴

(2) Trusts.—See TRUSTS.

4. Real Rights Treated with Reference to the Time of Their Enjoyment—a. ESTATES IN POSSESSION.—See REMAINDERS; REVERSIONS.

b. ESTATES IN EXPECTANCY.—See REMAINDERS; REVERSIONS.

5. Real Rights Treated with Reference to the Number and Connection of their Owners—a. ESTATES IN SEVERALTY.—See ESTATES, vol. 6, p. 875.

b. ESTATES WITH A PLURALITY OF TENANTS—(1) Joint Tenancy.—See JOINT TENANTS, AND TENANTS IN COMMON, vol. 11, p. 146.

the statutory grant, under 89 Vict., chap. 106. See Challis on Real Prop. 339.

1. See Challis on Real Prop. 331, 332; Co. Litt. 270a, 270b; Litt. 459, 460, 546; 2 Washb. on Real Prop. 131; Williams on Real Prop. 151, 153; Rawle's Notes, 2 Prest. Conveyances 219; Tudor's Lead. Cas. 255. See generally Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139; Abbott v. Holway, 72 Me. 298; Witham v. Brooner, 63 Ill. 344; Schackelton v. Sebree, 86 Ill. 620; Love v. Harbin, 87 N. Car. 249; Mosely v. Mosely, 87 N. Car. 69; Ochletree v. McClung, 7 W.

Va. 232; Eysaman v. Eysaman, 24 Hun (N. Y.) 430.

See infra, this title, Modes of Conveyance.

2. See Challis on Real Prop.; Shepard's Touchstone 508; Page v. Moulton, Dy. 296a, pl. 22. As to its use in the United States, see infra, this article: Modes of Conveyance, II, 6 d, (3) (b).

3. Of these, those in modern use will be found discussed below under Modes of Conveyance, this article, II, d, (3) (b).

4. 8 & 9 Vict., ch. 106, § 2.

(2) Tenancy in Common.—See JOINT TENANTS AND TENANTS IN COMMON, vol. 11, p. 146.

(3) Tenancy in Coparcenary.—See COPARCENARY, vol. 4, p. 146.

6. Real Rights Treated with Reference to the Manner of Acquisition; or Title—a. NATURE OF TITLE.—See TITLE.

b. TITLE BY DESCENT.—See STATUTES OF DISTRIBUTION.

c. TITLE BY PURCHASE OTHER THAN ALIENATION—(1) Title by Escheat.—See ESCHEAT, vol. 6, p. 854.

(2) Title by Occupancy.—See ABANDONMENT, vol. 1, p. 1; TITLE.

(3) Title by Adverse Possession.—See ADVERSE POSSESSION, vol. 1, p. 225.

(4) Title by Estoppel.—See ESTOPPEL, vol. 7, p. 1.

(5) Title by Prescription.—See PRESCRIPTION.

(6) Title by Forfeiture.—See FORFEITURE, vol. 8, p. 443.

(7) Title by Accretion.—See ACCRETION, vol. 1, p. 136.

d. TITLE BY ALIENATION INTER VIVOS, OR TITLE BY GRANT.

—(1) Title by Public Grant.—See GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 43.

(2) Title by Office Grant.—See GRANTS, vol. 9, p. 43.

(3) Title by Private Grant.—See DEDICATION, vol. 5, p. 395.

(a) Persons Capable of Making and Receiving Grants.—See GRANTOR AND GRANTEE, vol. 9, p. 19.

(b) Modes of Conveyance—(aa) IN GENERAL.—The law relating to modes of conveyance in modern use in the United States chiefly with respect to their connection with the old forms of the common law and under the Statute of Uses, may be summed up in the following interdependent propositions: First: The English modes of conveyance which originated at the common law or under the Statute of Uses, are still valid modes of transfer.¹

Second. Modern statutory provisions for modes of conveyance are for the most part enabling, not exclusive.²

Third. It is a well settled policy of interpretation of instruments of conveyance that such instruments are not condemned because the particular mode purported to be used fails. Where the instrument may operate by another mode, it will be given

1. In fact, this is more especially true of the law of the United States than of the law of England. To the American lawyer the consideration of these early modes are of vastly greater importance than to the Englishman. In England an early statute, by requiring enrollment, prevented the widespread use of the bargain and sale—a mode which was otherwise excellently adapted to simple conveyancing, and led ultimately to an almost exclusive use of a purely statutory form. See the act of 8 and 9 Vict., ch. 106. "All modern assurances," says Mr. Challis, Real Property, p. 307, "of estates of freehold in possession, except a feoffment and a bargain and sale enrolled, depend for their validity upon this statute." See Washb. Real Prop., bk. 2, 131.

In the United States, bargain and sale became from the beginning and remains to-day the most popular mode for transfers of interest, in real property. 2 Washb. Real Prop. (4th ed.) 439; Martindale on Conveyancing, § 56. Contra, see Greenleaf's Cruise, Real Prop., tit. 12, ch. 1, § 4, note.

2. Exceptions, where statutes are exclusive, are those of New York and of Minnesota. See N. Y. Rev. St. 4th ed., p. 148; Minn. Stat. at Large 1873, vol. 1, ch. 35, § 1. See Martindale Conv., § 60. See Montgomery & Sturdevant, 41 Cal. 290. The New the force of such mode.¹ In general, it may be said, the significance of the various modes developed at the English law appears to be that they are not so much strict forms operating by force of formalism (like the modes of early common law), as convenient types of the operation of an agreement when supported by a valid consideration, by the inherent force of such agreement. The law of conveyancing becomes a system of principles of the York statute requires a deed to be made directly to the person in whom the possession and profits are intended to be vested, and not to his use.

1. Many cases might be mentioned supporting this view. Some will be discussed specifically in considering feoffments, and covenants to stand seised. A number of decisions to this effect are reviewed in the American note appended to Roe v. Transmaar, in 3 Sm. Leading Cases (9th Am. ed.) 1791, where this rule is laid down: "Deeds are to be so construed as to effectuate, if possible, the intent of the parties; and where the intent is apparent to pass the land one way or another, there it may be good either way, by which word intent is not meant to pass the land by this or that particular kind of deed, or by any particular mode or form of conveyance, but that the land shall pass at all events one way or another." Among other cases were cited Carroll v. Norwood, 1 Har. & J. (Md.) 167; Chamberlain v. Crane, 1 N. H. 64; Lambert v. Smith, 9 Oregon 185; Kirder v. Lafferty, 1 Whart. (Pa.) 303; Peoria v. Darst, 101 Ill. 609; Wolfe v. Scarborough, 2 Ohio St. 361; Coleman v. Beach, 97 N. Y. 545; Smith v. Warden, 19 Pa. St. 424, 430.

See especially Bell v. Scammon, 15 N. H. 381, where a deed by one to his son-in-law in consideration of "one dollar and the love and good will" he bore him, was held valid either as a bargain and sale, or as a covenant to stand seised to pass an estate in fee in futuro; that in neither of these modes are any formal words required; that "so long ago as the time of Levinz it was said, 'that the judges of late years have had more consideration of the substance, viz., the passing of the estate, than the shadow, viz., the manner of passing it.'" 3 Levinz 372.

So in Sprague v. Woods, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 192, it was held that "equity in enforcing trusts does not regard so much the mode of conveyance as the intent of the parties, and to effectuate that, will construe the instrument so as to give it effect, and will remedy defects in the forms employed."

It would seem, however, that though a deed which is bad by one mode, may operate by another, yet it must distinctly operate by some one mode. In so far the requisite prescribed in 2 Sm. Lead. Cas. (8th Am. ed.) 541 would seem to be, if not insufficient, at least uncertain, viz.: "All that is necessary is an intention to convey and sufficient matter to support it."

See Lynch v. Livingston, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 463; Krider v. Lafferty, 1 Wh. (Pa.) 303. On page 146 of his second book on Real Property, Mr. Washburn concludes that the cases which he discusses "justify the language of the courts in several cases where they have stated, in effect, that a conveyance of land by deed, may be considered any species of conveyance necessary to effect the intent of the parties to the deed, and not repugnant to the terms of it." The cases cited are Trafton v. Hawes, 102 Mass. 533; Shapleigh v. Pillsbury, 1 Me. 271; Emery v. Chase, 5 Me. 232; Marshall v. Fisk, 6 Mass. 24, 32; Foster v. Dennison, 9 Ohio 121; Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139.

In Vermont, the supreme court, though holding that the Statute of Uses had been generally adopted in New England, decided that it was not in force in that State, on what would seem the frivolous ground that a court of equity could carry out the intention of the parties without resort to the statute.

See Gorham v. Daniels, 23 Vt. 600; See contra, Society etc. v. Hartland, 2 Paine C. C. 536.

See further 2 Sm. Lead. Cas. 1791 (9th Am. ed.); Bryan v. Bradley, 16 Conn. 474; 3 Washb. R. P. 607, reviewing Exum v. Canty, 34 Miss. 569; Wall v. Wall, 30 Miss. 91; Edwards v. Smith, 35 Miss. 197; 2 Lomax Dig. 141; Eckman v. Eckman, 68 Pa. St. 460; Horton v. Sledge, 29 Ala. 478; Steel v. Steel, 4 Allen (Mass.) 417.

construction of the expression of agreements to transfer real property.¹

In the United States, bargain and sale became from the beginning and remains to-day the most popular mode for transfers of interests in real property.² The remark that the modes developed under the English Statute of Uses derive force not from formalism, but from the agreement supported by a consideration, is confirmed herein, since bargain and sale was less a distinct form of conveyance than a typical example of the operation of

1. The question which is sought to be answered here is simply, what element, be it a form of words, or a public act or a mere intention, will effect the legal transfer of the ownership of real property. On the one hand it is clear that a deed duly recorded and delivered will be effectual even in the absence of consideration; on the other hand it is equally clear that a recorded deed is not the only method of conveyance. The question arises whether ancient modes of the common law, operating by force of a symbolic act, are still potent in the United States, and further, if conveyances are valid by reason of formalism (as livery of seisin or obedience to statutory prescription), whether other modes exist and to what elements they owe their validity. Finally, if modes of conveyance obtain by reason of elements other than formal (i. e., by the force of the intention or agreement of parties, and a valuable consideration), the question inevitably presents itself, to what extent is a deed at all necessary to a conveyance?

The answer to all these questions can best be given in a short historical statement.

Historical Outline of the Law of Conveyancing.—Originally transfers of real property owed their whole momentum to outward notorious form. Thus no consideration was needed in the old feoffment. With the introduction of the system of uses into conveyancing, notoriety was forthwith dispensed with, and the moving force in a conveyance was simply the agreement of parties based on a consideration. For a short time absolute secrecy existed until a statute compelled the enrollment of all bargains and sales of estates of freehold. Affecting the only mode known under the Statute of Uses, this enactment produced a return to notoriety until an evasion was discovered in the lease and release. At this time, then, in the seventeenth century, it was still possible to convey an estate of freehold without any writing or outward token until the Statute of Frauds (29 Charles II.) required all transfers of interests in land to be in writing. It is to be noticed, therefore, that, what formal requisites are now essential in conveyancing, are not a remnant of ancient formalism, but mere provisions for the prevention of fraud superadded to the inherent force of a valid contract.

In the United States it is important to remember that while the Statute of Frauds was generally adopted, the statute relating to the enrollment of bargains and sales was never in force. Registration laws do not affect the validity of instruments as conveyances, they relate merely to the doctrine of notice.

Therefore, it is clear that all modes of transfer which existed at the English law are valid in the United States, provided they are in writing, except such as have been specially abolished by statute. Further they are the only modes except in so far as statutes have supplied others.

To this brief statement of the development of conveyancing a remark in the nature of an exception must be added: While in early times livery of seisin was alone necessary to the transfer of a freehold, and writing was therefore not required, this did not apply to those interests in real property which were incapable of livery. Such incorporeal hereditaments were said to lie in grant, and did, at all times require a deed for their conveyance. See generally Roe v. Transmar, 3 Sm. Lead. Cas. (9th Am. ed.) 1780, with the notes and the cases discussed therein. See also Washb. Real Prop., Book ii, §§ 127-156; 605-609. Martindale on Conveyancing, ch. ii, art. 1.

2. 2 Washb. Real Prop. (4th ed.) 439; Martindale Conveyancing § 56, note; see contra, Greenleaf's Cruise Real Prop. tit. 12 ch. 1, § 4, note.

the Statute of Uses, the other modes being devised for special purposes as for the consideration of affection, or for the evasion of the statute requiring enrollment.

For a review of all the English modes the reader is referred elsewhere.¹ On the basis of the separate discussion there contained it is proposed here to treat the modes in actual use in the United States.

Following the usual order, the common law modes invite the first notice, of which the only one of present importance is the Deed or Charter of Feoffment, which has retained its hold in several States, notably in Massachusetts.² It will be remembered that the early mode of feoffment derived its effect from formality of livery of seisin; no writing or deed was necessary, although a charter was common as evidence of the conveyance. It having been held in decisions, as well as enacted by statute,³ that acknowledgment and record was equivalent to livery, the charter of feoffment was a convenient mode where bargain and sale was inadequate. Thus by reason of the doctrine of a use upon a use a bargain and sale to A to the use of B executed the use in A, leaving a mere equitable estate in B. But by feoffment the legal estate in A would pass by the doctrine of uses, to B.

1. See this article, Modes of Conveyancing under the Statute of Uses.

2. See 2 Washb. Real Prop., *145-6; Thatcher v. Omans, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 521; Marshall v. Fisk, 6 Mass. 24; Hunt v. Hunt, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 374; Bryan v. Bradley 16 Conn. 474; Caldwell v. Fulton, 31 Pa. St. 475.

3. In Caldwell v. Fulton, 31 Pa. St. 475, it was said that in Pennsylvania "livery of seisin is supplied by the deed and its registration."

In Massachusetts an early statute (o Will. III ch. 7) was held to supplant livery of seisin by acknowledgment and record, in Thatcher v. Omans, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 533—and the term feoffment was specifically applied to a conveyance by husband and wife who by deed acknowledged and recorded "gave, granted, bargained, sold, enfeoffed and conveyed" land to J S in fee to the use of the husband and wife, their heirs and assigns. Bargain and sale, or covenant to stand seized would have failed to execute the use upon the use. See also Hunt v. Hunt, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 374; Marshall v. Fisk, 6 Mass. 24. See Taylor v. Brigham, 143 Mass. 410.

In Bryan v. Bradley, 16 Conn. 474, the Supreme Court held that it had never been the general practice in Connecticut to accompany a conveyance of land with livery of seisin; that the reasons which made it necessary or proper in England did not exist in Connecticut; that "since . . . livery of seisin has no place here on feudal principles, and is not only inadequate for the purpose of notoriety, but our registry laws were enacted expressly, and are amply sufficient for that purpose, there seems to be no substantial reason why that useless ceremony should be required."

In Maine the above mentioned statute (9 Will. III ch. 7) which was specially incorporated with the statutes of the State in 1821, was construed in the case of Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 159, in the spirit of the opinion of Chief Justice Dana in Thatcher v. Omans, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 159. The court, in the former case, remarked that the deeds under the statute "relying upon the statute to annex the legal title to the use . . . purport to convey the land itself, and being duly acknowledged and recorded . . . operate more like feoffments than like conveyances under the Statute of Uses." See also Greenleaf's Cruise, Real Prop. tit. 12, ch. 1, § 4, note. (The statutory mode will be discussed separately in the text.) See also 2 Sm. Lead. Cas. (9th Am. ed.) 1796, citing French v. French, 3 N. H. 234; Sprague v. Woods, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 192; Ware v. Richardson, 3 Md. 505; Hogan v. Strayhorn, 65 N. C. 279. See also

(bb) BARGAIN AND SALE is, as has been said, the most common mode of transfer of real property in the United States.¹ It is distinguished from the common law mode of feoffment in that it passes without transmutation of possession, i. e., the use only is "sold," and is thereupon executed by the Statute of Uses. Hence it is absolutely requisite that there be a valuable consideration. Equity will indeed enforce a conveyance against a feoffee to uses in favor of a volunteer. But it will refuse to raise a use directly against a donor who is a volunteer.²

In Massachusetts, the unique doctrine exists that a bargain and sale will not convey an estate of freehold in futuro.³ The courts evade the difficulty by a liberal construction of the next mode derived from the Statute of Uses, the covenant to stand

Tiedeman, Real Prop. § 780, citing Russell v. Coffin, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 143; Miss. Code (1871) § 2294; R. S. Rhode Island, ch. 146, § 1; Roe v. Domes, 48 Mo. 481.

In Sprague v. Woods, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 192, it was said in regard to an unrecorded deed from one W to his daughter E, and son in law S, for a consideration paid by them, in trust for their children in fee, "had the deed in question been duly recorded at the trial it would have been equivalent to a feoffment to S, to the use of his children; their use would have been a use executed in them.

As to the effect of the words "to the use of" when used in a feoffment to uses as referring to the feoffee to uses, see the discussion supra, this article, II. (3) b 1, Uses. — The discussion of the requirements of a use. See also Brown v. Renshaw, 57 Md. 67; 2 Washb. Real Prop. 150, citing Hurst v. McNeil, 1 Wash. C. C. 70; Doe v. Passingham, 6 Barn. & C. 305; Franciscus v. Reigart, 4 Watts 118; 2 Sm. Lead. Cas. 5th Am. ed. 454. See Phila. Trust, Safe Dep. etc. Co.'s App., 93 Penn. St. 209; 2 Washb. Real Prop. 480, citing Jackson v. Cary, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 302.

1. See Martindale, Conveyancing, § 56, note; 2 Washb. Real Prop. 4th ed. 439. See contra, Greenleaf's Cruise, Real Prop. tit. 12, ch. 1, § 4, note.

2. See the discussion of this point, supra, this article, II, (3) b. (1) 4.

But a deed which is bad as bargain and sale, there being no money consideration may operate as a feoffment. Cheney v. Watkins, 1 Har. & J. (Md.) 527; see also Mason v. Smallwood, 4 Har. & McH. (Md.) 484.

The consideration need not be expressed. See cases last cited. See also Sprague v. Woods, 4 W. & S. 192. See however, O'Risan v. Patterson, 1 W. & S. 395. See further, on this point, the text below, on Covenants to Stand Seized.

Pray v. Pierce, 7 Mass. 381; Brewer v. Hardy, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 376. In Trafton v. Hawes, 102 Mass. 532, a deed of land to take effect at the grantor's death, was held good as a covenant to stand seized to the grantee's use, notwithstanding the absence of any relationship between them by blood or marriage. See Exum v. Canty, 30 Miss. 91.

The Massachusetts decisions on the covenant to stand seized, are absolutely alone, on the matter of consideration, and can only be explained as an attempt to correct the effect of another error. For the common view, see Greenl. Cruise, Real Prop., tit. 32 ch. 2, § 41; ch. 10, § 12; 2 Washb. R. P. 605; Jackson v. Sebring, 16 Johns. (N. Y.) 515; Jackson v. Caldwell, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 622; Jackson v. Delancey, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 427; French v. French, 3 N. H. 234; Bell v. Scammon, 15 N. H. 381; 4 Kent. Com. 493 (6th ed.).

3. The fallacy of this doctrine has been pointed out supra, this article, under Modes of Conveyancing under the Statute of Uses.

See also Gray, Rule against Perp., § 57. Massachusetts cases supporting the doctrine are Gale v. Coburn, 18 Pick. 397; Wallis v. Wallis, 4 Mass. 135; Parker v. Nichols, 7 Pick. 111.

In Maine the common view is held. See Wyman v. Brown, 52 Me. 14.

To the same effect are Rogers v. Eagle Ins. Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 611; Bell v. Scammon, 15 N. H. 381; Jackson v. Dunsbagle, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) Cas. 96; 2 Washb. Real Prop., *124; Gilb. Uses by Sugd. 163; Cornish, Uses 44.

seised, holding that a consideration of blood or marriage is not indispensable.¹ But in all other jurisdictions, a consideration of blood or marriage is necessary to support a covenant to stand seised; though the additional presence of a valuable consideration will not affect its validity.²

(cc) LEASE AND RELEASE—QUIT CLAIM.—The mode of lease and release was adopted in England to avoid the statute requiring enrollment of bargains and sales of freeholds.³ It has no existence nor reason for existence in the United States.⁴

Analogous to the release of the English law in its original and literal conception is a mode of conveyance distinctively American—the deed of quit-claim. But it differs from the release in actual effect in that it is valid as a primary mode, and does not require a precedent conveyance nor a pre-existing interest in the grantee.⁵

(dd) STATUTORY MODES OF CONVEYANCE.—The effect of statutory provisions of a mode of conveyance is either to afford a separate form, or to simplify the requirements of other modes. They are never exclusive of pre-existing modes except in so far as they may superadd a formal requisite to their substance.⁶

89; 4 Kent's Com. 298; 1 Greenl. Cruise Real Prop., tit. 1, § 36; 2 Sm. Lead. Cas., 451 (5th Am. ed.).

1. See the last mentioned Massachusetts cases. See also 2 Washb. Real Prop. *144, citing Cox v. Edwards, 14 Mass. 492.

In the American note in 3 Sm. Lead. Cas. (9th Am. ed.), 1791, is found a review of cases of covenant to stand seised, such as where the relation of son-in-law was sufficient consideration: McDaniel v. Johns, 45 Miss. 632; Lambert v. Smith, 9 Oregon 185; Watson v. Watson, 24 S. Car. 228; Bell v. Scammon, 15 N. H. 381. Contra, as construing the consideration strictly, are Jackson v. Sebring, 16 Johnson (N. Y.) 515; Jackson v. Caldwell, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 622; Doe v. Hines, 1 Busb. (N. Car.) 343.

See also Sherman v. Dodge, 28 Vt. 26; and, generally, Bryan v. Bradley, 16 Conn. 474; Sprague v. Woods, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 435.

Mr. Washburn, 2 Real Prop. *130, in a note bases the difference between the strict English and the liberal American policy of construction of the covenant to stand seised on the ground that "there is no distinction here as in England as to recording the deeds, no enrollment being required there of a covenant to stand seised. See Rawle's note to Wms. Real Prop. 153; 4 Kent Com. 494.

2. See the article RELEASE.

3. Its adoption to evade the statutory requirement of enrollment of bargains and sales of freeholds has been discussed supra, this article, in the introductory remarks of the present heading; also in the last paragraphs of the subdivision, USES, article II, (3), (b.) (1), Modes of Conveyancing Under the Statute. See also the article, RELEASE.

4. See Martindale, Conveyancing; § 57; citing Lewis v. Beall, 4 Har. & Mch. (Md.) 488; Craig v. Pinson, 1 Cheves 272. See RELEASE.

The subject of release, as well as lease and release, will be found fully treated under RELEASE.

5. See RELEASE.

6. In New Hampshire, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York, Iowa, Maryland and Tennessee, the statutory mode leaves other modes valid. See Tiedeman Real Prop. § 780. See 3 Washb. Real Prop. 361; Redfern v. Middleton, Rice (S. Car.) 464; 3 Sm. Lead. Cas. (5th Am. ed.) 453. See also Den v. Crawford, 8 N. J. L. 90.

But in New Hampshire other modes, though valid, must have the statutory attestation. Comp. Stat., ch. 136, § 41; Gen. Stat. 1867, ch. 15, §§ 3, 4; Stone v. Ashley, 13 N. H. 38; Underwood v. Campbell, 14 N. H. 396; Cram v. Ingalls, 18 N. H. 616; Kimpley v. Holbrook, 45 N. H. 320.

In New York the conveyance must be made directly to the beneficiary (N.

(cc) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS—SEAL.—It appears, then, that any writing containing proper words of grant, release or conveyance will operate by whatever mode best accomplishes the intention of the parties.¹

From the historical outline above given it is clear that contrary to common belief, a seal is not necessary to a conveyance of an estate in fee simple in land. While the original form of grant did require a seal, yet it applied only to hereditaments incorporeal. Further, the Statute of Enrollments requiring a seal in conveyances of freeholds on a valuable consideration, has never been in force in this country. The seal which may be essential to the covenant to stand seised, pertains to that mode only in so far as it is a covenant. In the feoffment, the charter which usually accompanied the conveyance, was not essential. Under the Statute of Uses, an oral bargain was sufficient; and the requirement of a writing was only added by the Statute of Frauds. It follows, therefore, that except where statutes require a seal, it is not necessary to the conveyance of an estate in fee in land.²

(c) Deeds.—See DEEDS OF CONVEYANCE, vol. 5, p. 423; ESCROW, vol. 6, p. 857; LEASE, vol. 12, p. 974; RELEASE.

(e) TITLE BY DEVISE.—See LEGACIES AND DEVISES, vol. 13, p. 7; WILLS.

REAR.—See note 3.

Y. Rev. Stat., 4th ed., p. 148). So in Minnesota (Stat. at Large, 1873, vol. 1, ch. 35).

In New York, all conveyances operate as grants, which term receives thereby an enlarged meaning. See 1 Rev. Stat. N. Y. 738. See also Tiedeman R. P., § 768; 3 Washb. R. P. *383; 3 Wood Conv'g 7; 4 Kent Com. 491.

"Under the California statute, any words in a deed, indicating an intention to transfer the estate, interest or claims of the grantor, will be a sufficient conveyance, whether they be such as were generally used in a deed of feoffment, or of bargain and sale, or of release, irrespective of the fact of possession of grantor or grantee, or of the Statute of Uses." Martindale, Conveyancing, § 60, citing Field v. Columbet, 4 Sawyer (Cal.) 523.

1. See Tiedeman, § 782; Fash v. Blake, 30 Ill. 367; Bryan v. Bradley, 16 Conn. 476; Emery v. Chase, 5 Me. 232. See the other cases cited in the beginning of this subdivision.

In Johnson v. Bantock, 38 Ill. 111, there was an instrument executed by the sheriff to a purchaser of land at an execution sale, stating that he had sold to him certain land, describing it, and that he was entitled to a deed therefor, with a habendum clause, to have and to hold said premises to him and his heirs and assigns forever, but not containing any words of grant, release or transfer. It was held inoperative as a deed to pass title. See also Foster v. Dennison, 9 Ohio 121; Den v. Hanks, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) 30; Emery v. Chase, 5 Me. 232; Marshall v. Fisk, 6 Mass. 24; Abbott v. Holway, 72 Me. 298; Love v. Harbin, 87 N. C. 249; Mosely v. Mosely, 87 N. C. 69; Ocheltree v. McClung, 7 W. Va. 232. See also Gorham v. Daniels, 23 Vt. 600.

2. See the clear exposition of this view in Tiedeman Real Prop., § 783.

As to the statement that the Statute of Enrollments was not adopted, see the following cases cited by Mr. Tiedeman: Rogers v. Fire Ins. Co., 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 611; Jackson v. Wood, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 74; Jackson v. Dunsbagh, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 97; Given v. Doe, 7 Blackf. 210; Welch v. Foster, 12 Mass. 96.

3. Rear.—In Read v. Clarke, 109 Mass. 82, it was held, where a testator devised his messuage and "the two stable lots in the rear thereof," that the word "rear" did not necessarily mean directly behind the messuage.

REASONABLE.—Conformable or agreeable to reason; just; rational; equitable.

The word occurs in several technical phrases, the more important of which will be treated under specific titles, q. v., while others together with some phrases, which have not yet acquired a technical meaning, are collected in the notes.¹

1. Reasonable.—In an action for malicious prosecution, the trial court charged that "probable cause is the existence of such facts and circumstances as would excite in a reasonable mind a belief" in guilt, etc. To this the plaintiff objected, as omitting the word "impartial" which he had asked for in connection with the word "reasonable." Held, no error. The court by Carpenter, J., said: "This charge is complained of mainly for the reason that it omits the word 'impartial,' in connection with the word 'reasonable,' as used in the plaintiff's fourth request. In Stone v. Stevens, 12 Conn. 219; 30 Am. Dec. 611, the trial court in its charge to the jury, used the word 'impartial' in the same connection with the word 'reasonable.' The plaintiff had a verdict, and the defendant excepted to that use of the word 'impartial.' This court sustained the charge. Holding, that the use of the word was not erroneous is not exactly the same as requiring its use. In other words, it may be lawfully used, and it may be lawfully omitted. The words 'impartial' and 'reasonable' are practically synonymous. 'Impartial' signifies 'not partial, not favoring one party more than another; unprejudiced; disinterested; equitable, just.' Among the synonyms for 'reasonable,' are 'equitable, just.' Webst. Dict. in verba. There is therefore no such distinction in the meaning of the two words as to make the use of both or the omission of one erroneous." Thompson v. Beacon Valley Rubber Co., 56 Conn. 493.

Upon the constitutionality of an act regulating the practice of dentistry, the Supreme Court of Minnesota pronounced that "the only limit to the legislative power in prescribing conditions to the right to practice in a profession, is that they shall be reasonable." And then in defining the word "reasonable" as used in this proposition, the court by Gilfillan, C. J., said: "By the term 'reasonable' we do not mean expedient, nor do we mean that the conditions must be such as the court would impose if it were called on to prescribe what should be the conditions. They are to be deemed reasonable where, although not perhaps the wisest and best that might be adopted, they are fit and appropriate to the end in view, to wit, the protection of the public, and are manifestly adopted in good faith for that purpose. If a condition should be clearly arbitrary and capricious; if no reason with reference to the end in view could be assigned for it, and, especially, if it appeared that it must have been adopted for some other purpose—such, for instance, as to favor or benefit some persons or class of persons—it certainly would not be reasonable, and would be beyond the power of the legislature to impose." State v. Vandersluis, 42 Minn. 129.

A Reasonable act is such act as the law requires. Bouv. Law Dict.; Levering v. Union Transp. Co., 42 Mo. 88; 97 Am. Dec. 320; Wayne v. Bickford, 9 Price 43; Pudsey v. Newsam, Yelv. 44.

Reasonable Appearance of Danger.—See HOMICIDE, vol. 9, p. 593, et seq.; REAL.

Reasonable certainty is the being free from reasonable doubt. State v. Shaw, 4 Jones (N. Car.) 443. See also REASONABLE DOUBT.

Reasonable diligence is synonymous with "reasonable care," q. v.

Reasonable Expectation.—A person who begins business without capital and with a mortgage on all his assets and who afterwards becomes bankrupt, has contracted his debts without "reasonable or probable ground of expectation of being able to pay" within the English Bankry Act, 1883. Ex parte White, 14 Q. B. Div. 600. See also Ex parte Downman, 32 L. J. Bank, 49; Ex parte Mortimore, 3 De G. F. & J. 599.

Reasonable Facilities.—Under an English statute, providing that railroad companies shall afford, according to their respective powers, all "reasonable facilities" for the receiving, forwarding, etc., of traffic upon their respective REASONABLE CARE.—This term is frequently used both in the law of negligence and in the law of bailments, and definitions are of most importance in these connections.

1. In the Law of Negligence.—"Reasonable care," in this connection, has practically the same meaning as "ordinary care,"¹ though the latter term is perhaps more correct, as being sanctioned by the better usage, and is so intimately connected with the doctrines of negligence that to give a comprehensive definition under this title would be, in great part, to duplicate the articles on that subject. See, therefore, CARE, vol. 2, p. 732; CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE, vol. 4, p. 15; NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 386, and the references there given.

2. In the Law of Bailments.—The phrase "reasonable care," occurs less frequently in the doctrines of bailments, than in those of negligence; and, though there is a close analogy between its meanings in both connections, there seems to be this difference in its use, viz.: that while in connection with negligence "reasonable care" is practically synonymous with "ordinary care," when used to describe the care to be exercised by a bailee, it describes lines, it was held that the mere refusal by a railway company to receive and forward the traffic of persons in general, except upon the prepayment of charges somewhat in excess of the maximum authorized rates, was not a denial of "reasonable facilities." Reg. v. Railway Com'rs, L. R., 22 Q. B. Div. 642; 40 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 59. See also FACILITY, vol. 7, p. 658; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 788; FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 923.

Reasonable and Just.—See JUST, vol. 12, p. 385.

Reasonable Line of Credit.—See LINE, vol. 13, p. 844.

Reasonable Notice.—See AUDITORS, vol. 1, p. 1011. See generally NOTICE, vol. 16, p. 787; REASONABLE TIME.

Reasonable Portion.—A power to charge estates "with reasonable portions, or fortunes for younger children, and for their maintenance and education," is sufficiently certain to be capable of execution; and the word "reasonable" there, is applicable not only to the amount of the portion, but also to the time and occasion on which the child would want it. Edgeworth v. Edgeworth, Beatty 318.

Reasonable and Probable Damages.—In an action for the condemnation of land for railroad purposes, the jury were instructed that the owner was entitled to just compensation for the land taken and for all "reasonable and probable damages" to the balance of the land not taken. Held, that such instruction did not include possible, speculative, and remote damages, and was proper. Chicago etc. R. Co. v. Bowman, 122 Ill. 595. For the general rule in such a case, see EMINENT DOMAIN, vol. 6, p. 571.

Reasonable Rates.—See FREIGHT, vol. 8, p. 900.

Reasonable Question.—"We are unable to draw any distinction between proving 'beyond reasonable doubt' and beyond 'reasonable question,' unless we treat the latter expression as the stronger of the two. One of our leading lexicographers defines 'question' to mean (in such connections as that in which it appears in the charge of the judge) 'doubt,' in another, 'dispute.' So, if the former definition be adopted, the words are synonymous; if the latter be correct, it may be that there is still room for reasonable dispute, when the doubt that lingers in the mind is no longer within the domain of sound reason." Harding v. Long, 103 N. Car. 1. See also REASONABLE DOUBT.

Reasonable Regulation.—Authority "to cause the streets of the city to be lighted" and to make "reasonable regulations" with reference thereto, does not empower the city government to grant one company the exclusive right to furnish gas for thirty years. Saginaw Gas Light Co. v. Saginaw, 28 Fed. Rep. 529; 16 Am. & Eng. R. Cas. 562.

1. Reasonable Care Synonymous With the care and foresight which is appropriate to that particular class of bailments, and to the occasion, as contradistinguished from that ordinary care which devolves upon an ordinary bailee.¹ As to what degree of care is required see BAILMENTS, vol. 2, p. 51, and the several kinds of bailments, such as DEPOSIT, MANDATE, PLEDGE AND COLLATERAL SECURITY, etc. See also articles treating the several bailees, such as CARRIERS OF GOODS; CARRIERS OF STOCK; LIVERY STABLE KEEPERS; WAREHOUSEMEN, etc.

REASONABLE CAUSE—(See also BANKRUPTCY, vol. 2, p. 80; CAUSE, vol. 3, p. 45; MALICIOUS PROSECUTION, vol. 14, p. 27; INSOLVENCY, vol. 11, p. 172).—See note 2.

REASONABLE DOUBT.—(See also ALIBI, vol. 1, p. 455; BURDEN OF PROOF, vol. 2, p. 657; CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, vol. 4, p. 856; HOMICIDE, vol. 9, p. 737.)

I. IN CRIMINAL ACTIONS.—It is a well settled doctrine of the criminal law that, in order to find a defendant guilty in a criminal case, the jury must be convinced of his guilt, by the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt.² This doctrine extends alike to all crimes and misdemeanors.⁴ If the jury entertain a reasonable doubt as to which of two degrees of a crime the defendant is guilty, as, for instance, whether of murder in the first or second degree, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of such doubt, and can only be convicted of the lower offense.⁵

By the better rule and the one supported by the weight of authority, it is sufficient to instruct the jury that they should acquit if upon the whole case they have a reasonable doubt as to the defendant's guilt. It is not necessary that they should be instructed that they must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt of each material fact required to convict. The former instruction necessarily includes the latter, and sufficiently directs the jury that each fact material to conviction must be established beyond a reasonable doubt, while the latter has a tendency to distract the attention of the jury from the consideration of the whole case, and to concentrate it upon some particular fact or hypothesis.⁶

Ordinary Care.—See NEGLIGENCE, vol. 16, p. 399, n.; Read v. Morse, 34 Wis. 318.

1. Levering v. Union Transp. Co., 42 Mo. 88; 97 Am. Dec. 320.

2. Reasonable Cause.—The "reasonable cause," which will justify husband or wife in abandoning each other, within the meaning of the Pennsylvania act defining desertion, is that, and only that, which would entitle the party so separating himself or herself to a divorce. Butler v. Butler, 4 Pa. L. J. 284. See also DIVORCE, vol. 5, p. 805.

3. HOMICIDE, vol. 9, p. 737; BURDEN OF PROOF, vol. 2, p. 657. And see also cases cited throughout this article.

4. 1 Bishop Crim. Proc., § 1093; Thomp. Tr., § 2493; Wasden v. State, 18 Ga. 264; State v. King, 20 Ark. 166; Fuller v. State, 12 Ohio St. 433; Statterwhite v. State, 28 Ala. 65; Com. v. Intoxicating Liquors, 115 Mass. 142; Stewart v. State, 44 Ind. 237; Hiler v. State, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 552.

5. State v. Laliyer, 4 Minn. 368; Payne v. Com., 1 Metc. (Ky.) 370; Davis v. State, 10 Ga. 101; White v. State, 23 Tex. App. 154; State v. Anderson, 86 Mo. 309; Stout v. State, 90 Ind. 12; State v. Lee, 7 Oregon 258.

6. State v. Stewart, 52 Iowa 284; Weaver v. People, 132 Ill. 536; State v. Roberts, 15 Oregon 187; People v.

The question, however, is a disputed one, and it has been held error in some jurisdictions to refuse an instruction that a particular fact, essential to the defendant's guilt, must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, although there was a general charge that his guilt must be proved, upon a consideration of the whole case, beyond a reasonable doubt.¹

Where a reasonable doubt is entertained by one juror, the defendant cannot be found guilty, and it has been held error to refuse instructions to that effect.²

Milgate, 5 Cal. 127; Allen v. State, 60 Ala. 19; Mullins v. People, 110 Ill. 42. See also State v. Acker (N. J. 1890), 19 Atl. Rep. 258; Rudy v. Com., 128 Pa. St. 500; Baker v. Com. (Ky.), 17 S. W. Rep. 625.

Upon a trial for burglary, the defendant requested the following instruction: "As the evidence in the case is wholly circumstantial, you must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt of each necessary link in the chain of circumstances, to establish the defendant's guilt." This instruction was refused, and the refusal was held not to be error by the appellate court, the court by Rothrock, J., saying: "The instruction asked by the defendant was properly refused, and that given by the court is correct. It is not a reasonable doubt of any one proposition of fact in the case which entitles to an acquittal. It is a reasonable doubt of guilt arising upon a consideration of all the evidence in the case." State v. Hayden, 45 Iowa 17.

"It is the well settled law here that the prisoner is only entitled to the instruction relative to the consequence of a doubt as to his guilt on the whole evidence in the cause; and that he has no right to single out each material fact necessary to be proved and ask the court to direct the jury that if they have a doubt as to the existence of such facts they will acquit him." State v. Schoenwald, 31 Mo. 155.

"There is no warrant for the course of selecting each fact constituting the offense with which one is accused, and asking the court for an instruction to the effect, that if the jury have a reasonable doubt of that fact, they must acquit. All that is required of the court is, that, in suitable cases for such an instruction, it should tell the jury that if, upon the whole case, they have a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he should be acquitted." State v. Fletcher, 18 Mo. 425.

1. Territory v. Lopez (N. Mex. 1884), 2 Pac. Rep. 368; Black v. State, 1 Tex. App. 368; Kaufman v. State, 49 Ind. 251; Binns v. State, 46 Ind. 311. See also LARCENY, vol. 12, p. 852.

2. Aszman v. State, 123 Ind. 347; Fassinow v. State, 89 Ind. 235; State v. Stewart, 52 Iowa 284; State v. Witt, 34 Kan. 488.

In State v. Sloan, 55 Iowa 220, the following instruction was held to be misleading: "A reasonable doubt is such a doubt as fairly and naturally arises in the minds of the whole jury."

In Stitz v. State, 104 Ind. 359, which was a trial for arson, the court gave the following instructions: "While each juror must be satisfied of the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, to authorize a conviction, such reasonable doubt, unless entertained by all the jurors, does not warrant an acquittal." Upon appeal the court by Elliott, J., said: "This instruction is palpably erroneous. There can be no conviction of a crime unless all the jurors are satisfied, beyond reasonable doubt, of the guilt of the accused. The law upon this point is firmly settled. The instruction before us in effect reverses this rule, for it informs the jury that 'such reasonable doubt, unless entertained by all the jurors, does not warrant an acquittal.' This must have induced the jurors to think that unless all concurred in entertaining a reasonable doubt the verdict should be against the defendant. This is in direct opposition to the rule declared by our decisions. Castle v. State, 75 Ind. 146; Clem v. State, 42 Ind. 420; 13 Am. Rep. 369. This instruction is essentially different from the one passed upon in Fassinow v. State, 89 Ind. 235. A reasonable doubt entertained by some of the members of the jury may not compel an acquittal, but

Of course this does not involve the idea that the jury must acquit when a single juror has a reasonable doubt.¹

In those jurisdictions in which the juries in criminal cases are the judges both of the law and the facts, it has been held that it is not a reasonable doubt of the law that entitles the defendant to a verdict of not guilty.²

There have been many attempts to define and interpret the term "reasonable doubt," as used in this connection, but it is apprehended that such attempts are futile; that the words are of plain and unmistakable meaning, and that any affirmative definition on the part of the court tends only to confuse the jury and to render uncertain an expression which, standing alone, is certain and intelligible.³

it may so strongly prevail, and among so many, as to warrant others in yielding their opinions, and joining in a verdict of acquittal. At all events, an instruction which indicates, as the one under immediate mention does, that individual jurors should not acquit, unless all the members of the jury entertain doubts of the defendant's guilt, is erroneous."

In Castle v. State, 75 Ind. 146, the court by Worden, J., said: "Upon looking through the well prepared charges given by the court, we do not find the idea embodied or stated in them, that each juror must be satisfied by the evidence of the defendant's guilt, before a conviction can be had, except as it may be involved in the charge that the jury generally, as a body, must be so satisfied. The law, where a criminal cause is tried by a jury, contemplates the concurrence of twelve minds in the conclusion of guilt before a conviction can be had. Each juror must be satisfied, beyond a reasonable doubt, of the defendant's guilt before he can, under his oath, consent to a verdict of guilty. The proposition embodied in the charge asked, that 'if any of the jury, after having duly considered all the evidence, and after having consulted with his fellow-jurymen, entertain such reasonable doubt, the jury cannot, in such case, find the defendant guilty,' is correct in point of law. See Clem v. State, 42 Ind. 420; 13 Am. Rep. 369. The charge seems to have been, in other respects, correct, and we are of opinion that it should have been given. Each juror should feel the responsibility resting upon him, as a member of the body, and should realize that his own mind must be convinced of the defendant's guilt, beyond a reasonable doubt, before he can consent to a verdict of guilty. We think, notwithstanding the general charge of the court, the defendant had the right to have the charge asked given, thus specifically calling the attention of each juror to the duty and responsibility resting upon him, as well as to the legal rights of the defendant."

Contra.—In State v. Hamilton, 57 Iowa 596, the defendant asked the court to instruct the jury in substance, that if any juror entertained a reasonable doubt of defendant's guilt, he was not required to surrender his convictions because other jurors entertained no such doubts. The instruction was refused, and the court gave the usual instructions upon the degree of proof required to convict. The appellate court by Rothrock, J., said: "Substantially the same instruction was asked in State v. Rorabacher, 19 Iowa 154, and the refusal to give it was approved by this court. Of course, each juror is to act upon his own judgment. He is not required to surrender his convictions unless convinced. He may be aided by his fellow-jurors in arriving at the truths, but he is not to find a verdict against his judgment merely because the others entertained views different from his own; but a jury need not be advised of so simple a proposition. The usual method of instructing upon the measure of proof required in criminal cases is sufficient.

1. State v. Rorabacher, 19 Iowa 154.

2. 2 Thomp. Tr., § 2492; O'Neil v. State, 48 Ga. 66; State v. Meyer, 38 Vt. 457.

3. In Hamilton v. People, 29 Mich. 194 the court by Campbell, J., said: "If a jury cannot understand their duty

As has been well said upon this question, "all the definitions are little more than metaphysical paraphrases of an expression invented by the common-law judges, for the very reason that it was capable of being understood and applied by plain men in the jury box. The danger of attempting these definitions and explanations is, that they are liable to impress the jurors with the idea that their verdict is not to be the result of the natural impression which the evidence has made upon their minds, but of some artificial rule which the law has created for them to apply in reaching it. Some courts have proceeded upon this view, holding that an instruction that the jury should be satisfied of the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, is sufficient without further explanation. Most American courts have, however, felt called upon in instructing juries in criminal cases, to explain this expression, although it is one of the most exact expressions known to the law, and to define this definition, although the original words convey a more exact idea to the minds of average men than can be derived from any attempt to define them. In so doing, they have when told, they must not convict when they have a reasonable doubt of the prisoner's guilt, or of any fact essential to prove it; they can very seldom get any help from such subtleties as require a trained mind to distinguish. Jurors are presumed to have common sense and to understand common English. But they are not presumed to have professional or any high degree of technical or linguistic training." Again, it is said: "Language that is within the comprehension of persons of ordinary intelligence can seldom be made plainer by further definition or refining. All persons who possess the qualifications of jurors know that a 'doubt' is a fluctuation or uncertainty of mind arising from defect of knowledge, or of evidence, and that a doubt of the guilt of the accused, honestly entertained, is a 'reasonable doubt.'" People v. Stuebenvoll, 62 Mich. 329.

"The explanations of the meaning of this phrase have been almost innumerable, and the best jurists have found it difficult to convey to their own satisfaction the idea in their own minds expressed by its use. Not that there is any considerable difficulty in understanding its meaning, but rather in not conveying it. It may indeed admit of grave doubt whether the proposition is in itself so simple and the words so well calculated to express a state of mind so easily felt, though difficult to describe, that in most cases it is sufficient to use the expression alone without any attempt at explanation. All such attempts must result in simply stating the same proposition in a different form of words, and words which are, perhaps, no more easily understood." State v. Reed, 62 Me. 142.

As it is impossible precisely to define in a few words what a reasonable doubt is, courts instructing juries would better make no such attempt, but merely follow the language of the statute. Mickey v. Com., 9 Bush (Ky.) 593.

In State v. Sauer, 38 Minn. 439, the court by Mitchell, J., said: "The term 'reasonable doubt' is almost incapable of any definition which will add much to what the words themselves imply. In fact it is easier to state what it is not than what it is; and it may be doubted whether any attempt to define it will not be more likely to confuse than to enlighten a jury. A man is the best judge of his own feelings, and he knows for himself whether he doubts better than any one else can tell him."

"Attempts to explain the term 'reasonable doubt' do not usually result in making it any clearer to the minds of the jury." Miles v. U. S., 103 U. S. 304.

For other cases remarking upon the impracticability and inexpediency of attempts to define and explain the term "reasonable doubt," see State v. Rounds, 76 Me. 124; State v. Kearley, 26 Kan. 87; State v. Bridges, 29 Kan. 140; State v. Mosley, 31 Kan. 358; McKleroy v. State, 77 Ala. 97; McAlpine v.

attempted to lead juries in mazes of subtlety and casuistry, in which they were lost themselves, and into which the minds of plain men were incapable of following them."¹

And upon the same subject, an eminent author says: "There are no words plainer than 'reasonable doubt,' and none so exact to the idea meant. Hence some judges, it would seem wisely, decline attempting to interpret them to the jury. Others deem that some explanation should be given, especially if requested. Negative descriptions may be safe, and perhaps helpful; as, that it is not a whimsical or vague doubt² or conjecture,³ not an impossibility,⁴ not an exclusion of every hypothesis of guilt,⁵ but it is a reasonable doubt. The books do not contain one affirmative definition which can safely be pronounced both helpful and accurate. Thus, most judges deem the expression 'to a moral certainty' to be an equivalent to 'beyond a reasonable doubt,' therefore properly used in explanation of the latter."⁶

But some deny this.⁷ Assuming it to be synonymous, practically it will darken more minds, of the classes from whom our jurors are mainly drawn, than it will enlighten."⁸

Viewing the subject in this light no attempt has been made here to reconcile the conflicting definitions, but in the note will be found a partial list of the cases, arranged alphabetically by States, in which the term has been defined or explained.⁹

State, 47 Ala. 78; Turbeville v. State, 40 Ala. 715; State v. Ching Ling, 16 Oregon 419; State v. James, 37 Conn. 360; Kane v. Hibernia Ins. Co., 39 N. J. L. 706; 23 Am. Rep. 239; Hampton v. State, 1 Tex. App. 660; Hopt v. Utah, 120 U. S. 430; U. S. v. Harper, 33 Fed. Rep. 483.

1. Thomp. Tr., § 2463.

2. McGuire v. State, 43 Tex. 210; Com. v. Drum, 58 Pa. St. 9; State v. Bodekee, 34 Iowa 520.

3. Giles v. State, 6 Ga. 276.

4. State v. Nueslein, 25 Mo. 111; State v. Evans, 55 Mo. 460; Com. v. Harman, 4 Pa. St. 269; Pate v. People, 8 Ill. 644; Earll v. People, 73 Ill. 329; State v. Van Winkle, 6 Nev. 340; Mose v. State, 36 Ala. 211; Owens v. State, 52 Ala. 400.

5. State v. Ford, 21 Wis. 617; Ray v. State, 50 Ala. 104; Cohen v. State, 50 Ala. 108. But see Com. v. Annis, 15 Gray (Mass.) 197. It should be a "reasonable" hypothesis. Martin v. State, 38 Ga. 293.

6. Com. v. Costley, 118 Mass. 24; People v. Brannon, 47 Cal. 96; People v. Ashe, 44 Cal. 288; State v. Ostrander, 18 Iowa 435; Williams v. State, 52 Ala. 411; Turbeville v. State, 40 Ala. 715; State v. Van Winkle, 6

Nev. 340; Giles v. State, 6 Ga. 276; Donnelly v. State, 26 N. J. L. 601. See also Winter v. State, 20 Ala. 39; Ray v. State, 50 Ala. 104; Cohen v. State, 50 Ala. 108.

7. McAlpine v. State, 47 Ala. 78.

8. 1 Bishop Crim. Proc., § 1094.

9. See also HOMICIDE, vol. 9, p. 737, for a number of cases on this subject.

Winter v. State, 20 Ala. 39; Turbeville v. State, 40 Ala. 715; McAlpine v. State, 47 Ala. 78; Ray v. State, 50 Ala. 104; Cohen v. State, 50 Ala. 108; Williams v. State, 52 Ala. 411; Farrish v. State, 63 Ala. 164; Bain v. State, 74 Ala. 38; McKleroy v. State, 77 Ala. 97; Lang v. State, 84 Ala. 1; Humbree v. State, 81 Ala. 67; Lundy v. State (Ala. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 189; Potter v. State (Ala. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 402; Smith v. State (Ala. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 408; Perry v. State (Ala. 1891), 9 So. Rep. 279; People v. Milgate, 5 Cal. 127; People v. Schuler, 28 Cal. 493; People v. Cronin, 34 Cal. 195; People v. Phipps, 39 Cal. 334; People v. Padillia, 42 Cal. 540; People v. Ashe, 44 Cal. 288; People v. Brannon, 47 Cal. 96; People v. Ah Sing, 51 Cal. 372; People v. Beck, 58 Cal. 212; People v. Hardisson, 61 Cal. 378; People v. Carrillo, 70 Cal. 643; People v. Davies, 64

- Cal. 440; People v. Lee Sare Bo, 72 Cal. 623; People v. Cohn, 76 Cal. 387; People v. Bemmerly, 87 Cal. 117; People v. Wohlfrom (Cal. 1891), 26 Pac. Rep. 236; Minich v. People, 8 Colo. 440; Murray v. Hobson, 10 Colo. 66; State v. James, 37 Conn. 360; Territory v. Bannigan, 1 Dak. 452; Heron v. State, 22 Fla. 86; Giles v. State, 6 Ga. 276; Malone v. State, 49 Ga. 210; Moughon v. State, 57 Ga. 102; Brewster v. State, 63 Ga. 639; Bush v. State, 65 Ga. 658; Vann v. State, 83 Ga. 44; People v. Dewey (Idaho 1885), 6 Pac. Rep. 103; Pate v. People, 8 Ill. 661; Miller v. People, 39 Ill. 457; May v. People, 60 Ill. 120; Peri v. People, 65 Ill. 17; Earl v. People, 73 Ill. 329; Connaghan v. People, 88 Ill. 460; Dunn v. People, 109 Ill. 644; Wacaster v. People, 134 Ill. 438; Bressler v. People (Ill. 1885), 3 N. E. Rep. 521; Spies v. People, 122 Ill. 1; Hiler v. State, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 552; Sumner v. State, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 579; Arnold v. State, 23 Ind. 170; Bradley v. State, 31 Ind. 492; Line v. State, 51 Ind. 172; Sullivan v. State, 52 Ind. 309; Jarrell v. State, 58 Ind. 293; Densmore v. State, 67 Ind. 306; Wright v. State, 69 Ind. 163; 35 Am. Rep. 212; Garfield v. State, 74 Ind. 62; Castle v. State, 75 Ind. 146; Stout v. State, 90 Ind. 1; Stitz v. State, 104 Ind. 359; Brown v. State, 105 Ind. 385; State v. Nost, 7 Iowa 385; State v. Ostrander, 18 Iowa 459; State v. Collins, 20 Iowa 85; State v. Porter, 34 Iowa 135; State v. Hayden, 45 Iowa 17; Sloan v. State, 55 Iowa 217; State v. Richart, 57 Iowa 245; State v. Elsham, 70 Iowa 533; State v. Stewart, 52 Iowa 284; State v. Red, 53 Iowa 69; State v. Hamilton, 57 Iowa 596; State v. Pierce, 65 Iowa 90; State v. Witt, 34 Kan. 488; State v. Kearley, 26 Kan. 87; State v. Bridges, 29 Kan. 141; Jane v. Com., 2 Metc. (Ky.) 39; State v. Reed, 62 Me. 139; State v. Rounds, 76 Me. 125; Com. v. Webster, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 320; 52 Am. Dec. 711; Com. v. Tuttle, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 502; Com. v. Goodwin, 14 Gray (Mass.) 55; Com. v. Costley, 118 Mass. 24; Com. v. Leonard, 140 Mass. 473; 54 Am. Rep. 485; People v. Finley, 38 Mich. 482; People v. Marble, 38 Mich. 117; People v. Niles, 44 Mich. 606; McGuire v. People, 44 Mich. 286; 38 Am. Rep. 265; People v. Cox, 70 Minn. 247; State v. Dineen, 10 Minn. 407; State v. Sauer, 38 Minn. 438; Evans v. State (Miss. 1888), 4 So. Rep. 344; Cicely v. State, 13 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 210; Browning v. State, 30 Miss. 657; Bowler v. State, 41 Miss. 570; 30 Miss. 657; James v. State, 45 Miss. 572; Garrard v. State, 50 Miss. 147; Hawthorne v. State, 58 Miss. 788; State v. Blunt, 91 Mo. 503; Gardiner v. State, 14 Mo. 97; State v. Dunn, 18 Mo. 419; State v. Mueslin, 25 Mo. 111; State v. Fugate, 27 Mo. 535; State v. Schoenwald, 31 Mo. 147; State v. Heed, 57 Mo. 254; State v. Young, 105 Mo. 634; State v. Swain, 68 Mo. 616; State v. Gann, 72 Mo. 374; State v. Butterfield, 75 Mo. 301; State v. Owens, 79 Mo. 631; State v. Vansant, 80 Mo. 72; State v. Gee, 85 Mo. 647; State v. Payton, 90 Mo. 220; Territory v. Owings, 3 Mont. 137; Territory v. McAndrews, 3 Mont. 158; Polin v. State, 14 Neb. 540; Binfield v. State, 14 Neb. 484; Carr v. State, 23 Neb. 749; Heldt v. State, 30 Neb. 492; Cowan v. State, 22 Neb. 519; State v. Van Winkle, 6 Nev. 340; State v. Nelson, 11 Nev. 340; State v. Rorer, 13 Nev. 17; State v. Hamilton, 13 Nev. 386; State v. Jones, 19 Nev. 365; State v. Potts, 20 Nev. 389; Donnelly v. State, 26 N. J. L. 615; State v. Raymond (N. J. 1891), 21 Atl. Rep. 328; Territory v. Lopez (N. Mex. 1884), 2 Pac. Rep. 364; People v. Guidici, 100 N. Y. 509; People v. Bennett, 49 N. Y. 144; People v. Thayers, 1 Park. Cr. Rep. (N. Y.) 595; State v. Osca, 7 Jones (N. Car.) 305; State v. Johnson, 7 Jones (N. Car.) 305; State v. Lummins, 9 West. L. J. (Ohio) 415; Morgan v. State (Ohio 1891), 27 N. E. Rep. 710; State v. Glass, 5 Oregon 73; State v. Lee, 7 Oregon 258; State v. Ching Ling, 16 Oregon 419; Com. v. Harman, 4 Pa. St. 270; Fife v. Com., 29 Pa. St. 429; Com. v. Drum, 58 Pa. St. 9; McMeen v. Com., 114 Pa. St. 300; Com. v. Miller (Pa. 1891), 21 Atl. Rep. 138; State v. Senn (S. Car. 1890), 11 S. E. Rep. 295; State v. Coleman, 20 S. Car. 445; Champlin v. State, 1 Tex. App. 108; Hampton v. State, 1 Tex. App. 652; Jackson v. State, 9 Tex. App. 114; Robertson v. State, 9 Tex. App. 209; Blocker v. State, 9 Tex. App. 279; Wallace v. State, 9 Tex. App. 399; Sisk v. State, 9 Tex. App. 246; Holmes v. State, 9 Tex. App. 314; Smith v. State, 9 Tex. App. 150; Shultz v. State, 13 Tex. 401; Brown v. State, 23 Tex. 195; Conner v. State, 34 Tex. 659; White v. State, 36 Tex. 347; Bray v. State, 41 Tex. 560; U. S. v. Harper, 33 Fed. Rep. 483; U. S. v. Jackson, 29 Fed. Rep. 503; U. S. v. Jones, 31 Fed. Rep. 725; Powell v. State, 28 Tex.

II. IN CIVIL ACTIONS.—A preponderance of evidence is sufficient in general to entitle a party to a verdict in a civil case. But it has been contended by eminent authority that, where crime is imputed in a civil cause, its existence must be proved in the same manner as in a criminal prosecution—i. e., beyond a reasonable doubt.¹ For example, it is said by a learned author: "If an action be brought against an insurance company to recover a loss by fire, and the defendants plead that the plaintiff willfully burnt down the premises, the jury, before they find a verdict against the plaintiff, must be satisfied that the crime imputed to him was proved by as clear evidence as would justify a conviction for arson."²

This rule, however, is not in accord with the majority of modern text-books, nor with the modern decisions, which hold that in civil cases it is sufficient to prove a crime, like any other fact in issue, by a preponderance of evidence, discarding entirely the doctrine of reasonable doubt in civil actions.³

App. 393; U. S. v. Knowles, 4 Sawy. (U. S.) 517; U. S. v. Foulke, 6 McLean (U. S.) 349; U. S. v. Babcock, 3 Cent. L. J. 143; Miles v. U. S., 103 U. S. 304; Guiteau's Case, 10 Fed. Rep. 164; U. S. v. Wright, 16 Fed. Rep. 112; U. S. v. Keller, 19 Fed. Rep. 633; U. S. v. Johnson, 26 Fed. Rep. 682; U. S. v. Johnson, 25 Fed. Rep. 685; U. S. v. Hopkins, 26 Fed. Rep. 433; U. S. v. King, 34 Fed. Rep. 313; U. S. v. Searcey, 26 Fed. Rep. 435; Shipp v. Com., 86 Va. 746; State v. Meyer, 58 Vt. 462; Leonard v. Territory, 2 Wash. 381; Cornish v. Territory (Wyoming 1884), 3 Pac. Rep. 793.

1. 1 Taylor Ev. (Text Book Series), § 112; 2 Greenl. Ev. (14th ed.), § 426. See also Darling v. Banks, 14 Ill. 46; McConnel v. Delaware Mut. etc. Ins. Co., 18 Ill. 228; Schultz v. Pacific Ins. Co. (Fla.) 1 Ins. L. J. 495; Bradley v. Kennedy, 2 Greene (Iowa) 231; Forshee v. Abrams, 2 Iowa 571; Fountain v. West, 23 Iowa 9; 92 Am. Dec. 405; Ellis v. Lindley, 38 Iowa 461; Tucker v. Call, 45 Ind. 31; Shortly v. Miller, 1 Smith (Ind.) 395; Gants v. Vinard, 1 1 Smith (Ind.) 297; Byrket v. Monohon, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 83; 41 Am. Dec. 212; Wonderly v. Nokes, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 589; Lanter v. McEwen, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 495; Sperry v. Wilcox, 1 Met. (Mass.) 267; Clark v. Dibble, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 601; Woodbeck v. Keller, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 118; Coulter v. Stuart, 2 Yerg. (Tenn.) 225; Hopkins v. Smith, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 599; Chalmers v. Shackle, 6 C. & P. 475; 25 E. C. L. 496; Thurtell v. Beaumont, 1

Bing. 339; 8 E. C. L. 538. And see "Some Rules of Evidence," 10 Am. L. Rev. 642, where these cases are cited and criticised at length. See also Germania F. Ins. Co. v. Klewes (Ill. 1889), 22 N. E. Rep. 492; Lavender v. Hudges, 3 Ark. 763.

In Polston v. See, 54 Mo. 291, the court by Adams, J., said: "The reason of the rule is that a verdict of a jury on the question of guilt or innocence has at least the same moral force as a verdict in a criminal trial for the same offense. There seems to be no other civil case where the verdict has the same moral force."

2. 1 Taylor Ev. (Text Book Series), § 112, citing Thurtell v. Beaumont, 1 Bing. 339; 8 E. C. L. 538. See "Some Rules of Evidence," 10 Am. L. Rev. 643, for criticism of that case; see also Magee v. Mark, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 449.

The Rule Only Applies Where the Pleadings Charge the Offense.—Those courts which recognize the rule that a criminal offense charged in a civil action must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, have held that the offense must be charged in the pleadings or the rule does not apply. Sprague v. Dodge, 48 Ill. 142; 95 Am. Dec. 523; Wallace v. Wallace, 8 Ill. App. 71; 1 Greenl. Ev. 537.

3. Abb. Tr. Ev., p. 494; 2 Whart Ev., § 1246; May on Ins., § 583; Adams v. Thornton, 78 Ala. 489; 56 Am. Rep. 49; overruling Steele v. Kinkle, 3 Ala. 352; and Tompkins v. Nichols, 53 Ala. 197; Munson v. Atwood, 30 Conn. 102; Mead v. Husted, 52 Conn.

53; 52 Am. Rep. 554; State v. Goldsborough, 1 Houst. Cr. Cas. (Del.) 302; Schnell v. Toomer, 56 Ga. 168; Bissel v. Wert, 35 Ind. 54; Continental Ins. Co. v. Jachnichen, 110 Ind. 59; 59 Am. Rep. 194; Welch v. Jugenheimer, 56 Iowa 11; 41 Am. Rep. 77; Behrens v. Germania Ins. Co., 58 Iowa 26; Kendig v. Overhulser, 58 Iowa 195; Coit v. Churchill, 61 Iowa 296; Riley v. Norton, 65 Iowa 306; expressly overruling Bradley v. Kennedy, 2 Greene (Iowa) 231; Forshee v. Abrams, 2 Iowa 571; Fountain v. West, 23 Iowa 9; 92 Am. Dec. 405; Ellis v. Lindley, 38 Iowa 461; and Barton v. Thompson, 46 Iowa 30; 26 Am. Rep. 131; Aetna Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 11 Bush (Ky.) 587; 21 Am. Rep. 223; Wightman v. Western M. & F. Ins. Co., 8 Rob. (La.) 442; Hoffman v. Western M. & F. Ins. Co., 1 La. Ann. 216; Knowles v. Scribner, 57 Me. 495; Ellis v. Buzzell, 60 Me. 209; 11 Am. Rep. 204; Decker v. Somerset etc. Ins. Co., 66 Me. 406; McBee v. Fulton, 47 Md. 403; 28 Am. Dec. 465; Schmidt v. New York Union M. F. Ins. Co., 1 Gray (Mass.) 529; Gordon v. Parmelee, 15 Gray (Mass.) 413; Roberge v. Burnham, 124 Mass. 277; Watkins v. Wallace, 19 Mich. 57; Elliott v. Van Buren, 33 Mich. 49; 20 Am. Rep. 668; Semon v. People, 42 Mich. 141; People v. Evening News, 51 Mich. 11; Hough v. Dickinson, 58 Mich. 89; Burr v. Wilson, 22 Minn. 206; Thoreson v. Northwestern etc. Ins. Co., 29 Minn. 107; Marshall v. Thames F. Ins. Co., 43 Mo. 586; Rothschild v. American etc. Ins. Co., 62 Mo. 356; Edwards v. Knapp, 97 Mo. 432; Folsom v. Brawn, 25 N. H. 114; Kane v. Hibernia Ins. Co., 39 N. J. L. 697; 23 Am. Rep. 239; reversing 38 N. J. L. 441; 20 Am. Rep. 409; Johnson v. Agricultural Ins. Co., 25 Hun (N. Y.) 251; Allen v. Allen, 101 N. Y. 658; People v. Briggs, 114 N. Y. 64; New York etc. Ferry Co. v. Moore, 18 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 106; Kincade v. Bradshaw, 3 Hawks. (N. Car.) 63; Barfield v. Britt, 2 Jones (N. Car.) 41; 62 Am. Dec. 190; Strader v. Mullane, 17 Ohio St. 625; Jones v. Greaves, 26 Ohio St. 2; 20 Am. Rep. 752; Lyon v. Fleahmann, 34 Ohio St. 151; Smith v. Smith, 5 Oregon 187; Young v. Edwards, 72 Pa. St. 257; Somerset Co. Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Usaw, 112 Pa. St. 80; Hills v. Goodyear, 4 Lea (Tenn.) 233; 40 Am. Rep. 5; Sparks v. Dawson, 47 Tex. 138; March v. Walker, 48 Tex.

372; Bradish v. Bliss, 35 Vt. 326; Weston v. Gravlin, 49 Vt. 507; Simmons v. Ins. Co., 8 W. Va. 474; Washington U. Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 7 Wis. 169; Blaesser v. Milwaukee etc. Ins. Co., 37 Wis. 31; 19 Am. Rep. 747; Scott v. Home Ins. Co., 1 Dill. (U. S.) 105; Howell v. Hartford F. I. Co., 2 Ins. L. Jour. 649.

Mr. Cooley thus states the law: "Where the charge complained of imputes to the plaintiff criminal conduct, and the truth is relied upon as a justification, it is sufficient to support the plea by a preponderance of evidence; it is not necessary that the crime be made out beyond a reasonable doubt. This is a general rule where the question of criminality is made an issue in a civil suit; it is sufficient to establish it by such evidence as would support any other fact involved in a civil controversy. Some cases, however, dissent from this doctrine, and require the same strict proof of the charge that would be required if the party were on trial for the alleged crime; that is, of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt." Cooley on Torts, p. 208.

In Ellis v. Buzzell, 60 Me. 209; 11 Am. Rep. 204, which was an action for slander in charging the plaintiff with a crime, a plea that the words were true was entered. It was held that a preponderance of evidence would support the plea, the court by Barrows, J., saying, with reference to the doctrine of reasonable doubt in civil actions: "We think it time to limit the application of a rule, which was originally adopted in favorem vitæ in the days of a sanguinary code, to cases arising on the criminal docket, and no longer to suffer it to obstruct or incumber the action of juries in civil suits sounding only in damages."

In People v. Evening News, 51 Mich. 17, the court by Campbell, J., said: "There are but two classes of cases recognized as requiring different rules of proof; first, criminal cases, and second, civil cases; or, to speak more accurately, cases not criminal. In all cases criminal, the jury must be satisfied of guilt not merely by a preponderance of proof but beyond a reasonable doubt. In cases not criminal, they may be satisfied by preponderance of proof . . . But in cases not criminal and involving no criminal judgment and punishment, the court cannot require the jury to disregard any preponderance of evidence which convinces them." The case under consideration was one of slander, charging the plaintiff with a crime. The defendant pleaded justification, and the court held that a preponderance of proof was sufficient to establish the plea.

An Action for Divorce—Adultery.—

In actions for divorce, where the plaintiff charges the defendant with the commission of a crime, as adultery, in some jurisdictions, the modern rule prevails, and plaintiff need not establish his case beyond a reasonable doubt. This, of course, is equally true when defendant recriminates. DIVORCE, vol. 5, pp. 785, 828. It should be observed that the New Jersey case (Berckmans v. Berckmans, 17 N. J. Eq. 453) cited in the article DIVORCE on the pages referred to, cannot be reconciled on principle with the later cases in the same State. Kane v. Hibernia Ins. Co., 39 N. J. L. 697; 23 Am. Rep. 239; Traphagen v. Voorhees, 44 N. J. Eq. 24.

In Wisconsin several of the early cases seem to support the view that the same degree of proof is required to sustain a charge of adultery in a divorce suit as would be required to secure a conviction on an indictment for the same offense. Freeman v. Freeman, 31 Wis. 235; Blaeser v. Milwaukee etc. Ins. Co., 37 Wis. 31; 19 Am. Rep. 747; Pryce v. Security Ins. Co., 29 Wis. 270. But the law is finally settled to the contrary by Poertner v. Poertner, 66 Wis. 644. In which case the court by Lyon, J., said: "We are quite unable to perceive any difference in principle between an issue of adultery in a divorce suit and issues in many civil actions involving charges of other crimes. The consequence of a finding that the crime has been committed may be just as disastrous in the one case as in the other—may even be more disastrous in the latter class of cases than in the former case. That must depend greatly, not only upon the heinousness of the crime, but upon the standing, situation and circumstances of the party charged therewith.

The rule as to the strength and quality of testimony required to justify a finding of guilt, when the issue in a civil action involves a charge of crime other than adultery, having been established by repeated judgments of this court, we have concluded, after much deliberation, that the same rule should obtain when adultery is charged in an action for a divorce. That rule is that the issue should be determined by the clear and satisfactory preponderance of the evidence. The jury in such a case should be so instructed, but not that the crime must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt before they can properly find it has been committed."

In bastardy proceedings the charge need not be established beyond a reasonable doubt. BASTARDY, vol. 2, p. 149; State v. Nichols, 29 Minn. 357; People v. Christman, 66 Ill. 163; Allison v. People, 45 Ill. 37; Knowles v. Scribner, 57 Me. 496.

Insurance.—As mentioned in the text where suit is brought for insurance, and the insurance company sets up as a defense the burning of the property (or the casting away of the vessel in marine insurance) by design, in order to defraud the company, it has been held that the defense must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. Thurtell v. Beaumont, 1 Bing. 339; 8 E. C. L. 538; Schultz v. Pacific Ins. Co., 14 Fla. 73; McConnell v. Delaware Mut. etc. Ins. Co., 18 Ill. 228; Germania F. Ins. Co. v. Klewer (Ill. 1889), 22 N. E. Rep. 489. See also Lexington Ins. Co. v. Paver, 16 Ohio 332; probably overruled by Bell v. McGinness, 40 Ohio St. 204; 48 Am. Rep. 673; Butman v. Hobbs, 35 Me. 227; overruled by Decker v. Somerset etc. Ins. Co., 66 Me. 406. But the weight of authority supports the modern and better rule that a fair preponderance of evidence is sufficient to establish this defense.

Cooley on Torts 208; May on Ins., § 583; Wood on Ins. (2d ed.) 533; Abb. Tr. Ev., p. 494; 2 Whart. Ev., §§ 1245-46; Continental Ins. Co. v. Jachnichen, 110 Ind. 59; 59 Am. Rep. 104; Behrens v. Germania Ins. Co., 58 Iowa 26; Hoffman v. Western M. & F. Ins. Co., 1 La. Ann. 216; Regnier v. Louisiana etc. Ins. Co., 12 La. 336; Wightman v. Western M. & F. Ins. Co., 8 Rob. (La.) 442; Decker v. Somerset etc. Ins. Co., 66 Me. 406; Marshall v. Thames F. Ins. Co., 43 Mo. 586; Rothschild v. American etc. Ins. Co., 62 Mo. 356; Schmidt v. New York Union etc. Ins. Co., 1 Gray (Mass.) 529; Aetna Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 11 Bush (Ky.) 587; 21 Am. Rep. 223; Sloan v. Gilbert, 12 Bush (Ky.) 51; 23 Am. Rep. 708; Kincade v. Bradshaw, 3 Hawks (N. Car.) 63; Kane v. Hibernia Ins. Co., 39 N. J. L. 697; 23 Am. Rep. 239; reversing 38 N. J. L. 441; 20 Am. Rep. 419; Johnson v. Agricultural Ins. Co., 25 Hun (N. Y.) 251; Thoreson v. North Western etc. Ins. Co., 29 Minn. 107; Monaghan v. Agricultural Ins. Co., 53 Mich. 238; Simmons v. Insurance Co., 8 W. Va. 474; Blaiser v. Milwaukee etc. Ins. Co., 37 Wis. 31; 19 Am. Rep. 747; Washington Union Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 7 Wis. 169; Scott v. Home Ins. Co., 1 Dill. (U. S.) 105; Mack v. Lancashire Ins. Co., 2 McCrary (U. S.) 211. See also upon this question Richardson v. Canada, 17 U. C. C. P. 341; Chison v. Provincial etc. Ins. Co., 20 U. C. C. P. 11; Gould v. British, 27 U. C., Q. B. 473.

Libel and slander.—While it is believed that it has never been contended that in an action for libel the plaintiff, although he charges the defendant with a crime, has to establish his case beyond a reasonable doubt, yet it has been said that in libel and slander, where the defendant has charged the plaintiff with the commission of a crime and pleads justification, the case is an exceptional one, and that the defense must be established beyond a reasonable doubt. Kane v. Hibernia Ins. Co., 39 N. J. L. 697; 23 Am. Rep. 239.

It is very hard to see how, with reason, this distinction between the proof required to establish the plaintiff's case and that required of the defendant can be maintained. In England, it is true, the rule may be supported. For there, upon the trial of a plea of justification of a charge which imputed a felony, if the defendant proved the plea, the plaintiff was subject to be put upon trial for the felony proved without the intervention of a grand jury. The verdict in such a case is equivalent to an indictment by a grand jury. Sloan v. Gilbert, 12 Bush (Ky.) 51; 23 Am. Rep. 708; Cook v. Field, 3 Exch. 133; Continental Ins. Co. v. Jachnichen, 110 Ind. 61; 59 Am. Rep. 194; Ellis v. Buzzell, 60 Me. 209; 11 Am. Rep. 204; Edwards v. Knapp, 97 Mo. 436.

But in the United States, where the verdict in favor of the defendant upon the plea of justification has no such effect, the modern rule prevails, and the defendant may sustain his defense by a fair preponderance of evidence. Riley v. Norton, 65 Iowa 306; Tunnell v. Ferguson, 17 Ill. App. 76; Scott v. Fleming, 17 Ill. App. 561; Aetna Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 11 Bush (Ky.) 587; 21 Am. Rep. 223; Sloan v. Gilbert, 12

Bush (Ky.) 51; 23 Am. Rep. 708; Wightman v. Western M. & F. Ins. Co., 8 Rob. (La.) 442; Edwards v. Knapp, 97 Mo. 432; Ellis v. Buzzell, 60 Me. 209; 11 Am. Rep. 204; McBee v. Fulton, 47 Md. 403; 28 Am. Rep. 465; Matthews v. Huntley, 9 N. H. 150; Folsom v. Brawn, 25 N. H. 114; Kincade v. Bradshaw, 3 Hawks (N. Car.) 63; Barfield v. Britt, 2 Jones (N. Car.) 41; 62 Am. Dec. 190; Bell v. McGinness, 40 Ohio St. 204; 48 Am. Rep. 673; Bradish v. Bliss, 35 Vt. 326; Kidd v. Fleek, 47 Wis. 443.

Contra.—Townshend Lib. & Sland. (4th ed.), § 404; Tucker v. Call, 45 Ind. 31; Byrket v. Monohon, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 83; 41 Am. Dec. 212; overruled by Continental Ins. Co. v. Jachnichen, 110 Ind. 59; 59 Am. Rep. 194; Fountain v. West, 23 Iowa 9; 92 Am. Dec. 405; Ellis v. Lindley, 38 Iowa 461; overruled by Riley v. Norton, 65 Iowa 306; Crandall v. Dawson, 6 Ill. 556; Harrison v. Shook, 41 Ill. 141; Corbley v. Wilson, 71 Ill. 209; 22 Am. Rep. 98; Williams v. Gunnells, 66 Ga. 521; Polston v. See, 54 Mo. 291; overruled by Edwards v. Knapp, 97 Mo. 432; Merk v. Gelzhaeuser, 50 Cal. 631; Burckhalter v. Coward, 16 S. Car. 435; Coulter v. Stuart, 2 Yerg. (Tenn.) 225; probably overruled by Hills v. Goodyear, 4 Lea (Tenn.) 233; 40 Am. Rep. 5.

In Illinois it is now provided by statute that a plea of justification in libel or slander may be established by a preponderance of evidence. Tunnell v. Ferguson, 17 Ill. App. 76; Scott v. Fleming, 17 Ill. App. 561.

In Pennsylvania the cases of Steinman v. McWilliams, 6 Pa. St. 170, and German v. Sutton, 32 Pa. St. 247, hold where the defendant's justification imputes a crime to the plaintiff, that the crime must be proved by the same degree of evidence as would be required in a criminal prosecution; but it is impossible to reconcile them with the later case of Somerset Co. Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Usaw, 112 Pa. St. 80; 56 Am. Rep. 307.

Fraud.—So where fraud is imputed in a civil action it need not be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. FRAUD, vol. 8, p. 656; Sparks v. Dawson, 47 Tex. 138; Hough v. Dickinson, 58 Mich. 89; Jones v. Greaves, 26 Ohio St. 2; 20 Am. Rep. 752; Adams v. Thornton, 78 Ala. 489; 56 Am. Rep. 49.

Actions for Penalties.—See PENALTIES, vol. 18, p. 280; Chaffee etc. Co. v.

But it must be remembered that a party is entitled to the presumption of innocence in civil as well as in criminal cases, and there cannot be said to be a preponderance of evidence establishing a crime unless such evidence outweighs the presumption of innocence as well as the opposing evidence.¹

REASONABLE TIME.—The term "reasonable time" is a relative one, and its meaning depends entirely upon the attendant circumstances. No attempt, therefore, is made to define it, but in the note a review of the authorities on the subject is presented.²

U. S., 18 Wall. (U. S.) 516; Roberge v. Burnham, 124 Mass. 277.

Usury.—It is sufficient to sustain the defense of usury if the weight of the evidence be in its favor. Chew v. Ferrari, 29 N. J. Eq. 382. See also USURY.

1. Somerset Co. Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Usaw, 112 Pa. St. 90; 56 Am. Rep. 307. "The law in all cases, civil or criminal, presumes innocence. Obviously, therefore, to create a preponderance of evidence in a civil case, where crime is imputed to one party, the other party assumes the burden of not only overcoming the evidence of his opponent, by a preponderance, but of overcoming also the presumption of law in favor of the innocence of his adversary. In other words, there is no preponderance on the side of the charge of guilt, unless the evidence is sufficient to overbalance the opposing presumption as well as the opposing evidence, including evidence of character. Knowels v. Scribner, 57 Me. 497; Ellis v. Buzzell, 60 Me. 209; 11 Am. Rep. 204; Bradish v. Bliss, 35 Vt. 326. The difficulty has been in so wording a charge as to give the party implicated the benefit of the law without breaking down the distinction between civil and criminal cases, there being clearly no intermediate rule between the general rule in the one class and the general rule in the other. Bradish v. Bliss, 35 Vt. 326." Hills v. Goodyear, 4 Lea (Tenn.) 233; 40 Am. Rep. 5.

In Decker v. Somerest etc. Ins. Co., 66 Me. 408, the court by Walton, J., said: "To create a preponderance of evidence, the evidence must be sufficient to overcome the opposing presumptions as well as the opposing evidence. Presumptions, like probabilities, are of different degrees of strength. To overcome a strong presumption requires more evidence than to overcome a weak one. To fasten upon a man a very heinous or repulsive act requires stronger proof than to fasten upon him an indifferent act, or one in accordance with his known inclinations. To fasten upon a man the act of willfully and maliciously setting fire to his own buildings should certainly require more evidence than to establish the fact of payment of a note, or the truth of an account in set-off; because the improbability or presumption to be overcome in the one case is much stronger than it is in the other. Hence, it can never be improper to call the attention of the jury to the character of the issue, and to remind them that more evidence should be required to establish grave charges than to establish trifling or indifferent ones. Such an instruction does not violate the rule that in civil suits a preponderance of evidence is all that is required to maintain the affirmative of the issue; for, as already stated, to create a preponderance of evidence, it must be sufficient to overcome the opposing presumptions as well as the opposing evidence."

In Jones v. Greaves, 26 Ohio St. 2; 20 Am. Rep. 752, the court by McIlvaine, C. J., said: "Where the facts charged involve moral turpitude, there is a presumption of innocence which stands as evidence in favor of the party charged; and the more heinous the offense, the stronger the presumption. It is only where the testimony, when considered in connection with the presumptions of law arising in the case, preponderates in favor of the charge that its truth should be found; but when so found by discreet and reasonable triers, the issue should be determined in accordance with the preponderance, although it may not be said that the proof has removed all reasonable doubts."

2. Checks.—For the doctrine in the United States, as to what is a reasonable time within which a check should be presented, see CHECKS, vol. 3, pp. 213, 214; DEMAND, vol. 5, p. 528.⁶¹

In England six years has been held to be a reasonable time within which to present a check for payment, unless loss has been occasioned by unnecessary delay. Robinson v. Hawksford, 9 Q. B. 52; 58 E. C. L. 51; Laws v. Rand, 30 L. T., O. S. 286; In re Bethell, 34 Ch. Div. 566. But in these cases the rule laid down was that no length of time is unreasonable unless, during the delay, the fund on which the check was drawn is lost. Compare Hare v. Henty, 30 L. J., C. P. 302; Donn v. Halling, 4 B. & C. 330; 10 E. C. L. 347.

Bills and Notes.—As to "reasonable time" in connection with the presentment of bills or notes for payment, see DEMAND, vol. 5, pp. 528.⁶¹, 528.⁶⁰—528.⁶⁰. See also Robson v. Oliver, 10 Q. B. 704; 59 E. C. L. 704.

In connection with notice of Dishonor, see DEMAND, vol. 5, p. 528.⁶⁰.

Contracts.—Where a contract is to be performed within a reasonable time, such time must be determined according to the circumstances of the case and with particular reference to the means and ability of the person by whom the contract is to be performed. Toms v. Wilson, 32 L. J., Q. B. 382; 4 B. & S. 455; 116 E. C. L. 455; Atwood v. Emery, 26 L. J. C. P. 73; 1 C. B., N. S. 110; 87 E. C. L. 110; Brighty v. Norton, 32 L. J., Q. B. 38; 3 B. & S. 305; 113 E. C. L. 305; Hales v. London etc. R. Co., 32 L. J., Q. B. 292; 4 B. & S. 66; 116 E. C. L. 66; Briddon v. Great Northern R. Co., 28 L. J. Exch. 51.

But where a contract imposes on a party a duty not purely personal, as, for example, to deliver a quantity of lumber within a reasonable time, his inability by reason of accident, want of means, insolvency, or other cause, does not excuse non-performance. Jones v. Anderson, 82 Ala. 302; citing 2 Wharton on Contracts, § 323; Reid v. Edwards, 7 Port. (Ala.) 508; 31 Am. Dec. 720.

In an action on a contract to convey land, there must have been a demand of a deed and a tender of payment by the purchaser within a reasonable time—two years held to be unreasonable in Force v. Dutcher, 18 N. J. Eq. 401.

An obligation to perform a contract within "a reasonable time" does not require so speedy a fulfillment as one to be performed "directly" or "as soon as possible." Addison on Contracts 1188.

"Forthwith," when strictly construed, means "without any delay" and sooner than "within a reasonable time." Maxwell v. Scarfe, 18 Ont. Rep. 529.

But even where a covenant provides for the payment of money "immediately upon demand" the party owing is entitled to a reasonable time to get the money and pay it over. Toms v. Wilson, 4 B. & S. 455; 116 E. C. L. 455.

When no time is set within which a contract must be performed or a duty discharged, performance must be made within a reasonable time. What amount of time constitutes such reasonable time depends upon the facts and circumstances of the case, not upon mere opinion or expectation. Bryant v. Sailing, 4 Mo. 522; Stange v. Wilson, 17 Mich. 342 (parol evidence inadmissible to alter this implication); Abell v. Munson, 18 Mich. 306; 100 Am. Dec. 165; Byram v. Gordon, 11 Mich. 531; Bolton v. Riddle, 35 Mich. 13; Grant v. Merchants' etc. Bank, 35 Mich. 515; Youmans v. Heartt, 34 Mich. 397; Cocker v. Franklin etc. Mfg. Co., 3 Sumn. (U. S.) 530; Morse v. Bellows, 7 N. H. 566; Atchison etc. R. Co. v. Burlingame Township, 36 Kan. 634; 59 Am. Rep. 578; Dennis v. Stoughton, 55 Vt. 376; Chitty on Contracts 730; 2 Parsons on Contr. 47, 173.

In pursuance of this principle an agreement to forbear to sue a third person who is plaintiff's debtor, is a sufficient consideration for defendant's promise to pay; and no definite time being named, a count on an agreement to forbear for a reasonable time is good. Calkins v. Chandler, 36 Mich. 320; 24 Am. Rep. 593; Howe v. Taggart, 133 Mass. 284.

A contract for the sale of hay dated Sept. 25, stipulated that it was to be delivered within a reasonable time after being pressed. The purchasers, who were to press it, did not call for the hay to press it until November 22. The vendor refused it, and in an action on the contract it was held that the plaintiff's delay was unreasonable. Coon v. Spaulding, 47 Mich. 163.

In a contract to sell and deliver ten tons of oil "within the last fourteen days of March," the plaintiff tendered it at half-past eight on the evening of the last day of March. It was found that the tender had been made in time to give the defendant full opportunity to weigh, examine, and receive the oil, but the defendant who was present declined to receive it on the ground that the tender was made at an unreasonable time; but it was held that the tender had been made in time, Blackb. 225; Startup v. Macdonald, 6 M. & G. 593; 12 L. J. Ex. 477; 46 E. C. L. 591. In that case Parke, B., said: "Where a thing is to be done anywhere, a tender a convenient time before midnight is sufficient; where the thing is to be done at a particular place, and where the law implies a duty on the party to whom the thing is to be done to attend, that attendance is to be by daylight, and a convenient time before sunset."

In the case of Roberts v. Mazeppa Mill Co., 30 Minn. 415, it is said that the question of reasonable time is determined by a view of all the circumstances of the case—by placing the court and jury in the same situation as the contracting parties were at the time they made the contract; that is, by placing before them all the circumstances known to both parties at the time. Ellis v. Thompson, 3 M. & W. 445; Cocker v. Franklin etc. Mfg. Co., 3 Sumn. (U. S.) 530. And for that purpose it has been held that evidence of the conversations of the parties may be admitted to show the circumstances under which the contract was made, and what they thought was a reasonable time. Cocker v. Franklin etc. Mfg. Co., 3 Sumn. (U. S.) 530; Coates v. Sangston, 5 Md. 121.

Institution of Suits.—The assignor of a promissory note is liable unless the debt was lost by the negligence of the assignee. The assignee must use due diligence and sue within a reasonable time. In such a case two years is beyond reasonable time unless the delay arose from the conduct of the assignor. Mehelm v. Barnet, 1 N. J. L. 86.

Performance of Duties.—The rule laid down as to the performance of contracts applies also in the discharge of duties. Goodwyn v. Chevely, 28 N. J. Exch. 298; 4 H. & N. 631.

In McCoury v. Leek, 14 N. J. Eq. 70, a testator provided in his will: "I order and direct my executors to sell and dispose of my lands and give deeds for the same, as I might do if living, etc." It was held that the executors were entitled to a reasonable time in the exercise of their discretion for making sale of the land, and that one year was a reasonable time.

An executor directed to convert an estate into money, may exercise his discretion as to when he will do so, and there is no rigid or arbitrary standard by which to measure the reasonable time within which he may do so and beyond which he may not delay in complying with the direction. What is such time must depend upon the circumstances of each case. It seems, however, where no special modifying facts are shown, to shorten or lengthen the reasonable time, the period allowed before the executor can be compelled to account, that is eighteen months, may serve as a just standard. In re Weston, 91 N. Y. 502.

Notice.—As to reasonable time in giving notice and proof of loss in fire insurance cases, see FIRE INSURANCE, vol. 7, p. 1049.

A person on trial under a commission of alleged lunacy is entitled to a reasonable notice. A notice on Saturday of the execution of commission on Tuesday following is held insufficient. In re Vanauken, 10 N. J. Eq. 186.

What is reasonable time where notice is required to be published for a reasonable time, see Clark v. Mowyer, 5 Mich. 472 (depends upon character of the locality of the paper and other circumstances).

Reasonable notice of the taking of depositions must be such as to give the opposite party not only reasonable time to appear but also to secure the attendance of counsel. Kimpton v. Glover, 41 Vt. 283.

As in performing contracts so in giving notice, when no time is specified the notice must be given a reasonable time beforehand. Hough v. Lawrence, 5 Vt. 299 (notice of taking depositions).

Sales.—As to what is a reasonable time within which a buyer may object to the terms of a conditional sale, see CONDITIONAL SALES, vol. 3, p. 434.

Optional Contracts.—"In every case of a right to disaffirm, the party holding it is required . . . to act upon it within a reasonable time." See INFANTS, vol. 10, p. 651, where the subject is discussed; CONDITIONAL SALES, vol. 3, p. 434; Cookingham v. Dusa, 41 Kan. 229; Aultman etc. Co. v. Mickey, 41 Kan. 349; Sims v. Everhardt, 102 U. S. 300; Minnesota Linseed Oil Co. v. Montague, 59 Iowa 448 (principal entitled to a reasonable time within which to repudiate agent's unauthorized contract).

Definition.REASONABLE TIME.*Definition.

A purchaser of land has a right to a reasonable time within which to examine the title deed and ascertain the grantor's title to the premises conveyed, before he can be considered as fully accepting the deed. Earle v. Earle, 16 N. J. L. 273.

Baggage or Goods in Possession of Carrier.—It is a well settled rule that the liability of a carrier as insurer, for goods carried or for baggage, continues after their arrival at their destination until the owner has had reasonable time and opportunity to call for them and remove them. Wood v. Crocker, 18 Wis. 345; 86 Am. Dec. 773; Parker v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 30 Wis. 689; Nudd v. Wells, 11 Wis. 426; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 891-4; RAILROADS.

Where goods arrived at their destination at 11 A. M., were unloaded between 1 and 3 P. M., and were ready for delivery to consignee at about 4 P. M., and were destroyed by fire before business hours next morning, held, that reasonable time and opportunity to remove the goods had not been afforded to the consignee, and the carrier was liable as an insurer for their loss. Parker v. Milwaukee etc. R. Co., 30 Wis. 689.

Generally.—Demand in replevin or in similar action must be within a reasonable time. See DEMAND, vol. 5, pp. 528e, 528n.

As to reasonable time within which a person may apply for a reissue of a patent, see PATENT LAW, vol. 18, pp. 47-8.

In connection with demurrage, see DEMURRAGE, vol. 5, p. 546, note 2.

In connection with service of process, see SERVICE OF PROCESS. See also Rex v. Smith, L. R., 10 Q. B. 604 (summons to be served a "reasonable time" before hearing).

A defendant in a capital case who is guilty of no laches is entitled to a reasonable time to prepare his defense. Three hours is not such time. State v. Boyd, 37 La. Ann. 781; People v. Fuller, 2 Park. Cr. Cas. (N. Y.) 16.

An ordinance allowed lot owners to lay or construct sidewalks or crosswalks in front of their property "provided they do the same within a reasonable time to be fixed by said board." Held, that two years was more than a reasonable time. Morris v. Mayor etc. of Bayonne, 25 N. J. Eq. 348.

A bill of exceptions was presented five years after judgment was pronounced and satisfied. Held, not to have been presented within reasonable time. State v. Holmes, 36 N. J. L. 65.

Performance of covenants. See Gerzebek v. Lord, 33 N. J. L. 243.

Where, in case of property sold under a deed of trust, the debtor is promised a reconveyance thereof upon a payment of the money owing thereunder "within a reasonable time," special circumstances, the situation of the parties, and the character of the property, must be taken into account in fixing the standard. McNew v. Booth, 42 Mo. 189.

An officer has no right to use the tenement of any person for the storage of attached goods for a longer time than is reasonably necessary to remove them. Rowley v. Rice, 11 Met. (Mass.) 337. Five hours of daylight is more than a reasonable time to remove from a broker's office the desk and books of an attorney, worth not more than two hundred dollars. Williams v. Powell, 101 Mass. 469; 30 Am. Rep. 396.

A power to grant mining leases for such term as to the donee shall seem reasonable and proper, may authorize a lease for 99 years. Taylor v. Nustym, 52 L. J., Ch. 848; 23 Ch. Div. 583; 48 L. T. 715.

Question of Law or Fact.—Whether the determination of what is reasonable time is a question of law for the court or of fact for the jury is a matter upon which there is much conflict of authority. See the subject discussed in QUESTIONS OF LAW AND FACT, vol. 19, p. 598; DEMAND, vol. 5, p. 528z⁹⁰.

See also Patterson v. Hitchcock, 3 Colo. 540; Wiggins v. Burkham, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 129; Morgan v. McKee, 77 Pa. St. 228; Druse v. Wheeler, 26 Mich. 189.

When It Begins to Run.—"Reasonable time does not begin to run until some one interested in the matter calls for something to be done respecting it," Graham v. Van Dieman's Land Co., 30 Eng. L. & Eq. 579; Cameron v. Wells, 30 Vt. 633.

Infants are allowed a reasonable time within which to repudiate voidable contracts made during infancy. If any disability exists, as, for example, coverture, the reasonable time does not begin to run until after coverture is ended. Sims v. Everhardt, 102 U. S. 300.

Reasonable Time for a Notice of Suit to a Surety.—See SURETYSHIP

REBUTTAL—REBUTTING EVIDENCE.—Rebuttal is a briefer expression for “rebutting evidence.”¹

REBUTTER—(See generally PLEADING).—In common-law pleading the name of defendant's answer to plaintiff's surrejoinder.

RECAPTION.—(See also DETINUE, vol. 5, p. 651; REPLEVIN; TROVER, and cross-references in the body of this analysis, and in the notes.)

- I. Definition, 1093.
- II. Recaption of Persons (See also ARREST, vol. 1, p. 719; ASSAULT, vol. 1, p. 778). 1094.
- III. Recaption of Property, 1095.
 1. Personal Property, 1095.
 - a. Recaption as Affected by Condition of Goods (See also ACCESSION; CONFUSION OF GOODS, vol. 1, p. 50), 1098.
 - (1) Recaption as Affected by Admixture, 1098.
 - (2) Recaption as Affected by Accession, 1100.
 - (3) Recaption as Affected by Specification (See also CONVERSION, vol. 4, p. 104; LIEN, vol. 13, p. 574; MECHANICS' LIEN, vol. 15, p. 1), 1100.
 - b. Recaption as Affected by the Whereabouts of Goods, 1102.
 - (1) General Rule as to Entry for Recaption, 1102.
 - (2) Recaption from Land of Innocent Receiver from Tort-feasor, 1103.
 - (3) Right of Entry on Land of Another for Recaption of Goods Taken by Third Person, 1103.
 - (4) Entry by Tenant; Tenants in Common; Implied License, 1104.
 - (5) Entry by Successor in Government Office, upon Land of Predecessor, to Recover Government Property, 1105.
 - (6) License to Enter Implied in Sale of Goods Without Delivery—Mortgaged Goods, 1105.
 - (7) Entry of Vendor to Retake Goods Fraudulently Purchased, 1106.
 - (8) Recaption as Applied to Stoppage of Goods in Transitu (See also LIEN, vol. 13, p. 574; STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU), 1107.
 2. Real Property (See also ENTRY, WRIT OF, vol. 6, p. 651), 1107.
- IV. Defense of Possessions (See also SELF-DEFENSE), 1109.

I. DEFINITION.—Recaption (a retaking, or taking back—termed also “reprisal”) is a species of remedy by the mere act of the party injured, which happens when anyone has deprived another of his property in goods or chattels personal, or wrongfully detains one's wife, child, or servant, in which case the owner of the goods, and the husband, parent, or master may lawfully claim

1. Rebutting Evidence.—(See also WITNESSES.) The word “rebutting” has a twofold signification, both in common and legal parlance. It sometimes means contradictory evidence only; at other times conclusive or overcoming testimony. Killiam v. Killiam, 25 Ga. 186.

Rebutting evidence is defined to be that which is given to explain, repel, counteract or disprove facts given in evidence by the adverse party. It is a general rule that anything may be given as rebutting evidence which is a direct reply to that produced on the other side. People v. Page, 1 Idaho 195; Bouv. L. Dict.

The term is more particularly applied to that evidence given by the plaintiff to explain or repel the evidence given by the defendant. Bouvier's L. Dict.

and retake, wherever he happens to find them, so it be not in a riotous manner, or attended with a breach of the peace, or injury to a third person, who has not been party to the wrong, and so that he favor not the thief.¹

Recaption is the taking a second distress of one formerly distrained, during the plea grounded on the former distress; it is a writ to recover damages for him whose goods, being distrained for rent, service, etc., are distrained again for the same cause, pending the plea in the County Court or before the justices.²

Recaption is also applied to an arrest of a person who has been before arrested for the same cause, but has escaped.³

II. RECAPTION OF PERSONS.—The right of recaption of persons, as above defined, extends to a husband retaking his wife; a parent his child of whom he has the custody; a master his apprentice;⁴ and, according to Blackstone, a master his servant, but this

1. Black's L. Dict.; Wharton's L. Lex. (Lely, 7 ed.); Bouv. L. Dict. (Rawle's ed.); 3 Bouv. Inst. 134; 3 Bl. Com. (Sharswood's ed.) * p. 4; 3 Steph. Com. (11 Eng. ed.) p. 358; 2 Rolle, Abr. 565.

The reason for this is obvious; since it may frequently happen if this right were not allowed by law, that the owner would have this only opportunity of doing himself justice; his goods may be afterwards conveyed away or destroyed and his wife, children, or servants, concealed or carried out of his reach, if he had no speedier remedy than the ordinary process of the law. If, therefore, he can so contrive it as to regain possession without force or terror, the law favors and will justify his proceeding. But as the public peace is a superior consideration, this natural right of recaption may not be exercised, where the exercise of it would occasion strife and bodily contention, or would endanger the peace of society. 3 Bl. Com. (Sharswood's ed.) * p. 4; 3 Steph. Com. (11 Eng. ed.) 258; Cubitt v. Porter, 8 B. & C. 260; 15 E. C. L. 211.

2. F. N. B. 71: Wharton's L. Lex. (Lely 7 ed.).

3. Abbott's L. Dict. See also, ARREST (CIVIL CASES), vol. 1, p. 719; ARREST (CRIMINAL CASES), vol. 1, p. 730.

Recaption may take place after a negligent, but not after a voluntary escape. If the prisoner wrongfully escape he may be retaken at any time, and is not protected by the statute 29

Car. II. ch. 7, § 6, which forbids an original arrest on Sunday. Atkinson v. Jameson, 5 T. R. 25.

If a person, called to assist an officer, attempt recaption after an illegal arrest, and is killed by the one he is attempting to retake, it will not be murder but manslaughter only, where the killing was done to prevent recapture. 1 Russell on Crimes (9 Am. ed.) * p. 805; Rex v. Curvan, 1 M. C. C. 132.

4. 3 Bl. Com. (Sharswood's ed.) * p. 4; 3 Steph. Com. (11 Eng. ed.) p. 256. If recaption be forcibly resisted, the proper remedy is by recourse to a court or judge for a habeas corpus on behalf of the husband. Rex v. Doherty, 13 East. 173; Rex v. Middleton, 1 Chit. R. 654, 18 Eng. Com. Law Reps. 192; parent or guardian, In re Pearson, 4 Moore 366; 16 E. C. L. 379; Rex v. Hopkins, 7 East 579; or on behalf of the apprentice. Ex parte Lansdown, 5 East 38; or for the chief justice's warrant, Rex v. Edwards, 7 T. R. 745; or recourse may be had to a court of equity to compel the return of a child or ward to his studies or to an appointed place. Duke of Beaufort v. Berty, 1 P. Wms. 703; Eyre v. Countess of Shaftesbury, 2 P. Wms. 102; Ex parte Warner, 4 Bro. C. C. 101; Tremaine's Case, 1 Stra. 167; Hall v. Hall, 3 Atk. 721; Storke v. Storke, 3 P. Wms. 51. And if a wife elope with an adulterer or another, the husband may legally with force retake her; and if they escape to France, their separation may by the local law be enforced, and the adulterer be imprisoned for a year. 1 Chit. Gen. Prac. 640.

must be confined to the case of a servant who consents to recaption.¹

In these cases, the party injured may at once, without demand being first made, enter the house of the wrong-doer, the outer door being open, and lawfully claim and carry away the person wrongfully detained. He may also peaceably enter the house of a person harboring, who was not concerned in the original abduction; but in this case, it seems that there must be a demand and refusal before a legal entry into the house of such person can be made.² Such recaption must not be effected in a riotous manner or be attended with a breach of the peace. Should the injured party enter forcibly, he may be liable to indictment for such breach of the peace; but, in the absence of injury to the property or person of the wrong-doer, the latter cannot sustain a civil action in damages for the forcible retaking of the wife, child, apprentice, or servant.³

The proper remedy where recaption of a person is resisted is by application for a writ of habeas corpus.⁴

III. RECAPTION OF PROPERTY extends to property both personal and real.

1. Recaption of Personal Property.—The rules regulating the recaption of persons apply also, for the most part, in the recaption of personal property, which is the right of the owner of goods and chattels, wrongfully taken or detained from him, lawfully to claim and retake them wherever he happens to find them;⁵ using

1. If the apprentice or servant depart from the master's service, and the master afterwards lay hold of him, yet the master may not beat or forcibly compel him against his will to return or remain in his service, but either he must complain to the justices of his departure, or he may have an action of covenant against these persons who covenanted for his faithful services. 1 Chit. Gen. Prac. 641; Dalt. J., ch. 121, pp. 281, 282; Burns J., Apprentice VI. (b); and see Rex v. Reynolds, 6 T. R. 497; Rex v. Edwards, 7 T. R. 745; Ex parte Lansdown, 5 East 38. But this does not extend to menial servants over whom the magistrate has no control.

2. When, after demand and refusal, immediate entry is made into the house of a person harboring, a plea justifying such immediate entry must state specially the facts rendering it legal. Anthony v. Haney, 8 Bing. 186; 21 E. C. L. 265; 1 Chit. Gen. Prac. 640.

3. 1 Addison on Torts (6 Am. ed.), *p. 381; Davison v. Wilson, 11 Q. B. 890; 17 L. J. Q. B. 196; Pollen v. Brewer, 7 C. B., N. S. 373; 97 E. C. L.

370; Parsons v. Brown, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 590; Sampson v. Henry, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 387; 13 Pick. (Mass.) 36; Moore v. Shenk, 3 Pa. St. 13; 45 Am. Dec. 618; Chambers v. Bedell, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 225; 37 Am. Dec. 508; Byrne v. Lowry, 19 Ga. 27.

4. See supra, this title, note 4, p. 1094.

5. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 50; 2 Addison on Torts (6th Am. ed.), *p. 517; Patrick v. Colerick, 3 M. & W. 483; Chapman v. Tumblethorp, Cro. Eliz. 329; Webb v. Beavan, 6 M. & G. 1055; Richardson v. Anthony, 12 Vt. 273; White v. Twitchell, 25 Vt. 620; 60 Am. Dec. 294; Burris v. Johnson, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 196; Allen v. Feiland, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 306; State v. Elliot, 11 N. H. 540; Sterling v. Warden, 51 N. H. 228; 12 Am. Rep. 80; Spencer v. McGowen, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 256; Newkirk v. Sabler, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 656; Chambers v. Bedell, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 225; 37 Am. Dec. 508.

The owner of a chattel wrongfully taken from him may, without subjecting himself even to nominal damages, enter upon the land of the taker for the purpose of retaking it. Chambers v.

as much force as may be necessary to take them without committing a breach of the peace.¹

Bedell, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 225; 37 Am. Dec. 508.

357 But in this recaption, care must be observed to avoid any personal injury, or any forcible entry or breach of the peace, and if either be anticipated, then the owner of the goods should replevy or resort to an action rather than subject himself to a proceeding for personal injury, or an indictment for breach of the peace. Rex v. Wilson, 8 T. R. 364; Weaver v. Bush, 8 T. R. 78; Gregory v. Hill, 8 T. R. 299.

The owner of a slave, from whom he has been wrongfully taken, may recapture him if he can do so without a breach of the peace, or a trespass on the close of the wrongful taker. Collomb v. Taylor, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 689. If such recaption is accompanied by a breach of the peace, or a trespass on the close of the wrongful taker, the owner of the slave is liable for the injury to the person or property of such taker, but not for the value of the slave. Collomb v. Taylor. 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 689.

To a count for assaulting the plaintiff, the defendants pleaded that the plaintiff had wrongfully in his possession dead rabbits belonging to the Marquis of E., and was about wrongfully and unlawfully to carry away and convert them to his own use, whereupon the defendants, as the servants of the Marquis, and by his command, requested the plaintiff to refrain from carrying away and converting the rabbits, which he refused to do, whereupon they, as the servants of the Marquis, and by his command, molliter manus imposuerunt, using no more force than was necessary to take the rabbits from him,—held a good plea. Blades v. Higgs, 10 C. B., N. S. 712; 100 E. C. L. 713.

1. 3 Steph. Com. (11th Eng. ed.) 258; Higgins v. Andrews, 2 Roll. R. 55, 56; Masters v. Pearks, 2 Roll. R. 141; Chilton v. Carrington, 15 C. B. 730; 80 E. C. L. 730; and see 17 & 18 Vict., ch. 125, as to power of the court to order the delivery up of a specific chattel.

If A has the actual possession of a chattel and B takes it from him against his will, A or his servants acting by his command, may use as much force as is necessary to defend his right and enable him to retake the chattel; and if a chattel has been seized and carried away by a person who has no color of title to it, and the owner comes and demands it, and the trespasser refuses to give it up, the owner may use force sufficient to enable him to retake his property, no unnecessary violence being used. Blades v. Higgs, 10 C. B., N. S. 713; 100 E. C. L. 713; 34 L. J., C. P. 286; 2 Addison on Torts (6th Am. ed.) * p. 517; Rex v. Mitton, 3 C. & P. 31; 14 E. C. L. 196; Davis v. Whitridge, 2 Strobh. (S. Car.) 232.

If a party be wrongfully dispossessed of his personal property, he may in general justify the retaking of it from the house and custody of the wrongdoer, even without a request to deliver it; for the violence which happens through the resistance of the wrongful taker being attributable to his own original tortious act, deprives him of any right to complain. Anonymous, 3 Salk. 169; 3 Bl. Comm. 404, 405, n. 12; Weaver v. Bush, 8 T. R. 78; Higgins v. Andrews, 2 Roll. R. 56; Masters v. Pollie, 2 Roll. R. 141; Anonymous, 2 Leo. 202; Selwyn N. P. tit. Assault and Battery.

"As the public peace is a superior consideration to any one man's private property, and as, if individuals were once allowed to use private force as a remedy for private injuries, all social justice must cease, the strong would give law to the weak, and every man would revert to a state of nature; for these reasons it is provided that this natural right of recaption shall never be exerted where such exertion must occasion strife and bodily contention, or endanger the peace of society. If, for instance, my horse is taken away and I find him in a common, a fair, or a public inn, I may lawfully seize him to my own use; but I cannot justify breaking open a private stable or entering on the grounds of a third person to take him, unless he be feloniously stolen; but must have recourse to an action at law."

"This passage from Blackstone," says Parke, B., "as to the right of recaption, applies to the case where the goods are placed on the grounds of a third party. All the old authorities say that where a party places the goods upon his own close, he gives to the owner of them an implied license to enter for the purpose of recaption. There are many authorities to that effect in Viner's Abridgment. Thus, in tit. Trespass, (1) a, it is said: 'If a man takes my goods and carries them into his own land, I may justify my entry into the said land to take my goods again; for they came there by his own act.' The reason of the judgment of the court of common pleas is, that it was not shown who placed the goods there; and that the mere fact of the defendant's goods being on the plaintiff's land is no justification of the entry unless it be shown that they came by the plaintiff's act." Patrick v. Colerick, 3 M. & W. 483, 485.

Between tenants in common and joint tenants of both personal and real property, there are cases of injuries where the only remedy is to retake the property. Per Littledale, J., Cubitt v. Porter, 8 B. & C. 268; 15 E. C. L. 215; Heath v. Hubbard, 4 East 117; Co. Litt. 200a; Martyn v. Knowllys, 8 T. R. 145.

The purchaser of a specific chattel, who has paid for, or tendered the price of, the same, may take it with force, in case the vendor or a third person should refuse to deliver it; but in general, by a contract to sell or to make and deliver an article, which a vendor might satisfy by delivering any article of the same description and value, no property passes in any specific article until actually set apart or marked, and consequently the purchaser, although he may have paid the full price, cannot take the article though making for him, or any one of like value. Mucklow v. Manges, 1 Taunt. 218; White v. Wilket, 5 Taunt. 176; 1 E. C. L. 64; Sheple v. Davis, 5 Taunt. 617; 1 E. C. L. 211; Busk v. Davis, 2 M. & S. 397; Zagury v. Funnell, 2 Campb. 240; Woods & Russell, 5 B. & Ald. 942; 7 E. C. L. 10.

Excise officers went with a search warrant, and, at the desire of the party, gave it to him for his perusal, when he refused to return it. Held, that they had a right to take it from him, and even to coerce his person to obtain the possession of it, provided they used no more violence than was necessary. Rex v. Milton, 3 C. & P. 31, 14 E. C. L. 196.

The rescission of an exchange of horses on terms that each may have his own again by giving back what he has received, is complete by the act of tender; after which a forcible recaption, though it may subject the party to an action of trespass, will not preclude him from setting up his original title in an action for the property. Moore v. Shenk, 3 Pa. St. 13; 45 Am. Dec. 618.

The owner of a horse, which another's servant has harnessed in his team, and is driving violently away, may stop the team, using no more force than necessary and retake his horse. Hite v. Long, 6 Rand. (Va.) 457; 18 Am. Dec. 719.

In an action of trespass for the forcible taking of a cow, it appeared that the plaintiff had sold the cow, and the defendant purchased the animal from the vendee, and at the time of the taking she was in the possession of a third party, and the plaintiff told the defendant he had sold her and that he might take her. Held, there was no trespass, although the defendant in taking his property, used such violence as amounted to a breach of the peace. Mills v. Wooters, 59 Ill. 234.

It is not a sufficient plea to an action for assault and battery on the plaintiff in his dwelling-house, that the defendant was the owner of the dwelling-house, and that the possession was unlawfully withheld from him, and that he used no more force than was necessary to overcome the plaintiff's resistance. The law does not allow any one to break the peace and forcibly to redress his private wrongs. He may make use of force to defend his lawful possession; but being dispossessed, he has no right to recover possession by force and a breach of the peace. This is no defense to a personal action. Sampson v. Henry, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 387; 13 Pick. (Mass.) 36; Hyatt v. Wood, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 239; Beecher v. Parmelee, 9 Ver. 356; Andre v. Johnson, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 375. And see Ellis v. Paige, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 43; Moore v. Boyd, 24 Me. 247.

In an action for assault the defendant cannot justify on the ground that he had an irrevocable license to enter upon the plaintiff's land for the purpose of removing his personal property therefrom, and that the plaintiff withstood his entry. Churchill v. Hulbert, 110 Mass. 42; 14 Am. Rep. 578; Sampson v. Henry, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 36; Comm. v. Haley, 4 Allen (Mass.) 318.

A mere right of property will not justify an assault and battery to regain possession wrongfully withheld. Bliss v. Johnson, 73 N. Y. 529; nor where the title is disputed. Harris v. Marco, 16 S. Car. 575.

A person, therefore, who has been

The right of retaking personal property may be affected, first, by the condition to which the goods have been reduced by the wrongdoer; and, second, by their whereabouts.

a. RECAPTION AS AFFECTED BY CONDITION OF GOODS.—In the first case, the original form or condition of the goods may be so changed by admixture with goods of his own, or another person, that the right of recaption will operate to deprive the tortfeasor not only of the goods wrongfully taken from another, but of his own also. Or by accession and specification, the right to retake the specific chattel may be modified or defeated entirely, and the owner left to his remedy in damages for its value.¹

(1) Recaption as Affected by Admixture.—The right of recaption may, when the property of a person is inextricably confused by the wrongdoer with that of his own, be so exercised as to regain not only his own property but that of the wrongdoer also.²

robbed is entitled to retake the stolen property wherever he can find it, provided the person in possession of it has not acquired title to it by purchase in market overt, without notice of the robbery. He is not justified in committing an assault, or a breach of the peace, in order to possess himself of his property unless he finds it in the hands of the thief or the felonious receiver; but he must watch his opportunity for recovering possession, and, if he is unable peaceably to retake it, he must pursue his remedy by writ of restitution or by action. If there has been no alteration of the right of property in the things stolen, by sale in market overt, he may at once demand it from the person in possession of it; and, if the latter refuses to deliver it up to him on demand, he may bring his action. 2 Addison on Torts (6 Am. ed.) 541.

An assault and battery cannot be justified, excused, or extenuated, by evidence showing that the person assaulted had possession of the defendant's horse, which had been stolen, and refused to surrender it on demand. Hendrix v. State, 50 Ala. 148.

In some cases the entry will be excused by necessity. As if my tree be blown down and fall on the land of my neighbor, I may go and take it away. Bro. Tres., pl. 213. And the same rule prevails where fruit falls on the land of another. Millen v. Fawdry, Latch. 120. But if the owner of a tree cut the lopings so that they fall on another's land, he cannot be excused for entering to take them away, on the ground of necessity, because he might have prevented it. Bac. Abr., tit. Trespass F;

Newkirk v. Sabler, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 655.

In trespass for taking a chattel, the plaintiff may recover both the value of the property and damages for the violence used. Therefore, where the plaintiff's team was stopped by the defendant and a horse taken therefrom, it was held that the plaintiff could not bring trover for the horse taken and trespass for stopping the team and delaying his journey, because it was all one act. Hite v. Long, 6 Rand. (Va.) 457; 18 Am. Dec. 720.

1. See ACCESSION, CONFUSION OF GOODS, vol. 1, p. 50; Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 55; 3 Bl. Comm. (Searswood's ed.), *p. 404, and note 10.

2. "For example, if one purposely or by negligence take a hundred bushels of his neighbor's wheat and commingle it with a hundred bushels of his own barley, so that a separation of the two becomes practically impossible, the law permits the owner of the wheat in retaking it, to take that which is inseparably commingled with it, since in no other way can he reclaim his own property. The inextricable confusion of his goods with the goods of another gives him this right, provided the intermixture was wrongful. But at his option he may refuse the whole and sue for the value of what has been taken from him.

"Suppose, however, that the grain, instead of being different in kind, had all been wheat of the same kind and quality owned severally by the two. In that case, as in the other, separation would have been impossible; but if each were to take from the mass a quantity equal to what he owned when

The inextricable confusion of his goods with those of another gives the latter this right, provided the intermixture was wrongful.¹ But it is only of necessity that the wrong-doer is to be deprived of his own property also, and when practical justice can in no other way be attained. The law, therefore, in these cases does justice between the parties as nearly as under the circumstances is practicable by dividing between them the commingled mass according to their respective proportions.² It is sufficient if the the commingling took place he would receive not exactly his own, yet that which, for all practical purposes, is the equivalent. It would be equal in value, it could be used for the same purposes, and to the senses no difference would be perceptible. To give him back an equal quantity is therefore to do him justice, unless his having been deprived of it for the time has caused him a special injury, in which case he would be entitled to recover damages for that injury." Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 53; 2 Kent's Comm. *pp. 364, 365; Weil v. Silverstone, 6 Bush (Ky.) 698; Loomis v. Greene, 7 Me. 386; Wingate v. Smith, 20 Me. 287; Allen v. Adams, 44 Ala. 609; Hart v. Ten Eyck, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 62; Willard v. Rice, 11 Met. (Mass.) 493; 45 Am. Dec. 226; Beach v. Schmultz, 20 Ill. 185; Jenkins v. Steanka, 19 Wis. 126; 88 Am. Dec. 675.

But the general rule that governs cases of intermixture does not apply where the goods intermingled remain capable of identification, nor where they are of the same quality and value, as where guineas are mingled or grain of the same quality. Nor does the rule apply where the intermixture is by mistake or accidental, or even intentional, if it was not wrongful. The Idaho, 93 U. S. 575; Thome v. Colton, 27 Iowa 425.

There is no forfeiture in case of a fraudulent intermixture, when the goods intermixed are of equal value. Lupton v. White, 15 Ves. 432; Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 242. If of unequal value the application of the rule is more difficult. Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298.

1. But at his option he may refuse the whole and sue for the value of what has been taken from him. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 53. Even if the commingling were malicious or fraudulent, a rule of law which would take from the wrong-doer the whole, when to restore to the other would do him full justice, would be a rule wholly out of harmony with the general rules of civil remedy, not only because it would award to one party a redress beyond his loss, but also because it would compel the other to pay not damages but a penalty. The infliction of penalties by way of civil remedy is not favored in the law. Sanders v. Pope, 12 Ves. 282; Grigg v. Landis, 21 N. J. Eq. 494.

But the authorities agree, "that if a man artfully and wrongfully mixes his own goods with those of another owner, so as to render them undistinguishable, he will not be entitled to his proportion or any part, of the property, certainly not unless the goods of both owners are of the same quality and value. Such intermixture is a fraud. And so if the wrongdoer confounds his own goods with goods which he expects may belong to another and does this with intent to mislead that other and embarrass him in obtaining his right the effect must be the same." The Idaho, 93 U. S. 575; Jewett v. Dringer, 30 N. J. Eq. 291.

And so where a person buys a stock of goods with fraudulent intent as against the vendor's creditors, and then purposely or negligently mingles other goods with them, he cannot recover against an officer who levies upon all the goods as the property of the fraudulent vendor. Stearns v. Herrick, 132 Mass. 114. And in such case, if the purchaser refuse to furnish the sheriff, seeking to levy an execution on them as the property of the seller, the information necessary to distinguish and separate the goods, he cannot claim any advantage from the confusion. Lehman v. Kelly, 68 Ala. 192.

2. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 54; Spence v. Union M. Ins. Co., L. R., 3 C. P. 427; Lupton v. White, 15 Ves. 432; Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298; Robinson v. Holt, 39 N. H. 557; 75 Am. Dec. 223; Moore v. Bowman, 47 N. H. 494; Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237; Bryant v.

commingled mass is practically the same as the separate constituents.¹

(2) Recaption as Affected by Accession.—Although it is a general rule that the owner of property wrongfully taken from him may retake it, either in its original, or a modified, or even a totally different form, as long as he can trace and identify his own, yet there are cases in which he is not thus permitted to reclaim his property even though the identification be complete. As for example where a timber or a stone belonging to one person is taken by another and so built into the latter's house that its removal would occasion damage to the building out of all proportion to the value of the timber or stone. In such case the timber or stone becomes, by accession, a part of the realty, and the law would not allow the original owner to retake it, but would leave him to his remedy in the recovery of damages.²

(3) Recaption as Affected by Specification.—It is a general rule that, where a wilful trespasser takes the property of another and by his own labor changes it in form or substance, thereby converting it into a new species, he acquires no title to the property so as to defeat the right of the original owner to retake it.³

Ware, 30 Me. 295; Holbrook v. Hyde, 1 Vt. 286; Willard v. Rice, 11 Met. (Mass.) 493; 45 Am. Dec. 226; Adams v. Myers, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 306; Wilkinson v. Stewart, 85 Pa. St. 255; Chandler v. DeGraff, 25 Minn. 88; Stone v. Qual, 36 Minn. 46.

1. The commingled mass need not be exactly the same; it is sufficient that it is substantially or practically the same with the separate parcels; so that the separation of that which is equivalent in measure or quantity will give to the party whose property has been wrongfully taken that which is, in kind and value, a substantial equivalent. The rule has been applied to the case of quantities of sawlogs belonging to different parties, but commingled together. And it is held that to give the party whose logs are lost the option of taking from the mass an equivalent in quantity and quality, or of demanding the value, is all that in justice he can require. Ryder v. Hathaway, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 298; Stephenson v. Little, 10 Mich. 433; Hesseltine v. Stockwell, 30 Me. 237; Smith v. Morrill, 56 Me. 566; Jenkins v. Steanka, 19 Wis. 126; 88 Am. Dec. 675; M'Donald v. Lane, 7 Can. S. C. R. 462.

Confusion or commixture of goods in the legal sense does not, however, take place when logs plainly marked with certain initials are mingled in a boom with other logs not so marked.

Goff v. Brainerd, 58 Vt. 468. The owners of logs so intermingled become tenants in common of the mass when mingled, either by consent, Adams v. Meyers, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 306; Low v. Martin, 18 Ill. 286; Hance v. Tittabawassee Boom Co., 70 Mich. 227; or by accident, Moore v. Erie R. Co., 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 39.

Where the only practical method of conducting the pork-packing business is to render to each bailor a quantity of the "product" equivalent in quality and kind to the hogs stored, not the animals in specie, the bailee may legally act according to such custom or method. Morningstar v. Cunningham, 110 Ind. 328; 59 Am. Rep. 211.

2. Cooley on Torts (2 ed.) p. 55; Worth v. Northam, 4 Ired. (N. Car.) 102, 104; Strubbe v. Cincinnati R. Co., 78 Ky. 485; and see ACCESSION—CONFUSION OF GOODS, vol. 1, p. 50, for a great variety of cases.

White v. Twitchell, 25 Vt. 620; 60 Am. Dec. 294. Where one person, in constructing a dock, took stone from the land of another without right, the latter upon lawfully removing the dock, may retake and appropriate the stone to his own use. Larson v. Furlong, 63 Wis. 323.

3. ACCESSION — CONFUSION OF GOODS, vol. 1, p. 52, et seq.; 2 Bl. Comm. (Sharwood's ed.), *p. 404 and notes; and see the able and

But where the taking of another's property was accidental, or unintentional through mistake of fact, and labor and expense has in good faith been bestowed upon such property so that it is thereby converted into something substantially different, or its identity is entirely lost, and the value of the original chattel is insignificant as compared with the value of the new product,¹ the title to the property in its converted form passes to the person by whose labor in good faith the change has been wrought—the original owner being permitted to recover the value of the article as it was before the conversion.² Property thus acquired exhaustive brief of Nicholas Hill, Jr., in Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 380; 50 Am. Dec. 307.

1. This qualification of the general rule defining the owner's right of recaption has been objected to on the ground of the difficulty in applying a rule where the difference in the value of the property from its unimproved to its improved condition is to determine the right of recovery. Strubbee v. Cincinnati R. Co., 78 Ky. 485.

2. This is thoroughly equitable doctrine; and its aim is so to adjust the rights of the parties as to save both, if possible, or as nearly as possible, from any loss. But where the identity of the article is susceptible of being traced, the idea of a change in the property is never admitted, unless the value of that which has been expended upon it is sufficiently great, as compared with the original value, to render the injustice of permitting its appropriation by the original owner so gross and palpable as to be apparent at first blush. Perhaps no case has gone further than Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311; 7 Am. Rep. 653, in which it was held that one who, by unintentional trespass, had taken from the land of another, young trees of the value of twenty-five dollars, and converted them into hoops worth seven hundred dollars, had thereby made them his own, though the identity of trees and hoops was perfectly capable of being traced and established. Isle Royale Min. Co. v. Hertin, 37 Mich. 336; 26 Am. Rep. 520. In this case, one of the parties by a mistake as to the boundary of his land entered upon the land adjoining, cut the timber, and made it into cord-wood, and afterwards removed it and piled it on the banks of Portage Lake; it was held, that the owner was entitled to seize and hold it against any claim by an unintentional trespasser. The wood on the bank of the lake was worth two dollars and eighty-seven cents per cord, and the value of the labor expended by the trespasser in cutting and placing it there, was one dollar and eighty-seven cents. The court by Cooley, C. J., said: "There is no such disparity in value between the standing trees and the cord-wood as was found to exist between the trees and hoops in Wetherbee v. Green, 22 Mich. 311, 7 Am. Rep. 653. The trees are not only susceptible of being traced and identified in the wood, but the difference in value between the two is not so great but that it is conceivable the owner may have preferred the trees standing to the wood cut. The cord-wood has a higher market value, but the owner may have chosen not to cut it, expecting to make some other use of the trees than for fuel, or anticipating a considerable rise in value if they were allowed to grow. It cannot be assumed as a rule that a man prefers his trees cut into cord-wood rather than left standing, and if his right to leave them uncut is interfered with, even by mistake, it is manifestly just that the consequences should fall upon the person committing the mistake and not upon him."

Where a quantity of corn was taken from the owner by a willful trespasser and converted into whisky, it was held that the property was not changed and that the whisky belonged to the owner of the original material. Silsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379, 53 Am. Dec. 307.

If a chattel wrongfully taken retains its original form and substance, or may be reduced to its original materials, it belongs to the original owner; and this rule it seems, holds against an innocent purchaser from the wrongdoer, without regard to the increased value bestowed by him upon the chattel. (Bronson, C. J. and Harris J., dissenting.) Silsbury is said to be by specification, as where grapes are converted into wine, or timber into shingles or railroad ties.¹

b. RECAPTION AS AFFECTED BY THE WHEREABOUTS OF GOODS.—In the second case, the place or whereabouts of a chattel, and the different circumstances under which it may be in the possession or on the lands of another, and the persons responsible for its being there, must be borne in mind in order to arrive at a correct understanding of the right of retaking personal property. Whether, for example, a chattel be on the land or in the possession of the wrongdoer, or of an innocent third party, and whether there with or without the consent of such persons, or by the negligence of the party seeking to retake, are all circumstances which may modify the owner's right of entry for recaption, or defeat it entirely, and leave him either to his action in damages for its value, or his possessory action of detinue, trover, or replevin.²

(1) General Rule as to Entry for Recaption.—It may be laid down as a general proposition, that where the property of one person is on the land of another, with either the express or implied consent of the latter, the former may enter peaceably to remove it.³ Such entry should, however, be subject to this

v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 379, 53 Am. Dec. 307.

If the chattel be converted by an innocent purchaser or holder into a thing of a different species, as where wheat is made into bread, olives into oil, or grapes into wine, the original owner cannot reclaim it. But there is no such distinction in favor of a wilful wrongdoer. He can acquire no property in the goods of another by any change wrought in them by his labor or skill, however great the change may be, provided it can be proved that the improved article was made from the original material. And there is no difference between the civil and the common law in this respect. Sillsbury v. McCoon, 3 N. Y. 380, 53 Am. Dec. 307.

1. For definition, see ACCESSION—CONFUSION OF GOODS, vol. 1, p. 51.

2. ACCESSION—CONFUSION OF GOODS, vol. 1, p. 50; Cooley on Torts, (2d ed.) *50.

3. See supra, this title, Recaption of Persons, note 2, p. 1095. Sterling v. Warden, 51 N. H. 217; 12 Am. Rep. 80; White v. Elwell, 48 Me. 360; 77 Am. Dec. 231; Nettleton v. Sikes, 8 Met. (Mass.) 34; Schoonover v. Irwin, 58 Ind. 287.

One whose goods are stolen, or otherwise taken from him, may pursue and retake them wherever they may be found. No one can deprive him of this right, by wrongfully placing them upon his own close. Patrick v. Colerick, 3 M. & W. 483; Webb v. Beavan, 6 M. & G. 1055, and note; Com. Dig. Trespass D, citing Rol. Abr. 565, l. 54; Bac. Abr. Trespass, F 1.

But if they are deposited upon the land of another who is not a participant in the wrongful taking, the owner cannot enter upon his land to retake them, unless in case of theft, and fresh pursuit. 20 Vin. Abr. 506, Trespass H, a. 2, pl. 4, 5. So from the necessity of the case, one whose cattle escape upon the land of another may follow and drive them back, without being a trespasser, unless the escape was itself a trespass. Com. Dig. Trespass D, citing 2 Rol. Abr. 565, l. 35; and so if there is no evidence of how they came there. Richardson v. Anthony, 12 Vt. 273.

An executor or administrator may enter the house or land of the heir, to remove the personal estate of the deceased, after demand, and ought to remove the same within a reasonable time, or it may be distrained damage feasant. 1 Chit. Gen. Prac. 512, 643; Went. Off. (14th ed.) Ex. 81, 202; Stodden v. Harvey, Cro. J. 204; Graysbrook v. Fox, 1 Plowd. 280.

restriction: That notice should be given of the intention to do so, whenever, under the circumstances, it can reasonably be supposed that notice to the landowner may be important for the protection of his own rights. The time and the circumstances also ought to be suitable; one should not enter his neighbor's house unannounced, or in the night time, to take away an article left there by permission; nor, if the chattel is under lock, break open doors or fastenings, without first making demand for its restoration.¹

(2) Recaption from Land of Innocent Receiver from Tortfeasor.—The owner may enter to retake his goods from the possession of one who, though not himself purposely a wrongdoer, has received them from one whose possession was tortious, the tortfeasor being incapable of conferring any better right than he himself had.²

(3) Right of Entry on Land of Another for Recaption of Goods Taken by Third Person.—And where a third party shall take the chattels of one and place them upon the land of another, without the consent or co-operation of either, though the proprietor of the land might, perhaps, forbid the entry of the owner of the chattels to remove them, and hold him a trespasser should he persist in doing so, yet in that case he would on demand be obliged to

A person entitled to the immediate possession of property located upon the premises of another, without the fault of the party entitled to the possession of such property, may enter those premises after demand, without legal process, against the consent of the party in possession, and by force, and remove the property, provided no more force is employed than becomes necessary by the resistance interposed by the other party to prevent the entry and removal of the property. Sterling v. Warden, 51 N. H. 217, 19 Am. Rep. 80.

Where personal property is left in possession of a third person the owner may repossess himself of such property, though it be taken from such third person by virtue of a writ of replevin; and trespass cannot be maintained against him by the plaintiff in replevin. Spencer v. McGowen, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 256.

One whose property is upon the premises of another has a right peaceably to enter and take it. That he entered with an officer who had a writ of replevin to take and deliver the property did not make it a trespass whether the writ was returned or not. No license to enter in such case is necessary, other than a failure to prohibit the entry. Allen v. Feland, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 308.

1. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 52, Blades v. Higgs, 10 C. B., N. S. 713; 100 E. C. L. 713; Sterling v. Warden, 51 N. H. 217, 12 Am. Rep. 80; Drury v. Hervey, 126 Mass. 519.

The fact that A has personal property within the inclosure of B does not authorize A to enter the inclosure of B for the purpose of taking his property. He should demand it of the owner of the land, and if he refused him permission to take it, such refusal would be evidence of a conversion, for which an action of trover would lie. Roach v. Damron, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 425, Parker v. Staniland, 11 East 362.

2. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 50; McLeod v. Jones, 105 Mass. 405; 7 Am. Rep. 539; Trudo v. Anderson, 10 Mich. 357; 81 Am. Dec. 795; Parish v. Morey, 40 Mich. 417.

Where one's property is disposed of without authority, by the person having it in charge, the owner may bring replevin therefor without a previous demand; and he may do this notwithstanding the property is in the hands of one who has bought in good faith, and without notice of the title of the real owner. Trudo v. Anderson, 10 Mich. 358.

restore the chattels, and the owner might, on his refusal, proceed by replevin to take them ¹

(4) Entry by Tenant—Tenants in Common—Implied License.—But where the owner of a chattel is himself a wrongdoer in leaving his property upon the land of another, as a tenant after the expiration of his term, he must take the consequences of his wrongful act, and cannot by an unlawful entry acquire a right to make a lawful one.²

1. In Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), note 2, *p. 52, the intimation made by Tindal, C. J., in Anthony v. Haney, 8 Bing. 187, 21 E. C. L. 265, that if the occupant of the freehold refused to deliver up the property, the owner might enter and take it, subject to the payment of any damages he might commit, is thus commented on: "But if he were liable in damages for the entry, it must be because the entry is unlawful; and in that case it might be resisted. There can be no such absurdity as a right of entry and a co-existent right to resist entry."

Chambers v. Bedell, 2 W. & S. (Pa.) 225, 37 Am. Dec. 508, seems to recognize the right of the owner, after demand and refusal, to enter and take away his property, if he can do so peaceably, repairing, however, any damage which may be occasioned by his entry. But in Roach v. Damron, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 425, it is said that under such circumstances a refusal would be evidence of conversion for which an action of trover would lie.

The owner of land in removing chattels wrongfully placed thereon must not unreasonably injure the wrongdoer. Burnham v. Jenness, 54 Vt. 272.

2. Anthony v. Haney, 8 Bing. 187; 21 E. C. L. 265; Roach v. Damron, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 425; Blake v. Jerome, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 406; Heermance v. Vernoy, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 5; Crocker v. Carson, 33 Me. 436; Chess v. Kelly, 3 Blackf. (Ind.) 438.

One of two tenants in common of a chattel has no right to break into the premises of the other to obtain it. Hernndon v. Bartlett, 4 Port. (Ala.) 481; Crocker v. Carson, 33 Me. 436. Also Chase v. Jefferson, 1 Houst. (Tex.) 257; Allen v. Feland, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 306; Newkirk v. Sabler, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 656.

But where the occupier has been strictly a tenant at will, or sufferance, and another person has determined his right to continue in possession, it should seem that he would not be a trespasser if he enter afterwards to remove his goods and continue only a reasonable time for that purpose. Doe v. M'Kaeg, 10 B. & C. 721; 21 E. C. L. 154.

Landlord and tenant are tenants in common of crops raised on shares, until a division is made. The tenant has a right after he has quit the possession, to a reasonable ingress upon the land, to remove his goods and utensils. Trespass does not lie against him by the landlord, though he carries away the crops of which they are cotenants. The entry to take away the goods was justifiable in itself, but when accompanied by violence to the owner of property, it became trespass from the first, and the action maintainable for all damage resulting from the tort to the real estate, and for the removal of the common property. Daniels v. Brown, 34 N. H. 454; 69 Am. Dec. 505.

A right or license to enter upon lands results, or may be inferred, from the contracts of the parties in relation to personalty. Permission to keep, or the right to have one's personal property upon the land of another, involves the right to enter for its removal. Doty v. Gorham, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 487; 16 Am. Dec. 417; White v. Elwell, 48 Me. 360; 77 Am. Dec. 231.

One who cuts the hay of another and puts it into the latter's barn under a verbal agreement by which the hay is to be divided, and one-half assigned to him for his services, has the rights of a tenant at will, and may enter within a reasonable time to remove the hay, and the owner could not revoke the license so as to prevent it. In such case, if the owner forbids the tenant entering to take away the hay, he may do it forcibly, at a reasonable time, and in a reasonable manner, doing no more injury than reasonably necessary to obtain and carry away his hay. White v. Hutchinson, 48 Me. 360.

(5) Entry by Successor in Government Office upon Land of Predecessor, to Recover Government Property.—Where one, upon his own land, has been rightfully in possession of property, but his right has terminated and been acquired by another, the latter may lawfully enter and remove such property; as in the case of a successor, in an office under the government, who may justify entering upon the premises of his predecessor to remove the public property there remaining.¹

(6) License to Enter Implied in Sale of Goods Without Delivery—Mortgaged Goods.—Where one sells goods which are in his present possession, and nothing in the contract of sale indicates that they are to be delivered elsewhere, the sale itself is an implied license to enter and take the goods away; and such license thus coupled with an interest cannot be revoked.² But, in the case of

1. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.) *p. 51; Sterling v. Warden, 52 N. H. 197; 12 Am. Rep. 80. See Burridge v. Nicholetts, 6 H. & N. 383.

Where a solicitor who was also the registrar of a county court, receiving a yearly sum from the treasury for the portion of his offices used for county court purposes, was served with a notice from the treasurer of the county court of his intention to audit the registrar's books on a Saturday, when by a rule of such court the office closed at one o'clock; and the treasurer, on going to the registrar's office after one o'clock, finding it locked, broke the locks of an inner door and a cupboard in which the books were kept, and, having taken away and audited, returned them to the office, it was held in an action of trespass against him by the registrar, that the treasurer was justified in so doing under the county court acts. Burridge v. Nicholetts, 6 H. & N. 383.

"This case," says Pollock, C. B., "goes beyond the question of a right to a personal chattel, to which the owner wishes to get access; it is the case of a superior officer desiring to have access to books which it was the duty of the inferior officer to produce for his inspection." Martin, B.: "It is true that he came to the plaintiff's office after one o'clock on Saturday, but the rule as to closing on that day applies to the public and not to the officers of the court." Burridge v. Nicholetts, 6 H. & N. 383.

2. Cooley on Torts (2 ed.), *p. 51; Wood v. Manley, 11 Ad. & El. 34, 39 E. C. L. 19; Nettleton v. Sikes, 8 Met. (Mass.) 34; Giles v. Simonds, 15 Gray (Mass.) 441; 77 Am. Dec. 373; Miller v. State, 39 Ind. 267; Drake v. Wells, 11

Allen (Mass.) 141; McNeal v. Emerson, 15 Gray (Mass.) 384.

The doctrine together with the restrictions on its application are thus stated by the court, by Wells, J., in McLeod v. Jones, 105 Mass. 406; 7 Am. Rep. 539. "A license is implied because it is necessary to carry the sale into complete effect, and is therefore presumed to have been in contemplation by the parties. It forms part of the contract of sale. The seller cannot deprive the purchaser of his property or drive him to an action for its recovery, by withdrawing his implied permission to come and take it. This proposition does not apply, of course, to a case where a severance from the realty is necessary to convert the subject of the sale into personalty, and the revocation is made before such severance. But there is no such inference to be drawn when the property at the time of the sale, is not upon the seller's premises, or when by the terms of the contract, it is to be delivered elsewhere. And when there is nothing executory or incomplete between the parties in respect to the property and there is no relation of contract between them respecting it, except what results from the facts of legal ownership in one and possession in the other, no inference of a license to enter upon lands, for the recovery of the property can be drawn from that relation alone." 20 Vin. Abr. tit. Trespass H., a. 2 Pl. 18, p. 508; Williams v. Morris, 8 M. & W. 488; Anthony v. Haney, 8 Bing. 186; 21 E. C. L. 265.

Goods which were upon plaintiff's land were sold to the defendant; by the conditions of sale, to which plaintiff mortgaged goods, in the absence of license from the mortgagor to enter and take the mortgaged goods, such entry by the mortgagee will be a trespass.¹

(7) Entry of Vendor to Retake Goods Fraudulently Purchased.—The vendor of property fraudulently purchased may, by peaceable entry, reclaim the same from the fraudulent purchaser, who becomes a wrongdoer in respect to the possession as soon as the sale is rescinded for the fraud.²

was a party, the buyer was allowed to enter and take the goods. Held that, after the sale, plaintiff could not countermand the license. And defendant having pleaded leave and license and a peaceable entry to take, to which plaintiff replied de injuria, held that defendant was entitled to the verdict though it appeared that plaintiff had, between the sale and the entry, locked the gates and forbidden defendant to enter, and defendant had broken down the gates and entered to take the goods. Wood v. Manley, 11 Ad. & El. 34; 39 E. C. L. 19.

1. The plaintiff gave a bill of sale and a mortgage of furniture in his dwelling house to the defendant, but the furniture remained in plaintiff's custody, and he removed it to another dwelling house, and sometime afterwards went away, leaving the house locked with the furniture in it; and the defendant unlocked and entered the house and took away the furniture. Held, that in the absence of proof of any license from the plaintiff, express or implied, the entry was a trespass, although the defendant had reasonable cause to believe that the plaintiff did not mean to return. McLeod v. Jones, 105 Mass. 403; 7 Am. Rep. 539.

Under a power contained in a chattel mortgage authorizing the mortgagee, on default, to take possession of the mortgaged property without process of law, and to sell the same, the mortgagee has the right, after default, to enter upon the premises of the mortgagor, and, without his consent and against his will, to take possession of the property, provided he does so peaceably and without violence or other breach of the public peace; and such taking, being the exercise of a right, will not constitute him a trespasser. (Stone, J., dissenting.) Street v. Sinclair, 71 Ala. 110.

2. Wheelden v. Lowell, 50 Me. 499. See Rea v. Sheward, 2 M. & W. 426.

Where a pretended purchaser's conduct, in wrongfully obtaining goods under color of a contract, was so fraudulent as to avoid the contract, the vendor may retake or even rescue them by any stratagem, even when taken and in the hands of the sheriff under an execution at the suit of a creditor against the fraudulent purchaser. Noble v. Adams, 7 Taunt. 59; 2 E. C. L. 25; Earl of Bristol v. Wilsmore, 1 B. & C. 514; 8 E. C. L. 218; Ferguson v. Carrington, 9 B. & C. 59; 17 E. C. L. 330; Stephenson v. Hart, 4 Bing. 476, 482; 15 E. C. L. 47; 1 Chit. Gen. Prac. 130, 131.

If a party, by false and fraudulent misrepresentations, obtains the money of any other, the party deprived may forcibly reclaim possession without being guilty of a violation of the law. Anderson v. State (Tenn. 1875), 2 Cent. L. J. 159.

The purchaser of a chattel, such as growing corn, sold under an execution, may enter and remove the crop purchased, although the same is in possession of a third party, under an arrangement with the judgment debtor, made for the purpose of defrauding the latter's creditors. Thompson v. Craigmyle, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 391; 41 Am. Dec. 240; Brittain v. McKay, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 265; 35 Am. Dec. 738; Heard v. Fairbanks, 5 Met. (Mass.) 111; 38 Am. Dec. 394.

A person purchasing property such as a stove by means of false and fraudulent representations as to his solvency and means of paying therefor, acquires no right, either of property or possession, and the vendor will be justified in pursuing him and retaking the property, using no more force than is necessary to accomplish this object, and the purchaser cannot maintain an action against him for assault and battery. If in resisting the retaking the property by the vendor, the purchaser draws his knife, he becomes the aggressor, and the vendor will be justified in using such additional force as will be necessary to accomplish

(8) Recaption as Applied to Stoppage of Goods in Transitu.—Recaption as applied to stoppage in transitu confines the vendor's right to retake such unpaid-for goods as may be in transit, or in the hands of his agent, shipper, carrier, or wharfinger, with the object and for the purpose of delivery to the vendee.¹

2. Recaption of Real Property.—As for injuries to the possession of personal property a remedy by recaption is in the party himself, so a similar remedy for the redress of injuries to the possession of real property is given to the owner of lands by entry thereon when another person has wrongfully deprived him of the possession thereof.²

the obtaining the property. Hogeden v. Hubbard, 18 Vt. 504; 46 Am. Dec. 167.

A purchased goods upon credit, fraudulently intending at the time of the contract not to pay for them. B, the vendor, brought assumpsit for the goods sold, before the time of the credit expired. Held, that this action was not maintainable, though the vendor might have treated the contract as a nullity, and brought trover immediately to recover the value of the goods. Ferguson v. Carrington, 9 B. & C. 59; 17 E. C. L. 330.

1. And also where goods have been purchased without such fraud, and before they reach their destination and come into the hands of the purchaser, the discovery is made that he is insolvent, they may be stopped in transitu by any means, short of force. Lickbarrow v. Mason, 2 T. R. 63; In re Constantia, 6 Robinson Rep. 324; Hawes v. Watson, 2 B. & C. 546; 9 E. C. L. 170. Though a part delivery will in general defeat the right to stop the residue. Slubey v. Heyward, 2 H. Bl. 504; Scott v. Godwin, 1 B. & P. 69; Harvey v. Cooke, 6 East 227; Crawshay v. Eades, 1 B. & C. 181; 8 E. C. L. 78. See generally STOPPAGE IN TRANSITU.

Although a factor could not formerly pledge goods delivered to him to sell, yet if the purchaser of goods, having received the bill of lading, pledged it bona fide to a third person as a security for money advanced, the vendor's right of stoppage in transitu was determined; and although the money advanced might not be equal to the value of the goods, yet the pawnee, holding the bill of lading, might in an action of trover against the vendor, who had attempted to stop the goods in transitu, recover their full value. And so the taking of a bill or note which is still outstanding in the hands of a third person, will preclude the vendor from insisting on his lien. Bunney v. Poyntz, 1 N. & M. 229.

A court of equity will not lend its aid to the stoppage of goods in transitu: therefore when a person can do so legally he should immediately exercise the right to avoid loss. Goodhart v. Lowe, 2 Jac. & W. 349.

2. ENTRY, WRIT OF, vol. 6, p. 651; 3 Bl. Comm. (Sharswood's ed.), *p. 4; 3 Steph. Comm. (11 Eng. ed.), *p. 259; Taunton v. Costar, 7 T. R. 431; Argent v. Durrant, 8 T. R. 403; Turner v. Meymott, 1 Bing. 158; 8 E. C. L. 450; Barnes v. Dean, 5 Watts. (Pa.) 543; 30 Am. Dec. 346; Thompson v. Craigmyle, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 391; 41 Am. Dec. 240; Sharon v. Wooldrick, 18 Minn. 355.

Such notorious act of ownership is equivalent to a feudal investiture by the lord. 3 Steph. Comm. (11 Eng. ed.) p. 259.

Or he may enter on any part of the property, in the name of the whole; but if the estate lies in different counties, he must make different entries; for the notoriety of such entry or claim to the pares or freeholders of Westmoreland is not any notoriety to the pares of, or freeholders of, Sussex. Co. Litt. 252b; 3 Bl. Comm. *p. 175.

Also if there be two disseisors, the party disseised must make his entry on both; or if one disseisor has conveyed the lands with livery to two distinct feoffees, entry must be made on both. Co. Litt. 252; for, as their seisin is distinct, so also must be the act which divests that seisin. But no entry can in the nature of things be made on hereditaments incorporeal. 3 Bl. Comm. *p. 206.

The right of entry may exist in the owner either where another has gone into possession without right,¹ or where one having had an estate in or at least lawful possession of the lands has had his right terminated by operation of law or by act of the owner.²

The party entitled to this remedy must exercise it in a peaceable manner, using as much force as may be necessary without committing a breach of the peace.³

So the landlord is entitled to and may seize the growing crops as his own, unless they are strictly emblements, or were sown under a custom to have the away-going crop. Davies v. Connop, 1 Price R. 55; Doe v. Witherwich, 3 Bing. 11; 11 E. C. L. 8.

And a mortgagee may thus take possession from the mortgagor, or any person who became tenant after the mortgage, and who has not been acknowledged by him. Doe v. Maisey, 8 B. & C. 767; 15 E. C. L. 335.

And a person who has recovered in ejectment may, without any writ, thus take possession. Badger v. Floid, 12 Mod. 398; Taylor v. Horde, 1 Burr. 60; Withers v. Harris, 2 Ld. Raym. 806.

At common law, "if a man be dispossessed of any lands or tenements, he may, if he cannot prevail by fair means, legally regain the possession thereof by force, unless he were put to the necessity of bringing his action by having neglected to re-enter in due time, i. e., within twenty years, for the violence which happens through the resistance of the wrongful possession being originally owing to the wrong-doer's own fault, gives him no just cause of complaint, inasmuch as he might have prevented it by doing as he ought. Hawk., ch. 64, § 1; 3 Salk. 169.

A party having only the equitable interest in land, and not the legal, should not, pending his suit in equity to establish it, take possession in an improper manner, by turning out a party also beneficially entitled, in a forcible manner; for in that case, a court of equity would not assist him or interfere by injunction to stay proceedings against him at law in the name of the legal owner by ejectment. Grafton v. Griffin, 1 Russ. & M. 336.

1. Where a person is in possession of land under a void title, and another having a valid title thereto peaceably enters and takes possession, the latter is not a trespasser. Sharon v. Wooldrick, 18 Minn. 354.

2. Where a tenant holds over after a regular notice to quit, the landlord in his absence may break open the door, and resume possession, though some articles of furniture remained. Turner v. Meymott, 1 Bing. 158; 8 E. C. L. 450.

If the landlord enters with a strong hand to dispossess the tenant by force, he may be indicted for forcible entry; but there can be no doubt of his right to enter upon the land at the expiration of the term. Taunton v. Costar, 7 T. R. 431.

A tenant holding over after the expiration of his term cannot distrain the landlord's cattle which were put upon the premises by way of taking possession. Taunton v. Costar, 7 T. R. 431.

3. 3 Bl. Comm. (Sharswood's ed.) *p. 4. "It has been decided that the owner of land entitled to the possession may enter thereon and use force sufficient to remove the wrongdoer therefrom. In respect of land, as well as chattels, the wrongdoers have argued that they ought to be allowed to keep what they are wrongfully holding, and that the owner cannot use force to defend his property, but must bring his action, lest the peace should be endangered if force was justified. But in respect of land that argument has been overruled in Harvey v. Bridges, 14 M. & W. 437, in which Parke, B., says: "'Where a breach of the peace is committed by a freeholder, who, in order to get possession of his land, assaults a person wrongfully holding possession of it against his will, although the freeholder may be responsible to the public in the shape of an indictment for a forcible entry, he is not liable to the other party. I cannot see how it is possible to doubt that it is a perfectly good justification to say that the plaintiff was in possession of the land against the will of the defendant, who was owner, and that he entered upon it accordingly; even though in so doing a breach of the peace was committed.' In our opinion all that is so said of the right of property

IV. DEFENSE OF POSSESSIONS.—If one undertakes without force to possess himself of the lands or goods of another, the owner in land, applies in principle to a right of property in a chattel. If the owner was compellable by law to seek redress by action for a violation of his right of property, the remedy would be often worse than the mischief, and the law would aggravate the injury instead of redressing it.

"Upon a review of the cases, English and American, the weight of authority seems to be in favor of the common-law right of the owner of land to recover possession of his premises by force, of which another is wrongfully in possession, provided no more is employed than becomes necessary by the resistance interposed by the tenant to prevent his regaining possession peaceably, especially if his entry be peaceable." This is substantially as laid down by Baron Parke, in Harvey v. Bridges, 14 M. & W. 437.

It was the abuse of this summary power to right one's self by entry, where the right of entry existed, which gave rise to the numerous English statutes against forcible entry and detainer, of which our old act was substantially a copy, and in these acts and the common-law remedy by indictment are to be found the only protection of the party thus forcibly dispossessed. They punish criminally the force, and in some cases make restitution of the possession. Jackson v. Farmer, 9 Wend. (N.Y.) 202. In every case where this remedy is available, it must be pursued in a peaceable and easy manner and not with force or strong hand. Newton v. Harland, 1 M. & G. 958; Harvey v. Bridges, 14 M. & W. 437; for a forcible entry is an indictable offense. Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. Div. 174; Edwick v. Hawkes, 18 Ch. Div. 199. And if one turns another out of possession forcibly, this amounts to a breach of the peace and is punished accordingly. Rex v. Wilson, 3 A. & E. 817; Reg. v. Harland, 8 A. & E. 826; 35 E. C. L. 536; Lows v. Telford, 1 App. Cas. 414. See FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER, vol. 8, p. 101.

An indictment at common law, charging the defendants, twelve in number, with having unlawfully and with a strong hand entered the prosecutor's mill and expelled him from the possession, is good. Rex v. Wilson, 8 T. R. 357.

A plea of moniter manus imposuit in order to turn the plaintiff out of the defendant's house where she continued against his will is no answer to a charge against the defendant for striking the plaintiff repeated blows and with great force and violence several times knocking her down. Gregory v. Hill, 8 T. R. 299; Say. Rep. 138.

A person having the legal right of entry on land may enter by force, and though indictable for a breach of the peace at common law, or under the statute for a forcible entry and detainer, he is not liable to a private action of trespass for damages at the suit of the person in possession without right and who is thus turned out of possession. This position, apparently harsh and tending to the public disturbance and individual conflict, is abundantly supported by authority, and must be considered the law of the land. Jackson v. Farmer, 9 Wend. (N. Y.) 201.

In trespass for breaking and entering the plaintiff's house and expelling him therefrom, the breaking and entering are the gist of the action, and the expulsion is merely aggravation. Therefore a justification as to the breaking and entering will cover the whole declaration. Taylor v. Cole, 3 T. R. 292.

It has been held in several cases that trespass quare clausum fregit will not lie against the real owner of land for a forcible entry and dispossession of a tenant holding over, or other person in unlawful possession. The plea of liberum tenementum is an absolute bar to the action; and evidence of soil and freehold may be given under the general issue. The landlord as owner, may be liable for the public wrong in an indictment for forcible entry, but he is not so as respects any supposed injury to the land, nor is the possession which he thus acquires by force, therefore, an unlawful one. Argent v. Durrant, 8 T. R. 403; Hyatt v. Wood, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 150; 4 Am. Dec. 258; Sampson v. Henry, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 36; Ives v. Ives, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 235; Meador v. Stone, 7 Met. (Mass.) 147; Beecher v. Parmele, 9 Vt. 356; Overdeer v. Lewis, 1 W. & S. (Pa.) 90; 37 Am. Dec. 440; Kellam v. Janson, 17 Pa. St. 467; Zell v. Ream, 31 Pa. St. 304.

must first request him to depart, and, if he refuses, may then use force sufficient to eject him; but the occupant may not assault the intruder in the first instance.¹

On the other hand, if the entry, or the attempt to take another's chattels be made with violence, the owner may, in the first instance, use such force as may be necessary to subdue the violence of the aggressor. But in neither case must the force employed be excessive.²

Where there is a manifest intention by violence or surprise to commit a known felony upon a man's person (as to rob), or upon a man's property or habitation (as burglary or arson), the person

1. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.), *p. 167; 3 Lawson Rights, Remedies and Practice, § 1056; Scribner v. Beach, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 448; 47 Am. Dec. 265; Harrison v. Harrison, 43 Vt. 417; Drew v. Comstock, 57 Mich. 176; Churchill v. Hulbert, 110 Mass. 42; 14 Am. Rep. 578; Sampson v. Henry, 11 Pick. (Mass.) 387; Gregory v. Hill, 8 T. R. 209; Hyatt v. Wood, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 239.

When an assault is attempted to be justified on the ground of self-defense, or the defense of one's property, the force used must not exceed what is necessary for mere defense, as where the plaintiff took hold of a rake in the defendant's hands, in order to take it from him, upon which the defendant immediately knocked the plaintiff down with his fist, and the plaintiff again attempted on rising to possess himself of the rake, was struck a blow with it by the defendant which broke his arm, it was held that the defendant was not justified. Scribner v. Beach, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 448; 47 Am. Dec. 265.

The same rule as to the degree of force that may be used in defense of personal property applies in the case of an officer showing a search warrant to the occupier of a house. If the latter refuse to return the property, the officer will be justified in using just so much violence as may be necessary to take it, and no more; and whether the officer used more force than was necessary will be a question for the jury; if he did, then such excess of force might be legally repelled. Rex v. Mitton, 1 M. & M. 107; 3 Car. & P. 31; 14 E. C. L. 106.

The rule is, that to justify an entry into the house or land of another to retake personal property, it must be shown that it was improperly taken away, or received, or detained, and placed by the wrongdoer in his house or land, in which case an entry may be made, without previous request, or an instant seizure. But in other cases, in order to retake, the owner can only justify molliter manus; nor can he without leave enter the house of a third person, not privy to the wrongful detainer, to take his goods therefrom, if they get there through his own default. Crawford v. Hunter, 8 T. R. 18; Higgins v. Andrews, 2 Rol. R. 55; Masters v. Pollie, 2 Rol. R. 141; Anonymous, 2 Leo. 202; Selw. N. P., tit. Assault and Battery; Anthony v. Haney, 8 Bing. 186; 21 E. C. L. 265.

2. Cooley on Torts (2d ed.) *p. 167; Green v. Goddard, 2 Salk. 641; Scribner v. Beach, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 448; 47 Am. Dec. 265; Abt v. Burgheim, 80 Ill. 92; Johnson v. Perry, 56 Vt. 703; 48 Am. Dec. 826; Ayres v. Birtch, 55 Mich. 501; Fosbinder v. Svitak, 16 Neb. 499. It is only when the battery becomes necessary in defense of his property that the owner of land is justifiable in beating a trespasser. Stachlin v. Destrehan, 2 La. Ann. 1019. accordingly the owner may not strike an unarmed trespasser with a stick until he has failed in removing by gently laying hands on him. State v. Burke, 82 N. Car. 551. Ordinarily, in defense of possession an assault and battery are justifiable, but a wounding is not; in defending an assault, by the intruder, however, a wounding is justifiable. Shain v. Markham, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 578; 20 Am. Dec. 232.

But in defending property against a trespasser who draws a deadly weapon, if one is in reasonable apprehension of danger, his use of a deadly weapon may be justifiable. State v. Taylor, 82 N. Car. 554; People v. Dann, 53 Mich. 490; 51 Am. Rep. 151.

assaulted may repel force by force; and even his servant, then attendant on him, or any other person present, may interpose for preventing mischief; and in the latter case, the owner, or any part of his family, or even a lodger with him, may kill the assailant in order to prevent mischief.¹

RECAPTURE.—See CAPTURE, vol. 2, p. 730; INTERNATIONAL LAW, vol. 11, p. 483.

RECEIPTOR.—(See also ATTACHMENT, vol. 1, p. 922; FORTHCOMING BOND, vol. 8, p. 565; SHERIFFS).—A person, other than the execution debtor, who gives a receipt for property attached, engaging, as surety to the officer who makes the levy, that the property will be forthcoming to answer any final judgment the plaintiff may recover.²

RECEIPTS.—(See also ACCORD AND SATISFACTION, vol. 1, p. 94; ACCOUNTABLE RECEIPTS, vol. 1, p. 135; ACQUITTANCE, vol. 1, p. 171; BILL OF LADING, vol. 2, p. 223; CARRIERS OF GOODS, vol. 2, p. 770; ESTOPPEL, vol. 7, p. 1; EXPRESS COMPANIES, vol. 7, p. 539; PAROL EVIDENCE, vol. 17, p. 419; WAREHOUSEMEN.)

I. Definitions, 1112.

II. Nature of a Receipt, 1112.

III. Form and Scope, 1113.

IV. Debtor's Right to Receipt, 1114.

V. How Affected by Parol Evidence, 1115.

1. Acknowledgment of Mere Payment, 1115.

2. To Show Purpose, 1118.

3. Where the Receipt is Part of a Contract, 1118.

4. Where the Receipt is Evidence of a Contract, 1118.

VI. Does Not Preclude Other Proof, 1119.

VII. Effect of a Receipt, 1120.

VIII. Conclusiveness of a Receipt, 1121.

1. In Cases of Fraud, 1121.

2. When Unexplained, 1122.

3. Receipt in Full, 1122.

4. Conclusiveness of Receipt in a Contract, 1123.

a. As to Terms of Such Contract, 1123.

b. Purpose for Which Payment is Made, 1124.

c. To Support the Contract, 1125.

(1) Deed, 1125.

(2) Fire and Life Insurance, 1126.

(3) Marine Insurance, 1126.

5. By Way of Estoppel, 1128.

IX. Receipt of Third Parties, 1128.

X. Value as Evidence, 1128.

XI. Miscellaneous Provisions, 1129.

1. Statute of Frauds, 1129.

2. Statute of Limitations, 1130.

3. Ancient Documents, 1130.

1. Foster's Crown Law 273; Scribner v. Beach, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 448.

A man assaulted in his dwelling may defend his possession to the last extremity; he is not obliged to retreat. Pitford v. Armstrong, Wright (Ohio) 94; Pond v. People, 8 Mich. 150. He may kill a burglar breaking in. McPherson v. State, 22 Ga. 478; Thompson v. State, 55 Ga. 47; Wall v. State, 51 Ind. 453; Palmore v. State, 29 Ark. 248; State v. Stockton, 61 Mo. 382;

State v. Burwell, 63 N. Car. 661; State v. Abbott, 8 W. Va. 741.

Where one evidently intends by force or surprise to commit a felony upon a man's person or property, the other party may resist the force by force on his part, and may even kill the assailant if it be necessary to prevent the injury. Scribner v. Beach, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 448; 47 Am. Dec. 265.

2. Anderson's L. Dict., citing Story's Bail. § 124; Stevens v. Bailey, 58 N.

I. DEFINITIONS.—Receipt is taking or accepting a thing delivered, usually money, but may be any personalty.¹ Receipt is an acknowledgment of payment or delivery.² A receipt is a written acknowledgment of the receipt of money or a thing of value.³

The purpose of this article is to treat of receipts for the payment of money only. Warehouse receipts, bills of lading, certificates of deposit, and the actual receipt of goods sold, within the provisions of the Statute of Frauds, are more appropriately treated elsewhere.⁴

II. NATURE OF A RECEIPT.—A receipt is executed by the person to whom the delivery or payment is made, and may be used as evidence against him, on the general principle which allows the admission or declaration of a party to be given in evidence against him.⁵ When in writing, it must be delivered to the debtor,⁶ for a memorandum of payment made by a creditor in his own books, is no receipt.⁷ It is also essential that it acknowledge the payment or delivery referred to.⁸ A certificate of deposit issued by a bank is an evidence of debt in the nature of a receipt,⁹ and a bill of lading is at once a receipt and a contract.¹⁰ A receipt may thus contain a contract to do something in relation to the thing delivered.¹¹ The receipt of warehousemen and carriers is of this nature. Where a receipt for money contains a promise of repayment, it partakes of the nature of a negotiable instrument,¹² and a document on

H. 564; Hunter v. Peaks, 74 Me. 363.

1. Anderson's Law Dict.

2. The Missouri v. Webb, 9 Mo. 194.

3. Krutz v. Craig, 53 Ind. 561.

A receipt is such a written acknowledgment, by one person, of his having received money from another, as will be prima facie evidence of that fact in a court of law. Kegg v. State, 10 Ohio 79. A receipt is the evidence of the performance of a contract. Hildreth v. O'Brien, 10 Allen (Mass.) 104.

4. For actual receipt see FRAUDS, STATUTE OF, vol. 8, p. 729. For receipt in cases of levy and execution see FORTHCOMING BOND, vol. 8, p. 565, and SHERIFFS. See also BANKS AND BANKING, vol. 2, p. 104; BILL OF LADING, vol. 2, p. 224, 228; WAREHOUSEMEN.

5. Bouv. Law Dict.

6. Burtch v. Thorn, 7 Ind. 508.

A receipt is not evidence of the payment of money unless it is in the possession of the party making the payment. Nelson v. Boland, 37 Mo. 432.

7. 2 B. & Ald. 501, n. 1; Hunter v. Campbell, 1 Spears (S. Car.) 53; Rex v. Harvey, R. & R. C. C. 227.

8. Russ. & R. 227; Reg. v. Martin, 7 C. & P. 549; 32 E. C. L. 626.

9. Hotchkiss v. Mosher, 48 N. Y. 478; Payne v. Gardiner, 29 N. Y. 146; State Bank v. Kain, 1 Ill. 75. See BANKS AND BANKING, vol. 2, p. 104.

10. Pollard v. Vinton, 115 U. S. 7; Wayland v. Moseley, 5 Ala. 430; 39 Am. Dec. 335; O'Brien v. Gilchrist, 34 Me. 554; 56 Am. Dec. 676; Babcock v. May, 4 Ohio 335; BILL OF LADING, vol. 2, pp. 224, 228.

11. Greenl. on Ev., § 305. See also Phillips v. Swank, 120 Pa. St. 76.

12. Randolph on Com. Paper, § 90.

Thus "Received of A. B. £100 which I promise to pay" has been held a good note. Ashly v. Ashly, 3 M. & P. 186. So a receipt for money "To be returned when called for." Woodfolk v. Leslie, 2 N. & M. 585; Mihill's Com. Law, § 135.

By statute in Alabama, cotton receipts are negotiable like inland bills of exchange. Winston v. Moseley, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 137.

its face not a receipt, may be shown to be such by extrinsic evidence.¹

The distinction between a release and a receipt is that the former extinguishes a pre-existing right, while the latter is merely evidence of a fact.²

III. FORM AND SCOPE.—Receipt may be acknowledged by parol, but is generally in the form of writing. It may also be under

See generally NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS, vol. 16, p. 481; WAREHOUSE-MEN.

1. Reg. v. Overton, Dears. C. C. 308.

Instances.—A receipt duly signed, in form: "$1,100. Received this fifteenth day of August, 1882, eleven hundred on asylum contract of fifty-five thousand dollars," is a receipt for $1,100. Butler v. Bohn, 31 Minn. 325. A paper writing, in these words: "Received of J. D. his book account in full. J. L.," is a receipt for money within the act of North Carolina of 1801, ch. 6, it being proved that, at the date of it, J. D. was indebted to J. L. in a sum of money on open account. State v. Dalton, 1 Hawks (N. Car.) 3.

A writing dated and reciting that the party signing it received a certain sum of money in orders, taken at eighty cents on the dollar, in full, is not a contract in the ordinary sense of the term, but simply a receipt. Pauley v. Weisart, 59 Ind. 241.

A writing reciting that A has received from B a stated sum in full settlement of the within contract and in full of all demands, and that, in consideration of said payment, such persons and others named are released from all claims, actions or causes of actions which have arisen, or may or can arise to the maker against any or either of them, by reason of any connection the latter may have had with them heretofore, is a receipt and not a contract. Price v. Treat (Neb. 1890), 45 N. W. Rep. 790. "Received, Salem, Marion Co., Ill., April 20th, of Minerva Merrell the sum of three hundred dollars, to be credited on the mortgage notes of N. C. Merrell, deceased, and if not redeemed, the above amount is not to be repaid to claimants of said estate. April 20th, 1861. William White," is a receipt, and not a contract. White v. Merrell, 32 Ill. 511. See also McKinney v. Harvie, 38 Minn. 18. "Received this day of A B the sum of fifty dollars in settlement for horse to this day. C. D. (Seal.)," is a mere receipt, and not a release of the remainder of the debt. Gross v. Diller, 33 Minn. 424.

An indorsement on a note in the handwriting of the maker without any signature, but in the presence, with the concurrence and by the direction of the payee, is a receipt. Kegg v. State, 10 Ohio 75. An indorsement on a promissory note: "Interest paid to November 20, 1876," even though it be proved that a new note was at that date given for the interest, is in the nature of receipt, and not a contract. Sears v. Wempner, 27 Minn. 351. The indorsement of a payment upon a note, whether of interest or principal, constitutes, when made upon it, in itself, no part of the note. It is a mere admission or evidence of payment, and stands upon the same ground as a receipt executed by the holder to the maker of the note for the sum received. McDaniels v. Lapham, 21 Vt. 222; Gilpatrick v. Foster, 12 Ill. 355.

An acknowledgment of having received the acceptance of a bill of exchange is a receipt for money. Scholey v. Welsby, Peake 24.

The merchant's bill of sale of goods is, in substance, a mere receipt for the purchase money, and not a contract in writing such as to exclude parol evidence of the actual agreement. Terry v. Wheeler, 25 N. Y. 520. See also Grant v. Frost, 80 Me. 202.

A paper signed by a clerk stating that at a previous time he had received certain goods, is not admissible as a receipt. Glazier v. Reno, 6 S. & R. (Pa.) 206.

A copy of a receipt found among the papers of the payee after his decease, is evidence against his personal representatives. Kirkpatrick's Estate, 26 Pitts. L. J. 101.

2. McCrea v. Purmort, 16 Wend. (N.Y.) 460; 30 Am. Dec. 103; Stearns v. Tappin, 5 Duer (N.Y.) 297; Hitt v. Holliday, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 335; Devlin on Deeds, § 830.

seal. The acknowledgment in a deed stating receipt of the consideration is such a receipt.¹ The receipt may be an acknowledgment in full,² on account,³ pro tanto, a simple receipt,⁴ one for a particular purpose, or in payment on a particular debt. The fact that a receipt is acknowledged before a notary adds no weight to it,⁵ nor is a simple receipt, though official, conclusive.⁶

IV. DEBTOR'S RIGHT TO RECEIPT.—It seems doubtful whether the debtor had at common law a right to demand a receipt on payment excepting from the king's receiver.⁷ A collector's

1. Leake on Contracts, 904; Jackson v. M'Chesney, 7 Cow. (N.Y.) 360; 17 Am. Dec. 521; Daniels v. Moses, 12 S. Car. 130; Baker v. Dewey, 1 B. & C. 704; 8 E. C. L. 297. For further illustrations see infra, this title, under Conclusiveness of a Receipt in a Deed.

2. Receipt in full is a payment of money, or a delivery of other property, in complete discharge of a demand. Anderson's Law Dict.

In the absence of any proof to the contrary, a writing, "Received of S. $100 commission on purchase of mill," duly signed, is a receipt in full. Elting v. Sturtevant, 41 Conn. 176.

The words "in full" in a receipt at the end of a specification for several demands, are not necessarily confined to the demand last mentioned, but may extend to others. Bogart v. Van Velsor, 4 Edw. Ch. (N.Y.) 718.

Where a defendant having entered into a joint and several bond with a third person, to pay the damages in a suit, receives from the plaintiff in the case a receipt, naming such defendant as principal, for one-half of the amount of the judgment recovered, in full of the defendant's part thereof, it must be construed a receipt of one-half in full of the whole. Brown v. Ayer, 24 Ga. 288.

3. Receipt on account is a payment of money or other property in part fulfillment of a contract. Anderson's Law Dict. Fickett v. Cohn, 16 N. Y. St. Rep. 709.

4. A bare acknowledgment of the payment of money or the delivery of personal property of any kind to the person who signs the receipt, is a simple receipt. Anderson's Law Dict.

5. Brannan v. Mesick, 10 Cal. 95. A receipt is not conclusive, even when sworn to by the subscribing witness, and it is always open to explanation by parol. Cole v. Taylor, 22 N. J. L. 59.

6. Johnson v. U. S., 5 Mason (U. S.)

425; Lewis v. Webber, 116 Mass. 450; U. S. v. Williams, 1 Ware (U. S.) 175.

7. In Richardson v. Jackson, 8 M. & W. 298, the court held that a creditor could not object to the tender on the ground that a receipt was asked, because at the time of the offer he only refused it on the ground that a larger sum was due him. Alderson & Rolfe, B. B., were careful in guarding themselves against countenancing the rule that a man who pays money is not entitled to demand a receipt. Rolfe, B., saying: "I should be sorry to hold this to be a bad tender on account of the receipt having been mentioned. I should wish to encourage all prudent people to take receipts, for if they do not, in case of death, the representatives may be deprived of all evidence of the payment." Benjamin on Sales (4th Am. ed.), § 726.

The reason for the conflicting opinions upon the question of whether a receipt is legally demandable arises from the fact that a tender to be valid must be unconditional. In many cases the circumstances under which a receipt was demanded indicated that the tender was not unconditional, and it is from such decisions that the doubt on this question has arisen.

Benj. on Sales (4th Am. ed.), § 726; 2 Parsons on Contracts, *644; Pomeroy, Smith, Mercantile Law, § 633, and authorities cited; Thayer v. Brackett, 12 Mass. 450; Loring v. Cooke, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 48; Richmond v. Boston Chemical Laboratory, 9 Met. (Mass.) 42; Wood v. Hitchcock, 20 Wend. (N.Y.) 47; Sanford v. Bulkley, 30 Conn. 344; Storey v. Krewson, 55 Ind. 397.

The question involved in all these cases was the validity of the tender. To demand a receipt upon tender of payment, so the authorities cited hold, makes the tender conditional and it is therefore not a good tender. From such cases arises the doubt whether the receipt for taxes is an official paper, however, which the law requires him to give, so that its delivery may be enforced.¹

V. HOW AFFECTED BY PAROL EVIDENCE—(See also under PAROL EVIDENCE, vol. 17, p. 432)—1. Acknowledgment of Mere Payment.—Receipts form a well established exception to the rule that a written instrument cannot be varied or contradicted by parol evidence; one may thus contradict his own receipt.² The acknowledgment of mere payment in a receipt is prima facie evidence only,³ and may be rebutted by parol evidence showing that the consideration is different in kind⁴ or amount⁵ from that named, or that notes⁶ or checks⁷ were taken in payment; that it was paid debtor has a right to demand a receipt. See TENDER.

1. Blackwell on Tax Titles, § 833 (5th ed.).

Delivery of tax receipt may be enforced by mandamus. Perry v. Washburn, 20 Cal. 318. Law v. People, 84 Ill. 142.

2. Bell v. Bell, 12 Pa. St. 235.

3. 2 Parsons on Contracts, *555; Taylor on Ev., § 1134; U. S. v. Hunt, 115 U. S. 183; Piehl v. Balchen, Olc. Adm. 24; McCreeliss v. Hinkle, 17 Ala. 459; Abrams v. Taylor, 21 Ill. 102; Chandler v. Schoonover, 14 Ind. 324; Whittemore v. Stout, 3 Dana (Ky.) 427; Gulick v. Conover, 15 N. J. L. 420; Dean v. Dean, 9 N. J. Eq. 425; Danziger v. Hoyt, 46 Hun (N. Y.) 270; Wells v. Patterson, 7 How. (Miss.) 32; Cluggage v. Swan, 4 Binn (Pa.) 150; Whitherup v. Hill, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 11; Lehn v. Lehn, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 57; Barclay v. Morrison, 16 S. & R. (Pa.) 129; Harris v. Hey, 111 Pa. St. 562; Sparhawk v. Buell, 9 Vt. 41; Paige v. Perno, 10 Vt. 491.

Receipt of payment on the bill itself is presumptive evidence of payment by acceptor or maker, but this is only so where it is in the handwriting of the holder, who was entitled to receive payment. Randolph on Com. Paper, § 1477; Byles, 233; 2 Parsons on Cont. 221; Pfiel v. Vanbatenburg, 2 Campb. 439; Curry v. Kurtz, 33 Miss. 29.

Under § 3807 of the Georgia Code, providing that receipts for money are only prima facie evidence of payment, one may show that he received less on certain notes made by him than the receipt shows. New England Mortgage Sec. Co. v. Gay, 33 Fed. Rep. 636.

A receipt for the purchase money on the bottom of a written contract is evidence on the money counts, although there is a variance between the contract and the special count. Jamieson v. Alexander, 1 Cranch (C. C.) 6.

Where the complainants put in the defendant's receipt for his share of an estate, and the defendant then offered a copy thereof with a memorandum on it going to show that a less amount was received, it was not admitted. Brown v. Sockwell, 26 Ga. 380.

In an action by D against H to recover a sum of money paid by him as surety for H, the defendant offered in evidence a receipt as follows. "I have this day received of H a sum of money, and also an assignment of his, H's interest, to a claim against Erie Railroad to secure me in the sum of $269, which is in full of all claims and accounts against said H to date," signed by D and dated. There was no evidence that the assigned claim had been collected. Held, that the assignment and receipt did not, as a matter of law, import payment. Dudgeon v. Haggart, 17 Mich. 273.

4. Battle v. Rochester City Bank, 3 N. Y. 88; White v. Parker, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 48; Caldwell v. Harlan, 3 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 352; Reading v. Traver, 83 Ill. 372.

5. Reed v. Phillips, 5 Ill. 39; Ryan v. Ward, 48 N. Y. 204; 8 Am. Rep. 539.

6. Wildrick v. Swain, 34 N. J. Eq. 167; Dorman v. Wilson, 39 N. J. L. 474; Swain v. Frazier, 35 N. J. Eq. 326; Bartholomew v. Bartholomew, 24 Ill. 109; Tobey v. Barber, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 68; Putnam v. Lewis, 8 Johns. (N. Y.) 389; Johnson v. Weed, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 310; 60 Am. Dec. 279; Higby v. New York etc. R. Co., 3 Bosw. (N. Y.) 497; Buswell v. Poineer, 37 N. Y. 312; Street v. Hall, 29 Vt. 165; Moore v. Newbury, 6 McLean (U. S.) 472.

7. Weed v. Snow, 3 McLean (U. S.) 265; Reading v. Traver, 83 Ill. 372.

only in part,¹ or not at all,² or that the consideration which did pass was illegal.³ In most of the States this may be shown, though the receipt be in full of all demands,⁴ or embodied in the

1. Winans v. Hassey, 48 Cal. 634; Carr v. Miner, 42 Ill. 179; Bridge v. Gray, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 55; 25 Am. Dec. 358; Nelson v. Weeks, 111 Mass. 223; Harper v. Doll, 92 N. Car. 394; Jones v. Ennis, 18 Hun (N. Y.) 452; Union Bank v. Sollee, 2 Strobb. (S. Car.) 390; Burk v. Galveston Co., 76 Tex. 267.

2. Strange v. Watson, 11 Ala. 324; Winans v. Hassey, 48 Cal. 634; Ditch v. Vollhardt, 82 Ill. 134; Shropshire v. Long, 68 Iowa 537; Corlies v. Howe, 11 Gray (Mass.) 125; Weddigen v. Boston Elastic Fabric Co., 100 Mass. 422; Middlesex v. Thomas, 20 N. J. Eq. 39; Battle v. Rochester City Bank, 3 N. Y. 88; Dick v. Milligan (Pa. 1886), 6 Atl. Rep. 720; Mt. Olivet Cemetery Co. v. Shubert, 2 Head (Tenn.) 116; Burnap v. Partridge, 3 Vt. 144.

3. Forshner v. Whitcomb, 44 N. H. 14.

4. Such receipts may be shown to be payment in part only. The Galloway C. Morris, 2 Abb. (U. S.) 164. And where but part of a debt is paid, and a receipt in full is given by an agent under "a power, coupled with an interest" and "irrevocable" in terms, even though the power expressly authorized the agent to settle and compromise, it gains nothing thereby. Pratt v. U. S., 3 Ct. of Cl. 105. Pate's Case, 4 Ct. of Cl. 523; Murdoch v. District of Columbia, 22 Ct. of Cl. 464; Tucker v. Baldwin, 13 Conn. 136; 33 Am. Dec. 384; Walrath v. Norton, 10 Ill. 437; Frink v. Bolton, 15 Ill. 344; Fitzsimmons v. Allen, 39 Ill. 440; American Bridge Co. v. Murphy, 13 Kan. 35; St. Louis etc. R. Co. v. Davis, 35 Kan. 464; Jones v. Ricketts, 7 Md. 108; Tucker v. Maxwell, 11 Mass. 143; Tyler v. Odd Fellows Mut. etc. Assoc., 145 Mass. 134; Gibson v. Hanna, 12 Mo. 162; Cole Co. v. Dallmeyer, 101 Mo. 57; Powell v. Powell, 52 Mich. 432; Letts v. Letts, 73 Mich. 138; Gleason v. Sawyer, 22 N. H. 85; Burnham v. Ayer, 35 N. H. 351; Elliott v. Logan, Phil. Eq. (N. Car.) 163; Ryan v. Ward, 48 N. Y. 204; 8 Am. Rep. 539; Colburn v. Lansing, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 37; Joslyn v. Capron, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 598; Hendrickson v. Beers, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 639; Churchill v. Bradley, 43 N. Y. Super. Ct. 170; Patterson v. Ackerson, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 427;

Horton's Appeal, 38 Pa. St. 294; Ingram v. Lukens (S. Car. 1889), 9 S. E. Rep. 348; Pinchback v. McCraven, 1 Hill Eq. (S. Car.) 307; Dolan v. Freiberg, 4 W. Va. 101; Smith v. Schulenberg, 34 Wis. 41.

It may be shown that no payment has been made. Morris v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 21 Minn. 91; Bird v. Davis, 14 N. J. Eq. 467; Harris v. Ely, 25 N. Y. 138; Foster v. Newbrough, 58 N. Y. 481; Rollins v. Dyer, 16 Me. 475; Sparhawk v. Buell, 9 Vt. 41; or that there was no consideration; Lewis v. Matlock, 3 Ind. 120; Robiness v. Wilson, 33 Md. 179; Corlies v. Howe, 11 Gray (Mass.) 125; 71 Am. Dec. 693; Kenny v. Kane, 50 N. J. L. 562; Houston v. Shindler, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 36.

See also Wallace v. Kelsall, 7 M. & W. 264, per Parke, B., explaining Skaife v. Jackson, 3 B. & C. 421; 10 E. C. L. 137; and Farrar v. Hutchinson, 9 A. & E. 641; 36 E. C. L. 227; Graves v. Key, 3 B. & Ad. 313; 23 E. C. L. 79. A receipt in full of all claims due, prima facie includes all that are due. Scruggs v. Bibb, 33 Ala. 481. Walters v. Odorn, 53 Ga. 286; Beedle v. State, 62 Ind. 26; Ellicott v. Barnes, 31 Kan. 170; Beeler v. Hill, 5 Dana (Ky.) 37; Gails v. The Osceola, 14 La. Ann. 54; Draughan v. White, 21 La. Ann. 175; Stackpole v. Arnold, 11 Mass. 27; Bard v. Wood, 3 Met. (Mass.) 74; Shotwell v. Hamblin, 23 Miss. 156; 55 Am. Dec. 83; Bercier v. McInnis, 57 Miss. 279; Dudgeon v. Haggart, 17 Mich. 273; Buswell v. Poineer, 37 N. Y. 312; Catow v. Catow, (S. Car. 1890), 10 S. E. Rep. 1078; Pool v. Chase, 46 Tex. 207; Cliff v. Wade, 51 Tex. 14; Bennett v. Flanagan, 54 Vt. 549; Chitty on Contracts (11 Am. ed.), vol. 1, p. 150, n. e.

Seamen's Receipts.—A receipt given in full by a seaman for his wages is not conclusive in admiralty. Harden v. Gordon, 2 Mason (U. S.) 541; The Mary Paulina, 1 Sprague (U. S.) 45; Whiteman v. The Neptune, 1 Pet. Adm. 180; Leak v. Isaacson, Abb. Adm. 41; The Commerce, 1 Sprague (U. S.) 34; Jackson v. White, 1 Pet. Adm. 179; Whitney v. Eager, Crabbe (U. S.) 422; The Galloway C. Morris, 1 Abb. (U. S.) 164; Payne v. Allen, 1 Sprague (U. S.) 304; Savin v. The consideration clause of an instrument under seal.¹ And a receipt may be so varied although the signer is dead.²

A tax receipt is open to explanatory evidence like other receipts,³ and the same is also true in regard to a discharge written upon an execution,⁴ or a receipt given in satisfaction of a judgment.⁵

Juno, 1 Wood (U. S.) 300, but in most of the above citations the receipt in full was not conclusive because the position of seamen was peculiarly open to the exercise of undue influence and duress. See also SEAMEN.

1. The acknowledgment of a receipt under seal is nothing more than a receipt, for the seal gives it no additional solemnity. Rex v. Scammonden, 3 T. R. 474.

The receipt of the consideration is not conclusive between the parties but may be explained, enlarged, or disputed. It may thus be shown that the consideration was not paid or was not paid in money as therein expressed but in some other way. Bigelow on Estoppel, 4th ed. 372; Shepard v. Little, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 210; McCrea v. Purmort, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 460; 30 Am. Dec. 103 and note. See also PAROL EVIDENCE, vol. 17, p. 438; DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 436; Lawson, Rights, Remedies and Prac., vol. 5, § 2543; 2 Whart. on Ev., § 1042 and cases cited; Taylor on Ev., § 96; Devlin on Deeds, § 830; Elder v. Hood, 38 Ill. 533; Swisher v. Swisher, Wright (Ohio) 755; Steele v. Worthington, 2 Ohio 182; Mitchell v. Ryan, 3 Ohio St. 377; Davis v. Coffield, 6 West L. J. (Ohio) 318; Brown v. Cahalin, 3 Oregon 45; Bridges v. Russell, 30 Mo. App. 258; Adams v. Hull, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 306; Jackson v. M'Chesney, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 360; 17 Am. Dec. 521; Hamilton v. McGuire, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 355; Weigley v. Weir, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 309; Watson v. Blaine, 12 S. & R. (Pa.) 131; Strawbridge v. Cartledge, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 394; Byers v. Mullen, 9 Watts (Pa.) 266; Baum v. Tomkin, 110 Pa. St. 569; Lazell v. Lazell, 12 Vt. 443; 36 Am. Dec. 352.

2. Brice v. Hamilton, 12 S. Car. 32. 3. Elston v. Kennicott, 46 Ill. 187; Rand v. Scofield, 43 Ill. 167. So where county tax receipts were in evidence it was not error to allow county treasurer to state the amount of a certain tax thereby shown to be receipted for. Vaughan v. Stone, 54 Iowa 376, and upon the question on whose account and for whom payment of taxes has been paid the receipt is susceptible to explanation. It has thus been held that although an agent has paid the taxes in his own name instead of that of his principal, tax receipts thus given may be explained. Rand v. Scofield, 43 Ill. 167; Rawson v. Fox, 65 Ill. 200; Hardin v. Gouverneur, 69 Ill. 140; Vigus v. O'Bannon, 118 Ill. 334, where the receipt was one in full; and it may also be shown that it was paid by another person than the one named in the receipt. Gage v. Hampston, 127 Ill. 87. The description of land being clearly defective in the receipt, the objection may be overcome by showing with reasonable certainty that the payment for which it was given was in fact made on the land in controversy. Paris v. Lewis, 85 Ill. 597. The tax receipt does not estop the collector from showing that a check given in payment was not paid. Kahl v. Love, 37 N. J. L. 5.

4. Edgerly v. Emerson, 23 N. H. 555; 55 Am. Dec. 207.

A receipt given by a constable to a defendant in execution in full thereof is not conclusive against him, but he may show that he did not receive the money, and could not make it, by reason of the debtor's insolvency. Warlick v. Barnett, 1 Jones (N. Car.) 539; 62 Am. Dec. 188.

5. Entry of satisfaction indorsed on a judgment is in the nature of a receipt and may be explained, controlled, qualified, or contradicted by parol. Stewart v. Armel, 62 Ind. 593; Lewis v. Matlock, 3 Ind. 120; Lapping v. Duffy, 65 Ind. 229; Lash v. Rendell, 72 Ind. 475; Brown v. South Boston Sav. Bank, 148 Mass. 300. Such receipts are admissible on the ground of declarations against interest, Sherman v. Crosby, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 70; and to prove receipt the judgment record or a transcript thereof must be produced, if the receipt be on record; if on a separate paper and delivered to the opposite party, notice must be given him to produce it before second-

2. To Show Purpose.—Parol evidence is also admissible to show the purpose for which the receipt was given¹ or to what demand it was applicable.²

3. Where the Receipt is Part of a Contract.—A receipt remains open to explanation by parol evidence, though it contain a contract or be embodied in another instrument.³

4. Where the Receipt is Evidence of a Contract.—A receipt may also be controlled, varied, or contradicted by parol evidence to the extent that other writings are subject to such explanation.⁴

any evidence is admissible. Williams v. Jones, 12 Ind. 561. But compare Lothrop v. Blake, 3 Pa. St. 483.

1. Bishop v. Perkins, 19 Conn. 300.

So it may be shown that a receipt executed by A to B stating that he had received from her, as his guardian, the sum of $571.64, being his distributive share of his father's personal estate, was intended to operate as a payment of so much money upon lands he had agreed to purchase. Shepherd v. Bevin, 9 Gill (Md.) 32. Ellicott v. Barnes, 31 Kan. 170; Furbush v. Goodwin, 25 N. H. 425; King v. Hutchins, 28 N. H. 561; Colburn v. Lansing, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 37; Robinson v. Frost, 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 536; Trull v. Barkley, 11 Hun (N. Y.) 644. And where an attorney gave a receipt for a promissory note, without expressing the purpose for which he received it, it was held that the presumption, confirmed also by other circumstances, was, that he received it to be collected. Batdorf v. Albert, 59 Pa. St. 59. Peters v. Lawson, 66 Tex. 336.

A receipt "in full for taxes, interest, and costs of the within certificate" being indorsed on a tax certificate, which was indorsed in blank, it was held that it might be shown by parol whether the money was received for an assignment of the certificate or for the purpose of redemption. Woodman v. Clapp, 21 Wis. 350.

But where a mortgage is satisfied by payment, and the receipt is indorsed upon the back, parol evidence tending to show that the parties intended the receipt to have a different effect from what it must have, according to its legal effect, is not admissible. In re Dunham, 9 Phil. 471.

2. Parol evidence may be admitted to show that the comprehensive term "all accounts" in a receipt in full was designed to include a firm as well as a personal indebtedness. Hawley v. Bader, 15 Cal. 44; and that the receipt was not intended to embrace a particular subject. Packer v. Packer, 24 Iowa 20; Brooks v. White, 2 Met. (Mass.) 283; 37 Am. Dec. 95. A receipt for a sum of money to account for on demand with interest is not an undertaking to pay that sum absolutely; and, in an action upon it, the defendant may show by parol evidence how the money was to have been applied. Blanchard v. Putnam, 16 N. H. 48.

Where a receipt is given to an executor in his individual name, parol evidence is admissible to show that it was for property belonging to him as executor, and not to himself in his own right; and to show that the signers of the receipt so understood it at the time of signing the same. Wadsworth v. Alcott, 6 N. Y. 64. Colburn v. Lansing, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 37; Eylar v. Read, 60 Tex. 387.

3. Wayland v. Mosely, 5 Ala. 430; 39 Am. Dec. 335; Sherry v. Picken, 10 Ind. 375; Lowe v. Young, 59 Iowa 364.

A receipt which is embodied in a promissory note is open to explanation by parol the same as if it were a separate instrument. Smith v. Halland, 61 N. Y. 635; Wilson v. Derr, 69 N. Car. 137; Davison v. Davis, 125 U. S. 90.

Fire and Life Insurance Policy.—The receipt of premium in such a policy may be explained by parol. Reyner v. Hall, 4 Taunt. 725; Luckie v. Bushley, 13 C. B. 864. Also where receipt "to be binding until policy received." Scurry v. Cotton State L. Ins., 51 Ga. 624. For a review of cases, see Sheldon v. Atlantic etc. Ins. Co., 26 N. Y. 460; 84 Am. Dec. 231; Ferebee v. North Carolina etc. Ins. Co., 68 N. Car. 11; Insurance Co. v. Smith, 3 Whart. (Pa.) 520; Texas Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Davidge, 51 Tex. 244.

4. A receipt is always subject to explanation and to have its general terms narrowed down by proof aliunde. Van

VI. DOES NOT PRECLUDE OTHER PROOF.—It is a well settled principle that a receipt is but evidence of payment. It is not the only evidence, and when the fact can be established without it, Rensselaer v. Morris, 1 Paige (N. Y.) 13; and in a purely legal point of view, a receipt is of no higher order or character of testimony than ordinary parol evidence, and is always subject to explanation. There is no presumption of law that a receipt properly and fully expresses the intention and understanding of the parties; the only presumptions that could arise from the contents of the writing are presumptions of fact. Herkimer v. Nigh, 10 Ill. App. 372. A receipt indorsed on a note if ambiguous may be explained. Baugh v. Brasfield, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 79; the circumstances how it was given may also be shown. Richardson v. Beede, 43 Me. 161, and the terms made use of in the receipt explained. McLane v. Johnson, 59 Vt. 237.

Receipt of payment indorsed on a bill may be explained by parol. Chitty 478; 2 Daniel 258; 2 Edwards, § 786; Randolph on Com. Paper, § 1477; Scholey v. Walsby, Peake 24; Swain v. Frazier, 35 N. J. Eq. 326.

A receipt is merely evidence of a fact, and any generality of expression contained therein may be restrained by other evidence, showing that it was intended to be less extensive in its operation than the words import. Hitt v. Holliday, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 333. So where a receipt contains vague and general expressions and is not definitely descriptive of what is intended to be affected by it, it may be explained. Raymond v. Roberts, 2 Aik. (Vt.) 204. A receipt for a sum paid in satisfaction of a judgment of the county court may be explained to mean circuit court. Stallworth v. Preslai, 34 Ala. 505. A receipt in these words: "Received of W. R., one of the executors of W. W., two notes of hand on W. G. & J. McN., amounting to $1,750, due first of January, 1838, which we are to collect, or return the same to said R. with interest from the date it was due," is open to explanation to show whether the words "with interest, etc.," are intended to refer to the return of the money, by the signers, or to the amount which is to be collected from the notes. Hogan v. Reynolds, 8 Ala. 59. The words "in payment of," "in satisfaction of," "in full discharge of," and numerous other similar expressions, when contained in receipts and other instruments in reference to antecedent and liquidated obligations, operate to discharge them, or the contrary, just as the circumstances in which they are used indicate intention, and as justice demands. It is a mere matter of interpretation, in each instance controlled by the circumstances in which the agreement is made. In re Hurst, 1 Flip. (U. S.) 462; 13 Nat. Bank. Reg. 455.

Evidence is admissible to show that a receipt is conditional. House v. Low, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 378; Perkins v. Hodge, 38 Iowa 284; and the terms upon which a receipt is given may be shown by parol. Weed v. Snow, 3 McLean (U. S.) 265.

Where a receipt in full is for certain promissory notes, and in full of all demands, the general words, though they do not enlarge the particular words as to what transpired at the time, may be used to prove that the party giving the receipt had at the time no other demands against the person securing the receipt. Allen v. Woodson, 50 Ga. 53. Where, upon the face of a receipted account, it is doubtful whether the money was paid by the partnership or by one of the partners individually, the party offering it may explain it by other evidence. Grier v. Huston, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 402; 11 Am. Dec. 627. A receipt acknowledging that A had received a lot of land does not prevent the contrary from being shown. Bowen v. Humphreys, 24 S. Car. 452. The words in a receipt "notes I hold against A," may be shown by parol to refer to notes in which the holder has no interest other than having possession of them as agent of payee. Dodge v. Billings, 2 D. Chip. (Vt.) 34. A writing in this form: "Received of A $500 due on demand" is open to parol explanation as to its consideration to show that it was intended as a mere receipt. DeLavallette v. Wendt, 75 N. Y. 579; 31 Am. Rep. 494.

See also Swope v. Forney, 17 Ind. 385; Beedle v. State, 62 Ind. 26; Cox v. Garber, 6 Iowa 211; Cramer v. Shriner, 18 Md. 140; King v. Hutchings, 28 N. H. 561; Furbush v. Goodwin, 25 N. H. 425; Caldwell v. National Mohawk Valley Bank, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 333; Dutton v. Tilden, 13 Pa.

it is not at all necessary, and taking a receipt does not preclude other proof of payment.¹

VII. EFFECT OF A RECEIPT.—A receipt is evidence of some fact. It is admissible in evidence upon the principle that declarations and admissions of a party may be used against him as evidence. Like all evidence, its effect must be as varied as the facts of which it is the evidence are different. It will thus, in many instances, have but the weight of prima facie evidence; in others, by reason either of its particular form, the nature of its contents, or the peculiar relations of the parties, it is conclusive as to a part, or as to all that it alleges. A more definite rule cannot be laid down.

Primarily the operation of a receipt is confined to that for which it is given.² But a receipt is often used as evidence of facts collateral to those stated in it. It is prima facie evidence of payment,³ and whatever inference may legally be drawn from the fact of the payment described will be supported by the receipt.⁴ It may, however, have all the effect of a

St. 46; Phelps v. Postwick, 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 314; Haddock v. Kelsey, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Kirkpatrick v. Smith, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 188.

1. Jacob v. Lindsay, 1 East 460; Rambert v. Cohen, 4 Esp. 213; Meade v. Keane, 3 Cranch (C. C.) 51; Johnson v. Cunningham, 1 Ala. 249; Peterson v. Gresham, 25 Ark. 380; Williamantic School Soc. v. First School Soc., 14 Conn. 468; Bryant v. Dana, 8 Ill. 343; Wolf v. Foster, 13 Kan. 116; Spears v. Chrisman, 4 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 47; Berry v. Berry, 17 N. J. L. 440; Chambers v. Hunt, 22 N. J. L. 552; Johnson v. Stackhouse, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 122; Southwick v. Hayden, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 334.

Payment of taxes may be proved by parol, whether a receipt was taken for it at the time or not. Hammond v. Hannin, 21 Mich. 374; 4 Am. Rep. 490; Elston v. Kennicott, 52 Ill. 270. But it has been held that charges in an administration account for the payment of taxes by the administrator, cannot be proved by the testimony of witnesses, but must be proved by the receipt of the collector. Hall v. Hall, 1 Mass. 101.

The manner of signing a receipt and the contents of it cannot be given in evidence; the receipt must be produced. Romayne v. Duane, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 246.

2. Kerchner v. U. S., 7 Ct. of Cl. 579.

3. Bishop on Contracts, § 176 (Enl. ed.); Pomeroy, Smith, Mercantile Law, § 633; Taylor on Ev. § 1134. A tax receipt is admissible to show payment of taxes, though it does not show who paid the money. Denman v. McMahan, 37 Ind. 241; and see Johnstone v. Scott, 11 Mich. 232; Williams v. Fitzpatrick, 20 Ala. 791. But a receipt for a certain sum of money paid for specific articles furnishes no presumption of a general settlement between the parties. Hannum v. Curtis, 13 Ind. 206.

The principle that a receipt is only prima facie evidence of payment is so well embedded in the law governing receipts that most of the cases cited throughout this article will be found authorities on this point.

4. Rent.—Thus the law presumes that previous rent has been paid where a receipt for subsequent rent is given, unless the contrary is made to appear. Decker v. Livingston, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 479; Patterson v. O'Hara, 2 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 58; Brewer v. Knapp, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 332; Jenkins v. Calvert, 3 Cranch (C. C.) 216; Saving Fund v. Marks, 3 Phila. (Pa.) 278; Gear, Landlord and Tenant, § 138; Gilb. Ev. 157 (4th ed.); Best Ev., § 406.

The receipt of rent is also prima facie evidence of the existence of the tenancy. Taylor, Landlord and Tenant, § 23 (8th ed.).

Corporations.—A receipt issued in the name of the defendant corporation and signed by a party who owns all the stock is admissible to prove plain-written contract and will then become conclusive between the parties.¹

VIII. CONCLUSIVENESS OF A RECEIPT—1. In Cases of Fraud.—A receipt is never conclusive where mistake,² misrepresentation,³ fraud,⁴ or undue influence⁵ can be alleged against it.

tiff's claim that defendant was doing business at the time receipt was signed where defendant claims it was not Orr Water Ditch Co. v. Reno Water Co., 19 Nev. 60.

Taxes.—But a tax collector's receipt is not sufficient proof of validity of taxes paid. Seale v. Doane, 17 Cal. 476.

Attorney's Receipt.—The receipt of an attorney at law, acknowledging that he had received certain securities for the payment of money, which he was to sue for in the United States circuit court, collect and account for, is prima facie evidence of the genuineness and justness of the securities described in the receipt. Hair v. Glover, 14 Ala. 500.

1. See infra, this title, Receipt in a Contract.

2. Show v. Thompson, Olc. Adm. 144; Kane v. Morehouse, 46 Conn. 305; Dodd v. Mayson, 39 Ga. 605; Markel v. Spittler, 28 Ind. 488; State v. Waldo Bank, 20 Me. 471; Hart v. Gould, 62 Mich. 262; Elwell v. Lesley, 7 N. J. L. 349; Ensign v. Webster, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 145; 1 Am. Dec. 108; McDougall v. Cooper, 31 N. Y. 498; Boardman v. Gaillard, 60 N. Y. 614; Gue v. Kline, 13 Pa. St. 50; Russell v. Church, 65 Pa. St. 59; Schoemaker v. Stiles, 102 Pa. St. 549.

Where a party accepts a deed in payment of a debt, and receipts the same in ignorance of the fact that the deed is a nullity, there being no such property in existence as it assumes to convey, he is not concluded by his receipt. Anderson v. Armstead, 69 Ill. 452.

See also under MISTAKE, vol. 15, p. 671.

3. Trisler v. Williamson, 4 Har. & M. (Md.) 219; 1 Am. Dec. 396; Berryghill's Appeal, 35 Pa. St. 245; McGrann v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 111 Pa. St. 171.

4. Skaife v. Jackson, 3 B. & C. 421; 10 E. C. L. 137; Pratt v. U. S., 3 Ct. of Cl. 105; Livingston v. U. S., 3 Ct. of Cl. 131; Phelan v. Crosby, 2 Gill (Md.) 462; Clapp v. Tirrell, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 247; Snyder v. Findley, 1 N. J. L. 48; Cole v. Taylor, 22 N. J. L. 59;

King v. Leighton, 100 N. Y. 386; Van Nest v. Talmage, 17 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 99; Hogg v. Brown, 2 Brev. (S. Car.) 223.

See also Hamsher v. Kline, 57 Pa. St. 397; Moore v. Com., 8 Pa. St. 260; Thompson v. Faussat, Pet. (C. C.) 172; Bell v. Bell, 2 Jones (N. Car.) 235; Benson v. Bennett, 1 Campb. 394, n.

If a receipt be altered by the party holding it or by procurement of such party, it vitiates the receipt as an instrument of evidence. Aliter if done by a stranger. Goodfellow v. Inslee, 12 N. J. Eq. 355.

5. Mitchell v. Pratt, Taney (U. S.) 448; Nachtrieb v. Harmony Settlement, 3 Wall. Jr. (C. C.) 66; Michoud v. Girod, 4 How. (U. S.) 503; Tarver v. Rankin, 3 Ga. 210. And where a person did not read the receipt, and had no reasonable opportunity so to do, he cannot be bound by the contents thereof. Solomon R. Co. v. Jones, 34 Kan. 443. And in Fairmaner v. Budd, 7 Bing. 574; 20 E. C. L. 246; 20 Serg. & L. 246, it was held that where the signer of the receipt was illiterate, proof might be received to show that it was not drawn according to authority. Lyme v. Beall, 7 Dana (Ky.) 420; Nelson v. Weeks, 111 Mass. 223; McAllister v. Engle, 52 Mich. 56; Garcia y Perea v. Barela (N. Mex. 1890), 23 Pac. Rep. 766; Rourke v. Story, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 54; Thomas v. M'Daniel, 14 Johns. (N. Y.) 185; Parmentier v. Pater, 13 Oregon 121; Clarke v. Deveau, 1 S. Car. 172.

The receipt given by a ward upon termination of the wardship is peculiarly susceptible to the scrutiny of a court. A receipt obtained by a guardian without accounting is of little weight. Bennett v. Hanfin, 87 Ill. 31; and see Beedle v. State, 62 Ind. 26; Brewer v. Vanarsdale, 6 Dana (Ky.) 207; Nicholson v. McGuire, 4 Cranch (C. C.) 194; Succession of Celeste Croizet, 12 La. Ann. 401.

For the receipt of seamen given under undue influence, see supra, this title, How Affected by Parol Evidence, note, Seaman's Receipts.

2. When Unexplained.—The effect of prima facie evidence, in the absence of rebutting proof, is to establish the fact which it tends to prove;¹ it follows, therefore, that a receipt, which remains unexplained, is conclusive, and it is for the party against whom it is produced to establish its true character if he wishes to avoid its effect.²

3. Receipt in Full.—In general a receipt in full is conclusive when given with a knowledge of all the circumstances, and when a party giving it cannot complain of any misapprehension as to the compromise he was making.³ In Connecticut, a receipt in full will operate as a discharge to defeat any further claims, unless executed under such circumstances of mistake, accident or surprise, or unless it be procured by such fraud as will authorize a court of equity to set it aside.⁴ By statute in Alabama, receipts, if made in good faith, are valid and operate according to the intention of the parties,⁵ and in Georgia have the effect of prima facie evidence only.⁶ In most of the States a receipt in full is of

1. Lyons v. Williams, 15 Ill. App. 27.

2. Moore v. The Fashion, 1 Newb. Adm. 49; Palmer v. Priest, 1 Sprague (U. S.) 512; Smith v. Hoffman, 2 Cranch (C. C.) 651; Goodale v. West, 5 Cal. 339; Spear v. Ward, 20 Cal. 659; Marston v. Wilcox, 2 Ill. 270; Levi v. Karrick, 13 Iowa 344; Whitmore v. Stout, 3 Dana (Ky.) 429; Beeler v. Hill, 5 Dana (Ky.) 37; Cunningham v. Batchelder, 32 Me. 316; so a receipt in full of all demands, though purporting to be for a sum merely nominal, will, if unexplained, discharge all debts then existing even such as are not payable until a subsequent day. Cash v. Freeman, 35 Me. 483. Carroll v. Quinn, 13 Md. 379; Decker v. Livingston, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 479; Lambert v. Seely, 17 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 432; Hunt v. Westervelt, 4 E. D. Smith (N. Y.) 225; McDowell v. Lemaitre, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 320; Stachely v. Peirce, 28 Tex. 328.

On the question of a good discharge for certain notes against an executor for which he held a receipt signed by his testator containing certain altered words and figures, the jury are warranted in finding the receipt valid in the absence of any evidence that the alterations were made previously to the signing. Thrasher v. Anderson, 45 Ga. 539.

But a receipt denied, and of whose execution no evidence has been given, is not evidence to go to a jury. Neil v. Miller, 2 Root (Conn.) 117.

3. Bristow v. Eastman, 1 Esp. 173; Alner v. George, 1 Camp. 393; Thomp- son v. Faussat, Pet. (C. C.) 182; Guldager v. Rockwell, 14 Colo. 459; Bull v. Bull, 43 Conn. 455; Freeman v. Tucker, 20 Ga. 6; thus a receipt in full, given by a brakeman who had been injured through the fault of the company employing him, and not shown to have been procured by false representations, is a sufficient release of a cause of action. Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Welch, 52 Ill. 183; 4 Am. Rep. 593. O'Neil v. Lake Superior Iron Co., 63 Mich. 690; Henderson v. Stokes, 42 N. J. Eq. 586; Vedder v. Vedder, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 257; Holbrook v. Blodget, 5 Vt. 520.

4. Fuller v. Crittenden, 9 Conn. 401; 23 Am. Dec. 364; Tucker v. Baldwin, 13 Conn. 136; 33 Am. Dec. 384; Hurd v. Blackman, 19 Conn. 177; Bean v. Barnum, 21 Conn. 200; Bonnell v. Chamberlin, 26 Conn. 487; Rose v. Persse etc. Paper Works, 29 Conn. 267; Aborn v. Rathbone, 54 Conn. 444.

5. Under the Alabama Code, §§ 3039-40, receipts whether under seal or not, if made in good faith, are valid and operate according to the intention of the parties, but may be shown to have been given under a mistake of fact or obtained by surprise, undue influence or misrepresentation or concealment, or avoided for any cause sufficient in equity to invalidate and set aside a contract. Cleere v. Cleere, 52 Ala. 581.

6. § 3807 of the Georgia Code provides that receipts for money are only prima facie evidence of payment.

itself a complete and perfect prima facie defense,¹ and the effect of a receipt, or of a receipt in full, is a question of intention for the jury to determine.² Receipts may thus, under circumstances, operate as the evidence of an accord and satisfaction,³ or a compromise and settlement⁴ between the parties, or by way of discharge⁵ or release⁶ of a particular claim or cause of action, and they must then come within the particular provisions relating to such agreements.

4. Conclusiveness of Receipt in a Contract—a. AS TO TERMS OF SUCH CONTRACT.—Where the writing is both a receipt and a contract, the receipt is open to explanation, but the contract does not merge in the receipt and cannot be contradicted or varied by parol evidence, except as other contracts may be. The receipt is, therefore, in so far as it is the evidence of a contractual obligation, conclusive between the parties.⁷

1. Guyette v. Bolton, 46 Vt. 228.

2. Randolph on Com. Paper, § 1519; The Charlotte v. Hammond, 9 Mo. 59; Sutton v. The Albatross, 2 Wall. Jr. (C. C.) 327. But where there is reason to believe that the party receiving the money and giving the receipt understood it in one way, and the party paying the money and taking the receipt understood it in another way, the language being ambiguous, it ought to be construed as understood by the party taking it, especially if the circumstances will justify the inference that the other party knew that he so understood it. Elting v. Sturtevant, 41 Conn. 182.

3. Where a party makes an offer of a certain sum to settle a claim where the sum in controversy is open and unliquidated and attaches to his offer the condition that the same if taken at all must be received in full, or in satisfaction of the claim in dispute, and the other party receives the money, he takes it subject to the condition attached to it, and it will operate as an accord and satisfaction, even though the party at the time of receiving the money, declare that he will not receive it in that manner, but only in part satisfaction of his debt so far as it will extend. McDaniel v. Lapham, 21 Vt. 222. Vedder v. Vedder, 1 Deh. (N. Y.) 257; a receipt in full of all demands, is no bar to a subsequent action, if given without any consideration. If given upon an actual part payment, it would show an accord and satisfaction. Riley v. White, 6 N. Y. Leg. Obs. 272.

4. A charge that if a receipt for services, not under seal, was a settlement, and so intended, plaintiff could not go behind it, was held correct. Ashley v. Hendee, 56 Vt. 209; Ruby v. Railroad Co., 8 W. Va. 269; Whiteman v. The Neptune, 1 Pet. Adm. 180.

5. A receipt in full of all damages containing an agreement upon a compromise or settlement of disputed claims or unliquidated damages, that the one party is to receive or accept a certain sum in full acquittance and discharge of such claims, is a contract and is not liable to be contradicted by parol, and is conclusive upon the parties in the absence of fraud or mistake. Cummings v. Baars, 36 Minn. 350.

6. A receipt acknowledging the payment of a sum of money in full, for damages resulting from an injury for which the person paying it was responsible, is not a simple receipt which can be varied by parol, but is in effect, a release from all liability occasioned by the injury unless shown to have been obtained by fraud. Coon v. Knapp, 8 N. Y. 402.

A writing "In consideration of $2,500 to me paid by M. Goodwin, executrix of said will, I hereby waive all right to contest said will or the parol thereof, and all claim I have or might have as heir of said deceased. E. Goodwin," partakes of the character both of a receipt and a contract and may be varied by evidence so far as it is a receipt; but the contract has one distinct meaning in reference to the circumstances of the case, and evidence that the signer intended to express some other meaning is not admissible in absence of fraud. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 59 N. H. 548.

7. Wayland v. Mosely, 5 Ala. 430; 39 Am. Dec. 335; Annan v. Merritt, 13

b. PURPOSE FOR WHICH PAYMENT IS MADE.—A receipt given for a specific purpose cannot be used for a different purpose, in violation of the object for which it was given.¹ A receipt containing in its terms an expression of the intention of the parties, is to such an extent a written contract, which cannot be varied by parol evidence.² Where the purpose for which it

Conn. 478; Henry v. Henry, 11 Ind. 236; Dale v. Evans, 14 Ind. 288; McKernan v. Mayhew, 21 Ind. 291; Kurtz v. Craig, 53 Ind. 561; Alcorn v. Morgan, 77 Ind. 184; Stapleton v. King, 33 Iowa 28; 11 Am. Rep. 109; Thompson v. Williams, 30 Kan. 114. A receipt given for a note for collection does not amount to a covenant to pay over the sum due thereon when collected. Wenzell v. Breckenridge, 3 Dana (Ky.) 482; but the law implies an agreement to pay over in a reasonable time after it is collected, on which indebitatus assumpsit will lie. Atchison v. Talbott, 5 Dana (Ky.) 325. Bursley v. Hamilton, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 40; 25 Am. Dec. 423. Where the payee of a promissory note, not negotiable, for $120, delivered it to a third person and took the following writing: "Received of A a note (describing it) for which I am to collect and account to the said A the sum of $110, when the above note is collected, or return said note back to A if I choose," it was decided that parol evidence, which was offered to show that the note was held on different or other terms, is not admissible. Langdon v. Langdon, 4 Gray (Mass.) 186. James v. Bligh, 11 Allen (Mass.) 4; Fay v. Gray, 124 Mass. 500. "Received of J W $425, in American gold, to be loaned out, we to account to him for the principal and interest, less our charges, not to exceed 2½ per cent. per annum," is a receipt which fixes the relation of the parties, and cannot be varied by parol. Wykoff v. Irvine, 6 Minn. 496. Sencerbox v. McGrade, 6 Minn. 484; Knoblauch v. Kronschnabel, 18 Minn. 300; Morris v. St. Paul etc. R. Co., 21 Minn. 91; Carpenter v. Jamison, 75 Mo. 285. A writing stating that a note was received "on account without recourse," is not within the rule allowing parol evidence to vary or explain a receipt, which is limited to a technical receipt, in the strict sense, and not to a clause in the nature of a contract. Graves v. Friend, 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 568. Townsend v. Fisher, 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 47; Green v. Rochester Iron Mfg. Co., 1 Thomp. & C. (N. Y.) 5;

Wilson v. Derr, 69 N. Car. 137; Stone v. Vance, 6 Ohio 246; Bird v. Hueston, 10 Ohio St. 418; Davison v. Davis, 125 U. S. 90; Tuley v. Barton, 79 Va. 387; McGregor v. Bugbee, 15 Vt. 734; Harrison v. Juneau Bank, 17 Wis. 351; Schultz v. Coon, 51 Wis. 416.

See also Jones on Com. & Trade Contr., § 187; Greenl. on Ev., § 305.

1. Tucker v. Baldwin, 13 Conn. 136; 33 Am. Dec. 384; Bishop v. Perkins, 19 Conn. 300. A receipt given in full satisfaction of a certain judgment, therein specified, and also of "all claims and demands," will not avail against another suit, pending between the same parties, and not intended by them to be included in the receipt. Grumley v. Webb, 44 Mo. 444; 100 Am. Dec. 304.

2. A writing stating that the money received is to be applied to the account of the person from whom it was received, partakes of the double nature of a receipt and a contract. Ashley v. Vischer, 24 Cal. 322; 85 Am. Dec. 65.

A receipt for a sum of money received "on a decree" specified does not purport to be for the principal or any part of the interest, but simply for so much on the decree. It speaks for itself; and parol evidence of what it was intended to cover is not admissible. Hull v. Butler, 7 Ind. 267.

In the following writing: "Rec'd Vincennes, Sept. 14th, 1822, of P. Tisloe, 200 dollars for safekeeping," the defendant could not introduce parol testimony to prove that the money was not deposited for safekeeping, but was paid in discharge of a debt. Tisloe v. Graeter, 1 Blackf. (Ind.) 353.

Where the receipt is to be construed as an agreement that the money was received in satisfaction of plaintiff's claim for damages, it is more than a mere receipt and is conclusive between the parties. Brown v. Cambridge, 3 Allen (Mass.) 474.

In the following writing: "Received from B his 90-day note for $300," on the question whether the note was appropriated on a joint or on a several account, an instruction that the receipt was given is not thus inserted it may be proved by evidence aliunde.¹

c. TO SUPPORT THE CONTRACT—(1) Deed.—Where a deed contains a receipt, parol evidence is not admissible to contradict the receipt in any form of action where the effort is to avoid the deed.² The same principle does not apply to an action by the grantor for purchase money which it is claimed was never paid, was silent and had no legitimate bearing one way or the other, was held not to be erroneous. Hunt v. Brewer, 68 Me. 262.

Where the receipt expresses in terms the manner in which the money is to be appropriated, it cannot on principle and authority be contradicted in that respect. Egleston v. Knickerbacker, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 458.

"Received of G the following orders or demands for collection, and to be paid over to G or his order, on the first day of November, or as soon thereafter as collected," is more than a mere receipt. It is an agreement by which the receipt of the demand for collection is admitted and a stipulation given that the avails shall when collected be paid over to the plaintiff's assignor or to his order. The parties had the right to make this arrangement in regard to these demands, and the defendant having entered into it cannot contradict or vary it by parol, and show that he received them, not for the purpose expressed, but for some other entirely different one. Wood v. Whiting, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 190.

A receipt for $500, "in full of all matters between us from the beginning of the world to this date," is not to be limited to any particular claims unless, in addition to the general words, a particular claim is specified. Randall v. Reynolds, 52 N. Y. Super. Ct. 145.

Where the plaintiffs acknowledge by indorsement on the note that on a compromise with the defendants, they received the security "for the full payment of their note," it is something more than a receipt. Had it been intended as nothing more than a technical receipt for so much paid, or secured to be paid, the language would have been different. "As a compromise for the full payment of this note" is language altogether inconsistent with such an intent, and is too plain and explicit to be misunderstood. The admission of parol evidence to vary or contradict a receipt must not be extended beyond the spirit of the terms in which it is expressed, and must be confined to the case of a receipt in the strict sense of the term. Kellogg v. Richards, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 116. (But compare with this case Horton's Appeal, 38 Pa. St. 294.) Kirkpatrick v. Smith, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 188.

1. See supra, this title, How Affected by Parol Evidence.

2. See under DEEDS, vol. 5, p. 436. "Receipt in the body of the deed was not, before 1882, conclusive in equity, but was before the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, came into operation, conclusive at law, that the purchase money was paid. But the receipt in the body of, or indorsed on a deed made since 1881, is conclusive in favor of a subsequent purchaser without notice. See the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict., ch. 41, § 55)." Elphinstone Interpret. of Deeds 150, and cases. Harding v. Hamblar, 3 M. & W. 279; Rowntree v. Jacob, 2 Taunt. 141; Baker v. Dewey, 1 B. & C. 704; Coppin v. Coppin, 2 P. W. 291; Hawkins v. Gardiner, 2 Sm. & G. 441; Winter v. Lord Anson, 3 Russ. 488; Wilson v. Keating, 27 Beav. 121; Morgan's Pat. Anchor Co. v. Morgan, 35 L.T., N. S. 811; Meakings v. Cromwell, 2 Sandf. (N. Y.) 512; Merriam v. Harsen, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 232; Childs v. Barnum, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 14; Gout v. Townsend, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 336; Stackpole v. Robbins, 48 N. Y. 665. "It seems that in England, if a deed of conveyance distinctly states in the operative part that the consideration money has been received, and the estoppel is properly pleaded, the fact of payment, and the amount paid, are conclusively presumed, although a receipt indorsed upon the deed will not of itself amount to an estoppel. In America, though the party is estopped from denying the conveyance, and that it was for a valuable consideration, the weight of authority is in favor of treating the statement in the deed as only prima facie evidence of the amount or only paid in part; nor to an action by the grantee to recover back the consideration.¹

(2) Fire and Life Insurance.—In accordance with the principle just referred to in its application to deeds, the receipt of an insurance company acknowledging the payment of premium is so conclusive against the company as to prevent it from averring or showing non-payment for the purpose of denying that the contract ever had any legal existence. A delivery of the insurance policy with such a receipt, is conclusive upon the insurer in an action to enforce the policy.² In an action for the premium, however, or to recover it, the receipt contained in the policy is open to explanation by parol evidence.³

(3) Marine Insurance.—An acknowledgment by an agent of the receipt of the premium in a policy of marine insurance is ordina-paid, in an action of covenant by the grantee to recover back the consideration, or in an action by the grantor to recover the price which is yet unpaid." Taylor on Ev. § 96.

1. See supra, this title, How Affected by Parol Evidence.

2. In Basch v. Humbolt Mutual F. & M. Ins. Co., 35 N. J. L. 429, the court by Beasley, C. J., said: "The policy of insurance executed by the president and secretary of the company, contains a formal acknowledgment of the payment of the premium in question, and, in my opinion, this should prevent the defendants from averring or showing non-payment for the purpose of denying that the contract ever had any legal existence. What does this receipt, in its connection with the delivery of the instrument, import, if it does not mean that the payment of the premium is conclusively admitted to the extent that such payment is necessary to give vitality to the contract? Unless this be its meaning, it serves no legal office, for it does not mean that the money has been actually received. It is true that there is an express declaration that the policy is to have no effect, until the premium shall have been paid; but in this same instrument is an equally express statement that the act on which the contract is to become efficacious, has been done. Such an acknowledgment appears to be analogous, and equivalent to the acknowledgment of the receipt of a valuable consideration in a conveyance operative by force of the Statute of Uses, such acknowledgment being always considered conclusive for the purpose of giving a legal force to the transaction. The usual legal rule is, that a receipt is only prima facie evidence of payment, and may be explained; but this rule does not apply when a question involved is not only as to the fact of payment, but as to the existence of rights springing out of the contract. With a view to defeating such rights the party giving the receipt cannot contradict it. An acknowledgment of an act done contained in a written contract, which act is requisite to put it in force, is as conclusive against the party making it as is any part of the contract; it cannot be contradicted or varied by parol."

See also Miller v. Life Ins. Co., 12 Wall. (U. S.) 285; Fellowes v. Madison Ins. Co., 2 Disney (Ohio) 128; Hemmenway v. Bradford, 14 Mass. 121; Goit v. National Prot. Ins. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 189.

In Illinois the court decided that insurance companies, on the ground of public policy, will be estopped to prove for the purpose of avoiding the contract of insurance, that the premium acknowledged in the policy to have been paid, was not in fact paid. Illinois Central Ins. Co. v. Wolf, 37 Ill. 354; Providence Ins. Co. v. Fennell, 49 Ill. 180; Teutonia Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 77 Ill. 384.

The question of receipt of payment as acknowledged in the insurance contract is more generally involved in the question whether payment of premium has been waived. For this see under INSURANCE, vol. II, p. 308.

3. Authorities in point will be found supra, this title, Where the Receipt is a Part of a Contract.

rily conclusive of the fact stated,¹ but not as between underwriter and broker.² The rule arises from the method of keeping accounts between the broker and the assured.³

1. Bigelow on Estoppel (4th ed.) 540; Arnould on Ins. (4th ed.) 180, 181; 2 Wharton Ev., § 1065 (3d ed.); 3 Kent's Com. 260.

2. Dalgell v. Moir, 1 Camp. 532 per Lord Ellenborough; Anderson v. Thornton, 8 Exch. 428, per Parke, B.; Fry v. Bell, 3 Taunt. 493.

3. Arnould on Ins. (4th ed.) 179.

Insurances on vessels are often, if not ordinarily, effected by brokers, for and on account of the owners; and these brokers have accounts and a course of dealing, both with the underwriters and the assured. In Dalgell v. Moir, 1 Campb. 532, the defendant had underwritten a policy by one Reid, a broker, on account of the plaintiff. The plaintiff received the policy, thus underwritten, in payment of a debt due him from Reid, and without advancing any money for it. Reid had a running account with the defendant, and had not paid him any of the premium. The action was for a return of the premium. Lord Ellenborough said at the trial: "If a man acknowledges that he has received a sum of money from a broker, referring to the receipt in the policy, and accredits him with his principal, to that amount, he shall not afterward, as between himself and the principal, be allowed to say that the broker never paid him." That rests upon the law of principal and agent and the effect of the dealings with the agent. Fry v. Bell, 3 Taunt. 493, and Mavor v. Simeon, 3 Taunt. 497, were also cases growing out of transactions with brokers. The latter case was compromised and not decided, but the former was taken out of the general rule, by fraud perpetrated or attempted by the insured through the broker upon the insurers. De Gaminde v. Pigon, 4 Taunt. 246, was a case which shows the special circumstances upon which the rule is founded, and to which it is applicable. That was an action on a marine policy for a loss of one vessel, and for return premium on another. The plaintiff, who lived at Alicante, was not known to the defendant as being concerned in the insurance, which was effected by the plaintiff's factors in London. They obtained the insurance of one Wagstaff, an insurance broker, who debited the plaintiff's correspondence in account, and they in like manner debited him. Wagstaff then credited the defendant in his accounts, but no money had passed between any of these parties, and both plaintiffs, London agents, and Wagstaff had failed. The court held that as between the plaintiff and defendant, the premium was paid, and the defendant must look to the broker, Wagstaff. Heath, J., said: "When the assured is admitted to have paid the premiums, it is, as between the assured and the underwriters, actually paid. The admission of the receipt of the premium is an admission that it shall be allowed by the underwriter in account, and how that account stands between these parties we do not know, for it is not stated in this case, but it must be allowed in account by the broker to the underwriter." It will be seen that all these cases turn on a different principle from that which they are sometimes invoked to sustain. When the contract is made by the insured, in his own name, directly with the underwriters or insurance company, through their agent or officer, I am unable to see why an acknowledgment of the receipt of the premium contained in the policy or contract of insurance is governed by any different rule from other receipts. If the insurance company have been credited with it in account by their agent, or if it has, in fact, been paid to him, no doubt it is a sufficient payment to them. In any case the delivery and possession of a policy containing a receipt for the premium afford evidence of its payment, or of a waiver of its prepayment, but it is not conclusive, nor does it operate as an estoppel either in favor or against the insurers. Sheldon v. Atlantic Ins. Co., 26 N. Y. 640, to some purposes a premium is considered paid although there has been only a promise to pay it, for instance, to enable the insured to recover it back, when the underwriter has no right to retain it, this is because the underwriter has the right to compel the payment of it upon the note; and has in his possession the evidence of the promise to pay, which may exist after a judgment to the prejudice of the assured, the underwriters are prevented, in such cases, from saying they have not received the premium; their acknowl-

5. Binding by Way of Estoppel.—A receipt may, when acted upon without knowledge of the facts by third parties, estop the party who gave it from denying its purport.¹ Under circumstances which would create an estoppel by conduct a receipt may become binding between the parties.²

IX. RECEIPT OF THIRD PARTIES.—Although a receipt acknowledging payment is evidence of such payment against the maker of it, it is not such evidence as against other persons.³

X. VALUE AS EVIDENCE.—A receipt is evidence of the most satisfactory kind. To do away with its force the testimony should be edgment of that fact operating quasi an estoppel. Russell v. De Grand, 15 Mass. 35.

1. Bigelow on Estoppel (4th ed.) 540; Wharton on Ev. (3rd ed.), § 1066.

Receipts for purchase money may bind the party receipting as to purchasers without notice, and yet be open to explanation between the parties. Leake (2d ed.) 905.

Where A mortgaged goods to B for £250, acknowledging receipt of that sum in the mortgage deed, and signing a receipt therefor indorsed upon the mortgage and soon thereafter B transferred the mortgage to C for the full value of £250, C taking the same without notice that A had in fact not received the amount named, it was held that A could not claim against C that he had not received £250 from B. Bickerton v. Walker, 31 Ch. Div. 151. Kennedy v. Green, 3 M. & K. 609; Hunter v. Walters, L. R., 7 Ch. 75; Knight v. Wiffen, L. R., 5 Q. B. 666; Wyatt v. Hertford, 3 East 147; Jenkins v. Power, 6 M. & S. 287; Turner v. Flinn, 72 Ala. 532; Carr v. Miner, 42 Ill. 179; Miller v. Sullivan, 26 Ohio St. 639. A party accepting a receipt for money paid, which he knew he had not paid, cannot set it up as an estoppel against the party giving it. Brown v. Massachusetts Mut. L. Ins. Co., 59 N. H. 298; 47 Am. Rep. 205. Armour v. Michigan etc. R. Co., 65 N. Y. 111; 22 Am. Dec. 603.

Where a party gives a receipt or writing, and knows, at the time he is giving it, that the same is untrue (as in the case of a receipt expressed to be for cash when notes were given instead), he gives it with the understanding that it may be acted upon and used against him by third persons without notice, as if it were true. Baker v. Union L. Ins. Co., 37 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 126.

The receipt of a public officer may in the like manner be an estoppel as against vendees with notice. Halsey v. Blood, 29 Pa. St. 319.

But that money receipted was not in fact, paid, may be shown, even against an innocent third person who relied upon the receipt without inquiry. Traveler's Ins. Co. v. Chappelow, 83 Ind. 429. And the fact that the grantor of land has a receipt from the city treasurer for the taxes assessed thereon in a certain year will not estop the city from asserting that a portion of the taxes for that year were unpaid, as against the grantee who did not know of such receipt when he purchased the land. Marco v. Fond du Lac Co., 63 Wis. 212.

2. Oregonian R. Co. v. Oregon R. etc. Co., 10 Sawy. (U. S.) 464; Bleven v. Freer, 10 Cal. 172; Dresbach v. Minnis, 45 Cal. 223; Gaff v. Harding, 66 Ill. 61.

In the case of a receipt given to an attaching officer, with knowledge, for goods attached as the property of a third person, whereby the officer is prevented from levying upon other goods and induced to leave those attached in the possession of the receiptor. Sewey v. Field, 4 Neb. 381. Rice v. Crow, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 28; Wharton on Ev., § 1066 (3d ed.).

3. A receipt offered to prove that a certain sum of money paid to the plaintiff by a third person was paid on account of the defendant cannot be admitted for this purpose when the third party is alive and may be examined. Jordan v. Wilkins, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 110.

The giver of a receipt should be personally a witness. Davidson v. Berthoud, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 354; it cannot be admitted upon proof of handwriting. Roll v. Maxwell, 5 N. J. L. 493. See also Ford v. Smith, 5 Cal.

clear and convincing;¹ and the burden of proof rests upon the party attempting the explanation.² Where the evidence of each side is entitled to the same amount of weight, the receipt will stand,³ but what the explanation does prove in the end is a question for the jury to decide and not for the court.⁴

XI. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS—1. Statute of Frauds.—All that is required of the Statute of Frauds is some memorandum in writing signed by the party to be charged or affected. A receipt may be such a memorandum.⁵

314. (But compare Locke v. Porter G. & S. Min., 41 Cal. 305; Davis v. Shreve, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 260; Leatherbury v. Bennett, 4 Har. & M. (Md.) 392; Cutbush v. Gilbert, 4 S. & R. (Pa.) 551; English v. Hannah, 4 Watts (Pa.) 424.

1. The bare allegation of a party that he never received the goods without any further explanation tending to explain how he came to make a formal admission of their receipt will not set the receipt aside. Chapman v. Railroad Co., 7 Phila. (Pa.) 204; and where the receipt is attacked on ground of mistake, plaintiff ought to be able to show in what the mistake consists. Nicholson v. Frazier, 4 Harr. (Del.) 206; so after a lapse of years a receipt should only be set aside for weighty reasons. Harris v. Hay, 111 Pa. St. 562. A receipt stating money to have been received under a certain contract is prima facie evidence that it was received under the contract mentioned. The party contradicting the receipt must show the contrary, but he is not bound to show how the misstatement occurred. U. S. v. Jones, 8 Pet. (U.S.) 399. See also Harden v. Gordon, 2 Mason (U.S.) 561; Winchester v. Grosvenor, 44 Ill. 425; Rosenmueller v. Lampe, 89 Ill. 212; 31 Am. Rep. 74; Vigus v. O'Bannon, 118 Ill. 334; and in a receipt in the following form: "Received in various payments at this date" the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to show that it meant "up to" that date. Moore v. Korty, 11 Ind. 341. Chandler v. Schoonover, 14 Ind. 324; Levi v. Karrick, 13 Iowa 344; Lee v. Fraternal Mut. Ins. Co., 1 Handy (Ohio) 217; Gleason v. Sawyer, 22 N.H. 85; Gibson v. Potter, 30 N. J. Eq. 204; Danziger v. Hoyt, 120 N. Y. 190; McDowall v. Lemaitre, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 320.

2. Jackson v. Sacramento etc. R. Co., 23 Cal. 269; Winchester v. Grosvenor, 44 Ill. 425; Moore v. Korty, 11 Ind.

341; Gray v. Lonsdale, 10 La. Ann. 749; Guyette v. Bolton, 46 Vt. 228; Lyons v. Williams, 15 Ill. App. 27; Lawrence v. Schuylkill Nav. Co., 4 Wash. (U. S.) 562.

3. Borden v. Hope, 21 La. Ann. 581.

A receipt in full can only be overcome by a preponderance of evidence. Neal v. Handley, 116 Ill. 418.

4. Taylor on Ev., § 859; Burton v. Merrick, 21 Ark. 357; City Bank v. Kent, 57 Ga. 283; Herkimer v. Nigh, 10 Ill. App. 372; Smith v. Cedar Falls etc. R. Co., 30 Iowa 244; McGrann v. Pittsburgh etc. R. Co., 111 Pa. St. 171; Bell v. McDonald, 9 Tex. 378; and the court should set aside a verdict for the plaintiff when the jury awarded him the full amount claimed in disregard of his own receipt for part of the sum. New Jersey Flax etc. Co. v. Mills, 26 N. J. L. 60; Brooks v. White, 2 Met. (Mass.) 283; 37 Am. Dec. 95.

It is for the jury to decide what is meant by "teety-seven dollars" in a tax receipt containing also a column headed "total tax" which footed up in figures "$27." Daniels v. Burso, 40 Ill. 307. Orton v. Noonan, 25 Wis. 672.

The court cannot undertake to say that a paper, purporting to be a receipt, may not bear marks, or evidence on its face, conclusive to show that it is not a genuine receipt, although the signature attached to it may be in the handwriting of him whose receipt it purports to be. Aday v. Echols, 18 Ala. 353; 52 Am. Dec. 225.

5. Grumley v. Webb, 48 Mo. 562; Browne Stat. of Frauds, § 346; Wood Stat. of Frauds, § 362; Blegden v. Beadbear, 12 Ves. 466; Emmerson v. Heelis, 2 Taunt. 38; Gobell v. Archer, 2 A. & E. 500; 29 E. C. L. 129; Evans v. Prothern, 1 DeG. M. & G. 572.

A receipt for purchase-money of real estate may be sufficient agreement under Statute of Frauds, provided it show on its face, or by reference to

2. Statute of Limitations.—A receipt containing a promise to apply proceeds to account of holder, is a contract in writing within four years' limitation; but a receipt for money paid, is not a contract in writing, and an action for such money is barred in two years.¹

3. Ancient Documents.—The law also recognizes a conclusive presumption in favor of the due execution of ancient receipts. When these instruments are thirty years old and are unblemished by any alterations, they are said to prove themselves. Their bare production is sufficient.²

For other miscellaneous cases see note 3.

some other instrument, every material part of a valid contract on the subject; not otherwise. Barickman v. Kuykendall, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 21.

In Williams v. Morris, 95 U. S. 444, the receipt was not sufficient to operate as such memorandum. See also Ellis v. Deadman, 4 Bibb (Ky.) 466.

A simple receipt, not under seal, for the purchase-money of land, is not sufficient, under the Statute of Frauds, to divest the interest of the vendor. Mason v. Ammon, 117 Pa. St. 127.

1. Ashley v. Vischer, 24 Cal. 322; 85 Am. Dec. 65.

A written receipt for "$1,600 received on deposit in national currency" implies a promise to pay, and an action thereon is not limited to six years. Long v. Strauss, 107 Ind. 94; 57 Am. Rep. 87.

Receipts on a note are presumptive evidence of payments; it is for the jury to decide whether they were indorsed in order to take the debt out of the Statute of Limitations. Gibson v. Peebles, 2 McCord (S. Car.) 418.

2. Taylor on Ev. §§ 87, 88; Bertie v. Beaumont, 2 Price 308; Settle v. Alison, 8 Ga. 201; 52 Am. Dec. 393.

Receipts for taxes over thirty years old are admissible in evidence without proof of execution. Blackwell on Tax Titles, § 836 (5th ed.); McReynolds v. Longenberger, 57 Pa. St. 13.

A receipt on account of a bond for the exact amount due, cannot be lightly questioned by circumstantial evidence, after the lapse of more than twenty years. Robert v. Garnie, 3 Cal. (N. Y.) 14. See also ANCIENT DOCUMENTS, vol. I, p. 565.

3. If the contents or mode of signature of a receipt are to be proved, it must be produced or accounted for, so as to let in secondary evidence. Romayne v. Duane, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 246; Van Ness v. Hadsell, 54 Mich. 560; and where a receipt is produced the whole document is in proof, and one part cannot be considered and the other part rejected. Butler v. The Arrow, 6 McLean (U. S.) 470.

Receipt for purchase money at foot of deed is evidence without further proof than the acknowledgment of deed. Kelly v. Dunlap, 3 P. & W. (Pa.) 136.

A conditional receipt is not admissible to support a plea of a positive settlement or payment. Yeuren v. Smalley, 3 Vt. 251.

The genuineness of receipts, offered to prove payment, by one plaintiff to another and similar instruments is to be presumed from the experience of human conduct in the common transactions of business. Wooten v. Nall, 18 Ga. 609. And where it was the general custom of a mill to give a receipt, in the absence of proof to the contrary there is a presumption that a receipt was given. Ashe v. DeRosset, 8 Jones (N. Car.) 240.

It is not necessary for a party to deny the execution of a receipt, under oath, before the party can contradict or vary it. Ditch v. Vollhardt, 82 Ill. 134.

A receipt, signed by a subscribing witness, may be proved by that witness. Heckert v. Haine, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 16.

Where a party offers a receipt in evidence as signed by a person who fails to establish the fact, he shall not be permitted to prove it to be the signature of another person. Beake v. Birdsell, 1 N. J. L. 12.

The receipts of persons without the commonwealth are admissible, on proof of their handwriting, as evidence of charges in a guardianship account of payments to such persons. Shearman v. Akins, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 283.

The natural inference from the fact that a receipt in full written across the face of a note bears no date (unless a different occasion can be clearly assigned to it) that it took effect from the latest credit. Chapman v. Smoot, 66 Md. 8.

RECEIVE.—See note 1.

A brought his bill, alleging a purchase of a 100-acre entry from B, but exhibited no deed, but merely a receipt from B, acknowledging payment by A for 100-acre entry. It appearing that B had previously bought of A an entry of that description, and afterwards restored it. Held, that it should be inferred that the receipt was given on restoring that entry. Kendal v. Baird, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 75.

The assignee by deed of a legacy by the legatee, brought suit to recover the same from the executors, who set up in defense in full for the legacy, made by the legatee, and prior in date to the assignment. Held, that the receipt was not evidence against the assignee, without proof that it was in fact executed before the deed and that the date of the receipt was not even prima facie evidence of the time of its execution. Wilcox v. Pearman, 9 Leigh (Va.) 144.

And if a tax receipt does not specify the year for which the taxes were paid such omission may be supplied by parol evidence. Elston v. Kennicott, 46 Ill. 187.

1. Receive.—"Receive," as used in a statute against fraudulent conveyances, which was worded as follows: "Any one suspected of having fraudulently received, etc., any of the money, goods, effects, or other estate," etc., was held to apply to the obtaining of real estate as well as personal property. Harlow v. Tufts, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 453.

A resolution of a county board of supervisors accepted the plans of an architect for a jail, upon condition that they should "receive" a bid from a reliable party, who would give sufficient bonds to erect the jail in conformity with the plans for a specified sum. It was held that "receive" in this connection was not equivalent to "accept," and that the condition was satisfied if the board found a reliable party who was willing to give the bond and do the work, although they refused his bid. Hall v. Los Angeles Co., 74 Cal. 502.

The Statute of 4 Anne.—The statute (4 Anne, ch. 16, § 27) provides that "actions of account shall and may be brought and maintained . . . by one joint tenant and tenant in common . . . against the other, as bailiff for receiving more than comes to his just share or proportion," etc.

In West v. Meyer, 46 Ohio St. 66, plaintiff in error contended that the statute did not authorize a recovery by the out-tenant against the tenant in possession for the value of the mere use and occupation of the joint estate. The court by Owens, C. J., said: "The leading English case which holds that mere use and occupation by a tenant in common did not create a liability against him to his co-tenant, is Henderson v. Eason, 17 Ad. & E., N. S. 718; 79 E. C. L. 717. The court says: 'It is to be observed that the statute does not mention lands or tenements or any particular subject. Every case in which a tenant in common receives more than his share is within the statute. An account will lie when he does receive, but not otherwise. It is to be observed also that the receipt of issues and profits is not mentioned, but simply the receipt of more than comes to his share; and, further, he is to account when he receives, not takes, more than comes to his just share.' . . . A different view was taken of the same question in Thompson v. Bostick, 1 McMull. Eq. (S. Car.) 75, where the court says that 'to cultivate and have use of lands is to receive the rents and profits, though the occupier is his own tenant,' etc. In Early v. Friend, 16 Gratt. (Va.) 47, the judge, speaking for the court, says: 'With all deference to the court of exchequer chamber, I think the construction they put upon the word "receiving" is too technical and narrow, at least for our country. . . . I do not see the force of the distinction drawn by the court between the words "receive" and "take" in this connection. I think the word "receiving," in the statute, literally means a receiving of profits as well by use and occupation as renting out the property.' This view is taken in Shiels v. Stark, 14 Ga. 435, and in a recent case in Vermont, Hayden v. Merrill, 44 Vt. 348." But the court held it unnecessary to decide upon the question as the statute of Ohio differs materially from the statute of Anne. See generally upon the question of the liability of a joint tenant or tenant in common to account to his co-tenant for the use and occupation of the common property, JOINT TENANTS, vol. 11, p. 1098.

Effect of "Received" in a Contract.—

An instrument, signed by C, stated that C "received" of S certain trees, grape roots, etc., specifying the number and price of each kind, and the total value. It was delivered by C to S, who indorsed thereon the payment of part of such aggregate value. It was held, that the word "received" in such an instrument, fixing specifically the price of each article and the sum total of the whole, has the same legal effect as the word "bought," with the additional acknowledgment of a delivery of the property; that the instrument was not a mere receipt, but a contract of sale, the terms of which could not be varied by parol. Schultz v. Coon, 51 Wis. 418; 37 Am. Rep. 839. See generally RECEIPTS.

Received in the Sense of Approved.—

In Gwynn v. Richardson (Miss. 1888), 3 So. Rep. 579, a supervisors' vote ordered that the tax roll "be received, and the clerk will certify copies thereof to the auditor as the law directs." It was held that this order sufficiently shows an approval of the roll by the board. The court by Cooper, C. J., said: "The context clearly shows that the word 'receive' is not used to indicate only that the board has accepted the custody of the roll, but that its meaning is that the board adopted it, as corrected by them, as a completed, approved roll."

In a Charter-party.—Where a charter-party provides that the bills of lading shall be "conclusive evidence of the amount of cargo received," "received" means "shipped on board." Lishman v. Christie, 19 Q. B. Div. 333, which, as nearly as possible, overrules Pyman v. Burt, Cab. & El. 207.

INDEX.

Pre-emption. See Public Lands

Prescription, 7

Adverse user, 11

Distinction between and custom, 10

In corporate franchises, 29

In highway, 25

In light and air, 27

In miscellaneous easements, 29

In private way, 25

In right of way over railroad, 26

In right to water, 27

Lateral support, 28

Pleading and evidence, 30

Right of fishery, 25

Right of pasturage, 25

Theory of, 7

Title to office, 39

To what applicable, 24

When may not exist, 30

President, 32

Election, 32

Powers, 33

Presumptions, 36

Accumulative, 57

As between trustee and beneficiary,

55

Burden of proof, 61

Classification, 39

Conflicting presumptions, 40, 59

Definition, 38

Distinctions, 57

From adverse possession, 41

From alteration of testimony, 68

From fabrication of testimony, 72

From holding back proof, 70

From spoliation of documents, 69

General rules concerning, 39

In case of business transactions, 52

In case of foreign laws, 46

In favor of ancient documents, 55

In favor of official acts, 43

Mixed presumptions, 59

Of arrival of letters, 80

Of conduct, 78

Of continuance of life, 74

Of corporate existence, 52

Of correctness in dates, 50

Of coverture, 77

Of death, 46

Of easement, 54

Of fact, 56

Of formalities of documents, 51

Of grant, 42, 81

Of guilt, 73

Of infantile incapacity, 45

Of innocence, 45

Presumptions—Continued

Of legitimacy, 48

Of malice, 65

Of membership of profession, 52

Of negligence, 67

Of occupancy, 76

Of payment, 55

Of regularity of divorce, 48

Of regularity of marriage, 47

Of regularity of official appointment,

79

Of regularity of proceedings, 49

Of residence, 76

Of sanity, 45

Of solvency, 77

Of survivorship, 75

Of title, 53

Relative to mental states, 61

When conclusive, 41

Principal and Accessory. See Accessory

Principal and Agent. See Agency

Principal and surety. See Suretyship

Prisons, 85

Bonds and rules, 91

Convict labor system, 88

Power to maintain, 86

Support of convicts, 90

Private ways, 95

Acquisition by prescription, 103

Classification, 96

Creation by grant, 99

How lost or extinguished, 115

How revived when lost, 116

How used, 107

Obstructions in, 111

Of necessity, 96

Repairs of, 111

Right extra viam, 115

Rights in, 110

Right to locate, 105

Statutory, 118

When public, 106

Privileged communications, 121

Arbitrators testimony, 124

Between husband and wife, 152

Definition and classification, 122

Evidence offensive to public morals,

154

Judges' testimony, 124

Political matters, 123

Sources of information in criminal prosecutions, 127

State secrets, 123

To attorneys, 127

To physicians, 147

- Privileged communications—Contin'd
 To priests and clergymen, 151
 Unprivileged communications, 155
- Probate and administration, 161
 Administration during absence, 216
 Administration during minority, 215
 Administration pendente lite, 216
 Administration with will annexed, 209
 Administrator de bonis non, 212
 Effect of decree, 206
 Effect of probate, 181
 Effect where intestate was alive, 184
 Intestacy essential to administration, 184
 Limitation of time, 187
 Nuncupative wills, 184
 Of what papers necessary, 174
 Partial probate, 183
 Probate jurisdiction, 162
 Probate in common form, 180
 Probate in solemn form, 180
 Procedure, 179
 Procedure on application for administration, 204
 Production of will, 178
 Proof of will, 183
 Public administration, 201
 Special administration, 218
 When administration may be dispensed with, 208
 Who entitled to administer, 188
- Process, 221
 Definition, 222
- Production of documents, 227
 At trial, 251
 Before trial, 227
 Corporate books, 231
 In hands of third persons, 257
 Non-judicial, 229
 Power of Congress to compel, 249
 Private, 242
 Semi-public, 231, 241
 Statutory regulations, 248
- Profanity. See Blasphemy
- Profits à prendre, 259
 Appurtenant, 260
 Definition, 259
 Distinguished from easement, 261
 How created, 262
 In gross, 260
- Prohibition, 263
 Against what courts or officers, 276
 Against whom issued, 275
 In what cases granted, 268
 Nature of writ, 263
 Procedure, 279
 Time of issue, 271
 What courts may issue, 266
 When refused, 273
- Promissory notes. See Bills and Notes
- Promoters. See Corporations
- Prosecuting attorney. See District Attorney; Public Officers
- Protest, 292
 As evidence, 296
 By whom made, 293
 Definition, 292
 Form, 293
 Waiver of, 297
 When necessary, 295
- Proxy. See Stockholders
- Public lands, 305
 Acquisition in general, 310
 Alienation before the issue of patent, 332
 Bounty lands, 330
 Cancellation of patents, 356
 Congressional control, 306
 Homestead, 323
 Land office, 340
 Mineral lands, 335
 Miscellaneous reservations, prohibitions and grants, 371
 Patents, 347
 Pre-emption, 312
 Public sale and private entry, 328
 Railroad land grants, 336
 School lands, 360
 Swamp lands, 367
 Timber lands, 331, 364
 Town sites, 362
- Public Officers, 378
 Abandonment of office, 562c
 Acceptance, 437
 Acceptance—knowledge of appointment, 438
 Accountability for property, 480
 Administrators, 514
 Appointing power, 418, 423
 Appointment, 417
 Appointment—condition precedent, 440
 Appointment—contracts to secure, 445
 Appointment—time, 440
 Attachment, 518
 Attorneys-at-law, 404
 Authority—in whose name exercised, 468
 Authority—ratification, 471
 Bond, 445
 Civil, 392
 Civil service examinations, 414
 Clerk of court, 562c
 Clerk of court—compensation, 562c
 Compensation, 525, 555
 Compensation of clerk of court, 562c
 Compensation—payable in what, 533
 Compensation—when payable, 534
 Conditional appointment, 428
 Confirmation of invalid appointment, 427
 Contracts, 510
 Corruption, 505

Public officers—Continued

County, 544
 County clerks, 547
De facto, 394, 493, 541
 Definition, 380
De jure, 394
 Delegation of authority, 461
 Deputy, 469
 Different departments, 451
 Disqualification, 406
 Disqualification—criminality, 409
 Disqualification to act, 470
 Duties, 477
 Duties—how performed, 478
 Eligibility, 397
 Eligibility—age, 402
 Eligibility—citizenship, 401
 Eligibility—color, 401
 Eligibility—mental capacity, 405
 Eligibility—property, 406
 Eligibility—residence, 402
 Eligibility—sex, 403
 Essential elements of various offices, 382
 Evidence of appointment, 435
 Executive, 391
 Executors, 514
 False imprisonment, 516
 Filling vacancies, 430
 Honorary offices, 393
 Indemnity, 540
 Injunction, 518
 Intruders, 396
 Irregular appointment, 428
 Joint authority, 465
 Judicial, 391, 486
 Kinds, 390
 Legislative, 391, 485
 Levy, 519
 Liabilities, 483
 Liabilities—burden of proof, 497
 Liabilities—compulsory deposit, 483
 Liabilities—criminal, 502
 Liabilities—default of private servants, 496
 Liabilities—funds, 499
 Liabilities—misfeasance, 495
 Liabilities—subordinates, 498
 Liability of public, 506, 557
 Mayor, 554
 Meaning of term, 380
 Military, 392
 Ministerial, 392, 490
 Municipal, 548
 Naval, 392
 Oath, 443
 Offices of profit, 393
 Offices of trust, 392
 Particular classes, 543
 Particular offenses, 504
 Police officers, 562
 Political offices, 391
 Power and authority, 448

Public officers—Continued

Power—how exercised, 455
 Preference to veterans, 412
 Presumptions, 459
 Procedure in actions, 562s*
 Ratification of authority, 471
 Reimbursement, 540
 Removal, 562a, 562f*
 Removal by judicial action, 562r
 Removal by legislative action, 562p*
 Resignation, 562r
 Resignation while insane, 562u
 Retroactive authorization, 422
 Rights, 523
 Right to hold office, 416
 Self-appointment, 423
 Sheriffs, 514
 Supervisors, 479
 Temporary absence, 420
 Termination of authority, 562o
 Term of office, 562k
 Torts, 514
 Traffic in office, 445
 Usurpers, 396
 Public prosecutor. See District Attorney; Public Officers
 Public records. See Records
 Purchase money mortgages, 574
 Chattel mortgages, 587
 Defense to foreclosure, 584
 Definition, 575, 583
 Priority, 575
 Statutes relating to, 589
 Purpresture. See Nuisances; Injunctions
 Quare clausum fregit. See Trespass
 Questions of law and fact, 598
 Acceptance of contract, 639
 Argument to jury upon law, 620
 Consideration of contract, 637
 Contracts, 635
 Customs, 635
 Delivery of Contract, 637
 Foreign laws, 635
 Intent, 657
 Interpretation and construction of written language, 646
 Laws and ordinances, 634
 Mixed questions of law and fact, 633
 Province of judge, 598
 Province of jury, 598
 Questions of fact, 625
 Reasonable time, 640
 Spoken words, 656
 Quia timet. See Bills Quia Timet
 Quietting title. See Bill to Remove Clouds.
 Qui tam actions. See Penalties
 Quo Warranto, 660
 Costs, 685
 Discretion of court, 665
 Fine, 684
 Judgment, 683

Quo Warranto—Continued

- Jurisdiction, 664
- Limitation; lapse of time, 667
- Municipal corporations, 674
- Nature of information, 661
- Nature of writ, 660
- New trial; review, 686
- Parties to proceeding, 675
- Pleading, 680
- Procedure, 678
- Public officers, 668
- Racing. See Gaming
- Railroad commissioners, 686
 - Appointment, 687
 - Compensation, 690
 - Powers and duties, 687
- Railroad pools, 691
 - Definition, 691
 - Equitable relief against, 693
 - When legal, 691
- Railroad securities, 694
 - Bonds, 719
 - By whom executed, 699
 - Construction, 702
 - Contracts of guaranty, 730
 - Definition, 694
 - Effect of reorganization of company, 762
 - Equitable mortgages, 697
 - Equities, 761
 - Foreclosure, 744
 - Foreclosure sales, 764
 - Form and construction, 696
 - Indorsement of bonds, 732
 - Payment of bonds, 741
 - Power to create, 694
 - Priorities, 714, 754, 763
 - Property covered by, 704
 - Ratification of execution, 701
 - Receivers' certificates, 752
 - Redemption, 743
 - Rights of purchasers at foreclosure sales, 771
 - Rolling stock, 716
 - Statutory liens, 698
 - Subrogation, 742
 - Trustees, 733
- Railroads, 775
 - Bridges, 870
 - Carriage, 903
 - Charters, 789
 - Citizenship and residence, 791
 - Construction and operation, 862
 - Construction, contracts, 872
 - Contracts between two companies, 818
 - Corporate contracts relating to stations, 817
 - Corporate existence, 798
 - Corporate power to contract, 815
 - Corporate powers as to stock, 810
 - Corporate powers generally, 803
 - Creation and organization, 785

Railroads—Continued

- Crimes against, 928
- Crossings, 867
- Crossings, signals, etc., 886
- Definition, 777
- Effect of legislative grant on liability for nuisance, 923
- Federal control, 894
- Highway crossings, 865
- Indictment, 926
- Leases, 895
- Legal status, 780
- Location, 826
- Miscellaneous powers, 823
- Nuisances, 921
- Right of way, 839
- Rolling stock, etc., 882
- Rules and regulations, 820
- Speed of trains, 885
- State regulation, 884
- Torts, 930
- Traffic arrangements, 812
- Rape, 946
 - Assault with intent to commit, 968
 - Civil action, 969
 - Definition, 946
 - Evidence, 958
 - Force, 950
 - Indictment, 953
 - Instructions to jury, 967
 - On whom committed, 948
 - Resistance and consent, 951
 - Who may commit, 947
- Real covenants, 973
 - Classification, 974
 - Definition, 973
 - Effect by way of estoppel, 1020
 - Further assurance, 984
 - Limitation, 1010
 - Measure of damages for breach, 1014
 - Notice to defend title, 1012
 - Parties liable upon, 1011
 - Quiet enjoyment, 982
 - Release, 1009
 - Right to convey, 981
 - Running with the land, 997
 - Seisin, 976
 - Title, 974
 - Warranty, 985
- Real property, 1028
 - Bargain and sale, 1072
 - Definition, 1029
 - Lease and release, 1075
 - Limitations, 1047
 - Modes of conveyance generally, 1070
 - Qualifications, 1043, 1056
 - Statute of Uses, 1060
 - Tenure, 1035
- Reasonable doubt, 1079
 - In civil actions, 1085
 - In criminal actions, 1079

Recaption, 1093
 Definition, 1093
 Of persons, 1094
 Of property, 1095
 Receipts, 1111
 As affected by parol evidence, 1115
 Conclusiveness, 1121
 Definition, 1112
 Effect by way of estoppel, 1128
 Effect generally, 1120, 1128
 Form and scope, 1113
 Nature, 1112
 Right to demand, 1114
 Words and phrases,
 Practicable, 1
 Practical, 1
 Practice, 1
 Precarious, 2
 Precept, 2
 Precincts, 2
 Precise, 3
 Predominant, 3
 Premises, 4
 Prerogative, 6
 Presentation, 32
 Presentment, 32
 Preside, 32
 Pretext, 82
 Prevailing party, 82
 Prevent, 82
 Previous, 82
 Price, 82
 Primage, 83
 Primary election, 83
 Prime, 83
 Principles, 83
 Print, 84
 Priority, 84
 Private, 94
 Privilege, 120
 Privity, 156
 Prize, 157
 Prize fight, 157
 Procedendo, 218
 Procedure, 219
 Proceeds, 221
 Processioning, 225
 Process verbal, 225
 Proclamation, 225
 Procure, 226
 Produce—Products, 226
 Profession, 257
 Profits, 257
 Promise, 282
 Prompt, 283
 Proof, 283
 Proper, 283
 Property, 283
 Proposal, 289
 Proprietary, 289
 Proprietor, 289
 Propriety, 290

Words and phrases—Continued

Pro rata, 290
 Prosecute, 290
 Prosecuting witness, 291
 Prosecution, 290
 Prostitute, 291
 Protect, 292
 Protestant, 298
 Protestation, 298
 Provided, 298
 Provisional, 299
 Provisions, 299
 Proviso, 298
 Proximate and remote cause, 300
 Prudential, 302
 Public, 302
 Publication, 567
 Public house, 305
 Public law, 377
 Public peace, 563
 Public place, 563
 Public policy, 565
 Publisher, 568
 Pueblo, 568
 Punishment, 569
 Purchase, 571
 Purchase money, 573
 Purport, 590
 Purposely, 591
 Pursuance, 591
 Qualification—Qualify, 592
 Quando acciderint, 593
 Quanti minoris, 593
 Quantum damnificatus, 593
 Quantum meruit, 593
 Quarantine, 594
 Quarrel, 595
 Quarry, 595
 Quash, 596
 Quasi, 596
 Quay, 597
 Question, 597
 Quota, 660
 Radius, 686
 Rank, 945
 Ransom, 946
 Rate, 970
 Ratification, 970
 Ravine, 970
 Read, 970
 Ready, 971
 Real, 971
 Real actions, 971
 Realize, 1027
 Rear, 1076
 Reasonable, 1077
 Reasonable care, 1078
 Reasonable time, 1089
 Rebuttal, 1093
 Rebutter, 1093
 Receiptor, 1111
 Receive, 1131

